The Advising Center has 41 faculty advisors and is open five days a week from 8 am to 5 pm. Each advisor works at the Center three hours per week.

"Usually there is at least one advisor on hand every hour of every day during the week," Dr. Stokes says. "It's helpful for the student to have an appointment to see his advisor. If the student has an immediate problem, but his advisor is not in, then we would refer him to another faculty advisor that is available."

Dr. John Stokes

The peak load of the Advising Center is any period prior to preregistration, says Dr. Stokes. During summer and fall orientation, a total of 1,096 freshmen were advised. This figure also includes transfer freshmen. Approximately 431 sophomores remained from last year. The total number of students assigned to the Advising Center is 1,527.

Judy Bentley, the Advising Center's secretary, says that the students shouldn't come in at the last minute with their problems.

"If a student is having problems with a particular subject they should come in and talk with their advisor to get some ideas on what to do, rather than wait until the last minute to do something about it. We try to get them to come in and meet their advisor and get to know him."

Bentley stresses that students should stop by the Center and make sure their addresses and phone numbers are on file, in case she has to notify them about a change in their advisor's hours or set up an appointment for them with their advisor.

Each student that goes to the Center is assured of seeing an advisor, according to Bentley.

"When you come in here you will see your advisor, because I'll find him," she states. "I'll get in touch with the advisor and we'll work out something. You know that when you come in you will see somebody. If it's an emergency you may not see your particular advisor, but you will see an advisor. All of the advisors are just as nice as they can be. They're all very helpful."

Dr. Calvin Doss, a professor in the School of Education, is a faculty advisor at the Center. He urges all freshmen and sophomores to go to the Center, no matter what kind of problems they have. "We're here to help them," he says. "If they have any problems they want to talk about they should come by and see someone. They have a place that is theirs, that they can come to. They don't have to compete with others for advice."

"I think the main thing the students should know is that we're here," states Dr. Terry Mount, a Spanish instructor who is an advisor. "We offer a great deal of services to the students. We can interpret catalogs. For freshmen that's very confusing. Even though we get them signed up during orientation for the first semester they still may not understand everything about the requirements. We help them in a step-by-step fashion. We're somebody who's friendly and wants to help."

Dr. Carolyn Dunn, an advisor from the biology department, sees the Advising Center as a place for making the students "feel more at home."

Lisa Cincotta talks with advisor.

"Our primary function here is to help them pick out the courses that would help them attain their goals," she says. "A lot of students only think of us as a scheduling service. We want to extend the concept beyond that. I think a lot of students juggle problems that they could use some help with. We know the ropes better and can get them through their problems a lot more quickly. The students I have been in contact with here have been very appreciative. It's a nice opportunity to get to know other people. I think it's good for the students and the faculty."

Dr. Stokes wants the students to understand that the General College Advising Center does not exist solely to help schedule courses.

"We are here not only to help them select a course but to help reduce frustrations, which do arise when a student is sent from one person to another and doesn't feel that he has been given the right answers," he explains. "We feel that the faculty advisors are concerned and knowledgeable. We want the students to have a pleasant study experience here at this university."

Judy Bentley

First Impressions Count

For Complete
Hair Care Service
Come To

Larry's Style Shop

Long Leaf Mall

Shampoos, cut,
And Blow Dry
6.50

By Appointment
Or Walk-In

Hours:
Tues. - Fri. 9-7
Sat. 9-4
Call 799-5029

Home of the 5H.
Sub

SubShak

10% discount
with I.D.
(except on daily specials)

OPEN
Mon. thru Sat.
11:00 - 9:00 pm

4501 Oleander Dr.
(in front of Harris Theater)

791-0784

ABC Permits

Welcome Back
U.N.C.W.

University enters into an agreement with Health Associates

by Muriel Ross

The University has entered into an agreement with Wilmington Health Associates to provide general outpatient diagnostic and treatment services for students taking 6 or more hours of courses.

Students requiring medical care or information should go to the Health Service Center located adjacent to the main lobby of Dorm '79. The Center's hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. each week day that the University is opened. The phone extensions are 2386 and 2533.

Except in medical emergency situations, the student must be seen at the Health Service Center on campus.

Ms. Jasinski, family nurse practitioner, or Miss Vangelov, physician's assistant, may then decide to refer the student to the general office of Wilmington Health Associates. At other hours or on weekends, the student may call the physician on call at 763-8251.

In case of any emergency, notify the University at once. Call 2396 or 2533 between 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Call 763-8251 at other hours or on weekends.

Students involved in serious accidents or who appear to be seriously ill and/or require immediate hospital emergency care should be taken to New Hanover Memorial Hospital as quickly as possible by private car or by Rescue Squad. Campus security can be of assistance in emergency situations.

Notify the physician on call from the Wilmington Health Associates. The student should show his ID card when referred to the general office of the Wilmington Health Associates to assure receiving medical service without receiving a bill.

These services include the following: diagnosis and treatment of general medical disorders, common infections, and venereal disease; preventive medical service and information on managing problems such as colds and upset stomachs.

Other services include laboratory work, chest x-rays, medications and supplies normally provided for patients as part of an office visit; women's services, including birth control information, pregnancy testing, routine pelvic exams and Pap smears; and outpatient physician services.

Any inpatient hospital expenses, hospital emergency room charges, or fees incurred in the treatment by non-Wilmington Health Associates physicians must be paid by the students.

Services not provided are endoscopic procedures, medication and appliances not usually stocked in the general office; prolonged courses of medication; inpatient hospital expenses and emergency room fees; and elective treatment by physicians.

Counseling and Testing Center offers free aid

According to Dr. Darwin Newton of the Counseling and Testing Center, new students are bombarded with so much information during orientation that they may forget or overlook what the Counseling and Testing Center has to offer.

The Center provides aid in: educational and vocational planning, personal growth experiences, personal problem solving, and academic skill improvement. The Center also administers a number of national testing programs that include: Graduate Record Examination, National Teacher Examinations, and the Miller Analogies Test.

The services of the Center are provided at no charge to the students of UNCW. For more information or an appointment, go by the Counseling and Testing Center which is located in room 106 in the James Student Services Building or call 791-4330, extension 2280.

Recreation Club elects officers

The Recreation Majors Club elected their officers at their September 11th meeting.

The newly elected officers for this year are: Jimmy Denton, president; Nancy Washburn, vice-president; Connie Vosburgh, secretary; and Kim Allard, treasurer.

Dr. Robert Wolff was the featured speaker at the meeting. He discussed upcoming events for the organization.

Members voted to support the Special Olympics program this year by purchasing two cases of soft drinks for the promotional exhibit at New Hanover Center.

Ron Secrist, Director of Recreation for the city of Chapel Hill will speak to Derrick Davis's administration class on October 17 at 11:30 a.m. All interested persons are encouraged to come.

The time and place for the next Recreation Majors club meeting will be posted in the gymnasium. All recreations majors are encouraged to attend. Yearly dues are $2. For more information, call Connie Vosburgh at 392-6325.

COLLEGE STUDENTS

Improve your grades!

Send $1.00 for your 306-page, research paper catalog. All academic subjects.

Collegiate Research
P.O. Box 25097H
Los Angeles, Ca. 90025

Enclosed is $1.00.
Please rush the catalog.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

PHOTO COPIES OPEN SATURDAYS

SHOEMAKERS SECOND LOCATION

806 SOUTH COLLEGE ROAD

(next to Best Products)

SHOEMAKERS OFFICE SUPPLY HAS OPENED A BRANCH STORE AS A RESPONSE TO THE TREMENDOUS SUCCESS OF THEIR NEW AND USED FURNITURE SALE. IT'S LOCATED IN UNIVERSITY SQUARE SHOPPING CENTER. SHOEMAKERS HAS EXPANDED THEIR PRODUCT LINES TO INCLUDE:

NORCROSS GREETING CARDS

PHOTO COPY SERVICE

SOCIAL STATIONARY

GIFTS

PLUS OUR USUAL COMPLETE SELECTION OF SCHOOL SUPPLIES, OFFICE SUPPLIES AND FURNITURE (NEW AND USED)

10% off to students and teachers everyday Low Prices - Compare and Save

NEW STORE HOURS:

9-9 Mon. - Fri.

9-6 Sat.

- GROWING TO SERVE WILMINGTON -

VISIT US TODAY

806 S. COLLEGE ROAD

392-3222

901 N. THIRD ST.

762-3332

sports & recreation

Robbie Burke approaches finish line for UNCW.

photo by Stacy Almond

Club Football Team defeated in Florida

The UNCW Seahawks traveled to St. Leo, Florida this past week to take on Division Three member, St. Leo Monarchs. However, as it turned out the Seahawks could muster no offense as the Monarchs won easily, 52-0, at College Field.

The Monarchs had little trouble scoring as the Seahawks continuously turned over the ball. The Monarchs scored with 6:00 remaining in the first quarter, after the Seahawks lost their first two possessions when quarterback, Gary Allen, hit wide receiver, Jimmy Pietsch with a 84 yard touchdown pass.

St. Leo's capitalized on almost every Seahawk miscue, as the UNCW team lost 6 fumbles and had the ball intercepted 4 times. Again, with 36 seconds left in the first quarter, the Monarchs took advantage of another Seahawk fumble, and scored on a 52 yard pass play from Allen to Pietsch.

The Seahawk defense still played well, but had to stay on the field an extremely long time, because of so many turnovers. The defense allowed only 45 rushing yards and 200 passing yards, with the majority of the latter coming on the first two Monarch touchdowns.

The Monarch defense was just as tough, holding the Seahawks to 50 yards on the ground and 70 yards passing. Paul Wood collected 50 of the passing yards on 4 receptions, while Anthony McDowell was the leading.

The Seahawks could never regroup after the second touchdown by St. Leo's, and the Monarchs thus scored four more times to go to the dressing room ahead 42-0.

In the second half, the Monarchs scored on a 1 yard plunge by the quarterback to make it 49-0. The scoring ended with a 27 yard fieldgoal in the fourth quarter as the Monarchs won 52-0.

The game, played in extreme heat, saw the Seahawks fall to 0-2 for the year, after a tough loss last week to Edenton. The Seahawks will travel to Raleigh this weekend for a game with rival NC State Club team.

UNCW Cross Country opens 1980 fall season

The UNCW Cross Country team opened their season September 13, with a partial victory winning 18 to 41 over Western Piedmont Community College and losing 34 to 23 to UNC-Charlotte.

The temperatures were soaring and the humidity plagued the runners. Unlike the coastal terrain, the Charlotte course was virtually all hills. The meet was scored as two individual meets, bring the Seahawk record 1-1.

The race with Charlotte was up for grabs until the very end as Sophomore Seahawk Robbie Burke and UNCC's David Clark diced it out with Clark emerging the narrow victor. A strong showing by the next three Charlotte runners clinched the win for Charlotte.

The finishing order for the Seahawks was Robbie Burke, Paul Lupica, Al Brantley, Julien Keith, Arnold Houston, Keith Lankfor, and George May.

Cross country coach, Bill Atwill, now in his second year at UNCW, is confident of his team's ability. "The team has a lot of talent and is a long way from their full potential," said Atwill.

The Seahawks will be on the road again this weekend as they travel to Pembroke, NC to compete in the Pembroke Invitational.

Did you know WLOZ has a mascot?

We do! But we have a problem...no one has seen him. If you see him, draw us a picture and bring it to our studios...you could be the winner of 5 albums and become an honorary D.J.

UNCW students only. Contest ends Oct.10, 6 p.m. No staff of WLOZ or their families allowed to participate.

Enter today! "Where's Our Mascot? Contest"

VILLAGE HAIR FASHIONS

Pat Shows

A warm welcome to all UNCW Students by offering
A FREE CURLING IRON OR HOT CURLING BRUSH
(Special discount for guys)

With Any Perfect Touch Perm For '30 (everyday regular price)

Beautiful Curl For Short Or Long Hair Body Or Very Curly

5936 Market St. (Across From The New Towel City City) Near The College 392-0382

UNCW defeats Coastal Carolina Friday by a score of 2-1.

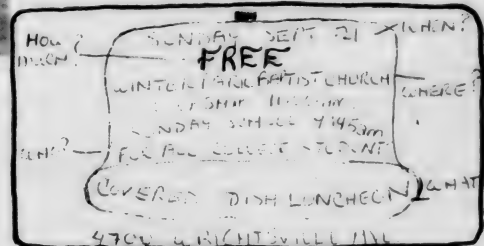

UNCW Fall Sports
[week of Sept. 15-22]

Date	Sport	Opponent
9/16	Volleyball:	NC Central, St. Andrews-6:30p.m. [h]
9/17	Soccer:	NC State, 4:00p.m. [H]
9/19	Soccer:	St. Andrews-[A]
9/19	Volleyball:	Guilford, Chowan-[H]
9/20	Cross Country:	Pembroke Invitational-[A]
9/21	Club Football:	NC State-1p.m. [A]
9/22	Volleyball:	Shaw-[A]

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Medical University of South Carolina
September 24, 1980
Ms. Phyllis Shaffer
Bachelor of Science in Nursing/Majors: ANY

The Clothes Basket Welcomes You To Seahawk Country

*

THE CLOTHES BASKET
5211 MARKET STREET

*

*Sale Prices On Designer
Fashions by Sasson, Calvin
Klein, Jordache, Bill Blass, Dayelle, and Vanderbilt*

*

In Addition To Pants, Skirts, Blazers, Sweaters Blouses, Jeans

Smoking And Trying To Quit For Good

Sooner or later, every smoker quits. For some, the crucial moment comes when they start coughing tobacco crumbs. For others, it happens when a cigarette falls... somewhere... during... rush-hour traffic. Well, all those things happened to me too, but the real turning point came when my father sat down, looked at me through a haze of smoke, and intoned, "You are going to stop smoking or I will break every bone in your nicotine-riddled body." Or words to that effect. Anyway, I got the

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

message and ground out my Salem.

Day one of my non-smoking regime was easy. I threw out my matches and gave myself a good pep talk. After all, wasn't my willpower stronger than a cylinder full of tobacco and tar? I patted myself on the back until my shoulder-blades were sore, but I did make it through the day without a lapse.

Day two: I woke up grinding my teeth, a wall-eyed wreck. I make miserable way into the kitchen and lapped up the caffeine. Then I opened the newspaper and-bingo-there was a smiling sophisticate urging me to smoke a certain brand, "because if smoking isn't a pleasure, why bother?"

I threw the paper at the coffepot and screamed. It was going to be a long day. Day three: Four people asked me for a cigarette today. Have you ever tried to explain that you've suddenly become a (struggling) non-smoker? It's like telling people you have trench-mouth. They back away and look at you funny. "Yeah, sure. If you don't wanna give me a smoke, just say so..." It's useless to explain. They just nod and start looking around for another nicotine fiend.

Day four: Today I caught myself eating my fingernails! I haven't been a nail-bibbler since fourth grade! Give me strength, Lord. I'm also gobbling gum and other munchies like they'll be banned tomorrow. What good will healthy lungs do me if they're in a body that's twenty pounds overweight?

Day five: I think I spent today in a coma. I'm growing weaker minute by minute. Somebody save me!

Day six: I'm beyond suffering. Now I can pass billboards featuring ecstatic smokers without feeling a sudden urge to drive off the road. I can watch others inhale without breaking out in hives. I can even watch people chewing tobacco without pangs of jealousy...

Day seven: One week today! Maybe it's my imagination, but my teeth look less dingy. My dog doesn't cringe when I breathe on her. My clothes no longer smell like cast-offs from a fire sale. My brother can no longer sneer. "This is my sister, the smoker." Maybe, just maybe, I've really done it. And if yours truly can quit, anybody can snuff the cigarette habit for good!

Taylor becomes Assistant Dean for Resident Life

Robert Taylor replaced Raymond May on August 1 as Assistant Dean for Resident Life, after being selected from a pool of about forty applicants.

Taylor was born and raised in Wilmington, NC. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Recreation Administration from NC State University and his Masters degree from Western Kentucky. He spent one year as Assistant Dean of Resident Life for 1,000 Western Kentucky students in a twenty-seven story highrise apartment building.

Taylor has "great visions of programming" to help "make things pleasant." For example, Thursday, September 18 there will be a picnic in front of Galloway Dorm from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. followed by a cage party from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. with free beer, soft drinks, promotional items, and live music by Iron Mountain Depot.

Taylor's future plans include organizing a resident hall government, showing all-night movies, and setting up an aluminum recycling center which would make money for the students to use as desired.

SGA approves station manager

The Student Government Association approved a Media and Publications Board recommendation for a new WLOZ station manager September 11 at the regular weekly meeting.

Karen Durda, former promotional director at WLOZ during the summer, was officially recognized by the Senate as the new station manager. Durda, then addressed the Senate concerning her plans for improvement at WLOZ.

Parsons announced that Dave Kermon had been appointed as the Sargeant-At-Arms for the SGA.

Mark Bremer, Doug Browne, Mike Stroud, and Jack Allen were approved to be members of the Student Supreme Court.

A charter for the Adventurer's Club was also approved at last Thursday's meeting.

The next meeting of the SGA will be held September 18 in C-117. All students are urged to

CARPET FOR SALE

Carpet for your dorm

All colors All sizes

Average cost $9 to $12 per roll

September 17 4 to 6p.m. September 18 9a.m. to 1p.m.

The Patio parking lot

Weekdays there after at Wilmington Flea Market
Kerr Avenue

The DRY DOCK

"Seafood at its best!"
5215 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC
799-7346

All You Can Eat Seafood
Buffet Every Night!
Salad Boat
Soup Barrel

Open 7 days a week for lunch and dinner

10 0/0 Discount with valid I.D.

The University Program Board Concert Committee

Presents

In Association with

WHSL And WMFD Radio

First Annual

UNCW

Beach Music Festival

Featuring

The Tams The Embers
Bill Pinkney and The Original Drifters

And

The Chairmen of the Board

Sunday Oct. 12th 3 p.m.

Trask Coliseum

Reduced Student admission
Only $6.75 [limit 2 with ID]
available only at Steve Gnad's
office Student Services Room 101
All seats $8.75 at the door

UNCW Office of Special Programs offers variety of courses

by Freda Pyron

Each semester UNCW Office of Special Programs offers a variety of courses designed to benefit the Wilmington community. The following are those courses still open for enrollment.

Women's Issues, a course designed to increase one's awareness of changing roles and economic imperatives of women, will be held on Monday, September 22 and 29 from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m.

Participants will explore personal and social issues that effect women. Marriage and motherhood, divorce and widowhood, as well as entry and reentry into the job market, the working woman or the "Pink Collar Worker," and how to feel in control of your own life will be discussed.

Deadline for registration is September 18. There is a $20 participant's fee.

A three-session seminar in Drug Abuse, Prevention and Awareness will be held Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m., Sept. 23, 30, and Oct. 7.

Subjects will include chemical composition of drugs, interaction of over-the-counter drugs with alcohol, and what to look for in identifying users.

Instruction is designed to benefit parents, business employees, social services personnel and person employed in health related fields.

A related workshop, Management Concerns of Substance Abuse, will be held on Thursdays, Oct. 9, 16, 23 from 7 to 10 p.m.

This workshop is designed to aid management and employees in coping with problems of chemical use and abuse through specific drug information and techniques in prevention and early intervention.

Interested persons or organizations should contact the Office of Special Programs by Sept. 15 for enrollment in the drug abuse seminar or by Oct. 6 for the management workshop.

Curriculum for Preschool Education will be the topic of four workshops planned for kindergarten and preschool teachers, daycare workers and interested parents. The workshop will meet Wednesdays from 4 to 6:30 p.m., Sept. 24, Oct. 22, Nov. 19, and Dec. 10.

The workshops will deal with planning and implementing appropriate activities, and selecting appropriate curriculum content and materials for young children. Instructional techniques include demonstrations, lectures, participation and project development. Course credit may be used for certification renewal.

Applications should be returned by Sept. 22 along with a $30 fee.

PEANUTS®

A course in Career Development: Personal Growth will help participants find personalized answers to the question, "What are you doing with the rest of your life? The course will meet on Thursdays, Sept. 25 through Oct. 30, 7:00 to 9:30 p.m.

The course is designed to help each person assess his or her own talents, skills, interests, and values and to channel them into a rewarding lifework—in either a career or a volunteer position. Through lectures, small group exercises, and private workbook assignments, the course offers skills such as creative thinking, time and personal management, goal-setting, interviewing and resume writing.

A $15 fee is charged. Registration ends September 22.

On Tuesdays, Sept. 30-Oct. 21, Religion and the Sex Ethnic will be offered. This course seeks to discuss the effect of the sexual revolution of the 60's on American culture and the ethical approaches, attitudes, and problems of sexuality today.

See SPECIAL, p.12

THE ARMY RESERVE, A VETERAN'S BENEFIT

You can join the Army Reserve with more benefits than most new Reservists, since you have military experience, no matter what branch of the Armed Forces you were in.

Your monthly Reserve check is a dependable income which could help you pay your college bills or buy a few extra luxuries. For example, as an E4 with three years of service, you can earn over $1,300 a year.

The weekend drills and yearly training give you a change of pace from your usual routine. Just 38 days a year, and it's a good way to meet people, as business contacts, as references, and as friends. Check it out!

sale

up to 30% off

100% Wool Shetland Sweaters Reg. $22.00 and $29.00 $15⁹⁹-19⁹⁹

Pleated Plaid Wool Blends Skirts Reg. $32.00 and $36.00 $21⁹⁹-24⁹⁹

Men's Wear Corduroy and Wool Blend Blazers Reg. $55.00 and $88.00 $43⁹⁹-69⁹⁹

Fashionable Super-Suede Dresses & Jumpers Reg. $35.00 and $54.00 $24⁹⁹-37⁹⁹

Button Down Oxford Shirts $13.99 / Corduroy Pants $17.99 and $19.92
WHITE, BLUE, PINK, YELLOW Reg. $19.00 & Jeans Reg. $26.00-29.00

Casual Corner.

INDEPENDENCE

The Patio

4714 College Drive
791-4442

Open 11:30 a.m. til 7:00 p.m.

Hot Dogs 3 for $1.00 Subs $1.25

Wednesday - College Night

Thursday - "Nouveau Riche"
Rock with Class

Friday } "John Glover"
Saturday } Mr. Versatility
$1.00 pitchers

Sunday - Mens Pool Tournament

7 p.m.

Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Historical Society presents films

The UNCW Historical Society and the UNCW History Department will present a film entitled "To Die In Madrid." It will be shown 7:30 p.m. on September 16 in the auditorium of the New Classroom Building. There will be no admission charge.

The film is a 1965 documentary taken from newsreels and it accurately shows the horror and confusion of the Spanish Civil War from 1936-39. The film is enhanced by the music of Maurice Jarre and the narration of John Gielgud and Irene Worth.

The film shows the struggle between the republicans and the fascists; the role of the International Brigade and the ultimate victory of Franco. In all of this the Spanish, both the peasants and the ordinary city dwellers, are kept to the fore in balance with the sweep of the political forces.

UNCW NOW meets September 16

The UNCW chapter of the National Organization for Women will meet on Tuesday, September 16 at 4:00 in the Goodwood Tavern. Their second semester on campus, NOW is a group of students concerned about human rights and in particular, where women stand within the justice system. Passing the Equal Rights Amendment will be a main focus of the group this semester. NOW invites all concerned students to join by attending the meeting or contacting Dottie Spivey at 7997693 or Bruce Doyle at 762-4128.

Bowling Club Meets Sept. 18

The UNCW Bowling Club will be meeting Thursday, Sept. 18, at 3:45 at Cardinal Lanes Superbowl. Everyone interested in enjoying an afternoon bowling is invited to come out. It's Free!! For more information and directions, call Tom at 791-8698 after 6 pm.

Alpha Phi Omega invites Interested Students

Alpha Phi Omega, a national co-ed service fraternity would like to invite all interested persons to our fall rush, September 19, at 8:00 p.m. Free refreshments will be available at the Goodwood Tavern and please bring proof of age.

Astronomy Club holds organizational meeting

The Astronomy Club will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday, September 23 at 7 pm in room 206 of the Chemistry-Physics building.

The first viewing is tentatively set for Tuesday, September 23 at 5 am to observe the planets Saturn, Venus and Jupiter. Those interested in attending the viewing should call the physics department on the 22nd for confirmation or rain date.

The Astronomy Club officers this year will be: Johnny Carter-President, Deborah Hall-Vice-President, and Terry Lynn Surles-Secretary of the Treasury.

The purpose of the first meeting will be to discuss projects to earn money, future viewings, and cookouts and other potential activities.

Astronomy professor and faculty advisor for the club, Mr. Rolla Nelson, says "interest at the present time seems to be high, and anyone interested may attend."

Rodeo '80

WHSI and WWQQ will present RODEO '80, the first annual Cape Fear Rodeo, October 18 and 19 in Memorial Park (Shipyard Boulevard opposite WECT). Adult tickets are $4.00 and children's tickets are $2.00. Tickets will go on sale October 1. An SRA sanctioned event.

LOST

Gold house key
Keys on cowboy hat
Book - "Social Problems"
Book - "Patterns of Exposition"
White fabric purse with brown handle
Big brass key ring
Back pack
TI30 calculator
Single key on ring
Double chain bracelet

FOUND

Keys
Wallet
Checkbook

Check with Chyrl Kane, Student Activities, room 101 in the Pub.

Kamishin Ryu Karate Club

Anyone interested in participating in a Kamishin Ryu Karate Club meet in the lobby of Hanover Hall (Old Gym) Wednesday, September 17 at 5 or call Dr. Dale Case at 791-4330 ext. 2446.

Manager Needed

Anyone (male or female) interested in being the manager for the men's Swim Team please contact Coach Dave Allen at the pool or at extension 2237.

Rowing Club Meets

Thursday, September 18

The Rowing Club of UNCW will hold its first meeting on Thursday, Sept. 18, 1980, at 4:30 pm in Bear Hall, Rm. 216. The Club will be scheduling meets with such teams as The University of North Carolina, Duke University, The Citadel, and The University of Tennessee. Meets in the Wilmington area will also be scheduled. All interested students are encouraged to attend.

5704 Oleander Drive

Wednesday- No cover
Special Door Prize
Iron Mountain Depot Band
Free Beverages 8-10

Thursday- Gary Allen, Guitar

Friday- TGIF Party

Featuring
Nouveau Riche Band

Saturday- Support the "Draft" Party

Tuesday- Ladies Night

Open 8 'til

Lock, Stock & Barrel

Italian Foods -Steaks
Gourmet Burgers Clams
Gourmet Desserts
Excellent Wine List

Plus
-Our 35 item Salad Bar

All ABC Permits
Master Charge - VISA -
American Express

To Go Orders Welcome

2259 S. 17th St.
Glen Meade Plaza
762-9140

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Slat
5 Small amount
9 Baked item
14 Pain
15 Wolfhound
16 Called group
17 Combat
18 Ceylon native
20 To be fr.
21 Kids' game
22 Young birds
23 Rockfish
25 Imp.
27 Prohibit 29 Nonsense
30 Corn meal
34 Garland
36 Mark —
38 — Sample McPherson
39 TV program: 2 words

DOWN

- 1 Stevedore
2 Severe
3 French area
4 Girl's name
5 Spar
6 Greek epic
7 Orchardist
8 MIT grad
9 Roe
10 Summon
11 Molding
12 — egg
13 Greek army
19 Owl's cry
24 Garret
26 Nickel alloy
28 Possess
30 Thus: Latin
31 Merge
32 Tableland

- 33 Fondles
34 Fewer
35 Level
37 Concur
38 Scarf
40 Bite
41 Wag
46 Beloved one
48 Halters
49 Hum
50 Ginn
52 Gallery
53 Ontario river
55 Pleasing
56 Joint
57 New Zealand vines
59 Miss Carter et al
62 Hit sign abbr only

North Carolina Symphony Receives Gifts

Thanks to a $200,000 gift from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, and increased support from North Carolina's corporate community, the North Carolina Symphony will meet a 1979 National Endowment for the Arts challenge grant of $200,000 - and meet it ahead of schedule.

To receive this money, the symphony is required to match the NEA grant three for one with $600,000 in gifts from new contributors by June 1981.

EMPLOYMENT

Waiter Trainees

Part time must be 21
Have transportation
Able to work nights and weekends
Apply in person
Cape Fear Country Club
Oleander Drive at
Country Club Road
See Mr. Anderson or
Mr. Hayes

College Square Shopping Center
Printing While You Watch
6 cent COPIES

392-2676
Plenty of Parking

SPI

Registration must be completed by September 1. The fee is charged.

For health and helping professionals, as well as for those individuals interested in simple and effective methods of increasing vitality and deepening relaxation, a course entitled, Staying Alive: Renewing Energy and Relieving Stress is available. Participants will learn the "preventive maintenance" approach to personal well-being, as well as safe and enjoyable conditioning techniques for every age group.

The course will meet Tuesdays, Sept. 30-Oct. 21, 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. There is a $30 fee for participation. Registration will be closed after Sept. 26.

Applications are available in the Programs office, room 212, Hoggard Hall or by calling 791-4330, ext. 2194.

All courses are funded through participants' fees only.

All articles, letters to the editor, announcements, and advertisements submitted to the Seahawk for the next week's publication should be in the Seahawk Office by noon on Friday. All copy should be typewritten.

blood but students should allow an hour for the whole process. Blood donors are watched for fifteen minutes in the event there happens to be an adverse reaction. All other donors will wait ten minutes.

Blood donors can give blood once every two months. "Our blood supply is low at this time. Summer is one of our low times for collecting blood. People have other things they would rather be doing," Brown said.

The Bloodmobile is staffed by volunteers and volunteer nurses. Trained nurses are responsible for the actual drawing of blood but volunteers assist in other areas. Brown stated that this would be an opportunity for students wishing ing to serve as volunteers. "It's the perfect time for them to come by and see what its all about."

The hours scheduled for the Bloodmobile will be between 11 am and 4:30 pm on September 25 and between 9 am and 1 pm on September 26.

REWARD

ANYONE LEADING TO THE FINDING OF MY SMALL GOLD ROSE RING WILL BE REWARDED THE VALUE OF THE RING. IT IS THE LAST GIFT MY PARENTS GAVE ME BEFORE THEY DIED. PLEASE HELP ME. LEILA McEACHERN.

11/1/79

"WHEN YOU SHOOT
A LOTTA POOL IN BARS,
THE ONLY THING YOU WANT
FILLED UP ARE THE POCKETS!"

Steve Mizerak
Famous Pool Player

LIT UP FROM MILLER.
EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER. AND A LOT MORE.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 5

September 25, 1980

Bike-A-Thon closes campus entrances

Due to the Bike-a-Thon '80, the UNCW campus will be closed to traffic from approximately 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, September 27.

People desiring to get on campus, and that includes students who live in the dormitories, will have to use the entrances at Wood Dale and Rose Avenue.

The Bike-A-Thon is sponsored by WWAY-TV3 and WKLM Radio. All proceeds will go to the Boy Scouts of America.

Volunteer help will be provided by Alpha Phi Omega, Circle K and Delta Zeta. McDonalds will furnish free soft drinks to the riders at the registration area.

Darth Vader, from "Star Wars," will be a guest at the Bike-A-Thon.

The Bike-A-Thon will be routed through the UNCW campus. Riders can start any time between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Each rider will receive a registration card at the registration area to be attached to the handlebars of their bicycle. The cards will be marked at each checkpoint and turned in at the completion of the Bike-A-Thon. All bike traffic is one way and all vehicle laws will be observed. Riders must follow the marked course.

The complete Bike-A-Thon schedule is as follows: at 9 a.m., Darth Vader will kick off the Bike-A-Thon; at 2:30 p.m. there will be a Darth Vader show in the Trask Coliseum area; at 3 p.m. the First Annual Cape Fear Bicycle Chase, coordinated by the "Cape Fear Cyclists," will begin; and at 4 p.m. Darth Vader will present the awards.

Ten-speed bikes will be given to the boy and girl who raise the most contributions for the Boy Scouts. A ten-speed bike will also be given to the person who achieves the most points derived from the number of checkpoints cleared. Ten prizes will be awarded to the top ten persons in each of the three age groups (12 and under, 13 to 17, and 18 and over).

Cushmans parking on the sidewalks still seems to be a problem at UNCW

Soccer team suffers first defeat of the season. See Story page 8.

SGA election results

Student elections were held September 15 and 16 to fill several positions in the Student Government Association.

Ed Paul, Jr. was elected president of the freshman class and Terri Feeney was elected freshman class vice-president.

Karen Waddell and Emily Young will serve as freshman class senators in the SGA.

Buck Propst was elected to fill a vacated sophomore senator position.

Seven-at-large senators were elected representing the entire student body. They were: Mike Stroud, Steve Griffin, Bill Samson, Gary Carter, Nancy Kelker, Sandra Johnson, and Stephen Honaker.

The new members of the SGA will be officially sworn in September 26 at the weekly Senate meeting.

Inside

Prime Time.....	p. 3
Bloodmobile.....	p. 6
WLOZ.....	p. 7
Sports.....	p. 8
New Dean.....	p. 10
Campus Calendar.....	p. 15

Student Affairs, Campus Police working for safety

The Division of Student Affairs and the Campus Police Department are working in a cooperative effort for student safety on campus. Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Dr. William Malloy stated Monday afternoon.

Malloy recently chaired an ad hoc committee for Campus Safety and Security. The committee has already implemented all of the safety measures put forth by the committee.

measures. 2(Nine new emergency telephone booths have been installed at outside locations all over the campus and existing coin-operated telephones inside campus buildings have been tied into the system. Directions are posted at each telephone, giving the booth number and the proper procedure to follow to make an emergency call without a coin. 3(Improved campus lighting including additional lights near the Marine Science Building, behind the Central Receiving Warehouse and in back of Hanover Hall. Campus lighting will remain under study and additional lighting will be added as the need is determined. 4(Clearing areas with dense undergrowth. 5(Provision of a security escort service for students and campus visitors who are frightened or feel threatened in going from buildings to their vehicles or the residence halls at night. Police Chief Winston Norman said this service is being provided for safety purposes and expressed the hope that students will not abuse the service. 6(One of the most critical needs cited was 24-hour staffing of the telephone in the campus police office. Prior to implementation, emergency calls were routed through the Wilmington Police Department which sometimes resulted in increased response time. The campus police office now has round-the-clock staffing to handle emergency calls in the quickest time possible.

Malloy stated he was not aware of any rapes on UNCW's campus. He cited two instances of females being assaulted. The first assault came when a student was abducted and removed from the campus some time ago. One incident occurred last year as a student was jogging and hit over the head from behind. She was not sexually assaulted. "We don't cover these things up," Malloy said. "The campus police have a record of it if it's been reported."

Malloy also stated that they will continue to study the flow of pedestrian, bicycle, and vehicle traffic on campus. "We are concerned about student safety," Malloy said.

Chief Norman plans to submit a monthly report to the SEAHAWK and WLOZ giving statistics on crimes reported on campus during the month and offering tips on preventing crime on campus.

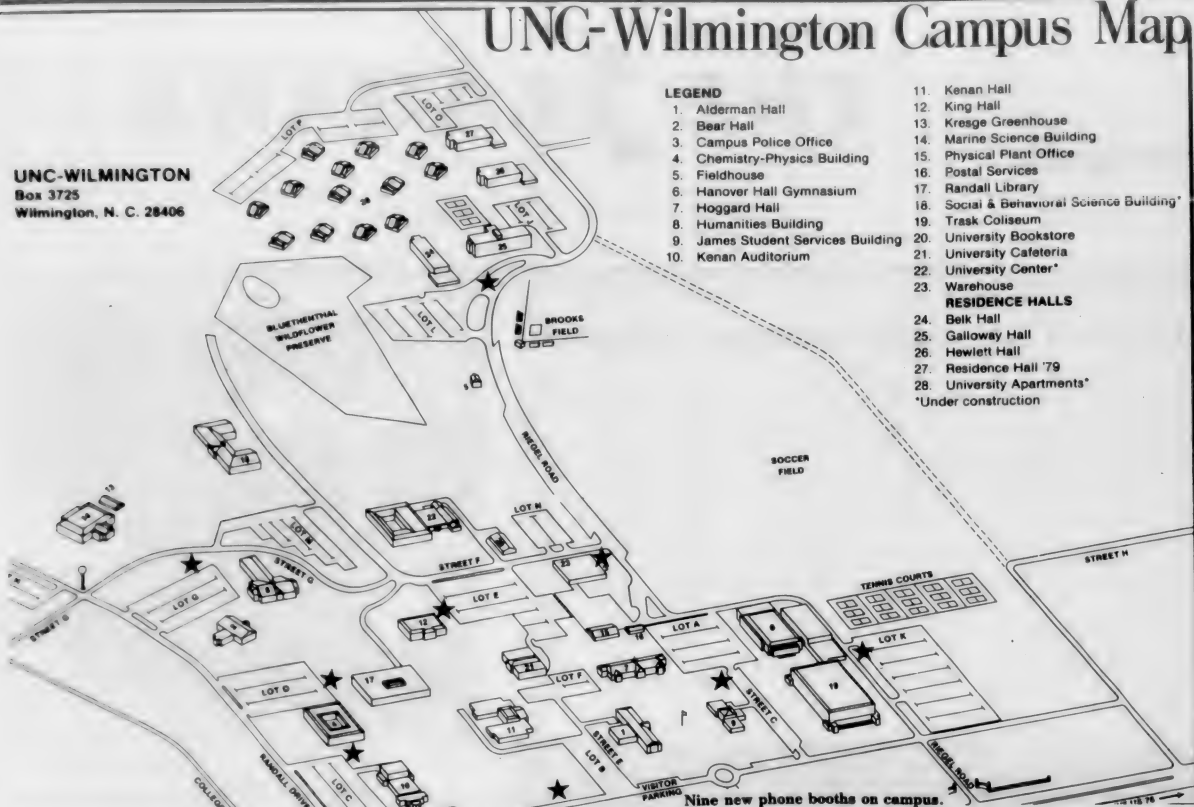

See map page 2.

UNC-Wilmington Campus Map

UNC-WILMINGTON
Box 3725
Wilmington, N. C. 28406

LEGEND

1. Alderman Hall
 2. Bear Hall
 3. Campus Police Office
 4. Chemistry-Physics Building
 5. Fieldhouse
 6. Hanover Hall Gymnasium
 7. Hoggard Hall
 8. Humanities Building
 9. James Student Services Building
 10. Kenan Auditorium
 11. Kenan Hall
 12. King Hall
 13. Kresge Greenhouse
 14. Marine Science Building
 15. Physical Plant Office
 16. Postal Services
 17. Randall Library
 18. Social & Behavioral Science Building
 19. Trask Coliseum
 20. University Bookstore
 21. University Cafeteria
 22. University Center
 23. Warehouse
 - RESIDENCE HALLS
 24. Belk Hall
 25. Galloway Hall
 26. Hewlett Hall
 27. Residence Hall '79
 28. University Apartments
- *Under construction

LETTERS

To the Editor:

In the midst of the recent rise in gas prices, bicycles have become increasingly more frequent on campus. In fact, with parking on campus becoming an "Impossible dream," bikes have become the number one mode of transportation after the car.

Because of this, rules and regulations on and off campus are more important as cyclists and drivers inter-mix on the campus roads. Safety, in all forms, must be used in avoiding accidents this year. Bicyclists must maintain caution in their travels about campus, to avoid those who are walking as well as those who are driving. In most cases, a bicycle-care accident could result in tragedy and definitely a bad situation that could be evaded otherwise.

Awareness and caution, if used by the driver and the bicyclist, may save lives in the longrun. As classes end and the off campus rush begins, keep an eye out for the other traveler, he'll appreciate it.

Brad Wheeler

Letters to the Editor should be signed, typewritten and no more than 150 words. They should also be in good taste and free of slander and obscenity.

OOPS! In last week's article concerning the SGA meeting a statement erroneously said that Mark Bremer, Doug Browne, Mike Stroud and Jack Allen were approved to be members of the University Court. The statement should have said that these persons were appointed to an ad hoc committee to consider students for the University Court. The SEAHAWK regrets this error.

The Seahawk announces the following positions open for the 1980-81 school year. Compensation in the form of scholarships and/or minimum wage are available for some positions.

Production Manager
Typesetters
Advertising Salespeople
Artists
Cartoonists
Staffwriters
Production Positions

Applications should be submitted to Linda Moore, Student Activities, or to the Seahawk Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

The Seahawk

Editor.....Tricia Wallace
Managing Editor.....Janet Hundley
Features Editor.....Wendy Robbins
News Editor.....Joyce Stevens
Head Photographer.....Scott Sibley
Business Manager.....Cindy Harris
Advertising Manager.....Susan Lewis
Photography.....Chip Hackler
Sports.....Scott Sibley
Typesetter.....Cheryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham
Journalistic Advisor.....Dr. JoAnn Seiple
Business Advisor.....Linda Moore
Circulation Manager.....Doug Browne

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

FOR PETE'S SAKE, SNIDER, RELAX... CAN'T YOU SEE THERE'S NOTHING ON OUR RADAR?..

Kids today just aren't what they used to be

Whenever someone learns that I'm a college student they always ask, "Oh, are you going to be a teacher?" And I always reply by saying I'm just not cut out to be a teacher. That's not the whole truth. The "nothing but truth" is that I HATE KIDS! I love my son, but I loathe kids. Yes, my friends, I am a grown-up chavinist swine.

The reason I hate kids is buried in my youth. As a child I learned that it was a grown-up's world. Kids were appendages of their parents and they better not be perforated or supplanting appendages. Then I became an adult and, lo

Prime Time

by Judy Stallamith

and behold, it was no longer the grown-ups who ruled the world but kids.

Kids today just aren't anything like they were when I was a kid. They fight, real bloody-knuckles battles. Such hostility never was permissible in my day. We discussed, we may have even argued sometimes, but we never fought. My mother says that my brother and I were always pinching, pulling hair, and loosening teeth. You remember, though, that Mom is getting older and sometimes older people don't remember so well.

Then, of course, there's television. The Saturday's of my childhood were spent doing chores, not in gazing at the tube for six hours straight. And, when we did watch TV, it was programs that were both enlightening and entertaining. We watched shows about

"real people": Hop-a-long Cassidy, The Cisco Kid, Captain Video. No make believe cartoon superheroes for us. Mom tells me that the reason my brother and I didn't watch TV all day was that we didn't have a TV. She says we spent all day at the movies, that once we watched "Blood Alley" four times in a row and got home two hours late. I just don't remember that at all.

But most of all, I hate kids because they have rights. In my day we not only didn't stand up for our rights, we didn't have any rights. We didn't have Uncle Sam making sure we got enough to eat, and a proper education, and that our parents didn't apply corporal punishment beyond humane boundaries. We didn't need somebody to make sure our parents acted like grown-ups and treated us like kids. Our parents accepted that responsibility themselves.

Funny, but looking back and looking at now, I think the real reason I hate kids is because I no longer am one.

Addendum: The Olympics were held and the U.S. didn't show up. The Emmys were held and the actors didn't show up. What if there was a war--and no one showed up?

Going back to school best way to nurture a growing soul

by Beri Marshall

In 1972, eight years ago, I got married. I became a wife, a Mrs., an additional appendage to my husband. A good wife, too. After just a few inedible disasters, I learned to cook. The clothes were kept Ivory sweet, the windows were shiny, the dust in its respectful corners, the cereal boxes relatively free from roaches (they don't eat much, though). I didn't even complain too much when people (my husband for one) neglected to realize that I had a first name. "Oh! There's Scott's wife." I had my role, a title, and I played my part very well.

In 1976, four years ago, I acquired a new role. I became a mother. Ah - I ensconced myself beautifully! The soft, fuzzy warmth of my son's cheek against mine touched spots in my heart I didn't know were there. A gift for which I am eternally grateful.

But still, there was no me.

An empty seed pod cannot grow; in fact, it will die. After seven years of marriage, my shell started to crack. The emptiness, the stagnation, the inevitable depressions almost destroyed even the shell that was left. It was sink or swim - I started to swim.

Gradually, but wonderfully, I began exploring, searching, discovering. There was a whole world I never realized existed! People, thoughts, feelings! I began to see colors again. I touched on emotions that sent shock waves through my body. It was marvelous! I was waking from a long, deep sleep.

What better way to nurture a growing soul than to go back to school? So I took the courageous role of a student. I loved it - still do. I love learning. I love being in class. I love meandering through the library and smelling the books.

Then, after eight years, my husband decided he didn't like me anymore. Was it my newfound independence? Was it my interest in people and things other than him? Was it the clothes that were not so Ivory-sweet anymore? Was it the way I started laughing when the vacuum cleaner broke down or the tire went flat? I don't know. He left.

The struggle, needless to say, has been long and hard. A total readjustment. But I'm getting used to the aloneness. I unscrew my own jars, change the oil in my car, repair the vacuum cleaner, and even enjoy a glass of wine with dinner "when we don't have company."

My days are full (almost unbearably so); a child, school full-time, work part-time, a house and yard, and a thirty-minute commute each way. But, the colors are still vivid, the shell still being filled. I have my friends, my wonderful son, my 4.0 average, and now me.

I know I'm going to make it; in fact, I'll do BETTER than make it. This is only the beginning.

The DRY DOCK

"Seafood at its best!"

5215 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC

799-7346

Seafood Buffet Every Night!

All You Can Eat

Salad Boat
Soup Barrel

Open 7 days a week for lunch and dinner

10 0/0 Discount with valid I.D.

Senate Investigates Students' Salaries

The Student Government Association at the September 18, 1980 meeting voted to have all salaries paid by the SGA investigated.

Some club officers such as the SGA President, Seahawk Editor and the Program Board chairman receive monthly salaries. The purpose of this investigation is to show why they receive a salary, should they continue to receive the same amount or get an increase or decrease. The investigation should also reveal why other club officers do not receive a salary. Senator Nancy Kelker pointed this fact out saying WLOZ station manager does not receive a salary, later it was pointed out the Fledgling Editor does not receive a salary either.

This investigation is being carried out by the Finance Committee headed by SGA Treasurer Michelle Bond. Assisting the committee will be Senator Bill Sanders and Senator Kelker. Pending the investigation no further salaries will be brought up before the SGA.

During other business President Jessie Sanders reported that replacing Linda Moore as SGA advisor would be Dean Gary Juhan. Maceo Bragg proposed and it was accepted to charter the Racquetball Club and the University Readers' Theatre Student Association.

The next SGA meeting will be September 25, 1980 at 7 p.m. in C-117. All students are encouraged to attend.

Freshmen students capped

On Thursday September 18, at 7 p.m., 50 UNCW freshmen nursing students were capped by senior nursing students in a beautiful dedication ceremony.

Karen Lawing welcomed those present and introduced the instructors. Debbie Faircloth spoke on the meaning of the cap. Miss Nancy Gilliland, Director of Nursing, led the students in the Nightingale Pledge, promising "to devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care."

Freshmen students receiving their caps are: Gary Combs, Bonnie Yale, Zenobia Spaulding, Mary Vrana, Azell Huggins, Audrey Richardson, Catherine Lloyd, Brenda Sutton, Patricia Conway, Donna Moss-Solomon, Connie Carter, Margaret Piner, Sandra Bridger, Janet Perkins, Julia Williams, Kim Croom, Debbie Marino, Lisa White, Rhonda Nixon, Annette Nye, Janet Quick, Linda Head, Sarah

Holt, Kimerly Boblenz, Karen Ray, Frances Bowden, Bernadette Sayre, Alisa Smith, Rhonda Denning, Leslie Layton, Mary McKinney, Candace Humerickhouse, Kimberly Joyner, Kathleen Loney, Karen Caraway, Janet Johnston, Nancy Wilkins, Jay Coltrane, Lisa Casteen, Jo Ellen McCray, Carolyn Respass, Nancy Woolwine, Margaret Cameron, Sylvia Heinisch, Jerry Burleson, Victoria Ezzel, Georgina Johnson, Kathleen Pifer, and Leslie Silva.

Randall Library overcrowded

Overcrowding in the William Randall Library has led Director Hugolet to request permission from students to use the noise.

Presently UNCW has a small facility for the number of enrolled students. Hugolet said enrollment grows every year. While the library is under such heavy use, students need to keep noise to a minimum. Hugolet explained that a request for expansion funds was submitted although, not approved, the new building will not be ready for use until 1984 or early 1985. The planned expansion will add at the back of the library and make the building the size it is now. It will consist of more group study rooms and a separate room that can be used for 24-hour study.

In the meantime, students and faculty members will have to make the best of what they have. The library is now open 7 days a week for a total of 90 hours a week and without student cooperation, the noise problem will get worse.

STEREO CLEARANCE HOUSE HAS LOWEST STEREO PRICES

Pioneer 5X780 Receiver $199
Pioneer PL300 Turntable $89
Akai GXM11 Cassette $199

Our free Catalog has many more deals on major brands even lower prices on our monthly specials sheet. Send now and find out how to buy current $7.98 list price for $3.99 Stereo Clearance House Dept. PA77 1029 Jacobs St. Johnstown, Pa 15902 Phone Quotes 814 536 1611

Clubs need signatures

Once a Club and/or Organization is approved to be funded by the Student Government, one person from each Club and/or Organization is required to have signature authorization. This person's signature has to be a student and on file in the Student Government office before any paperwork for the Club and/or Organization can be processed.

As of Friday, September 19, the following Clubs and/or Organizations do not have a signature authorization on file: Adventures Club, UNCW Racquetball, Soccer Team, Fledgling, UNCW Skihawks.

Also, effective immediately, all paperwork must be submitted to the Student Government office FIVE days in advance of the needed date. Any paperwork turned in less than five days of the needed date will be run through but at the pace it would normally be run through. So, anticipate your needs and everything should run smoothly.

Susan Goodrum
SGA Office Manager

Counseling and Testing offers extended service

The Counseling and Testing Center is expanding its services this year through the affiliation of three psychologists from the Psychology Department. The three psychologists: Drs. Larry Gerstenhaber, Sue Lamb and Gerald Weeks will continue their teaching activities in the Psychology Department while assuming counseling functions with the Counseling Center. Dr. Gerstenhaber received his PhD in Clinical Psychology from Michigan State University. On a leave of absence this past year he worked as an Alcoholism Counselor in a Mental Health Clinic. But he, like the other two psychologists, enjoys working with students presenting varied concerns or problems.

Dr. Lamb has a Ph.D. from the University of Iowa in College Student Personnel with an emphasis in vocational and personal adjustment counseling. Her other degrees were in psychology and psychiatric social work.

Dr. Weeks received a Ph.D. from Georgia State University in Clinical Psychology with a concentration in Family Studies. He is presently working on a book about "Paradoxical Psychotherapy."

In addition to being available for individual counseling, the three psychologists along with the Counseling Center staff will be offering workshops or other group activities to students. Inquiries and appointments may be made by dialing extension 2280 or coming by the Counseling and Testing Building 106 Hinton James

Lock, Stock & Barrel

Italian Foods -Steaks
Gourmet Burgers Clams
Gourmet Desserts
Excellent Wine List

Plus
-Our 35 item Salad Bar

All ABC Permits

Master Charge - VISA -
American Express

To Go Orders Welcome

2259 S. 17th St.
Glen Meade Plaza
762-9140

The Patio

4714 College Drive
791-4442

Wednesday - College Night
Men 8-9 Ladies 9-12

Thursday - D C Tin
Cajun Rock

Friday - Hot Wire Rock & Roll

Saturday- Iron Mt. Depot Country

Sunday - Ladies Pool Tournament
7 p.m.

Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

Tuesday- Backgammon
Tournament 7:30 p.m.

McDonald's Presents The Campus Crisis Collection

Free poster with purchase of any large sandwich and medium or large size Coke

The Coca-Cola Company, famed purveyors of good taste, commissioned Gregory and Timothy Hildebrandt, famed illustrators of the "Lord of the Rings" calendars to produce an unprecedented series of five posters. Each is a full-colored, 18" x 24" study of one of the traumas of college life. Together they comprise The Campus Crisis Collection.

How, you wonder, can you obtain these wonders? We're glad we asked. Just go to a participating McDonald's, purchase any large sandwich* and a medium or large size Coke, and you will be presented with an entry in the collection — "Home Game," "Freshman Counseling," Chemistry 101," "Cramming" or "Blind Date." At no charge.

We're confident you will be pleased with your Campus Crisis posters. If you're not, write to the Hildebrandt brothers. You'll still enjoy the artfulness of your McDonald's sandwich and Coke.

Offer good only at McDonald's®
3803 Oleander Dr.
Wilmington, NC

Nobody can do it like McDonald's can™

*Either a Big Mac®, Quarter Pounder® (weight before cooking 4 oz. or 113.4 gm.), Quarter Pounder with cheese or Filet-O-Fish® sandwich

Limited Quantities Available
New Poster Each Monday

Dexley Hall provides alternative to campus living

by Doug Browne

Coming back to school this semester, returning students have heard many different rumors about what happened over the summer and what will happen at UNCW in the future. There's the new student union going up near the bookstore, apartments slated for the area in back of Galloway Hall, and an addition to the library, among many other things. Probably the most interesting and, incidentally, the least talked about, is something that has already occurred—the creation of a new dorm.

Dexley Hall, the name being a combination of husband and wife John Mobley and Mary Dexter, is a private dorm for UNCW female students. Owned and operated by the ABC Development Company, Dexley Hall is located at the junctions of highways 74-76 adjacent to the inland waterway bridge to Wrightsville Beach (former Babies Hospital nurses' dormitory).

When asked where the idea came from, John Mobley, the head of ABC, said that the university notified him over the summer that they had a housing shortage, and gave him a list of those in need of housing. He then decided to turn the former nurses' dorm into a dorm for UNCW students. "We had a month and twenty days to renovate the building," said Mobley, and renovate they did. The building has complete wall-to-wall carpeting, (except for the kitchen and lobby), air conditioning, double closets per room, sun deck and porch, vending machines, new furniture, and probably best of all, no parking fees.

A student can live by herself for $650.00 per semester plus a refundable $100.00 deposit, or share a room for $435.00 and split the deposits.

When asked why he only catered to girls, Mr. Mobley said that "men can find living quarters easier than women, we decided to make this available only to women".

According to the residents questioned, only four girls who were considering moving in Dexley did not choose to do so. Near the end of the summer, officials at UNCW notified all these girls that room had become available at the campus dorms. "These four girls moved on-campus without even seeing this place", said Phillis Beaman, a freshman resident. "Everyone else stayed," she added.

"We're all like sisters here. Everybody helps each other, just like a big family and we're all very close", said Melissa Grimes, another freshman. The girls said that they had everything that they could want right where they are. Plaza East is within walking distance, the beach is less than a mile away, and there is a medical center in the Babies Hospital.

Residents of Dexley Hall are allowed to have visitors in the lobby until midnight. Male visitors are not allowed in the rooms at any time. To whether or not any of girls allowed men upstairs, "Not so", said Beatrice Kittrell and Sue McKinney. "Most of our boyfriends live far away, so there's no problem", they added.

The girls living in Dexley Hall seem extremely well-adjusted, especially the freshmen. The distance between the dorm and campus seems to have been much more beneficial than detrimental to these new students. There are six vacancies at Dexley this semester. Odds are that this will never again be the case.

According to Dr. William Harris, head of the UNCW Earth Science Dept., graduates in geology are subjected to many job opportunities now, and by 1985 an additional 26,000 geologists will be needed across the country.

In the last five years, UNCW has experienced a 15 percent per year increase in enrollment for degrees in geology, Dr. Harris said. At present there are in excess of 150 geology majors at UNCW. Of these, 50 percent are expected to attend graduate school.

Starting salaries for non-experienced B.S. graduates commonly range from $19,500 to $20,000 annually, and from $22,000 to $23,000 annually for non-experienced M.S. graduates according to Dr. Harris. This represents a 33 percent increase over starting salaries just two years ago.

Plasma reveals blood donor

by Joyce Stevens

Studies have shown that voluntarily donated blood is much safer for recipients than blood used in hospitals from paid blood donors. According to information published by the American Red Cross, the risk of post-transfusion hepatitis is ten times greater for patients who receive blood from paid donors.

The Red Cross seeks to provide hospitals with the safest blood supply possible. After blood is donated through the Blood Mobile, several tests are run before it is used by patients.

An important blood component is the plasma. Whole blood is placed in a centrifuge that separates the plasma from blood cells. The plasma is then placed in plastic bags and labeled.

A lot of information can be determined about the donor from the physical attributes of his plasma. Obese persons tend to have thicker plasma (fatty cells) than average blood donors, whose plasma tends to have a creamy-yellow coloration. Blood donors with rich blood has plasma with a reddish tint. However, some plasma is green in color. According to a spokesperson at the Red Cross center, green plasma is taken from women taking birth control pills.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on UNCW's campus Thursday, September 25 from 11:430 p. m. and Friday, September 26 from 9-4 p. m. in the Student Activities Building. All healthy persons between the ages of 17 and 66 weighing at least 110 lbs. are eligible to donate blood.

Pumpkin Creek Stables

Since 1889

Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

Total Equine Care

NO RENTING

675-0731

A&G OUTLET

Glen Mead Plaza

Hey, Want to play Doctor?

Scrub Shirts & Pants

white, green, blue shirts

$8.95

pants

$9.95

New Arrivals:

Embroidered sweaters, Corduroy skirts,

Wool skirts in plaids and solids,

Embroidered & solid turtlenecks

Popular oxford cloth button downs
for girls & boys

Corduroy & chamois cloth shirtwaist dresses.

Four Winds The Crest School Kids Records

UNCW

SPORTS

UNCW Soccer team suffers first loss

by Scott Sibley

Seahawk attempt comeback against Wolfpack.

Seahawks downed by Wolfpack 21-7

A deflected pass early in the first quarter resulted in a 75 yard touchdown that put N.C. State in command of a 21-7 victory over the Hawks.

The Wolfpack took advantage of Seahawk mistakes and poor organization to score again early in the first quarter.

Steve Gibson slipped behind Hawk defensive back Kevin Wilson and caught a 50 yard pass from quarterback Frank Johnson.

Late in the second quarter Gibson beat Seahawk defensive back Dale Fish on a 40 yard pass play that put State on the 4 yard line. Two plays later Gibson was open in the corner for another touchdown and a 21-0 State advantage.

Midway through the 3rd period Seahawk Bill Morris intercepted a pass and ran 58 yards to the 4 yard line before he was downed. Anthony McDowell took the ball in for the Hawks.

The Seahawks are now 0-3 overall and 0-1 in League. If they have any hopes of making the playoffs for the 4th year in a row, they must win Friday night at UNC-CH. Chapel Hill is defending Champions and expected to clinch the Eastern conference.

The UNCW soccer team suffered its first defeat of the season Wednesday at home against a powerful N.C. State team but then rallied back Friday to an impressive win over St. Andrews in overtime.

The N.C. State Wolfpack led by freshman Chris Ogu's two goals defeated the Seahawks 3-1.

UNCW got off to a slow start by allowing State to score twice in the first half. "I thought we played too tentatively in the first half," said Seahawk coach Calvin Lane.

With only four minutes into the second half the Wolfpack scored their third goal. "I didn't think we were out of it by any means at the half," Lane said, "but that third score changed everything around."

"Our kids didn't quit, though, and we made them work for the win. I'm proud of our effort. We'll bounce back, I believe, and still have a very good season." Said Coach Lane.

Bounce back the Seahawks did with a 3-2 victory over St. Andrews in Laurinburg in double overtime.

The Seahawks were behind in the second half 2-0 when Jim Slowinski scored the first Seahawk goal on an assist by Dennis Davis at the 30 minute mark.

Doug Powell tied the game up five minutes later with another Davis assist.

With less than three minutes to play in the second overtime period Powell scored to clinch the victory for UNCW.

"We were very fortunate to win," said Coach Lane after the victory.

With a record of 4-1 for the season, the Seahawks hope to continue their winning streak.

The Seahawks return to action on September 27 in Chapel Hill against the University of North Carolina.

Best All-around For Basic Sports

Boseman's

Sporting Goods

4500 New Centre Dr. Long Leaf Mall

Asics TIGER shock absorbent training shoes & lightweight racing shoes for men and women

Free

T-shirt with each pair of asics shoes!

THE ARMY RESERVE, A VETERAN'S BENEFIT

You can join the Army Reserve with more benefits than most new Reservists, since you have military experience, no matter what branch of the Armed Forces you were in.

Your monthly Reserve check is a dependable income which could help you pay your college bills or buy a few extra luxuries. For example, as an E4 with three years of service, you can earn over $1,300 a year.

The weekend drills and yearly training give you a change of pace from your usual routine. Just 38 days a year, and it's a good way to meet people, as business contacts, as references, and as friends. Check it out!

Men and Women perform well at Pembroke Invitational

by Keith Lankford

UNCW's men's cross country team traveled to Pembroke to compete in the Pembroke Invitational Saturday, September 20.

The race included almost 100 runners from two states to compete in a relatively flat five mile race under very humid conditions.

The race was won by former NAIA National Champions - Pembroke, with the lowest score of 33.

The remaining teams were Campbell-73, St. Augustine-99, Pembroke State University Track Club-122, Francis Marion-156, UNCW-163, St. Andrews-170, The Old Timers Track Club-215, Methodist-229, and Shaw 320.

Al Brantley was the first Seahawk to cross the line at 27:53, he was followed by Robbie Burke, Paul Lupica, Julian Keith, Keith Lankford, George May and Tony Creech. "The men made a good showing," said Coach Bill Atwill, "especially since we were running without our usual 5th man, Arnold Houston, who was out because of injuries."

This race had no bearing on the Seahawk standings, which remains at one win and one loss.

The Seahawks are on the road once again as they go up against Baptist College in Charleston, S.C. on Saturday, September 27.

The UNCW women's cross country team easily defeated St. Andrew's women's team Saturday, September 20, in an informal exhibition at the Pembroke Invitational meet.

The women's team had no trouble in defeating St. Andrews as they took 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th places in the meet.

The girls were lead by returning sophomore Dawn Goley who took second overall in the women's division.

Close behind was freshman Brenda Walker, sophomore Stacey Almond, and first year runners Barbara Grob and Mary Ann Goslee.

The ladies next race is against Old Dominion at home on Saturday October 4.

Club Sets Goals

This past Thursday the Racquetball Club held its initial meeting of the 80-81 year. The meeting centered around the election of new club officers, establishing club court time, and setting goals of the club.

The newly elected officers include: Andy Bowles, Greensboro Senior, President; Chuck Waller, Goldsboro Junior, Vice-President. Gary Juhan, the newly appointed Dean of Students, will serve as treasurer, and Dr. Bob Wolf will be the club faculty advisor.

See RACQUETBALL p.16

Two new coaches join Staff

Two new coaches for non-revenue sports have joined the UNC-Wilmington athletic staff. Seahawk director of athletics Bill Brooks has announced.

Virginia Skillman, a leading tennis instructor and player in the Wilmington area, takes over the coaching duties of the UNCW women's tennis squad. Dean Allen, a former city superintendent of recreation here and now a professor in the university recreation department, is the new men's golf coach.

"We are very pleased to have both of these fine individuals on our staff," Brooks says. "Each will provide us with excellent instruction and leadership in their respective programs."

Ms. Skillman has been a resident of Wilmington the past 13 years, during which time she has been active as an instructor at the YWCA and in other area tennis circles. She also served on the staffs of tennis camps at Atlantic Christian and St. Mary's College.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Skillman received her bachelor's degree in recreation from Florida State, where she also was an instructor and tennis club coach for three years.

"Teaching tennis has always been a major part of my life and I'm looking forward to the opportunity to coach here at UNCW," Skillman says. "We have a good group of girls to work with and we're all anxious to begin our fall schedule."

Allen, who was a member of the UNCW golf team one year before transferring to Brigham Young University where he obtained both his bachelor's and master's degrees, is undertaking his first coaching assignment. He has remained active as a player since beginning his career here at New Hanover High, however, and says that his new position is an exciting one.

"I'm very glad to be back in Wilmington and to become involved with the athletic program," Allen states. "We should have an improved squad this year, and I feel that with all we have to offer in this area for a young golfer, the team should continue to get better each year."

Both new coaches have already begun their practice sessions and will open the 1980 fall seasons.

Students Warned of Swimmers Ear

UNCW students, surrounded with opportunities to enjoy water sports for a prolonged season, should use preventative steps to avoid "swimmer's ear," a minor ear infection that can lead to more serious infections.

Droplets of water not removed from the ear after swimming or coming off the boat can mix with the wax deeper in the ear canal and provide a warm, moist medium for organisms.

See EAR p.16

top-bottom- Cathey Woods, Shelia Thompson, Janet Nagle left side-Teresa Ferrell, Lelia McEachern right side-Kim Brookshire. Sue McKinney on ground- Vickie Garrett- (back), Julia Stephens-[front]

Cheerleaders Chosen for 1980-81 Squad

The following girls were chosen September 15 for the 1980-81 cheerleading squad:

Teresa Ferrell - Bladenboro, Kim Brookshire - Southern Pines, Sue McKinney - Virginia Beach, Janet Nagle - Wilson, Shelia Thompson - Burlington, Cathy Woods -

Durham, Julia Stephens - Lumberton and heads - Lelia McEachern and Vickie Garrett from Wilmington.

They hope to see everyone turn out for all the games and help cheer the team onto victory.

Women Lose first 4 matches

by Keith Lankford

A young UNCW women's volleyball team lost their first four matches to N.C. Central by a score of 2 games to 1 and to St. Andrews by 2 games to 0 on Tuesday, September 16, and to Guilford 2 games to 1 and to Chowan by 2 games to 1 on Friday, September 19.

The N.C. Central team defeated the Seahawk ladies 15 to 10 in the first game. The Lady Seahawks took the second game 12 to 15, but were edged out in a tough 3rd game by a score of 16 to 14.

The ladies then played St. Andrews' girls and were beaten 16 to 14 in the first and 15 to 8 in the second game.

Then on Friday, September 19, the women's team from Guilford defeated the Lady Seahawks in three games. The Seahawks took the first game 15 to 17, but lost the next two games 15 to 6 and 15 to 9.

Friday the girls were defeated by Chowan 15 to 10 in the first game, they fought back to win 4 to 15 in the second game, but lost a very close third game 16-14.

"This is a young team," said Coach Jackie Bartlett, "and they will continue to improve all year. There are only two seniors on the team, so next year the returning team should be a strong competitor, especially with good performances by players like Freshman Bonnie Whitaker."

The next match for the girls is at home with Methodist and Coastal Carolina at 5:30 on Wednesday, September 24.

Vicki & Ken Wooten
Welcome You to ...

THE CLOTHES BASKET

5211 Market Street

Calvin Klein Jeans.....$31.00
Suggested price $40

Jordache Jeans.....$30.00
Suggested price $39.95

Baggies By

Vanderbilt & Sasson.....$34.00
Suggested price $42

Cords By

Calvin Klein
& Bill Blass.....$38.00
Suggested price $52

SWEATERS, PANTS, JEANS
BLOUSES, SKIRTS, CORDS

GLORIA VANDERBILT,
JORDACHE, SASSON,
BILL BLASS, CALVIN KLEIN.

10:00-5:30 Monday-Saturday
Master Charge & Visa accepted

Juhan looks forward to responsibilities as Dean of Students

Once again there are two Deans of Students at UNCW.

The University welcomes new administrator Gary W. Juhan, who joins Helena R. Cheek this September as Dean of Students. The position, which remained unfilled for eight months due to a state-ordered freeze on positions, opened up last spring semester when former Dean of Students Ralph Parker left the office to become Dean of Admissions.

Juhan is a native North Carolinian from Huntersville, north of Charlotte. At Appalachian State University he majored in sociology, with a minor in psychology. He received his master's degree in counselor education research from there also.

Before coming to UNCW, Juhan held the position of Assistant Dean of Students for a student body of 730 at Lees-McRae College, a two-year junior college at the foot of Beech Mountain. Besides holding disciplinary responsibilities at Lees-McRae, he acted as a career and personal counselor, director of housing, and director of intramurals. Juhan also taught a course on Marriage and Family.

Combined with his counseling experience, the course helped make him aware of the problems that the present divorce trend is causing students, he said. "It's not student divorces I'm talking about, but the divorces of students' parents." He said the divorce trend among middle-aged couples and those who have waited until the children were gone is a special problem for new college students who are insecure in their first attempt at living away from home. "They often go home for support and find the rug pulled out from under them," he said. "It can be devastating."

Looking to his responsibilities as Dean of Students at UNCW, Juhan said he looks forward to working with the Student Government Association this year, and plans to be active in helping SGA president Jessie Sanders create a judicial system for the student body.

Juhan said one of his major concerns this year will be the residence halls. "My main goal is to develop a sense of community living in the dorms," he said. He feels a strong orientation program will aid this goal.

Concerning the recent controversy over establishing designated quiet hours in the dorms, Juhan said he does not favor the idea at this time. "I'm afraid that would be creating a Frankenstein. It wouldn't help to promote a spirit of cooperation in the dorms." He feels a student's right to peace and quiet should be respected by other students at all times.

Juhan's outside interests focus around athletics. He is fond of all sports, describing himself as a racketball fanatic. "It's the best game you can play," he said. This past winter he raced motorcycles cross country.

Juhan said he is excited about being in Wilmington. After living in the mountains for the past ten years, he said, "I keep looking for a hill." But he considers Wilmington a different kind of beauty, saying he wouldn't want to be in a city any bigger.

Enthusiastic about the rapid growth and long range plans at UNCW, Juhan described the campus as the best place to be of all the schools in North Carolina. "I think it will be fun for students to come back in ten years," he said. "It will be a source of pride."

Dean Juhan said he would like to meet as many students on campus as possible. He invites students to come by his office to say hello, and to discuss any concerns they may have about campus life or personal matters.

5704 Oleander Drive

Wednesday- No cover
Special Door Prize

Iron Mountain Depot Band

Free Beverages 8-10

Thursday- Gary Allen, Guitar

Friday- TGIF Party

Featuring

Iron Mountain Depot Band

Saturday- Support the "Draft" Party

Tuesday- Ladies Night

Open 8 'til

Philosophy and Religion begins lectures

Dr. James J. Megivern, chairman of the Philosophy and Religion Department, will open the seventh series of lectures in the Department with "The Importance of Karl Barth" Monday, September 29. Weekly lectures will be held in the New Classroom Building auditorium at 7:30 p.m. free of charge to students as well as the community.

Since the spring semester of 1976 the Philosophy and Religion Department along with the Office of Continuing Education have co-sponsored the lecture series.

"A Sample of Christian Thought since Albert Schweitzer" was chosen for this year's lecture series. Karl Barth was selected as the subject of the first lecture.

Karl Barth was one of the most influential Protestant theologians of this century. In 1918 he astounded the theological world with his book on Paul's letters to the Romans. Later in 1935 he accepted an invitation to teach at a university in Germany. As the most important spokesman of the Christian world, Barth opposed the incoming Hitler. As a result he was forced out of Germany. Returning to his home in Switzerland he continued to teach. Dr. Megivern met Barth in Switzerland in the early 1960's while there working on his doctorate degree.

Weekly lectures are scheduled for the semester. October lectures will include: "The Challenge of Gustavo Gutierrez," "Walter Rauschenbusch and the Social Gospel," and "Flannery O'Connor - Southern, Catholic, Christian."

VILLAGE HAIR FASHIONS

Pat Shows

A warm welcome to all UNCW Students by offering
A FREE CURLING IRON OR HOT CURLING BRUSH

With Any Perfect Touch Perm For $30 (everyday regular price)

Beautiful Curl For Short Or Long Hair

Body Or Very Curly

Special discount for guys

5936 Market St. (Across From The New Towel City) Near The College 392-0382

Michael Lorimer's Master Class to present free concert

by Wendy Robbins

Michael Lorimer, this year's UNCW Foundation Distinguished Professor, has taught Master Classes for the classical guitar in "conservatories and universities from coast to coast." Currently, he is holding Master Classes here at UNCW. This is the first time such a program for the classical guitar has been implemented at this University.

On Saturday, September 27 at 8 p. m., Lorimer and his students will give a free concert in Kenan Auditorium. "The purpose of a Master Class is to sharpen everybody's hearing and to improve their performance," Lorimer explains. "I'm real happy with this Master Class. I like the players a lot."

Lorimer's students will provide most of the music for Saturday's concert. Lorimer's solo concert will be next month, on October 16. Both concerts, he says, will display "a whole panorama of different styles."

Saturday's concert will not be a typical recital, according to Lorimer.

"If people like music, and especially if they like the guitar, they shouldn't miss this concert," he says. "It's not going to be a concert where you sit down and one guy after another plays. I'm going to say some things about the music, just like I was with a group of friends and was talking about the different things the guitar can do. Everybody in the class is going to demonstrate what can be done on the guitar. I think it's going to be a lot of fun. Afterwards we're going to have some refreshments. It will be a chance to meet people. It will be sort of a like a big party. You can't beat it because it's free."

When he was a "real small guy," Lorimer says that he was "attracted by the sounds of plucked stringed instruments."

One day, his father brought home a recording of Andres Segovia, the world renowned Maestro of the classical guitar. Lorimer liked what he heard and since then has become one of the greatest classical guitarists in the world.

Lorimer has been playing the guitar for over twenty years. From 1965-1967 he attended the University of California at Berkeley. Around the same time, he studied guitar for six years under Segovia. He has performed in concerts all over the United States and in such countries as England, Ireland, Italy, Spain and France. In 1975 and 1977 he toured Russia, and in 1979 he toured Israel.

Lorimer came to this University because it was a "good opportunity to work together with guitarists and people in the community." He says that it was also a chance to let "more people know about UNCW."

"It seemed like a great thing to do. And," he adds, "this is a beautiful place to live, so that makes it even better. If it was in Cleveland, Ohio, or something like that, it would not be so inviting as it is here."

Teaching is enjoyable and rewarding to Lorimer.

"I like working with people personally," he says. "I think every teacher gains a lot from teaching. The life of an artist has three areas—teaching, performing and studying. Each one of these areas enhances the other. You make a balance. If you have too much performing, too much teaching, or too much studying, then there's a problem. But if you balance your performing with teaching and studying, then it's good."

Good musicians have to be "engaging, exciting and moving," Lorimer feels.

"That could apply to any type of musician—a classical musician or a pop musician. What does it take to be engaging, exciting and moving? The person has to be speaking the truth, they have to have something to say and then be able to get it across," he states.

Lorimer has written instructional columns for national publications, one of them being "Guitar Player" magazine.

"The column's in its fifth year," he says. "They ('Guitar Player') invited me to do it. They wanted to have a classical guitar column. I was kind of skeptical of the idea at first, because the magazine is pretty much oriented towards pop music. But then I decided to give it a go. I can get out a lot of information, such as the things I bring out in these Master Classes, and broadcast it over a wide area."

Michael Lorimer

Performing in concerts makes Lorimer "feel good". He says he used to get very nervous for concerts and now he still gets "keyed up".

"I'll give you a good example of what it's like," he states. "It's like when you're a kid the day before Christmas. It's like being in a state of excitement. I've found that nerves don't actually affect my playing that much if I'm well prepared."

Ever since his childhood, Lorimer's devotion to the guitar has been steadfast. Despite frustrations and setbacks, he believes that one must never give up.

"I've always had a good time with the guitar," he states. "I've been real involved with it from the very start. I've been frustrated with it but I keep going, of that is to just keep

UNCW Forensics Team has impressive record

For the past three years, Dr. Bob Rosenthal has been director of UNCW Intercollegiate Forensics Team. For the past two years, the team has won state championships in North and South Carolina, and has competed against such schools as Harvard, Southern California, Ohio State, Carolina, and the University of Michigan.

Last year alone, the team won 35 individual and group awards, and became the top forensics team in the state.

This year the team has "plans to be even better," according to Dr. Rosenthal.

This record, though still young, is impressive. Dr. Rosenthal explains that forensics is the "only measure of intellectual excellence" that compares our school with others. The success of the team benefits all undergraduate students, by academically improving the status of our school, and highlighting our name with "prestige."

The team itself is an all-around educational activity, combining the camaraderie of social groups with the competition of athletic events in one activity.

Sponsored by the SGA, the team travelled over 10,000 miles last year for participation in debates and speaking events scattered throughout the country.

Dr. Rosenthal and his wife Rita, who is also a forensics coach, established a similar program at Bowling Green University. Their team was in the ten top national ratings for three out of the four years they were there.

Along with their forensics expertise, the Rosenthals bring an enthusiasm that generates student interest and a commitment that develops their full potential.

John Williams, also with the Speech Department, is a volunteer coach for the team which is planning 12-15 tournaments this year.

The team schedules open meetings every Tuesday night at seven in K103.

If interested in joining the team, contact Dr. Rosenthal in K122E. All students are invited to join. The only requirement, according to Dr. Rosenthal, is a willingness to work.

Dr. Bob Rosenthal

Laura Mae McLean dazzles audience with powerful vocals

by Julie Russ

Anyone who frequents Wilmington area clubs and bars is familiar with Laura Mae McLean. This female troubador has been performing in public for three years as a professional, dazzling audiences with her powerful vocals and diversified repertoire. She brought it all home September 17 at 8 p. m. in Kenan Auditorium, displaying the style that has won her legions of fans in Southeastern North Carolina.

Beginning the evening's entertainments with "Willin'," a composition by the late Lowell George, Laura held the audience captive from the first. Her throaty alto wrung every drop of pathos from the song, and she introduced the next number as "a song some people think is sad, but I think it's a happy little tune", the traditional "I Never Will Marry." Derwin Hinson's excellent dobro back-up lent emphasis to the mournful lyrics.

Gram Parson's "Ooh, Las Vegas" was introduced as "something a little more upbeat" and featured the versatile Hinson banjo. A tip of the hat came when Laura turned in an excellent version of "Wayfaring Stranger," a high point on Harris' LP "Roses in the Snow."

Backup vocalist Carol Brown was an invaluable addition on such duets as "I Can't Help It If I'm Still In Love With You," "Leavin' Louisiana (In the Broad Daylight)" AND Neil Young's haunting "Birds." Browns vocals are reminiscent of Fats Domino's and to a lesser degree, Nicolette Larson's on recent Linda Rodstadt and Emmylou Harris LP.

A musician is only as good as the instrument he plays, and Laura was picking one of the finest guitars available today. She describes it as "a rare handmade yairi guitar, purchased from Stephen Gullham's Guitar Works. It is the first of its kind - a double neck acoustic. I'm real lucky to have it."

In addition to covering other artists' material, Laura also performs some self-penned tunes. "Jane Fonda Blues" drew cheers of approval from the crowd, as did the soulful "Empty," and "Let You Fall."

Finishing her set with "Desperado," Laura came back with "Me and Bobby McGee" for an encore. Her fans filed out, apparently satisfied with the show they had come to see. With Laura Mae McLean's talent and drive, she'll be a pickin' and a-grinnin' for her fans far into the future.

UNCW Beach Festival only three weeks away

Put on your shaggin' shoes, grab your favorite dancing partner, and start brushing up on your dancer steps. The UNCW Beach Festival, sponsored by the Concert Committee is only three weeks away.

In addition to seeing great beach music performances by the Jams (May 12th), The Drifters (Under the Boardwalk), The Embers ("I Love Beach Music"), and the Chairman of the Board (Myrtle Beach Days), you'll also get to see and, perhaps, participate in WMFD's and WHSL's Shag Contest, which offers a grand prize of $500 (given by Windham Dist. Co., makers of Stroh's and Stroh Light).

WMFD will be holding preliminary dance contests every week up to the Beach Festival to select semi-finalists for the Shag Contest. The winner of each of these contests will receive free tickets to the Beach Festival, records from The Record Bar, free t-shirts, and a chance to compete for the $500 first prize. Four other couples from each preliminary contest will also receive free tickets and t-shirts, so it's really worth giving it a try.

Two preliminary contests have already been held, the first at Tramps, and the second at The Four Winds; but you've still got chances to win.

The next three will be held as follows: September 26 at the Record Bar, October 4 at Bananas, and October 11 (place to be announced).

For those who wish to dance at the festival other than in the contest, there will be a roped-off section for general dancing.

Tickets for the Beach Festival are $6.75 in advance for students with I.D. (limit two), $7.75 in advance for general admission, and all tickets are $8.75 at the door. Don't miss out on this one!

UPB COFFERHOUSE
COMMITTEE

~ PRESENTS ~ SINGER - GUITARIST

JOHN GLOVER
IN THE
GOODWOOD TAVERN

FRIDAY NITE
8:00 PM
SEPTEMBER 26, 1980

FREE WITH ID

BYOB

Get Drafted For A Quarter

Mint Julep's

132 Front St. *

Private Club Members and Guest welcome
Not open to General Public

$10 a year membership fee per married couple or single person entitles you to such outstanding entertainment as:

Four Tops
Embers
Fantastic Shakers
Maurice Williams & the Zodiacs
Cornelius Brothers & Sister Rose Level Four

Castaways
The Kays
Catalinas
Cornelius Brothers & Sister Rose
Maurice Williams & the Zodiacs
John Glover

If you would like to become a member, fill out the membership form below and along with a check for $10.00 mail to: Mint Juleps, 132 Front St., Wilmington, NC 28401

Mint Juleps 132 S. Front St. Wilmington, NC

Name:
Street address
City: Zip
Home Phone Business Phone
Age: { month/day/year }

Music preference:

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Beach | <input type="checkbox"/> Easy listening |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Top40 | <input type="checkbox"/> Jazz |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Country | <input type="checkbox"/> Disco |
| | <input type="checkbox"/> Rhythm & Blues |

Coming Attractions

Fantastic Shakers
"Ms. Grace" Tymes
First Annual Shag Contest

For Information Call-343-8373

The University Program Board

Concert Committee

Presents

In Association with

WHSL And WMFD Radio

First Annual

UNCW

Beach Music Festival

Featuring

The Tams The Embers

Bill Pinkney and The Original Drifters

And

The Chairmen of the Board

Sunday Oct. 12th 3 p.m.

Trask Coliseum

Reduced Student admission
Only $6.75 [limit 2 with ID]
available only at Steve Gnad's
office Student Services Room 101
All seats $8.75 at the door

McCartney II album has too many half-baked ideas

by David Carter

There are two themes and a passing thought to be discussed at today's seminar. One, Paul McCartney is great. Two his new album McCartney II is not great, and finally, McCartney himself doesn't look any older.

Some of us grew up with Paulie and we know what he's all about. To others, it's a matter of him being a legend, and which one was he anyway? The latter is a shame and is ironic as it brings it all full circle because that's the same thing the media asked roughly seventeen years ago.

How old did you say you were?

In the August issue of MUSICALIAN, McCartney stated in an interview concerning, among other things, his new album, that "the idea was that at the end of it I'd just have a zany little cassette that I'd play in my car and never release." This is precisely what should've happened. Paul McCartney has more talent and is capable of such greatness that he could leave the rest of the galaxy behind if he had a mind to. But that in itself may be the key to the whole affair; having the mind to.

McCartney II is some of the most badly contrived material that Paulie has ever released. With the exception of four songs, the rest of this crap should've stayed on that "zany little cassette." Also thrown in was a seven inch one-sided single containing the live version of "Coming Up," which was the superior cut anyway.

Of the four good cuts, "On The Way" is the real surprise, as we find our hero playing the blues of all things, and doing a very credible job at that. "Frozen Jap" is a ducky little instrumental that rides pleasantly along sounding progressively oriental. "One Of These Days" is McCartney at his best. It's simple him, a guitar, and that fine voice. The live "Coming Up" is catchy, and has a lot more life than the studio take. The real fun with "Coming Up" was the promotional film that McCartney released with it. McCartney played sixteen musicians and the real sendoff was the bass player who was none other than Beatle Paul circa 1964, complete with Hofner bass.

What's wrong here is that the remaining seven tunes aren't worth the vinyl they're recorded on. Diehard McCartney fans will buy it because they have to. You know who you are and you understand what's implied. There are just too many half-baked ideas on this album for it to be taken seriously. We've had to wait ten years for Paul's second solo album. Here's hoping that we neither have to wait as long next time nor will we be as severely disappointed as this time.

Sinning means never having to say you're sorry

Religion is like junk mail—the more you get, the less you want. The last sermon that was relevant to my wavelength was a monologue on the evils of snakes vs. women vs. apples. Or something like that. I've bitten a few apples in my time—who hasn't?—so I listened. Turned out the guy wasn't talking fruit at all; he was talking about the wages of "sin".

Now "there's" a good subject: wages of sin. Minimum wage for maximum effort? Previous experience required? Do you know anyone who's

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

made big bucks from pro sinning? Maybe it's like gambling—you go til you fold! I dunno...

When it comes to saving souls I'm as serious as the next nun. I mean, you only get one, so why not have it bronzed and give it to the grandkids? Okay, now that's settled, how do you handle a church that "wants your soul" man? I bet you need it worse than they do: most churches have so many souls they store 'em in mothballs, like coats. It's funny—you go to Sunday school to find out that all God's creatures have a soul; then you go to church and they say, "We 'want' it kid, with you attached." So that's how come "I" never became an altar boy...

The majority of us went to Bible classes when we were young and defenseless, right? Remember the story of Jonah and the whale? Well, I never swallowed that one, and I truly believe it drove my teacher to drink. Miss Shotz (real name, I swear!) lived with the hope that, if she could endure me, Heaven was hers. Whenever she reached the point where most adults would smack or scream, she would raise her face to the sky and bawl. "What's the point, God? Why me?!" I don't think she ever got an answer either...at least not while I was in the room. (It's three o'clock in the morning; the hallucinations are gone and The Writer is preparing to crash.

Writer: Now I lay me down to sleep, etc. etc. Bless Mommy and Daddy and Hunter S. Thompson and please make the economy better. Amen. Oh, er, God? Yeah, it's me again. Do you have a good sense of humor?

God:
Writer: That's what I thought. G'night.)

UPB open to new ideas

If you enjoyed the second annual Block Party, the concert movie "The Kids are Alright," and the Nee Ningy Band's appearance in the Pub, then you appreciate the efforts of the University Program Board.

Mark Davis, chairman of UPB* urges all students interested in planning campus events to come by room 101 in the Pub and make themselves known. Members of UPB are fun-loving, creative, and highly energetic people who like to have a good time making sure others do, too.

UPB is responsible for most events presented on the UNCW campus. These events include movies, lectures, dances, and concerts. "Entertainment and education" are two words that sum up the purpose behind UPB's efforts to recruit the best possible entertainment for you, the students.

Hard-working and willing as they are, these wild 'n' crazy Program Board members can't do it alone! They need help—your help. If you're interested in making things happen on campus, go by room 101 and say the special words, "I want to join UPB!" They are always open to new ideas.

EMPLOYMENT

Waiter Trainees

Part time must be 21
Have transportation
Able to work nights
and weekends
Apply in person
Cape Fear Country Club
Oleander Drive at
Country Club Road
See Mr. Anderson or
Mr. Hayes

Kwik-Kopy

PRINTING

We print more than just copies

College Square Shopping Center

Printing While You Watch

6 cent COPIES

332-2676

Plenty of Parking

Sale

up to 30% off

100% Wool Shetland	Sweaters	Reg. $22.00 and $29.00	$15⁹⁹-19⁹⁹
Pleated Plaid Wool Blends	Skirts	Reg. $32.00 and $36.00	$21⁹⁹-24⁹⁹
Men's Wear Corduroy and Wool Blend	Blazers	Reg. $55.00 and $88.00	$43⁹⁹-69⁹⁹
Fashionable Super-Suede	Dresses & Jumpers	Reg. $35.00 and $54.00	$24⁹⁹-37⁹⁹
Button Down Oxford Shirts	$13.99	Corduroy Pants & Jeans	$17.99 and $19.99
WHITE, BLUE, PINK, YELLOW		Reg. $26.00-29.00

Casual Corner.

INDEPENDENCE

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Theatre presents 'The Visit'

"The Visit", a three-act drama, written by Friedrich Dürrenmatt, and adapted by Maurice Valency, will be presented by the University Theatre October 3, 4, and 5 in Kenan Auditorium. The play, which is being directed by Doug Swink, will be the first production this semester.

Selected for the cast are: Paul Weaver as Hofbauer, Steve Conekin as Helmesberger, Kenneth Scott as Wechsler, and Keith Sheppard as Vogel.

Frank Fioriti will play Burgomaster; Barbara Caldwell, Frau Muller; Karl Heidemann, Pastor; Robert Wilson, Anton Schill; Thea Hagepanos, Claire Zachanassian; and Thomas Schaffernoth, Bobby.

Darrell Killingsworth will be the Policeman; Michael Talmadge, First Grandchild; Kirk Talmadge, Second Grandchild; Peter Stern will play Mike; Lee Jewell, First Blindman; Paul Weaver, Second Blind Man; and Terry Casey will play Frau Borgomaster.

LOST

Tan Wallet
Book-Exceptional Child
Set of dishes and silverware
Key on Keychain with blue "L"
Timex Umbrella
Five keys on large rubber key
Gold high school ring with ruby stone
Brown wallet
TI-30 calculator (2)
Ford car keys (2)
Keys on multi-colored key ring

FOUND

Glasses
Keys
Cigarette case

Check with Chyrl Kane, Student Activities, Room- 101, in

Volunteer Opportunities

New Hanover and Brunswick County Public Schools are in need of volunteers to act as teacher's aid.

Volunteers are needed at New Hanover County Courthouse to assist juvenile offenders on probation.

Shelter aides are needed at a local animal shelter.

For more information of these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, Student Activities, room 104 in the Pub or call the Voluntary Action Center at 762-9611.

Theodore's article featured in magazine

Dr. Terry Theodore, Professor of Drama in the Department of Creative Arts, has a lengthy article entitled "The Confederacy's Star" featured in the Summer 1980 quarterly issue of the LINCOLN HERALD.

Also chosen for the cast are Joy Talmadge as Frau Schill; Sarah Rudolph as Daughter; Tommy Gust as Son, Karl; Lewis Bosworth as Doctor Nusslin; Sheila Berhart as Frau Block; and Peter Stern as Truck Driver.

Running crew included Don Pickett, Set Design; Karl Heidemann, Sound Design & Coordination; Cliff Wilson and Laura Mae McLean, Sound Technicians; Scott Kritzer, Arrangement and Performance of Guitar Music; Sheila Berhart, Stage Manager; Lisa Bosworth, Assistant Stage Manager; Caroline McEver, Poster Design; Gary Windley, Props, and Bridget Munger, Usher.

Criminal Justice Club sets goals

The Criminal Justice Club met at Hoggard Hall on Wednesday September 17 to organize and set goals for the coming year. President Gina Howard invited all Criminal Justice majors to join the club.

Committees were appointed to study and make recommendations for projects at the next meeting. Meetings will be held on the first and third Wednesday of the month at 3 p.m. at Hoggard Hall. Other officers are: Glenn Elmore-Vice President; and Elizabeth Adams-Secretary/Treasurer. Club sponsors are Mr. Tom Fields and Dr. Cecil Willis.

Toll-free hotline

People across the country now have access to a toll-free hot line which provides information on subjects of national importance to women-legislation, major campaigns by women's organizations, candidates, and other information of national interest.

Residents of all states except New York may call 800-221-4945. The information is recorded, with a new recording every week.

Women USA, the hot line's organizer, invites callers and requests other groups to submit messages of national importance.

Group focuses on separation, divorce

A group designed to help students who are in school or returning to school following a separation or divorce. The group will focus on the process of emotional separation and explore problem-solving strategies for daily stress, establishing new relationships, and coping with academic demands.

Interested students should call extension 2280 or come by the Counseling and Testing Center to discuss their participation.

Swink needs students for minor roles

Well folks, Uncle Dougie's at it again! As usual UNCW's Drama Dept. is in the process of putting together all the components needed for a fantastic theater production. This time it's "The Visit" by Friedrich Dürrenmatt, the story of a woman who leaves her home in poverty and then returns wealthy to save her town from going under but in return the town must first pay a price. Unfortunately, due to the large number of people needed for the cast the director, Doug Swink, is having problems getting a full cast and is urgently seeking males for small parts and minor roles. Some parts consist of simply walking on for five or ten minutes and then walking off. Minimal rehearsals are required and show dates are October 2, 3, 4, 5. That's only two weeks away and help is needed badly. Anyone interested in helping us, (females too!) please contact the Drama Dept. and leave a message for Doug Swink. Please get involved. Help us out!

Handicapped policies

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington is subject to and adheres to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the regulations for implementing this section. This institution does not and shall not discriminate on the basis of handicap in violation of Section 504 or the regulations. It does not and shall not discriminate in admission or access to, or treatment or employment in its programs and activities.

Copies of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and of the May 4, 1977 regulations for implementation are available in the Office of Federal Compliance. Students who feel that they may be covered by the Act or who have questions, should contact Linda Strickland, Office Alderman 114, extension 2116.

Biology Club Meeting

Biology Club Meeting, Thursday, September 25 at 4:30 p.m. in M151. Bring dues($1.)

Bloodmobile on campus September 25,26

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on UNCW's campus Thursday September 25 and Friday, September 26. All students interested in donating blood or being a volunteer to aid the Bloodmobile should come by the Pub. The Bloodmobile hours are 11 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. September 25 and 9-1 p.m. September 26.

Phi Eta Sigma meets

Phi Eta Sigma, the Freshman Honor Society, will hold an important brief meeting Thursday, September 25, at 6 p.m. in Hoggard-227.

UPB ushers needed

The University Program Board Concert Committee is seeking individuals to help with ushering on all UPB concerts during the coming year. Individuals who would like to work with the committee may fill out an interest form in the Student Activities Office, located in Room 101 of James Student Services Building.

COLLEGE STUDENTS

Improve your grades!

Send $1.00 for your 306-page, research paper catalog. All academic subjects.

Collegiate Research
P.O. Box 25097H
Los Angeles, Ca. 90025

Enclosed is $1.00.
Please rush the catalog.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____

Pom-pom tryouts

Anyone interested in being a member of the UNCW Pom-pom Squad, please report to room G119, Monday, September 29 at 4 p.m.

Criminal Justice Club meets October 1

The Criminal Justice Club will meet on Wednesday October 1 at Hoggard Hall at 3 p.m. All Criminal Justice majors are invited to attend.

Meeting for new SGA members

All new officers and senators of the SGA must meet September 25, 1980 to be sworn in to their office. The meeting will be at 6 p.m. in C117.

UNCW NOW meets September 30

The UNCW National Organization for Women will focus on women and campus life this fall semester.

At the September 16 meeting, incidents of sexism on campus were discussed, as well as how to make women a more vital part of campus life.

NOW urges all interested students and faculty to attend their next meeting on Tuesday, September 30 at 4 p.m. in the Good Wood Tavern, at which time officers will be elected.

First Impressions Count

For Complete
Hair Care Service
Come To

Larry's Style Shop

Long Leaf Mall

Shampoos, cut,
And Blow Dry

6.50

Hours:

Tues. - Fri. 9-7
Sat. 9-4

By Appointment
Or Walk-In
Call 799-5029

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Across

- 1 Mop
- 5 Buddy
- 9 Courtyard
- 14 Czech river
- 15 Wings
- 16 Carmen, e.g.
- 17 Tall grass
- 18 Roof piece
- 19 Bravery
- 20 Sea fowl
- 21 Resound
- 23 Ocean route
- 25 Small —
- 26 Pismire
- 27 Ripped
- 29 Pronoun
- 32 Bogged down
- 35 Water —
- 36 Bad
- 37 Corn bread
- 38 Surgical thread
- 39 USSR river
- 40 Rets' kin
- 42 Harass
- 43 Pioneer auto
- 44 Child's toy

Down

- 45 Son of. Scot
- 46 Couple
- 48 Touch
- 52 E. Canadian range
- 56 Bleak
- 57 Water body
- 58 Lie against
- 59 Malaria, e.g.
- 60 Fettle
- 61 Wanton
- 62 Whine
- 63 Trimmed
- 64 Lode yields
- 65 — flight

Down

- 1 Lesions
- 2 Location query
- 3 Amphitheater
- 4 Pallet
- 5 Obvious
- 6 — and kicking
- 7 Rhinichus
- 8 Caribou
- 9 Reign
- 10 Armadillo
- 11 Kinkfolk
- 12 Gait

Record Bar Always Has The Top 15
ON SALE

And Always A Namebrand
Blank Tape Sale!

TDE Tapes 20% OFF thru September 25th

WE'VE GOT THE SOUNDS
YOU LOVE TO HEAR

We also have GIFT CERTIFICATES for any dollar amount $5 $10

MUSIC MAKES THE PERFECT GIFT

will be open to all students, not just members only on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 until closing. Courts will possibly be reserved other evenings, depending on club participation. Bowles predicts the participation to be quite strong.

"The club is rather unique in the fact that it is designed for the beginning, intermediate, and advanced players. With a turnout of approximately 40, there are sure to be several in each bracket," Bowles said. According to last year's president and originator of the club Mitch Covington, Laurenburg, Sr., "the club was designed to acquaint the students, faculty, and staff of UNCW with our nations fastest growing sport and to allow them to progress at the rate they desire."

Another big goal of the club is to develop interschool competition (male and female) between other schools in the area. Bowles is working to set up matches with UNC-Chapel Hill, North Carolina State, East Carolina University, Wake Forest, Clemson, Appalachian State University, and Camp LeJune. With all of last year's success, if students make the meeting but interested in getting involved in America's fastest growing sport to contact, Andy Bowles at 392-7799, Chuck Waller at 392-7744, or Mitch Covington at 791-9292 for details.

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Medical University of South Carolina
September 24, 1980
Ms. Phyllis Shaffer
Bachelor of Science in Nursing! Majors: Any

EAR

The Student Health Center recommends using a mixture of one quarter part of white kitchen vinegar and three quarters part of rubbing alcohol. One should place a few drops in each ear immediately after coming out of the water and let the solution drain out.

The vinegar increases the acid in the ear canal, helping to guard against the growth of bacteria and fungi. The alcohol acts as a drying by displacing the water and as an antiseptic once the ear is dry.

Should an earache or an infection develop, one should discontinue the eardrops and consult a staff member of the Student Health Center.

THE MOST POPULAR SIGNS IN BASEBALL.

LITE BEER FROM MILLER.
EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER. AND LESS.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 6

October 1, 1980

Sixteen Pages

Diploma, portrait of Dr. James F. Shober dedicated to library

by Wendy Robbins

The portrait and original medical diploma of Dr. James Francis Shober, the first black physician to practice in North Carolina, were dedicated to the Helen Hagen Special Collections Room in William Randall Library last Thursday.

The photograph and diploma were donated to the university by Addie Whiteman King, Gladys Whiteman Baskerville and Carrie Taylor Wright, nieces of Dr. Shober.

Chancellor William H. Wagoner accepted the gifts from the ladies, saying that it was "a happy occasion in the life of the university."

Dr. James F. Shober was born in Salem, N.C. on August 23, 1853. He received his bachelor's degree from Lincoln University in Pennsylvania.

In March 1878 he obtained his medical degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C. and opened practice at 713 Princess Street in Wilmington. He provided health care for residents until his death on January 6, 1889.

The 24-by-18-inch diploma is written in Latin and is framed behind protective glass. Each one of Dr. Shober's professors personally signed the diploma.

Chancellor Wagoner read a translation of the diploma that was provided by James Beeler, Chairman of the Modern Languages Department.

The document reads as follows: "To all who are going to read this document thoroughly, everlasting salvation from the Lord. Be it known to you, that upon recommendation of the distinguished professors, the trustees have equipped and decorated Mr. James F. Shober, a young man known for his obligation to life, with the title and degree of Doctor of Medicine and have confirmed upon him for his enjoyment each and every right, privilege, honour, dignity and distinction that here or anywhere are customarily granted to those elevated to the same degree in medicine. Therefore, as proof of the action, the official seal of the university and the signature of the president are fixed to this document, given from the university house on the third day of March in the year of grace one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, and in the eleventh year of the university."

Chancellor Wagoner also presented copies of Dr. Shober's photograph to the women.

"You were so generous in providing the original to us that we wanted you to have this to take with you to preserve for you and your own kindred," he stated.

Mrs. Baskerville spoke on behalf of Dr. Shober's nieces. She said that it was with "a great deal of pleasure" that they present the "treasured gifts to identify the late Dr. James Francis Shober."

Dr. Shober was determined to "alleviate the sufferings of mankind," she stated, and she was "reminded that these gifts were earned by much sacrifice and hard labor."

Because of his faith and trust in God, it lead him to know that for every valley there was a mountain, for every sunset there was a sunrise and for every problem there was an opportunity for him to rise higher and higher to attain his goals," she said. "On behalf of the nieces of Dr. Shober I present this diploma and portrait to the Helen Hagen Rare Book Room of the William Randall Library. May they serve as a beacon light and challenge to all who enter these sacred walls."

Dr. James F. Shober's portrait and diploma were dedicated to the Helen Hagen Rare Book Room.

New SGA members sworn in September 25

New members of the Student Government Association were sworn in September 25 at the weekly meeting of the SGA.

Chief Justice Johnny Ward swore in the new officers after Vice-President Charles Parsons outlined the duties of senate representatives.

President Jessie Sanders announced a compromise had been reached concerning the use of meal cards in the snack bar. Students holding meal cards can now use their cards in the snack bar from 7:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. and again from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. The meal card can also be used in the Goodwood Tavern from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

In other business, the Recreation Major's Club's Charter was approved. All clubs must have their charters approved to receive funds through the SGA. Charters approved last year must be renewed for the new year. Organizations without approved charters are subject to lose their funds.

Two positions are open on the SGA for a representative-at-large for the Finance Committee and for a seat on the student Supreme Court. Anyone interested in either of these positions should apply at the SGA office.

The next meeting of the SGA will be October 2 at 7 p.m. in C-117. All interested students are urged to attend

SGA members are sworn in.

Riverfest '80 scheduled for this weekend

Wilmington's second annual Riverfest is returning to Wilmington this weekend for three days of unlimited entertainment.

The Riverfest, formally known as the Old Wilmington Riverfront Celebration, originated over a year ago to bring attention to historic downtown Wilmington and the Cape Fear River.

This year's Riverfest will offer something for everyone to enjoy, from backgammon tournaments to raft races to tobacco spitting contests.

The first live performance will begin Friday night at 7 p.m. with a two-hour Elvis Presley impersonation on the floating stage opposite the Federal building. Other entertainment will include a one-man Mark Twain show, a German "oompah" band, a beard contest, magicians, jugglers, Fire Disco, high school bands, a mini-marathon, film festival, air shows, exhibits, and the list goes on.

Horse drawn carriages will provide free rides all Saturday and Sunday along Water Street from the Cotton Exchange to Chandler's Wharf.

A replica of a trolley car will provide the same tour. A cruise boat will give harbor tours hourly every day.

The three day event will take place along the Cape Fear River from Cape Fear Technical Institute to chandler's Wharf and inland to Thalian Hall.

EDITORIAL

On September 30, the landfill at Carolina Beach was closed for dumping New Hanover's garbage. Before that time, the county had used the landfill on the beach as a temporary solution until a permanent solution could be reached. Carolina Beach's landfill has been used by the county for more than a year while city and county officials contemplated what to do with the county's waste. A federal judge blocked extended use of the landfill not because it was unhealthy but because of the legality involved. There was no contract, but merely a license issued for the county to use the landfill.

With these things in mind, I feel our elected officials should be able to foresee the direction in which they are taking us. To go on indefinitely relying on temporary solutions is not my idea of progressive government. To plan for today and not for tomorrow is futile. Perhaps I expect too much of the county commissioners and city council but I feel they are doing only half of their job. Wilmington's population is growing and that growth should be looked after years ahead, not at the last minute.

Letters to the Editor should be signed, typewritten and no more than 150 words. They should also be in good taste and free of slander and obscenity.

Deadlines for all copy - articles, letters to the editor, announcements, etc., has been changed to Thursdays before publication instead of Fridays as previously announced.

Opinions printed in any column in The SEAHAWK should not be considered opinions of the Editorial Board unless otherwise stated.

The Seahawk announces the following positions open for the 1980-81 school year. Compensation in the form of scholarships and/or minimum wage are available for some positions.

Typesetters
Advertising Salespeople
Artists
Cartoonists
Staffwriters
Production Positions

Applications should be submitted to Linda Moore, Student Activities, or to the Seahawk Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

The September 25 "Campus Chuckles" did not make me chuckle! The supposedly humorous, derogatory comments about God were irresponsible and very offensive to me and many other students. Much more care should be taken when dealing with this subject in a humorous manner.

The title "Sinning Means Never Having to Say You're Sorry" is both incorrect and has no relevance to the content except that it portrays the fallacy within. Religion is a tool God has given us to work with. I'm sure if someone told you Miss Russ, "Campus Chuckles" is like junk mail... you wouldn't chuckle. I hope that some day you realize God is very important and that his love can make everyone's life happy and fulfilling.

Students should be able to bring grievances to the staff and have them considered seriously. I was not given that chance. Therefore, I respectfully ask publicly for a retraction.

Rich Pereira
Theresa Pereira

To the Editor

In the September 25 edition of the Seahawk was my regular column "Campus Chuckles". This particular column dealt with God and religion under the headlines "Sinning Means Never Having to Say You're Sorry". I expressed my views in what I thought was a tongue-in-cheek manner, and it was not my intention to offend God or anyone else.

Since then, it has been brought to my attention that the topic and the irreverent way in which I examined different aspects of religion were regarded as tasteless by some readers. I would like to take this opportunity to apologize to those who took offense.

It is my belief that God has a sense of humor, which we here below are sometimes lacking. Again, I am sorry for any ill feelings this subject may have caused.

Thank you,
Julie D. Russ

To The Editor:

A tribute to my boss:

There's not a day goes by that someone (students, visitors, callers) makes the statement, "you must like working for Doug. He's such a great guy." Well, believe me, he is!

Mr. Swink (often call Uncle Doug) is a great person to know and work for. Not only is he a super human being, he's intelligent (ever meet someone who knows something about everything - I mean really know?), he's considerate, witty, charming and all the good stuff that you just don't find too often in people today.

Knowing him can put light in your life, so thanks Mr. Swink, "cause you light up my life".

Brenda Galloway-Smith
Secretary

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Joyce Stevens, News Editor Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sports: Scott Sibley

Production: Freda Pyron

Photography: Chip Hackler

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallamith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Bryant

Typesetters: Chryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Today's world is different from what it was yesterday

Sometimes it scares me. The way the world is today. Like when I think of how when I was a child war was something they made movies about. War was John Wayne fighting in WWII, the war eight years past. Or it was Robert Mitchum flying over Korea, the war just recently ended. War was history refurbished into make-believe. It wasn't served up with supper, edited into journalistic reality. It wasn't scary.

And it scares me when I think

Prime Time

by Judy Stallmuth

of the little stream that ran through the meadow behind our house and remember the way I could bend over and cup that clear water in my child-sized hands and drink. And it tasted like it smelled, minty, clean, teeth-achingly cold. No longer. The streams of my youth are gone, replaced by chemical dumps. I have no mint-tasting water to offer my son and it scares me.

It scares me that school used to be a place of excitement and growing, a doorway to far away places. School was friends and open house and learning to be a citizen. Now it's applied theories, government regulations, and drug connections. I think of what I learned in school and I see what my son finds at school and it scares me.

And it scares me when I think of how the place I had planned to be no longer exists, the place marked Wife-Mother. I've been forcibly liberated and now my place is Single parent-Breadwinner. It is lonely, terribly frightening place.

Yes, it scares me that the world I live in is no longer the world I knew and wanted. Scares me that the future is no longer something to look forward to but something to dread. The future is perhaps tomorrow and the world, however frightening a world it is, ending "not with a bang but a whimper."

Yes, yes, it scares me sometimes. Sometimes it scares me so bad that I can't think about it. I just can't think about it at all.

Popularity of on-campus living

by Keith Lankford

"On-campus living is becoming more popular every year," according to Charles King, Director of Housing and Food Services.

Two hundred seventeen students on a waiting list who had actually paid their $50 deposits for a room had to have their money refunded and to be turned away because there weren't any more rooms available.

As of now UNCW has room for 1,000 students, half of which are reserved for freshman. The 1,000 beds are almost evenly divided among male and female students.

Approximately 90 percent of those students living on campus are in-state residents, with athletes accounting for the majority of the 10 percent out of state students.

"We are housing students from as far away as North Dakota, Canada, Puerto Rico, England and Ecuador," said Mr. King.

"UNCW uses a lottery system to determine who gets into the dorms," said King.

"We feel that the lottery system is the fairest way for all, and we will continue to use it next year."

This year was the first time causes shortage of housing at UNCW that students were overbooked into some of the hall lobbies of Galloway. But within two weeks these students were relocated into rooms of students who had withdrawn from the university, and the lobbies were restored to their purpose as TV rooms. Mr. King added that one new TV is on order.

Construction is under way to add room for 400 more students in the form of 13 separate apartment buildings to be located behind the dorms.

Each building will have eight apartments, with four private bedrooms per apartment. Each apartment will also have a kitchen, bath and living room.

One of the 13 buildings will have a laundromat, office, and vending area.

Also there will be a 300 car parking lot added. The total cost of the apartments is estimated at 3.6 million dollars.

About half of the apartments are planned to be completed by the beginning of the fall 1981 semester. The other half is scheduled for completion by January of 1982.

Officer removes Community Watch posters

by Dianne Russell

Campus Crime Prevention Officer Kenapaux said he was following orders when he removed several of the crime prevention posters put up around campus by the Campus Community Watch to alert students to crime.

Orders came from Director of Business Services James K. Clark to remove those posters in which a black man was depicted at the scene of a crime, police said. Although the photograph on the posters was intended to depict the black man as the victim of a crime, the viewer could confuse him for the criminal, Clark explained.

He said the administration did not want to depict blacks in stereotyped criminal roles.

"It wouldn't be fair," he said. "We are very sensitive about stereotyping a certain group of people. There would have been no problem had the posters clearly conveyed that the black man had been a victim of a crime."

Clark said he noticed the posters after they had been hung and gave orders to the Campus Security for their removal. He said there is no written policy concerning the matter. "I felt that particular poster might create some reaction," he said. "If the posters had come to me first, there would be no faces in any of them," he added.

Assistant Chief of Police David Gurganous said all the posters in question have been removed and destroyed.

Unitarian Fellowship sponsors religious discussions

May religion be based on reason and expressed through social reform?

Several UNCW professors will lead public discussions on Liberal Religion in a free public series sponsored by the Wilmington Unitarian Fellowship at 11:30 a.m. on Sundays at the Winter Park Pre-school on 4306 Lake Street.

Mel McLaurin of the History Department will speak on Liberal Religion in the South on October 19.

Beatrice Stegeman (Philosophy) will discuss Liberal Religion in Two Cultures on October 26, and Sandy Martin (Religion) will examine Liberal Religion in the Black Church on November 2.

The series continues with

Liberal Religion Women as Social Reformers led by Anita Smith on November 9. Linda Williams will conclude with Contemporary Universalist/Unitarian Women on November 16.

Everyone is welcome to attend these free discussions. For more information contact Beatrice Stegeman at 392-6640.

Welcome UNC-W Seahawks!

Haircuts $5.00
With student ID
reg. $7.00

Offer good through
November 1

No appointment
Necessary

PHONE (919) 256-4591
WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH AREA
PLAZA EAST SHOPPING CENTER
THE UNISEX SHOP OF WILMINGTON

Positions available

The following positions are now open: two seats on the Student Supreme Court (the SSC decides constitutional questions for the SGA), two seats on the Finance Committee (the FC reviews requests for money from all clubs and organizations on campus), one seat on the Media and Publications Board (the MPB oversees campus media organizations), Forum, the Student Journal of Marine Sciences needs students to fill ALL staff positions (Forum publishes original research done by students).

UNCW needs you! If you are interested leave your name and number in the SGA office upstairs in the Pub.

Beginner or advanced. By studying Spanish only, four hours a day, four days a week, for fourteen weeks, you will earn sixteen semester hours of college Spanish credit. (That's four semesters worth of college Spanish credit!) The cost is about the same as one semester in a U.S. college, $2,589.

Whether you are a beginner or an advanced student, your Spanish studies will be greatly enhanced by opportunities not available in a conventional classroom. Standardized test scores of our students show that their Spanish language skills are better overall than those obtained by American students who completed standard two-year Spanish programs in United States colleges and universities.

This is a rigorous academic program lasting from Feb. 1 to June 1, 1981. The cost of $2,589 includes round trip jet fare to Seville, Spain, from Toronto, Canada, as well as room, board, and tuition. Government grants and loans apply for eligible students.

You will live with a Spanish family.

FULLY ACCREDITED.

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

2442 E. Collier S.E. Grand Rapids, Michigan 49506
(A Program of Trinity Christian College)

CALL TOLL FREE for full information 1-800-253-9964
(In Mich., or if toll free line inoperative call 1-616-942-2541 collect.)

Chancellor issues directives concerning disposal of campus garbage

Representatives from virtually every area of UNCW's community met with Chancellor William H. Wagoner Tuesday morning for a briefing concerning the disposal of garbage in the campus community.

Dr. Wagoner described the situation as "five minutes to midnight" as the temporary landfill closed midnight September 30, leaving Wilmington residents without a means of disposing of its garbage.

Federal Judge Earl Britt turned down a request Tuesday afternoon to have a court order blocking the closing of the Carolina Beach landfill because there was only a license and not a written contract to use the landfill at Carolina Beach.

The Wilmington City Council has initiated emergency measures to prevent an enormous trash backup. "All of the health hazardous kinds of waste...will continue to be picked up," Dr. Wagoner said, "but it must be separated from other kinds of solid waste such as paper, metal cans, and glass bottles." Non-health hazardous materials will be stored on the owner's property for an indefinite period of time.

UNCW's campus is within the corporate limits of Wilmington and are bound by the same laws governing the city. The law will not legally be in effect until October 6 but the Council has requested that residents begin complying with the ordinance on a voluntary basis beginning October 1.

Around 5 p.m. Tuesday, the county commissioners opted to use an area on Blue Clay Road beginning October 4 and the county will more than likely allow the city to use the same site. Until a definite decision is reached, garbage within the city limits will be hauled to Wake County.

Sporre becomes head of Creative Arts

by Kimberly Mills

Heading the Creative Arts Department is Professor Dennis J. Sporre, former Director of General Education in Arts at Penn State.

In 1965, Sporre received his bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University. He obtained his Master's degree in 1967 from the University of Iowa.

From 1977 to 1980, Sporre was at Pennsylvania State University. He served as Assistant Professor at the University of Arizona from 1972 to 1976. Around that same time (1973-1976) he was also Assistant Dean.

Sporre belongs to several organizations, among them the United States Institute for Theatre Technology, the American Theatre Association and Association for General and Liberal Studies.

Some of his responsibilities here at UNCW will be to help plan budgets for Creative Arts, plan new classes, and cancel classes that are not meeting students' needs.

Sporre feels it is a good policy always to consult others on issues that affect them.

One of the ways he plans to do this is to form a student advisory council. In such a council a student from each division of Creative Arts would meet with him to discuss strengths and weaknesses in the department.

"I believe strongly in the student advisory council," he said, "but it is not a place to complain about a special professor."

The council is to be formed soon, but first he wants to meet with the division faculty advisory council. He hopes that the faculty will assist him in selecting members of the student council.

When away from school, Professor Sporre enjoys showing and judging dogs. He and his wife own three dogs and co-own a half dozen around the country.

Dennis J. Sporre

COLLEGE STUDENTS

Improve your grades!

Send $1.00 for your 306-page, research paper catalog. All academic subjects.

Collegiate Research
P.O. Box 25097H
Los Angeles, Ca. 90025

Enclosed is $1.00.
Please rush the catalog.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____

Pumpkin Creek Stables
Since 1889

Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

Total Equine Care

NO RENTING

675-0731

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL- ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $1.19 EACH.

Here's a real special treat for you and your friends or family. You can get all the delicious Chick-fil-A sandwiches—the original boneless breast of chicken sandwich—for only $1.19 each with the coupon below. That's a deal that's hard to beat on the sandwich that's fun to eat.

SAVE	CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL COUPON—$1.19 each	SAVE
	Just fill in the number of sandwiches you want, we'll do the rest. One coupon per	person per visit. Offer expires:
	<input type="text"/> 	 Closed Sundays.
SAVE	THE TASTE WORTH SHOPPING FOR.	SAVE
	CHICK-FIL-A of Independence Mall, Wilmington, N.C. OPEN 11:00 AM - 10:00 PM

UPB Half-Moon Coffeehouse Johnny Sneed and Reed Whitesell in the Goodwood Tavern, Friday October 3 at 8:30p.m.

The Fair Exchange Records

Located in Coastal Plaza II
3411 Wrightsville Ave.
PHONE: 799-5395

Puts it ALL on sale

Thursday Oct. 2nd

All Used Albums 50 % Off
Beach Music 25 % Off

Special Selection of Sealed Albums such as
Tim Weisberg; Jethro
Tull; Blondie;
Uriah Heap

$3.00

All Posters only $2.00

All Golden Oldies
$1.00

Hours
11-8 Mon.- Fri.
11-6 Sat.

S. College Rd.

Pony Express

Grapes & Hops

Fair Exchange

FRANKLY SPEAKING by phil frank

FRANKLY SPEAKING by phil frank

FRANKLY SPEAKING by phil frank

PEANUTS

Cut Class

This Week

Pick your favorite ArtCarved class ring. Cut it out. Keep it with you for a while. Get an idea what it's like to own the ring that says, "I did it!"

Then, next week, have the genuine article fitted by the ArtCarved representative visiting campus. For one week only, you'll have our newest selection of ring styles to choose from — and a specialist who will make sure the fit is perfect. Plus, there will be some incredible ArtCarved offers to cut the cost of your class ring...

CUT your ties with the past during our "Great Ring Exchange!" Trading your old 10K gold high school ring for a new ArtCarved college ring could save you as much as $90.

CUT the cost of a traditional or contemporary Siladium ring to just $79.95 — a special ArtCarved "Ring Week" discount up to $20.

CUT a smashing figure with a women's class ring from our exciting new "Designer Diamond Collection."

Any way you cut it, next week is the best week to select your ArtCarved class ring!

ARTCARVED
COLLEGE RINGS

... SYMBOLIZING YOUR ABILITY TO ACHIEVE

Oct. 1,2,3

Cafeteria

10-2pm

Deposit required. MasterCard or VISA accepted.

© ArtCarved College Rings

Student fees support a variety of campus activities

by Brad Wheeler

Name:	Amount [per sem.]:	Controlled by:	Spent for:
Student Government Association	$14.00	Jesse Sanders	All clubs and organizations
Student Union	$19.00	Linda Moore	Student Union services and upkeep
New Student Union	$35.00	Robert Walton	Paying for construction of new student union
Trask Construction Debts	$25.00		Payment for construction of building
Health Services	$11.00		24-hour service for ill and injured
Intramurals	$2.00	Coach Brooks	Equipment, etc.
Athletics	$25.50	Coach Brooks	Equipment, time, field use, etc.
Physical Education Department	$13.50	Coach Brooks

Total: $145 fees, $135 tuition per student with 4,695 students - $726,775 total fees.

Every student, before becoming registered, has a certain amount of required fees (as well as incidental fees; suba diving, sailing, and lab fees) to pay each semester. They are collected and spent for different categories, all of which used the funds for various student benefits. This chart is to simplify the utilization of these funds as to who controls these funds and how and where they are spent. Incidental fees will be described in more detail at a later date.

Hell

THE GREAT RING EXCHANGE.

(Or How To Get Your College Ring For Less.)

Trade up. Trade in. And save. Because ArtCarved offers you the unique opportunity to trade in your 10K gold high school ring.

You can save up to $90 on the college ring of your choice. And ArtCarved offers twenty different styles from which to choose.

Get ready for The Great Ring Exchange. You can't afford to pass it up.

ARTCARVED

COLLEGE RINGS

Symbolizing your ability to achieve.

Oct. 1,2,3

Date

10-2pm

Location

Cafeteria

UNCW

SPORTS

UNC-W forms new surfing club

The newly formed UNCW surfing club held its first meeting September 14 in order to organize a club which will support and sponsor a competitive surfing team.

From the turnout of the first meeting there will probably be two teams of twelve men each.

If the interest continues it may result in several intraschool matches as well as the regular contest season.

In August the NSSA held the East Coast Championships in Cape Hatteras, N.C. UNCW had three students place in the finals. The three were Andy Wymore, who placed third, Mark Venters, who placed for and Mike Fitzpatrick who took fifth place.

These three students have been invited to the NSSA National Championship which will be held in Huntington Beach California in December.

The UNCW surfing team will participate in the first East Coast Intercollegiate contest of the season at Paradise Pier on Topsail Island, N.C.

All students wishing to support the team are encouraged to come to Topsail Beach.

The UNCW teams will be an affiliation of the National Scholastic Surfing Association which is a nationwide contest oriented organization devoted to competition from Jr. high to the college level.

Surfers catch the waves at Wrightsville Beach.

Men's cross country edged out by Charleston Baptist

by Jim Davis

UNCW men's cross country team was edged out in a close dual meet in Charleston, S.C. against Charleston Baptist College Saturday September 27 by a score of 29-30.

The men competed on a five mile wooded trail in favorably cool weather conditions.

The Charleston runners took first, second and third places which clinched the victory for them.

UNCW took the next 7 places. The order of finish for the Keith Lankford.

"Two of our runners ran a five-minute last mile," said Seahawk coach Bill Atwill, "but we just couldn't break up the front running Baptist threesome."

The next race for the Seahawks will be at home against UNC-Charlotte and Old Dominion. The men's race will begin at 10 a.m. and the women's at 11 a.m.

Seahawks was Robbie Burke, Paul Lupica, Al Brantley, Julian Keith, George May and

UNC-W soccer team suffers second loss of season

by Scott Sibley

The UNCW soccer team lost their second game of the season Saturday against Chapel Hill.

The Tarheels downed the Seahawks 3-0, making it only the second shut out in 67 games for UNCW.

Sean Neaber scored midway through the first half for the Tarheels off Seahawk goalie Charlie Ingold's rebound.

The second Tarheel score came off a penalty shot with six minutes left in the game.

Seahawk Buddy Kelly mistakenly played the ball over Ingold's head which gave the Tarheels their third goal in the final minutes of the game.

UNCW is now 5-2 for the season. Their first loss was against N.C. State.

The Seahawks next game will be at home at 4 p.m. on Thursday, October 2 against Guilford College.

In old times, wealthy people had "sleeve dogs," which they carried in their sleeves, their heads peeping out at the cuffs.

Women's volleyball letters record

by Jim Davis

The UNCW women's volleyball team bettered its record to 3 wins and 5 losses in games played September 22 and 24.

On Monday, September 22 the Seahawks defeated Shaw University and Fayetteville State College winning the best two out of three games.

The women easily took Shaw by winning two straight games. The first game 15-7 and the second 15-1.

In the second match, the seahawks breezed by Fayetteville State 15-3, 15-1.

In the first game on Wednesday, September 24 the Seahawks faced some fierce competition against the Methodist College Team.

The Seahawks were downed by Methodist in two close games. The women were defeated 11-15 in the first game and 13-15 in the second.

Wednesday's second match put the Seahawks back on top by defeating Coastal Carolina 15-4, 15-11.

Seahawk Coach Jackie Bartlett said, "The keys to this week's victories were good serving and overall good playing. There was good hitting by Becky Simmons and Sarah Quick. Sarah contributed with very good serving. Also, Linda Williams and Bonnie Whitaker had good games."

The Lady Seahawks take on Western Carolina and Gardner-Webb at Gardner-Webb in their next match on Friday, October 3.

UNCW's Club Football Team was downed by Carolina Friday night in Chapel Hill by 18-0.

A tree surgeon can replace decayed heartwood in a tree just as a dentist can fill a tooth.

Coach Corry argues with referees at Chapel Hill.

Golf team finishes tenth at invitational

by Keith Lankford

UNCW's golf team finished tenth out of a field of 22 teams at the Methodist Invitational Tournament on Monday and Tuesday, September 22 and 23.

The Seahawks played one round of 18 holes both days. Bob Kay and John Cregan each shot two rounds of 78 for a two day total of 156 for 36 holes.

Tom Schaffernoth shot a 157

and close behind him were Stacey Bledsloe, Bob Lynch and Keith Hariss.

On the first day, UNCW's top four scorers shot a 313 total of 627.

The tournament was won by UNC, followed by Campbell, ECU, Greensboro, Guilford and N.C. State.

"We're a young team," said first year Coach Dean Allen.

"We're looking to improve. This is one of the strongest teams that UNCW has had in years."

The 12 man team is comprised of four freshmen, seven sophomores and one junior.

The Seahawks will mostly play tournaments this fall, but are scheduled to play dual matches in the spring.

The Seahawks' next match is at the Campbell University Invitational on October 8 and 9 where they will compete against 20 other teams.

START A NEW HOBBIT

Volunteer

Reprinted with permission of Montgomery County, Md. Government

For current volunteer openings in and around Wilmington, check the SEAHAWK each week or contact Linda Moore, Director of Student Union/Activities, in room 104, Pub.

To Your Health By Muriel Ross

Fall of the year not only means falling leaves, but falling (and cuts, bruises, strains and sprains) of students who participate in strenuous activities. The N.C. Medical Society suggest several things to make sports more enjoyable and less hazardous.

Students should have a thorough physical examination to ensure that no harmful condition exists to cause permanent injury or death.

Proper physical conditioning hardens the body and allows increased playing time without tiring, helping to prevent injury.

Because of the extreme heat and high humidity of the area, students should take precautions about workouts. They should avoid the hottest time of the day and schedule activities in early morning or late afternoon and should have water available to replace body fluids lost through sweating. There is some question about heavy use of salt or salt tablets, but a moderate increase is recommended.

These precautions help in the prevention of heat stroke which occurs when the body's cooling mechanism, the evaporation of sweat from the skin, stops functioning. When this happens, the body temperature can rise as much as 7.4 degrees (from a normal of 98.6 to 106) in 20 minutes and can cause kidney, liver, or brain damage.

Soccer, cross country & women's tennis teams plan action this week

The Seahawk soccer, cross country and women's tennis teams will all be in action this week here on campus as UNCW's fall sports calendar for October opens with a variety of events.

In addition to the activity here, the Lady Seahawk golf squad will be hosting the AIAW Region Two Championships on Monday and Tuesday at Echo Farms Country Club.

"It should be a fine tournament with some outstanding individual players participating," Coach Lea Larson says. "We're hopeful of doing well in the Division Three classification, of course, and are looking forward to hosting the affair."

Division Two teams from a five-state region are also slated to take part. UNCW is already set as the host school for the Division Three national championship in 1982.

If you cannot make it our to

Echo, there will be on-campus competition in three other sports.

The women's tennis team hosts Coastal Carolina this afternoon at 2 p.m., then is home again next Wednesday against Pembroke in a 3 p.m. match. The Lady Hawks are 1-1 with a contest at Atlantic Christian also on tap this week.

Coach Calvin Lane's 5-2 soccer squad, which played at N.C. Wesleyan yesterday, is home Thursday with Guilford. The 4 p.m. game will be the Seahawks' only one on campus until an October 25th date with William & Mary.

And if you roll out of bed by 10 a.m. on Saturday, you can catch the UNCW cross country in its initial home appearance of the fall. The Seahawk men will be running UNCE Charlotte and Old Dominion, while the women's team takes on Old Dominion.

Women's tennis loses first game of season

Skillman.

Top-ranked Seahawks are Jo Ann Lee, a sophomore from landers, S.C.; Jill Amos, a freshman from Cooleemee, N.C.; and Conchie Gemborys, a junior from Jacksonville, N.C.

The 12 girl UNCW squad is composed of six freshmen, four sophomores, one junior and one senior.

The next women's tennis match is at home on Wednesday, October 2 at 2 p.m. against Coastal Carolina.

Cats cannot taste sweetness.

The Cars' new album is different but likeable

by Elise Sugar

If you're a music fanatic and into the sound of today, The Cars' new album is a must for your record collection. Combining new wave punk and rock-n-roll, The Cars create a different sound with an ex-

Applied Mathematics Interest Group to hold series of lectures

A series of five expository lectures on applied mathematics will be held this fall on the UNCW Campus. The lectures, sponsored by the Applied Mathematics Interest Group of the Department of Mathematical Sciences, will be on Tuesday nights at 8 p.m. in the New Classroom Building.

The first lecture will be October 7. The speaker will be Ed Fox, Chief Engineer for Federal Paper Board. Mr. Fox's topic will be "Feedback Control—the Important Role for Mathematics."

According to Dr. Richard Burkhart, Department of Mathematical Sciences, the speakers will concentrate on the origins of problems and the applications of problems and not on specific formulas or computation details. Dr. Burkhart states that this is an area not often covered in schools where the emphasis is on how to work problems.

Dr. Burkhart said that these lectures are being geared for people in the community as well as those within the university system. Math students, math teachers, and technicians from local industries will benefit by getting a glimpse of how college mathematics is being used in the Wilmington area. High school math teachers may receive 1-hour of continuing education credit for attending these lectures.

Future lectures, their dates, and topics are:

- Oct. 7 - Ed Fox
Chief Engineer, Federal Paper Board
"Feedback Control—the Important Role for Mathematics"
- Oct. 21 - Herbert McKim, Jr. and Michael W. Creed
M. Kim & Creed Engineers
"Structural Design Engineering Applications"
- Nov. 11 - H. Charles Craft III
Cherry, Bekaert & Holland, Certified Public Accountants
"Math in Public Accounting"
- Nov. 18 - John Pettit
Engineer, Non-Destructive Measurement Testing
General Electric
"Role of Probability in Nuclear Power Plant Risk Assessment"
- Dec. 2 - John Bauerlein
Traffic Engineer, City of Wilmington
"Mathematics in Municipal Government."

treme amount of energy. Add to this Ric Ocasek's seductive voice, excellent musicians and you have a top-notch album.

The first time I heard this album, a peculiar grin came on my face. This was the same grin I had the first time I heard the B-52's. "I like it, it's different, but I like it." These were my impressions. The third time I heard The Cars' new album, I fell in love. The high level of energy on this album compels me to pojo and sing. This album, unlike the previous two, places more emphasis on the guitar solos and musical intensity. Ric Ocasek, the lead vocalist, has written all the songs.

Side one begins with the title cut, "Panorama." This is where the high energy starts; an extremely good song. The third song on side one, "Gimme Some Slack," is an excellent cut. The lyrics may be obscure to the listener but, hey, these are The Cars. David Robinson, the drummer, jams on this song.

"Misfit Kid," the first cut on side two, is an amusing song. Ric Ocasek's impression of American teenagers hits close to home. "Eating cornflakes, getting fast love, getting wasted," are a few of the lyrics. Sound familiar to anyone?

"You Wear Those Eyes", the only slow cut off the album, consists of spacy lyrics and music. "Running to You" is another favorite of mine. The combination of rich lyrics and music make this one hell of a song. The albums end with a positive, fast beat song, "Up and Down."

If you have not experienced the sound of The Cars, the time is now. One word of caution, The Cars may be habit forming.

- PRICES GOOD THRU SAT., OCT. 4TH
- NONE TO DEALERS
- WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • COPYRIGHT 1980 WINN-DIXIE RALEIGH, INC.

COLLEGE STUDENTS!
LET US PROVE TO YOU THAT ... NOBODY SAVES YOU MORE THAN WINN-DIXIE WITH OUR EXCITING NEW PROGRAM ...

Cash Dividends

CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL

OSCAR MAYER
LEAN 'N TASTY
PORK 12-OZ. PKG. 79¢

WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE

CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL 20-OZ. TIDE 19¢ WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE	CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL 12-PAK SUPREMACY TWIN POPS OR FUDGE BARS 39¢ WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE	CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL 32-OZ. BTL. HUNT'S KETCHUP 29¢ WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE	CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL JUMBO BOUNTY TOWELS 19¢ WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE	CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL 32-OZ. KRAFT MAYONNAISE 69¢ WITH ONE FILLED CASH DIVIDEND CERTIFICATE
---	--	--	---	---

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS!

1. Pick Up Free Cash Dividend Certificates At Your Check-Out Counters!
2. You Get 1 Cash Dividend Coupon For Each $1 You Spend, Excluding Sales Tax.
3. Paste 30 Cash Dividend Coupons On Each Certificate.
4. When You Check Out, Present One Filled Cash Dividend Certificate For Each Special You Select.

PLUS ...
FREE STARTER COUPON!

REDEEM THIS COUPON FOR ONE CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL (AT CASH DIVIDEND PRICE)

WINN-DIXIE THE BEEF PEOPLE

Cash Dividend STARTER COUPON

THIS COUPON GOOD FOR ONE CASH DIVIDEND SPECIAL AT THE CASH DIVIDEND PRICE • COUPON GOOD THRU OCT. 4 AT WINN-DIXIE ONLY • LIMIT ONE COUPON PER FAMILY

Waves compel surfers to master their form

by Beri Marshall

The sun's rays are just beginning to stretch over the horizon as Bill stretches his muscles with the first waking yawn. The air is crisp, but the chill gradually numbed after a quick scan of the waves. The sets are coming in even and straight, the curls clean and peaking just right-unusual for Wrightsville Beach. He grabs his Bolt and heads out.

For Bill, a junior majoring in sociology, surfing has become more than the perfect way to begin his day. After the salt mingles with the blood in his brain to ignite his senses, it also gives him a sense of identity.

"You can't depend on being a student solely for identity," Bill says. "You need surfing or soccer or something fawatical for a release. It helps your body and mind."

Francis, a senior headed for law school, says that one of his reasons for coming to UNCW was its proximity to the ocean. For Francis, surfing is a tension reliever that gives him a real awareness of nature. "The ocean rejuvenates you," he says. "It's always different, never static."

A favorite activity for many students, surfing has been around for a long time. The Polynesians originated the sport hundreds of years ago in Tahiti and Bora Bora, then brought the art to the Hawaiian Islands in 900 and 1100 A.D. Surfing flourished in Hawaii, where the waves created a challenge, and the sport became a symbol of status.

Cheiftains and kings rode specially designed boards called "olos," usually made from wiliwiliwood. Some of these boards reached 16 feet in length and weighed over 100 pounds. Favorite surfing areas were reserved for royalty, and trespassing in these areas was punishable by death. The commoners rode boards called "koas" or "alaia's" which were usually shorter and thinner than the olos.

Surfing competition was a favorite activity for royalty and commoners. Contestants would offer gifts and prayers to their local gods for better chances at winnings, and spectators would often bet on hopeful contestants during competition.

Beginning in 1821 when Calvinist missionaries came to Hawaii, surfing suffered nearly 100 years of suppression. The missionaries discouraged surfing because of its association with pagan rites and gambling. The art was not lost completely, though, and the early 1900's brought a revival.

The famed Duke Kahanamoku, twice an olympic swimming gold medal winner, was largely responsible for the renewed interest in surfing. Boards were redesigned and made lighter and easier to ride, and fins were added.

In 1908, George Feeth introduced surfing in Redondo

Beach, California which became the starting point for the popular, fast-growing sport along the West and East coasts.

The sport almost seems addictive, as waves never cease to compel their riders to master their form and become one with the sea. Restrictions on surfing times and places at Wrightsville Beach have definitely created some problems for surfers, but beaches at Pleasure Island offer full freedom, placing no restrictions on surfers at any time during the year.

Have you been to the Jetty lately? Or how about the cove during a north swell?

Broke becomes way of life for students

Nobody is quite as poor as a poor college student. Broke becomes a way of life for those who are struggling through a semester of "just studying." Penniless is not proud.

Poor means writing short, desperate notes home with lines like "Ribs showing, please send money." It means panic when you lose that meal ticket--although it's often hard to choose between starvation and cafeteria fare.

You know you're down to the last dollar when...you drink Kool-ade instead of soda, and soda instead of suds. You listen to the radio news instead of buying a paper...and listen to a transistor instead of turning on the tube. When you tape an FM album feature instead of shelling out for the L.P...when it comes down to fertilizer for the plants or food for you, and the plants go hungry...when you go to so many triple-feature drive-ins, you forget what an air-conditioned theater feels like...when you are willing to renounce your independence for one blank check from Dad...(although almost no-one gets THAT bottomed-out.)

Being broke isn't all doom and ruin, though. Look at it this way: an empty refrigerator never needs cleaning out. And just think of all the trouble you'd get into if you

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

had money to burn; wine, women, all sorts of wicked ways! A thin wallet builds character, every time. And isn't a sterling character more important than gobs of green. You bet your light bill it is.

Friends make poverty a lot easier to bear. Everyone has been in your boat at one time or another, so you're in for lots of TLC, and maybe even a good meal now and then. (Note to Julia Child; as a rule, starving students will eat anything without a fungus on it).

According to my sources, dating on the poverty level is...non-existent. How are you supposed to wine and dine somebody when you can't afford to buy toothpaste?

Some things have to slide during hard times, and intimate candlelight cozies are not for the penny-pinching.

Behind every downpour is a drizzle--and inside every down-and-out student is a well-fed adult who remembers where he got his breaks...and repays them with interest. So keep that in mind the next time you see a hungry-looking pal--and give him a break

We print more than just copies

College Square Shopping Center

Printing While You Watch

6 cent COPIES

392-2676

Plenty of Parking

Hair etc.

COLLEGE SQUARE SHOPPING CENTER

PHONE 799-3660

HOURS 9-5

EVENINGS BY APPOINTMENT

$1.00 OFF WITH STUDENT I.D.

Wrightsville Beach's

APPLE ANNIE'S

Mon.-Fri.
5:00-11:30pm

Sat.-Sun.
11:30am-11:30pm

Beach Music Festival guarantees good time for all

Funny how things swing full circle. Take Beach Music for example: back in the late 50's and early sixties black groups recorded songs that were covered by middle of the road artists that became huge hits while the original group languished in relative obscurity playing an endless succession of small nightclubs for weeks on end. Things eventually began to change and a new order arrived.

Groups like the Drifters and later the Tams pioneered the way for other Rhythm and Blues Artists. They had huge million selling hits like "Under the Boardwalk," "Up on the Roof," "On Broadway" and you thought George Benson was the first to make it a hit, and "I've Been Hurt," - just to name a few. Check the song titles on the back of a Drifters LP and you'll find that Carol King among others learned their craft writing songs for "Beach Groups." These Rand B artists were labeled Beach Groups and the name has stuck - the popularity of the music has rarely diminished.

Beach Music has had a profound influence on shaping current music that quite often goes unnoticed. Otis Redding,

Sam and Dave, Percy Sledge, Clarence Carter, and even the immortal Sam Cooke learned and contributed to the over all sound of the genre. Today the chain continues. Rod Stewart worships Sam Cooke and has been heavily influenced by his style. Nantucket began as a beach group called the "Stacks of Gold" and the Marshal Tucker Band was originally a beach group called "The Toy Factory." In the late sixties and early seventies the musical taste of the public changed and beach songs and clubs became scarce-but all that's changed.

Today Beach Music is more popular than ever. There are many clubs in the area that cater exclusively to Beach Music. Many of the fans today weren't even born when the music was originally recorded.

Beach Music Festivals have sprung up as well. The past summer has seen several in the area, but not one like the "First Annual UNC-W Beach Music Festival." Instead of one big name and several smaller ones this show has put together four of the biggest names in business. It all promises to be quite an afternoon-Sunday Oct. 12 at 3:00-campus. What's more the show has been moved outdoors to accommodate not only the crowd but also the freedom that a show like this deserves.

The Embers Tams, Chairmen of the Board, and Bill Pinkney and the Original Drifters (not a lightweight in the bunch) and not at $10.00 a ticket but only $6.75 advance ($8.75 at the door). Student tickets are available only from Steve Gnadt's office (limit 2 to an ID) in the student services building. A good time is guaranteed for all.

Alpha Psi Omega Chapter to sponsor rush, reception

The Alpha Psi Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., Wilmington, North Carolina will sponsor a Rush and Reception for all college women who are interested in organizing an undergraduate chapter at UNCW.

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., the first Black sorority, was founded in 1908 on the campus of Howard University in Washington, D.C. After seventy-two years of service in communities throughout the world, Alpha Kappa Alpha continues to perpetuate the ideas of "Service to Mankind" through its focus on social, economical, cultural, and political advancements.

Advancements.

Alpha Psi Omega Chapter is one of 312 graduate chapters which endeavors to be a vital part of the local community in perpetuating finer womanhood and service to mankind. The 310 undergraduate chapters are branches in the national organization which also foster the ideas of leadership, scholarship, exemplary character, and service on college campuses and surrounding communities.

The annual programs of the Alpha Psi Omega Chapter include financial contributions to humanitarian causes as the NAACP, the March of Dimes, Cancer Fund, Heart

Fund, Veteran's Hospital, and sponsoring children to various summer camps and the Girl's Club. The chapter yearly sponsors a girl's softball team known as the Ivy Rams. The Ebony Fashion Fair, highlighting unique fashions by international designers was a success in the spring.

The Alpha Psi Omega Tutorial Program this summer was another humanitarian project which helped many students needing remedial assistance in reading, writing, and math. The chapter annually sponsors the Debutante program which encourages the proper social and cultural development of high school-aged young ladies.

Many scholarships are also offered to students who plan to further their educational training.

Alpha Psi Omega is pleased to respond to the interest of organizing an undergraduate chapter at UNCW, who are all women of exemplary character, academic excellence, and dedicated to service in the community and on campus are invited to attend the Rush on October 5, 1980 at 3:30 p.m. in the Pub. A reception with the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity will follow. For more information, please contact Soror Doretha Stone on campus, or Soror Rochelle Small at 763-1691.

Three new instructors join English Department

by Freda Pyron

Three faculty members have joined the English Department this semester.

Sylvia Welborn, a lecturer in English who teaches freshman composition, says she feels fortunate to be involved in the UNCW writing program which she considers innovative and up-to-date.

A native of High Point, Welborn came to Wilmington "to get back to North Carolina." She had been working on her doctoral degree and teaching freshmen composition at the University of Tennessee where she received her M.A.

She enjoys dancing and learning about antiques.

Karen Canine, also a lecturer in English teaching freshmen composition, believes UNCW has a good writing program with exciting new ideas.

Canine received her B.A. from the University of Maryland and M.A. from UNC-Greensboro where she is enrolled in the doctoral program.

Originally from Maryland, Canine now makes her home in Asheboro where her two dogs, a lab and a Heinz-57, live with her husband.

She like music-blues, rock n' roll, rock a' billy, has had some radio experience, and plays the piano and mandolin.

For Dr. Lewis Walker, Associate Professor of English, UNCW offered more opportunity to teach Shakespearean and Renaissance Literature. Aside from the nice location and better salary he says the school is expanding and offers a potential for growth.

Walker, a native of Norfolk, VA, received his B.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Virginia and M.A. from the University of California at Berkeley. Before coming here he was the English department chairman at N.C. Wesleyan. He has also taught at William and Mary.

His main interest being Renaissance drama--currently he is doing a study of a play by Thomas Middleton, a contemporary of Shakespeare. Walker is also interested in the history of newspaper cartoons, comic strips and political cartoons.

Pier

Seafood

RESTAURANT

20

1910 Eastwood Road - Plaza East
Wrightsville Beach Phone 256-2083
Phone for Take Out Orders

Wednesday thru Sunday
OPEN 5:00-9:00 P.M.

Tired of hot dogs and hamburgers because its all you can afford?
Treat yourself to a Seafood Platter for just a few pennies more.
Includes all the slaw, fries and hushpuppies you can eat.

THE PLACE FOR PEOPLE WITH MORE TASTE THAN MONEY.

University Theatre to present 'THE VISIT' in Kenan

by Beri Marshall

"The Visit" by Frederick Duerrenmatt will be presented by the University Theatre of UNCW Friday through Sunday, October 3-5, in Kenan Auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

In 1958, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne selected Frederick Duerrenmatt's play "The Visit" as the vehicle for their twenty-eight joint and final appearance. Frank Aston of The New York World Telegram and Sun wrote of the performance, "Absolutely magnificent... a theatrical blend of brute force and exquisite grace."

The story opens in the impoverished town of Gullen, somewhere in central Europe. The town is led by the Burgomaster and his wife (Frank Fioriti and Terry Casey), the Teacher (Barbara Caldwell), the Pastor (Karl Heidemann), the Doctor (Lewis Bosworth) and the Police Chief (Darrell Killingsworth).

The townspeople are preparing for the arrival of a notorious, wealthy woman who lived there long ago. Their hopes are high. Perhaps she will take pity of the shabby, ruined community and help restore it to prosperity.

They call upon their most popular townsman, the grocer Anton Schill, to approach the millionaire with their dire plight. He was the only one who had known her well - but no one realized how damning his relationship would turn out to be to everyone in Gullen.

Robert Wilson portrays Anton Schill while Joy Talmadge portrays his wife; Sarah Rudolph and Tommy Gust, his daughter and son, respectively.

Madame Claire Zachanassian, played by Thea Hagepanos, arrives with an abundance of luggage and retinue consisting of a butler (Thomas Schaffernoth), two blind musicians (Lee Jewell and Paul Weaver), two strong-armed bodyguards (Peter Storm and David Pope), and her eighth husband-to-be (Thomas Morrison) and a caged panther.

Rounding out the cast as townspeople are Dean Knight, Kenneth Scott, George Ward, David Nelson, Sheila Burhart, with Derek Kirk and Michael Talmadge as the children.

"The Visit" has been adapted for the stage by Maurice Valency. According to Director Doug Swink, this play is a "bold, absorbing drama that smashed to a ruthless climax with overpowering dramatic impact."

Aileen le Blanc is the technical coordinator for the production. Don Pickett is executing the scenic design and Karl Heidemann the sound design. Sheila Burhart and Lisa Bosworth are the stage manager and assistant stage manager, respectively.

Scott Kritzer, the top guitarist of California, who is a student in Michael Lorimer's master class here, is composing and arranging special music for the production. He will also be performing during the nights of production.

Rehearsal for "The Visit"

Tickets may be reserved by calling 791-4330, ext. 2440 or they may be purchased at the door. Box Office will open at 7:30 nightly with performances beginning at 8 p.m. The cost is $1 for non-students; UNCW students will be admitted free with presentation of ID cards.

Workers wanted immediately! Work at home - no experience necessary - excellent pay.
Home National Service
9041 Mansfield
Suite 2004
Shreveport, Louisiana 71118

The pigs are coming!

A&G OUTLET

Glen Mead Plaza

Hey, Want to play Doctor?

Scrub Shirts & Pants

white, green, blue

shirts
$8.95

pants
$9.95

New Arrivals:

Embroidered sweaters, Corduroy skirts,

Wool skirts in plaids and solids,

Embroidered & solid turtlenecks

Popular oxford cloth button downs
for girls & boys

Corduroy & chamois cloth shirtwaist dresses.

The University Program BoardConcert Committee

How do you make the best Beach Music Show of the summer better?
Move it outside

PresentsIn Association with*WHSL And WMFD Radio*First Annual*UNCW*Beach Music Festival

In case of rain, the show will be moved inside to Trask
Coliseum

Featuring

The Tams The Embers
Bill Pinkney and The Original Drifters

AndThe Chairmen of the Board*Sunday Oct. 12th 3 p.m.

Reduced Student admission
Only $6.75 [limit 2 with ID]
available only at Steve Gnadt's
office Student Services Room 101
All seats $8.75 at the door

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Fine Arts Committee meeting October 7 in Kenan Auditorium

The Fine Arts Committee, a committee of the University Program Board, announces their meeting on October 7th at 7 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium before the movie, "M*A*S*H". The Fine Arts Committee invites you to come and meet new people, learn all about scheduling and ordering

Video Club meets

The Instant Replay Video Club meets on Thursday at 4 p.m. in Kenan 109. All interested students are invited to attend.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Freshman Honor Society
Announces Its Annual Initiation Of Members
October 4, 1980

Induction of New Members
5 P.M. Randall Library

Banquet Honoring
New Members
6 P.M. Balentines Restaurant

movies, how to use a movie projector, participate in selecting and setting up for live performances, and gain the opportunity to meet some of our talented performers.

So far this semester, the Fine Arts Committee has proudly presented the concert movie, "The Kids Are Alright," The N.C. Symphony, and Miss Laura Mae McLean in concert. Come join the fun, excitement and learning experience of the Fine Arts Committee!

BOOKS

Due to rain the English Club booksale will be held Thursday, October 2, beside the cafeteria. Beginning at 10 a.m., books will sell for $.50-.1.00.

Pick up a cheerleader

Needed gymnastically inclined males to aid cheerleaders. No cheering required. Come by Trask Gym between 4 and 6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

Atlantis deadline

Deadline for general submissions for the ATLANTIS is Friday, October 3. The ATLANTIS is now accepting short stories, essays, and poetry for consideration for its fall issue. All submissions should be in the office of the English Department no later than 4:00 p.m., Friday October 3.

Group focuses on separation, divorce

A group designed to help students who are in school or returning to school following a separation or divorce. The group will focus on the process of emotional separation and explore problem-solving strategies for daily stress, establishing new relationships, and coping with academic demands. Interested students should call extension 2280 or come by the Counseling and Testing Center to discuss their participation.

Historical Society to present film

The UNCW Historical Society will present a film entitled "Trial at Nuremberg" on Oct. 7 at 7:30 in room 100 of the New Classroom Building. According to Lynne Wells, president of the Historical Society, there will be a meeting of the Historical Society after the film for an election of committee personnel. There will be no admission charged for the film.

LOST

Off-white wallet w/oriental designs
Men's gold ring w/black sapphire stone
TI-30 calculator
Timex watch

FOUND

Keys
Bank card

Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

Volunteer

Tutors needed in reading and math at eight different locations for all grades; held four nights a week - you pick your day. Call 763-5431.

Tutor Workshop - Thursday, October 2, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. - designed to give tutors practical information about helping school children with reading and math - Contact Burton or Hayes, Education Department.

Volunteers are needed at the Community Boy's Club to: 1) assist boys in music; 2) teach drums to boys ages 9 and up; 3) receptionist; 4) arts and crafts instructors.

FOR MORE DETAILS ABOUT THESE AND OTHER VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES, CONTACT LINDA MOORE, STUDENT UNION/ACTIVITIES, PUB ROOM 104.

LOST

ONE Gold Hoop Earring with Engraved Etching on side very important. Call 392-7767.

Bowling Club meets

The UNCW Bowling Club will be meeting every Thursday at 8:45 at Cardinal Lanes Superbowl. Everyone interested in enjoying an afternoon bowling is invited to come out. It's Free!! For more information and directions, call Tom at 791-8698 after 6.

Sophomore class

There will be a Sophomore class meeting Wednesday, October 8 at 7:00 in the Pub. It is important that they attend.

Psychology Club

raffling Keg

The Psychology Club is raffling off a PONY KEG! Tickets are 50 cents and can be bought in the Psychology Department or from a club member. Deadline for buying tickets is October 17th. The raffle will be held October 20th.

WHSL, WWQQ to present Rodeo '80

WHSL and WWQQ will present Rodeo '80, the first annual Cape Fear Rodeo, October 18 and 19 in Memorial Park (Shipyard Boulevard opposite WECT). Adult tickets are $4.00 and children's tickets are $2.00. Tickets will go on sale October 1. "An SRA sanctioned event."

The Patio

4714 College Drive
791-4442

Wednesday - College Night
Men 8-9 Ladies 9-12

Friday - "TRUNK"-Rock-n-Roll
Original Irish Folk Tunes.

Saturday - "TRUNK"

Sunday - Mens Pool Tournament 7p.m.
Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

Tuesday- Backgammon
Tournament 7:30 p.m.

Epicurean Corner
Coming Oct. 3rd to the Port City and Chandler's Wharf
from ports abroad is the Epicure's collection -- the finest teas from China,
coffee from Guatemala jams and jelly from Germany. These and other delicacies found at the Epicurean Corner.

Warehouse D-
Chandler's Wharf

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1 Might
6 Whisker
10 Kiss
14 Vibrant
15 Forearm bone
16 Pier
17 Antler points
18 N.Y. island
20 Peppery
21 Egyptian deity
23 Rural crossing
24 Finished
26 Fisherman
28 Lurch
30 Glow
31 Hordes
32 Famed barrier 2 words
36 Chem. suffix
37 Poem
38 Little — 39 Get even 42 Fast auto
44 Raises
45 Wages
46 Spotted horse

49 Clan/emblem
50 Those against 51 Copper
52 Large bird
55 Solon
58 Dormouse
60 Guzzle
61 Farm worker
62 Uneven
63 Jar
64 Views
65 Hollows
DOWN
1 Lane
2 Mishmash
3 Anderson play
4 Day before
5 Lives
6 Dank
7 Woe word
8 Tavern
9 Cheer
10 Scrapper
11 Before
12 Trite
13 More lucid
19 In harmony

2 words

22 Asian coin
25 Mesh
26 Pronoun
27 Split
28 Brook trout
29 Excellent
30 Kinds
32 Learned
33 Bocaccio work
34 Declare
35 Ms. Moore
37 Ampoule
40 Mediator
41 Rent
42 Discomposed
43 Malt drink
45 Relative
46 Adhesive
47 Being hauled
2 words
48 Storehouse
49 Nurses
51 Thrash
53 Greatest 54 Utah natives
56 Pronoun
57 Spring month
59 Sooner

Recruiting Visits

U.S. Dept. of Agriculture
Ms. Bettie Tipton
Thurs., Oct. 2
Pos: Plant Protection and Quarantine Officers
Majors: Biology

Rose's Stores, Inc.
Mr. D.E. Crawford
Mr. Ken S. Neumann
Thurs., Oct. 16
Pos: Management Trainee
Majors: Any

Steerhouse, Incorporated
Ms. Kathy Norris
Fri., Oct. 17
Pos: Management Trainees
Majors: Any

United States Navy
LCDR Spratt
Wed., Oct. 29
Pos: Various
Majors: All

K-Mart Apparel Corporation
Davis Green
Thurs., Oct. 30
Pos: Management Trainee
Majors: Business Administration

NCR Corporation
Ms. Cathi Hewlett
Tues., Oct. 21
Pos: Marketing Representative, Systems Engineer
Majors: Accounting, Business Administration, Computer Science, Math, Physics, Statistics
(must have a 2.8 GPA)

Internal Revenue Service
Ms. June M. Johnson
Mr. Richard Caldwell
Wed., Oct. 22
Pos: Revenue Agent
Majors: Accounting, Business
Administration

Financial Aid Office reminds students to get checks

Mr. Joe Capell at the UNCW Financial Aid Office would like to remind all students who are receiving aid and have not picked up their check(s) should do so immediately.

According to Mr. Capell, most of the checks not yet picked up are ones which don't involve refunds to the students.

Checks must be picked up by the student in the Financial Aid Office, says Mr. Capell, and taken upstairs to the cashier before any credit is placed to the student's account.

"WHEN YOU SHOOT
A LOTTA POOL IN BARS,
THE ONLY THING YOU WANT
FILLED UP ARE THE POCKETS."

Steve Mizerek
Famous Pool Player

LITE BEER FROM MILLER.
EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER. AND LESS.

A CUT ABOVE

HAIRSTYLING
MENS & WOMENS
PERMS & COLOR

MON - SAT
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
9 AM - 6 PM
• ED CARTER
• MICHAEL CLAY
• TRIPP BRICE
• CHERI SMITH

REDKEN MAHDEEN

343-1580

COTTON EXCHANGE

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 7

October 8, 1980

Coach Don Corry resigns

As a result of Coach Don Corry's resignation from the Club Football Team, SGA President Jessie Sanders held a news conference Monday, October 6 explaining why the club was suspended.

Sanders stated that the SGA decided to discontinue the football club because of the resignation of Corry and the hospitalization of John Shaver, Assistant Coach.

Last week, a Senate committee investigated the football club. Steve Schmidt, a member of that committee, provided these reasons for the club's suspension: lack of discipline, no unity, the resignation of the coach, training habits (such as liability insurance and only practicing once or twice a week), the club team carries the university's name and rumors starting up from last year.

Present at the conference were Sanders, Corry, Vice-Chancellor Malloy, SGA Vice-President Charles Parsons, football players, representatives from various campus media and a local television station.

According to Sanders, the SGA will back a spring club football program, as long as the team has a coach. Sanders also stated that the SGA will create an athletic board which will allow the coach authority over the players, so that he can exercise such powers as dismissing any players for valid reasons.

Sanders then answered questions from the floor. When the football players persisted in asking questions, Malloy intervened and said "I wouldn't get into debate."

The news conference ended with Corry reiterating his reasons for resigning to representatives of the television station.

Scott Jones will be performing October 19 in the Pub. See page 11.

Inside

Letters to the Editor.....	p. 2
Prime Time.....	p. 3
Sports.....	p. 8
Record Review.....	p. 5

There will not be a SEAHawk next week due to fall break. Publication will resume the following week as usual.

Police Chief Winston Norman

Norman assumes position as police chief

by Janet Hundley

"I was only parked there for two minutes," is the most common of many excuses received for parking violations commented Police Chief Winston Churchill Norman.

Chief Norman, while visiting friends in Raleigh, saw and answered an advertisement from the Raleigh newspaper. The ad was placed there by UNCW requesting applicants for a police chief. Norman had never visited Wilmington, but the position sounded promising.

After an interview Norman accepted the position and moved to Wilmington. He moved in his new home September 4 and began work at UNCW on September 8.

Norman is presently evaluating the security system here at UNCW. "I'm not the type person to come in and make a lot of unnecessary changes."

At present he is working on a manual of guidelines outlining specific duties for the police officers.

Right now there are eleven officers on the force including himself. These officers, as well as any newcomers, are required to be certified by the State of North Carolina before working at UNCW.

The officers complete a program that includes 240 hours. Sixteen students are also employed at the station. The students patrol the dorm areas and are used during special events.

They receive a manual of guidelines and are indoctrinated for the program. "Any sincere applicants are welcome," commented Chief Norman. Norman added that any input from the student body is welcome.

Parking in general has been complained about frequently. One of the most common complaints is directed to police about the price of stickers ($35.00). Norman pointed out that the administration decides on the price of stickers, not the police.

The money from the tickets is paid in the security office and becomes part of the security budget.

Parking violations on the other hand are a part of everyday police work. On an average per week over 1000 tickets are distributed to students as well as faculty.

The police officers are also required to buy stickers for their personal cars and can receive tickets for violations. For students, "If it's not between two white lines, it's a parking violation." The faculty members must park between two yellow lines.

Police cars are also required to follow these guidelines. September 23 Chief Norman issued a memo reminding the officers of this fact. "From this point on, when caught, they will be charged accordingly."

Chief Norman added that everyone's help is welcome to improve the station. He is impressed with the students he has met and plans to meet more students. "We have nothing to hide. We provide a service and like to advertise our presence."

LETTERS

To the Editor:

During the 1979-80 school year, the SGA experienced a problem concerning SGA clubs/organizations bringing paperwork to the office and needing it in a rush.

Now it is the 1980-81 school year and this problem has resurfaced. Rather than see it continue, I feel compelled to "nip it in the bud."

The new Student Government policy for running paperwork through the financial system will be the following:

1. All paperwork MUST and WILL be turned in FIVE days in advance of the needed date.
2. Any paperwork turned in less than five days of the needed date WILL be run through but at the pace that it would normally be run in.
3. Paper work turned in within 36 hour period of the needed date WILL NOT be processed. These regulations are being imposed for two reasons:

A. The SGA Office Manager is being bogged down by club paperwork that is turned in for "rush orders."

B. To relieve some of the pressures on your club/organization and force you to do some long range planning.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me at the SGA office. Thank you for your time and cooperation.

Sincerely,
Jessie A. Sanders
SGA President

Letters to the Editor should be signed, typewritten and no more than 150 words. They should also be in good taste and free of slander and obscenity.

Deadlines for all copy - articles, letters to the editor, announcements, etc., has been changed to Thursdays before publication instead of Fridays as previously announced.

Opinions printed in any column in The SEAHAWK should not be considered opinions of the Editorial Board unless otherwise stated.

The Seahawk announces the following positions open for the 1980-81 school year. Compensation in the form of scholarships and/or minimum wage are available for some positions.

Features Editor
News Editor
Typesetters
Cartoonists
Staffwriters
Production Positions

Applications should be submitted to Linda Moore, Student Activities, or to the Seahawk Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sportswriters: Jim Davis, Keith Lankford

Production: Freda Pyron, Wendy Robbins

Photography: Chip Hackler

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Bryant

Typesetters: Chryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

'Under the weather' means being oppressed by hot summer

"Scooby, Scooby Doo, where are you?" Saturday, September 27. I awoke to familiar Saturday noises—laughter, milk jugs falling, reclining chair banging back against the wall. But something was different, something was missing. There was a feeling in the air not of impending disaster but of something akin to it. No. No. I realized as I gulped in great chunks of cool, fall morning air. It wasn't impending disaster I felt but passing disaster. During the night I had, unawares, passed through the crisis. Miraculously, I was no longer "under the weather."

Until this summer, the summer I will always remember as "The Summer of the Heavy Heat," I never really realized the truth of that phrase: "under the weather." I'd always considered it a genteel phrase for all the ungentle semi-illnesses of womanhood. Not so. Being "under the weather" means exactly that. Being oppressed, pushed down, shoveled under, covered over with hot, wet, tons-heavy weather. It's the god-awful truth of "not just the heat—but the humidity."

Of course I didn't just go "under the weather" in one quick plunge. No. It crept over me, inching over as June slid into July, not completely immersing me until the middle of August. And it never completely debilitated me, merely made me sick and very tired of being sick and tired.

But "under the weather" isn't just a physical disorder. I could have coped with mere physical anguish. It was the emotional effects that nearly did me in. My temper, never firmly leashed anyway, galloped away in screaming, cussing, plate-throwing freedom. I didn't just get angry at my son, the world, and myself. I became mad, mad, I tell you, stark, raving mad!

My son began to flinch every time I spoke to him. The cats ran for cover every time I opened the door, slithering from bushes and tiptoeing from trees, to eat their Cat Chow in stealthy, nervous, choking gulps when I was out of sight. My mother began plastering timid smiles on her face whenever I invaded her living room while my dad avoided my eyes every time I mentioned that the heat was killing me. He avoided my eyes but did not fix my air conditioner.

Yes. It was a heavy summer. But it's over now. The air is wet from rain, not humidity. My house is warm from bread baking and soup simmering, not evil sunshine. Sure, I've got a cold, and I can't smell the autumn leaves for the eau de Vicks. That's O.K. My temps 101 and my pulse is thready but I feel fine. I'm not "Under the weather" anymore. Addendum: Where do all the straight pins go?

Dr. Grace Burton discusses women, mathematics at campus NOW meeting

by Dianne Russ

"At the tender age of fifteen or so a young woman faces a curious superstition, and because of it a dilemma: should she choose to settle into the role society has traditionally expected of her, or should she strike out and develop a life plan on the basis of her individual gifts?"

So said Dr. Grace Burton (Education) recently at a meeting of the campus National Organization for Women.

"The superstition is that women cannot or should not do math," she said.

Burton's discussion on women and mathematics was adapted from her article now up for publication, "The Female Dilemma—Pie or Pi?"

At the meeting Burton cited negative social attitudes throughout history towards the female intellect, from Aristotle's premise that "a female is a misbegotten male" to the 1971 author Theo Lang who states in his book, "Menstruation must have a retarding effect on a women's physical and mental development."

Burton discussed math as a vital area of study for women and pointed out societal factors which continue to discourage women from pursuing math.

"Society accepts female incompetence in math," she said. "Girls and young women are often counselled out of mathematics in school, or stay away from upper level math because of the exclusively male enrollment."

After her talk Burton conducted a sex-role socialization exercise with the group. Participants drew pictures in response to questions such as, How were you treated differently in school because of your sex? A group discussion followed.

At the close of the meeting Harry Payne, a pro-ERA candidate for the North Carolina House, spoke briefly to the group and answered questions.

Sporre appoints students to Advisory Council

Dennis J. Sporre, Chairman of the Department of Creative Arts announced that the following students have been appointed to his Student Advisory Council: Donna Moore, Art; Sheila Burhart, Drama; Robbie Anderson, Music; and Amy Lock, Speech Communication.

The council, which is designed to allow majors in the department a direct contact to the department chairman, will meet on a regular basis to discuss general issues pertinent to the Department of Creative Arts. "Students should feel free to contact any of these representatives on any matters which apply to the department," said Professor Sporre, "although I want to make it clear that at no time will the council discuss individuals—students or professors. There are other forums for that."

Welcome UNC-W
Seahawks!

Haircuts $5.00
With student ID
reg. $7.00

Offer good through
November 1

No appointment
Necessary

PHONE: (919) 256-4591
WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH AREA
PLAZA EAST SHOPPING CENTER
THE UNISEX SHOP OF WILMINGTON

The Patio

4714 College Drive
791-4442

Wednesday - College Night
Ladies 9-12

Friday - "New Knot Hole Revue"
Country With A Kick

Saturday - "New Knot Hole Revue"

Sunday Ladies Pool Tournament 7p.m.
Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

Tuesday - Backgammon

Tournament 7:30 p.m.

Student Government accomplishes several of its projected goals

I hope that everyone is now firmly settled into classes and doing well. The Student Government Association has been busy for the past month and we have accomplished several of our goals.

One goal, which has been an objective of two administrations, is near completion. This is the procedures manual. The procedures manual is a booklet that will inform the clubs/organizations the following:

A. How to become a recognized club/organization on campus. B. Procedure to be followed for budgeting. C. Position descriptions of all SGA officers. D. Listing of all 1980-81 Senators and Officers. E. Finance Committee Operating Rules. F. Procedures on how to fill out SGA/State forms to receive money that is allocated to the clubs.

As you can see this will be a major accomplishment and will help the clubs/organizations immensely.

Another objective of my administration that is nearing completion is the Student Bill of Rights. I feel that this is an item that is needed for the SGA constitution. The Bill of Rights is not a radical document but a list of rights that are guaranteed by the University to the students though most of these rights are guaranteed in the University's code book, it is not in a form that students will find readable. Therefore, we feel that it is essential for students to know what basic rights they have on campus.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dr. Malloy, Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs. He has been an integral part of the Student Government Association and deserves our sincere appreciation. Also, I would like to encourage not only the SGA representatives but all students to make an appointment with the new Dean of Students, Gary Juhan. Dean Juhan is currently working very closely with the Student Government Association as our advisor. If you have any problems or even if you don't, drop by and say hello to the new Dean.

One of the keys to the success of this administration is the hard work of members of the legislature. Without these individuals, Student Government would not be able to function. But these people are not enough. Student Government is just what the name implies, students working to make a better campus life for students. Without participation by students, none of the objectives set by this administration can be achieved.

Therefore, I would like to encourage all students to come by this office and let us know what your problems are. Help us to help you! The SGA is located on the second floor of the Pub and our telephone numbers are 791-4330 ext. 2553 or 2554. Someone is in the office from 8 am to 5 pm Monday through Friday. If you cannot make it to the office or call us, please stop me on campus and let me know what problems you have.

You, the students, are important to the UNCW SGA. Thank you. Jessie Sanders, President! SGA

SGA President Jessie Sanders expresses concern over Don Corry's resignation

At the October 2 meeting of the Student Government Association, President Jessie Sanders expressed great concern over the resignation of Club Football Coach Don Corry.

In his president's report to the senate, Sanders described the situation as a "terrible setback for the Football Club, UNCW and the SGA." Sanders went on to "openly condemn any possible wrong doings" that may have led to Corry's resignation.

Coach Corry's resignation became effective September 27 and a committee was appointed by Vice-President Charles Parsons to determine the nature of his resignation.

In other business, the senate approved the vice-president's appointment to the Student Supreme Court. There was some controversy concerning the appointment of David van Vliet to the Court. Some senators objected stating that a female should have been appointed to the position.

The Media and Publications Board is now a part of the SGA as the result of a motion that passed by consent in the senate. The Media and Publications Board has been operating as a separate organization representing the different campus media.

Karen Durda, station manager of WLOZ gave a progress report to the senate explaining the expenditure of funds since she became manager. The new developments at the station met with the approval of the senate.

The meeting adjourned at 8:45. The next meeting will be held October 9 in C-117. All interested students should attend.

Williams joins Communications Department

The new faculty member in the Communication Department that looks like a golf pro is none other than Professor John Williams.

John Williams is a graduate of Mansfield College, Penn. and also of Bowling Green University, Ohio with a Master of Art in Rhetoric Criticism. Much of Williams' work was in film, with his final thesis on film.

While in school Williams found many outlets for his speech ability. He was president of Pi Kappa Delta, an honor forensics fraternity, and also on the forensics team winning approximately 75 awards in different speaking events at Mansfield College.

Williams was coach of the forensics team at BGU. He is also one of the forensics coaches here.

Williams sees himself as a performance oriented person. While in school he performed as an impressionist in night clubs, bars and did college shows. He also wrote radio and television commercials for the public media.

Williams has taught in public schools as a full time and substitute teacher both in Ohio and California. While at BGU he taught as an assistant professor but this is his first real teaching position at a university.

"Teachers should be sensitive to their audience which is the students," said Williams. Williams sees teaching like a performance, the actor must meet the needs of his audience by keeping their attention, where the professor must meet the students' needs educationally. He feels teachers should be sensitive to his students, understand if he has the audiences' attention and know if they understand what he is saying.

When away from school Williams enjoys playing golf. Williams said "Golf acts as a mental exercise. It helps build one's patience." He is an associate of the United States Golf Association.

WLOZ announces the following positions are open. Applications should be presented to the Station Manager.

Assistant Business Manager
Assistant Personnel Director Program Manager
Assistant Program Manager

All interested parties are invited to apply.

WHS 97FM 101WWQQ
present

1st Annual Cape Fear Rodeo

RODEO '80

S.R.A. Sanctioned Championship

McLamb Rodeo Company

October 18th & 19th
Memorial Park, Wilmington, N.C.

Grand Entry
Bareback Riding
Barrel Racing
Calf Roping
Saddle Bronc Riding
Goat Tying
Steer Wrestling
Bull Riding

Adults $4.00
Children (under 12) $2.00
Rain Dates: Oct. 25 & 26

Saturday - 2:30p.m.
Sunday - 2:30p.m.

TICKET OUTLETS
Four Winds
Record Bar
Pony Express
Western Steer
Flip's Barbeque
Scott's Hill Saddle Shop

In Whiteville & Southport
J.S. Mann's
In Jacksonville
Record Bar
In Myrtle Beach
Sounds Familiar
In Wallace
The Hitching Post

NO ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES ALLOWED

Musicianship on 'Drama' good as any previous Yes album

by David Carter

When Jon Anderson and Rick Wakeman were booted out of YES this summer past, the ancients predicted doom for one of the premier rock bands in the world. These fears were not groundless, as Jon Anderson had been the heart and voice of YES since 1969, and indeed, YES had become his baby. Anderson, along with guitarist Steve Howe, had often pointed the band in the direction they deemed necessary, not always with spectacular results. Lyrically Anderson had been decaying for some time, but this factor did not solely earn him his walking papers. His preoccupation with the Greek keyboardist Vangelis and increased vacation time from his own band, which wanted to work, hastened his departure. Wakeman, on the other hand, was on his second tour of duty with YES, and the split here was no doubt amicable as he had for years expressed interest in solo projects.

These changes left bassist Chris Squire, the only original member of YES, guitarist Steve Howe, and drummer Alan White. Replacing Wakeman could obviously be done, but replacing Anderson was another cup of tea altogether. YES could neither afford to radically alter their sound and nor could they be expected to produce an Anderson clone. What happened was this: YES recruited a pair of replacements from a relatively obscure British band named Bugles, whose chief claim to fame was a song entitled "Video Killed the Radio Star." Geoff Downes was to inherit Wakeman's spot, and Trevor Horn was Anderson's replacement. The line-up was set. All that remained was for the music to be made.

Ah yes, the music. Appropriately entitled DRAMA, the new YES album makes their last LP, TORMATO look like a bad dream with an effort that is musically their consistently strongest work since CLOSE TO THE EDGE. The most delicate aspect of all this is the transition away from Jon Anderson to a fresher face. Trevor Horn sounds like a younger Jon Anderson, with strong European phrasing, molding his vocals. Horn's voice is stronger than his much more straight organ than either Wakeman or Moraz. His style more closely resembles that of Tony Kaye, whose best work was undoubtedly featured on THE YES ALBUM, and we all know predecessors, as there's not a trace of the raspiness that came to mark Anderson's vocals in the last few years.

As for Geoff Downes, his treatment of the keyboards is a refreshing break from the Wakeman/Moraz style of the last eight years. Downes plays what a gem that was. The new blood passes the test but what of the nucleus of the band? Although this will no doubt fuel the fire of many a debate, Steve Howe plays the best guitar of his career on DRAMA. Unlike most of the YES albums he's played on, Howe does not attempt to cram ten thousand licks into ten seconds. Here, Howe proves to be more tasteful, weaving in and out of songs, understating himself, instead of trying to showcase his considerable talents.

Then there's Chris Squire. Now maybe it's because Eddie Offord is once again involved in the production, or maybe it's because Squire himself didn't wish to be shoved in a corner as has been known to happen, but Squire sounds incredibly good on this album. With the possible exception of Jack Casady, Chris Squire is the best bassist in rock, and when someone is as good as this, he should not be lost in

See YES, p. 12

Sooner or later everyone faces a Friday night alone

I have this theory, see, and it goes like this: sooner or later, unless you're unlucky enough to die young, you are going to face a Friday night alone. Don't panic; it happens to the best of us. Your roomie's gone home for the weekend, no dates hover on the horizon, and for once you're unaware of any parties anywhere. Calm down! Sure, lonely Friday nights can be the total pits. The scenario seldom changes: you walk around hugging your elbows, and you start thinking about old boyfriends/girlfriends. you whimper and sniffle a little, getting ready for the big deluge. You fling wide the refrigerator and either a) feel sorry for yourself because it is empty and nobody cares whether you eat or starve, or b) you fall upon the Sara Lee like a starving wolf and then try and compute how many calories you've just inhaled. Of course, there's always the tube (cold comfort, I know). Watching J.R. do his weekly nasties might make you feel a little better, or it may make you realize, hey, there's a J.R. in YOUR life. Here come those sniffles again. Go ahead; bawl, sob, even drool a little if it'll help your head. That's what solo Friday nights were designed for...you wallow in self-pity until you feel like a pig, nostril deep in pig-pen stuff. And speaking of pigs, how much of that Sara Lee is left? Hmmm, maybe solitary nights were made for running or bike-riding. So you go to the closet and your Adidas are stone-cold dead, past resurrection or resoling. And the bike, yes the bike has a flat, flatter than the flattest flat you've ever seen. Well, hitting the wall and screaming at the top of your lungs burns a lot of calories,

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

too. Try it! Eventually you make your miserable way to the stereo and put on something like Jackson Browne or Joni Mitchell and just sit and sob softly. Surely nobody else in the world is this lonesome and depressed, and if they are you don't want to know because you are having a fine time being blue, all by yourself. If you are lucky, you'll pass out about 2 am and wake up on Saturday morning, starving and ready for a new day. The sun is shining, the birds are tweeting off-key, and life is good. But the best thing is, you've made it through a Friday night alone, with your sanity and everything else intact. Now you KNOW you can handle anything college throws at you!

Hair etc.

COLLEGE SQUARE SHOPPING CENTER

PHONE 799-3660

HOURS 9-5

EVENINGS BY APPOINTMENT

$1.00 OFF WITH STUDENT I.D.

KAREN BURDEAUX
SHARON GREEN
SHERRY MONDS

Kwik-Kopy

PRINTING

We print more than just copies

College Square Shopping Center
Printing While You Watch
6 cent COPIES

332-2676

Plenty of Parking

Wrightsville Beach's

APPLE ANNIE'S

Mon.-Fri.
5:00-11:30pm

Sat.-Sun.
11:30am-11:30pm

How do you make the best Beach Music Show of the and THE GEORGIA

Tams

THE GEORGIA PROPHETS

Tickets: $7.75 advance
$8.75 gate

TICKET LOCATIONS:

Reduced Student admission
Only $6.75 [limit 2 with ID]
available only at Steve Gnad's
office, Student Services Room 101

CONCERT MOVED TO UNCW FOOTBALL FIELD

In case of rain, the show will be moved inside
Trask Coliseum - Sunday, October 12 at 3pm

The Best Beach Show of 1980
Sponsored By: UNC-W, U.P.B. Concert Committee

he summer better?

Move it outside

PROPHETS

WHSI 97FM 63MFD

1ST ANNUAL UNCW BEACH MUSIC FESTIVAL

"only at the Beach!"

Embers
Chairmen of the Board

Bill Pinkney and The Original Drifters

UNCW

SPORTS

Al Brantley and Paul Lupica race for the finish.

Cross Country runs to victory

by Keith Lankford

The UNCW men's Cross Country team avenged their September 13 loss to UNC-Charlotte by defeating them Saturday October 4. They also won over Old Dominion by forfeiture.

By getting the least amount of points, the Seahawks won by a score of 18-39.

Seahawk Al Brantley won the race, followed by Paul Lupica, Robbie Burke and Julian Keith.

UNC-Charlotte's top two runners took a wrong turn at the four and a half mile mark disqualifying them from the race.

The next Seahawks across the finish line were Arnold Houston, Keith Lankford and George Walker.

The men's and women's

UNCW Cross Country team was scheduled to run against Old Dominion Saturday October 4 but won by forfeiture improving the women's record to two wins and no losses and the men's record, after defeating UNC-Charlotte to three wins and two losses.

Instead the Lady Seahawks ran in the mini-marathon sponsored by the YMCA and WEST-TV as a time trial. They all performed well, with Seahawk Sophomore Dawn Goley winning the overall women's 5,000 meter race with a time of 21:12.

The UNCW men's and women's Cross Country team will travel to Williamsburg, Virginia to meet William and Mary College and the Washington Running Club Saturday October 11.

Women's volleyball plays two matches

by Keith Lankford

UNCW's women's volleyball team brought their record to four wins and eight losses in matches played September 30 and October 3.

The Lady Seahawks lost two tough matches Tuesday, September 30 to Pembroke State University and Elon College with both matches going to three games each.

The Seahawks took the first game against Pembroke by a score of 15 to 9, but could not hold on as Pembroke fought back to take the next two games 7-15 and 11-15.

UNCW also took the first game against Elon with ease out-scoring them 15-1. Elon took the second game 4-15 and edged out the Seahawks in a close third game 10-15.

On Friday October 3, the Seahawks defeated Gardner-Webb College, but lost to Western Carolina.

Needing only two games the Lady 'Hawks downed Gardner-Webb 15-4, 15-3.

Western Carolina handed UNCW a loss in two games. The first game was close with Western Carolina winning 11-15. Western went on to win the second game easily, 7-15.

The Seahawks' next matches will be Wednesday October 8, against St. Augustine and Atlantic Christian at St. Augustine and on Tuesday October 14 the three teams will meet on UNCW's court at 6:30 p.m.

Seahawks score a second period goal against Guilford.

Seahawks destroy Guilford

By Tim Davis

The Seahawks took an early lead against the Guilford College Quakers Thursday October 2, and dominated the field to win 4-0.

Doug Allman and Doug Powell each scored a goal in the first fifteen minutes of the game, followed by two goals in the second half scored by the leading Seahawk scorer Dennis Davis.

Coach Calvin Lane utilized the entire bench on Thursday's game. "I was very pleased with our play," Lane said. "This is the first time we really jumped on top early and taken the game from a team."

"Doug Powell and Jim Scowinski controlled things for us, and we continued to get contributions from our young players, particularly Mike Lawrence, who has done a tremendous job for us as a freshman," said Lane.

Lawrence assisted on both second half goals.

Now ranked ninth in the state the Seahawks will travel to Wesleyan for a make-up game on Monday October 6. Also, on Thursday October 9 there will be an away game at Campbell College.

UNCW takes honors in first competition

On Saturday October 4, the first NSSA Intercollegiate Surf Contest was held. In four to five foot surf, UNCW was represented by two 12 man teams - an A team and a B team. Other teams competing were Eastern Carolina University, Carteret Technical Institute, The University of South Carolina and Coastal Carolina at Myrtle Beach.

UNCW's B team made a good showing but couldn't compete with the A team which took eight firsts in a row out of 12 first round heats.

In hot contention of UNCW's A team was the University of South Carolina's Myrtle Beach boys who carry two surfers on the NSSA National Team.

In the final standings the University of South Carolina took first and second and UNCW's Mark Venters took third place and UNCW's Mike Fitzpatrick took fourth place with USC capturing the fifth place position.

With two UNCW team members finishing in the top five it was announced that the UNCW A team had won team honors by a wide margin, having gained enough points before the finals so that USC had no chance of regaining the lead.

The trophy was awarded to the UNCW A team and will be on display either in the Pub or the old gym.

The next contest will be held in Myrtle Beach on November 11 and 12.

Baseball team plays exhibition game

The UNCW men's baseball team lost to coastal Carolina Monday October 6 by a score of 11-9 in an exhibition game.

At the bottom of the second inning the score was 11-0 in favor of Coastal Carolina.

The Seahawks came back and brought the score to 11-9. This was only an exhibition game and there will not be another baseball game until the regular spring season starts.

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL- ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $1.19 EACH.

Here's a real special treat for you and your friends or family. You can get all the delicious Chick-fil-A sandwiches—the original boneless breast of chicken sandwich—for only $1.19 each with the coupon below. That's a deal that's hard to beat on the sandwich that's fun to eat.

SAVE

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH
SPECIAL COUPON—$1.19 each

SAVE

Just fill in the number of sandwiches you want, we'll do the rest. One coupon per person per visit. Offer expires:

Chick-fil-A Closed Sundays.

SAVE

THE TASTE WORTH SHOPPING FOR.

CHICK-FIL-A of Independence Mall, Wilmington, N.C.

OPEN UNTIL 10:00 PM

SAVE

Pumpkin Creek Stables

Since 1889

Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

Total Equine Care

NO RENTING

675-0731

COLLEGE STUDENTS

Improve your grades!

Send $1.00 for your 306-page, research paper catalog. All academic subjects.

Collegiate Research
P.O. Box 25097H
Los Angeles, Ca. 90025

Enclosed is $1.00.
Please rush the catalog:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____

BOP TILL YOU DROP

Strohs, WMFD, and

the Record Bar

present

The First Annual

UNCW Beach Music

Beer Bust

October 10, 1980

8-12 p.m.

in the small gym

behind Hanover Hall

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Psychology Club elects officers

The Psychology Club of UNCW is in operation again complete with new officers. Elected at the September meeting were Kathy Hornyak, president, Ella Jayson, vice-president, Marcia Avedon as secretary, and Sheila Phillips as treasurer.

Last year the Psychology Club sponsored the Test Anxiety workshops, as well as other lectures. They also sponsored fund raising events such as a yard sale and raffle as well as social events. They hope to expand this theme this year and have already started selling tickets for a raffle of a quarter-keg of beer. The raffle will be held on October 20 and the deadline for buying tickets is October 17.

Lectures are presented by the Psychology Club almost every week and everyone is invited to attend. All students, regardless of their major, are eligible to join the Club. New members are always welcome. Hope to see you there; it's a great learning experience!

UNCW Historical

Society presents film

The UNCW Historical Society and the UNCW History Department will present a film on Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in King Hall Auditorium. The film is entitled "The Making of The President: 1960." It describes the election campaign of John F. Kennedy in 1960. The film also has some scenes of the debates between Kennedy and Richard Nixon.

No admission will be charged and all students are encouraged to attend.

Atlantis prose staff meets October 10

The Atlantis prose staff will meet Friday, Oct. 10, 1:30 pm to choose prose submissions for the Fall Atlantis issue. The meeting will be held in the group study room of the smoking room in Randall Library. Staff members unable to attend the meeting should give their rating sheets to Judy Stallsmith by the meeting time.

Tryouts for 'Ladyhouse Blues' to be held

Try-outs for the University theatre production of LADYHOUSE BLUES will be held Oct. 15-17 at 7:30 p.m. in the S.R.O Theatre. Ann Fitzgibbon is directing the play which is scheduled for production Nov. 20-23 in Kenan Auditorium. Five women are needed for roles.

Kevin O'Morrison wrote

Bowling Club meets

The UNCW Bowling Club will be meeting every Thursday at 3:45 at Cardinal Lanes Superbowl. Everyone interested in enjoying an afternoon bowling is invited to come out. It's Free!! For more information and directions, call Tom at 791-8698 after 6

Volunteer Opportunities

Volunteers are needed to train mentally handicapped children in Special Olympics skills. Also there are openings for volunteers to be in charge of 4-8 children during the day of competition. Legal Services of the Lower Cape Fear is in need of receptionist and clerical aide. There are a variety of positions open for volunteers at New Hanover Memorial Hospital. For more information on these and other openings see Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities in the Pub.

LADYHOUSE BLUES a drama which focuses on five women awaiting the return of their men from WWI in Europe. The play is essentially about the social and psychological state of women and the painful solitude imposed by the hardship of war. There are hints of the country healing uncertainly toward a new and different life.

The central character is Liz, a youngish, gutsy widow faced with selling the family farm to pay debts. She lives with four daughters: one who is dying of tuberculosis, one who is

LOST

Green and yellow raincoat
Brown file w/pocket dividers
Writer's work book
Book - "Children's Literature"

FOUND

Keys
Books

Check with Chryl Kane, Room 101 in the Pub.

Christian Fellowship

Campus Christian Fellowship meets every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the Greenwood Tavern. There will not be a meeting on October 14 due to fall break. Also, the CCF will go as a group to the movie "Joni" on October 28. Those who need a ride can meet at the Greenwood Tavern at 6:30 p.m. that night.

UPB wages war against boredom

The University Program Board is launching an campaign to do battle with boredom here at UNCW. The fun begins with PIG WEEK, which is highlighted on October 15-21.

The pigs WANT YOU! UPB is a group of dedicated, warm, funny people who are devoted to making your on-campus entertainment both fun and informative. Their mascot is, of course, the pig, and UPB members are eager to promote PIGGRESSIVE PROGRAMMING!

UPB has been the force married into a society family, another who is a blooming activist, and the youngest who is on the brink of discovering sex and losing her innocence.

The play unfolds in 1919 in St. Louis, and it becomes apparent that 1919 will be a "watershed" year in America's history. The play deals with the struggles of these women who finally receive a telegram which changes their outlook on life...

"A strangely atmospheric play which has the haunting quality of Chekov," says the New York Times.

Sophomore class

There will be a Sophomore class meeting Wednesday, October 8 at 7:00 in the Pub. It is important that they attend.

Girls' rugby team needs more members

Several girls who have never played rugby before and one who has, have gotten together to form a girls' rugby team. After having the first practice last Wednesday everybody is really enthusiastic about learning the game, getting organized according to national rules, and getting some matches set up. We have the support of the Cape Fear Rugby Team; they'll be coaching us and helping us to get on our feet. Our problem now is finding the people who want to join this zany endeavor. We still need more members! If you think this is your chance in life contact Linda 392-7505 or meet Wed. at 4 p.m. outside of Hanover Hall. Remember: Rugby players eat their dead.

The crew of UPB Halfmoon Coffeehouse is excited to announce the next show, Scott Jones in concert. Scott will be performing a variety of original contemporary music on piano, acoustic guitar and Fender Rhodes synthesizer. Scott's two albums, ROADS and SIDE BY SIDE are available for airplay on WLOZ. The concert will be held in the lounge the Pub on Sunday, October 19 at 8:30 p.m. There is no admission charge and, as with all coffeehouse shows everyone is encouraged to bring a cooler. See you there!

Karate Club invites students

UNCW's Shotokan Karate Club has been actively formed since February, 1980. Shotokan Karate is a national, non-profit organization, formed in the U.S. since 1956. The Club consists of 12 boys and 1 girl. The leaders are Mark Pittman, president, and Bill Dally, who instructs, who instructs the club meetings.

Club meetings are held like classes which meet two formal times a week on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 6 in UNCW's Hanover Hall Gymnasium.

Shotokan - which translates to mean "wind through the pines" - is not only a form of self-defense but also a form of art which takes self-discipline and intense concentration.

Fees for joining the club are 15 dollars a year which is considerably less than lessons would normally be. No belt is required to join. All interested persons are encouraged to come out one night to watch and inquire.

YES, from p the mix. His playing is applauded, as he sets the tone, and undoubtedly plays a larger role in YES's chemistry than many would credit him with. The guess here is that replacing Chris Squire would prove to be more difficult than anyone else in the band. Lastly there's Alan White, who seemingly gets better on each outing. For some reason, there are still those who mumble silly things like "he's not Bill Bruford." So, who is? They're different, they're good, and White fits this band like a glove.

Of the six cuts, no one tune is really better than the others. All six are exceptional. Besides, describing a song is like trying to describe love in that one can never really say what it is, but it floats in the head, captures the soul, and one simply recognizes it when it's there. Also worthy of note is the return to a Roger Dean cover. The Dean cover is easily the nicest one to grace a YES album to date. Of interest is the fact that the songwriting credits are not singled out for special notice, but are glossed over as group compositions.

This album isn't good. It's outstanding. The musicianship is as good as can be found on any YES album. Other things, like the return of Eddie Offord, group compositions, and a Roger Dean cover, indicate that this band is interested in operating at maximum efficiency and touching on the past, while not being afraid to change if the need arises. In replacing Anderson and Wakeman, YES hasn't missed a beat, and in turn, this album should very definitely not be missed.

WORKSHOPS

Resume
Wed., Oct. 8
11:30 a.m.

RESUME
Tues., Oct. 21
2:30 p.m.

JOB INTERVIEW
Thurs., Oct. 9
1:30 p.m.

RESUME
Fri., Oct. 24
11:30 a.m.

Rose's Stores, Inc.
Mr. D.E. Crawford
Mr. Ken S. Neumann
Thurs., Oct. 16
Pos: Management Trainee
Majors: Any

Steerhouse, Incorporated
Ms. Kathy Norris
Fri., Oct. 17
Pos: Management Trainees
Majors: Any

United States Navy
LCDR Spratt
Wed., Oct. 29
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Recruiting Visits

K-Mart Apparel Corporation
Davis Green
Thurs., Oct. 30
Pos: Management Trainee
Majors: Business Administration

NCR Corporation
Ms. Cathi Hewlett
Tues., Oct. 21
Pos: Marketing Representative, Systems Engineer
Majors: Accounting, Business Administration, Computer Science, Math, Physics, Statistics (must have a 2.8 GPA)

Internal Revenue Service
Ms. June M. Johnson
Mr. Richard Caldwell
Wed., Oct. 22
Pos: Revenue Agent
Majors: Accounting, Business Administration

Record Bar

RECORDS & TAPES

SOUNDS DELICIOUS™

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL

Over 200 Selected Albums

On Sale for ONLY $3.99

The Top 15 Albums and Tapes are ALWAYS On Sale

North Carolina's 2nd Largest Record Store

4125 Oleander Drive

A CUT ABOVE

HAIRSTYLING
MENS & WOMENS
PERMS & COLOR

MON - SAT
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
9 AM - 6 PM

• ED CARTER
• MICHAEL CLAY
• TRIPP BRICE
• CHERI SMITH

REDKEN MAHDEEN

343-1580

COTTON & EXCHANGE

"WHEN YOU SHOOT
A LOTTA POOL IN BARS,
THE ONLY THING YOU WANT
FILLED UP ARE THE POCKETS!"

Steve Mizerak
Famous Pool Player

LIT FROM MILLER.
EVERY THING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER, AND LESS.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 8

October 23, 1980

Sixteen Pages

Student representatives, administrative officials disagree - Dorm '79

by Dianne Russell

There seems to be some disagreement between student representatives and administrative officials over the naming of buildings on campus.

For many months, several students have favored the naming of Dorm '79 in honor of Richard "Chip" Gunter, a UNCW student who died November 3, 1979, after being stabbed during a confrontation at Wrightsville Beach.

However, Student Government Association President Jessie Sanders said after a Board of Trustees meeting October 8 that such an action by the board looked doubtful. He said certain guidelines set up by the Buildings and Grounds Committee to regulate the naming of university buildings and roads were obstructing the action.

Those guidelines are: (1) The primary consideration by the trustees shall be exemplary service to the university. (2) The building or road shall carry the last name of the individual.

Last April the SGA submitted a resolution to the Buildings and Grounds Committee, asking that Dorm '79 be named Gunter Hall in honor of Gunter. A petition with over 700 student signatures accompanied the resolution.

According to Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Jairy C. Hunter, a special meeting of the Buildings and Grounds Committee was called at that time, but no action was taken, although designating a room in the new student center to students who have died was discussed.

"The committee did not see a need to rush the issue of naming the building," he said.

The Buildings and Grounds Committee, a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees, must approve a name before the name goes to the full board. Since April that committee has not acted on the matter, according to Hunter.

"The guidelines are the real problem in getting the building named after the student," he said recently. "The person had to have shown exemplary service to the University."

Hunter suggested that Gunter be recognized in the new student center, or by a memorial plaque.

"It's a practical approach," Hunter added. "If a building were to be named after every student who died, there just wouldn't be enough buildings to go around," he said.

However, some students feel they are being betrayed by the administration.

"The Board of Trustees is ignoring us," said SGA Vice President Charles Parsons on Wednesday. The administration does not accept student opinion, nor does it take the SGA seriously," he said.

"If anyone exemplified himself to the university, it was Chip," Parsons added. "Chip was active in student government, and got others involved in it. He belonged to Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SAE), and he showed up at nearly every university event there was. He was a fine example to other students at the university."

"This is not a university for the students; it's a university for the highest bidder," Parsons said. "The dorm will get named when someone gives a lot of money to the university. Right now the building is a big prostitute."

Steve Griffin, Gunter's ex-roommate and vice president of the fraternity Sigma Alpha Epsilon, said SAE members plan to contact university alumni to foster their support and influence in naming the dorm after Gunter.

Rumors are now circulating on campus that even if the board does not approve Gunter's name, students will take matters into their own hands by calling the dorm Gunter Hall regardless, and by having Dorm '79 mail addressed to Gunter Hall.

Forensics Team hosts Invitational Tournament

by Scott Sibley and Tricia Wallace

UNCW's Intercollegiate Forensics Team hosted its third annual Blockade Runner Invitational tournament here October 17, 18, and 19.

Forensics Coach Dr. Bob Rosenthal said that this year's tournament was a huge success with approximately 150 people attending. Dr. Rosenthal attributed some of the reasons for the tournament's success to UNCW's good reputation and the relaxed atmosphere of its geographical location.

Fourteen teams attended the tournament including Pensacola Junior College from Florida, Mississippi State, Berry College from Georgia, The University of South Carolina, The Citadel, The University of North Carolina, Appalachian State, George Washington University from Virginia, William and Mary, Wake Forest, Catawba College, Western Carolina and Old Dominion.

The season for the forensics team runs from the first of October through the end of April with an average of 12-15 weekends spent on the road attending tournaments.

Around 150 tournaments are held every year with UNCW getting invitations to about 95 tournaments from a variety of places nationwide. According

See FORENSICS, p. 6

Phi Eta Sigma inducts sophomores, faculty members

Phi Eta Sigma, national collegiate scholastic honor society, has inducted 33 sophomores and two faculty members at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

To qualify for membership in the prestigious society, students must attain at least a 3.5 grade point average with no grade lower than a C on a full course load during their freshman year of college. Faculty inductees are elected on the basis of outstanding undergraduate instruction by a three-fourths majority vote of the student members of the chapter.

UNCW students tapped for membership were Angela Rae Allen, Virginia Ellen Conrad, John David Day, Jeanne Leslie Gabell, John Marion Holden, Karen Sue Lawing, Denise Miller, Sally Jane Moore and Mary Anne T. Naso, all of Wilmington; Freda Susan Andrews of Jacksonville; Marcia Joan Avedon of Cary; Lisa Claire Boyes of Matthews; Kathryn Lynn Cheers and Angela Jean Maddox of Charlotte; Harry D. Johnson, Jr. of Manteo; Nancy Carol Day of Newton; Lisa Jane Dorn and Robert Henry Meadows, Jr. of Greensboro; Angela Daile Gaskill of Selma; Lucinda Maready and Angela Ruth Teachey of Wallace; Neill Adams McNeill of Raeford; Gail Elizabeth Ormsby of Huntersville; Michael Lee Plante of Fayetteville; Anne Southerland Ramsey of Willard; Billy Ray Rowe of Holly Ridge; June McLean Wease of Greenville; Paul Daniel Felsher of Greenbelt, MD; Patricia Dawn Goley of Vincentown, NJ; Mark Christopher Kalpin of Knoxville, TN; Karen Elizabeth Marks of Richmond, VA; Michael T. Neubig of Wheaton, IL; and Diane Mary Strother of Trumbull, CT.

Faculty members honored for their teaching ability and dedication to excellence in scholarship were Dr. Gerald Harris Shinn, professor of philosophy and religion, and Dr. William H. Overman, Jr., assistant professor of psychology.

Dr. James McGowan, assistant to the vice chancellor for academic affairs, was keynote speaker at the banquet honoring the new members. His address was entitled "Search for Meaning."

The induction ceremony was conducted by the current officers of Phi Eta Sigma: Joe Moemich, President; Kevin Peters, Vice President; Andrea Smith, Secretary; Jacqueline Ennis, Treasurer; Jack Carter, Senior Advisor; and W. Lee Johnston, Faculty Advisor.

Inside

Prime Time.....	p. 3
PIG WEEK.....	p. 5
Who's Who.....	p. 5
Sports.....	p. 8
Z-91's new mascot.....	p. 11
Campus Calendar.....	p. 15

Back row: Dr. Gerald Shinn, John Holden, Neill McNeill, Lisa Dorn, Billy Rowe, June Wease, Paul Felsher, Michael Plante, Virginia Conrad, Sally Moore
2nd row: Dr. William Overman, Michael Neubig, Karen Lawing, Dawn Goley, Gail Ormsby, Angela Maddox, Diane Strother, Angela Teachey, Freda Andrews, Karen Marks
1st row: Anne Ramsey, Kathryn Cheers, Leslie Gabell, Marcia Avedon, Nancy Day, Angela Allen, Lisa Boyes

LETTERS

To the Editor:

I would like to sincerely apologize for the sound at the movie "M*A*S*H", on Tuesday, October 2. The projectors and sound system are being repaired and the sound for the movie "Andromeda Strain" Tuesday night, October 28th will be back to normal.

Tina Huston
Fine Art Chariman

Opinions printed in any column in The SEAHAWK should not be considered opinions of the Editorial Board unless otherwise stated.

Deadlines for all copy - articles, letters to the editor, announcements, etc., has been changed to Thursdays before publication instead of Fridays as previously announced.

Letters to the Editor should be signed, typewritten and no more than 150 words. They should also be in good taste and free of slander and obscenity.

THIS KILLED 9000
AMERICANS LAST YEAR...

THIS KILLED
4 WHITE
RATS...

CAN YOU GUESS WHICH ONE'S BEEN BANNED?

The Seahawk announces the following positions open for the 1980-81 school year. Compensation in the form of scholarships and/or minimum wage are available for some positions.

Features Editor

News Editor

Staffwriters

Production Positions

Applications should be submitted to Linda Moore, Student Activities, or to the Seahawk Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sportswriters: Jim Davis, Keith Lankford

Production: Freda Pyron, Wendy Robbins

Photography: Chip Hacker

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Bryant
Typesetters: Chryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Unconquerable Passion for soaps lingers despite college career

I am a sham—a hypocrite of the blackest hue. Here I am, a rising Senior in a fine institution of higher learning, an institution dedicated to the furthering of culture, refinement, and reason. Here I am and little of that culture, refinement, and reason has sunk into me. I am, as I was before entering UNCW, a soap opera addict.

Yes, my friends, I admit it with downcast head. I am addicted, nay, enslaved by an unconquerable passion for

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

"soaps." It is an addiction which began in my childhood, a hideous entrapment forced upon me by the one who I trusted most—my mother.

It was my mother who, ironing board at the ready, daily tuned in "Ma Perkins," "Stella Dallas," and "Our Gal Sal." While she ironed Rinsowhite shirts into crisp purity, her daughter was wound tighter and tighter into the ugly web of daytime drama.

As I grew so did my addiction. Television provided new highs. Not only did I hear the saga of the Bauer family, I watched it; fifteen minutes daily, brought to me by Procter and Gamble, the god-father of soap junkies. And it wasn't just "The Guiding Light" I watched. There were "The Brighter Day," "Search For Tomorrow," and "Love of Life."

Like any junkie I started to suffer for my sins. My schoolwork plunged due to absenteeism. My eyes became enflamed from watching so much afternoon passion. And the dreams, oh the dreams were worst of all. Nightly those serials played on in my tortured brain, the characters dramatizing stories of my own creating.

Marriage compounded the problem. Instead of drinking to drown my marital woes I indulged in orgies of "soaps."

From 12:30 to 5:00 I forgot my own problems and concentrated on those of my television friends. Alice and Steve, Tara and Phil, Bill and Laura, they were the ones who suffered wept, kissed and made up.

Then my marriage ended and my college career began. I thought that surely now I could kick the habit, surely now I would throw off the chains of daytime drama and embrace the freedom of reason and reality. Too late, alas, it was too late.

But I manage pretty well. I'm able to cope with just one hour of "Another World" and one of "Texas." And of course on Tuesdays and Thursdays I can usually work in "Ryan's Hope" and "All My Children." It's not too bad, really it's not. At least I don't dream about them anymore—well, hardly ever anymore.

Williams first place in University Poetry Contest

Sheryl L. Williams was awarded first place and $50 at the annual awards presentation for the University Poetry Contest October 9, in Randall Library Auditorium. Her poem, entitled "October," conveyed the poet's sympathy for lonely people.

Second place and $30 was won by Mary Ann Stephenson for "The Crossing." She is a junior majoring in English and also won Honorable Mention for "Uprooted."

Bonnie Chasteen won third place and $20 for "The Last Storm." Honorable Mentions and gift books were presented to Barbara J. Grob for "Riding Along" and to Trena P. Gorley for "Manna."

Eugene W. Huguely, Director of Library Services, presented the awards and Carol Ellis, of the English Department faculty, gave a reading of the winning poems.

Judges were Mrs. Joyce Bachner, of the English Department of Laney High School, Dr. Donald F. Kapraun, of the UNCW Biology Department, and Dr. Lewis Walker of the Department of English.

The contest was financed by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis and Sorosis members also provided refreshments. Kelly Morris, English Club president, conducted the proceedings.

Scholarship Bank to provide student financial aid

It was announced today that high school and college students are receiving an average of $17,000 each in possible financial aid sources from The Scholarship Bank, according to Steve Danz, director.

The new service, being operated on a non-profit basis, is designed to find all of the financial aid sources available to student applicants. Danz indicated that of the estimated 15,000 sources in the data bank, the average applicant is getting information on 32 separate sources. The combined value of the 32 sources equals $17,000, and, according to Danz, this does not include those sources that are renewable yearly.

Robbins joins Education secretarial staff

UNCW's School of Education would like to welcome Debra Robbins to their secretarial staff.

Ms. Robbins is transferring to the new receptionist position from the North Carolina National Bank in Wilmington.

Shivers to speak

Faculty and friends are invited to an open meeting of the Friends of Public Radio on Thursday, October 23 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 114 of Kenan Hall. Guests speaker will be Gary Shivers, station manager of WUNC-F.M. at Chapel Hill.

He will discuss Supervision and Management of a fully affiliated National Public Radio Station which will include the history of the station at Chapel Hill. Mr. Shivers will also report on the recent policy adopted by the N.C. Telecommunications Commission regarding the funding of new Public Radio Stations.

Welcome UNC-W Seahawks!

Haircuts $5.00
With student ID
reg. $7.00

Offer good through
November 1

No appointment
Necessary

PHONE (919) 256-4591
WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH AREA
PLAZA EAST SHOPPING CENTER
THE UNISEX SHOP OF WILMINGTON

Lee®
FOR GUYS & GALS

reg. price $22.00
Our price $17.99
UNCW price $16.50
With student ID
Save $5.50!

Lee Rider
Straight Leg

Cheaper Charlie's Jeans Stores

New classroom building named in honor of M. Shannon Morton

by Dianne Russell

The building which students and faculty have referred to simply as the New Building for the past four semesters has finally been given a name.

At an October 8 meeting, the Board of Trustees agreed to name the building Morton Hall in honor of Miss M. Shannon Morton, first full-time teacher, first chairman of the English department, and first dean of women at Wilmington College.

"I am absolutely stunned. You don't know how much it means to me," said Morton, 83, about the naming of the building in her honor.

Morton's involvement with UNCW began with its inception in 1947, when she started as the first full-time teacher on the Wilmington College faculty. Morton taught English in five continuous classes from 4 to 10 p.m. in a Market Street building which the college shared with New Hanover High School.

We assembled after high school closed and the cafeteria served dinner. This was an ideal arrangement for an English teacher, as I had my mornings free for paperwork," Morton explained in an earlier interview.

As an English teacher and English department chairman, Morton acted as the faculty advisor for the Scriptic Society, originally called the Pen Pusher's Club. She supervised the first issue of the campus literary magazine, "Pen in Hand."

Although only 12 women were enrolled at Wilmington College in 1947, female enrollment increased and by 1955 Morton became the first dean of women at the college, while continuing as a teacher and as English department chairman.

"I always encourage the girls of the college to get to know one another. I have entertained them in my home and had girls over to talk or play records and have really enjoyed them all," she said.

Morton resigned as chairman of the English department in 1963 to dedicate herself more fully to her position as dean of women, although she continued teaching an English class. Morton retired from Wilmington College in 1965.

"My tenure at Wilmington College has been one of the most interesting, rewarding, and stimulating periods of my teaching career. I entered Wilmington College with its first (two-year) freshman class and am leaving with the first four-year senior graduating class. It has taken me 18 years to graduate, so to speak," said Morton upon her retirement in 1965.

M. Shannon Morton

The students of the college dedicated the 1964-65 Fledgling Yearbook to Morton when she retired, calling her "one of the heralds of the College Motto, 'Dare to Learn,' and leaders in the advance of knowledge and life, one of the councils in the struggle to help us know ourselves."

The Shannon Morton Essay Contest, held each spring semester, was created in 1978 to show gratitude for Morton's years of service to UNCW. Morton Hall will be dedicated at the awards presentation for this spring's contest.

"The college is very close to me," Morton said. "The naming of the building in my honor makes me feel closer than ever. It means a great deal to me in my professional and personal life."

Morton, who now lives in Henderson, N.C., said she plans on attending the awards presentation and dedication at UNCW in the spring.

CONTACT LENS WEARERS

Save money on your brand name hard and soft lens supplies. Send for free illustrated catalog. CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES* Box 7453, Phoenix, Arizona 85011.

Hall to present retrospective of political campaign commercials

Confused about who to vote for and why? Are you tired of hearing about Ronald Reagan's acting career, sick of hearing Rosalynn drawl about her "Jimmie?"

If you are, then the UPB Lecture Committee has one for you! Speaker James Hall will

EVS Students reminded to register

All EVS students graduating before May 1982 must register for EVS Senior Seminar in the spring of 1981. Request forms for EVS Seminar must be filled out. No one can enroll without approval from the instructor.

be appearing in Kenan Auditorium October 29 at 8 p.m.

His topic is "Promise Them Anything," a 50 year retrospective of political campaign commercials.

Hall will explore ways in which political candidates use the media to influence the public. He will present videotapes of commercials, highlighting candidates of yesterday: JFK, Roosevelt, Nixon, and others. Also featured will be endorsements from celebrities, such as John Wayne.

The University Program Board urges everyone to attend this timely program presented in accordance with the UPB-sponsored PIG WEEK, October 27-31.

JUNIORS/SENIORS EARN OVER $750.00 PER MONTH WHILE FINISHING SCHOOL

Get a head start on an exciting, Challenging position after graduation. While you finish school, we will pay you over $750.00 per month to study and maintain good grades. We have the best graduate level nuclear training program in the world and math, physics, chemistry, technical majors and engineering students can Qualify. You must be a U.S. citizen, less than 27 years old, have a 2.8 GPA or better and be willing to travel world-wide, send college transcript and letter of interest to:

Lt. Russ Jowers
Navy Nuclear
Programs Manager
1001 Navaho Dr.
Raleigh, N.C. 27609

or call 1-800-662-7568

The Clothes Horse announces

NEW ARRIVALS FOR FALL

Embroidered Shetland Sweaters

regular retail $46.00

$28.95

Khaki & Cord Slacks

regular retail to $45.00

$15.00 - 26.95

Oxford Button Down Shirts

regular retail to $29.00

$12.50 - 16.50

WE ALSO HAVE...

turtlenecks, skirts, blazers,
Bermuda bags, belt buckles & belt strips.....

all at great savings to you!

The CLOTHES HORSE

3331 Wrightsville Ave.
Wilmington, N.C., 28403
799-8484

University Program Board plans events designed to beat boredom

The University Program Board has launched a no-holds-barred war against boredom. Friends, the battle is under-way to stamp out the "Campus Blahs" once and for all! The pigs are here to stay at UNCW. For the uninformed, the princely pig is the symbol for the UPB. In keeping, with the happy, active nature of the swine species, UPB is pleased and excited to announce PIG WEEK.

No, PIG WEEK is not a seven-day barbecue. It is 5 days of events designed specifically to combat boredom.

Beginning Monday, October 27 and continuing through Friday, October 31, PIG WEEK will be a time to remember!

The schedule of PIG-tivities is as follows: Monday, October 27, - the UPB PIG has a surprise planned for you - so LOOK OUT!

Tuesday, October 28 - the Fine Arts Committee presents the film "The Andromeda Strain" at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Admission is $1 with student I.D. If you're a sci-fi fan, this flick is a must for you!

Wednesday, October 29 - the UPB Lecture Committee presents James Hall. Hall will speak on the topic of "Promise Them Anything," an expose about how political candidates manipulate the media to sway public opinion. In this election year, this relevant program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Thursday, October 30 - the Special Events Committee is proud to announce CAMPUS SKATE!!! CAMPUS SKATE will be a unique event - you will be able to rent skates in front of the cafeteria for 25 cents, yes that's twenty-five cents!! And you can roll all over campus - wheel your carers away! Skate to your heart's content!

Friday, October 31 - the UPB Dance Committee presents a Halloween party featuring SIDEWINDER!!! It's free with I.D. Location to be announced.

All of you who are excited by these happenings, come by the Pub and check out the UPB pigs!!!

Appalachian Ski trip planned

Winter is approaching and now is the time to make sure you can take advantage of the snow skiing course offered by UNCW as a PED 102 or through Continuing Education. It all begins January 1-4 at Appalachian Ski Mountain where instruction is by the French-Swiss Ski College. The trip includes 4 sessions of skiing Thursday, Friday, Saturday nights and Sunday day, instruction, all equipment, boots, skis, poles, slope and lift fees, lodging for 3 nights (4 to a room), and the manual IMPROVE YOUR SKIING AT HOME. The cost is $115.00 for PED 102 and $120.00 through Continuing Education. Registration and orientation will be held Thursday, October 30, 1980 at 6:30 p.m. in Hanover Hall. A $30.00 non-refundable deposit will be collected at that time, checks only, made out to French-Swiss. For further information, contact Dr. Robert Wolff, department of physical education, 791-4330.

Come along and have a great time in the mountains and get credit for it. Now is the time to decide and be sure to register October 30, 1980, 6:30 p.m. at Hanover Hall.

SGA wants equipment returned

Due to the cancelled 1980-81 Club Football season, the SGA is requesting that ALL football equipment be turned into the SGA Office by October 31, 1980. Equipment should be turned in so as to allow sufficient time to inventory the equipment and have it stored away for protection. Once Club Football is organized for the spring, then equipment will be reissued if a spring football season is played.

WHO'S WHO

Attention Faculty and Students

Nominations For Who's Who Are Now Being Made.

Stop By The Student Affairs Office,

A-110, To Pick Up A Nomination Blank.

Deadline - Friday, October 24, 1980

Guidelines: 1) At the time of nomination a student must have attained at least Junior standing and overall GPA of at least 2.5. 2) A person may be nominated only once as a Junior and once as a Senior. 3) Nominations may be made by all faculty members and students. (Students may nominate themselves).

From the Best Seller by MICHAEL CRICHTON

A ROBERT WISE PRODUCTION

THE ANDROMEDA STRAIN

STARRING: ARTHUR HILL - DAVID WAYNE - JAMES OLSON - KATE REID

IT WILL MAKE YOU THINK ABOUT YOUR FUTURE

"CLIMATIC... EARNEST ACTING AND MASS OF DETAILS FOR ONE ENGROSSED"

-CUE MAGAZINE

KENAN AUDITORIUM

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28 8:00 PM

ADMISSION: $1.00 WITH VALID ID

$1.50 WITHOUT ID

Dr. David Shevach joins UNCW's sociology department

by Christy Allen

The sociology department has a new addition to its faculty, Dr. David Shevach. He has been a busy man since leaving his home in Boston.

After receiving his B. A. in philosophy and English at Harvard, he went to the University of California at San Diego under the National Defense Education Act. Here he earned his master's and Ph.D. in philosophy. Afterward, he taught there from 1971-1976.

He then moved to Milwaukee, where he taught at the University of Wisconsin. Shevach came into contact with students from a wide variety of ethnic and economic backgrounds. He became inspired with the interesting conflicts that occurred and with learning to relate with these students.

This increasing interest in group dynamics, along with the bad job market for philosophy, and the influences of his wife, a psychiatric nurse, soon took him to the University of Iowa, where he received his master's degree in social work. He then took a job as a marriage and family counselor in Lafayette, Indiana for a year and a half, and finally came to Wilmington.

He sees Wilmington as a growing university teeming with opportunity. After living in California, he also loves the beach, east or west. He now teaches social work courses. His specialties are marriage and family, group dynamics, communications, and the philosophy of social work. He sees his knowledge of philosophy as a great help in social work.

"My personal goal," said Shevach, "is to incorporate the two because I feel social work is just as much an art as an applied science."

Dr. David Shevach

Sailing Club goes to regatta

Headed up by Race Committee Chairman Marcus Jucker the UNCW Sailing Team competed in SAISA, (South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association) fall series points regatta in Atlanta, Georgia. Attending the regatta was Clemson, Georgia Tech, University of Tennessee, University of South Carolina Citadel and the University of Charleston.

Also the Sailing Club has elected its officers for this year: President, Randy Powers, Vice-President, Craig Lacaruba, Secretary, Bec Small, Treasurer, Tammy Husban. The Club meets every other at the Pub at 6:30 on Tuesday. For more information call 392-4873.

FORENSICS, from p. 1

to Dr. Rosenthal the team's budget only allows them to attend 15 tournaments per year and all must be within an 18 hour drive. "We must be selective about the tournaments we choose to compete in," said Rosenthal.

The closest tournament is at Chapel Hill with the next closest being at Old Dominion in Norfolk, Virginia. "The average drive for us to attend a tournament is twelve hours," Rosenthal said. Last year's team travelled 12,000 miles during the season.

Rosenthal commented that the Forensics Team is beginning to be more self-developed. He believes they can be as good as any other school's team.

Dr. Rosenthal continued saying that this is the team's best year yet. The team won eleven awards at this past weekend's tournament. The team won 34 awards last year compared to the expected 50 this year.

The Forensics Team is the only part of the university that meets national large schools and holds its own. Rosenthal believes this fact enhances the prestige of UNCW.

The UNCW team competes in between 12 and 15 tournaments every year with the average student participating in about eight of those tournaments.

The Forensics Team's next meet will be October 31 at Appalachian State.

Pumpkin Creek Stables
Since 1889

Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

Total Equine Care
NO RENTING

675-0731

Offers Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

International Students

If you would like to meet and greet other International Students, please drop by Office 110 (Administration Building) and sign your name up with Mrs. Cheek or Mrs. Huntley for a reception to be held at a later date. The deadline is Friday, October 31, 1980.

to submit article for

Dr. Terry Theodore, professor of drama in the Department of Creative Arts, has been invited by the Confederate Memorial Society to submit his published article "The Confederacy's Greatest Star" in juried competition for the coveted Award of Merit. The award is presented annually by the organization in recognition of distinguished scholarship and published research.

Betty Kusta
For Representative At Large
Experience to work
for you

Perfect
SYMBOLS OF LOVE

GOLDEN ACCENT MASTERPIECE

Your Keepsake diamond brilliantly beautiful guaranteed for perfect clarity, precise cut and fine white color.

Keepsake
Registered Diamond Rings

Young adult accounts invited

Mills INC.
Keepsake
JEWELERS & Accutron Center

Long Leaf Mall
Independence Mall

Rings from $290 to $10,000 Trade-Mark Reg

Dr. Bob Rosenthal

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- $100,000 salary up to $175,000 increase up to $250,000 a year
- 20 days paid vacation annually
- Fully insured graduate programs
- Superior family health plan
- Home responsibility and leader responsibilities
- World wide travel and education
- Promoting and personal growth programs

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

- COLLEGE PROFESSOR
- BUSINESS ANALYST
- MANAGER
- AVIATION LAWYER
- DISTRICT MANAGER
- TRADING
- IT CONSULTANT
- VICE PRESIDENT
- SENIOR MANAGER

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ALSO ELIGIBLE

The NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus OCTOBER 28, 29, & 30. An information desk will be located outside the Cafeteria and Placement interviews will be conducted OCTOBER 29. Ask your Placement Director to set up an interview or call 1-800-662-7568 toll free for further information.

Conscientious Objectors believe that registration will lead to draft

The Central Committee of Conscientious Objectors, the nation's largest draft counseling agency, warned this month that the start of draft registration has added to the likelihood of an actual draft.

Larry Spears, Director of CCCO's Youth and Conscientious Objection Campaign, says, "This past summer's draft registration men born in 1960 and 1961 was just the first step toward returning to the draft. This coming January, Selective Service plans to register those men born in 1962. After January 5, men (and perhaps women) born in 1963 will be required to register as they turn 18. It should be noted that the U.S. has never had registration without a draft, and rarely a draft without a war."

"The need for young people to be informed and to consider going on record as a conscientious objector to war has never been greater than it is this fall," says Spears.

"The Supreme Court's decision on Coldberg vs. Tarr, a sex-discrimination case involving the draft and registration, will be final this winter," comments Spears. It is especially important for women to realize that they could be ordered to register for the draft, and perhaps be drafted. They too must consider their position on war."

CCCO has sued Selective Service for their draft plans and learned that they plan to allow registrants to claim hardship, medical, and conscientious objector status only at the last possible moment after induction orders are issued.

"Unless students begin to think about, and collect evidence for conscientious objection claims and other options, they are certain to be caught unprepared," says Spears.

"There is also growing sentiment within Congress to begin debate early next year on whether a peace-time draft should be started," he says.

"It is important for young people to realize that under the current draft law, all men between the ages of 18 and 26 are eligible to be drafted. Also students should know that there is no longer a college student deferment under the new draft laws."

"Young Americans must start thinking about whether they could participate in the military," Spears states that CCCO has already registered over 20,000 young people through its conscientious objection card. "These cards are available, free of charge, from CCCO P.O. Box 15796, Philadelphia, PA 19103. They simply state 'Because of my beliefs about war, I am opposed to participating in the military."

"The usefulness of this card," says Spears, "is that it provides a record of an individual's opposition to war and the military. The CO card will help to demonstrate to the military that hundreds of thousands of young people will not serve in the military. Conscientious objectors, along with the large number of non-registrants and the vocal anti-draft movement may help to deter Congress from establishing a peace-time draft."

CCCO was founded in 1948 as the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors and is a national, non-profit agency counseling young Americans facing the prospect of military service, or those already in the military.

Elektra Asylum Newsbeat

QUEEN dominates news, airwaves, and charts

Queen continues to dominate the news, airwaves and charts. THE GAME, the band's ninth Elektra LP, has been certified Gold and Platinum, that's eight Gold and three Platinum awards to date (the sole hold-out LP, QUEEN II, is almost Gold and should go over the top soon). "Another One Bites The Dust" has also been certified Gold; that's the second Gold single from THE GAME and the fourth to date (one single, "We Are The Champions," went on to Platinum in '78). In the October 4 editions of BILLBOARD, CASHBOX, and RECORD WORLD, THE GAME and "Dust" were #1 on the pop LP and singles charts, with "Dust" scoring a #1 on RW's R&B charts as well (that's seven #1 slots for the week). No pop or rock artist or group in E/A history has made such a thorough crossover to R&B.

The band's first GREATEST HITS LP is being readied for pre-Thanksgiving release; it'll be a single LP. We don't have the sequence yet, but here's the tune stack: "Bohemian Rhapsody," "Killer Queen," "Another One Bites The Dust," "Fat Bottomed Girls," "Bicycle Race," "Best Friend," "Crazy Little Thing Called Love," "Somebody To Love," "Play The Game," "Keep Yourself Alive," "We Will Rock You" and "We Are The Champions."

In December, Elektra will also release an LP of Queen-penned music from the soundtrack of Dino De Laurentis' film "Flash Gordon," an adventure fantasy now being prepped for early December theatrical release by Universal. It's a big budget affair that's true to the high camp approach of the original strip (which debuted in 1934) and the late Thirties serial starring Buster Crabbe. The stars are Sam Jones (Flash), Melody Anderson (Dale), Chaim Topol (Zarkov) and Max Von Sydow (Emperor Ming "The Merciless"). NEWSBEAT caught an early screening a couple of weeks ago; the film's great fun and Queen's music, especially the main title, adds a good deal of excitement.

Queen wound up its American tour at the end of September with three dates at Madison Square Garden, and after a few weeks off, the band will continue its '80-'81 tour with a major series of dates in Europe.

Queen closed out the 45-date U.S. portion of their current world tour with three nights at New York City's Madison Square Garden, and the party afterward was in the grand Queen tradition. The band hosted their guests backstage in a special tented area, and drinks were served by women wearing heels, stockings and bikini bottoms, and, not to be sexist, guys outfitted in gym shorts. Among the guests were Robert Palmer, Bob Marley, tennis star Vitas Gerulaitis, a Penthouse Pet and members of Blondie, The Pretenders, The Simms Brothers and Chic. Following the final

See QUEEN p. 16

Jackson Browne supports Union

Jackson Browne paid tribute to roadies and stage hands on his RUNNING ON EMPTY LP, especially in his medley of "The Load Out" and "Stay," and that tip o' the axe apparently worked in his favor recently in Portland. Seems that members of the IASTE (International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees) local were in dispute with the people who manage the Cumberland County Civic, and were picketing that hall when Browne's equipment trucks rolled up (one of the picket signs read "The Union DOES Mind"). Jack Utsick, who was promoting the gig, was quoted as saying that the stage hands "knew Browne is strongly supportive of the unions and wouldn't cross the picket lines." But the IASTE hands seemed anxious to resolve the contract dispute, and a settlement was worked out with the hall's management shortly before showtime, so the pickets put down their signs and started loading gear out of Browne's trucks.

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks victorious in Port City Classic

by Jim Davis

In what Coach Calvin Lane referred to as "an outstanding showcase of college soccer" the Seahawks met with two teams ranked in the top ten in the South and a nationally ranked team in the Port City Classic, co-sponsored by the East Wilmington Rotary Club, October 18 and 19.

Among the competitors were Duke University, ranked number 16 in the nation, South Carolina, third in the state, and Wake Forest ranking eighth in the state.

In the first contest of the two night four game Port City Classic South Carolina upset nationally ranked Duke 2-1.

UNCW defeated Wake Forest in the second contest also by a score of 2-1.

UNCW's Charlie Wall scored after 14 minutes of the first half on an assist by Doug Allman. But Wake Forest tied the game with less than two minutes remaining in the half on a goal by Ken Bauble. Seahawk Charlie Wall then scored the winning goal off of Dave Compere's corner kick assist with two minutes remaining in the game.

Regarding Saturday's victory Coach Calvin Lane said, "We're very happy to be in the championship game and can be proud of beating a good team in Wake Forest."

This victory scheduled the Seahawks to face the South Carolina Gamecocks Sunday night.

The Seahawks have scored 15 goals in consecutive wins over Guilford, N.C. Wesleyan and Campbell. The new-found defense has been led by Junior Jim Slowinski and Freshman Dave Compere. UNCW's top four scorers are all upperclassmen.

Coach Lane predicted a need for a better effort and more controlled play than the Seahawks showed against Wake Forest in order to beat South Carolina who have beaten the Seahawks in the last two seasons.

UNCW scored twice in the first 12 minutes to take an early lead against South Carolina in Sunday's game. Both goals came off Dave Carlson throw-ins. Dennis Davis headed the first goal in after three minutes of play. Mike Laurence scored the second goal on a loose ball in front of the South Carolina net ten minutes later.

The Seahawks came on strong again in the second half when Dennis Davis ripped in a shot from 20 yards out after just 34 seconds of the final half.

South Carolina dominated play from that point until Dennis Davis scored his third goal ten minutes later to clinch the victory 4-2.

South Carolina's David Burr scored the Gamecock first goal off of a penalty kick midway in the second half. The Gamecocks second goal was scored by Tom Reilly with 10 minutes remaining in the game.

"This win ranks up there with any we've had in recent years," said Coach Lane.

"Our team wanted this championship very badly and played as well as it has all season. Charlie Ingold, our Goalie was superb, but it was a team effort," said Lane.

Duke defeated Wake Forest 5-2 in the Preliminary game.

Swim Team Begins Practice

by Mary Ann O'Briant

"We have a lot of talent and potential this year," said Seahawk Swim Coach Dave Allen. "I believe we have the strongest team - men and women wise - than we've ever had. I'm very optimistic about this season."

This year's team consists of 37 swimmers (nine women and 28 men) and five divers (three men and two women). Twenty of these members are returning from last year and 16 are freshmen.

Last year's leading men scorers were Sam O'Leary, junior; Rusty Lambe, sophomore; Mike Malone, junior; Bob Blum, sophomore; Terry Cascaddan, junior; and Co-captain Roddy Michalove, junior. All of these members are returning and hold school records.

Equally important members of the men's team are Co-captain Parks Griffith, senior; Bill DeForest, junior; Lee Squires, sophomore; Gregg Williams, junior; Jeff Reece, junior; Robert Quigley, junior; Frank Menard, junior. Freshmen on the team include John Bole, Joe Farchione, Brian Hardin, Nelson Holland, Reed Jones, Dan Kingsley, John Massey, Monte McCourt, Scott McCraney, Alan Monteith, Cris Moore, Dave Thomas, and Greg Zack.

Five members of the women's team are also returning winners: Ellen Cushman, junior; Valerie Newlin, senior; Janet Johnson, sophomore; Co-captain Denise Squires, senior; and Co-captain Karen Young, junior. All of these members hold school records.

records.

The remaining women team members are freshmen: Chris Cecil, Nancy Cushman, and Janet Young, and Beth Kallenborn, sophomore.

The swimmers practice long and hard, beginning with pre-season "dry-land" practice twice a day. This practice consists of Nautilus (weight-lifting) three mornings a week, swimming two mornings a week and running one-to-three miles every afternoon.

Full practice for the Seahawks started October 15 with practice held seven days a week. They now swim two times a day, six days a week and once on Sunday, averaging 12,000 to 13,000 yards of swimming distance a day.

The Seahawk swim team has been established since 1977, when the pool's construction was completed. Since then, in three short years, the team has greatly progressed.

According to Coach Allen, this year marks the hardest schedule yet. The Seahawks are now swimming against larger swimming-established schools such as N.C. State, UNC-Chapel Hill, and ECU.

The swim team hopes to enter at least three championship meets this year: the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships held in Cleveland, Ohio; the AIAW Division II Championships held in Marquette, Michigan at Northern Michigan University; and the NCAA Division I Championships at the University of Texas in Austin.

START A NEW HOBBIT

For current volunteer openings in and around Wilmington, check the SEAHAWK each week or contact Linda Moore, Director of Student Union/Activities, in room 104, Pub.

Volunteer

Reprinted with permission of Montgomery County, Md. Government

Cross Country Team competes in three meets

by Keith Lankford

The UNCW cross country team has been on the road in the past two weeks to compete in three away meets bringing their record to 4-4. On Saturday, October 11 both the Men and Women's teams travelled to Williamsburg, Virginia to meet William and Mary College which is considered a powerhouse. The Seahawks were shut out by a score of 15-50 in what Coach Bill Atwill termed "an overmatch."

Three days later the men's team met Voorhees College, and Francis Marion College in Florence, South Carolina. UNCW defeated Voorhees 19-39 but lost to Francis Marion 40-17.

Both the men and women travelled to Raleigh on Saturday, October 18 to compete in the North Carolina Intercollegiate Cross Country Championships. The men Seahawks finished 13 out of 17 teams represented.

Among the teams competing were N.C. State, Duke University, UNC, Pembroke, Western Carolina, and Appalachian State.

The women ran in the NCAA-AW 5000 meter championships against N.C. State, Chapel Hill, and other teams.

N.C. State won the 5000 meter race with great performances by Julie and Mary Shay who tied for first place with a time of 18:15.

The men's race was won by Gary Henry for Pembroke who ran the 5.6 mile race in 27:01.

The next meet for the Seahawks will be at home against The Citadel, Davidson College and Campbell University on Saturday, October 25.

Lady Seahawks Undeclared

After defeating Morehead City in the season opener UNCW's ladies soccer went on to bring their record to 2-0 by defeating East Carolina.

The ladies defeated Morehead by a score of 3-2. Beje Barrett, Betty Jenkins and Lisa Lambert scored the three goals to clinch the victory for UNCW.

On October 19 the Seahawks went up against ECU in an away match. The Seahawks went away with their first shutout of the season by defeating ECU 2-0. Betty Jenkins and Cathy Cruzburg scored the goals for the Seahawks.

The next match for the ladies will be at home on November 2 against ECU at 2 p.m.

Fun Run to be held

The second annual UNCW Fun Run will be held Wednesday, November 12 at 3 p.m. Faculty, staff and students are invited to participate in this walk-run event which will include a one and one-half mile and a 2-mile course. Entry forms may be picked up in the HPER Department and should be turned in by October 31 along with a $3.50 non-refundable fee for entering the event. No awards will be given, however, doer prizes will be awarded at a drawing from all entry participants. For more information contact Dr. Lucinda Hollifield at ext. 2550.

To Your Health by Muriel Ross

Eye Problems Can Become Serious

Studying long hours is not the only cause for eye problems. Most students have favorite "remedies" for relieving eyestrain. Some of these "remedies" can cause other eye problems.

Students are prime candidates for eye injuries from sports and other activities. Ophthalmologists, a group of medical doctors who specialize in eye care, suggest several precautions to eliminate most eye injuries.

Special safety eye guards, available at most sporting goods stores, should be worn when playing tennis, paddle ball and racquetball. A "shine" (which may be a sign of underlying ocular damage), a dilated pupil, or cuts near the eyelid should be seen by personnel at the Student Health Center or emergency room.

Discomfort caused by swimming in chlorinated water can be soothed with cool compresses or eye drops. In the sun a good pair of sunglasses, large enough to cover the sensitive area around the eye and permit peripheral vision, is the best protection. Even sunglasses, however, cannot prevent the night blindness which often occurs after a day in bright sunlight, and care should be taken when driving after dark.

Women have some eye problems uniquely their own. Birth control pills, pregnancy and menopause can cause eye-related problems in a small percentage because of increased or decreased amount of the hormone estrogen. For women taking the pill, blurred vision is often an early warning signal. Clotting of small blood vessels in the retina or optic nerve can result in loss of vision. The condition may be reversible if detected early and treated.

Pregnant women who may have difficulty in wearing contact lenses during the last three months of pregnancy because of eye changes should seek medical advice.

Women in their 50's and 60's can experience a dry, burning feeling in the eyes, caused by insufficient tears. Artificial tears, a humidifier in the house and side shields on glasses when in the wind help the condition.

Other problems women experience are scratches from long fingernails or mascara brushes and allergic reactions to eye shadow or mascara. Sharing eye makeup can lead to infections, potentially serious enough to cause blindness.

Finally, protection shields should be worn when using chemicals in laboratories or at home. Chemicals accidentally splashed in the eyes can cause painful, dangerous burns. The eyes should immediately be flooded with clear, cool water repeatedly, and a physician should be consulted.

The Common Cold can be avoided

Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, would find himself in good company on the UNCW campus since 'tis the season for the common cold and other minor respiratory infections.

There are over 100 different viral agents that can cause colds. Although they usually aren't serious and are self-limiting, colds can weaken the body's resistance to more serious illnesses such as pneumonia, bronchitis, and middle ear infection.

Generally, a cold is communicable one day before onset and up to five days afterward. Symptoms include a tickling, dry sensation in the throat, cough, nasal congestion, fever, body ache and chills.

The N. C. Medical Society makes several suggestions for avoiding colds. Avoid face to face breathing and turn away when coughing or sneezing.

Wash hands frequently with soap and water.

Avoid sharing the same food, liquids, utensils, towels or sleeping quarters with anyone who has a cold. Use disposable tissues rather than handkerchiefs.

Avoid physical and emotional stress. Dress appropriately when going outdoors in cold and damp weather.

Should you catch a cold, treat it at the beginning to assure a quick and complete recovery. Drink plenty of liquids and get plenty of rest. The use of over-the-counter antihistamines and decongestants will help alleviate symptoms; take as directed. Latest research indicates that Vitamin C does help prevent colds in some people and aids in limiting the infection once caught.

Consult a physician if the condition persists.

UNCW FALL SPORTS CALENDAR

Thursday, October 23 - Volleyball at UNCC with UNC-Ashville

Saturday, October 25 - Soccer - William and Mary

Saturday, October 25 - Cross Country - Davidson, Campbell and the Citadel

Sunday, October 26 - Women's Golf - at Duke Invitational

Tuesday, October 28 - Soccer - Methodist

Tuesday, October 28 - Volleyball - at Chowan

Hair etc.

COLLEGE SQUARE SHOPPING CENTER

PHONE 799-3660

HOURS 9-5

EVENINGS BY APPOINTMENT

$1.00 OFF WITH STUDENT I.D.

SHARON GREEN
SHERRY MONDS
KAREN BORDEAUX

CONCEPT ONE FIGURE SALON

5425 Wrightsville Ave. Mon-Fri 9-8 799-8285

Two Week Special Good Through Nov. 30

20% OFF OUR 1 MONTH OR
3 MONTH PROGRAMS

- FREE SAUNAS • EXERCISE CLASSES • KNEE RISE
- ELECTRIC BIKE WITH TENSION CONTROL • ALL
- TYPES OF EXERCISE EQUIPMENT • WEIGHT
- APPETITE RETRAINING • NUTRITIONAL

All Programs Supervised By Nancy Gray Gladys Collins, R.N.

The Perfect Film and Lecture Program for Election Year 1980!

The UPB Lecture presents James Hall in Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. October 29. Hall will present his program "Promise Them Anything." The format covers 50 years of political campaign commercials. Admission is free to students with ID, $2 to the public.

Friends of Public Radio meeting

Friends of Public Radio, a local group trying to get a public radio station for Wilmington, will get advice Thursday from the general manager of a station in Chapel Hill.

Gary Shivers, general manager of WUNC, will speak at 7:30 p.m. in room 114 of Kenan Hall. The speech is open to the public. Shivers, an instructor in radio at UNC, will explain how a local organization may develop and operate a full-service public radio station. Shivers will also explain steps that might be taken to obtain funds from the state legislature for the project.

The NC agency for Public Telecommunications is seeking $250,000 from the 1981 general assembly to fund new public stations. Under a policy developed by Rep. Marie Colton's advisory committee the funds will be divided among three different grant programs.

The first category of grants would allocate 40 percent of the total appropriation among stations seeking to meet criteria for membership both in national public radio and the corporation for public broadcasting (CPB).

Stations receiving state assistance would agree to a three year program aimed at helping the station qualify for CPB funds and NPR programming.

The second category of funds would use 40 percent to develop the station in areas not served by public radio.

The last category would allocate 20 percent of the appropriation available to NC Public Radio Stations for special projects, such as reading services for the blind.

All students interested are encouraged to attend this important meeting.

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL- ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $1.¹⁹ EACH.

Here's a real special treat for you and your friends or family. You can get all the delicious Chick-fil-A sandwiches—the original boneless breast of chicken sandwich—for only $1.19 each with the coupon below. That's a deal that's hard to beat on the sandwich that's fun to eat.

SAVE

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL COUPON—$1.¹⁹ each

Just fill in the number of sandwiches you want, we'll do the rest. One coupon per person per visit.

SAVE

Offer expires:

Closed Sundays.

THE TASTE WORTH SHOPPING FOR.

CHICK-FIL-A of Independence Mall, Wilmington, N.C.

OFFER EXPIRES OCT 31, 1980.

SAVE

SAVE

Congratulations To Kyle Kirby Winner Where's Our Mascot

Thanks to all who entered.

Please support those who support us.
Four Winds School Kids Records
Pizza Port

Don't Be The Missing Link

Individual color portraits of ALL Freshmen, Sophomores & Juniors taken on these hours and dates!

DATE	HOURS	LOCATION
Oct. 27	8:30-12:00/1:00-5:00	The Student Services Building, Room 107
Oct. 28	8:30-12:00/1:00-5:00	"
Oct. 29	8:30-12:00/1:00-5:00	"

COME TO THE YEARBOOK PHOTO SESSIONS

NO Senior may be photographed or order photographs at these sessions. Seniors will have their own photo session dates!

WE'LL BE USING THESE PHOTOGRAPHS in the yearbook, so make sure you show up at one of the sessions. Your yearbook portrait will be included in the yearbook at no cost.

AT THE PHOTO SESSION, you will be given the opportunity to order additional prints of your portrait. The Image Works, a nationally known photography studio, will be taking all portraits with their professional studio equipment, so flattering natural portraits are guaranteed. Your beautiful, natural-color portraits make terrific gifts, so you'll want to be sure to order enough for all your family and friends. Here's how:

SIMPLY DECIDE which of the value-packed portrait packages offered below best suits your needs. (The popular Photographer's Choice Portrait Pak, for example, offers 39 photos in a variety of popular sizes for less than 80 cents each.) Then, when you come to the photo session, bring your money or a check made payable to The Image Works with you. Please Note: arrangements must be made for payment at the time the portrait is taken.

THE IMAGE WORKS GUARANTEES that you will be delighted with whatever portrait package you order. But if you are not 100% satisfied after receiving your selection, simply return within 10 days and you will receive a full refund. So there's no reason not to take advantage of this chance to get true, pretty at super savings.

Spur Student Staff

P.S. Remember, there is no risk. Satisfaction is guaranteed or you receive a full refund.

CHECK THE PORTRAIT PAK YOU WANT...

FOR THESE CHECK-A-PAK OFFERS AT SPECIAL LOW SCHOOL PRICES

1 Photographer's Choice Portrait Pak $30.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 3 8x10 6 5x7 6 3x5 24 Wallets	2 The Deluxe Portrait Pak $23.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 2 8x10 6 5x7 2 3x5 24 Wallets	3 The Maxi Portrait Pak $19.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 2 8x10 4 5x7 2 3x5 8 Wallets	4 The Variety Portrait Pak $16.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 1 8x10 1 5x7 2 3x5 4 Wallets
5 The Thrifty Portrait Pak $13.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 4 5x7 1 3x5 1 Wallets	6 The Economy Portrait Pak $9.95 CHECK THE LIST OF CHOICES 2 5x7 6 3x5 4 Wallets	7 Wallet Specials 24 Wallets with the purchase of any package $9.95 11 individual 5x7 wallets $15.95	TEN DAY UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE Your Satisfaction is Unconditionally Guaranteed or your money is returned within 10 days.

Payment for portraits can be made by cash, Master Card or VISA, or check.

ESTELLA DAVIS FOR REPRESENTATIVE-AT-LARGE

DEDICATED TO THE VOICE OF THE STUDENTS

She's Fighting Issues For You

A CUT ABOVE

HAIRSTYLING
MENS & WOMENS
PERMS & COLOR

MON - SAT
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
9 AM - 6 PM
• ED CARTER
• MICHAEL CLAY
• TRIPP BRICE
• CHERI SMITH

REDKEN MAHDEEN

343-1580

@ COTTON EXCHANGE

Sunny fall weather blessed the October 12 Beach Festival. Beach Music lovers from across the state turned out for the event. "It was a lot of fun for a lot of different age groups," commented one beach music fan.

Among the entertainers were the Tams pictured here. Other Groups performing were The Embers, Bill Pinkney and the Original Drifters, Chairmen of the Board, and the Georgia Prophets.

Representatives wanted immediately! Work at home - no experience necessary - excellent pay
Write National Service
9041 Mansfield
Suite 2004
Shreveport, Louisiana 71118

The Patio

4714 College Drive
791-4442

Thursday- George Oddo
Rock-n-Roll Comedian

Friday The Back Door
'50's&60's Rock-n-Roll

Saturday - THE BACK DOOR

Sunday Ladies Pool Tournament 7p.m.
Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

Tuesday- Backgammon
Tournament 7:30 p.m.

A young Wilmington tradition of ageless taste
in feminine apparel and accessories at prices lower than they should be!

A TOTAL NEW LOOK
AT....

Parnell's Ltd.
129 Broad Street 723-9319
Hanover Center 762-2330

Road trips: a chance to get away from it all

Road trips!

What exactly are road trips? Let's see—they're sort of like a mini-vacation at a funny farm: you don't know what the hell you're doing or why, but it's an experience anyway. But most of all, road trips are a chance to Get Away From It All.

Ready? Well, first off you need wheels. Then you need at least one faithful friend and a case of beer, preferably Coors. Set a destination, work out a timetable ("we should be in Timbuktu by late afternoon...") and you're all set!

Loading the car is easy. Cram everything into the backseat, slam the hatch down, and drive off into the sunrise. Then return to get the Coors which you forgot and left lonely in the parking lot. Gun the motor and take to the road again. Finish your second beer and reach for another. Stop after three blocks and move the cooler into the trunk because it has

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

sprung a leak. Burp loudly, shift gears, and head out on the highway.

Put on a Cars tape (get it?) and cruise 70 miles without incident...then your kidneys signal that the last beer was the killer. If you're a guy with another guy, you can start looking for some bushes. If you're a girl, or a guy with a girl, you grit your teeth and pray for a gas station. Ahoy! You pull into Big Sam's Fas-Gas, buy 20 cents worth of regular and hoof it to the john, keeping in mind Mom's advice about the toilet seat.

And then you're on the road again...

Share a bag of Doritos with your friend(s). Check your watch—most likely you are already behind schedule. Think about drugs. Wish you had some. Sigh, and wave at the highway patrolman in your rearview mirror.

Then it happens. A possum trundles into your lane and stops, obviously contemplating suicide. It is time for you to make a split-second decision. Thoughts burn through your brain: "Do I brake for this possum or do I squash one of God's creatures into the pavement?" The possum yawns, you veer around him and go on, serene in the knowledge that you have spared a life today.

Hunger hits you like a club. Time to make a pit stop. After a quarter-pounder, fries, milkshake, and the last surviving Doritos (and you say you've never had the munchies?) survival seems more certain. Crawl back into the vinyl cocoon, stick Neil Young ("I got lost on the human highway..." Amen!) into the tape deck and journey on.

Fifty miles later (are you SURE you know where you're going?) let the friend play cabbie while you stare out the window and dream of traveling by jet.

Eventually, you get where you're going, and hasn't it been fun? The beer is all gone and so is your sense of direction, but by golly you are now a veteran of The Road. And just think, you can do it all again this weekend!

With apologies to Hunter S. Thompson.

COLE QUILTS

Natalie Cole is a cigarette smoker. She's going to quit it during the Great American Smokeout, join her on November 20. Because quitting is easier when you do it with a friend.

THE GREAT AMERICAN SMOKEOUT
American Cancer Society

This space contributed by the publisher

UNCW Student Art Guild open for everyone

It's not just for art students! The UNCW Student Art Guild was organized last year to unite art students and students interested in the visual arts through lectures, films and projects.

This semester the Guild is planning a day of gallery hopping in Wilmington and a trip to the Washington, D.C.

galleries in January. Currently the members are painting banners for Coastal Beverage displays. Earlier in the semester they held a cook-out to help welcome the new instructors and members to the Guild.

In an effort to ease some of the problems campus artists encounter in purchasing supplies, the Guild purchases some types of supplies in large quantities at cheaper prices.

The Guild meets every other Thursday at 4 p.m. in Kenan Hall. Dues are $3 a semester. Officers are Donna S. Moore, president; Debbie Merritt, vice-president; Jamie McPhail, secretary; Frankie Clayton, treasurer.

THE FAIR EXCHANGE

Located in Coastal Plaza II
3411 Wrightsville Ave.
PHONE: 799-5395

S. College Rd.

Pony Express

Grapes & Hops

Fair Exchange

Thursday
Friday
Saturday

October 23, 24, 25

ALL USED ALBUM'S

$1.99

WE NOW HAVE A LIMITED NUMBER

THE DRIFTERS'

"LITTLE RED BOOK"

Hours

11-8 Mon.- Fri.

11-6 Sat.

single album's only;
doubles will be $3.99

No collectibles or imports

REMEMBER THE GOOD OLD DAYS WHEN WE ONLY HAD TO SMOKE A FEW CIGARETTES AND EAT SACCHARIN ?

PEANUTS

Between IRAQ and a Hard place...

COLLEGE STUDENTS

Improve your grades!

Send $1.00 for your 306-page, research paper catalog. All academic subjects.

Collegiate Research
P.O. Box 25097H
Los Angeles, Ca. 90025

Enclosed is $1.00.
Please rush the catalog.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____

Wrightsville Beach's

APPLE ANNIE'S

Mon.-Fri.
5:00-11:30pm

Sat.-Sun.
11:30am-11:30pm

... Noon in L.A., and in the news, Reagan announces that Pollution is under Control...

CAMPUS CALENDAR

SGA announces election

The UNCW Student Government Association would like to announce an election for a single Representative-At-Large seat to be held Monday, October 27, 1980. The candidates are: Mark Mercatoris, Betty Kusta, and Estella Davis.

Voting booths will be set up in Randall Library, the Cafeteria, and the Pub. Booths will be open in the Library from 9:30 until 2:30, in the Cafeteria 9:30 until 2:30, and in the Pub 10:30 until 3:30.

The SGA would like to urge all students to get out and vote. Support your SGA!

The UNCW Student Art Guild will meet Thursday at 4:00 in Kenan Hall. All students interested in the visual arts are welcome.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Volunteers are needed at Young Women's Christian Association to chaperone teen disco dances. They are also in need of resource aides to teach small classes sewing, needlework, crafts, games, etc.

There are a number of openings available at local nursing homes. Some of these include: entertainer, activity assistant, recreation leader, friendly visitor and someone to conduct wheelchair exercises.

For more information on these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, Student Activities, room 104 in the Pub.

Seminar

Delta Sigma Theta in co-op with Operation Sickle Cell Aware will conduct a seminar Monday, October 27, 7-8:30 p.m. in the New Classroom Auditorium. The subject is "Sickle Cell Anemia - The Myths and the Reality."

Evening

The UNCW Department of Creative Arts, Division of Music, presents an evening of music by Franz Schubert.

Monday, October 27, 1980 in Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. $2 for adults, $1 for students and UNCW students free with valid I.D.

Students attend Criminal Justice Convention

Three members of the Criminal Justice Club attended the Criminal Justice Educators Convention held at Atlantic Beach on Oct. 3. They were Ginger Tew, Elizabeth Adams, and Sarah Cooper. The club had its regular meeting on Oct. 15. Two projects were planned to help raise funds for an overnight trip to Raleigh. Members sold (Krispy Kreme) doughnuts on Oct. 17. For the second project, members are collecting aluminum cans for recycling on Nov. 5. Club members plan to visit the SBI laboratory and the Women's Prison in Raleigh. Students majoring in Criminal Justice are invited to become members of the club. The club meets every other Wednesday. The next meeting will be at 3 p.m. on Oct. 29 in H-111.

LOST

24" gold add-a-bead necklace
4 keys on gold ring set of keys with wooden elephant
Seiko diver's watch
Red notebook
Book-Work Attack Skills
Set of keys with initial "P"
Green spiral notebook
St. Michael religious medal
2 Ford keys on red chain
Green and yellow raincoat
FOUND

Keys
8-track
Ladies watch
Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

Video Tape Instant

Replay Club

The Video Tape Instant Replay Club will be having their next meeting Thursday, October 23 in Kenan Hall 109. All interested students are encouraged to come and participate.

Historical Society to present free film

The UNCW Historical Society and the UNCW History Department will present a film on Nov. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in King Hall Auditorium.

The film is entitled "Denmark '43" and it describes how Yearbook photos are being taken. All students are urged to have theirs made. The pictures will be taken in room 107 in the Student Services Building. The underclassmen pictures will be made on October 27-29 and seniors on October 30-31. Time: 8:30-12:00 and 1:00-5:00.

the Danish Jews were saved from the Nazis in World War II. In the film a group of young Danes recreate what actually happened in one small fishing village in Denmark. The film is 25 minutes long and is in color.

No admission will be charged and all students are encouraged to attend.

Concert Committee to meet

The University Concert Committee would like to thank those dedicated souls who worked as Concert Marshalls at the Beach Music Festival on October 12. There will be a mandatory meeting Thursday, October 23 at 4:30 for those who worked on the Beach show or those who wish to work on future shows. Anyone who cannot make this meeting should immediately contact Laura Mae McLean or Jeff Newton. T-shirts and flashlights will be turned in at the meeting and future Concert Marshalls will be chosen. If you enjoy concert atmospheres and are willing to work at shows please be at the Pub at 4:30 on Thursday, October 23.

Present concert

The UNCW Wind Ensemble will present a concert November 3 at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Admission is FREE.

Classified

Female Roommate wanted to share a 2-Bedroom Townhouse in College Manor. If interested call 799-1335. Available end of November or before.

Roommate and couple wanted to share 3bdr. house on Carolina Beach, split $350 rent plus utilities. Commuting arranged. Call 458-9891 Terri or John.

NOVEMBER 9, 1980

~ 8:00 PM ~

TRASK COLISEUM

A BEST TICKET PROMOTION ~

THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD
CONCERT COMMITTEE PRESENTS
EMMYLOU HARRIS
AND THE HOT BAND
WITH SPECIAL GUESTS
The Red Clay Ramblers

STUDENT
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE
ROOM 101 IN PUB

6.50 / 7.50 WITH
I.D.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Rigid
6 Small piece
10 Thin strip
14 Asian city
15 Oolstone
16 Plaster
17 Mr. Dvorak
18 N.Y.C. waterway, 2 words
20 Debatable
21 Remote
22 Public
23 Legal paper
25 UK coin, for short
27 Beat
30 Coy
31 Dress up
32 Ages
33 Flange
36 Layer
- 37 Ulua and ilia
38 Transfer
39 — Arbor
40 Some trailers
41 Run for the —
42 Appreciate
44 Throbs
45 Fabrics
47 Subside
48 Moment
49 Utter
50 Vessel
54 Registering
57 Breathing
58 Perfume
59 Tulsan: Inf
60 Gallery
61 Unite
62 Procures
63 Weapon

DOWN

- 1 Fraud
2 N. Mexican Indian
3 Preposition
4 Slippers
5 Half sawbuck
6 Filmflam
7 Frost
8 Office-holders
9 Favorite
10 Relinquishes
11 Lydia Pinkham, e.g.
12 Severe
13 Person
19 Hawsers
21 Suitable
24 Beam
25 Domiciles
26 Citrus drinks
27 Facts
- 28 Hibernia
29 Frantic
30 Half note
32 Large volumes
34 — fixe
35 Army meal
37 Existed
38 Salad
40 Beef source
41 Gallop
43 Can heroine
44 Laura —
45 Sipper
46 Ridge
47 Salaries
49 Tizzy
51 Hawaiian city
52 Man's name
53 Hang
55 Pointer
56 DDE
57 Fool

SENIOR PARTY!

B.Y.O.F.

(BRING YOUR OWN FACE)

DATE HOURS LOCATION (MJB80)
Oct. 30 8:30-12:00/1:00-5:00 The Student Services
Oct. 31 8:30-12:00/1:00-5:00 Bldg., Room 107

To the Senior Yearbook Photo Sessions!

Now comes Miller time.

United States Navy
LCDR Spratt
Wed., Oct. 29
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Nov. 6
Pos: Manufacturing Management Trainee
Majors: Business Admin. (Management), Engineering Operations

WORKSHOPS

RESUME
Fri., Oct. 24
11:30 a.m.

Recruiting Visits

DePoortere
Mr. David Stewart
Tues., Oct. 28
Pos: Production Manager Trainee
Majors: Chemistry, Business, Administration

K-Mart Apparel Corp.
Mr. Davis Garren
Thurs., Oct. 30
Pos: Management Trainee
Majors: Business Admin.

QUEEN from p. 7

MSG show. Queen's Brian May and John Deacon stopped by The Ritz to catch the last of the set by labelmate rock 'n' roll band Nervous Eaters. Earlier in the week, Roger Taylor and Deacon had caught Palmer's set at the same club, and the whole band had attended a matinee performance by David Bowie in the Broadway production of "The Elephant Man."

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 9

October 29, 1980

Sidewinder to perform at Halloween dance

by Tricia Wallace and Scott Sibley

Having come to the Crest on Thursday night to interview Sidewinder, who will be playing at the Halloween party on Friday, we were discouraged by the rain and the fact that we were almost turned away at the door because our names had been forgotten to be put on the guest list.

As soon as Sidewinder stepped on stage at 10 pm we forgot the problem at the door. With a tremendous amount of energy and vitality Sidewinder mesmerized the audience during the first set which lasted an entire hour.

Chuck Dallas, lead vocalist, met us at the front door when we arrived and had promised us an interview after the first set.

As promised Dallas met us after the set and led us to the band's dressing room for the interview.

Sidewinder consists of Chuck Dallas, lead vocal; Mike Waldon, acoustic guitar, keyboard and vocals; Janius Duncan, vocals; Rodger Bennett, lead guitar; Jerry Stokes, bass guitar and lead vocals; Ronny Brothers, guitar, vocals; and Jim Sheppard, drums.

Sidewinder has been together for about two years. When asked about the origin of their name, Ronny Brothers replied jokingly, "We were desperate." But over the past two years the name Sidewinder has become synonymous with rock'n'roll.

At present Sidewinder only performs in North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina, and Georgia. They travel on a tight schedule. From the Crest the band plans to travel to Goldsboro and Raleigh this week playing four separate engagements before returning to UNCW for the Halloween party

Sidewinder travels with a crew of 13 with seven of those actually performing on stage. They are booked about three months in advance at a price of $500 for week nights and $1400 for weekends. "We've got a van, a car for the road trip and the equipment goes in a truck." The band said that being on the road has become a way of life and that one advantage is that they get to meet a lot of people.

"We're a high energy band," said Ronny Brothers who writes most of the band's Wagoner honors housing staff

by Keith Lankford

The Housing Staff was honored Thursday October 23 at 3 p.m. in the lobby of the sixth floor of Galloway by Chancellor Wagoner.

All three vice-chancellors and other administrators attended the commendation.

Chancellor Wagoner pointed out the contributions which have been made this year by Assistant Dean for Resident Life Robert Taylor and his staff of resident assistants.

The cage party last month was one project organized by the resident life staff.

The next project will be Fall Feud Day on Saturday, November 1. The Resident staff has also organized a resident's government which helps the staff create an environment for learning and fun.

The staff has been working with students to improve the dorms making them a better place to live. "We hope the students will develop a sense of pride in their 'new homes'," said Robert Taylor.

Taylor added that "vandalism has been very moderate this year. We are very happy with the student's behavior. We prefer not to take disciplinary action when a student damages the property. The circumstances of the vandalism will determine what will be done. In some cases it may be that the guilty party just pays for the damages-this is what we prefer."

"When we do take disciplinary action," Taylor continued, "it is because we are responsible for the upkeep of the dorms for all the students."

Taylor pointed out that when someone destroys property it takes away from the residents' party and activity funds. He also asks for students to cooperate with the resident staff in finding out who is responsible for damages.

"We, the residence staff, are trying to make things as nice as possible for the residents by having events like the Fall Feud. We hope that we can have many more similar programs for the dorm students," Taylor commented. "This year has been great so far and it will continue to be if the staff and students will work together."

Female student attacked on campus Friday night

by Janet L. Hundley

While riding her bike to the dorms from work, a UNCW female was attacked and raped by two male assailants around 11 p.m. Friday night, reported Campus Police Chief Winston Norman.

The attack took place in the wooded area behind the tennis court parking lot.

One assailant was described as a white male about 5'10" to 5'11" with a thin build in his late 20s to early 30s. He was wearing blue jeans and a dark, short heavy jacket. The second male, race unknown, was about 5'9" in his late 30s. He had a heavy build and was wearing dark clothing.

The suspects allegedly left the scene in a dark older model vehicle-the car possibly being brown or tan and maybe a station wagon.

The victim was treated and released from the hospital.

"We want to make students aware that something like this can happen," replied Chief Norman.

Anyone having any information about the described subjects or vehicle is asked to call the campus police, extension 2184.

Students do not have to give their names, and any and all information will be appreciated, Norman said.

Poll says that UNCW students appear apathetic about voting, elections

by Beri Marshall and Dianne Russell

In less than two weeks, Americans across the country will be taking time out from work or school to venture behind black curtains, push buttons and move levers - a phenomenon known in our country as voting-putting into office the man, who for at least the next four years, we will look up to or down on as leader of our country.

Yet, from a recent poll taken of 126 UNCW students, it appears that people just don't give a damn about who that person will be. Twenty-four percent of the students surveyed were not registered to vote, and 29 percent, almost one-third, had chosen not to vote. "I don't feel any of the candidates are worth voting for," said one senior. This response was shared by a majority of those who are not voting.

Many students are discouraged with the present election system. Doing away with the electoral college was cited by many students as a needed improvement in the election process. They saw no reason to vote when their preference for a candidate could be over ridden by a select few, a thought reflected in one student's statement, "They should split up the electoral votes to make the election system more accurate as to what the people want."

Another area of upset lay in the present party system and campaign process. Barely one-sixth of the people interviewed said they were voting for a party - most replies were very emphatically for a person. As one student said, "The two-party system is turning the election process into little more than a cattle drive." There were several suggestions for either the elimination of political parties or for more fair opportunities for a third party to enter the presidential race. And many expressed that the campaign season was too long.

Of the total number of students polled, 29 percent were for Carter, 25 percent were for Reagan, and eight percent were for Anderson.

Many of the Carter votes are actually votes being made against Reagan, "to keep Reagan from being elected," as one student put it. Most Carter supporters said that Reagan's militaristic views would lead us quickly into war.

"I don't really believe Reagan will do all he says I'm also afraid of what he might do," said a junior. Another said, "Reagan is destructive; he is a rich man's president and has no feeling for the underprivileged."

Negative attitudes toward Carter were less dramatic. Referring to the country's outlook, one student said the situation will be "very bleak if Reagan wins, and tolerable if Carter wins."

Overall satisfaction (or dissatisfaction) with the choices for candidates is best summed up by one student's statement, "The choice is difficult. Neither candidate is too impressive."

Economy ranked as the biggest issue in this campaign, with many students citing foreign affairs as equally important. National defense and the hostage crisis were specific priorities for a few. Other issues ranged from ERA and "brains", to the save the whales campaign.

© PATRICK DUNN NEWS, 1980
Mike
Carter

JUST ONE MORE WEEK, JIMMY... C'MON, YOU CAN DO IT... JUST ONE MORE WEEK...

The Seahawk announces the following positions open for the 1980-81 school year. Compensation in the form of scholarships and/or minimum wage are available for some positions.

Features Editor News Editor

Staffwriters Production Positions

Applications should be submitted to Linda Moore, Student Activities, or to the Seahawk Office in the Pub as soon as possible.

Voting Poll Results

Carter	29%
Reagan	25%
Anderson	8%
Clark	1%
Other	1%
Did not specify	7%
Not Voting	29%

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sportswriters: Jim Davis, Keith Lankford

Production: Freda Pyron, Wendy Robbins

Photography: Chip Hackler

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Bryant
Typesetters: Chryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Recalling fond memories of the 'golden days of yesteryear'

Once in awhile I like to tell my son, Jonas, about the "golden days of yesteryear" B.T. (before tube) and S.A.T. (shortly after tube). Maybe some of you have some of those memories too. Like, "do you recall, remember at all..."

What radio program began with, "Ever dream of a night of adventure?"

Who replaced Kay Kyser as the professor of "The College of Musical Knowledge," the early NBC quiz show?

Prime Time

by Judy Stallemith

Who was Groucho Marx's announcer on "You Bet Your Life"?

What radio program presented Orson Welles' "War of the Worlds"?

What kind of cigars did Arthur Godfrey smoke?

Who played "Schultz" on

"Love That Bob"?

Who was Bob?

The name of the "Bachelor Father" who had an unangelic daughter.

Who was Lucy's "Favorite Husband" on radio?

Who was TV's Cheyenne?

What road did Todd Stiles and Buzz Murdock travel?

Who was ramrod on Mr.

Favor's cattle drives?

Who played Boston Blackie?

Who searched for missing persons?

Who was the head mouseke-

teer?

What was Mark VII's first production?

Who was Bilko's girlfriend?

Who interviewed "Person to Person"?

Who made women "Queen

For a Day"?

Who sponsored "Death Valley Days"?

Who assisted Detective Friday?

Enough already. The answers to these questions will be in next week's column. Until then, "keep those cards and letters comin'."

Addendum: Here's a freebie. Who was the host of "The Original Ted Mack Amateur Hour"?

UNC's wind ensemble to present free concert

One of Harry McLamb's main objectives is to present a concert that appeals to most anyone. On November 3 at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium, UNC's Wind Ensemble will accomplish his goal.

McLamb, conductor of the Wind Ensemble, said that the free concert "will be quite a mixed bag."

"The music ranges from very serious works to marches and easy-listening sounds. I am trying to make the Wind Ensemble appeal to as many people as possible. I do that by choosing music that I think most people will enjoy. I want to get people involved in concert-going," he explained.

The program includes works well-known in the band repertoire. "Under the Double Eagle," Op. 159, by Austrian composer Josef Franz Wagner, will be performed. This is Wagner's most famous march. "Suite No. 1 in Eb," by Gustav Holst, is a "band classic," according to McLamb. This work was one of the first serious compositions for the wind band written in the twentieth century.

The Choral Prelude—"So Pure the Star," Op. 91, by the American composer Vincent Persichetti, will be presented. This composition has more complex harmonies than the other works in the program.

"Introduction and Capriccio" by John Barnes Chance, an American composer, is included in the concert. This piece is composed for twenty-four winds. Dr. Richard Deas of the Music Department will perform the piano solo.

Jacob Gade's "Jalousie" is also scheduled to be performed.

Workshop

Dr. Sue Lamb will be offering a Life Planning Workshop on November 14, 1980. Students who are interested in exploring their interests, values and abilities as they relate to the choice of a major, deciding on an occupation, as well as exploring their life goals are welcome to participate. Registration must be made before November 10, 1980. The workshop will begin at 3:00 p.m. on Friday, November 14, 1980. Since it will run past the dinner hour and into the evening, participants will be asked to brown bag their meal.

Those who are interested should contact Dr. Lamb at her office in King Hall, 201-A, or contact the Counseling and Testing Center.

ed. This Spanish-flavored composition was popularized by Arthur Fiedler in 1935.

The concert, said McLamb, will last for approximately an hour. There will be no intermission and formal attire is not required.

"I think the hour will pass rather quickly," he stated.

"It isn't going to be a boring evening. It's going to be painless. I know the audience won't be let down. It's not the type of concert one would come to and expect to fall asleep."

Members of the Wind Ensemble practice for Monday's concert.

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH SPECIAL- ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $1.19 EACH.

Here's a real special treat for you and your friends or family. You can get all the delicious Chick-fil-A sandwiches—the original boneless breast of chicken sandwich—for only $1.19 each with the coupon below. That's a deal that's hard to beat on the sandwich that's fun to eat.

CHICK-FIL-A SANDWICH
SPECIAL COUPON—$1.19 each

Just fill in the number of sandwiches you want, we'll do the rest. One coupon per person per visit.

Offer expires:

Closed Sundays.

THE TASTE WORTH SHOPPING FOR.

CHICK-FIL-A of Independence Mall, Wilmington, N.C.
OFFER EXPIRES OCT 31, 1980.

President Sanders issues SGA's statement of fiscal policy

Due to the ever increasing number of policies that are being issued by the Student Government Association, I feel that the most important one should be put in the newspaper. Listed below is the Student Government Association statement on Fiscal Policy. I feel that once you read this policy you will agree that the Student Government Association has put itself on the right track and we are doing everything possible to insure that your fees are spent in an efficient manner.

I. The Spending Of Student Monies. It should be recognized that the Student Government Association of the University is a non-profit organization. A. All student revenues received by the Government should be returned to the students in some form, within the same fiscal period. If, in the event that student monies are not returned, then those monies shall be transferred to the General Fund Account. B. These returned funds shall be used in the next fiscal year by being allocated to new organizations or to compensate clubs that are affected by adverse economic conditions. C. To adequately protect the Student Body against fiscal insolvency, due to adverse economic conditions or emergency fiscal crisis which were unforeseen, an emergency fund, thusly named, was subsequently reestablished by the 1980-81 Student Senate. The Emergency Fund will thus become the entirety of the SGA savings account. This account shall be duly maintained at a rate consistent with the Student Senate Legislation concerning the matter.

II. The Budgetary Process. A. There is to be no deficit spending by any Student Government Association funded activity. Only under unforeseen and non-recurring fiscal duress will extra monies be allocated to said funded activities. Fiscal mismanagement on the club or organization level or inadequate internal club or organization control will not be considered as unforeseen circumstances. B. End of fiscal period balances will not be carried forward to the next fiscal period in the same account unless it can be shown by said club or organization that the current balance is needed to cover late expenditures that were direly needed for the club and organization's operation. Balances not covered by this rule instead will be zeroed out, and all surplus monies transferred back to the General Fund account of the SGA. C. Profits made by SGA funded activities will remain in the club and organization's account in which they were originally made, through the current fiscal period. At the end of the fiscal period all profits will be considered surplus monies and will be remitted to the General Fund account.

SGA hears reports from clubs

The UNCW Student Government Association met last Thursday, October 23 in the Chemistry/Physics Building.

In his Presidential report, Jessie Sanders made a request for more funds for office supplies. President Sanders then appointed two new Administrative Assistants to aid the executive staff. Also President Sanders appointed Isadora Broxton to the position of Associate Justice to the Student Supreme Court.

Also President Charles Parsons then gave his report. He stated that all clubs and organizations should check the new mailbox, that is located in the SGA office, for memoranda notifying each organization of their date for giving a monthly report to the Senate. Parsons also stated that the room that the Senate is meeting in at this time has been assigned to classes for next semester and the Senate will be meeting in the upstairs auditorium of the Chemistry/Physics Building.

Chief Justice John Ward stated that he needed some additional assistance in forming the University Court.

Three clubs went before the Student Senate to give their monthly reports. The Seahawk, the Sailing Club, and the Adventurer's Club gave their reports to the Senate followed by questions from the senators.

The next Student Senate meeting will be held on Thursday night at 7 p.m. in room C117. All students are encouraged to attend and see what your Student Government does for you.

Election Results

Estella Davis elected as Representative-At-Large

Paintings featured at gallery

Virginia Wright Brown opened her show of recent paintings at Jill Flink Fine Arts in Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, October 18, 1980. Virginia is currently teaching Art Education as a part-time instructor in the Division of Art of the Department of Creative Arts, University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

The show consists of 50 watercolors and several oils and linoleum cuts. The exhibit represents work from the last six months and includes a series of "Night Sky" watercolors, self-portraits, still-lives, flower studies, "painted quilt" series in oil, and sketches of her son.

The gallery is located in Cameron Village, Raleigh, and will continue through November 15, 1980.

UPB fights boredom

We, the pigs of the University Program Board, in order to form a more comprehensive program of entertainment, do hereby swear to make bacon and life pork in the ongoing war against boredom. Let it be further noted that mediocrity and the ordinary viewed as ridiculous concepts in which boredom manifests itself. The components of quality and diversity reign supreme within the board and are held as a torch to light the way of the 80's on the campus of UNCW.

Resident Life sponsors Fund Day

On Saturday Nov. 1, the Residence Life Staff and the Residence Life Government are sponsoring a Fall Feud Day which will consist of a picnic lunch followed by 16 challenging events for the dorm residents to participate in.

The picnic will start at 11 a.m. and continue until 12:30 p.m. Dorm students should bring their meal tickets.

The Feud begins at 1 p.m. and will continue throughout the afternoon.

Events will include a greatest turn-out event, a carved pumpkin contest, a furious fire footed race, a pine cone relay, a pass-the-pumpkin contest, a King Tut climb, a Salmon run, an embryo toss, a banana race, the bat race, a hungry jack cake eating contest, pickle race, a neck to neck relay race, a cider chug, the Hatfield and McCoy tug, and a mystery event-the chew-off.

The winning floors will receive a special prize.

Cuts & Blow Styles SPECIAL

Cut regularly $5.00
with student ID $4.00

Blow styles & cut regularly $10.50
with student ID $8.50

Mon.-Tue.-Wed. only
at
FASHION BOUTIQUE

By ABBEY only

37 Market Plaza
Wilmington, NC
791-4242

The ultimate hot seat

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

There is a common misconception going around. Seems a lot of people picture hell as the Ultimate Hot Seat, flames and fury and all that. Well, I'm here to set the record straight. Hell is when He Doesn't Notice You.

Hey, I can hear the snickering already. 'Tain't funny, folks. You know the feeling. When he walks by and his eyes don't focus on you, period. Ruling out myopia, chances are, yep, he's overlooked you again. Again, dammit!

The first thing you want to do is run after him and holler, "Hey, you! When are we getting married?" or something equally subtle. Don't do it. He'll notice you, alright, but only to wonder what nuthouse you escaped from.

Be cool. This means don't wink at him and for God's sake, don't drool. Instead, grab a trusted friend, get off in a corner and plan your strategy.

tegy.

A good ground plan is pretty simple: do something he can't ignore. Save someone's life. Scream through the mail. Adopt a whale. Be original - he'll love you for it!

Forget advice like "offer to help him study." The guy you'd go for is probably about such devices; and besides, if he's a dummy why do you want him? Also, don't make his hobbies your hobbies, unless you really like to go duck-hunting.

Compliment him! Try "Gee, you have cute ears," not "I'm deeply attracted to your gorgeous hairy chest."

The average male can spot flattery at 50 meters. If, however, he laps it up and pants for more, give it to him!

Once you're at the "hi there" stage, lay back. Don't blind him with your brilliant smile every time you see him. He will think you have: (A) Weird reflexes and (B) No thing better to do than stand around grinning like a mule in a brain patch.

Prove to him what an interesting person you are. Read stuff he's bound to notice, like "Ralph Nader Probes Tinker Toys". Get a tattoo. Casually mention you dabble in macrobiotic foods. Let him know you thought Star Wars was a giant rip-off. Pretty soon he will come to lust after your mind as well as your body.

If, O sorrowful day, you have tried everything and he still treats you like Miss Onion Breath 1980, there's only one thing left to do.

Date his best friend!

Bruce Springsteen: 'The Boss' shows what rock 'n' roll is all about

Pick a name, any name: Jersey Devil, The Boss, or the future of rock 'n' roll, it doesn't matter because the man's name is Bruce Springsteen, and he is what rock 'n' roll is all about. The man who the media hyped as the savior of rock in 1976 didn't really hit his stride until 1975 when the classic BORN TO RUN was released. Originally signing with Columbia Records in 1972, Springsteen was quickly identified with desperate men, fast cars, and pretty ladies, and was indeed labeled "the future of rock 'n' roll" by Jon Landeau. Live, The Boss produced enough voltage to keep New York City lit for a decade, but the critics complained that the albums were few and far between. Not wanting to be chained to the studio, Springsteen tested his material live to prevent or guard against sliding and fading away. This need to perform live, along with legal problems is the reason why we had to wait nearly three years between BORN TO RUN and DARKNESS ON THE EDGE OF TOWN. Because the boy is a perfectionist, we've had to wait almost two-and-a-half for his newest effort entitled THE RIVER. It was well-worth the wait.

That's right folks. A new, double Bruce Springsteen album, with no less than twenty somewhat new songs, all penned by The Boss himself. Too good to be true you say? Well, even though life, like candy, can be sweet, this is admittedly a miracle on the level of the loaves and fishes and the 69 Mets. Produced by Springsteen, Jon Landau, and Miami Steve Van Zant, THE RIVER is without a doubt the album of the year. The production is flawless as Springsteen's vocals are clearer than ever, and the sound is fresh and crisp. The E Street Band proves to be in fine form as there have been no changes in the lineup. Springsteen himself contributes harmonica, guitar, and piano, with Roy Bitan playing piano, Max Weinberg on the drums, Danny Federici on organ, Garry Tallent on bass, Clarence Clemons burning on sax, and Miami Steve Van Zant on guitar.

With so many hot tunes on this platter, it's hard to say which is the best, so highlighting the cream of the crop is what is called for here. "Cadillac Ranch" is Neil Youngish, with a Farfisa organ, tudding bass drum, a solid bass line, and a patented Clarence Clemons sax solo. The Young influence shows heavily in the lyrics:

Eldorado fins, whitewalls and skirts

Rides just like a little bit of heaven here on earth

Well buddy when I die throw my body in the back

And drive me to the junkyard in my Cadillac

"The Ties That Bind" is The Byrds revisited as Springsteen acknowledges his roots by striking a note on the old Roger McGuinn twelve-string.

A Byrds sound isn't surprising considering that Springsteen once included the old Byrds jewel "Goin' Back" in his live act. "Sherry Darling" is a party song much like Cream's "Take It Back," complete with yelling and carrying on in general. Clemons again scores high marks on this song about John Doe, U.S.A., who doesn't get along with his mother-in-law. "Hungry Heart" is an obvious tribute to the Phil Spector sound of the early sixties, which is just one of many influences felt by Springsteen. "Ramrod" just may be the best of the best songs here. Complete with a Chuck Berry guitar intro, and the Paul Revere organ, it too showcases Clemons as this tune proves to be vintage Bruce.

Hey, little dolly with the blue jeans on
I wanna ramrod with you honey till half-past dawn
Let your hair down sugar and pick up this beat
Come on and meet me tonight down on Bluebird Street
I've been working all week, I'm up to my neck in hock

Hey, little dolly with the blue jeans on

I wanna ramrod with you honey till half-past dawn
Let your hair down sugar and pick up this beat

Come on and meet me tonight down on Bluebird Street
I've been working all week, I'm up to my neck in hock

Come Saturday night I let my ramrod rock

This album contains many fine rockers like "Two Hearts," "Jackson Cage," "You Can Look (But You Better Not Touch)," and "I'm A Rocker," but it also has the slow ballad type tunes in "Stolen Car," "Drive All Night," and the title track, "The River." Also included are the heavily bootlegged "Independence Day," "Point Blank," and "The Price You Pay." Surprisingly absent are the also heavily bootlegged, and much ballyhooed "Rendezvous," and "Fire" recently popularized by the Pointer Sisters.

There are no weak cuts on THE RIVER. The E Street Band proves to be in tune as they're both tight and precise. Although some might argue that this is easily accomplished in the studio, rest assured that these boys can do it live. The song-writing is classic Springsteen, and it's very clear that the boy was inspired while working on this LP. Apparently the pattern of dividing his time between the road and the studio is paying off in huge dividends. With results like this, two year intermissions aren't so hard to live with.

Springsteen along with The Who and The Rolling Stones embody what rock 'n' roll is all about, and make clear what rock is and what it is not. We can only hope that these guys don't decide to retire and raise cows. With so many accepted variations in rock, these are some of the only purists left, and we need them desperately to maintain our sense of balance.

The Patio

4714 College Drive

791-4442

Thursday- Tommy Norton

Friday-Halloween Party

with D-C Tin

Saturday- D-C Tin

Sunday Ladies Pool Tournament 7p.m.
Open Mike Night - 9:30 p.m.

Monday - Ladies Night

Tuesday- Backgammon

Tournament 7:30 p.m.

OVA needs verification

The Office of Veteran Affairs would like to remind all persons (veterans and dependents) receiving VA Educational Assistance to come by the OVA to verify your certification for the Spring semester 1981. Many of your certifications will expire in December, 1980 and the OVA has no way of knowing if you plan to continue drawing VA Benefits. Therefore please come by the OVA and let us know your status at your earliest convenience AFTER you have preregistered.

THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD HAS TAKEN GREAT PRIDE IN PRESENTING TO YOU OUR FALL FESTIVAL

PIG WEEK

THE UPB AND ITS COMMITTEES RECOGNIZE THE NECESSITY OF QUALITY, DIVERSE HAPPENINGS ON THE CAMPUS OF UNCW, AND AS A RESULT HAVE SPONSORED THIS MAJOR CAMPAIGN IN THE WAR AGAINST BOREDOM!

IS DEEPLY COMMITTED TO CONTROLLING MEDIOCRACY AND THE ORDINARY, AND HAS SPONSORED THIS WEEK'S EVENTS SOLELY IN THE INTEREST OF YOUR ENJOYMENT.

THE ALL NEW CAMPUS RAGE

By now you probably know that the University Program Board consists of fun-lovin' students dedicated to making things happen here at UNCW. You know all about PIG WEEK (Oct. 27-31), you look forward to the coffeehouses, and you're still reeling from last year's phenomenal Seaside Jam. But how many times do you secretly wonder, what are those UPB'ers really like?

Well, wonder no more! Here is a list of the UPB chairpersons, along with a brief profile about each one. Ready, set, charge!

Mark Davis: Otherwise known as the Head Hog, Mark is Chairman of Program Board. He is 20 years old, an Outdoor Education Major from Horse Shoe, NC. He is fearless, funny, and enjoys meeting new people. His hobbies include pushing furniture around and imitating a seal when he laughs.

Robert Swift: Head of Concert Committee. Robert is a sophomore, 20 years old, majoring in Geology. He says his most fulfilling relationship was with a statuesque slab of granite. He looks forward to taking the Concert Committee to new heights of musical entertainment.

Mike Swift: Mike is Robert's younger brother. He is chairman of the Special Events Committee. He is a freshman majoring in Law. Prefers the biker look, but isn't mean enough to pull it off. His favorite hobbies are drawing pigs and wearing bandanas.

Scott Meckes: Otherwise known as the Candy Man, Scott is in charge of Graphics and Recruitment. He is 19, a sophomore majoring in Business. Favorite quote: "I am not a bleached blonde!"

Tina Huston: Tina is head of the Fine Arts Committee. She is a sophomore majoring in Speech Communications. Originally from Ohio, she is also into health food. Favorite quote: "I never met an allalfa sprout I didn't like."

Kathy Mott: From Endicott, New York, Kathy is head of the Lecture Committee. She is 19, a sophomore majoring in business. Her hobbies include winking at strange men and balancing the Federal Budget.

Linda Gentry: Linda is head of the Half-Moon Coffeehouse Committee. She is 21, a senior majoring in Political Science. She is from Jacksonville, NC. Favorite quote: "Guess who I've got...?"

Paul Weaver: Paul is in charge of the Dance Committee. He is 22, from Greensboro, majoring in Geology. His favorite hobby is counting the gray hairs in his beard.

Julie Russ: Julie is chairperson of the Public Relations Committee. She is 19, a junior majoring in English. She enjoys building submarine sandwiches and trimming her toenails. Favorite quote: "Pass the Wesson oil."

Jesse Malpass: Jesse is Business Manager. He is 21, from Burgaw, and majoring in Business. His hobbies are women, wine, and work.

Welcome to the wonderful world of the University Program Board! Come by the Pub and look us up--we can't wait to meet you!

The University Program Board
Concert Committee
presents

Emmylou Harris and The HOT BAND

A Best Ticket Promotion

1979
Grammy Award
Best Country Vocal Performance

1980
Country Music Association Best Female Vocalist

AND Special Guests

The Red Clay Ramblers

—Students with I.D.-Tickets $6.50 and $7.50-in student activities office—

SUNDAY NOVEMBER 9, 1980

8 PM TRASK COLISEUM

UNC-WILMINGTON

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks defeat nationally ranked William and Mary

by Jim Davis

The Seahawks took their twelfth victory on a windy Saturday afternoon against the William and Mary Indians. The Indians came on the field ranked number one in the South Atlantic Conference and fourteenth in the nation, making this one of the greatest wins in Seahawk soccer history.

In the Seahawks seventh straight victory the Indians captured an early lead after seven minutes of play.

With only seven minutes left in the first half the Seahawks combated with a goal booted in by Dennis Davis on an assist by Dave Karlson, leaving the halftime score 1-1.

In the second half action the Indians got tough leaving the game scoreless 30 minutes into the half.

The Indians were given a penalty kick attempt but it was blocked by Seahawk goalie Charlie Ingold.

"I think the turning point of the whole game was when it was tied 1-1 and Ingold stopped the penalty kick," said Coach Lane. "It was a good kick and wasn't an easy save."

Jim Slowinski put the Seahawks on top with another assist by Dave Karlson. Freshman Dave Karlson tied the school record with a total of eleven assists.

In predicting Coach Lane said, "if they had gotten the second goal first I think they probably would have won."

"But we got it first and that made a big difference."

Charlie Walls kicked in the third goal unassisted giving the Hawks a two point lead and a sure victory.

However William and Mary's Richard Miller scored a second goal with 5:10 remaining in the game.

The Seahawks then controlled play waiting for the clock to run out, winning 3-2.

Coach Lane commented, "I'm very pleased with our performance today and I think we beat an excellent team in William and Mary as their rankings show. "I think both teams had chances to win. We hit the post twice in shots we thought were in. In the second half they had two wide open shots that they missed so it evened out pretty well."

William and Mary had beaten UNCW in the past three consecutive seasons.

The last game for the Seahawks will be away at Duke University on Saturday, Nov. 8. This should be another tough match for the Hawks as Duke is ranked sixteenth in the nation.

Jim Slowinski boots one in for the Seahawks

Advertisers wanted immediately! Work at home - no experience necessary - excellent pay.
Write National Service
9041 Mansfield
Suite 2004
Shreveport, Louisiana 71118

basketball season looks promising

by Jim Davis

Entering his ninth season at UNCW, basketball coach Mel Gibson states that he feels optimistic toward the upcoming season despite having a young team with only 2 seniors and a total of three returning key players from last season.

A trio of key performers from last season in Senior Danny Davis, sophomore Shawn Williams and Junior Dennis Tobin also make this season promising.

Danny Davis, a six foot seven inch 225 pound forward averaged 10 points per game last season and led UNCW in rebounding with a new season record of 265.

Sophomore Shawn Williams, another returning Seahawk starter averaged 8.8 points per game last year and 5.2 rebounds per game. Along with his excellent leaping ability and shooting consistency Shawn should be great asset to the team in 80-81.

Junior Dennis Tobin standing 6 feet 3 inches, after two seasons of experience as a top reserve averaging 8.3 points per game while coming in second on the team for his 77 assists will most likely be the starting big guard. As with both Davis and Williams, he will have to assume a greater scoring responsibility this season and has the ability to do just that.

Another trio of returnees who should play a role in Gibson's plans are Senior Jimmy Denton, Freshman Scott Prudhoe and Scott's twin Brother Mike Prudhoe.

Joining the six UNCW returners are five promising new comers whom coach Gibson consider the finest incoming group he has ever had at UNCW.

Possibly filling the point guard slot are new comers Edward Timmons with Junior College experience and Frankie Dickens, an All-Conference Floor Leader from Person High in Roxboro.

Three other newcomers, all with junior college experience bring height, rebounding skill and maturity to the Seahawks: Junior Leon Nickelson from Mount Olive College, Junior Randy McMillan out of North Greenville College S.C., and Sophomore Carlos Kelly from North Florida Junior College.

Coach Gibson added that "We hope to carry on the 19 year tradition but its hard to predict because we are such a young team. I think we will be more of a budding January team than a November or December team due to needed game experience."

The Seahawks will play a Canadian team on Sun., Nov 16 in an exhibition game. Stating their regular season with an away game against N.C. State Sat. November 29.

Coach Gibson and the Seahawks urge all students to come out and support their team this season.

Volleyball team loses three

by Jim Davis

The UNCW Womens Volleyball team lost Three Matches last week to Elon College, UNC-Asheville and UNC-Charlotte.

On Wednesday, Oct. 22 Elon College defeated the lady Hawks in five games 15-5, 11-15, 7-15, 15-6, 10-15.

Thursday Oct. 23, The Ladies Traveled to UNC-Charlotte and were defeated in two straight games 6-15, 10-15.

In three hard fought games, UNC-Asheville defeated the Lady Hawks 9-15, 15-6, 14-16.

The Seahawks still have a chance to play in the Division 2 Playoffs if they win their next two division matches.

Upcoming matches for the Seahawks Volleyball Team will take place Sat. Nov. 1 in the Old Gym starting at 6:30 p.m., then again on Nov. 6 against Shaw and Gardner-Webb also at home.

SKATE AWAY THE FALL BREAK BLUES!

SPECIAL for UNCW

Thur. -Oct. 30

FREE to UNCW students

with valid ID

admission & skate rental

6:30-10:00

Every Thursday night

UNCW night

$1.00 with valid ID

SPORTSWORLD

UNCW's Robbie Burke leads pack during home meet

Cross Country Team wraps up season with home match

by Keith Lankford

The UNCW men's Cross Country Team wound up their regular seasons action Saturday, Oct. 25 bringing their record to 4 wins and 7 losses.

The final score was Citadel 35, Campbell College 42, Davidson College 43 and UNCW 103.

Carl Ivarsson of Campbell College won the 6.2 mile race in 33:46, a new course record. The finishing order for the Seahawks was Al Brantley, Paul Lupica, Robbie Burke, Julian Keith, Arnold Houston, Keith Lankford, and George May.

This was the second home meet for the Seahawks. Wind and cold plagued the runners. The Seahawk runners described the wind as seemingly "against us no matter which way we turned."

"The 1980 season is over for us," said Coach Bill Atwill, "but now it's time to start training for the 1981 season."

"We will take the top six runners to Furman University in Greenville, SC on Nov. 11 for the District III Regionals", said Atwill.

Coach Atwill added that one might see the Seahawk runners in action in some local road races throughout the winter and spring.

Davidson College defeated

the UNCW women's cross country team 20 to 35 on Saturday, October 25 on the Seahawks home course.

Davidson Marion Hill won the race with a time of 21:01, the first course record for an official race.

The finishing order for the Seahawk ladies was Stacey Almond in 22:35, Dawn Goley, Barbara Grob, Brenda Walker, Beth Hughes, Mary Ann Goslee and Stephanie Litz.

This meet ended the women's cross country regular season. They plan to participate in the local ra

Golf Team places ninth against 12 teams

by Scott Sibley

The lady Seahawks competed in the Duke Invitational golf tournament last weekend placing ninth out of twelve teams.

The tournament was originally to be held on Saturday, Sunday October 25 and 26 but Saturday's round was rained out. Sunday's round went on as scheduled.

During the practice round on Saturday Seahawk Cindy Flowers shot a hole-in-one.

Darci Wilson and Donna Marnett lead the Seahawk scoring with 86. Other scores for UNCW were, Connie Poole with 88, Cindy Flowers with 93, and Sibbie Johnston with 93 for a total of 353.

Wake Forest won the tournament with a score of 320.

The Seahawks next match will be against UNC-Chapel Hill on Saturday and Sunday, November 1 and 2. This will be the last match before the State Championship on November 14 and 15 which the Seahawks will be defending champs from last season.

In earlier action on October 18 and 19 the Seahawks captured the AIAW regular season division two championship held at Echo Farms in Wilmington. Darci Wilson was the top individual winner for the two day match with a total of 157.

The men's golf team placed fourth out of eight teams in the Elon College Invitational tournament held on October 25 and 26.

Top scores for the Seahawk were Bob Mailloux and Darrell Huxham with a combined score of 158.

Surfing Club to hold meeting

The UNC-W Surfing Club will hold its Third Meeting Thurs. Oct. 30 at 4 p.m. in the Conference Room Downstairs in The Library. The Nov. 2 Myrtle Beach Contest will be discussed. All members are urged to attend.

Pumpkin Creek Stables

Since 1889

Private Boarding in a country Atmosphere

Total Equine Care

NO RENTING

675-0731

Events planned to celebrate fifth year of Goodwood Tavern

As you might have heard, the time is near to celebrate the fifth year of the Goodwood Tavern. In order to do this properly, Halfmoon Cafe, (alias for Coffeehouse Committee) is planning a three-day bash. The first event is a Local Yokel's Talent Show. All students are encouraged to work up an act (there are few limits) in order to compete for prizes. This show will be on Thursday, November 13 at 8:30 p.m. Please sign up by November 6 in the Student Activities Office.

November 14 will bring John Stanfield, excellent fiddler, great on 12-string as well. Call WLOZ and request a preview.

Both events will be in the Goodwood.

John Santa Band will perform in the Pub lounge. They play folk, bluegrass and rock with an ultimate intensity. This is on Saturday, November 15, at 8:30. They also have an album at WLOZ.

There will be no charge, and you must bring your own celebration supplies.

This promises to be a great three days, with all the fun of PIG tradition. See you there!!

A CUT ABOVE

HAIRSTYLING
MENS & WOMENS
PERMS & COLOR

MON - SAT
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
9 AM - 6 PM

- ED CARTER
- MICHAEL CLAY
- TRIPP BRICE
- CHERI SMITH

REDKEN MAHDEEN

343-1580

@ COTTON EXCHANGE

Sigma Alpha Epsilon is proud to announce their fall pledge class:

Charles B. Parsons
Ernie Pecora
Mark Morgan
Jeff French
Kevin Rosemond
Butch Maybry
Fred Nash
Jimmy Brown
Best of luck fellows.

Major League baseball game $18.50

Pro football game $23.00

'Unique Christmas gifts
Call 799-5604

ONLY ONE CLASS RING
PER PERSON.

Of all the fine class rings Jolsten's makes only one will matter to you.

WE make men's rings, women's rings, in traditional, classical, evening styles and more. Rectangular stones or oval stones with any birthstone color. Achievement panels that show your favorite extracurricular activity or sport. Rings of 14K or 10K white gold, yellow gold or even silver and lustrum.

COLLEGE RINGS FROM $105.30

Kingoff's
INC.

WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELER

"If it's from Kingoff's...it's Guaranteed"

10 N. FRONT ST
762-5219

INDEPENDENCE MALL
799-2100

CAMPUS
SKATE

Sidewinder from page 1

original music with other members helping with the lyrics.

The band is currently seeking a recording contract and hopes that it doesn't take "too long" to negotiate. Janius Duncan is the fifth female vocalist the band has had. "The other ones just didn't work out," said Ronny Brothers.

Janius was chosen out of about 75 girls who auditioned for the part. She said it was great travelling with a bunch of guys. "But seriously it's really business," said

Brothers. "We don't even allow any relationships with the band. She's not allowed to date anybody."

"They're all a bunch of brothers to me," Duncan admitted. "They all watch after me."

Buono (pronounced "Bono") is Sidewinder's MC. "He really puts on the show. He sets the atmosphere. A lot of times he has contests such as beer-chugging. It's all hype, y'know?"

"It's kinda like a personal relations, too, cause I make sure all birthdays are announced and anything going on in the crowd that somebody tells me about will be announced," says Buono.

Are rock and roll stars rich? Not yet says Brothers. "We buy a lot of equipment and all the quipment is necessary. We're only a two year old business so the first two years of any business you have to put all your profits in the business. We gross a lot but our net is never much because we spend a lot."

30

Thursday
October
1980

10AM-3PM
In Front Of Cafe

cost - 25¢/hour
(with J.D.)

Includes
• Knee Pads
• Elbow Pads
• Roller Skates (of course)

Pig Week 80

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

JUST ARRIVED!

Recycled Corduroy Jeans
sizes 24-38 $7.50

O.R. Tops & Bottoms
$7.95 $8.50

Complete selection of campus wearing apparel

NEW SHIPMENT

Khaki & Cord Pants
from $16.95
Khaki & Cord Skirts
from $14.95

SWEATERS:

Acrylic, Shetland, &
Lambswool from $19.95

Also....

Kilts, Blazers, Bermuda bags & covers, Belts, shirts etc., etc., etc....

THE CLOTHES
HORSE

3331 Wrightsville Ave.
Wilmington, N.C., 28403
799-8484

Now NY Style pizza only at the Pizza Port
LUNCHTIME BUFFET
All pizza and salad you can eat

$2.50

Mon-Fri 11:30-2:00

Remember UNCW
students & faculty,
10% discount

104 Pine Grove Dr.

Off S. College
1 block past
Wrightsville Ave.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

University Theatre presents play

LADYHOUSE BLUES, a drama written by Kevin O'Morrison, will be presented by the University Theatre Nov. 20-23 in Kenan Auditorium.

Anne Fitzgibbon is directing the production, which focuses on the psychological and social struggles of five women adult-ing their men's return from WWI in Europe.

Chosen for the cast are Sarah Rudolph to portray Helen, Brady Hogan as Eyllie, Pam Elswick as Dot, Dot Hall as Liz and Barbara Caldwell as Terry.

NCSL to meet

The next NCSL meeting will be held on Thursday at 5 p.m. in the upstairs library conference room.

Concert committee to hold meeting

The UNCW Concert Committee will be having a very important committee meeting concerning upcoming concert, Thursday at 4 p.m. in the Goodwood Tavern. All old members as well as interested newcomers are urged to attend.

A group designed to help students who are in school or returning to school following a separation or divorce. The group will focus on the process of emotional separation and explore problem-solving strategies for daily stress, establishing new relationships, and coping with academic demands.

Interested students should call extension 2280 or come by the Counseling and Testing Center to discuss their participation.

Girls' rugby team

The girls Rugby team is now formed. Any girls interested in playing Rugby come out to Brooks Field any Monday or Wednesday at 4:30 for practice. Contact Cindy at 392-2441 for further information.

Volunteer Opportunities

A local group home for retarded adults is in need of volunteers to assist mentally retarded adults to become involved in the community and to act as an advocate when problems arise.

Instructors in the area of arts and crafts are needed at a short-term detention facility for juvenile offenders.

The YMCA needs volunteers to assist handicapped in swimming pool. Volunteers need not know how to swim.

For more information on these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, Director of the Student Union with Activities, Room 104 in the Pub.

English Club to present films

Wednesday, Nov. 5, the English Club will present three films based on short stories, "Dr. Heidegger's Experiment" by Nathaniel Hawthorne, "The Lost Phoebe" by Sherwood Anderson, "Martin the Cobbler" a folktale by Leo Tolstoy, at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. There is no admission charged.

LOST AND FOUND

LOST

Brown wallet
Checkbook with blue cover
3 keys on black leather leash-like key ring

FOUND

Keys
Men's sweater

Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

Young college democrats

The next meeting of the Young College Democrats is on Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Pub. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Philosophy and Religion lectures

The fifth lecture in the Philosophy and Religion lecture series will be "The Continuing Relevance of Dietrich Bohoef-fer," a reflection on the modern martyr of the Nazi concentration camp and his impact on others. The lecture will be held free of charge in the New Classroom Building Auditorium at 7:30 p.m., November 3.

Couples Enrichment Group Presents

Gerald R. Weeks Ph.D.

A six week workshop designed to enhance relationships through the use of structural exercises. The program focuses on expectations, rules, communication, feelings, trust, and learning to give and take. Group will meet Friday 3:30-5. Interested couples should contact

Dr. Weeks, (ex. 2375) or the Counseling and Testing Center (ex. 2280).

Student Senate to meet

The UNCW Student Senate will be held on Thursday night at 7 p.m. in room 117 of the Chemistry/Physics Building. All students are urged to attend.

SANTANA HENDON

Keepsake...
the perfect way
to show your love

Express the lasting beauty of your feelings with a perfect Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Your Keepsake center diamond is guaranteed in writing, forever, for perfect clarity, fine white color and precise modern cut.

Come in and select a fine quality engagement ring from our Keepsake collection.

Keepsake®
Registered Diamond Rings

Mills INC.
Keepsake®
JEWELERS & Accutron Center

Young adult accounts invited

Long Leaf Mall
Independence Mall

Rings from $200 to $10,000. Trade-Ins Reg.

Myra's Tropic II Outlet
2422 Wrightsville Ave.
763-9317

Bill Bliss
Blouses

Sweaters
Pants
Kilt & Skirts

Madris
Blouses

JUNIORS/SENIORS EARN OVER $750.00 PER MONTH WHILE FINISHING SCHOOL

Get a head start on an exciting, Challenging position after graduation. While you finish school, we will pay you over $750.00 per month to study and maintain good grades. We have the best graduate level nuclear training program in the world and math, physics, chemistry, technical majors and engineering students can Qualify. You must be a U.S. citizen, less than 27 years old, have a 2.8 GPA or better and be willing to travel world-wide, send college transcript and letter of interest to:

Lt. russ Jowers
Navy Nuclear
Programs Manager
1001 Navaho Dr.
Raleigh, N.C. 27609

or call 1-800-662-7568

Lee®
FOR GUYS & GALS

reg. price $22.00

Our price $17.99

UNCW price $16.50

With student ID

Save $5.50!

Lee Rider
Straight Leg

Cheaper Charlie's Jeans Stores
1315 S. College Rd.
only 7 blocks south of
UNCW

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Grovel
6 Equal: Pref
10 Old clothes
14 Ocean
15 Black Poet
16 Mr. Ludwig
17 Star. Pref.
18 Range
20 Through 21 Ruction
23 Sought
24 Of birds
26 Perceivers
31 Kind of case
30 Sebastian
31 Early Peruvians
32 California city
36 Riviera season
37 Disk
38 Kind of cup
39 Supplanted
42 Large nail
44 Functions
45 Ankle cover
46 Got a news
beat 49 Godsend
50 Menu
51 Rearmost
52 Male animal
55 Below
58 Breathing
60 Performs
61 Incite
62 Wallet items
63 Spanish artist

DOWN

- 64 Scottish loch
65 Perfect places
1 Sudden blow
2 Levitate
3 Delights
4 Always: Poet
5 Gains
6 Nut
7 "It's — I"
8 Kangaroo
9 Blacken
10 Tries again
11 Soap plant
12 Donor
13 Winter vehicles
19 Title
22 Skate
25 By 26 Salvaged
27 Short for Scrooge
28 Contended
29 Opposed
30 Mentions
32 Hurred
33 Counterfeit
34 Nobleman
35 German river
37 White
40 Complain
41 Jogger
42 Mexico
43 Brooch
45 Fuel
46 Dashes
47 Indian boat

Recruiting Visits

United States Navy

LCDR Spratt

Wed., Oct. 29

Pos: Various

Majors: All

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.

Mr. Jack T. Carter

Thurs., Nov. 6

Pos: Manufacturing Management Trainee

Majors: Business Admin.

(Management), Engineering

Operations

A. L. Williams

Mr. Burton

Mr. H. Perry

Thurs., November 6

Pos: Management Trainee

Majors: Soc. Sci., Humanities,

Bus.

K-Mart Apparel Corporation

Mr. Davis Garren

Thurs., Oct. 30

Pos: Management Trainee

Majors: Business

Administration

NC State Highway Patrol

Trooper Henry F. Moore

Wed., Nov. 19

Pos: Trooper

Majors: All

WORKSHOPS

JOB INTERVIEW

Mon., Nov. 3
1:30 p. m.

Thurs., Nov. 20
2:30 p. m.

RESUME

Wed., Nov. 5
1:30 a. m.

Tues., Nov. 11
1:30 p. m.

Wed., Nov. 25
12:30 p. m.

Welcome UNC-W
Seahawks!

Haircuts $5.00
With student ID
reg. $7.00

Offer good through
November 1

No appointment
Necessary

PHONE (919) 256-4591
WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH AREA
PLAZA EAST SHOPPING CENTER
THE UNISEX SHOP OF WILMINGTON

Wrightsville Beach's

APPLE ANNIE'S

Mon.-Fri.
5:00-11:30pm

Sat.-Sun.
11:30am-11:30pm

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 10

November 7, 1980

Twelve Pages

Van Vleet's appointment raises objections

by Dianne Russell

Not all senators were pleased with David Van Vleet's appointment to the student court a few weeks ago. Some senators felt the position should have been filled by a woman.

The senate approved SGA Vice-President Charles Parsons' appointment of Van Vleet at an October meeting. Of the eight positions on the court, excluding chief justice, the vice-president appoints two, the president appoints three, and the senate appoints three. In order to be considered for appointment, a student must apply for the position.

"This particular position hadn't been publicized the way it needed to be," said Senator Karin Wansley, one of the senators who objected to Van Vleet's appointment. "I wanted to wait and see if we could get a female with equal or better qualifications to apply," she said.

However, the senate's approval of Van Vleet's appointment proved this was not a concern shared by a majority of the senate.

"It would have been reverse discrimination to have rejected Van Vleet," said Senator Nancy Kelker. "No female applied for the position, and David Van Vleet was very qualified," she said.

With Van Vleet's appointment, all the positions on the court have been filled. The court now consists of one black male, one black female, one white female, and six white males. Both women were appointed by President Jessie Sanders.

UNCW Seahawks to meet Duke for possible play-off bid. See page 9.

First annual Student Government Day to be held

Do you know who your elected Student Government Representatives are? You will have a chance to meet them on the first annual Student Government Day.

Student Government Day will be held Wednesday, November 19, in the Student Union starting at 3 p.m. The SGA Fund-Raising Committee is sponsoring Student Government Day to allow students to become acquainted with their representatives and also as a fund-raising project to acquire some extra money for the General Fund. This would allow more money to be allocated to clubs and organizations.

The fund-raising committee plans a day of excitement for the student body. There will be several tournaments for students to participate in, being a pool tournament, ping pong tournament and a backgammon tournament. The entry fee is changed from fifty cents to a dollar.

To top the excitement off there will be a Mini Vegas Night. It will be run similar to Casino Night held last year by the University Program Board. One of the differences will be that students will have to pay a small fee to obtain chips to play the games. Prizes, including door prizes, will be given for Mini Vegas Night as well as the tournament games.

To give the students a break from cafeteria food there will be a cook-out with hot dogs, cole slaw, baked beans, cookies, cakes and many other tempting things to eat. These items will be sold at a minimum cost.

"All students are urged to attend not only for the fun but to help out the clubs and organizations," said Steve Schmidt, Chairman of the SGA Fund-Raising Committee.

Knight to conduct pops concert in Kenan Auditorium November 13

"Pops Whiz" Eric Knight will lead the North Carolina Symphony in a pops concert featuring a special tribute to Boston Pops legend, Arthur Fiedler Thursday, November 13, at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium on the UNC-Wilmington campus.

The program will also include Edvard Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite No. 1," "Americana Overture," "Lady of Spain," and John Denver's "Country Roads."

Eric Knight, principal pops conductor of the North Carolina and Baltimore symphony orchestras and exclusive music director for Ethel Merman for the past fifteen years, has crafted countless arrangements for the Boston Pops and was a particular favorite of Arthur Fiedler, for whom he arranged "A Tribute."

In 1977 he won the New York Film and T.V. Gold Award for arranging and orchestrating the Boston Pops PBS Concerts signature. Also, last season Knight arranged and orchestrated the hit album "Up in Central Park," featuring Beverly Sills and Sherrill Milnes singing famous operetta and musical comedy duets.

Knight arranged the music for Bette Midler's nightclub act, and has recently ventured into electronic music. He arranged the electronic effects for "Hugo the Hippo," a 90-minute animated feature film for children, and also composed the electronic effects for the Bayer Aspirin and Hershey Bar commercials.

Outstanding artists who have worked under Knight's baton include Ella Fitzgerald, Sarah Vaughn, Larry Adler, and Gretchen Wyler.

Admission to this concert is by season subscription, or tickets may be purchased at Kenan Auditorium anytime prior to the concert. Prices are six dollars for adults, four dollars for senior citizens and students 16 and over, and two dollars for children 15 and under.

Inside

Editorial.....	P. 2
Prime Time.....	P. 3
Student Union.....	P. 5
Sports.....	P. 9
Campus Chuckles.....	P. 10
Campus Calendar.....	P. 11

Winter Arts and Craft Show to be held in Hanover Hall November 8, 9

The Winter Arts and Craft Show is scheduled for November 8-9 in Hanover Hall Gymnasium from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and 12 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. The Wilmington Jaycettes and the Southeastern North Carolina Master Craftsman Guild are sponsoring the event.

Craftsmen from this area and surrounding regions will be selling and demonstrating their merchandise at the show.

Admission will be $1.00 at the door for adults. Children will be admitted free. Proceeds will go to needy families, according to Glenda Browning, the Jaycettes' coordinator of the event.

"We will use the money to buy Christmas presents and food for the needy in Wilmington," she stated. "Even though you have to pay, you know the money is going to serve someone in the community."

People from the local Craft Guild, the Southeastern Craft Guild and the Art Association will exhibit their works. Craftsmen from South Carolina will also be at the show.

The show will offer a "huge variety" of merchandise, such as wood cuttings, wood furniture and stained glass, stated Browning.

"We will have some fine merchandise at the show," Browning said. "Everything I've seen has awed me. Everything you can imagine will be there."

There will be a drawing every hour for an item worth $10 or more, said Browning. The Master Craftsman Guild will be selling tickets for the drawing.

Little Miss Wilmington will perform at the show both days. Hot dogs will be sold for those that want lunch.

EDITORIAL

Monday morning around 11:45, right after biology class, Police Chief Winston Norman called me at the SEAHAWK office.

"Seahawk. May I help you?" our traditional answer.

"Could I speak with Janet Hundley?"

"This is she."

"Janet, Win Norman."

"Hi, how are you?"

On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 1:30 I trudge over to the new classroom building for Journalism 245. Just for sheer enjoyment and a bit of a challenge I chose security as one of my beats [an area on campus that I am assigned to cover for the SEAHAWK - anything and everything that goes on - if news-worthy I should know and write about] for the class.

"I guess you've heard about what happened on campus this weekend."

"No, I haven't. I've been out of town."

"One of our female students was assaulted Friday night. We have a description of the two men and I'd like your help in seeing if we can get some help from the students in finding them."

"Sure I'd be glad to. I have a class at 12:30 and 1:30, but I'll get over as soon as I can."

Dr. Seiple, my journalism teacher designated Monday as a lab day to cover out beats or work in the SEAHAWK office.

"Perfect," I thought to myself. I made a list of questions and rushed over with pen and paper.

When I had gotten the information I rushed back to the office and began writing.

While riding her bike to the dorms from work, "a UNCW female student was attacked..." I wrote with honesty. We didn't finish the layout of the paper so our Monday night deadline was pressed forward to Tuesday night.

Tuesday became just as important as Monday for the newsroom. A student and a resident of the dorms stopped by the office with some earth-shattering news. The assault Friday night had in actuality been a rape.

Immediately after class I hurried to my journalism teacher's office for guidance.

"The assault I told you about was a rape."

With her usual sparkling but ever professional smile she replied, "Oh, a late-breaking news story, huh?"

"I guess so, but what should I do. The story's written but should I change 'assaulted' to rape?"

Never exerting her power as teacher or advisor, she replied, "It's up to you, but I think the students as well as faculty need to know what really happened so they'll be more careful."

"I'm on my way to confirm it with the Chief now."

"Great! Go to it."

"May I speak to Chief Norman?"

He met me at the door and seemed to know exactly why I was there. He confirmed my suspicions and I chose to alter my story accordingly. We talked for a few minutes about the situation and he brought a few things to my attention.

"The students need to be aware that something like this can happen. They need to know what to do and what not to do in any situation."

"Myself for example. I know it happens, anything can happen but IT COULD NEVER HAPPEN TO ME."

The famous last words! By 2 a.m. the paper was ready for bed. I wasn't. I had been jumpy all day and felt the famous Wrightsville Beach salt air would calm me a bit. I drove to the south end and parked at Crystal Pier under the lights. I got out and walked to the ocean. The night air got to me and I forced myself from the beauty of the night.

While heading home the urge to write overtook me. I circled around and went back. The beach always seems to inspire me. Light, that's what I needed and even a few people just to be safe. Johnny Mercer's pier seemed to be the answer. Lights and people all right, I parked and started to write but one person stood out in the crowd - why I don't know. I just noticed him leaning against a car. An edgy feeling chilled my body and I decided to go elsewhere. The north end seemed the most likely place. I parked beside the Holiday Inn and began to write with sound of the waves echoing in the distance.

A car turned in. For some reason I felt paranoid and I locked my doors. As it got closer I realized it was the same car and the same man I had seen before. Without giving it a thought I wrote down the license number and implanted the car description in my head. Paranoia and instinct turned to fear as I tried to pull out to make my get away.

"Stay calm - think!" I kept telling myself.

He stayed behind me all the way. I got to Johnny Mercer's again, all the while looking for the police. I kept going straight.

People, I just wanted to see people or police. At 2:30 a.m. there was no one around anywhere. I drove through town at a moderate speed and tried to remain calm.

The Wrightsville Beach Police Department!

The light at Newell's was red, of course. I didn't

See EDITORIAL, p. 3.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

There is no doubt that the students on this campus are the key interest to the Student Government or at least that is the intent of the Student Government, to represent the students. But how come the Senate does not seem to initiate on this one key interest?

When I campaigned for Sophomore Class President, I made promises about my actions and views which I have intended to fulfill. I stated that my greatest interest was and is the students. To this very day I have tried to keep an open door policy to all students rather it be at my home or the SGA office, I have tried to reach out to the needs of the students, and I have tried to reflect the majority views of the students. But as you probably already realize I am only one representative.

Where are the other representatives? Where are those that are complaining about student apathy? Those that are only senators on Thursday nights? To me, there is only one existent apathy and that is Senate Apathy! That's right, that is Senate Apathy.

Since I have taken office, I have yet seen a dedicated senator, I have yet seen aggressive leadership by the Student Government, I have yet seen pertinent issues of student concern be discussed. These are only a few of the example of Senate Apathy.

At the present, I serve on a great number of committees and up to now I have received very little assistance from fellow senators, with these committees. If I do not have some assistance on my committees then I simply can't be of much value to the students and neither can the senate.

Let me cite an example. For weeks I have been working hard to plan Student Government Day. As chairman of the Fund Raising Committee I have the right to formulate the committee and choose my own members. So that I knew that I have hard-working, dedicated members, I asked for senate volunteers. Out of 31 senators, nine of the senators showed interest, four of them being freshmen. For the past month I have come before the senate and asked each and every senator to help participate in the functioning of Student Government Day. I have yet received any further assistance.

Another example which coincides with Senate apathy deals with the actions of those few minority of senators. We have senators that read newspapers, do homework, and some that may even sleep during senate sessions. We also have a few senators that neglect student government business by leaving before the meeting has adjourned.

Is this representation? Is this our Student Government? I'm sorry but I question the efficiency of our Senate. We are actually abusing the students. We are neglecting them. We are only looking out for our own interest and not the students.

I'm not saying that every senator is neglecting his/her duties, but I am saying there are those few minority that hurt such an organization as our student government.

I have heard countless students verbalize their gripes about food, parking, activities, etc. And when asked what the Student Government is doing about the situation - I must reply nothing. We are doing NOTHING!

Students stand for quite a lot and the sooner the senate realize this the more efficient we can be. We need to take notice and look around us. We need to make changes together (unify ourselves, instead of having power vs. power) and make this campus a better place to live, work, and play. After all, we spend nine months of not more of our lives here, is there a need for it to be in disgrace?

If the majority of minority of the senate choose to be apathetic, that's fine. But there are those such as myself, that will support the student's interest. And believe me I for one will tooth and nail for what the students strongly believe in.

Steve Schmidt
Sophomore Class President

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sportswriters: Jim Davis, Keith Lankford

Production: Freda Pyron, Wendy Robbins

Photography: Chip Hackler

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Brian

Typesetters: Chryl Kane, Mary Ellis, Marva Graham

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

New television season brings back 'same old thing'

Speaking of old TV, I have to admit I'm really sorry the actors' strike is over. Oh, it's not that I have anything against actors it's just that I was getting used to television being entertaining again. Now the new season will start and we'll be back to the same old thing.

Take "Little House On The Prairie," for example. The Oct. 27 program was one of the "new" episodes. I spent the entire 60 minutes (minus commercials) wondering if Michael Landon's marital woes were affecting his creative judgement. We were asked, no, begged, to respond to a story that has been "Little House'd" so many times before.

Smith not a 'typical' librarian

Patrons in need of assistance in the William Madison Randall Library at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington need not look for the stereotypical mousey little old maid librarian to help them. They won't find her. Instead, there's Philip C. Smith, Jr., retired Lieutenant Commander in the U.S. Navy, former aviator and lusty handball player—definitely not the "typical" librarian.

Asked how an aviator with a degree in electrical engineering from the U.S. Navy Academy wound up in an academic library, Smith admitted, with a great deal of deliberate forethought, "I was intrigued with the possibility of change in the field of library science. Automated systems were on the horizon, and that particular aspect appealed to me."

While he is not that heavily involved in data processing or the automation process as it relates to library science, he enjoys his position as Readers' Service Librarian at UNCW because of the opportunity it gives him to relate to people.

Prior to his retirement from the Navy, Smith was an associate professor at Miami University, where he taught naval history and navigation in the R.O.T.C. program. "At the time, there were 52 colleges and universities which had R.O.T.C. programs, and Miami University had the second highest retention rate in the nation," Smith recalled with some degree of pride.

Having enjoyed his sojourn in the world of academia, he began to think seriously of a second career that would allow him to remain in the academic world following his retirement from the military service.

"While I was trying to decide what to do with the rest of my life, I visited several libraries and talked with the librarians. I had not made up my mind that that was definitely what I wanted to do, so I just took one step at a time," he said. Before entering Florida State University to pursue his master's degree in library science, Smith visited four different schools which offered graduate study in library science.

After earning his master's degree in 1967, Smith accepted a position as head librarian at Methodist College in Fayetteville. Then in 1969 he was

There was a blind (as in Mary) artist (not sculptress) who had been abandoned (as in Albert) by her blind mother. They were so obviously trying to evoke sympathetic tears from their audience that it was downright ludicrous.

Then you have the "premiering" shows. Like "I'm A Big Girl Now" about a single parent (remember "Eddie's Father?"). Then there's "It's A Living," the saga of five single women making it in New York. Shades of everything from "Lucy" to

"Laverne and Shirley." And, of course, you've got "Charlie's Angels" with another "new" angel doing the same old things the same old ways and looking gorgeous every minute she's doing it. I can remember when the new TV season was worth waiting for. And it's not been that long ago either. I remember '74 with "M*A*S*H", "Upstairs, Downstairs" and "Chico & the Man." 1972 brought "The Waltons" and "The Streets of San Francisco." And how about 1971's premier, "All in the Family?"

Sure, not all the new programs will be bad and not all the old ones will be decrepit. But it says something—derogatorily—about the state of television's art when the best times to watch the tube is between 4 and 6. That's when they run the golden oldies—Archie, Lucy, Andy, and Carol.

Addendum: Here's the answers to those questions:

1. "Escape" 2. Tennessee Ernie Ford 3. George Fenneman 4. "The Mercury Theatre On The Air" 5. Roi Tan 6. Anne B. Davis 7. Robert Cummings 8. John Forsthe 9. Richard Denning 10. Clint Walker 11. "Route 66" 12. Rowdy Yates (Clint Eastwood) 13. Chester Morris 13. Rocky Keen 14. Jimmy 15. "Dragnet" 16. Joan (if you can recall her last name, please tell me!) 17. Edward R. Morrow 18. Jack Bailey 19. 20 Mule Team Borax 20. Frank Smith 21. The freebie—Ted Mack

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

EDITORIAL, from p. 2.

put on a turn signal, but got in the turning lane. He pulled up beside me and began to yell. My heart pounded and I couldn't bring myself to look or listen. "Maybe he's going straight," I prayed.

After an eternity the light changed. He didn't turn; he tried to pull up beside me. The station seemed hundreds of miles away. I increased my speed and continued to pray. There it was, finally in sight. Surprisingly to me the man never gave up. He didn't think I would do it. I pulled right up to the door, took out my pad with the license number and grinned as I saw the car speed away.

"Hi-i-i so-ome man has been f-foll-owing me. I got the li-icense, and he went thata waypointing to the south end of Wri-ghtsville," I tried to say calmly and coolly. I didn't want to seem upset.

The officer noticed right off and indicated his understanding asking me to come in the office. Just seeing the word "Private" on the door I was entering gave me some relief. As I described the ordeal my nerves began to settle down. I began to rattle off the facts without much fear in no time. He fed the computer with my verbal pictures: Dark hair, 5'11", 185 to 195, 35 or 40 years old. A name and identification came back. I was right and somewhat proud of it. In no time they knew his name, address, and everything else. I helped with filling the gaps of the report and thanked the officer for his help.

I was damn lucky. If I hadn't talked to the Chief and if my brother hadn't been a policeman, I'm not sure how I would've handled it. What should you do?

First of all, don't put yourself in a dangerous situation - riding along the beach or anywhere at 2:30 a.m. alone isn't smart. If you do, don't take chances. If you are in your car, lock it. Know where the police station is and drive to it if you can. Or just find some people, lots of them. If those aren't possible scream and blow your horn, somebody will hear you or the noise might just scare them off.

I don't have all the answers. I do know you need to stay as calm as possible. THINK - it really works.

Chief Norman is planning a program of Awareness. They will have the answers. Listen up and help them out. They are here to protect and serve us - let them.

My experience was nothing compared to a rape, but to me it was something! By sharing it, I hope that others may see that it can happen to them, too.

Janet Hundley,
Managing Editor

Continuing Education offers children's gymnastics classes

Teaching gymnastics classes has fulfilled Diane Keith's ambition to share her athletic skills with children.

Keith, who teaches children's gymnastic classes through UNCW's Department of Continuing Education, said she loves youngsters because "they have a great sense of humor."

"They love to learn and they're not egotistical yet," she stated.

The classes are open to children of different ages (6-14 years) and all levels of ability. The classes meet at different times between 3:15 and 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays in Hanover Hall gymnasium.

"For children that aren't enrolled now but are interested, we'll have a new semester starting January 14, which they can start registering for in December," she said.

Information on registration for the Spring semester can be obtained in room 212, Hoggard Hall.

Keith, a native of Wilmington, graduated from UNCW in 1974 and began teaching youth and adult gymnastics at the Chapel Hill YMCA in 1975. While there (1976-1980), she became Program Director. She started a fourteen-girl competitive team which placed sixth in the state last year and taught adult gymnastics for one semester at Carolina.

Next summer, Keith intends to complete work on her masters degree in Recreational Administration. She is a rated judge with the United States Gymnastics Federation and is also a member of the National Association of Women.

Keith's goals at UNCW include offering the highest quality gymnastics program in Wilmington for community youth, beginning a competitive team that would qualify for the 1982 N.C. State Championships and upgrading her gymnastics judges rating to the next level. She said that she would also like to start offering gymnastics classes to UNCW students, with hopes of forming a competitive college team.

UNCW's gymnastics program, according to Keith, is a progressive one with each student working at their own rate to achieve patches signifying the satisfactory completion of a level. Gymnasts who wish to may strive for the "Golden Gymnast" awards, which requires all A's with one B in school, the passing of various strength ability tests, the achievement of many gymnastic skills and vocabulary understanding. There will be a public exhibition December 19 from 7 to 10 p.m. in Hanover Hall.

Anyone who has had some competitive gymnastics experience (either teaching or participating) and would like to work with the UNCW gymnastics program should contact Diane Keith between 1 and 3 p.m. at extension 2546.

Keith said she would like to popularize the idea of having gymnastics at UNCW.

"To me, gymnastics is more of an art than anything else," she explained.

"I think that what appeals to kids is that they think it looks beautiful. They think they're going to look beautiful when they do it. And they are."

Addressers wanted immediately! Work at home - no experience necessary - excellent pay

Write National Service
9641 Mansfield
Suite 2004
Shreveport, Louisiana 71118

TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS
901 NORTH THIRD ST. - 762-3332
806 SOUTH COLLEGE RD. - 392-3222

PHOTO COPIES OPEN SATURDAYS

SHOEMAKERS
OFFICE SUPPLY

SECOND LOCATION

806 SOUTH COLLEGE ROAD

(next to Best Products)

NORCROSS GREETING CARDS

PHOTO COPY SERVICE

SOCIAL STATIONARY

GIFTS

PLUS OUR USUAL COMPLETE SELECTION OF SCHOOL SUPPLIES, OFFICE SUPPLIES AND FURNITURE (NEW AND USED)

10% off to students and teachers

everyday Low Prices - Compare and Save

Staedler
Drafting Supplies

Pentel pilot pens

Lamps
File cabinets
Desks-Chairs

1981 CALENDERS &
DATED GOODS are in stock

U.S. & World maps

We stock U.S. & N.C. Flags

The perfect way
to express your love

SONATA

Show your love with a perfect Keepsake diamond engagement ring.

Each Keepsake center diamond has perfect color, cut and clarity. Be assured of a perfect, brilliant diamond set in a beautifully styled 14 karat white or yellow gold ring.

Come choose your Keepsake ring today.

Keepsake®
Registered Diamond Rings

Mills INC.
Keepsake®
JEWELERS &
Accutron Center

Long Leaf Mall
Independence Mall

Prices from $200 to $10,000

Trade-Mark Reg.

UNCW University Union Opening 1982

New University Union to consolidate student services

The new University Union building is scheduled to be completed in mid-1982. Containing approximately 50,000 square feet, the union is being built by the Harnett Construction Co. at a cost of between three-and-one-half million dollars.

The Union will be located around the corner from the bookstore near the Wildflower preserve, and will have the same Georgian architectural design as other buildings on the campus. There will be columns across the main entrance and arches similar to those of the library along the west side. This side will also have a rotunda entrance.

The new University Union will consolidate student services. It will provide the means to bring together in one building the offices and services to more conveniently serve students. After its opening, the union will house the student supply store, the University Health Service, and a post office.

The post office will have mailbox space for every student, whether resident or commuter. Initially, 6,000 mailboxes will be installed with room for more as the enrollment grows. The post office will have its own zipcode. Also, in this area will be space for automatic banking services.

The union will consist of two stories built around a courtyard with a one story wing

UNC-Wilmington Campus Map

The future site of the new student union building.
*Indicates the location of UNCW's University Union, now under construction.

extending from the back of the structure. The first floor will house the post office, dining area, and the Student Supply Store. There will also be dressing rooms and storage and office space. A game room and a living room with two gas-fired fireplaces and a glass-enclosed study area will be located on the first floor.

A multi-purpose room, approximately 73 by 39 feet, will be available for concerts, dances, and other activities. There will be a ceiling-suspended screen and a control room for sound, lights and projectors. The dressing rooms in this area will provide a private place for performers to change and relax. A moveable partition can divide the room if necessary for two smaller events occurring simultaneously or, if a large crowd is expected, they can overflow into the landscaped courtyard.

The second floor will house the student and administrative offices and meeting rooms. According to Linda Moore, the architect has understood the whole idea of the university's needs and has created a workable, efficient office layout design. This layout includes administrative offices for the director and staff, SGA offices, and Seahawk and Fledgling offices.

WLOZ will have office and storage space as well as three studios on this floor. These studios are acoustically planned for good sound and include one studio for production, one for on-the-air programming, and one that will be shared with Video Tape for production.

The second floor is also the location for the Student Activities Director and staff and the University Program Board. Another feature is club closets which may be rented by the various clubs to be used for files or as storage areas and two small meeting rooms and two medium-sized meeting rooms.

The lounge on the second floor will be a quiet, nicely decorated room for more formal purposes. Its atmosphere will be conducive to religious services or formal ceremonies such as initiation of club officers.

Hinton James Hall originally intended for classrooms

When the new University Union Building is completed, it will be the first time that the campus has had a building that was designed specifically for union purposes.

Hinton James Hall, the building presently being used for student services, was designed as a classroom building. One of the three original buildings on the campus, it also housed at one time the auditorium and the cafeteria. It became the Student Services Building in 1972.

The building has undergone several remodelings. It was repainted and redecorated just before the Goodwood Tavern opened in 1975. After the bookstore moved in the fall of 1978, new lounge furniture was purchased and new colors chosen for downstairs.

The remodeling of other buildings has also affected Hinton James Hall. When the administration building was being remodeled, the student services building shared offices with the administration.

Career Planning and Placement shared the Seahawk-Fledgling office and V.A. shared with Counseling and Testing.

The classroom design of Hinton James Hall has hampered its efficient use as a student services building according to Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities. The result was offices being scattered around in various available rooms. Moore states that when the bookstore moved into its own building in 1978 some services were added to the student services building. The bookstore had previously occupied one third of Hinton James Hall.

The creation of the Goodwood Tavern which will celebrate its fifth anniversary in Nov-

See Hinton page 8

Hinton James Hall, the present student union, soon to be the former Pub.

UNCW's University Union: Administration officials, student

William Malloy, Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs

"I am very optimistic about the impact the new university union will have on the entire university community especially in terms of uniting interests and activities of commuter students as well as those of resident students. Hopefully, it will also be a place where students and faculty can come together in casual meetings or conversation.

In general, I envision it becoming the center of campus life. It will provide some critical space for various community groups to hold meetings and become more involved with the university.

The union will be a focal point for social activities before and after events. Its functional design will make this facility a show place.

Jairy C. Hunter, Vice-Chancellor of Business Affairs

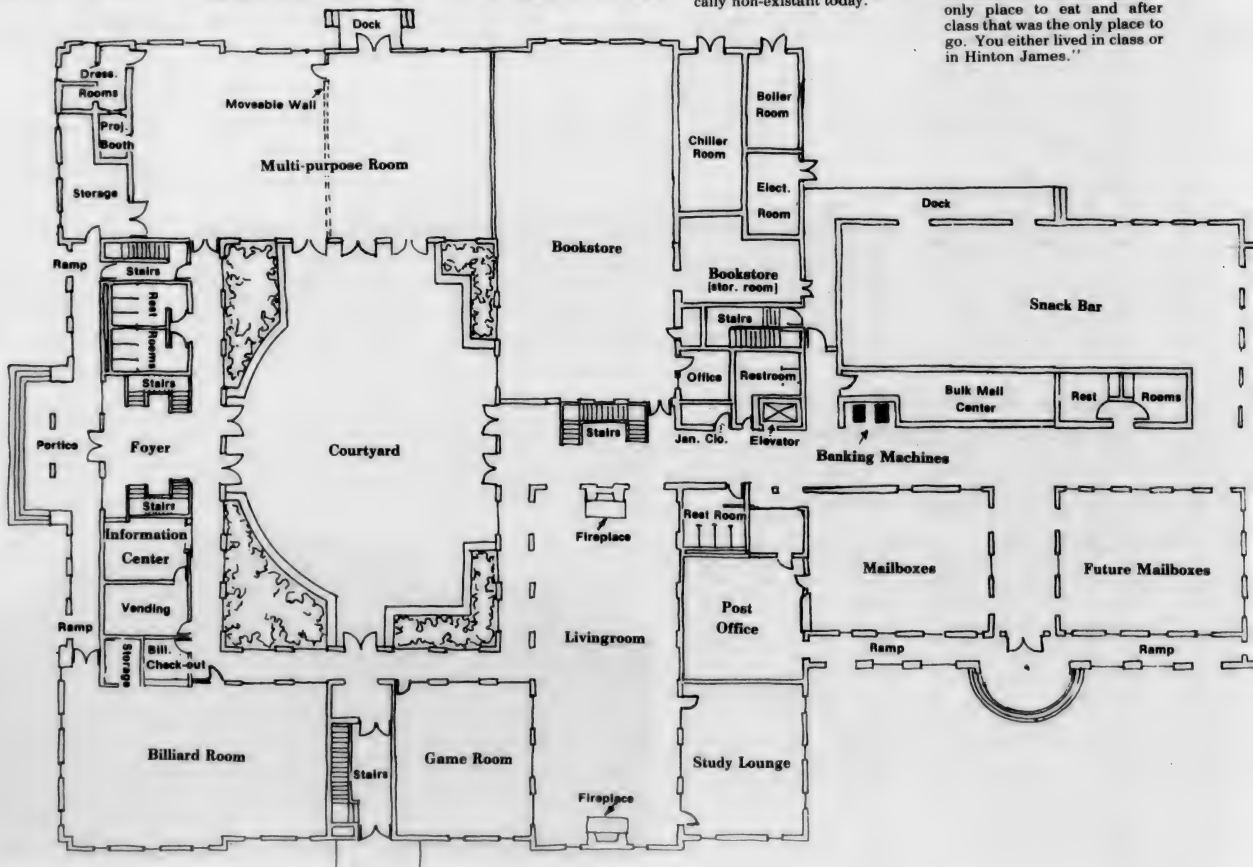

"The union will be one of the prettiest and one of the most functional buildings on campus. It should be the most popular "meeting place" on campus for students because of the various operations and programs.

The post box for every student would indicate that they go to the union every day. Fast food service will provide commuter students with the opportunity to mix with boarding students. The multi-purpose rooms will add new space dimensions on campus for cultural and social programming activities which are practically non-existent today."

Carl Dempsey, Assistant to Vice-Chancellor of Business Affairs

"The new building will be a magnificent improvement. I had music and art classes in Hinton James Hall when there were only 600 or 700 students enrolled. Downstairs was the only place to eat and after class that was the only place to go. You either lived in class or in Hinton James."

leaders express

Steve Gnad, Assistant Director of Student Activities

"The new University Center will provide the campus community with a facility that will serve as the campus living room. It will provide students with areas for recreation, studying, eating, and relaxing along with providing valuable services to the campus comm-opinions on newest unity as a whole. It will not only serve the campus, but provides the ideal atmosphere for community functions as well. Thus, bringing diverse populations together for interaction, which in it's self is educational."

Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities

"UNCW is gaining much more than just another building. The new Union, with it's unique focus on the community life of students, faculty, and staff alike, will no doubt prove to be one of the most vital components of UNCW's expanding educational mission."

Tricia Wallace, Editor
of THE SEAHAWK

"I think the new union building is fantastic. It will provide a totally different meaning to the words 'student union' because it truly will be a place designed to meet the specific needs of the students. The only thing I regret is that it won't be finished sooner."

Mark Davis, UPB
Chairman

"I feel that the new union will provide the students of UNCW a place that will be totally theirs. For so long the pub has been used for everything but total student activities. I sincerely hope that the administration does not place archaic regulations on the use of the union. Just because Wilmington college and UNC

addition to campus

Jessie Sanders,
SGA President

"The new union design for office areas will provide a more relaxed atmosphere.

Because of this design the SGA will be able to be more professional and more businesslike. We will have better communication with the students and be able to better serve them.

Combination of monetary sources finances Union

The University Union now under construction will cost approximately 3.5 million dollars. It will be financed with a combination of student fees, revenue bonds, and health and food service funds.

As with the bookstore, residence halls and food service facilities, the new Union must be a "self-supporting" operation, constructed and operated without the benefit of state appropriations.

Therefore, a new student fee was required this year, to increase the Union's income now, at a time when many of the costs of the project must be paid. Site clearing, subsoil borings, fill dirt, drainage culverts, and the extension of utility lines are examples of services which must be accomplished and paid for before construction can begin. Before the building is occupied, a large amount of money will also be needed to purchase furnishings, pay the architect, and cover operating costs.

Revenue bonds will be issued for 2,750,000 to provide the funds not on hand. Student fees collected during the life of the bond will be used to repay the bond's interest and principal.

College unions have existed for a long time

College unions are not a modern trend. In 1815, three debating societies at Cambridge University, England, founded the first union. The first union in the United States was established in 1832 at Harvard.

As in British universities, the Harvard union was for debating purposes. It was not until 1880 that the idea of the union as a general club was conceived. The first building constructed explicitly for union purposes was donated by the Houston family as a 'place where all may meet on common ground.' Houston Hall at the University of Pennsylvania, built in 1896, contained lounges, dining rooms, reading and writing rooms, and auditorium, game rooms and offices.

This idea of a common ground for students has come to be the prevailing philosophy of college unions. Part of the statement of college union purposes and functions unanimously adopted in 1966 and unanimously reaffirmed in 1964 states that:

As the 'living room' or the 'hearthstone' of the college, the union provides for the services, conveniences, and amenities the members of the college family need in their daily life of the campus and for getting to know and understand one another through informal association outside the classroom.

The programs and services offered by unions are diverse and extensive. The most common of these programs for social and cultural areas are concerts, lectures, films, dances and athletic events. Studies have shown that far more students attend cultural activities when they are held in the union than when offered elsewhere on campus or in town. According to a 1973 survey, 92 percent of these activities are initiated and coordinated by various program committees.

In 1914, The Association of College Unions-International was founded to provide unions the opportunity to join in studying and improving their programs and services. The Association is a member of the American Council on Education. The Association holds an annual international conference consisting of seminars and workshops designed to acquaint union professionals and other college officials with new or different programming ideas. In addition, nationally regional conferences are held in the autumn of each year.

Hinton from page 5

ember was one of Moore's first major projects after becoming Director of Student Activities. It is in what was once the Seahawk/Fledgling office. Moore says that Hinton James Hall has been through many changes like this one. WLOZ, which began as WC NU, was at one time in this building in the room that is now the office of Steve Gnadt, Assistant Director of Student Activities.

UNCW University Union

Articles by: Sherry Niven

Layout design by: Wendy Robbins, Janet Hundley

ONLY ONE CLASS RING PER PERSON.

Of all the fine class rings Jolsten's makes only one will matter to you.

WE make men's rings, women's rings, in traditional, classical, evening styles and more. Rectangular stones or oval stones with any birthstone color. Achievement panels that show your favorite extracurricular activity or sport. Rings of 14K or 10K white gold, yellow gold or even silver and lustrum.

COLLEGE RINGS FROM $105.30

Kingoff's
INC.
JEWELRY LEADING JEWELER

"If it's from Kingoff's...it's Guaranteed"

10 N. FRONT ST
762-5219

INDEPENDENCE MALL
799-2100

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsidars-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50 off

SURF SHOP

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

Surfboard Clearance
-Schraff-Alpa-Sunset-

Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Aleea

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

UNCW STUDENT SPECIAL

WHOPPER JR.

regular order of fries, and medium size soft drink

Make it
Special
Make it

$1.29

plus sales tax

4404 Oleander Dr.
4205 Market St.
819 S. 3rd St.

Limit one per customer. Please present this ad before ordering

©1980 Burger King Corporation

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks face nationally ranked Duke for spot in playoffs

Only one game remains in the UNCW soccer team's regular season, but that game now looms as the most important ever in the Seahawks' successful soccer history.

UNCW travels to Duke this Saturday (Nov. 8) for an 11 a.m. match that in recent days has taken on NCAA Division One playoff significance.

The Blue Devils, 13-2-2, are ranked third in the South. The Seahawks, 13-2 are riding an eight-game winning streak, are fifth in the weekly coaches' poll.

Alabama A&M (#1 in the South and #2 in the nation) and Appalachian State (#2 in the South and also nationally rated) appear assured of the two NCAA bids guaranteed the South Region. The large number of quality teams in the region, however, may persuade the selection committee to award one of four at-large bids to a third southern team.

It must be noted, too, that the weekly rankings do not necessarily reflect the NCAA selection board's rating of teams within a region.

For UNCW Coach Calvin Lane, though, Saturday's game at Duke is something very special.

"In my 10 years here, we have had many fine wins and a number of important games," Lane says, "but this one has to be the biggest of my career and certainly the most important ever for soccer at UNCW.

"We are fortunate to be in this position, where we can control our own destiny to a certain extent, but it is a real credit to this team that it has overcome the two losses in September and the replacing of six starters from last season to play itself into a playoff contender's role."

Of course, UNCW and Duke are not alone in their quest for a possible third playoff spot. South Florida is presently ranked fourth in the South, and N.C. State leaped back into the chase with an impressive 4-0 win over North Carolina last week.

The Wolfpack host Duke Wednesday and face Appalachian on Saturday. Carolina also still has the Blue Devils remaining on its schedule on Nov. 16th.

"Our team realizes what a win on Saturday could do, I believe," Lane says. "We must be careful, though, not to get caught up with any stargazing and forget to do the things that got us this far. I think that we'll be ready."

Regardless of Saturday's result, Lane has done an incredible job with this year's Seahawks. After losing six starters, including three of the top four scorers, the UNCW outlook appeared to have "rebuilding" written all over.

Fine goalkeeping from senior Charlie Ingold and leadership from the team's other three graduating players--Doug Allman, Doug Powell, and Michael Ruth--have been instrumental in keeping UNCW among the South's leaders in 1980.

Recent wins over South Carolina and William & Mary, then the South Atlantic Region's number one team, have provided vital late-season boosts to the young squad's confidence. Both teams had defeated the 'Hawks the past two years.

A victory over Duke would also set a new school record for wins in a single season, but with the other possibilities now involved, that record is suddenly diminished in importance.

Seahawks capture eighth straight victory

The UNCW Soccer Seahawks took their eighth straight victory Tuesday October 28, in their last home game of the season defeating the Methodist College Monarchs.

Now ranking sixth in the south, the Seahawks have a 13-2 record, one win shy of breaking the record for the most wins in a single season.

UNCW scored after 7:53 when Dave Karlson scored a goal on an assist by Dennis Davis. The next goal came unassisted by Dave Compere. Clinching the game, Slowinski and Karlson combined for the final goal.

Four seniors played their final home game for UNCW Tuesday - Doug Allman, Michael Ruth, Doug Powell and Charlie Ingold.

Sophomore Dave Karlson set a new record with his twelfth assist of the season.

The Seahawks outshot the Monarchs 25-13, earning eight corner kicks to the visitors one.

Basketball team to exhibit talent in Green and Gold Game

Area basketball fans will be given a preview of the 1980-81 UNC-Wilmington Seahawks this Tuesday in the annual Green-Gold intrasquad scrimmage in Trask Coliseum.

Game time is 7:30 p.m., with the public to attend free of charge.

Head coach Mel Gibson, entering his ninth season at UNCW, and first-year assistant Dave Hanners will serve as coaches for both squads throughout the regulation 40-minute contest. Rosters for the two teams will be announced later this week.

"The way we have been getting after each other in practice, maybe we should call this the Black-and-Blue game," Gibson comments. "We do have more capable individuals than perhaps we've ever had during my career here and the competition for playing time is going to be intense."

"We had originally considered not holding an intrasquad game this year, since we have the early date with the Canadian team, but with so many new people on our roster, we decided that we needed as much game-type experience as possible."

The Seahawks are coming off a third straight 19-win season in 1979-80, but have just two starters returning from last year's 19-10 squad. Senior Danny Davis (6'7) and sophomore Shawn Williams (6'4),

"The Home Court Advantage" cheer Seahawks to victory.

along with top backcourt reserve Dennis Tobin (6'3) are the leading returnees.

Davis is the club's top returning scorer (10.0 ppg) and rebounder (9.1), while both Williams and Tobin averaged more than eight points per outing a year ago.

The Seahawks face St. Francis Xavier University of Canada here on Sunday, Nov. 16, then officially open the 80-81 schedule on Nov. 29 at N.C. State.

Will 'Hawks have Home Court Advantage??

Last year's Seahawk basketball team had its best record in three years in Trask Coliseum, winning 10 games played here and losing only two.

Last year's team also benefited from "The Home Court Advantage," a group of concerned students who attempted to arouse crowd support for the 'Hawks at every opportunity.

Persons interested in participating in the 1980-81 Home Court Advantage should attend an organizational meeting on Tuesday, November 11, at 7 p.m. in Room 119, Trask. If a group of students wants to send one or two individuals as representatives, that's fine, too.

Questions regarding the Home Court Advantage should be directed to the UNCW Sports Information Office, John Justus, Director.

To Your Health by Muriel Ross

Cystitis, an inflammation of the urinary tract, commonly afflicts men and women. Symptoms are pain when urine is passed; frequency in passing urine; and occasionally passing blood from the urethra when voiding.

As the disease passes up the ureters and toward the kidneys, the pain becomes a dull ache, and a rise in temperature and general weakness occur. This is known as renal pyelitis.

The disease comes from a bacterial infection caused by wearing tight clothing and maintaining poor personal hygiene. Angela Kilmartin has an article in the health section of the "New Woman," July-August 1980 issue, that discusses the causative factors and preventative methods in detail.

If you have the above symptoms, the personnel at the Student Health Center will help you.

FALL SPORTS

November 8 - November 16
Date	Sport	Opponent
Nov. 8	Soccer	Duke	A
Nov. 11	Basketball	Green and Gold Game
Nov. 14	Swimming	N.C. State	H [5 p.m.]
Nov. 15	Swimming	College of Charleston	H [3 p.m.]
Nov. 16	Basketball	St. Francis Xavier [exhibition]	H [7:30 p.m.]

UNCW's financial aid program experiences tremendous growth

To meet and talk with Joe Capell, one would never guess what the soft-spoken affable and unassuming man could hold his own in the sometimes ruthless world of big business.

But if administrative prowess over multimillions of dollars is the yardstick for measuring success, then Joe Capell is a successful man.

As Director of Student Financial Aid at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Capell administers a financial aid program amounting to more than $2.5 million annually—quite a tidy sum when one considers that just ten years ago the entire student financial aid program at UNCW totaled only $73,277.

Almost half the student body—about 48 percent—are receiving financial aid of some sort," Capell said. "This includes those on scholarship, those in the work study and work assistance programs, and those receiving grants and loans to assist with educational expenses. We probably have a large number of other students who qualify for financial aid but did not receive any because they were late applying for it."

Capell noted that there is not official deadline for applying for assistance, but March 15 is the "priority" date for receiving first consideration for available monies. "If there are funds remaining after awards are made to those who applied by March 15, those who submitted applications after the priority date will be considered," he explained.

"Contrary to reports that there are millions of dollars in unclaimed financial aid available each year," Capell said, "UNCW disburses every dollar available in its financial aid program. Most of that unapplied for money is restricted as to geographic area, academic discipline, ethnic origin, or other qualifying factors which many students cannot satisfy," he explained.

"In this day and age with the inflationary trend in effect, I don't think there are very many schools which do not very quickly run through the money they have available for financial aid."

"As a service to our students, we are in the process of setting up a resource center which will contain information about those grants and scholarships which have peculiar requirements for eligibility," Capell said. The resource center will be housed in the financial aid office, and students who find aid funds for which they may qualify can apply directly to the foundations or organizations offering the awards.

The tremendous growth in the total financial aid program at UNCW, up from less than $75,000 in 1970 to over $2.5 million in 1980, Capell attributes to two factors. The first of these is the exceptional growth in enrollment at UNCW.

Generally students apply for financial aid as entering freshmen, and most of them continue to receive aid until they graduate. This has a mushroom effect. The second factor is that funds distributed under the guaranteed loan program have practically tripled under the present administration in Washington.

"The guidelines for eligibility for a guaranteed loan have been relaxed to the extent that financial need is not longer a factor as long as funds are available in the program," Capell said.

"Before the new guidelines were implemented, a student from a family with an income of $15,000 or more could not realistically expect to qualify. Now those from a family of four with an annual income of $25,000 generally can expect to receive some assistance," he stated. In addition to the changes in the guaranteed loan program, there have also been dramatic changes in the needs-analysis formula which have resulted in more leniency in other aid programs.

The needs-analysis is performed by the federally approved College Scholarship Service (CSS), a branch of the College Entrance Examination Board. Students applying for financial aid through UNCW are required to submit a financial statement to the CSS which determines from the data submitted how much the student's family can reasonably be expected to pay toward his or her education. "When we receive the needs-analysis report from CSS, we then plug the figures into our particular budget to determine the amounts and types of aid the student is eligible for," Capell said. "This is the student's financial aid package."

The base of every financial aid package at UNCW is the basic education grant, which is external to the needs-analysis.

If a student qualifies under the program, an index figure is assigned and reported to the school he or she will attend. The financial aid office then plugs the index figure into a chart to determine the amount of aid for which the student qualifies. Any other aid for which the student qualifies will be based upon, and in addition to, the amount awarded under the basic grant program.

Other forms of aid available at UNCW include supplemental grants, scholarships, guaranteed loans, national direct student loans, work study and work assistance.

Scholarship funds are derived from two major sources: state monies and private, organizational or foundation gifts. Capell said he would like to see a more balanced financial aid program that would allow for more scholarships to be awarded on the basis of scholastic achievement or merit rather than solely on the basis of need.

"While we do have some scholarships awarded on the basis of merit, the majority are given based on need," he said. "Our problem is that as a relatively young school, we do not have a heavy endowment from which to draw. As the institution's endowment grows, hopefully we will be able to expand the number of awards based solely on merit," Capell concluded.

Being 'Klutzy in the Kitchen' causes all sorts of problems

MY mother brought me another cookbook the other day. She smiled wistfully and gave it to me with a trembling hand, her eyes probing mine. Silently I stashed it under my bed, along with fifteen orphan socks and two man-eating dust-balls. She sighed, but squared her shoulders bravely. The woman never gives up hope.

I don't want to come out and say I'm a klutz in the kitchen, but one dose of my famous chili and your gut will never be the same. Even the dog has learned to approach his dish with a fire extinguisher. And the last time I cooked for my brother, his girlfriend refused to kiss him for a week, saying,

"Dr. Heidegger's Experiment" to be shown

"Dr. Heidegger's Experiment" a film based on a short story by Nathaniel Hawthorne, will be shown Wednesday, November 12 at 7:30 p.m. along with "The Blue Hotel" by Stephen Crane in the library auditorium. There is no admission charged for this English Club presentation.

"Congratulations Governor! Now Please tell the People how acting School can make them too, President."

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Rusa

"When I wanna cremate my tongue I'll date a blowtorch." (Actually, she left him for a circus fire-eater. Talk about irony!)

Personally, I think that God made spices to be used. Take your basic cayenne pepper, for instance. If that doesn't wake up bland old cottage cheese, nothing will. And garlic! Eat garlic every day and you'll never be mugged again. I tell you, the advantages of highly-seasoned foods are endless. You find out who your true friends are—they're the ones who still hang around after your third Flaming Burrito Supreme!

There are times when, in a reckless spirit of adventure, the family lets me in the kitchen for a full hour at a time. I mean, how much damage could I do in one lousy hour? Heh, heh, heh. Put it this way—Betty Crocker would've had a coronary. My latest culinary effort resulted in over-cooked ham, under-cooked rice, and downright raw banana pudding. After dessert Daddy put a firm hand on my drooping shoulder and said kindly, "You're my only daughter and I love you dearly, but you cannot cook worth a damn." I sobbed into the table scraps, and cried harder when I had to force-feed those to the dog.

Even the so-called instant foods are beyond me. No one will ever let me forget the time my quick, easy Chef-boy-arde pizza went into rigor mortis before I could get it out of the pan. Have you ever tried to eat rigid pizza? It's like gnawing on tomato-covered plaster—no fun, folks.

So now you know why I loathe Julia Child, why I sneer at Colonel Sanders. Fluffy crepes and perfect fried chicken are just a dream to me. Oh well, as long as Campbell's keeps making soup, I guess I can survive!

WLOZ 91.3 & THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD CONCERT COMMITTEE

WANT TO SEND YOU AND A FRIEND TO SEE
EMMYLOU HARRIS

WLOZ 91.3 AND THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD CONCERT COMMITTEE ARE GIVING AWAY TWO (2) FRONT ROW TICKETS, TO THE EMMYLOU HARRIS CONCERT ON NOVEMBER 9TH IN TRASK COLISEUM, TWO EMMYLOU HARRIS T-SHIRTS, AND ONE FULL COLOR POSTER OF EMMYLOU TO A LUCKY INDIVIDUAL.

YOU CAN BE THE ENVY OF EVERYONE AS YOU STROLL TO YOUR FRONT ROW SEATS ATTACHED IN YOUR 3 COLOR T-SHIRT WAVING YOUR FULL COLOR POSTER OF EMMYLOU, PLUS YOU'LL BE ABLE TO TAKE A FRIEND AND THEY'LL GET A MATCHING EMMYLOU HARRIS 3 COLOR T-SHIRT !!!

JUST LISTEN TO WLOZ 91.3 FOR DETAILS

- TICKETS, T-SHIRTS, AND POSTER ARE COURTESY OF BEST TICKETS PROMOTIONS-

CAMPUS CALENDAR

S.W.A.P. to sponsor Career Planning Day

S.W.A.P. held its regular meeting on November 4, 1980 with Ruth Broadwell, President presiding. Joining the club were: Tamara Shackelford, Maura Leonnally and Barbara Anderson. On November 25 at 3:30 p.m., S.W.A.P. will be sponsoring a Career Planning Day. The panel will consist of George Horrell, New Hanover Mental Health, Sandra Harkins from the Career Planning and Placement Office on campus, Wayne Morris from New Hanover Department of Social Services and Sid Bradshaw from Family Services. All who are interested and have specific questions that want answered about any welfare program are urged to attend.

Life Planning Workshop begins

Dr. Sue Lamb will be offering a Life Planning Workshop on November 14, 1980. Students who are interested in exploring their interests, values and abilities as they relate to the choice of a major, deciding on an occupation, as well as exploring their life goals are welcome to participate. Registration must be made before November 10, 1980. The workshop will begin at 3 p.m. on Friday, November 14, 1980. Since it will run past the dinner hour and into the evening, participants will be asked to brown bag their meal. Those who are interested should contact Dr. Lamb at her office in King Hall, 201-A, or contact the Counseling and Testing Center.

The panel will be held in Hoggard Hall, room 111. Watch the Seahawk and Morning for changes that may come about. S.W.A.P. also elected members to serve on committees. Tamara Shackelford and Maura Connolly are to head publicity and promotion, Mary Fleming and Mildred Beatty are on refreshments. Next club meeting will be November 18, 1980, 2:15 p.m. in Hoggard.

Workshop on helping assault victims

The division of Student Affairs will sponsor a three-hour workshop open to students, faculty, or staff on the topic of helping an assault victim. Attention will be focused on coping techniques useful to those who may be asked to give immediate help to a victim after an assault. Scheduled for Wednesday, November, 12th, at 6:30 p.m., it will be held in the Good Wood Tavern in the Student Services Building. For more information, contact the Student Union/Activities department or the Dean of Students Office.

Philosophy and Religion lectures continues

The Philosophy and Religion lecture series continues on Monday, November 10. Professor Sandy D. Martin plans to lecture on "The Black Theology of James H. Cone," a sketch of the intellectual development of a leading Black American Christian. The lecture will be held free of charge in the New Classroom Building at 7:30 p.m. A.K.

Psychology Club to host speakers

The winner of the Psychology Club Keg Raffle was Carl Hubbel of Galloway Hall. Congratulations, Carl!!

The Psych Club would like to extend their hearty thanks to Mr. Larry Shadrach of Hanover Distributing Company, 3801 Market Street for being so generous as to donate the keg for our raffle. Mr. Shadrach was willing to be of service to us--so, when buying your party needs remember Hanover Distributing Company.

On Tuesday, Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in E208 Dr. Andy Jackson from the UNCW Psychology Dept. will give a talk entitled: "A Day in the Life of an Industrial Psychologist." A Psych Club meeting will follow and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Also--on Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Eloise Thomas, Executive Director of the Hospice Society in Wilmington will give a talk on "The Hospice Concept." A Psych Club meeting will follow and again, all interested persons are urged to attend. The meeting will be in Hoggard 225.

THE CLOTHES HORSE has what you need to achieve the classic student look...

Khaki's, Cords, Oxford shirts, Blazers, Kilts, turtlenecks embroidered & plain, wrap skirts, Shetland sweaters embroidered & plain, Belt buckles & strips, Bermuda bags

all at low, discount prices

10% off with student ID

Valid November 7th thru 14th

(excluding sale items)

THE CLOTHES HORSE

3331 Wrightsville Ave.

799-8484

C.C.F. presents
The Pilgrims

CHRISTIAN ROCK & ROLL

TUESDAY NIGHT 8:00pm
IN THE PUB

COME AND BRING A FRIEND!

Home of the 5th.
Sub

SubShak

10% discount
with I.D.
(except on daily specials)

4501 Oleander Dr.
(in front of Harris Tetter)

791-0784

OPEN
Mon. thru Sat.
11:am - 9:pm

ABC
permits

Now available

WHSL

&
WVLL

Moneysaver Cards

GOOD COUPON FOR

50¢ OFF

Purchase of any Sub

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS
 1 Disney deer
 6 Having wings
 11 Block
 14 Woodwinds
 15 Quibble
 16 Anger
 17 Climate knowledgeable 19 Through 20 Smooth-breathing
 21 Hawk
 22 Cedar prod-
 23 uct
 24 Dregs
 26 Puts away
 27 Thinner
 30 Lively dances

DOWN
 1 Rose —
 2 Busy as —
 3 Sad sound
 4 Astringent seed
 2 words
 5 Sort of Suff
 6 Farm units
 7 Grassy area
 8 Eager
 9 Poetic contraction
 10 Voter
 11 Distractions
 12 Originate
 13 Ham and beef
 18 Constantly
 23 Dance
 25 Fish
 26 Pung
 27 Scourge
 28 Inner Pref
 29 Of bodies
 30 Presents
 65 Readjust
 31 Asseverate

BAMBI ALATE DIAM
 OBOES CAVIL TIRE
 WEATHERWISE VIA LEWIS VENDOR
 CLEVER STORIES
 LEANER GALLOPS
 ANNUL LIVED LIST
 STAT LOVED MOLE
 HOT DINER TENON
 OPINES COASTS
 REMOVE BOON
 ELITE SALT DAPS
 MAC STATISTICAL
 ITA TYROS OMEGA
 TEL BEAMS RESET

33 Single
 35 Keyway
 36 Decimal units
 38 Can-US border 39 Interim
 41 Undresses
 42 Also
 44 Kitchen item
 45 Army beds
 46 Send payment
 47 Overjoy
 48 Gladness
 50 FDR's mother
 51 — bomb
 53 Cards
 54 110
 55 Spine
 58 Fasten
 59 Ont. city

JUNIORS/SENIORS EARN OVER $750.00 PER MONTH WHILE FINISHING SCHOOL

Get a head start on an exciting, Challenging position after graduation. While you finish school, we will pay you over $750.00 per month to study and maintain good grades. We have the best graduate level nuclear training program in the world and math, physics, chemistry, technical majors and engineering students can Qualify. You must be a U.S. citizen, less than 27 years old, have a 2.8 GPA or better and be willing to travel world-wide, send college transcript and letter of interest to:

Lt. Russ Jowers
 Navy Nuclear
 Programs Manager
 1001 Navaho Dr.
 Raleigh, N.C. 27609

or call 1-800-662-7568

Leo's BEER KING

10 0/0 discount for students on sandwiches

Happy Hour Mon.-Fri.
 5:30-7:00

221 Kerr Ave.
 392-0480

WE'RE GOING BANANAS
 NOVEMBER 1-16 DURING OUR 11th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

OUR FAMOUS BANANA SPLIT
 FOR ONLY 1.00

TO BE ON TOP!
 THE CROWNING GLORY

I'LL GO
 NUTS
 OVER ME!

WHAT A WHIPPED CREAM!
 I'LL MELT IN YOUR MOUTH!

I HAVE A CRUSH (PINEAPPLE)
 ON YOU!

WE SERVE ONLY
 THE FINEST
 BANANA SPLIT
 WITH WHIPPED CREAM AND CHERRY TOPPING

4306 Market Street
 N. 17 Shopping Center

MAYBERRY Longleaf Mall Shopping Center
 Next to Theatre

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 11

November 13, 1980

Eight Pages

Bear cub retrieved from tree near Marine/Biology building

by Christy Allen

As I walked down the hall last Friday, late again, I hear an instructor apologize to her students.

"I'm sorry I'm late, but there was this bear outside."

I thought I'd heard a lot of good ones from students but from an instructor, well, really.

I stepped into class in time to see Dr. Rosselot beat his forehead with his fist and moan, "This never happens when I'm teaching 'The Bear!'"

I began to get suspicious. A few inquiries revealed that there really was a bear somewhere in the vicinity of the Marine/Biology Building. After class, I dashed outside and followed the crowd of curiosity-seekers swarming in that direction.

At last I spied a black ball on a small branch near the top of Where's my mommy?

a tall tree. Pressing closer into the growing crowd, I took a better look. Sure enough, clinging desperately to that skinny branch was a little bear cub.

photo by Beri Marshall

News men, cameramen, police, and men with trucks and cages were on the scene and spectators like me were roped off. Huzzahs and huzzahs were running through the crowd. I kept hearing phrases such as,

"Shoot it. . ."

"SHOOT IT?!"

"With a dart gun, dummy."

"Get a net, lasso him, too."

"Her, what about Mama Bear?"

Finally, things seemed to get organized. A truck with a "cherry picker" rolled up under the tree and two men climbed into the little box-like compartment. They rose slowly toward the cub. One man held a little pole with something similar to a noose attached to the end of it.

They got level with the bear, but suddenly I was a member of a large chorus of screams and wails as the terrified creature toppled off his branch. This was followed by trembling sighs as he scrambled back to safety.

The man with the noose quickly hooked the bear by the neck and the "cherry-picker" began its slow descent. I mean slow. I wondered about the strength of the man's forearms as he held onto the pole. The poor bear dangled in the air with his paws fighting the noose. I thought about strangling, suffocation.

But, at long last, he reached the ground, or cage, I should say, for he was deposited directly in one. The crowd cheered and engulfed the cage.

I walked off, speculating on the little bear's trauma when I heard a student sum it up beautifully. He said, "Suppose you were clinging to a tiny branch of a very tall tree and a hundred bears were staring up at you."

Country vocalist Emmylou Harris presented 'polished performance' in Trask Coliseum

by Julie Russ

The Emmylou Harris concert in Trask Coliseum November 9 was a classic, polished performance by one of country music's brightest stars.

Opening for Emmylou were the popular, Chapel-Hill based group The Red Clay Ramblers. They turned in a tight, well-paced set, ranging from scorching fiddle solos to the haunting, Neil Young-ish pathos of "Aragon Mill." A real crowd-pleaser was the novelty song I Crept Into the Crypt and Cried," the story of an Egyptian pyramid-builder who loses his girl to the mighty pharaoh.

Although the crowd was appreciative of the hard-playing Ramblers, it was Emmylou they came to hear, and it was Emmylou they finally got.

Stunningly lovely in a white fringed skirt and high-heeled boots, the Country Music Association's Entertainer of the Year strolled onstage to thunderous applause. She wasted no time in launching into a spirited version of "Sister's Comin' Home" and then eased into "Blue Kentucky Girl," the title cut from the 1979 LP that won her a Grammy. The celebrated crystal voice never wavered as it soared on the lines "I swear I love you, by the moon above you/How bright is it shining in your world?" She slipped into a vibrant wail on the last verse, singing "Just come on home to your blue Kentucky girl" as if her heart were rattling in her throat.

Clutching her trademark black Gibson guitar, Emmylou offered a shy salutation to the cheering crowd. "It's so nice to be here," she smiled, and then commented about a piece of graffiti "someone left on the chalkboard in my dressing room. It said 'Mamas, don't let your daughters grow up to be barmaids.' So this song is for that lovely sentiment." And with that she threw back her hair and delivered one of her biggest hits, "Even Cowgirls Get the Blues."

Her on-stage prancing and duck-walking suggested that this lady is becoming more and more comfortable with the fringes of rock 'n' roll. Riffing enthusiastically and skipping across the stage, she provided a welcome relief from, say, Crystal Gayle's stiff-limbed concert persona.

After "Making Believe," the kind of ballad her voice was designed for, she paused and said, "Everyone here is bein' so nice. I've already had an invitation to run for Homecoming Queen, but I've got to move on down the road, you know." That was a fitting introduction to the haunting "Quarter Moon in a Ten Cent Town," a mournful song that caused sighs to waft through the audience.

The renowned Hot Band was in fine form, and really tightened up on the gritty "Two More Bottles of Wine." On this number Emmylou showcased her impressive vocal range. She dipped from a girlish, lilting chant ("Well I'm sixteen hundred miles from the people I know") to a truly astonishing rasp ("But it's alright, 'cause it's midnight/And I got two more bottles of wine!")

She introduced the next song as "a Creedence Clearwater Revival tune that's gonna be on my next album, which will come out when it comes out." With that refreshing attitude "Bad Moon Rising" was performed with rollicking vigor. "Hop you've got your things together," she sang, and it was obvious that both she and the band did.

Then Emmylou paid tribute to her years of partnership with the legendary Gram Parsons, whom she recorded duets with up until his death. "Streets of Baltimore" (which she dedicated to her father), plus "Hickory Wind" and the raucous "Ooh, Las Vegas" were performed with quiet intensity and carefree whooping, respectively.

"It's a hard way to find out That trouble is real/ In a faraway city

See Emmylou p. 8.

Goodwood anniversary celebration planned

by Julie Russ

The Goodwood Tavern, that cozy little snack bar, is celebrating its five-year anniversary November 13-14-15. Besides being a gathering place for students, the Goodwood has, over the years, been the scene of some red-hot hoedowns.

A partial list of performers who have graced the tavern include Mike Cross, Barry Drake, Mike Williams, Laura Mae McLean, and Robert Starling. These and other Half-Moon Coffeehouse acts have popularized the Goodwood's reputation as a showcase for up-and-coming artists.

In celebration of the tavern's fifth year, the University Program Board's Half-Moon Coffeehouse is pleased to announce three nights of down-home entertainment, beginning with the Local Yokels Talent Contest Thursday, November 13. Everyone is urged to enter this informal open-mike event—you do not have to be a student to participate. If you can pick and grin (not necessarily at the same time), sign up in the Student Activities Office. If you just want to watch, BYOB, lay back, and be ready for some good entertainment!

Friday, November 14, brings John Stanfield to capture your ears with his incredible skill on the twelve-string guitar. John has played in clubs and colleges from North Carolina to Canada, and has earned rave reviews for his versatility—he's a songwriter, fiddler, extraordinary singer, guitarist, and also an off-the-wall comedian! John's style ranges from no-nonsense rifling to laid-back picking on songs like "Ode to Joy" and "Somewhere Over the Rainbow." John has appeared on stage with such famous entertainers as John Prine, the Pure Prairie League, and Tom Rush.

John recorded his debut album, "Carolina 12-String", in 1977. He is currently working on his second LP, which he expects to release later this month. For an evening of quality music, be in the Goodwood Friday night, and don't forget to BYOB!!

Saturday night the John Santa Band will be appearing in the lounge area of the Pub. This Chapel-Hill based band has been in existence for eight years, and they have just released their first album on Moonlight Records entitled "Rainmaker." This LP is already making quite a splash in UNC-C record shops. It represents the culmination of years of effort for this talented group of musicians known collectively as the John Santa Band.

The band's material ranges from blistering electric guitar to softly whispering acoustic solos that are reminiscent of Leonard Cohen. "Wish I Knew How To Dance" and "Rock and Roll Song" are satirical viewpoints of life in the music biz. All songs are original material, and basically defy descriptive phrases, expect for one, which says it all: their tunes are good. Come out and hear the fresh quirky sound of the John Santa Band. BYOB and settle back for a good listen!

As always with coffeehouse productions, admission is nil, that's right—another freebie courtesy of your pals on Program Board! Events on all nights will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m. . . . so plan to join your buddies in the Goodwood Tavern this weekend, and celebrate the tavern's fifth year of musical history!

LETTERS

To the Editor:

I had the opportunity to read a "letter to the editor" in last week's SEAHAWK. This letter was written by a certain Steve Schmidt, President of the Sophomore Class, and, I imagine, a member of our distinguished Senate.

Let me just say for the record that I was appalled, and indeed shocked at the manner in which Mr. Schmidt attempted to express himself by the written word. Mind you, I'm not an English major, and certainly do not have any expertise in journalism, but Mr. Schmidt's letter was so blatantly illiterate that I can't help but question the over-all intelligence of the Senate.

Do we, as students of this University, have to expect this type of leadership, especially when this leadership determines the fate of over 100,000 dollars of our fee money every year? I should hope not!

I imagine that this all goes to prove that the "Peter Principle" is alive and well in the UNCW SGA.

Disparagingly,
Don Roberts
Sophomore

Dear Editor,

I am a prisoner at Arizon State Prison on death row, and I was kind of wondering if your paper could do me a favor. I've been here for quite some time now and I'm without friends on the outside world to correspond with. I don't know whether your paper usually does things of this nature but I would appreciate it very much if you could help me out. Since I don't know if you have an ad section or what, I'll just write out a small advertisement and if you feel that it needs to be changed in any way you can go ahead and do so. Death row inmate desires correspondence with college students. Age 28 - Afro-American male. Wish to form open, honest relationship and more or less exchange ideas and experiences. Will answer all letters, if interested write to Spencer Watson, P.O. Box 30756-C-Unit, Florence, Arizona 85232

Sincerely yours,
Spencer Watson

I declare the following positions open in the UNCW Student Government Association:

1. One (1) Senior Class Senator position.
2. One (1) Representative-At-Large position.

Students wishing to get into these positions should file a petition with the SGA office. This petition should be composed of:

1. Senior Class Senator - 50 signatures of members of the Senior Class.

2. Representative-At-Large - 50 signatures of any enrolled student at UNCW.

If two (2) or more people file for these offices, there will be a special election held.

For further information, please contact our office.

Thanks,
Charles B. Parsons
SGA Vice President

Due to the tremendous response by the student body concerning this matter, a resitting has been scheduled for those students who missed the yearbook photo session. It will be November 19 for seniors only and November 20 and 21 for underclassmen only. These pictures will be taken in the Pub, so come early. Arrangements must be made to pay for underclass pictures at the time they are taken. Seniors will be allowed to pay at a later date because they will receive proofs. For more information on prices, contact the Fledgling office.

Attention Clubs and Organizations. If you are interested in having your picture in this year's Fledgling please contact our office before November 26 and schedule a time to have it taken.

Each club and organization has the opportunity to purchase an additional page for $20. If interested please contact the Fledgling office before November 26. Office hours are M-W-F 9:30-10:20, 11:30-12:20 and M-W 1:30-3 or call Aida at 791-0426.

LOOK, LADY— YOU'RE THE ONE WHO ASKED FOR A FAMOUS MOVIE STAR WITH DARK HAIR, STRONG NOSE AND DEEP SET EYES...

...RETURN WITH US NOW TO THOSE THRILLING DAYS OF YESTERYEAR,

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Sportswriters: Jim Davis

Production: Freda Pyron, Wendy Robbins

Photography: Chip Hackler

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Brian

Typesetters: Chryl Kane,

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Election day 1980 brings back memories of previous presidents

Election day 1980 and in a few hours we'll have a new (or renewed) president. But it doesn't seem to matter; no one man can get us out of the mess we're in. Any of them will have strengths and weaknesses. Any of them will serve as whipping boy, taking the name but unable to win the game of leadership. So I turn from present day computer scores and think about other elections, other presidents I have seen and especially about the one I loved.

I remember Election '52 and our house divided between the Egghead and the General. I remember LBJ trying to win on his own merit not as JFK's heir but only winning because Goldwater scared the hell out of people. And I remember Richard M., victory fingers spread, vowing to bring us together and to light up The White House again. Then I remember fleetfooted Ford matching wits with the Peanut Farmer. But, most of all, I remember The President.

In 1959 not many of us Ohioans knew John F. Kennedy. Oh sure, thanks to the press, we knew about him; he was a wealthy, Irish-Catholic, senator from, as he said, "Massachusetts." It was all derogatory information. In our mid-east corner of the state we didn't have much use for rich, idol-worshipping swells. Some of our "best friends" were Irish or Catholic or wealthy but the combination was unbearable.

But then he came to us—unpretentious, uncondescending, unpresumptuous. He walked the stark, black-poverty hills of our close neighbor, West Virginia, and we began to catch hope from Kennedy's sometimes pained countenance. We knew his expression stemmed not from distaste for poverty's sights and smells but because, like so many of us, his back ached. Then we watched and listened as he spoke with Paul Long on Pittsburgh's KDKA-TV. And

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

we not only had hope; we had a dream.

The election was close, the closest ever, but our boy, our John won.

Inauguration Day 1960 there wasn't any school. I wasn't quite 13 but I watched the ceremonies as if I were a full-fledged, voting-age adult.

"Ask not what your country can do for you," he told me. "Ask what you can do for your country." And the dream became a cause. Someday I would go to Washington and serve my country. Someday I would offer the sacrifice of myself to JFK. He wasn't just our president now; he was MY president.

For a thousand days he ruled and for a thousand days my devotion to him grew. Certainly there was a crisis; things like Cuba's missiles worried even me. But it wasn't a heavy kind of worry. After all, god was in the White House so all was right with my world. Even when his infant son died I remained unshaken in my belief in his omnipotence. Tragedy enhanced his humanity; it didn't warn of his mortality.

What class was I in November 22, 1963 at 12:30? I can't remember. All I recall is that I was sitting next to Charlie Jones and we were passing outrageously funny notes, stifling uncontrollable laughs behind our textbooks. I still wonder how I could have possibly been laughing as, miles away, a little man named Oswald wiped chicken grease on his pants and, picking up a mail-order rifle, felled a giant.

Around 12:40 the PA crackled into life and Charlie and I looked up expecting to hear Mrs. Baughman, the school's secretary. Instead we heard a radio voice, "Three shots were fired at President Kennedy's motorcade today in downtown Dallas." We sobered but not grievously. After all nothing could happen to him.

Again a crackle, "No casualties were reported." We sighed, our relief cut short by, "President Kennedy is believed to be seriously, perhaps fatally wounded."

"Perhaps fatally?" How could that be? It must be a mistake, had to be a mistake. Charlie and I were holding hands now in a tight scared-child grip. The bell rang and we stumbled out the door, trying to remember where we were supposed to be, what class we should go to now. Ten minutes later, seven minutes late for whatever class I should have been in, I found myself in the bathroom, sitting on the toilet, crying and praying.

At 1:34 the world ended. The President was dead. Dead-as in not alive anymore—dead.

Three days later he was buried. Those days I spent watching television; crying as Jackie knelt and kissed the flag on his coffin; crying as the riderless Black Jack, JFK's boots strapped backwards in the stirrups, skittered nervously in front of the six-horse drawn caisson; crying as John-John saluted the passing casket. Or I dozed, waking with little jerks and a feeling something was wrong and, with the renewed knowledge, crying again, crying tears like dogs-day rain—uncomforting, unceasing, unrelenting.

Pictures declare those days were sunny, impossibly clear-skied. Yet how could the sun have been shining when the world was so grayly, heavily, dim? But slowly those days passed. LBJ became the president, took up the reins of office, replaced Jack's rocking chair with his own. The thousand and four days were over. And so were the hope and the dream and the cause.

"Four Days," a record compiled by UPI and American Heritage of Nov. 22-25 includes the conclusion of the speech to have been delivered at Dallas. It ends with the biblical quote, "Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." Perhaps the Lord still kept American but the watchman, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, was gone. And so we slept.

NEXT TIME
YOU BOWL

"WHERE THE FAMILY BOWLS"

CARDINAL LANES

Bowling at its best. BRUNSWICK
32 ASTROLINE LANES

PRO SHOP — SNACK BAR — PLAY ROOM
POOL TABLES

3907 Shipyard Boulevard
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

799-3023

Join the UNCW Bowling Club every Thursday at 4:00

First Impressions Count

For Complete
Hair Care Service
Come To

Larry's Style Shop

Long Leaf Mall

Shampoos, cut,
And Blow Dry

6.50

Hours:

By Appointment
Or Walk-In

Call 799-5029

Tues. - Fri. 9-7

Sat. 9-4

Now NY Style pizza only at the Pizza Port

LUNCHTIME BUFFET

All pizza and salad you can eat

$2.50

Mon-Fri

11:30-2:00

Remember UNCW
students & faculty,
10% discount

104 Pine Grove Dr.

Off S. College
1 block past
Wrightsville Ave.

Social Workers Association for People sets out to achieve goals

by Christy Allen

The Social Workers Association for People began its fourth year of operation this fall, with Dr. Blanks and Dr. Shevach serving as co-advisors.

The club sets out every year to achieve certain goals. For instance, it sends food baskets to the elderly at Thanksgiving, and at Christmas, the club sends gifts to the children at O'Berry, a home for retarded children.

In addition to the various community service projects, the club sponsors workshops and guest speakers from such places as Social Security and mental health institutions. The club also keeps a file in the Sociology Department on careers and post-graduate work for sociology majors.

This year, the club will try to set up a peer-counseling and crisis-intervention center for the campus. The counselors will be trained for their various duties. Since no funds were given, this project, similar to one at U.C.L.A., will be ran on a volunteer basis. This should be a blessing to many who have needed help of this nature. This project will also offer an information and referral service to "lost in the jungle" freshmen and returning students.

Cookouts, parties, and other social activities are also on the agenda as usual, so all members, old and new, should have a good year, according to Dr. Blanks, the club's co-advisor.

The club is open to all sociology majors, faculty, and interested students. Club meetings will be held every other Tuesday at 2:15 p.m. in Hoggard Hall.

Sopping up the suds, watching preppies satisfies mood for adventure

The next time you're in the mood for adventure, do this: first, pull on the penny loafers and head down to Red Dog's or Sgoddors or whatever they call it these days. Grab a brew and ogle the preps for a while. See the shiny blow-dried hair. See the white teeth. Look, look, there go forty-five girls wearing the same outfit. Oh, my. Count the add-a-beads (do you know what those little gold balls stand for? Huh? Do ya?). Do you know how many alligators had to die to make one authentic Izod shirt?

Seems like the look is here. Accept it. Of course, the same people who look Nice in khakis and buttondowns would look equally Nice in ragged Levis and Mickey Mouse sweat-shirts... but Mickey Mouse is not in fashion, you see.

You know you've stayed too long in Preppie heaven when the sight of another plaid skirt makes you feel hostile. Relax and leave the premises. Take

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

a stroll across the street into the Wits' End. Talk about your culture shock! Yep, the American Redneck still exists (just ask Charlie Daniels!)

Shoulder up to the bar and try to catch the bartender's eye. Ignore the big hulk in the lumberjacket next to you. If he isn't drunk, chances are he wishes he was, so either way... leave him to his Miller.

Finally, you get you beer. Wrap your little paw around it and casually begin to inspect the place. Vive la difference! Nary a prep in sight—they'd probably be devoured before they reached the bar.

Ahem, and what about your attire? Chances are you'll blend in alright, even with penny loafers on. Just duck your head, be inconspicuous, and for God's sake don't bump into anyone—you may leave faster than you came.

This is one bar where people really do watch the TV, no kidding. Conversation is carried on during commercial breaks, and woe betide him who hollers, "Change the channel!" Eventually you get bored with the tube (so what else is new?) and you waft into the other room, where the pool sharks swim. Watch out for carelessly swung cue sticks, and if you happen to stumble over someone who is crouched intently over the pool table—run! It is not good to distract a guy who is trying to win fifty bucks.

Once you've sopped up the suds and satisfied your curiosity about how the other half lives, you can call it a night. Oh, and don't worry about where you fit in between preppies and rednecks. If you're like most people, you walk a fine line between monogrammed shirts and Miller Time!

A & G OUTLET

Glen Mead Plaza

Mens button down oxfords

reg. $14.00

now 1 for $6.95 2 for $10.00

Turtleneck tops

embroidered & prints

$12.95 - $15.95

Mens sweaters

crew neck, cardigan, v-neck, sweater-shirts

reg. retail $20.00 - $30.00

A & G price $9.95 - $12.95

New shipment of famous namebrand knit shirts

reg. $32.00

A & G price $18.95

Mens Velours

reg. $24.95

Now $9.95

SHOES

Mens & Womens

Gum Shoes

$24.95

Blucher & Camp Moccasins

just like LL Bean

selected group of ladies

1st quality 100% shetland sweaters

reg. $18.00 - $30.00

A & G price $9.95

Luggage

Nylon, Waterproof

Hanging Bags & Suitcases

Can be monogrammed for Christmas

Engraved Earring, Key Chains,

Belt Buckles, and Raquet Plaquets

10% off with this ad

Let your love show

FRESNO

Express your love, beautifully, with a Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Every Keepsake center diamond is guaranteed in writing, forever, to have fine white color, perfect clarity and precise modern cut. Keepsake. The perfect way to show your love, when it's for keeps.

Trade-Mark Reg.

Keepsake®
Registered Diamond Rings

Mills INC.
Keepsake®
JEWELERS & Accutron Center

Rings from $200 to $10,000

'Sky,' John Williams fuse classical with rock on album

by David Carter

Alas, poor Sam Dorsey - an honest musician instructor with a simple desire - to be the first classical musician signed to Arista (Home of Clive Davis) Records. Sam has been nipped in the bud by classical guitarist, John Williams. Please note this is not John Williams of Star Wars and now Boston Pops fame. Classical guitarist, John Williams, is ranked with Julian Bream and Christopher Parkening and is considered to be one of the finest guitarists in the world. He's also one of the most open-minded people currently working in any form of music. For years, now, rock musicians have been trying to fuse rock and classical with widely varying degrees of success. John Williams is the most important classical artist to ever fuse classical with rock and make no mistake "Sky" is a rock group.

Williams has picked his fellow musicians carefully and the results are amazing. That he should be brave enough to try this direction is not that surprising - a few years ago he did an album with jazz vocalist Cleo Waine. John Williams has always been able to see that some musical boundaries stretch beyond the stayed confines of the concert hall. Actually the story first begins after Yes's lead guitarist, Steve Howe, gave John Williams an electric guitar. One thing led to another and now we have the second LP or first American-release of Sky. The group boasts some of the finest rock musicians Europe has produced. Their names show up constantly on albums by a whole galaxy of recording stars though their names would at first appear anonymous. They include Herbie Flowers, Kevin Peck, Iristan Fry, and Francis Monkman.

Sky's new album is a double album priced as a single. It's music runs the spectrum of styles that include traditional classical to driving rock with John Williams wringing notes and tones from his guitar that would satisfy the most demanding critic. The wholly instrumental album is more than just a forum for one of the greatest classical guitarists in the world. The rest of the band is also allowed to display its prodigious talents within the realms of taste - but avoiding the footfalls of boring self indulgence.

Poor Sam Dorsey - condolences should be sent to Sam Dorsey in care of UNCW Music Department. "Play It Again Sam," and buy Sky.

Forensics Team places fifth

by Beri Marshall

Congratulations! The UNCW Forensics Team placed fifth in competition with 28 other universities in the Appalachian State Mountain Tournament at Boone, N.C.

In individual events, Lisa Sanders won first place for Informative Speaking, and Aaron Oliver placed fourth for Informative Speaking.

Considering that the UNCW team was one of the smallest entries in the tournament, Coach Rosenthal notes that the team is one of "quality."

So far this year, the team has won 13 awards in just three tournaments. Dr. Rosenthal says that he is "very pleased with the progress so far this year."

The team is preparing for a tournament at Ohio University the weekend before Thanksgiving.

An invitation is extended to anyone who would like to watch rehearsals, which are held Tuesday nights at 7 in K103.

Residence hall registration

All University of North Carolina at Wilmington students who wish to live on campus during the 1981-82 academic year must register for the residence hall and apartment lottery on or before December 1, 1980. Registration is being conducted in the Housing Office in Belk Hall between 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. through December 1, 1980. Names for residence hall and apartment spaces will be drawn December 2, 1980.

BERTS

Wrightsville Beach

SURF SHOP

Beach Footwear
Portsidlers-Topsiders

Lightning Bolt Jewelry

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neill, Bayley, Aleeda

Summer Wear Clearance
20-50 off

Short & long sleeve surf tee-shirts

Surfboard Clearance
-Schraff-Alpa-Sunset-

Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt & Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110
6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

GOODWOOD

ANNIVERSARY WEEKEND

NOV. 13-14-15

Thurs., Nov. 13

Fri., Nov. 14

Sat., Nov. 15

LOCAL YOKELS TALENT CONTEST

Prizes offered! Get your act together and sign up in the Student Activities Office - Goodwood Tavern 8:30 p.m.

JOHN STAMFIELD

Fiddle, 12-string with slide. Carolina 12-string, his guitar and mandolin for acoustic on WLOZ. Listen for his entrance! Goodwood Tavern 8:30 p.m.

JOHN SANTA DAND

Ultra high-energy, acoustical band - Rock, Bluegrass - Anything new happen - Pub 8:30 p.m. Then at 10 p.m. Reunited, is also available at W.

No admission charges. Bring your own celebration!

UNCW

SPORTS

Soccer team receives national ranking

by Jim Davis

With only fourteen minutes left in a scoreless game against Duke, sophomore Dave Karlson fired in a goal for the Seahawks in one of the most spectacular victories in UNCW soccer and sports history.

The Seahawks improved their ranking to third in the South behind Alabama A&M and Appalachian State, who rank in the top ten nationally. It was announced Tuesday that UNCW had earned a spot in the national poll with a twentieth ranking position.

Going into the contest, Duke had ranked tenth in the nation and third in the South. UNCW entered the contest ranked fifth in their region.

Duke seemingly controlled the ball during the first half but never really had a shot at

"I believe we are very worthy of a playoff bid," Coach Calvin Lane.

a goal.

The winning goal for the

'Hawks was scored when Doug Allman took the ball down the right sideline and passed it to Charlie Walls who headed a perfect set-up for sophomore Dave Karlson beating the Duke goalkeeper with a left-footed shot into the left side of the goal.

The Seahawks then withstood a furious Duke rally with goalie Charlie Ingold making two critical saves, preserving the victory and the shutout. The shutout was the nineteenth of his career for Senior Charlie Ingold, tying the school record.

This week the Seahawks await the NCAA selection committee's decision on Sunday, to see if they will make the 20-team national playoffs later this month.

The Seahawk men's and women's swimming teams open their 1980-81 season here Friday evening against none other than Atlantic Coast Conference champion N.C. State.

Times for the meets, which are free to the public, are 5 p.m. for the women and 7 p.m. for the men.

The 'Hawks will also be in action on Saturday at 3 p.m., hosting the College of Charleston.

"We're looking forward to the meets this weekend, and to our whole season," coach Dave Allen says. "We have an extremely challenging schedule, with State, North Carolina and the like, but we feel that we have to compete with that type of opponent if we are to build our program."

The Seahawks host the Tar Heels (men only) here on November 19.

Top returnees for the 'Hawks include Sam O'Leary, an individual champion in the Eastern Intercollegiate last year, and sophomores Rusty Lamb and Bob Blum.

The women's squad is led by Division Two All-American Janet Johnson, who finished second nationally in the 50-breaststroke in 1980. Other top Lady 'Hawks are Denise Squires, Ellen Cushman, Val Newlin and Karen Young.

The complete 1980-81 schedule follows:

NOVEMBER 14--N.C. State; 15--College of Charleston; 19--North Carolina (men) 22--at Appalachian.

DECEMBER 5--at UNC-Greensboro (women).

JANUARY 10--Old Dominion; 16--at Virginia Commonwealth (men); 17--at Richmond (men) 24--at East Carolina; 31--at S.C. State (men).

FEBRUARY 6--Furman; 14--at William & Mary (men); 19, 20, 21--Seahawk Invitational.

MARCH 5, 6, 7--Eastern Intercollegiate; 12, 13, 14--AIAW Championships.

Gold defeats Green in scrimmage game

by Scott Sibley

The annual Green-Gold intrasquad scrimmage basketball game was held Tuesday night in Trask Coliseum with the gold team defeating the green team 90-82.

Edward Timmons was the top scorer for the gold team with 29 points while Shawn Williams, who suffered a leg injury early in the second half, led the green team with 18 points.

The gold team consisted of Danny Davis - 28 points Carlos Kelly - 12, Jean Nickelson - 10, Edward Timmons - 29, Mike Prudhoe - 7, and Terry Shiver - 4. The team shot a field goal percentage of 53.6 for the game.

The green team consisted of Shawn Williams - 18 points all in the first half, Jimmy Denton - 15, Scott Prudhoe - 15, Frankie Dickens - 16, Dennis Tobin - 2 and Randy McMillan - 16 for a 42.7 field goal percentage.

The gold team led the entire game with the green team pulling within 5 points in the final three minutes of the game.

Williams leg injury early in the second half left the green team with only 5 players to complete the game.

First year assistant coach Dave Hanners described the game as "a learning experience. It's just what we predicted for this time of year with so many new players," said Hanners. "It was our first time in uniform and in front of a crowd, we didn't execute well."

The Seahawks will host St. Francis Xavier University of Canada in Trask at 7:30 Sunday evening. Students are admitted free with ID.

Drinks at any hour

West Berlin's 6,000 or so bars, restaurants and other eatig places have no licensing hours and so they can serve drinks around the clock if they wish.

Lady Seahawks wind up season

The Lady Seahawk volleyball team wound up its 1980 season in a burst of excitement, defeating both Shaw and Pembroke State here last Thursday.

The bad part came four days later when UNCW found out that it had not qualified for the Division Two state playoffs despite the two wins.

Still, an 18-18 record with only two senior on the team has to be encouraging for coach Jackie Bartlett and her returning players. And they still have the satisfaction of those last two victories to carry them into next season.

The Lady 'Hawks easily defeated Shaw, 15-1 and 15-1, but Pembroke, which had beaten UNCW earlier in the year, was much tougher.

The visitors took the first game, and held a 14-12 margin with the serve in the second. But the 'Hawks came back, breaking serve and winning four straight points on the serves of Becky Simmons to even the match at a game apiece.

UNCW then reeled off 10 unanswered points to take a commanding 10-0 lead in the decisive third contest, going on to defeat Pembroke, 15-6.

Pep Band

volunteers wanted

One of the key missing ingredients the past few years at Seahawk basketball games has been music -- you know, a pep band that can really keep the energy flowing during timeouts, at halftime, and any other time that the crowd needs a lift.

Hopefully, this won't happen again.

If you have musical experience and are willing to give just a couple of hours a week to this worthwhile cause, contact Harry McLamb in Kenan Hall.

You can even earn one hour of class credit for your participation! Plus, you'll be helping to make Trask Coliseum a more exciting place to be at all the 'Hawk home contest.

If you have questions regarding the band, contact Mr. McLamb in Kenan Hall, or call him at extension 2393.

From Bulgaria comes 40 percent of the world's rose attar, which enhances the bouquet of perfumes.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

WLOZ needs reporters, newscasters

The news staff of WLOZ, the campus radio station, are seeking students who are interested in becoming reporters and/or newscasters for the station.

Students who are interested

Workshop on aging planned

Facts and Fiction About Aging is a workshop designed to help participants understand the positive aspects of aging.

The workshop will include presentations by workshop leader, Linda Bedo, on the myths and stereotypes about aging. The emotional aspects and physical changes in aging, the problems and satisfactions of aging, attitudes toward old age and the commonalities between old and young will be discussed.

The workshop will meet November 20, 25, December 2, 4, 9, 11 from 7-9 p.m. in Rm. 202 of Bear Hall. There is a $5.00 charge for the 1.2 continuing education units offered. For more information and registration contact the Office of Special Programs in Rm. 212 of Hoggard Hall or call 791-4330, ext. 2194.

in becoming trainees should stop by the radio station, or telephone the newsroom at 791-8224.

On Wednesday, November 12, there will be a news staff meeting at 4 p.m. in the Pub. Dr. Jo Ann Seiple, Professor of Journalism, will be the guest speaker. All interested students are welcome to attend.

Citizen's Environmental Program

Industrial Growth and Pollution Controls will be the subject of a Citizen's Environmental program tonight from 7-9 p.m. at Roland Grise School Auditorium.

Topics addressed will include the proposed oil refinery and the Southport Nuclear plant, their economic impact and regulatory controls. Representative speakers from BECO, CP&L, the Committee of 100, and the N.C. Commerce Department will be present.

There is no admission charge. This program is presented by the UNCW Office of Special Programs as a community service program sponsored by Title I, HEA of '65.

Volunteer opportunities

City of Wilmington Parks and Recreation is in need of instructors to teach bowling, ceramics and dance to the blind.

Be A Big Buddy--Volunteers are needed to spend three hours per week being a friend to a child.

Boy Scouts of America has several volunteer openings which include den leaders, scout masters, scout assistants, cub masters, and explorer advisors.

For more information of these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, Director of the Student Union/Activities, room 104 in the Pub.

Auditions for UNCW's production of SUMMER AND SMOKE by Tennessee Williams will be held on January 6, 7, & 8 on campus in King Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Scripts are now available and may be obtained by contacting the Drama Division office in person or by telephone. The production is directed by Dr. Terry Theodore, Professor of Drama, of the Department of Creative Arts.

Pick up a Fledgling

Orders are now being taken for the 1981 yearbooks, which will be published in April. Price is $7.00. They can be ordered at the following times in Rm 107 in the Pub.
Mon.-Wed.-Fri.
9:30-10:20
11:30-12:20
Mon.-Wed.
1:30-3:00

Instant Replay Video

The Instant Replay Video Club will have their next meeting Thursday, November 14 at 4 p.m. We are encouraging all interested students to come.

CAMPUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

PRESENTS:

REACHING OUR GOALS THE WHY'S WHAT'S AND HOW'S OF CHRISTIAN WITNESSING

A 24 hour retreat planned for all students at The Edgewater Beach Club! We will meet at 6:30pm on Friday the 21st on the Pub Patio. One session and refreshments are planned for that evening. Bring your sleeping bag! We'll be slumbering around a glowing fireplace. On Saturday we will have the two remaining sessions plus breakfast and lunch plus recreation; volleyball, a nature hike and more! We will be Back at UNCW by 4:30pm on Saturday. The cost is $4.00 to cover the cost of the food.

ALL ARE INVITED!

ALL
UNC-W
STUDENTS

ARE INVITED TO THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
ACTIVITY CENTER

OPEN HOUSE

NOVEMBER 19TH

8:00 PM.

INDEPENDENCE BLVD & CANTERBURY RD.
BEHIND INDEPENDENCE MALL & ACROSS FROM ALDERMAN SCHOOL

ONLY ONE CLASS RING
PER PERSON.

Of all the fine class rings Jolsten's makes
only one will matter to you.

WE make men's rings, women's rings, in traditional, classical, evening styles and more. Rectangular stones or oval stones with any birthstone color. Achievement panels that show your favorite extracurricular activity or sport. Rings of 14K or 10K white gold, yellow gold or even silver and lustrum.

COLLEGE RINGS FROM $105.30

Kingoff's
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

"If it's from Kingoff's...it's Guaranteed"

10 N. FRONT ST
762-5219

INDEPENDENCE MALL
799-2100

EMMYLOU from p. 1.

With a faraway feel," she lamented in Hickory Wind," and the hushed fans seemed to understand that the singer was indeed a long way from home.

"leavin' Louisiana in the Broad Daylight" was an upbeat footstomper, as Emmylou ya-hoed and skipped her way across the stage. This song was highlighted by a blistering fiddle solo, and initiated a standing ovation from the audience.

Having played for approximately ninety minutes, Emmylou and the band took their bows and headed offstage, only to return almost immediately for an encore. "This is my mother's favorite song," she announced, and performed a heartwarming version of "One of These Days," followed by "You Never Can Tell." Once again she smiled, thanked the crowd and hurried into the wings, visibly tired. Again the audience would not be denied, and she returned once more, saying, "If you want more, you got it!"

Picking up her guitar, she tossed her head, stamped a foot and set fire to the old Hank Williams hit "Jambalaya (On the Bayou)". The front rows went wild, clapping and singing along until she strummed the final chords. "Thank you so much. God bless you, and good night!" she shouted, and was gone in a swirl of skirt and flying hair.

Commented one concert user, "As far as I was concerned, this was just another country singer...I'd never heard of Emmylou Harris before, but I sure like her now." One thing is certain, Emmylou Harris brought a kind of musical magic to Wilmington that will not be equaled soon.

HANDMADE FILMS Presents MONTY PYTHON'S LIFE OF BRIAN. Screenplay and Music by GRAHAM CHAPMAN, JOHN CLESE, TERRY GILLIAM, ERIC IDLE. TERRY JONES, MICHAEL PALIN. Executive Producers GEORGE HARRISON, DENIS COWLYN. Produced by JOHN GUSTON. Directed by TERRY JONES. Screenplay by TERRY GILLIAM.

November 18 at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

Students $1.00

Non-students $1.50

SAIL THE BAHAMAS

A Living - Learning experience
plus

A sailing cruise through the Bahamas

March 7 to 15, 1981

to The Berry Islands of the Bahamas

$300 for the week plus transportation to Miami

call

Bob Haywood at 799-1160

or 686-9288 home phone

Make reservations now to sail to the Bahamas only 10 spaces left!

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

When you need some notes at 3:00 a.m., you find out
who your friends are.

Yank it the notes on chapter 6 in the library. Assure signs that tomorrow's test will be heavy with questions from chapter 6. Someone says he's about to get a phone call. He is not going to use that book, saying he's sure tomorrow. As you this is your do-something special for him. Tonight is his birthday.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 12

November 20, 1980

Eight Pages

UNCW may see creation of student parking panel

by Diane Russell

Students may soon have increased representation in campus government.

Through the efforts of Chief Justice John Ward of the student supreme court, UNCW may see the creation of a student parking panel and a university court within the next year.

The parking panel - a board of students, faculty, and staff who would hear parking ticket appeals - is in its final planning stages, but still must be approved by several campus bodies. According to Ward, it should begin operating some time this spring.

The four-member panel would consist of two students chosen by the Student Government Association, one faculty member chosen by the Faculty Senate, and one staff member chosen by the Chancellor. Different members would serve each month, with the exception of one student who would act as chairperson for the entire year.

As an appellate board, the panel would serve as a body to which students could appeal parking tickets.

"Under the panel system," explained Ward, "if a student has a problem with a parking ticket, or feels it is unfair, he can obtain a parking appeal form from Security. The panel will then make a decision based on the student's written appeal."

Ward said the panel would not interfere with the authority of the campus police. "Chief of Police Norman is in favor of the panel and worked hand in hand with me on it," he said.

"The purpose of the panel is to let students be better represented," Ward said. "As it stands now, a person must appeal a ticket to the same office that served it. With the panel, a person will be able to appeal to a separate body," he explained.

Moving violations, handicap zone violations, and fire lane violations would not be dealt with by the panel.

During the initial months of the panel's operation, Ward said he expects an onslaught of appeals by students who think the panel will get them out of paying tickets. "But once the panel sets up a policy of being firm and equitable, that trend will slow down," he said.

Several major North Carolina universities presently have parking panels in operation.

Ward's plan for a parking panel at UNCW now awaits approval by the Ad Hoc Parking Panel Committee, the SGA, the Faculty Senate, and the Chancellor.

Another effort by Ward to increase student representation in campus government is the creation of a university court.

Made up of seven students appointed by SGA members, and two faculty members appointed by the Faculty Senate, the university court would take over disciplinary infractions in the dorms and on campus. Infractions would include such things as vandalism and classroom disruptions.

"The court will have the authority to punish and expel students, although students could appeal any university court decision to the student supreme court," Ward explained.

The court would not deal with criminal offenses.

Ward said his court plan was "sitting on the back burner" until the parking panel is established. He said he has written to several universities inquiring into their disciplinary court systems.

University sponsors meeting to increase public awareness of area industrial growth

by Beri Marshall

At a university-sponsored meeting Thursday night designed to increase public education concerning prospective industrial growth in our area, the panel presenting the forum gave its pro-growth views to a primarily anti-growth audience.

The program, which was sponsored by the UNCW Office of Special Programs, featured discussions made by four panelists, which included Richard White, Vice President of BECO; Derr Leonhardt, a representative of the N.C. Department of Commerce; Thomas J. Crawford, an engineer with Carolina Power and Light Co.; and Ralph Godwin, a member of the Committee of 100. The panel expressed views that bringing such industries as oil refinery to the Wilmington area would benefit the local economy without hurting the environment.

The pro-industry presentations were taped for a film to be used in local school systems, however, views of the opposition were not included. Opposing discussions from the audience were allowed after the presentation, but by this time the film crew had packed up their equipment and left.

Response from the audience was largely negative, not only to the proposals for new industry, but also to the lack of fairness in presenting a pro-con forum.

In the presentations, Godwin said that the local unemployment rate and low per-capita income would improve with the advent of new industries such as the proposed BECO refinery.

One audience member questioned the number of local people who would be hired for the prospective jobs, and another commented that the panel seemed to be willing to sacrifice the environment to "bring in dirty industry."

White presented statistics indicating that, based on past history, chances of an oil spill with a refinery increase by only 10 percent. But when Jean O'Neal of Coastal Carolina Crossroads, a local organization devoted to protect the environment from potentially dangerous industry, spoke from the audience, she challenged White's statistics with a recent documented study made in Wales which projects greater and worse spills. White said he had no knowledge of this study.

Crawford presented technical information regarding state and federal permits intended to control waste discharges, which are required to approve new industry. Acquisitions of these permits can often take over a year.

Leonhardt said that it is possible to have industrial growth that does not harm the environment.

A Flemington resident in the audience questioned the need for another chemical plant.

The only comment from the panel which seemed to mesh with views from the audience was made by Derr Leonhardt. He said, "An industry will scratch a community off its list if it gets a reputation that it doesn't want industrial growth."

Library schedule

Thanksgiving holiday schedule for the Library:

Wednesday, November 26
8 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Thursday-Saturday November 27-29
CLOSED

Sunday, November 30
6 p.m. - 11:30 p.m.

Registration for fall housing lottery ends December 1

Registration for next Fall's housing lottery began Thursday, November 13 and will continue until Monday, December 1.

Students who wish to obtain dormitory or apartment housing should register sometime during these days between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the Housing Office which is located in the lobby of Belk Hall.

Names of students will be drawn in a lottery on December 2 to see who will receive housing.

Athletes should check with the Athletic Department to see if there will be a slot reserved for them in the residence halls - if not, they should also register for the lottery.

There will be a total of 1200 spaces next year. Four hundred will be reserved for returning students - 200 males and 200 females.

There will actually be two lotteries - one for the dorms, and one for the apartments.

Students may sign up for one, or both lotteries, but they should be advised that the apartment residents must pay their own electric bill and approximately $200 extra per year.

All students will be required to take a meal plan. The options for dorm students are 15 and 21 meals per week. Apartment students will be required to purchase at least 10 meals per week.

Students should also be warned that, due to inflation, on-campus housing, along with everything else, will be more expensive next year.

This lottery is for the sole purpose of determining who will have housing on campus - not where that housing will be.

See LOTTERY p. 5.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

It has recently come to my attention that as of Saturday, November 15, Ms. Linda Gentry, Madame Chairperson of the University Program Board Coffeehouse Committee, will resign from her position. Linda has been chairperson for a year and a half, with no committee but herself the majority of the time. But in spite of that, she has brought such fabulous entertainment to the Goodwood Tavern and Pub, as comedian Tom Parks, singer-songwriter John Glover, Barry Drake, the Jazz Trio Hands, the unique folk band "Nee Niny," and the list goes on and on. Linda is a senior this year and must devote her time more to academics. I'd just like to take this opportunity to say, "Good luck, we love you Linda. And thanks for putting your whole heart and soul into campus coffeehouses!"

Tina Houston

To The Editor:

I would like to take this time to support Mr. Steve Schmidt, Sophomore Class President. Mr. Schmidt is one of the hardest working senators that we have in the student senate today. Steve serves on many committees that deal with important student issues. I think Steve is a fine person and a credit to our school and to Student Government.

Any student is welcome to participate in some way in your student government. Since Mr. Roberts is so concerned with the activities of this campus, I personally will be happy to work with him so he can actually get some first hand experience at what he is trying to say.

Sincerely,
Charles B. Parsons
SGA Vice President

To the Editor:

Last week Don Roberts wrote a letter to the editor concerning a previous letter submitted by Steve Schmidt, Sophomore Class President. I was astounded by what Mr. Roberts wrote. He questioned the intelligence of the senate because Mr. Schmidt's letter appeared to be "illiterate." While I will admit that his letter was not an English teacher's dream, I will also admit that Steve Schmidt is highly intelligent. Bad grammar is a handicap, equal to a crippling disease, that must be overcome. Despite his handicap, Mr. Schmidt has gone on to become the president of his class, chairman of important committees, and a respected senator, student, and person. This is no easy task.

Mr. Roberts, you seem to be lacking in a certain understanding of life, which is: Listen not to how something is said, but what is said. Mr. Schmidt addressed some very important issues, yet all you got out of his letter was that he had bad grammar. You, Mr. Roberts, are a literary snob. I would rather hear the truth in bad grammar, than the most eloquent of lies. You obviously would not.

Nancy Kelker

To The Editor:

Regarding last week's letter to the editor by Sophomore Don Roberts, I wish to say that Sophomore Class President Steve Schmidt is one of the most outstanding students on this campus. UNCW is extremely lucky to share his dedication to the students and this university. I would venture to say that Steve Schmidt is one of the most loyal senators this university has and ever will have. Perhaps, Mr. Roberts should make an effort to get to know Steve as the hard-working, dedicated, and kind person that he is before placing judgement on him. A suggestion for Don Roberts and any other student interested in getting to know their representatives would be to attend a senate meeting. These meetings are not for the senators, they are for the students. The meetings are every Thursday at 7:00 p.m. in room 114 of the Chemistry-Physics Bldg. I encourage all students with gripes and complaints to voice them at the meeting that was designed to help students on this campus. If students cannot participate, then they do not have right or the privilege to complain.

Sincerely,
Lynne Wells
Senate Secretary

To the Editor:

Regretfully, having read last week's letter to the editor concerning the previous week's letter written by Steven Schmidt about Senate Apathy, Don Roberts accused Mr. Schmidt as being "blatantly illiterate." Then he goes on to accuse the overall intelligence of the Senate just because of Mr. Schmidt's written words.

Well first of all, let us inform Mr. Roberts that consultations of the Webster's Dictionary is much in need, since he cannot spell the words illiterate and disparagingly. For the record, we feel that Mr. Roberts has no right to accuse Mr. Schmidt of being illiterate when Mr. Roberts can't spell the word that is actually the intent of his letter. Also, since he claims he is not an English major nor an expert in journalism, his accusation of being unable to read or write is in question of himself.

Secondly, by what right does Mr. Roberts have to question anyone's leadership, especially that of the whole Senate. What is his background in politics? Mr. Schmidt wrote the letter and no one else, so why should the Senate be accused? Also we believe in any organization you are going to have those that are leaders and those that are not. Everyone is not a leader.

This brings up the question of Steven Schmidt's leadership. We, as members of the Sophomore Class, appreciate the job our President is doing. He is a member of a dozen committees, chairman of several, and a true representative of us all. During his two years in the Student Government (Freshman Class Vice President and Sophomore Class President), we have followed his progress with much interest. In our opinion, he is a young man of culture and education, high ideals, and sound integrity. His originality of ideas and capacity for hard work have been outstanding characteristics ever since he has been in the Student Government. This is a man who devotes much of his time being dedicated to his job, representing the students and representing us honestly. To us, this man has proven to be a leader if anyone has and shall remain as a leader of us all.

One last point we would like to express is that if Mr. Roberts is interested in the fate of over $100,000 or how incompetent the Student Government is, then why doesn't he get involved in the Student Government? If time does not allow him, then we are sure our Sophomore Class President Steven Schmidt is willing to listen and welcome Don Roberts' concerns. After all, he is there to represent us - give him the chance.

Sincerely,
Jamie Shields
Tammy Shields
Sophomores

EDITORIAL

Is Senate a waste of time?

Time is an important symbol to be used wisely and not wasted.

Every Thursday night at 7 p.m. UNCW's student senate meetings are a perfect example of wasted time. After the customary parliamentary procedures, the rest of the meeting time is spent debating egos and practicing oratorical skills.

The senate allocates over $100,000 of student activity funds to campus clubs and organizations. After this function is completed, the senate spends the rest of the time investigating these clubs and organizations.

The Seahawk was asked to give a report to the senate on October 23. The Seahawk complied and gave a detailed report [financially and journalistically], answered a couple of questions from senators and left. Fine.

But now The Seahawk has been asked back to give another report this Thursday. Not so fine. All aspects of The Seahawk were covered in the last report given and we have nothing new to report.

Luckily, Vice-President Charles Parsons caught this farce in time and The Seahawk is continuing business as usual without having to bother about answering questions from the senate that could just as easily be answered if the senators would take the time to drop by The Seahawk office and talk to the staff. Hey, we're not going to bite anybody.

The senate seems to spend much time investigating everybody else. Maybe it's time the tables are turned and somebody investigates the senate.

PLEASE MR. REAGAN,
ALL WE WANT IS TO BE TREATED AS EQUALS AND NOT AS SEX
OBJECTS.

NICE LEGS...

Alfred
Bryant

EXPRESS-DAILY NEWS

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Freda Pyron, Production Manager

Composition and Design: Wendy Robbins

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Photography: Chip Hackler

Sportswriter: Jim Davis

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy

Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane

Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven,

Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Paul Clark, Chuck

Waller, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Briant

Typesetter: Chryl Kane

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University at North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Five things there ought to be laws against

Now that we have a new administration in the office, we can hope things will get better, that maybe, come Inauguration Day, we can start singing, "Happy days are here again." Maybe. But there are some things that are unchangeable no matter how obvious it is they need changed.

There ought to be a law against:

1. Easy-open boxes. No-body regardless of race, creed, or sex is immune to the bugs in trying to open "easy-open" boxes. "Push gently," you're told. "Fold back gently. Tear gently on dotted line. Gently remove." Gently my foot! When a mama bear invaded our campgrounds last summer the only container she didn't pillage was an "easy-open" macaroni dinner. She struggled, literally tooth and nail, with that box and never did get her paws around the pasta elbows and grated American cheese. If she'd asked, I could have told her that a sledgehammer sometimes works.

2. Bored sales clerks. You go into a "five and dime" and finally find the Made in Hong Kong G.I. Joe combat doll your son's been wanting for six months (the length of time it took you to save the money to buy it) and you carry it to the cashier and she looks at you contemptuously and snapping her gum says, "Ya gotta get that check approved at the office." So you go to the office and another clerk examines your driver's license scornfully, snorts derisively when you say don't have any credit cards and suggests you go cash the check at your bank and bring back the money. Which you do and find out the G.I. Joe's are all sold out so you buy a Ken doll and an army outfit and take it back to clerk one who frowns over your nickles and dimes and cautions against carrying cash then asks irritably, "Don't cha have a couple pennies?" After which you take the doll

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

home and give it to your son who plays with it for five minutes and then comes running crying, "The arm came off." So you take it back to the store and...

3. Artificial food especially instant mashed potatoes and imitation hot dogs. Sure they're reasonably cheap and they're "quick and easy to prepare," but are they food? I can make a meal out of honest-to-goodness mashed spuds with gravy but instants instantly turn my stomach. No matter how much Diet Parkay (and did you realize that's imitation-imitation butter?) I put in, no matter how much fresh, creamy milk I add, no matter how tastefully I salt and pepper, instant potatoes just ain't the real thing. They're not even a reasonable facsimile thereof.

And hot dogs! We have chicken franks, turkey franks, beef franks, even baloney franks. But, yes, we have got no hot dogs. Hot dogs are $2.00/lb. Oh, those imitation hot dogs don't look so bad—until you put them in water. Then they shrink, they squirm, they bleed. You'd almost think they had real, live meat in them. And a half hour after you eat them you'd swear they were coming back to life.

4. Finally, there ought to be a law against service charges on checking accounts of under $100. If you can't afford to keep a balance of plus $100, you can't afford to pay service charges. It's a real treat to face the end of the month with five bucks in the bank and you write a check for three dollars and it bounces because they took out a monthly service charge of $3.98 which left you a balance of $1.02 and so you

See PRIME TIME page 5

REP

HEADQUARTERS

To the readers of last weeks Campus Chuckles here is our response: We are fresh out of ragged jeans and Mickey Mouse Tee-shirts, However These are our preppy suggestions for your Christmas Shopping:

Mens button down oxfords
reg. $14.00

now 1 for $6.95 2 for $10.00

Turtleneck tops—
embroidered & prints
$12.95 - $15.95

Mens sweaters—

crew neck, cardigan, v-neck, sweater-shirts
reg. retail $20.00 - $30.00
A & G price $9.95 - $12.95

New shipment of famous namebrand knit shirts
reg. $32.00
A & G price $18.95

Mens Velours—
reg. $24.95
Now $9.95

SHOES

Mens & Womens

Gum Shoes
$24.95

Blucher & Camp Moccasins
just like LL Bean

selected group of ladies

1st quality 100% shetland sweaters
reg. $18.00 - $30.00
A & G price $9.95

Luggage—

Nylon, Waterproof
Hanging Bags & Suitcases
Can be monogrammed for Christmas

Engraved Earrings, Key Chains,
Belt Buckles, and Raquet Plaquets

10% off with this ad

A&G OUTLET

Glen Mead Plaza

Keepsake...
The perfect way to show your love

MORRISEY

Select a Keepsake diamond engagement ring to express your love. Keepsake center diamonds are guaranteed in writing, forever, for fine white color, correct modern cut and perfect clarity.

Keepsake.
The perfect way to show your love, when it's for keeps.

Keepsake®
Registered Diamond Rings

Mills INC.
Keepsake®
JEWELERS &
Accutron Center

Learn the art of sailing, seamanship in the British Virgin Islands

Antilles Sailing School invites students at UNCW to learn the art of sailing and seamanship this spring, (May 12-22) in the historic and legendary British Virgin Islands. Three semester hours credit will be offered as students live and sail aboard a fleet of five 40' yachts in an area considered the finest cruising grounds in the world. Plenty of time will be available for hiking, swimming, exploring deserted islands, sampling native cuisines and cultures, duty free shopping, and snorkeling the beautiful reefs and famous wrecks (i.e. The Rhone, film site for movie "The Deep"). But the emphasis will be on sailing, and sailing in the Virgin Islands could hardly be easier. Great visibility, steady trade winds, calm seas, and numerous, safe anchorages provide the perfect background to have you sailing like an expert in one cruise.

Skipper and crew will share equally the day to day responsibilities of handling a cruising yacht. It is an ideal opportunity for the young and adventuresome to experience first hand a paradise yet unspoiled by the tourist world. The program is being offered for $795.00, which includes at two days of sailing, b) round trip Eastern Airlines jet service from Raleigh/Durham, N.C. to Virgin Gorda, B.V.I., c) all food while on sailboat, d) medical and accident insurance.

A $100.00 deposit will be required by January 2, 1981 to hold a spot (34 in all). The balance will be due no later than March 16, 1981, with check or money orders made payable to Antilles Sail, Inc., Rt. 3, Box 284A, Wilmington, N.C. 28403.

Coordinators for the program are Dr. Bob Wolff, Assistant Professor of Recreation and Harper Peterson, Director of Antilles Sail, Inc., and 1970 graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill. Both young men have a combined total of 12 years of experience in the Caribbean directing student programs. If you desire any further information about this excursion, please do not hesitate to contact Dr. Wolff or the Recreation Department, 791-4330 ext. 2767, or Harper Peterson at Antilles Sail, 799-5778.

World Research, Inc. sponsors competition

World Research, Inc., the San Diego, California-based non-profit, non-partisan educational and research group, has announced that it's sponsoring a nationwide art competition among high school and college students to find a new, bold, identifiable logo design, according to Barbara Stevens, promotion director for World Research. All entries must be received by midnight, December 30, 1980 to be eligible for the $500 First Prize.

Stevens went on to say that in addition to the cash award, there will be awards of excellence and honorable mentions awarded to runners-up in the competition.

World Research, Inc., since its inception in 1969, has been developing unique and innovative educational materials designed to stimulate discussion of historical and current issues. Its primary distribution for these materials has been high schools, colleges and universities and each mailing numbers into the tens of thousands. "We felt that since our main objective has been reaching students that they should share in helping create and shape our look and image," added Stevens.

World Research produced the best-seller book and award winning film--"THE INCREDIBLE BREAD MACHINE." They have also produced two other award winning films "LIBRA," and more recently "THE INFLATION FILE." World Research is divided into two study areas--The Campus Studies Division, which researches and produces educational materials and the Ocean Studies Division, which is presently studying the preservation and propagation of the endangered abalone species.

The art competition is open to all high school and college students. Students interested in submitting a logo design should write ART CONTEST.

World Research Institute, San Diego, California 92121 for entrant requirements and contest details.

Social Workers hold Career planning Day November 23

The Social Workers of America will be holding its Career Planning Day Tuesday, November 25 at 3:30 p.m. in room 111 of Hoggard Hall.

Social Work has one purpose... helping people. It is an important and growing profession. Because of the complexity of human behavior and the continuing needs of people, Social Work can be unique and challenging.

"From inner cities to suburbs and beyond... just about anywhere there are people with problems... Social Workers are at work... They help to correct the causes or alleviate the results of poverty, racism, mental illness, physical handicap, aging--the entire host of perennial enemies of the human spirit." (Excerpt from S.W.A.P. club bulletin).

There are a wide variety of careers in Social Work. For instance, for those who enjoy working with children, there are careers in Child Welfare, Education, School Social Work and Family Services. There are positions in community work such as Public Welfare, Community Organization, and Social Planning. Minority groups are an area for careers also with such fields as Armed Services and Services to the Aging. If there is a leaning toward medicine or psychiatry, Social Work branches into Medical Social Work, Psychiatric Social Work, Vocational Rehabilitation, Probation, and Correctional Services. And, of course, there are careers in Research, Industry, and Administration.

To find out more about a career in Social Work, be sure to attend the S.W.A.P. Career Planning Day. A panel of qualified guest speakers will be there to answer any questions. These guests include Sandra Harkin from Career Planning and Placement, George Howell from Mental Health in New Hanover County, Wayne Morris of the New Hanover Department of Social Services, and Sid Bradshaw from Family Services. Refreshments will be served.

Be on the look-out for flyers about this event. Club members will be distributing them.

UPB word of thanks

The University Program Board and the Concert Committee Chairperson would like to thank everyone involved in making the Emmylou Harris concert a perfect production.

We here at the Program Board are real proud of everyone. Special thanks to Best Ticket Promotions for making it possible.

American Diabetes Association organizes group on campus

Some of you may have diabetes or have diabetic family or friends. An effort is now underway to organize a group on campus for students, faculty, and staff who have diabetes themselves or have loved ones who are diabetic.

The group will probably meet on a monthly basis, and its functions will include mutual support and problem-sharing, education and information-sharing, and increasing public awareness about diabetes. A local chapter of the American Diabetes Association already exists, but we think that a campus group will be more convenient for you.

The meeting will be informal. Once the group is established, guest speakers (physicians, dietitians) and films will be possible if there is interest. If you think you might be interested, come to our first meeting:

Thursday, November 20
8:00 p.m.

Hoggard Hall, Room 205

For more information contact Dr. Rob Miller, room 107, Hoggard Hall.

- DIAMONDS
- WATCHES
- JEWELRY
- GIFTS

Memories

UNLIMITED

ANNIVERSARY SALE

SAVE

1/3 off on 14K gold chains

25% on diamonds

watches 25% off

Register for a
SECO Watch &
Diamond Pendant to be given away

PEANUTS

I'M SICK OF IT... ANOTHER FALL LINE UP OF SEX AND VIOLENCE, SEX AND VIOLENCE...

BALLOOONS OVER WILMINGTON

Joseph Burke
OWNER

15 North Seventh St.
Wilmington, N.C. 28402

(919) 762-2532

PRIME TIME from page 3
have to pay $7.00 for writing a
$3.00 check.

Yes, there ought to be a law
but there ain't and there probably never will be.

Addendum: There also ought to be a law against typewriters that can't spell.

LOTTERY from page 1

Students whose names are drawn in the lottery, will have their choice of where they want to live if space permits said Mr. Charles King.

Housing contracts and deposits will be taken care of in the early part of the Spring Semester, 1981.

Residence Halls will be assigned in the same manner as present: Belk Hall - All Female, Galloway Hall - Coed,
Dorm '79 - Coed, and Hewlett Hall - All Male.

The six apartment buildings, scheduled to be completed by Fall, 1981, will be split up between men and women.

There will be at least 200 beds available by next Fall in the apartments and each gender will have 100 beds reserved.

While the apartment complex in general will be coed, the individual buildings will be all male or all female.

Buy a Fledgling

Orders are now being taken for the 1981 yearbooks, which will be published in April.
Price is $7.00. They can be ordered at the following times in Rm 107 in the Pub.

Mon.-Wed.-Fri.
9:30-10:20
11:30-12:20
Mon.-Wed.
1:30-3:00

DRABBLE

LOOK... I ENJOY HIS OLD MOVIES... I'VE ALWAYS ENJOYED HIS OLD MOVIES...
AND I'LL CONTINUE TO ENJOY HIS OLD MOVIES...

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks lose bid for NCAA Divisional Playoffs

A long wait ended in disappointment for Coach Calvin Lane and his UNC-Wilmington soccer team November 18 when the Seahawks were not extended an invitation for the NCAA Division playoffs.

UNCW, which finished its regular season on November 8 with a 14-2 record, had been ranked third in the South and 20th in the nation last week, but the regional selection board nominated Duke for an at-large bid ahead of the Seahawks.

UNCW defeated the Blue Devils in its season finale, 1-0 in Durham, but Duke bounced back to take the Atlantic Coast Conference title this past weekend with a victory over North Carolina. The Blue Devils, 14-3-3, will now play the South's second-seeded team, Appalachian, in Boone on a yet-to-be-determined date.

Alabama A&M gained the top seed in the South Region. Twenty schools in all were invited for the single elimination tournament.

"It is a big disappointment for us," UNCW's Lane says. "I felt that we had proven ourselves during the past few weeks (nine straight wins) against some good opposition, but the South is a strong region and the committee had a difficult decision to make."

The Seahawks lost twice in September to NC State and North Carolina before reeling off their winning streak that included victories over two NCAA-bound teams—Duke and South Atlantic representative William & Mary.

The success of this year's squad, however, will not be diminished by the lack of an NCAA bid. The 14 wins set a new single season record, while senior goalkeeper Charlie Ingold finished his fine career with a record-tying 19 shutouts. Sophomore Dave Karlson also set a new UNCW mark with his 12 assists.

For Karlson, six other returning starters and Lane, a new wait now begins—one that will not end until the 1981 opener next September.

Women's basketball faces tough schedule

The UNC-Wilmington women's basketball teams opens its 1980-81 season this Thursday at Catawba, beginning a 25-game schedule that includes contests with ACC opponents Duke and Wake Forest, as well as outstanding teams from East Carolina and UNC-Charlotte.

The Lady 'Hawks, 9-15 a year ago, have never enjoyed a winning season, but with a good nucleus of returnees and some promising newcomers, this could be the year.

"Alot will depend on our new players, so I think we'll definitely be a better team later in the year," second-year coach Marilyn Christoph says, "but that does not mean we cannot be competitive right away."

"We are much, much quicker this year and will try to keep a fast tempo in every game. One of the keys will be how well we can do on the boards. We will be out-sized much of the time, but hopefully can compensate with out quickness and hustle."

Coach Christoph

"The schedule is challenging and I don't know how we will react to playing three of our first four on the road. If we can come out of it with a couple of wins, though, that would be a great start."

After Thursday's contest at Catawba, UNCW travels on to NC Central on Saturday, then opens its home schedule on Monday, November 24 against Livingstone.

Veterans Linda Stuart, Darci Wilson and Beth Pruitt will likely share time in the backcourt, along with highly touted newcomers Jill Amos and Sharon McMillan—both of whom can also play at a small forward.

Vertha Dixon, 1979-80's MVP, is the top holdover inside with freshman Sherri Crumpler and junior college transfer LuAnn Gentry adding much-needed skill.

Both Crumpler and Amos performed in last summer's East-West Game in Greensboro, while another talented freshman, Sheila Patterson, should contribute after recuperating from a preseason arm injury.

Cross Country Team competes in regionals by Keith Lankford

UNCW's cross country team wound up their season Saturday, November 15 as they competed in the NCAA District III Regionals at Furman University in Greenville, S.C.

Julian Keith finished first for the Seahawks with a time of 35:19. He was followed by Seahawks' Al Brantley, 35:27; Paul Lupica, 36:14; Robbie Burke, 36:15, and Arnold Houston, 36:17.

Thirty-five of a possible 68 teams were there with scattered individuals representing schools who failed to send a whole team.

The course was 6.2 miles long and the conditions were very wet and muddy.

The race was won by a Clemson runner of Dutch origin in a time of 29:22, breaking the old course record of 29:33.

The team champions were the East Tennessee State University Irishmen, of Johnson City, Tenn.

Seahawk Coach Atwill said, he was pleased with this year's performances but now it is time to start serious training for the 1981 season.

Swimmers off to best start ever

"I am very pleased with the team's start this season; it is the best start we've ever had," Coach Dave Allen said after Saturday's meet with College of Charleston.

The Seahawk swim team opened their season Friday when they swam against N.C. State then came right back Saturday to swim against College of Charleston. Both were home meets.

The Seahawks lost against State, men, 77-36 and women, 82-40. Despite their loss, Coach Allen was pleased with their performance, State being the Atlantic Coast Conference champs.

The Seahawks came back Saturday for an easy win against College of Charleston, men, 85-28, women, 92-47. The men took 12 out of 13 events. The women took 12 out of 16 events.

Coach Allen was particularly pleased with the women's performance, Saturday, because College of Charleston has twice the amount of women as UNCW.

UNCW was also successful in their diving events. Dave Thomas, a freshman, won the one-meter and three-meter and possibly set new records for UNCW. "Dave is an outstanding diver, the best that UNCW has ever had," said Coach Allen. The women's dive team lost to College of Charleston.

Golfers conclude season

UNCW's women's golf team lost its Division Three state AIAW title to Meredith by one stroke this past weekend, but the Seahawks' Darci Wilson came away with top individual honors, giving her two AIAW titles this season.

Wilson, a sophomore from Clarksville, Tenn., had won the Region II individual crown in October here at the Echo Farms Country Club, and captured the state title with rounds of 84 and 82.

Freshman Donna Barnett earned second-place honors for the 'Hawks, but UNCW still came up one stroke shy of defending its team championship, losing to Meredith 708-709.

UNCW will resume play in the spring.

The Seahawk men's golf team concludes its fall schedule this weekend in the Coastal Carolina Fall Classic in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

UNCW will join nine other schools in competition at the Myrtle Beach National Golf Course for 18 holes of play on Saturday and Sunday. Other teams in the event are James Madison, Newberry, Roanoke, Erskine, Limestone College, South Carolina, Methodist, USC-Spartanburg and the host school.

Scott Prudhoe puts in two for the 'Hawks

Seahawks win exhibition

by Jim Davis

The Seahawk basketball team gained some needed game experience Sunday, November 16, beating St. Francis Xavier of Canada in a pre-season exhibition game, 80-72.

Led by top scorers Danny Davis and Edward Timmons, the Seahawks were able to overcome a four-point deficit going into the second half.

UNCW will start their regular season November 29 against North Carolina State in Raleigh.

The 'Hawks hit 32 of 57 baskets giving them a 56 percent shooting average.

Senior Danny Davis led the Seahawk attack scoring 22 points and grabbing 14 rebounds. Junior Edward Timmons scored 21 points, 15 in the second half while Dennis Tobin added 12.

10 0/0 discount for students on sandwiches

Happy Hour Mon.-Fri.
5:30-7:00221 Kerr Ave.
392-0480

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Chamber Singers to perform

The UNCW Chamber Singers, conducted by Joe Hickma, was one of three groups chosen from throughout the state to perform for the Choral Division of the North Carolina Music Educators' Association convention in Winston-Salem on November 10.

The Winston-Salem performance was the first stop in a three-concert tour for the Chamber Singers. The second program was held at Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg, Virginia, on November 15; and the final program will be held in Wilmington at First Presbyterian Church on November 23 at 5 p.m.

The Wilmington performance is open to the public with no admission charge as part of the Vesper Musical Series of First Presbyterian Church.

The program for the tour will include Vivaldi's "Winter" violin concerto from "The Seasons", featuring James Gardner of the UNCW music faculty as violin soloist; Bach's advent cantata, "Come Now, Saviour of the Heathens", for chorus, soloists and chamber orchestra; Bach Motet No. 6, "Praise the Lord all ye Nations"; and Vivaldi's "Gloria" for chorus, soloists and orchestra.

BSU sponsors can drive

UNCW's Black Student Union is sponsoring a Thanksgiving can drive. They will be collecting cans of food to add to Thanksgiving baskets for needy families in the surrounding area with the names of the families coming from the HELP LINE.

BSU also sponsored a Halloween Carnival for the Big Buddy Organization on Thursday, October 30, 1980. The children and their Big Buddies enjoyed the carnival, making it a huge success.

BSU received a letter of thanks from Big Buddy Coordinator Pam Pace stating that BSU was the first to give the organization a party as a group. "We are proud to have given the children a night of enjoyment," said BSU President E. Rena Holloway.

Cans for the Thanksgiving drive should be dropped in the box of the stage in the Goodwood Tavern until November 23, 1980. Do your part in helping a family that is less fortunate and donate a can or two. Let's show that UNCW students care.

Puzzle see Page 8

Classified

Looking for a ride to New England. New Hampshire preferably. After the 18 of December. Contact Scott Miles at 791-0392(Home) or 343-1156(Work).

Volunteer opportunities

The Voluntary Action Center is in need of volunteers to cut wood during the winter months. They also have secretarial positions open.

United Cerebral Palsy, a developmental center for handicapped children from birth to age 5, is in need of staff aides.

Girls Club of Wilmington has several volunteer positions open which include: 1) Arts and crafts instructor; 2) tutors to assist girls who are having difficulty in school; 3) physical development instructor (sports, dance, karate, gym, etc.); and 4) program assistant - with girls age 6-14 years.

For more information on these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, Director of the Student Union/Activities, room 104 in the Pub.

Ordinary situations in day-to-day life can be a scream

I am sometimes asked a basic question: how do you take an ordinary situation and make it funny? Actually, it's pretty easy, because so many things in day-to-day life are a scream.

Such as what, for instance? Whew, I thought you'd never ask, and I'd have to think of an idea for a column this week! Here is a partial list of mundane things that tickle just about everyone's funny-bone.

Toothpicks, for example. There is something innately funny about a toothpick. You can be gross and pick your teeth with it, or stab your roommate to death with it, or practice amateur acupuncture on your enemies. The possibilities are endless.

Seeing somebody you hate trip on a perfectly smooth sidewalk is always good for a giggle. Seeing that same somebody fall-down-go-boom is even better. I would go so far as to say that klutzes are

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Huss

funny, but that would hurt my mother's feelings...after all, she raised four of them! On the other hand, Gerald Ford is one klutz who is absolutely hilarious.

Health food is always good for a chuckle. I mean, who can take sunflower seeds seriously? Olive oil massages would be funny if they didn't feel so good. Hash brownies(hey, who's to say they're not healthy?) need no explanation, I'm sure!

Tiny poodles are just hysterical. If you don't believe me, ask your dog. Those curly little dwarfs get no respect in the canine world. And if you wore a rhinestone collar and answered to "Baby Doll" I bet you wouldn't get any respect either.

Running stop signs is fun, but it's not awfully rib-tickling when you see that blue light flashing in your rear-view mirror.

Raw oysters are right up there with mother-in-law jokes, but only if you're not the one eating them.

The music biz is a real gas. Just think about oldie groups like the Monkees, the Electric Prunes, and the Archies-see what I mean? Fun, fun, fun.

Bette Midler is also hysterical. I think it's all that orange hair that does it for her. And punk rock, well, punk rock gives me convulsions.

It's hard to believe that a guy with a safety pin in his cheekbone has a statement to make about society! (Note: One singer who is not funny is Bruce Springsteen. He is THE BOSS!)

Racquetball is a real sidesplitter, especially when the ball is winning.

And finally...journalism is good for a laugh or two, until it starts giving you nightmares and you begin mumbling "Damn the deadlines!" in your sleep. And even when it stops being so funny...it's still fun. Ask my editor!

Lost and Found

LOST

Brown leather wallet
Green composition book
Single room key
Bottom half of camera case
Yellow rain slicker
White hooded sweater
FOUND

Keys
Jackets

Check with Chyrl Kane, rm 101 in the Pub.

Classified

Looking for a destitute person, preferably freshman or sophomore, to work on UNCW Work Assistance Program. Job at Kenan Auditorium at nights mostly, 7-11. Must be reliable and punctual and have good sense of humor. Pays well!! Please call 799-2615 and ask for Chip.

THE BOOKERY

invites you to an Autograph Signing
in honor of

Dr. James Parnell
Mr. James McDermitt
Dr. Maggie Parrish
Dr. M. Milton McLaurin

We're extending an invitation to everyone to come out

Christmas hours
Weekdays 10am - 9pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm

Cotton Exchange

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsidlers-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50 off

SURF SHOP

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

Surfboard Clearance
-Schraff-Aipa-Sunset-

Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Aleeda

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building.

Wake Forest Law School
Ms. Elva Jess
Thurs., Nov. 20
Pos: Graduate School
Admission
Majors: Any

NC State Highway Patrol
Trooper Henry F. Moore
Wed., Nov. 19
Pos: Trooper
Majors: All

Northwestern Mutual
Life Insurance Company
Mr. William R. Harwood
Tues., Dec. 2

Pos: Sales, Sales Management
Majors: All

WORKSHOPS

JOB INTERVIEW

Thurs., Nov. 20
2:30 p.m.

RESUME

Wed., Nov. 26
12:30 p.m.

PEANUTS

For Answers see Page 7

ACROSS

- 1 Short jacket
- 6 — Chaco
- 10 Caledonian
- 14 Auto style
- 15 Principle
- 16 Expectation
- 17 Flavoring
- 18 Not liked
- 20 Wigwag
- 21 Stake
- 22 Chemical endings
- 23 Scold
- 25 Back up
- 27 Governor
- 30 Tropical herb
- 31 Deck out
- 32 Toe
- 33 Article
- 36 Sullen
- 37 Glorify
- 38 Castro's home

- 39 Egyptian god
- 40 Restrain
- 41 " — Theme": Zhivago tune
- 42 Binges
- 44 Wage
- 45 Sells
- 47 Labor
- 48 Speechify
- 49 Relative
- 50 Kind of sch.
- 54 Full house, e.g.: 2 words
- 57 Love
- 58 Paradise
- 59 Hautboy
- 60 Bird
- 61 Remainder
- 62 Obtains
- 63 Wrestled dirty

DOWN

- 1 "Away!"
- 2 Sharpen
- 3 Havoc
- 4 Against the flow
- 5 Mild oath
- 6 Porridge
- 7 Small one
- 8 High peak
- 9 Recent: Prefix
- 10 Flumes: Var.
- 11 Soprano
- 12 Hyalites
- 13 Pithy
- 19 Swivel
- 21 Small amount
- 24 Some
- 25 Asperity
- 26 Asian chief
- 27 Jazz pieces
- 28 Man's name

- 29 Poor miners' needs
- 30 Excavations
- 32 Is overly fond
- 34 Steel beam
- 35 Simple
- 37 Foot part
- 38 Visited: 2 words
- 40 More sec
- 41 Poem of old
- 43 Manifest
- 44 Family member
- 45 Riata user
- 46 Deteriorate
- 47 Ebb and rip
- 49 Tie
- 51 Ear part
- 52 Amerind
- 55 Swine
- 56 — Lincoln
- 57 Noah's —

A young Wilmington tradition of ageless taste in feminine apparel and accessories at prices lower than they should be!

Pamell's Ltd.

A TOTAL NEW LOOK AT.....

Pamell's Ltd.
Hammaker Center 762-2330

Justin's
INDEPENDENCE MALL
Wilmington, North Carolina

PRE-HOLIDAY SAVINGS!

SPECIAL GROUP DRESSES
3-13 6-18
30% - 50% OFF

SPECIAL 3 STYLES OF WOOL PANTS
by Bobbie Brooks
30% OFF
Reg. 36.00 SALE 24.99

Special Rack WOOL SKIRTS
LEVIS BROOMSTICK SKIRTS
30% OFF

When you need big favors you ask good friends.

When you need big favors you ask good friends.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 13

December 5, 1980

Eight Pages

UNCW Campus Police implement Crime Prevention Programs

by Janet Hundley

Recently Billy Dawson was appointed Crime Prevention Officer by Chief Winston Norman. Since his appointment officer Dawson has implemented several programs. Such programs include "Operation I.D." and "How to Say No to a Rapist."

Officer Dawson joined the campus police in May of 1979. In addition to his work at UNCW Dawson worked for the Wilmington Sheriff's Department.

New Dorm was the first building affected by Dawson's "Operation I.D." program.

After consulting with the North Carolina Crime Commission and other Universities they selected "Operation I.D." for UNCW.

November 24 and 25 volunteers from the Criminal Justice Club, CHI PHI, SAE, and TKE fraternities met at New Dorm. They were divided into groups of two; one volunteer to engrave the driver's license number of the student on the item and the other to record the serial number of the item engraved.

Dawson commented, "The few minutes it takes to engrave your property could determine whether or not your property is returned if stolen."

Campus police reports breaking and entering larceny is up 154 percent and burglary is up 400 percent compared to last year. In October of this year there were 22 cases of larceny and in December only 16 cases.

When asked why "Operation I.D." was implemented first Chief Norman replied, "Because it needs the most attention."

"How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive," a movie lecture series, was another crime prevention program organized by campus police.

Sergeant Lynne Singleton, from East Carolina University, led a discussion and introduced the film "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive."

Sgt. Singleton distributed a booklet entitled "Assault with a Human Body." Points highlighted in the booklet include:

You should never walk alone at night-on campus or off.

You should not drive alone at night with your car doors unlocked.

Do not pick up hitchhikers.

If you are being harassed by another driver, drive to the nearest police station or drive to an area where people are. Always check backseat before getting into your car.

Always check backseat before getting into your car. Do not become a creature of habit. Vary your routine and do not travel the same route at the same time everyday. Do not go jogging alone. Be wary of male joggers who are unknown to you.

"Just because you call the police does not mean you have to prosecute anyone," stressed Sgt. Singleton, "just report it so the police will have a report on them."

"Don't scream and don't struggle," suggested Frederic Storaska, lecturer in the film. Storaska asked that you "try going along with them until you have a chance to get away - if not, then scream. Rape is a violent crime, not a sex crime. When asked why they rape a stranger rather than their girlfriends, rapists reply, 'She (girlfriend) treated me like a person'."

Next semester campus police intend to continue the Crime Prevention Program.

"Most everything happens because of carelessness. We are offering the services, but the students have to respond," concluded Chief Norman.

Chief Winston Norman

Exam Schedule

	9-12	2-5	7-10
Wednesday December 10	0830 M-W-F	1130 T-T	Wednesday night
Thursday December 11	1130 M-W-F	1430 M-W-F	Thursday night
Friday December 12	1230 M-W-F	0830 T-T
Monday December 15	0930 M-W-F	1330 M-W-F	Monday night
Tuesday December 16	1300 T-T	1000 T-T	Tuesday night
Wednesday December 17	1030 M-W-F	1430 T-T	1730 M-W-F
Thursday December 18	1530 M-W-F	1600 T-T

All exams are to be held as scheduled. Prior permission from the appropriate dean must be obtained in order to hold exams unscheduled

'Time and The River' becomes library's 200,000 volume

Thomas Wolfe's first edition novel of TIME AND THE RIVER brought the UNCW Randall Library to its peak.

The Randall Library was designed to hold two hundred thousand volumes and in October 1980 TIME AND THE RIVER became that important volume. It is to be housed in the Helen Hagan Rare Book Room.

The library is continually ordering new books to meet the demands of students and final decision on the money should be reached hopefully during late spring by the N.C. Legislature, according to Director of Library Services

Eugene W. Huguelet.

If the money is approved, the addition to the library will be adjoined to the back of the building and extended toward the New Classroom Building.

During this academic year there will be a ceremony in commemoration of the two hundred thousandth volume.

WLOZ broadcasts Texaco-Metropolitan Opera

WLOZ-FM will once again carry the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Broadcasts. On December 6, 1980 Verdi's "La Traviata" will open the 41st season of Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Broadcasts. Texaco Inc.'s sponsorship of these broadcasts is the longest continuous under-writing of the same program by the same sponsor in the American Radio.

Not only will you be able to hear broadcasts of the world's famous operas but such intermission features such as "Opera News on the Air," "Opera Quiz," and "Singers' Roundtable" will be aired.

The 20-opera series will be broadcast every Saturday through April 18, 1981 on WLOZ-FM 91.3. Peter Allen will be the host for the broadcasts each week, introducing each work and narrating the action for the radio listeners.

WLOZ hopes you will join them for the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts each Saturday beginning on December 6 at 2 p.m.

Elections Results

The results of the election held December 3, 1980 are as follows:

Robert Wilson: 131
Norvell "Buddy" Henderson: 32

There were also a total of 72 votes cast for various write-in candidates.

LETTERS

Student sees necessity for 'casual strolls'

To the Editor:

Recently, between afternoon classes, a friend was attacked in a building's restroom on campus. He was beaten and cut with a knife by three assailants demanding his money.

These acts of violence on campus both those reported, and those forgotten, raise the question - Is there too much emphasis being put on parking lot violations and not enough on the protection of students?

Certainly, guards cannot be stationed outside each restroom in every building on campus, but perhaps a walk through each building every hour instead of a ride around the parking lot may help. Maybe when a student or even a visitor gets seriously injured, they may see the necessity for these "casual strolls."

To park their vehicles for five minutes might not only save gas, but may also save someone's life!

Lisa Talley
Sophomore

Thanks, says Fledgling

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Fledgling staff allow me to take this opportunity to extend our gratitude to the Wilmington Police Department for allowing us to make a deadline in the production of the yearbook.

The color section of the Fledgling had to be at the Post Office on Front St. by 5 p.m.

Thursday. Through the use of precise coordination, luck, high speeds and thoughtful stop lights we made it with 5 minutes to spare. Having to stop to chat with a traffic cop would of killed this year's color section to say nothing of someone's insurance payments. So, thanks guys.

Also, let me enthusiastically thank all those students who braved rain and ridicule to have their pictures taken at the Pub. The student pictures are the heart and soul of the yearbook, so without your support, the little Fledgling would pass away. We do appreciate you taking the time to come down and all the effort needed to twist and bend all the different ways the photographer wanted you to. Thank you and hope to be able to shoot you folks again next year.

Wally Bengtson, Jr.
Fledgling Staff

UNCW
pub

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD
University of North Carolina
P.O. Box 3725
Wilmington, NC 28403
(919) 791-4330 ext. 2284

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Students of UNCW

FROM: Paul Weaver
Dance Committee Chairperson; University Program Board

RE: Policy Regarding Pub Capacity During Dances

Beginning with our Country Christmas Dance on December 6th, the University Program Board Dance Committee will be limiting the number of people in James Hall (the Pub) during each dance. For fire and safety reasons, the maximum number of people allowed in the building at one time will be 400. This policy has been adopted as a result of the small size of the Pub and the rapid increase in the student population here at UNCW. The hard truth is that we have outgrown the only student facility available to us. Your patience and cooperation during the next two years until the new student union is completed is greatly appreciated.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Scott Sibley, Sports Editor, Head Photographer

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Cindy Harris, Business Manager

Freda Pyron, Production Manager

Composition and Design: Wendy Robbins

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Photography: Chip Hackler

Sportswriter: Jim Davis

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Keith Lankford, Sherry Niven, Kim Mills, Andy Cavanaugh, Christy Allen, Mary Ann O'Brian

Typesetter: Chryl Kane

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Journalistic Advisor: Dr. JoAnn Seiple

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

'The perfect gift' for that special someone isn't always in stores

"It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas." It should. Stores, magazines and advertisers have been proclaiming " 'tis the season" since Halloween. Doubtless most of us will have trouble finding the perfect (and affordable) gift for that special someone who has everything. But we won't find it in a store; it's not a Ronco Whatchamacallit, or a Matell Doudlers, or even a gift certificate from Hoferdinger's Goteverything Store. Sometimes the perfect gift isn't what we give; it's how we receive.

I learned that as a child, although I didn't know I was learning it or giving it. The first time was when I was five and we finally had electricity in our rented farmhouse. That was the year my brother and I received the gift of light. Jack was old enough to remember living in town and Christmas as more than a tree with

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

make-do ornaments and unlit bulbs. But, for the first time, I saw the reality of pine branches and ice glazed windows changed to the illusion of jewel-sparkled majesty and fire-etched glass. I was speechless with the awesome wonder that only comes from witnessing the miraculous. Only now do I realize the perfection of that gift of joy I gave my parents.

A few years later another Christmas tree brought that same kind of joy plus a little more. Ohioans don't like to admit that more Christmases than not are far from white. They're wetly, coldly, muddily, black. And brown. And slate gray. They smell of coal smoke and wet wool not holly and bayberry. If you're poor they look and smell like any day--the sight and odor of despair.

That's the way it was the year my mother made our Christmas tree. Jack and I woke one morning to find Mom in tears, the kind of tears that mean death, beyond any booger man fantasy.

Unwillingly Mom admitted her tears were because we would have no Christmas--nothing--not even a tree. Walking to school, noses dripping, ill-fitting galoshes sloshing, chapped bare hands clinging, Jack and I vowed that somehow we would have a Christmas. Or at least Dad and Mom would.

For five weeks we scrounged

the highways and hedges of East Palestine for pop and beer bottles. I think we had about $2 when we were through and entered Newberry's (the only store in town where we weren't anathema being the only one we hadn't banged and clanged into desiring cash for our plundered bottles.). Did we buy a butter dish or was it potholders? Maybe it was just a "whole buncha candy." I don't remember what "thing" we gave our parents that year. All I remember is waking up Christmas morning and finding the world hadn't ended after all.

There on Mom's old, treadle Singer was a real live tree. Grandma Burkie's ancient glass bells hung, illuminated by lights from behind into red, green, blue and yellow glory. And throughout the room ran the richly delicious smell of cedar. During the night, while Jack and I lay dreaming of Christmases past, Mom had walked to the neighbors and gathered the discarded branches of their bigger-than-anyone-else's tree. Working quietly she nailed them into the shape of a prettier-than-anyone-else's present.

We gave Mom more than just a dime store present that year. We gave her an unbreakable, imperishable trust in her ability to always make everything all right.

Yet it was easy to give Mom and Dad the perfect gift those Christmases. After all children are ready and willing to accept the gifts Christmas brings. Adults sometimes have to struggle to be gracious receivers. So it was for me the Christmas of '77.

That was the year before I started school and the first year since my divorce that I wasn't working. $157 and food stamps don't go far to aid a dependent child and his mother at Christmas. I could either buy food and pay the electric or I could buy food and get some Christmas presents for my son. We ate but the electric wasn't paid.

Two weeks before "the day" CP&L said pay or else. The day before "or else" I called my church's prayer chain and asked for prayer for "a financial need." I didn't say what just that I needed help.

It came. Someone paid my electric. One woman asked if I had any Christmas for Jonas. I told her I did. And for two weeks they came--pant-suited and parka'd Santa's bringing gifts. Most of those gifts were for me. Slippers, towels, perfume, stationary, more than a dozen "little somethings."

That was the year I learned that receiving can be terrible, hurtingly hard. Yet that's when it's really possible to give the perfect gift--joyful, trusting, unself-pitying acceptance.

Addendum: Merry Christmas.

Forensics Team places eleventh

In this semester's final forensics tournament held at Ohio University, UNCW's team placed eleventh in competition with 18 other schools.

In individual awards, Carol Hawke placed third (out of 30) in Persuasive Speaking.

Competition in the event was stiff with some of the nation's best schools participating.

Among them were Ohio State (who won first place), University of Toledo, and University of Michigan.

Overall success for the team this semester has been very good. Rita Rosenthal says the team "now has people qualified in ten events for the national tournament," as compared with three last year.

Position open on Board of Elections

Edward L. Paul, Jr., Freshman Class President, hereby announces the opening of one position on the UNCW Student Government Association Board of Elections. Interested freshman are urged to apply through the SGA office on or before December 10, 1980, at which time an appointment will be made.

SCHOOL KIDS RECORDS
Hundreds of Albums only
$3.99

Jimmy Buffet
AC/DC
Lynrd Skynrd
Steely Dan
Dan Fogelberg

Linda Ronstadt
Little Feat
Yes
Bonnie Raitt
Talking Heads

PLUS MORE

New REO - $5.99
Outlaws - $5.99
John Lennon - $5.99
Springsteen - $10.99
Christmas hours

ALSO

NAVATRM & AUDIO TECHNICIA

Case prices on

TDIC SAC-90 $3.65 each

MAXELL VOXL II-90 $3.79 each

Wilmingtons Discount Record & Record Accesory Store

Cartridge Sale

CHECK

IT OUT!

from
A & G OUTLET
Glen Mead Plaza

Take a break from exams and come by to do your Christmas shopping with us.

GOOD LUCK ON EXAMS!

Lennon, Ono don't relate to audience on album

by Andy Cavanaugh

"Double Fantasy" is the first album made by John Lennon and Yoko Ono in five years. The album was recorded jointly and the tracks alternate between the two. The music is not the hard rock music that the two have done.

Both John and Yoko's music has mellowed since their anti-war, peace music of the 60's and the early 70's. This album has little depth and I found it hard to listen to.

"Double Fantasy" contains the song "Starting Over" which has been released as a single. This song, being one of John's, doesn't come up to the standards Lennon set for himself with the Beatles.

"Our life together is so precious together. We have grown - We have grown," goes the lyrics to "Starting Over." This captures the whole essence of the whole album. It is not music for the listener. It is music for John and Yoko. They don't relate to the audience; but to themselves. I don't mind this sort of thing; but please don't push it on an unsuspecting public.

The other songs are "Kiss Kiss Kiss," "Cleanup Time," "Give Me Something," "I'm

Your Angel," "Woman," "Beautiful Boys," "Dear Yoko," "Every Man Has A Woman Who Loves Him" and finally "Hard Times Are Over." All are relatively short tracks.

There is one track by John that I think stands alone above the rest and that is "I'm Losing You." It is a bluesy number that captures some of the genius that Lennon demonstrated on Beatle albums such as "The White Album" which was recorded way back in '68. This is the only track on which Lennon has a good vocal.

On the whole the music has little depth at all. This is especially true with Yoko's tracks. "Kiss kiss kiss me love; Just one kiss, kiss will do," goes one of Yoko's lyrics. Surely anyone can do a better job than this. Most of John's good tracks like "I'm Losing You" are dragged down by Yoko's inferior music.

I bought "Double Fantasy" thinking I would surely enjoy some of Lennon's music I have missed for the past five years. What I got was lack luster snatches of simplistic "MUZAK." John and Yoko better start over.

Perfect
SYMBOLS OF LOVE

GOLDEN ACCENT MASTERPIECE
Your Keepsake diamond... brilliantly beautiful... guaranteed for perfect clarity, precise cut and fine white color.

Keepsake
Registered Diamond Rings

Mills INC.
Keepsake
JEWELERS & Accutron Center

Phi Kappa Phi fellowships

Fellowships in support of first year graduate work will be awarded by the Board of Directors of the national Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi. These fellowships may be the full $4,500 stipend, a $200 monetary award, or without stipend. Honorable Mention Awards were established in 1973 due to fund limitations. The number of fellowships awarded annually will be determined by funds available. These fellowships are normally undertaken with the year following receipt of a baccalaureate degree.

Recipients must be active Phi Kappa Phi members on the date these awards are made. Applications, however, will be accepted from those who have been selected for membership but not yet initiated. The UNCW Phi Kappa Phi Chapter made its first initiation of members on the date of its chartering, May 1, 1980. Therefore, the Chapter may choose from this group, as well as initiates from both semesters of this school year, the one applicant deemed most worthy of a Phi Kappa Phi fellowship.

Applicants must have initiated plans to enroll in a recognized graduate or professional school as a candidate for an advanced degree. Since Phi Kappa Phi members span all academic fields, applicants from Art to Zoology are considered.

Applications and further information are available from Dr. Haskell Hart, Chapter President, in Room 232 of the Chemistry-Physics building. The deadline for filing is February 1, 1981.

Library hours during examination period:

Tuesday, December 9, 1980	8 a.m. - 2 a.m.
Wednesday-Thursday, December 10, 11, 1980	8 a.m. - Midnight
Friday, December 12, 1980	8 a.m. - 6:30 p.m.
Saturday, December 13, 1980	9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Sunday, December 14, 1980	12 Noon - Midnight
Monday-Wednesday, December 15, 16, 17, 1980	8 a.m. - Midnight
Thursday, December 18, 1980	8 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Fellowship applications available

Sophomores, juniors and seniors currently enrolled in a North Carolina college or North Carolina residents attending an out-of-state college have until February 2 to apply for the Institute of Government Summer Internship Program in state government.

Twenty-four students will be selected by an advisory committee to participate in a living-learning internship in North Carolina state government directed by the Institute of Government. The Institute of Government Interns will work from May 26 through August 7.

Students will work 40 hours each week in a responsible position in a state department, participate in evening educational seminars and be paid approximately $130 per week.

Students interested in the program should secure a brochure announcing the program and a State of North Carolina application form from their college or university placement office or local Job Service office.

Students interested in the Institute of Government program should mail an application to the Institute of Government, Knapp Building 059A, The University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina, 27514 by February 2, 1981.

Applicants will be accepted without respect to race, sex, color, national origin, religion, or handicap.

NAACP to hold meeting in Pub

The New Hanover County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People is sponsoring a membership meeting Saturday December 6, 1980 at 2 p.m. in the Pub.

Topics of discussion will include organizing a college chapter, NAACP scholarships, and ACT-SO program. Guest speaker will be Attorney Andrew L. Waters. All interested are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Art students exhibit works

Caroline McEver and Frankie Clayton, seniors in the Division of Art, Department of Creative Arts, are exhibiting their paintings, prints, and drawing, Monday through Friday, December 1-12, 1980, 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. in the SRO Theatre of Kenan Hall. The opening reception will be December 7, 1980 in the SRO from 3 - 5 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Seahawk

RESTAURANT
4201 MARKET STREET
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA
763-7300

EVERY NIGHT "ALL YOU CAN EAT"

FINEST SEAFOOD AND RIBS BUFFET

HOMEMADE CLAM CHOWDER
SALAD BAR
- Shrimp -	- BARBEQUE -
- Oysters -	- Spare Ribs -
- Clams -	- Chicken Wings -
- Deviled Crab -	- Shrimp Creole -
- Fish Cakes -	- Chicken -
- Fish -	- Corn on the Cob -
- French Fries -	- Baked Potatoes -
- Hushpuppies -	- Baked Apples -

OR CHOOSE FROM OUR DINNER MENU

We are now accepting reservations for Christmas Parties for up to 40.
ALL ABC PERMITS

SEAHAWK RESTAURANT - COUPON $1.00 OFF THE REGULAR PRICE OF OUR

* SEAFOOD & RIBS BUFFET *

Offer good Sunday, & Monday only month of DECEMBER

(Limit 1 Coupon Per Person)

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks 83-59 loss to N.C. State disappoints Coach Gibson

The UNC-Wilmington basketball team tries again for a successful start to the 1980-81 season this week in the Crab Cake Festival at Towson, Md.

The Seahawks, 0-1 after last Saturday's loss at N.C. State, face Baltimore University at 6:45 p.m. on Thursday (Dec. 5).

Both games will be played in the Towson Center and will be broadcast live by WGNI radio in Wilmington.

Campell University is the fourth team in the two-day affair, which is not set up as a tournament, but as a double doubleheader pairing the two North Carolina teams against the Maryland entrants.

"We're looking forward to the trip and another chance get that first win," UNCW coach Mel Gibson says.

"Baltimore has an entirely new team that we know little about, and Towson is supposedly better than a year ago when they beat us up there, so we will have to play well."

The Seahawks lost to the Tigers, 64-62, last season, and defeated Baltimore, 66-55 in the Baltimore Civic Center.

The Super Bees return only one player, 6'6 Rickie Bradshaw (5.3 ppg) from last year's 12-15 squad that qualified for the ECAC South playoffs. A pair of 6'5 forwards from nationally fourth-ranked Midland Junior College—Ken Young and Chuck McGill—are the top newcomers to the BU team that opened 1980-81 with a loss at Boston U., 92-83, this past Saturday.

Baltimore also played at Canisius on Monday (Dec. 1) and will have two games under its belt prior to the Thursday confrontation with the 'Hawks.

Towson State, which opened its season at Auburn on Monday, features returning starters Joe Miller (6'6, 8.5 ppg., 9.4 reb.) and Donald Leslie (6'2, 10.8 ppg.), along with 6'5 junior college All-American Tony Odrick and 5'11 high school standout Leo McGainey.

UNCW's season-opening 83-59 loss at N.C. State was a disappointment for Gibson and the Seahawks, who stayed within striking distance of the powerful Wolfpack for three-quarters of the contest (53-44 with 9:32 left, but fell victim to a late State surge that left the final score lopsided.

"To say we are not disappointed would mean we didn't enter the game with thoughts of winning," Gibson comments. "We simply did not do a good job on the two things that we needed to do—rebounding and cutting off their transition game."

"Still, we held together very well until the final eight-or-nine minutes, and I can't fault our team's effort. I'm confident that we'll play well this week."

One of the few bright spots for UNCW was the play of senior Danny Davis, who collected 17 points and seven rebounds. The 6'7 forward was a perfect 11-of-11 at the free throw line before fouling out in the closing minutes.

Junior Edward Timmons made his debut at the point guard position for UNCW with 12 points, while sophomore Shawn Williams added 10.

The Seahawks shot only 36.4 percent from the field, however, the lowest mark in two years, and were soundly beaten, 41-19, on the boards. After Davis, no Seahawk had more than three rebounds.

Following this week's northern trip, UNCW finally opens its home schedule on December 9 against Berry College, then hosts Eastern Kentucky on December 13.

Lady 'Hawks perform with confidence and poise

A 3-0 beginning to a season sounds modest enough. Two 90-point efforts and a better than 30-point victory margin, however, sound impressive.

Such is the start that the UNC-Wilmington women's basketball team has enjoyed with a 91-53 opening win at Catawba, a 97-64 home victory over Livingstone, plus a forfeit decision at N.C. Central.

All of this, too, with three freshmen in the starting lineup.

"We had hoped for a good start, but never expected to have two such lopsided wins," coach Marilyn Christoph admits. "The competition, of course, will get stronger but these wins have come against teams that we had much closer games with last year."

"Our freshmen certainly haven't played like typical freshmen, though. They are performing with confidence and poise. Our more experienced players are giving us good leadership, too, which is going to be important to this team all season."

UNCW has only four players returning from last year's 9-15 squad, with 79-80 MVP Vertha Dixon the lone veteran with more than one year of varsity experience.

Freshman Sherri Crumpler, a member of Union High's 2A state championship team and an all-state selection last year, has been the most impressive of the rookies. The 5'11 center scored 26 first half points in the win over Livingstone, finishing with 32 points and 19 rebounds.

Crumpler's two-game totals are 44 points, 37 rebounds and 10 blocked shots.

Another freshman, Sharon McMillan, contributed 19 points and nine assists against Livingstone, while six other different players have scored in double figures in one or both of the team's wins.

Other games remaining in a brief pre-Christmas schedule are both at home—a re-match with Catawba on December 4, and Wingate on December 9.

Seahawk swimmers begin preparations for

A busy and extremely challenging early season behind it, the UNCW swimming team can now begin preparations for the bulk of the 1980-81 schedule still ahead.

The lone pre-Christmas competition will be the women's squad trip to UNC-Greensboro on December 5.

bulk of '80-81 season

The Lady Seahawks are 1-2 following a win over the College of Charleston and losses to N.C. State and Appalachian. The UNCW men, however, are 3-2, with wins against Charleston, Appalachian and The Citadel, while dropping meets to powerful State and North Carolina.

bulk of '80-81 season

"Our record is about what we expected it to be at this time," Seahawk coach Dave Allen says. "Performance-wise, I'm pleased thus far, but what we need now is some good, hard training in December to gear up for the rest of the schedule."

Men's golf team finishes second in Myrtle Beach tournament

The UNCW men's golf team wound up their fall season with a handsome second place finish in a tournament at the Myrtle Beach National Golf Club on Nov. 21, 22, and 23.

A third round score of 286 for the top four Seahawks jumped the team from fourth to second place.

John Cregan led the Seahawks in the final 18 holes of play with a brilliant score of 70.

He was closely followed by Lee Robinette, Tom Schaffernoth, and Sterling Ashby - all shooting 72 on the final day.

This was an all time best performance by the Seahawk team for a single day of play.

The other two Seahawk zolf-ers, Bob Mailloux and Darrell Huxham, also had a very good round on the final day - both shooting a 75.

The Seahawk total of 753 for 45 holes put them only 12 points behind the tournament winners, the University of South Carolina at Coastal Carolina.

Coastal Carolina, the host team, finished the tournament with a score of 741.

Lee Robinette led the Seahawks in lowest total score for 45 holes with 188 which gave him a fourth individual place for the tournament.

John Cregan finished seventh overall with a 189 and Bob

See GOLF p. 6.

Best All-around For Basic Sports

Boseman's

3050 NEW CENTRE DRIVE
WILMINGTON

Sporting Goods

20% off all

Adidas Shoes & Clothing

A large selection of clothing featuring:

Soccer tops
Sweaters
Warm ups
Adidas shorts
Tennis clothing
Jackets

Adidas shoes for:
Running
Basketball
Soccer

A Perfect Christmas Gift

Hunting enthusiasts say quail hunting is exciting sport

by Andy Cavanaugh

The sun spread its rays through the early autumn morning mist and the loblolly pine. A dog stood motionless like a statue staring blankly, but intently toward a clump of tall brown grass.

I walked up from behind the dog as his whole body from his nose to the tip of his tail quivered slightly in intense concentration. As I moved to get in front of him he moved slightly, and I uttered under my breath the command, "Hold Buck. Whoa."

I clinched the double barrel shotgun tighter and with slow movement I lifted my foot and placed it on a dead pine branch that laid in the clump of brown grass. I shook it and nothing happened. Then as I was about to shake it again an explosion of sound and brownish color erupted as the quail flew up at what seemed was the speed of light. I shot twice and only dropped one bird. Quail hunting is truly one of the most exciting hunting sports.

A UNCW student, Ronnie Hanchey, said that he enjoys getting out and hunting quail. "Quail hunting helps me to clear my head and relax from the tremendous strain of school," Ronnie added. Ronnie also pointed out that he felt that quail hunting was a very good way of staying in shape.

"It gives you your daily work out and more," he said. Ronnie has hunted since he was ten years old.

Ava Ayers of Rose Hill, N.C., is a unique person because she is a female participating in a male-dominated sport. This doesn't bother her at all. "Just because you are a man doesn't guarantee you will be a great hunter," Ava went on to state that the times have changed and the world is no longer owned by men. "I love to quail hunt and I love the outdoors," she said. Ava has hunted for the last five years.

R.C. Cavanaugh is a millwright and has hunted quail for nearly 40 years. He has shot many, many quail over these years. One interesting story he told me was about one of his bird dogs pointing a covey of quail while the dog was riding on a flat bed trailer being pulled by a tractor. R.C. had no gun at the time and had to stop the tractor and flush the birds.

He also told me about a time when he shot and killed three birds on the covey rise with one shot. "They were bunched close together while I was firing at just one bird and apparently two more birds flew between the barrel and the bird that I was aiming at, and I killed all three with one shot," he said as he puffed on an unfiltered cigarette.

But quail-hunting is not a sport just for ordinary people like Cavanaugh; many great people have hunted quail. The late President Eisenhower was a very good shot on quail. The late Bing Crosby hunted quail and was on hunts filmed for Curt Gowdy's "The American Sportsman." Quail hunting draws many people from different backgrounds.

There are many different varieties of quail, but in North Carolina there is only one kind, the Bobwhite Quail. This type of quail is a medium-sized brownish bird.

In quail hunting the hunter uses a dog that will find the birds. The breeds of dogs that are used mostly are the German Shorthaired Pointer, the English and Irish setters, the Brittany and the English Pointer. When a dog finds birds he will freeze up and this is called pointing. When this happens the dog will stiffen his whole body with his tail sticking straight out. One of his front paws will also be raised. The dog is supposed to hold this stance until the birds are flushed.

Quail hunting is an exciting and very physical sport. Since hunters have to walk to walk long distances through fields and thick pine thickets, they have to have thick briar-proof clothes and walking boots.

One can enjoy an autumn day and escape the rigors of the world hunting Bobwhite Quail. Quail season opened on Nov. 22 and ends on Feb. 28. The bag limit is five quail per day and 75 birds in a season. Quail hunting is an exciting sport, and if you haven't tried it, you should.

WELCOME!

Faculty, Staff, and Students of UNCW

The Cotton Exchange is honoring you Tuesday night, Dec. 9th, from 6 til 9pm The Cotton Exchange Merchants Assoc., in conjunction with the autograph signing at the Bookery, offers you:

*Special Bonuses

*Special Discounts to our UNCW friends

Show your ID for unadvertised specials

Christmas hours 10 til 9 daily 10 til 6 on sat.

GOLF from p. 5.

Mailoux came in eleventh overall, with a 191 total.

Darrell Huxham was right behind with a 194 total, followed by Tom Schaffernoth at 196 and Sterling Ashby at 200.

Normally, a tournament plays 18 holes each day but a frost on the second day delayed play for so long that the day had to be cut to nine holes.

"This is our most successful tournament this year," said Coach Dean Allen. "This ends our fall season, but we will be back on the fareways by mid-March for our spring season.

"All of our men performed very well and I think that we will continue to improve."

THE BOOKERY

invites you to an Autograph Signing
in honor of

Dr. Maggie Parrish
Mr. Jack Dermid
Dr. James Parnell

We're extending an invitation to everyone to come out

Tuesday, Dec. 9th
6pm - 9pm

at THE BOOKERY
343-1100

Weekdays 10am - 9pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm

Cotton Exchange

UNCW STUDENT SPECIAL

Whopper Junior

regular order of fries, and medium size soft drink

$1.29

plus sales tax

*Make it
Special
Make it*

4404 Oleander Dr.
4205 Market St.
819 S. 3rd St.

Limit one per customer. Please present this ad before ordering

©1980 Burger King Corporation

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Volunteer opportunities

Many Wilmington social service agencies have extra activities planned to help ensure that all residents have a happy holiday season. You can help! Check out these heart-warming ways:

Donations of toys will be accepted from now through the week before Christmas at the Wilmington Youth Council, 2nd and Orange Streets.

Volunteers are needed to help cook, deliver dinners on December 25 starting at 9 a.m. Also volunteers are needed to donate turkeys. For more information contact Rev. Duane Cook, 343-9678 at Cape Fear Gospel Mission.

Winter Park Presbyterian Church is in need of volunteers to entertain and provide transportation for foreign college students. Contact either Rev. Jim Richardson, 791-5893 or Carl Welker, 791-2645.

The Salvation Army is in need of volunteers to help receive requests Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, 9-12 and 1-3:30 til December 5th. Donations will be accepted till December 24th. Volunteers are also needed to help when parents come to choose children's toys on December 17-19.

Volunteers are needed in positions as teacher's aides in therapeutic situations for emotionally disturbed pre-schoolers (3-6 yrs. old). Mon-Fri 9 a.m.-noon. Call Ms. White, 343-0151.

Fraternity to sponsor Founder's Day

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity will sponsor their Founder's Day on Sunday, December 7, 1980, at Ebenezer Baptist Church located on the corner of Princess Place Drive and N.

30th St. The program will begin promptly at 4 p.m. and will host UNCW's Black Student Union Gospel Choir. Please give your support!

'Career Day' to be held February 4

On Wednesday, February 4, 1981, Sigma Alpha Beta, an honorary business fraternity, the Office of Career Planning and Placement, and the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will co-sponsor "Career Day '81". The event will be held from 10:30 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. in the lobby of Trask Coliseum. It is designed to provide an opportunity for UNCW students to learn more about various employers and graduate schools.

Last year forty-two representatives made themselves available to discuss career opportunities in spite of the inclement weather. In addition to graduate schools, prospective employers represented industry, government, public service, business, and finance. Students should realize that this will not be a recruiting visit by employers. However, in past years summer, part-time, and even permanent positions have been a result of this event. It is projected that a similar number of representatives will be on campus that day.

Sigma Alpha Beta, the student co-sponsor, would like to note that the response from the three previous events has been very positive on the part of students and also representatives who visited our campus.

All three sponsoring agencies would like to encourage all UNCW students to make plans to attend CAREER DAY '81.

Candlelight Service

You Are Invited

Campus Wide Christmas
Candlelight Communion Service

Monday, December 8, 1980
at 11 p.m.

at St. Mathew's Lutheran Church

[across College Road from
Trask Coliseum]

Music: UNCW Chapel Singers
Led by: Bob Haywood -
Campus Minister

Steve Eblers - Vicar

Harold McSwain - Pastor

Sponsored by each and every person related to UNCW and their families by United Christian Campus Ministry

Citizens' Environmental Awareness Program

The Department of Special Programs at UNCW will present the third in a series of Citizens' Environmental Awareness Programs from 7:30-9:30 p.m. on Tuesday, December 9. The program is entitled Shellfish Pollution in Southeastern North Carolina and will be presented in Roland Grise Auditorium. Guest speakers will include Bob Jamieson and Preston Howard from the Regional Office of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development; Connel Purvis and Bob Benton from the Morehead NRCD Office, Division of Marine Fisheries, and Dr. Robert Roer, UNCW research biologist. There will be a question and answer period for the audience following the presentations. This program is open to the public and is free of charge.

Lost and found items

Lost
Pair of men's glasses
Set of keys
Rust-colored wallet
Laney High School ring gold w/blue stone
Book - "Modern Short Stories"
Hewlett Packard calculator
Gold Jules Jurgemen watch

Found
Ring
T-Shirt
Sweater
Keys

8-track radio

Please check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub before the end of the semester when all items will be disposed of.

THE PEOPLE OF THE UPB
WOULD LIKE TO WISH ALL OF THEIR FELLOW STUDENTS
A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR AND INVITE YOU TO DISCOVER
AND BECOME A VITAL PART OF THE CULTURAL,
ENTERTAINMENT AND SOCIAL ACTIVITIES AT UNCW!

SEASONS GREETINGS

uncw pub

Fledglings make great stocking stuffers

Order yours today

Orders are now being taken for the 1981 yearbooks, which will be published in April. Price is $7.00. They can be ordered at the following times in Rm 107 in the Pub.

Mon.-Wed.-Fri. 9:30-10:20
Mon.-Wed. 1:30-3:00

MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM THE SEAHAWK

BALLOONS OVER WILMINGTON

Joseph Burke
OWNER

15 North Seventh St.
Wilmington, N.C. 28402

(919) 762-2532

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Pantsiders-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50 off

SURF SHOP

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Surfboard Clearance
-Schraff-Alpa-Sunset-

Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Alceda

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

UNCW HAIRSTYLING SPECIAL

Daniel Combs, formerly of Great Expectations, would like to invite all UNCW students to his new location. Bring your ID and you are entitled to a special discount price on a precision haircut or perm.

Haircuts reg. $7.50
$5.00

Perms - Zotos Feels So Lively
Exo. Perm reg. $35.00
$25.00

Located on the corner of Kentucky Ave.
& Burnett Blvd. Near Greenfield Lake

COMBS HAIRCARE CENTER

762-4748

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)
FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)
FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

When you need some notes at 3:00 a.m., you find out
who your friends are.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV

January 16, 1981

Eight Pages

UNCW Mourns Loss Of Dean Cheek

On December 18, 1980 UNCW lost a most beloved and dedicated individual—Dean of Students Helena Cheek. She died as a result of complications from lung cancer.

"One of my deepest hurts since I became Chancellor of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington was the recent loss of my good friend and colleague, Dean Helena Cheek," said Chancellor William H. Wagoner.

"Helena was one of the University's most dedicated and loyal faculty members. Her abilities as Dean of Students were known by us all. Dean Cheek could always find a way to balance discipline and firmness with compassion and concern. She loved her students and devoted herself to them in ways which were not just professional, but which carried that undefinable quality of 'humanness' too often lacking in today's hectic business schedule."

The following feature story on Dean Cheek was written by Cindy Shell and appeared in the February 16, 1977 issue of THE SEAHAWK. This article is being reprinted because it is the best way to adequately portray the warmth that was a trademark of Dean Cheek's personality.

"Every day brings something different. You never know what to expect; that's what's so interesting about this job."

The job is Dean of Students and Helena Cheek is proud to fill it. In her job she deals with student problems, counselling orientation, extra-curricular activities, graduation, dormitory discipline—the list seems endless.

A handsome woman with short, greying hair and glasses, Helena Cheek has a ready laugh and a willing ear. Her avid love is shell collecting, which she often indulges in at her Topsail Beach vacation home.

With shells collected on the beaches, she has embedded the top of a coffee table. Mr. Cheek is putting a shell mosaic on the outside of the house.

The two prefer spending their weekends at the cottage, but this year's severe winter has kept them from doing so. In the summer they often commute to Wilmington.

A French and Spanish major, Dean Cheek met her husband while attending Mary Baldwin

University in Virginia. At the time he was teaching French and Spanish.

She taught fulltime until 1965, when she became Dean of Women. Five years ago that title changed to Dean of Students, one she shares with Dean Ralph Parker. Since that time she has obtained her master's degree in administration from East Carolina University.

At home, the Cheeks often converse in French or Spanish. Their son, a Spanish major, joins in these conversations.

The Cheeks love to travel. One of their favorite places is the Caribbean, where they have visited four times. The beautiful shell-laden beaches have no doubt influenced Dean Cheek's preference.

Gazing wistfully out the office window, she spoke of the 80 degree weather there and the 78 degree water, with just enough breeze to keep everyone cool.

Aside from her demanding work as dean, she has continued to teach one class each semester.

"I love teaching. It's different kind of contact with the students (than that of dean), and I enjoy both types."

Dean Helena Cheek

Inside

Editorial.....	p. 2
Prime Time.....	p. 3
Campus Chuckles.....	p. 4
Sports.....	p. 6
Campus Calendar.....	p. 7

Andres Segovia To Come To UNCW

Andres Segovia, the "maestro" of the classical guitar, is expected to come to UNCW April 23 to receive the Albert Schweitzer International Prize in Music.

Segovia, whom many consider to be the world's most prominent classical guitarist, was selected by an international committee to receive the honor. The prizes are awarded at five-year intervals and are presented at a ceremony on the UNCW campus.

The Albert Schweitzer International Prizes are awarded in three fields-- music, medicine and the humanities.

Past recipients of the prize have been such notables as Mother Teresa and Gian-carlo Menotti.

The other two recipients have not yet been announced. More details will be given later.

Fellowship Winners Announced

Selection of five students has been made on the basis of the merits of proposed research projects to be conducted during the coming Spring semester. The fellowships, which are for in-state tuition for one semester, were awarded after competition held this Fall.

Winners, their research proposals, and their major departments are:

Edwin H. Dixon, III: "Field and Culture Studies of Porphyra carolinensis," Department of Biology.

Susan C. Gore: "The Effect of Naxalone on Pain Perception," Department of Psychology.

Judith C. Lassiter: "An Evening with Lillian Hellman," Creative Arts-Speech Division.

Raymond M. Valente: "A study of the Phytoplankton - Zooplankton Relationship in an Estuarine Environment," Department of Biology.

Nancy E. Washburn: "Adventure Programs: A Descriptive Analysis," Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Resident Life Assistant Positions Open

Several Resident Life Assistant positions are available for the 1981-82 academic year, according to Robert Taylor, Assistant Dean for Residence Life. These positions are Resident Director, Assistant Director, Resident Assistant, and Apartment Manager.

Each position is a part of the Residence Life Staff and is under the supervision of Taylor. Responsibilities of the positions include advising, discipline, programming and the general operation of the Resident Hall/Apartment Complex.

The Resident Director will receive $1500 for the academic year, a private room/apartment, the full board plan and a phone.

The Assistant Director will receive $1400 for the academic year, a room and a phone.

The Resident Assistant position includes $1200 for the academic year and a phone.

The Apartment Manager receives $1500 for the academic year, an apartment, utilities, a phone and is required to purchase a 10 meal plan.

Applications are available in the Dean of Students office, Housing Office, and each office in the Residence Halls.

Applications should be completed and returned to the Assistant Dean for Resident Life Office by January 23.

Orientation workshops will be held on January 26 and 28 and on Feb. 2 and 4. All of the workshops will be from 6 to 8 p.m.

From Feb. 2-13 individual interviews will be conducted. Final staff selections will be made during Feb. 16-18. Taylor encourages all interested students to apply.

Tribute To John Lennon

Something that happened a month ago is considered "dead news" here in newspaperland. When that something is the murder of an ex-Beatle, the phrase takes on new, ironic connotations. Due to exams, Christmas vacation, etc. the Seahawk has not been published since John Lennon's death...so the time for tribute is now.

A dreamer died at 11:07 p.m. December 8. By midnight, the world was weeping. An era had crumbled--despite Yoko Ono's protests to the contrary["Nothing is over. The 80's can still be a beautiful time."]. Two decades of peace and love ended when four shots rang out that night in front of the Dakota. Yoko lost a husband, Sean a father, and we...we have lost a gentle explorer of souls, a man who sang of things we could understand and embrace.

I was reading a Beatles biography, concentrating on the chapter entitled "John's Early Days" when I heard the news on the radio. My first impulse was to laugh. Surely this was the ultimate case of mistaken identity. John Lennon had just released his first album in five years, he was alive and well and living in New York City...and he certainly was not dead. I twisted the knob on the radio and in the space of five minutes heard the news eight times. It was true. The hair crept up on the back of my neck and I threw the Beatles book against the wall.

EDITORIAL

Suddenly it seemed as if every station in the world decided to play "Imagine." Emotions washed over me in slow, almost tangible waves. I picked up the phone and called a friend. I can't remember what was said. I only know that after we finished speaking, I pulled an afghan around my body and cried until...until when? Until shock replaced the pain and sorrow? Until I realized that the tears would not make any difference? Or until the grief was replaced with anger...anger at the incredible irony of the situation. To think that a man who had molded his entire life into an unending attempt to gain world peace was slain in such a senseless, brutal fashion. The meaninglessness of it boggles the mind. The lyrics from "The Ballad of John and Yoko" are eerily prophetic now:

"Christ, you know it ain't easy
You know how hard it can be
The way things are going,
They're gonna crucify me."

And, in the end, that's what happened. Crucified by a Georgia born ex-security guard who just happened to be an ardent Lennon fan. Perhaps the irony would have made John smile--he always was the practical joker in the group.

Yesterday I came across a quote in Rolling Stone that pretty much says it all. [The magazine devoted an entire issue to the life and death of John Winston Ono Lennon]. It was contained in a letter written by a fan, and if it comforted him, maybe it will help us too. "To all of those who have left us--Jimi, Janis, Keith--move over and make room. The leader of the band has arrived." Amen.

Julie Russ

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions. Scholarships and/or compensation are available for some positions.

News Editor
Business Manager
Sports writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel
Typesetters

LETTERS

To The Editor,

As is customary, I would like to take this time to welcome all of you back to school for this spring term. I am sure that more will get accomplished this semester than in previous ones.

I would also like to remind the Student Body that if you have any problems on this campus--whether you feel that you have been treated unfairly on this campus or you may have a gripe about programs, Student Government, or you just want information about any club or organization here at UNCW, please get in touch with our office.

The next SGA meeting will be held Thursday, January 15, in the Chemistry/Physics upstairs auditorium.

Charles Parsons
Student Body Vice President

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Jim Davis, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane Russell, Muriel Ross, Sherry Nive

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

I'M 52 YEARS OLD...I HAVEN'T HAD A HIT SINCE 'FANTASIA'...CAN'T GET A PRODUCER TO ANSWER MY CALLS...MY TV SHOW'S BEEN CANCELED AFTER 26 YEARS...AND NOW SOME CLOWN PICKS ME UP ON A DRAFT REGISTRATION RAP...

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Telephones Can Be Irritating As Well As Helpful

I have ambivalent feelings about telephones. Not styles of phones but just telephones in general and what they stand for. Like I'm glad that I can "reach out and touch someone" if I've a mind to but it's irritating to know that I can be touched too—whether I want to be or not.

My number is unlisted but I'm always getting calls from salesmen. (Sorry, salespersons.) At any time I am subject to sales speels for: "A wonderful family portrait," "Time magazine at reduced rates," and even "A once in a lifetime chance to secure your very own family plot." If these people are smart enough to get my unpublished number ($50 extra a month) how come they don't know that I:

Prime Time

by Judy Stallamith

1. Do not have a job.
2. Don't want any of their wonderful bargains.
3. Can't hear half of what they're saying anyway.

Which brings me to another reason I dislike telephones. As I'm hearing impaired, I have an amplified handset on my little, yellow wallphone. This enables me to increase or decrease volume as needed. It also provides a wonderful toy for my son, Jonas. I have learned to approach each summons to the phone cautiously. It only took four or five HELLOS for me to realize it's better to start with the volume down and work up. And Jonas always leaves it up. Then there are two things I hate most about phones: being on hold and "at the sound of the tone." O.K. I'll admit they're necessary to this age, but there's such a feeling of insignificance attached to them. They belittle me.

Take Hold, for example. What is this thing I'm put on by a sugary operator's voice? Or is it a place rather than a thing? Maybe it's like Limbo or Purgatory, forever and ever, a land in-between.

And those recordings, "Hello, this is Joe Cool. I'm not home now. . . ." It's like having the corpse sit up and join the wake. "Hi! I'm not alive now. . . ." I never know what to say to that guy who isn't there. Usually the only message I leave is nervous breathing, but someday something in me is going to snap and I'll blurt, "Hi! This is me. I'm not there either. Go to hell."

Yet, as I said, my feelings aren't all hateful. Sometimes the phone does come in handy for solving problems quickly and cleanly. A few months ago our neighbors' dogs were using our yard for a nightly rendezvous. There is something terribly frightening about wakening in the wee dark hours to the sound of yowling, snarling, and yelping. We tried everything—chasing the hounds out of the yard, telling the neighbors their dogs were disturbing our sleep. Nothing worked.

Until one morning, at three, at last I found the answer. With sleep-fumbled fingers I dialed the number, with disguised voice said "Hello?" "Hello?" my neighbor replied, fear evident in his voice, probably thinking I would tell him of family death or tragedy.

I said only ten words. "It's three o'clock. Do you know where your dogs are?"

The next day he started to build a dog-enclosing fence. So the phone isn't always a nuisance. But, please, don't call us—we'll call you.

Five Positions Open In Senate

The SGA would like to announce that five positions in the Senate have become open due to resignation and graduation. 3 Representatives at-large 1 Freshman Vice President 1 Senior Senator

Anyone interested in one of these offices must file a petition with the SGA office.

Petitions will be accepted during a 10-day period beginning January 15, 1981, and ending January 29, 1981. The petitions must consist of a minimum of 50 signatures. IM PORTANT: Petitions for the Freshman Class Vice President and Senior Senator seat must have signatures of their respective class members.

However, any UNCW student can sign a petition for the Representative-at-Large positions.

In making your petition, please ask for the student's full name and social security number. Please make sure all names are legible.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact the SGA office.

Non-Traditional Students

Several committees were appointed at the first meeting of Non-traditional students (students 25 or older). One committee was formed to look into establishing an information center for non-traditional students.

Others included committees concerning orientation for older students, the registration process, and possible solutions to the child care dilemma.

The information center will be located in the Pub and should be established by next week. More input is needed from older students.

If you have any suggestions or would be willing to help with various activities are encouraged to call Linda Moore at the Student Affairs Office or Linda Wood at 686-4196.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Purlion
6 Author Leon
10 Thicket: Dial
14 Door part
15 Alaska city
16 Lytton heroine
17 E. Indian coins
18 Winesap, e.g.
2 words
20 Desist
21 Hardens
22 Doleful
23 Halley's —
25 Missives
27 — to pay
30 Paddle
31 Charged particle

- 32 Bird
34 Armed band
38 Chance
40 Bind anew
42 Abide
43 Kilmer work
45 Crowded
47 Epoch
48 Neighbor-hood gp.
50 Rebuilt
52 Servants
56 Cleaves
57 — Baba
58 Hold
60 Nipa palm
63 PM garment
65 Old hat
66 Roman emperor
67 Waste allowance
68 Lodging place

DOWN

- 1 Resorts
2 Desire
3 Naivete
4 Seed holder:
2 words
5 Some trains:
Colloq.
6 Not clothed
7 Hawser
8 Urge on 9 Peddler
10 Perch
11 Stallion
12 Lend — and Hark
13 Some plants
19 Impede legal-ly
21 Cut
24 French pronoun
26 Couples
27 Incline
28 Time period
29 Metric unit
33 Ordinal number
35 Lone —
36 Shrewd
37 Looked over
39 Army hat
41 Ruhr city
44 Begin
46 Greek letter
49 Warns
51 Speaker
52 Mansion
53 Cream
54 "— and Day"
55 Cache
59 Help
61 Mr. Guinness
62 Hide
64 Garden tool
65 Pronoun

See ANSWERS, p. 8.

Support your school [and your beer]

with UNCW Beermugs

ONLY
$1.29

Made of heavy glass, these durable mugs hold over 16-ounces of your favorite beverage!

Now available at

GASWORLD

Corner of S. College Rd.
& New Centre Drive

New Method Of Teaching Brings Enthusiasm Into Classroom

by Dianne Russell

If you don't know the answer, the teacher may crack an egg over your head.

And if you're right, it could mean anything from a pat on the back to a handshake and a kiss in the French custom.

The teacher is John Rassios, a French professor at Dartmouth College, who recently led a workshop in Charleston for the Southern Conference of Foreign Language Teachers. Mrs. Mary Bellamy, a Spanish professor for 19 years at UNCW and 1980-81 president of the Foreign Language Association of North Carolina (FLANC), attended the workshop in October.

"The point of the Rassios method of teaching is to bring enthusiasm into the classroom," explained Bellamy. "He wants to convey such excitement that the students will want to learn."

In existence for 10 years, the Rassios method, also called the Dartmouth method, is based on immediate reward and punishment. With the method, the classroom becomes a place of constant, fast-paced drama.

In grammar and conversation classes, the teacher moves continually around the room, asking questions and giving exaggerated rewards and punishment for responses.

In literature classes, he may dress as a character in a certain work being studied and act out the part.

"It really keeps you spell-bound," said Bellamy. "At the workshop, Rassios was acting out the part of a Certain character, and he tore the shirt all the way off his body, piece by piece. The lady sitting next to me was shocked. She said she couldn't afford a new shirt like that five days a week."

The Rassios method equals a total immersion in the language. A student is required to take 15 hours of language classes each week, including six semester hours of classroom study plus labs and individual practice sessions. This intense study results in a high competency level in the language after one year.

One rather exclusive kind of exam that Rassios has used in the past is to place a student 30 miles outside of Paris with no money and no identification. The student then must get to Paris in a certain amount of time, using the language as his tool.

The Rassios method is now used in 60 schools across the country, two in North Carolina. Bellamy said that a former UNCW language teacher, Dr. Roger Bisson, now used the Rassios method at Western Carolina.

"When I saw Dr. Bisson this fall, he said he'd never had more fun teaching, and he'd never had better results," Bellamy said. Bisson is also using the method to teach foreign language to employees of an industry near Western who will be traveling to North Africa.

The teaching of foreign languages was the subject of another conference attended by Bellamy in October. The FLANC, of which Bellamy is president, met in Southern Pines at a conference entitled "Renaissance of Foreign Language Teachers in the Eighties."

Although several different sessions were held over the weekend, Bellamy said she found the session on "Student Perspectives on Goals of Foreign Language Teaching" to be the most interesting. Dr.

Grace Ellenberg, a French teacher at East Carolina, conducted the session.

"After doing student surveys in her beginning French classes for 10 years, Dr. Ellenberg found that 60 percent of her students enrolled in foreign languages to learn to speak the language, and that students claimed that English was the language most spoken in their last foreign language class," explained Bellamy.

"She also discovered that the thing which hindered students most from speaking the language was a fear of being embarrassed."

Ellenberg suggests that teachers begin speaking the language in their classes from the first day. To encourage students to speak the language as often as possible, and to avoid digressions into English, she teaches them such useful classroom expressions as "I don't understand," "Could you explain that?" and "Repeat, please."

Ellenberg's classes focus on dialogue, conversation, and question and answer sessions. If a student is unable to answer a question, or becomes nervous about responding, she motions the class to help out.

"It's Dr. Ellenberg's feeling that students speaking a new language are often uncomfortable with it, and are embarrassed by the sound of their voices, by the strange pronunciations," said Bellamy. "They become conscious of not being able to imitate the teacher exactly, and this causes them to lack confidence in speaking."

To give students confidence in their ability to speak another language, Ellenberg brings a non-native speaker of English into the classroom and has that person read aloud in English to the class. Hearing the non-native speaker read with an accent helps the students realize that imperfect pronunciation does not sound comical, nor does it hinder communication.

"Book" may sound like 'buke', but the students know what is being said, and they realize that the person speaking doesn't sound at all foolish," explained Bellamy.

Ellenberg also encourages her classes to speak the language by requiring every student to say one sentence to her in French as the student leaves the class each day.

Bellamy said the teachers in UNCW's modern language department have made a true effort to encourage the spoken language among their students.

"We attempt to move totally into the language, though sometimes time limitations force us to use English more than we really want to," she said. "Explaining a complex point in grammar is usually more useful to the student if it's done in English. But we do use the language as much as possible from the first day,

See LANGUAGE, p. 8.

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

Observations Of An Innocent Abroad

Remember when you were a little kid and whenever you came back from the holidays your teacher made you write a paper about "What I Did During Christmas"? Huh? Do ya remember that? My fourth grade teacher, Ms. Plotnick, she had a real fetish about "my vacation" papers. She claimed we were what we did during our free time. At the time I just thought she was real nosy and wanted to know what we all got for Christmas, but now I see her point. So, Ms. Plotnick, this one is for you.

"WHAT I DID DURING MY X-MAS HOLIDAYS" By Julie Russ with a little help from her friends.

My friend Chip lives in New York. My friend Candi has a car. So we put 2 plus 2 together and it equaled a trip to the Big Apple with a layover in Washington D.C.

Washington was very nice. The streets were clean, the food was good, the people were polite. Even the big statue of Thomas Jefferson smiled at me. For the first time in my life I felt patriotic. This feeling vanished when we got caught in D.C. rush hour traffic. I prayed all those damn drivers would emigrate to Russia. They didn't, and it took us 90 minutes for a 30 minute drive. I glared at the Lincoln Memorial. Old Abe would've understood.

We made it to New York December 31. Look, look! See Chip! See Chip's Mommy and Daddy and his brothers and Russell the dog. Oh! Oh!

Jump, Candi, jump! Ooh, too late. See the tiny poodle maul Candi. See Candi smile between clenched teeth. This will soon become a familiar scene.

And on the first day of the New Year, God said, "Let these tourists see." And we saw, alright. We saw New York City and subways and delis and winos and Central Park and Rockefeller Plaza and people, people, everywhere. We saw Macy's and Times Square and I walked drooling past Bergdorf Goodman's, coveting my neighbor's designer fashions. We saw horse pulling carriages and ice skates and vendors selling everything edible. We even got snowed on as we walked down 42nd Street, and we felt like figures on a Christmas card. And I wanted to walk past the Dakota where a dream died, but we didn't and I'm glad.

And we ate. Good lord, did we eat. Pizza, hot pretzels, roasted chestnuts, and a nifty little thing called a potato knish. At Chip's house we ate until we had to be rolled away from the table, and then managed to stagger back for dessert. Yes, those were good days!

New York, New York! My feet are planted in Southern soil, but my heart's still strolling somewhere in Manhattan.

Ill go back someday. . . and maybe even stay long enough to pick up an accent, y'hear?

P.S. How about it, Ms. Plotnick? Do I get an A this time?

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

SGA Plans To Increase Student Involvement

On behalf of the Student Government Association, I would like to welcome everyone back to school. I hope everyone had a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Let's all look forward to a very prosperous semester and begin our push in the classrooms.

The Student Government Association has worked hard for you this past semester and we plan to work just as hard this semester. But there is one ingredient missing in Student Government and that is more students being involved. Students are a vital part of the SGA because the name Student Government says it all—STUDENTS working to improve and govern STUDENT welfare and life on campus. I would like to encourage all of you to get involved in some aspect of a student organization. When you join a club/organization, you are not only getting the benefit of making new friends but you also gain such things as leadership, sociability and responsibility. These are characteristics that not only employers look for but also your friends and relatives.

One of the ways Student Government is planning to help get more students involved is by restructuring the line relations that exists now. We plan to have the reorganization completed by March 1. There will be numerous new positions opened and we will need people to fill them. So if you are interested please come by the SGA office, upstairs in the Pub, during my office hours and I will be happy to discuss the new positions with you.

As all of you know during last semester, the Student Government had to cancel the Club Football season. It was a tough decision but we felt that it was the best possible solution to a bad situation. At this time, I am happy to say that the Club Football team has met 85 percent of all restrictions placed on it and they will be able to play spring football. One of the restrictions placed on club football will be the inclusion of NCAA rules and regulations into its club charter. Also the head coach will have total authority over the team and he will report any problems with the team to the SGA President. I feel this is a positive step for not only football on campus but UNCW as well.

I do not like to close on a sad note, but I FEEL THAT YOU THE Student Body should know that during the Christmas break, we, the students, lost a very important person on campus. This person was Helena Cheek, Senior Dean of Students. I have known Dean Cheek since I enrolled on campus and I feel a personal loss but she would have wanted UNCW to continue its present course. Yet it will not be the same in the years to come. We'll miss you Dear Cheek.

Jessie Sanders
SGA President

Volunteer Positions Are Available

Now is the perfect time to think about trying out new interests - and providing some much needed service to others. The rewards are always far greater than you first imagine.

Want to be a teacher, social worker, counselor? Or aren't you sure? Think you'd enjoy working with older people, teenagers or pre-schoolers? What about helping the disabled or the sick?

Here are just a few of the many situations in and around

Wilmington that are available: Crisis Line, a 24-hour-a-day telephone answering service to provide referrals and help for all kinds of problems, begins the winter training class on Monday, January 26. Call 762-1900 for more information. The Neighborhood Justice Program will begin training volunteers to work with victims of crime and/or to help mediate disputes on January 26. Call 343-8281 for more information.

The Cape Fear Lung Association is planning another paper drive on Saturday, January 24, in the NCNB parking lot in Hanover Center. The Child Development center serves developmentally disabled preschoolers. Teacher's aide type positions are available. Call 763-6879 for more information.

Numerous other volunteer positions are available! Contact Linda Moore, room 104 in the Pub, for more ideas. Don't let this semester get away!

DEADLINE

Deadline for all copy is Thurs. at 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

Xerox Machine

The Student Services Building now offers a copy service to students, faculty and staff. An IBM copy machine, similar to those in the library, is located in room 100. Copies are only 5 cents each.

Seahawk /

Fledgling Number

If you wish to contact the Seahawk or Fledgling offices the phone number is 791-4330 ext. 2229 for the Seahawk, and ext. 2548 for the Fledgling. The number listed in the 1980 phone directory is no longer in use.

Financial Aid Checks

All Financial Aid check must be picked up by Friday, January 16th by 4:30 p.m.

WEST TEXAS MUSIC
at its finest 6 nights a week LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
at
North Carolina's greatest saloon with the greatest Western bands.

Last day to join at a Premembership Discount

JANUARY 15

4102 Oleander next to Tuesdays

392-5920

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks Edged Out By S.C. State, 65-63

The UNCW Seahawks struggling after two straight losses against Louisiana State and Eastern Carolina went up against the winless South Carolina State Bulldogs on Monday, January 12, hoping for a victory.

South Carolina State took the game from the Hawks when Bryon Grice scored with six seconds left on the clock for a 65-63 decision.

The defeat left the Seahawks with a 2-6 record marking the first time in four years that the Seahawks have lost two straight games at the Trask Coliseum.

In the first half, score was tied five times until South Carolina took a nine point lead with 4:15 remaining in the half.

Led by top scorers Danny Davis and Shawn Williams the Hawks managed to bring the score to 35-40 at intermission.

In the second half the Seahawks came within one point three times before getting a 61-60 lead on a Frankie Dickens score with 8:03 remaining in the game. Dickens scored minutes later for a 63-61 Seahawk advantage.

Top scorer for the Bulldogs

Bryon Grice evened the score at 63-63.

Shawn Williams then missed a shot at the :43 mark and set up the winning basket for the Bulldogs.

Grice then rallied to make the last basket leaving the score 65-63.

UNCW rebounded the ball to half court from under the South Carolina basket with :04 left and called timeout. The Seahawks failed to get a good shot at the buzzer.

The Seahawks will face Campbell University at an away game Saturday, January 17.

Lady Hawks 6-3

Despite losses last week to two of the state's toughest Division Two schools, the UNCW women's basketball team is off to a fine 6-3 start and heading toward quite possibly the school's first winning season for a Lady Seahawk squad.

Coach Marilyn Christoph's team, which hosts Gardner-Webb in Trask Coliseum tonight at 7 p.m., may also be in contention for a one of 12 state playoff berths in Division Two, if it can continue its winning ways.

"Before the season started, we set two goals," junior

Vertha Dixon says. "We wanted to have a winning season and make the state playoffs."

"Our freshmen have really helped this season. It seems like someone different is the key each game and there is a good feeling on the team that we can win any time we go out on the floor."

UNCW nearly pulled off an upset over a strong Pembroke State team in Trask this past Monday, but fell two points short, 78-76.

The Lady Hawks played at Shaw on Wednesday.

Freshman Jill Amos is the top UNCW scorer with her 14.5 average, followed by two other first-year performers also in double figures, Sherri Crumpler, the team's top rebounder (13.1 per game) is scoring 13.9 ppg, while Sharon McMillan comes next at 12.9 ppg.

Dixon, the team's MVP last year, is averaging 10 points per outing.

The She-Hawks will be on the road at Pfeiffer and Wingate next week, before returning to Trask for a doubleheader with the Seahawk men's squad—both teams playing Charleston Baptist's men and women next Saturday, beginning at 5:30.

Mens Swim Team Travels To Raleigh

The UNCW men's swim team, following a big win last week over Old Dominion, takes on two more Virginia opponents this weekend, travelling to Richmond to meet Virginia Commonwealth University on Friday and Richmond U. on Saturday.

The Seahawks, now 4-2 on the season, received a school record performance from Sam O'Leary in the 50 freestyle (21.65 seconds) in the 58-54 win over ODU, which avenged a loss last year in Norfolk.

Other individual winners for Coach Dave Allen's squad were Rusty Lambe (200 free), Dave Thomas (one and three meter diving), Bob Blum (100 free) and O'Leary again in the 200 butterfly.

The Lady Seahawks, who will not be in action again until a January 24 meet at East Carolina, lost to a strong Old Dominion squad on Saturday to fall to 1-3 on the season.

Solo champions for the Lady Hawks included Ellen Cushman (100 back), Janet Johnson (100 breast) and Beth Kallenborn in the two diving events.

Next home meet for UNCW is not until February 6 when the Hawks host Furman.

changes were being made.

The new rules will be passed down by the newly elected chairman of the Athletic Board, Dale Fish for official SGA approval.

Nominated for President were veterans Dale Fish, Jesse Hayes and Paul Wood. The president will in turn choose officers.

Any new members will be required to pay a ten dollar dues fee payable at the next

Take Honors

N.S.S.A. annual banquet. Veters was awarded the Mercury Savings and Loan Scholarship by Chuck Allen, Mercury's vice president and past president of the N.S.S.A.

Wigmore was awarded the Bronze Aussie Scholarship by Ian Cairnes of the Bronze Aussie and N.S.S.A. team coach. These scholarships are awarded annually by the N.S.S.A. based on scholarship, character, citizenship as well as surfing ability.

Wigmore, Veters

petition against Australia, South Africa, England, and six other national teams in April at Huntington Beach, California. The team will also tour the east coast of the U.S. during July. Wigmore is the first surfer from North Carolina to be selected to this team.

Mark Veters, a UNCW student from Wilmington, North Carolina, along with Wigmore were honored at the

SGA Football Team Readies For Spring Season

The first meeting of the SGA Football Team was held January 12, 1981. The new head coach for the spring season, Don Corry, presided over the meeting with 35 members present.

During the meeting, new rules and regulations were read and discussed by head coach Don Corry. For the most part, members were satisfied with the new guidelines and glad that needed

SGA Football Team meeting to be held on Feb. 9, in Hanover 119 at 5 p.m.

The first meeting for offensive players will be held Jan. 21 in Hanover gym at 5:30 p.m.

The spring season will consist of four games which will be played at Legion Stadium.

The SGA Football Team urges UNCW students and faculty to come to their games and support their team.

UNCW Surfers

Andy Wigmore, a UNCW student from Jacksonville, North Carolina, was recently selected to the National Surfing Team of the National Scholastic Surfing Association (N.S.S.A.) following the National Surfing Championships at Huntington Beach, California. This team consisting of 12 male stand-up surfers, 3 knee board surfers, and 3 women stand-up surfers will compete in international com-

Jimmy Denton puts one up.

Pep Band Members Needed

Students interested in boosting Seahawk Spirit for upcoming basketball games in Trask Coliseum should sign up this week for the newly organized UNCW Pep Band.

The group, which is under the direction of Harry Mc Lambe, is hopeful of being organized and ready to perform for most of the remaining games here on campus this season.

Course credit is also available through participation in the band.

Interested persons should contact Mr. McLambe in Kenan Hall, Room 113 this week. (791-4330 ext. 2393).

WHY NOT BOWL THIS WEEK-END AT

CARDINAL LANES

32 LANES - SNACK BAR - GAME ROOM
OPEN LANES MOST ANY TIME
SPECIAL RATES 12 MIDNITE TO 2:00 A.M.

OPEN BOWLING SCHEDULE		NITE TIMES
DAY TIMES		Mon. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 til 6 p.m.		Tues. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Sat. 1:30 til 2 a.m.		Wed. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Sun. 10 a.m. til 6 p.m.		Fri. 12 MID. til 2 a.m.
		Sat. 1:30 p.m. til 2 a.m.

PHONE 799-3023
3907 SHIPYARD BLVD.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Miss UNCW Pagent

The preparations for the Miss UNCW Pagent, which promises to be a memorable affair, according to UPB Chairman Mark Davis, are underway.

An MC is needed for the contest. All persons interested may sign up in the UPB office before Feb. 14.

Feb. 14 is also the deadline for the Graphic Arts Competition for the Seaside Jam logo. Also sponsored by the friendly folk of UPB, Seaside Jam is an outdoor musical celebration designed to benefit the Save the Whales campaign. All entries for the logo contest must include the words "Seaside Jam II" and also a reference to the event as a "Save the Whale Benefit Festival-1981." A whale must also be included in the design.

Seaside Jam promises to be the event for this semester, so grab a pen and start sketching!

Yearbook Refunds

Because the publishing company failed to print names on the 1980 yearbooks, all students who paid to get their names printed should go to the SGA office (in the Pub) to get a refund. Those who paid for their yearbook covers should go to the Fledgling office in the Pub and pick them up.

Tapes Made

Interested in having 90 minute cassettes made of your favorite albums but don't have the recording equipment? Well, for $3 a tape I will record them for you with mine. Don't pay $5-8 for your tunes, call Scott Miles at 791-0392 or write TAPES, 3517 Wrightsville Ave. Wilmington, NC 28403.

Lost and Found

Lost

Men's sapphire ring
One black driving glove

Found

Earring
Men's sweater
Raincoat
Notebooks
1 pair of glasses
2 blankets
Thermos

Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

Photography Contest Open To Students

Long Leaf Photo, located in Long Leaf Mall, is happy to announce a photography contest. The contest is open to all area high school students and UNCW students. A first prize of a $25 gift certificate is being offered, with a $15 certificate to second place, and a $10 certificate to third place. There will also be two honorable mentions. These winning photos will then be displayed at Long Leaf Photo. Details for the competition are as follows:

1. All photos must be 8"x10" black and white mounted on an 11"x14" mat.

2. There is a fifty cent entry fee for each photo submitted.
3. All photos must be submitted no later than February 28.

So all you camera buffs get out and start clicking away today!!

PUB HOURS

Sunday 4 p.m.-10 p.m.

Monday- Friday
8 a.m.-10 p.m.

Saturday Closed

Fraternity

Welcomes Members

Alpha Phi Omega, national co-ed service fraternity, would like to welcome each of the following people into our brotherhood. Each has worked extremely hard in meeting the requirement and we would like to say congratulations.

Byron Brady
Ronda Caulder
Donna Holden
Barry Garten
Emily Thompson
Carla Salino
Ellen Rogers
Billy Capps

VAC Needs Volunteers

The Cape Fear Voluntary Action Center needs volunteers to help in its Saturday morning Woodcutting Project.

This project is designed to bring wood to needy people who have no other way of getting it.

Anyone that is interested in working can call the VAC at 762-9611 to tell which Saturday they wish to participate. However, the VAC will welcome anyone coming on any Saturday, whether pre-arranged or not. Trucks (4-wheelers and vans) and chain saws are badly needed.

The VAC will work from 8:30 a.m. until noon every Saturday in January and February. To get to the woodcutting site, go north to the end of 11th Street, turn right on King Street, cross the railroad tracks and immediately turn right on Railroad Street. Railroad Street leads into the site.

Scholarships Open For Senior

Seniors who plan to work for graduate or professional degrees and who are members of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society should get in touch with the faculty adviser Dr. Lee Johnston in 221-Hoggard.

National Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society offers twenty-eight $500 scholarships this year on the basis of the student's scholastic record, evidence of creative ability, evidence of financial need, promise of success in chosen field, and character. Only members of Phi Eta Sigma are eligible for these gift scholarships.

National deadline for submitting applications in March 1. Local deadline for applications is February 13.

ENCORE BOUTIQUE New and used clothing

Brand name designer clothes for men, Women, and children at a fraction of regular cost!

Butte Knits
Bobbie Brooks
Health Tex & Carters
R & K Originals

New Clothing

Students Wrangler Jeans
$10.00 per pair

Sport Coats
$12.95

We buy or accept clothes on consignment

Weekdays & Sat.
10:00pm - 4:00pm
Tuesdays 1:00 - 4:00pm

Plum Tree Plaza
425 Kerr Ave.
Suite C

First Impressions Count

For Complete
Hair Care Service
Come To

Larry's Style Shop

Long Leaf Mall

Shampoo, Cut,
and Blow Dry
6:50

Hours:
Tues.-Fri. 9-7
Sat: 9-4

By appointment
or walk-in
Call 799-5029

LANGUAGE from p. 4

and, of course, all upper level courses are conducted completely in the language, including all lectures, papers, essays and exams."

Bellamy said schools used to place more emphasis on foreign languages. UNCW dropped its general foreign language requirement for graduation in 1972.

"Now students enroll in 101 and 102 courses to fill a humanities requirement, but they never go beyond that," she said.

"The Japanese have recently bought land in Hyde County," she added. Markets are opening up all over the world, bringing us into contact with people in China, Germany, the Arabic nations. The French-Canadians are our neighbors, and Spanish is the second language in the U.S. We can't keep on saying to the world--speak English."

As for whether or not you can expect to get eggs thrown at you in a foreign language class at UNCW--well, don't worry about it too much. But Mrs. Bellamy does stress the importance of constantly reevaluating the techniques used in the classroom.

"You're always reassessing your methodology," she said. "I don't think you ever quit. When you do, you're really at the end."

ANSWERS, from p.3:

SWIRE	URIS	SHAW
PARIS	WOME	IONE
ANNAS	APPLETREE
STOP	STEELES	SAD
COMET	LETTERS
THEDEVIL	NOW
ION	DEAR	POSS
LUCK	THIS	STAY
THAT	DEMS	AGE
ETA	RESTORED
REMAINS	TEARS
ALL	DETAIN	ATAP
NIGHTROBE	OTALE
OTHO	THEY	HOVEL
RETE	DETH	CRECY

Richard Pryor Movie

Tuesday January 27
Admission $1 students
$1.50 nonstudents

PEANUTS

Bill Sargent presents

"Fabulous!"
N.Y. Times
"Hilarious!"
L.A. Herald-Examiner

RICHARD PRYOR

Uncensored
LIVE IN CONCERT

WARNING: This Picture Contains Harsh And Very Vulgar Language And May Be Considered Shocking And Offensive. No Explicit Sex Or Violence Is Shown.

Released by SPECIAL EVENT ENTERTAINMENT

MIKE CROSS

presented by
WHEEL OF WAX & GILLHAM'S GUITAR WORKS

in concert at Thalian Hall

Friday Jan. 30th 8:00PM
Saturday Jan 31st 8:00PM
Sunday Feb 1st 2:00PM
Sunday Feb 1st 8:00PM

ADVANCE TICKETS
Gillham's Guitar Works • School Kids Records
Record Bar • Three Penny Gallery
The Penny Express • The Fair Exchange
J.S. Mann's • Whiteville & Southport

ALL SEATS RESERVED

$6.50 advance $7.00 at the door
absolutely no smoking

Leo's BEER KING

and DELI

10 0/0 discount for students on sandwiches

Happy Hour Mon.-Fri.
5:30-7:00

221 Kerr Ave.
392-0480

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsidors-Topsiders
Wrightsville Beach
Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50 off

SURF SHOP

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry
Surfboard Clearance
-Schraff-Aipa-Sunset-
Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-
Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Aleeda
Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110
6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 15

January 29, 1981

Eight Pages

WLOZ Station Manager Karen Durda

'News Blimp' explodes at WLOZ

by Dianne Russell

Even the Hindenberg didn't cause this much commotion - or so it seems, since WLOZ was told that they could no longer broadcast NEWS BLIMP, a public information program distributed by the Progressive Radio Network (PRN) in New York City.

Apparently, local radio station WHSL now has exclusive rights to the program in the Lower Cape Fear Area.

Early this week WLOZ received a phone call from WHSL informing them that they could no longer broadcast News Blimp. They were told WHSL would begin broadcasting next week. According to WLOZ's 3-year-old contract with PRN, in order for either party to terminate the contract, a written notice must be sent to the other party 28 days in advance of termination date.

WLOZ had not received such a statement from PRN.

"PRN's action was clearly a breach of contract," said WLOZ Station Manager Karen Durda. "I was going to fight this all the way. I was prepared to go to court with the complete backing of the student government."

However, after a closed meeting Monday among students, administrators and WHSL representatives, an agreement was reached allowing WHSL to begin broadcasting as soon as Durda received a statement of termination from PRN. Durda received such a telegram on Tuesday January

27. "I do not whole-heartedly agree with the decision," said Durda. "We won't lose listeners for the University, but the people here deserve better and they got hurt. WHSL looks at us as being an interference."

According to Gary Juhan, dean of students, WHSL would lose sponsors if WLOZ did not let them broadcast as scheduled. "Commercial stations have priority over campus stations," he said.

Durda said News Blimp, costing $24 a week, fulfilled the news and public interest categories required by the Federal Communications Commission.

She said Program Director Cindy Smith is now looking into ways to cover those areas.

Inside

Editorial.....	p. 2
Prime Time.....	p. 3
Miss UNCW.....	p. 4
Campus Chuckles.....	p. 5
Sports.....	p. 6
Campus Calendar.....	p. 8

Search for replacement dean begins soon

by Mark Stanland

The replacement for the late Dean of Students Helena Cheek will not be a full dean, but rather an associate dean of students according to Gary W. Juhan, dean of students.

Juhan said this change in the dean's office would help prevent the sometimes awkwardness and confusion of having two full deans. He also said the change would better define the responsibilities of the two positions, and he hopes it will promote the development of new programs.

The responsibilities of the associate dean will include special projects and programs that are presently on the drawing board. The associate dean will possibly serve as an advisor for foreign students.

Another possible responsibility of the associate dean will be the publication of a student handbook. This will be a publication of UNCW's policies, regulations, resources, and will also include the purpose and function of the dean's office.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Dr. William M. Malloy, is heading the search for the replacement of Dean Cheek. Within the next few weeks a classified ad will be advertised by Malloy in the Chronicle of Higher Education, and a position announcement will also be sent to schools with well-defined student programs, such as ASU and Florida State. Applications are also being taken. Juhan said the dean's office hopes to have a replacement at least by July 1.

Cost of attending UNCW to increase

by Wendy Robbins

The UNCW Board of Trustees convened Wednesday, January 14 and, among other actions, decided to increase the expense of attending this university.

Next year, in-state students will pay a total of $291 in tuition and fees, an increase of 3.9%. Students now pay $280 per semester.

In-state tuition will remain $135, but the board approved a 7.6 percent increase in athletic, health, student activities and debt service fees, bringing the total cost of fees to $156 per semester. Students now pay $145 in fees.

Room and board will increase by $127.50. An in-state boarding student with the 21 meal plan will pay 1,198.50. The cost this semester is $1,060. Graduation fees for seniors are now $15. Next year, the fees will be $27, an 80 percent increase.

The board also voted to ask the UNC Board of Governors to increase UNCW's enrollment projections.

In November, UNCW had to turn back applications for the spring semester because of over-enrollment. The Board of Governor's policy allows a university's enrollment figure to be 2 percent below or above their projections. UNCW is over its projection by 195 full-time students, Chancellor William H. Wagoner said.

The board agreed to protest the possibility of centralizing architectural control in Raleigh. A legislative study commission has recommended that a committee in Raleigh, not the local trustees, have control of the building decisions on the 16 state college campuses.

Wagoner reported that the Program and Planning Committee of the Board of Governors has recommended to the full Board of Governors the creation of a baccalaureate program in nursing at UNCW. The committee also authorized the university to proceed with an associate of arts program.

"I anticipate this to be finalized at the meeting of the Board of Governors scheduled for February. I hope that's when it will take place," Wagoner stated.

Wagoner also announced that the internationally known classical guitarist Andres Segovia will come to UNCW April 23 and 24 to receive the Albert Schweitzer prize in music.

"It will be an honor for us as well as for Segovia," Wagoner said.

The next Board of Trustees meeting will be Wednesday, April 8.

Chancellor William Wagoner and the Board of Trustees discussed and took action on such issues as fees and enrollment.

EDITORIAL

Campus Minister holds service for hostages

Fifteen minutes after Ronald Wilson Reagan took the oath of office to become the United States' 40th President, the 52 Americans that Iran had held Hostage since November 4, 1979, finally breathed their first breath of free air in 444 days. Like most Americans, I held my breath until John Chancellor announced that their plane was over Turkish airspace - past Iranian territory. I applauded and cried as they disembarked their plane at Tangers. Their freedom became more tangible when they arrived in Wiesbaden, West Germany the night of January 20, 1981. Another long-awaited triumph of America's dedication to its people.

Thursday, January 22, 1981 in King Auditorium, UNCW participated in a service of Thanksgiving for the Americans' release from Iran. The UNCW

Campus Minister Bob Haywood and SGA President Jessie Sanders related their feelings surrounding the Americans' freedom to the thirty students in attendance. As with the majority of us, they felt a combination of sadness over their needless imprisonment, happiness because of their freedom, and frustrated anger at the Ayatollah, Iranians, and Iran for their treachery and humiliation of America and all she stands for. Mr. Haywood stated that we should behave as Christian Americans and not be vindictive towards the Iranians that would put us on their level.

After a prayer of Thanksgiving, a hymn of freedom was sung. I believe the Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr. said it best in his immortal words "Free at last, thank God, we are free at last."

Susan Hardison

out with the Old... in with the Older.

DEADLINE

Deadline for all copy is Thurs. at 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

Seahawk /

Fledgling Number

If you wish to contact the Seahawk or Fledgling offices the phone number is 791-4330 ext. 2229 for the Seahawk, and ext. 2548 for the Fledgling. The number listed in the 1980 phone directory is no longer in use.

ANOTHER hostage released...

QUOTE: CARTOON DAILY NEWS
Mike Calkins

SAY AS LONG AS WE HAVE YOU HERE UNDER OATH,
DO YOU OR DON'T YOU OWE YOUR HAIR?

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions. Scholarships and/or compensation are available for some positions.

Sports writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel
Typesetters

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Jim Davis, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy

Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Diane

Russell, Muriel Ross, Sherry Niven,

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwell

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Living in a cat's house in exchange for services rendered

(This one's for Rusty)

Remember the "happy hooker"? Remember "Madam" Polly Adler? Well, although I am not (and never have been) either a rank-and-file or executive "pro", like them, I live in a cat house. Or, more explicitly, I live in the cat's house. No one owns a cat; cats own people and the six felines of the Factory Road Cat House permit me to board with them in exchange for services rendered.

These services mainly consist of dispersing: tons of Meow Mix; enough Kozy Kitten Fish Flavor to feed the five thousand (with leftovers); and gallons of fresh (unpowdered, uncanned, unskimmed) milk. Services such as honey-dipping the litter box, deworming and defleaing can be rendered at my discretion but at feeding time—well, I can only say that Noah with his two-by-twos had it easy com-

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

pared to me and my five plus one.

Take Sheba, for example, Queen of the House. You might even "call her Madam". When she's ready to eat she doesn't just ask for her food by name, she employs all the feline tricks of the trade to get her "Meow".

First she pulls what I call the "purnip" routine, "purnip" being a word coined by Dr. Veit for linguistics class meaning "cat". It also sounds strikingly like the noise Sheba makes as she twines her sleek whiteness around my legs. "Purr-Nip! Purr-Nip! See how I love you? See how sweet I am? Now, how about some food!"

If this fails to fill her dish she tries the old jump-on-the-counter-and-see-what-the-humans-are-having routine. Usually at this point, not desiring cat fur in the chowder, I feed her.

But even the best trained servants can be neglectful at times. If I am, I regret it 'cause Sheba has a real cute trick for letting me know who owns who. Slam! Disgustingly she flings back the cupboard door and, head immersed in the yellow bag, Sheba gets her own supper. If she's really displeased with me, however, she opens all the lower cupboard doors then, jumping up on the refrigerator, opens the cupboards above it and, paws flying, throws Tupperware lids at me.

Boots is more subtle, being the gentleman of the house. His technique is to look at me languidly than fade to a sad, abused-cat stare. Who could fail to respond to this poor, starving (but perfectly groomed—striped suit, white vest, gloves, and spats) soul who looks at you silently (he hasn't the strength to speak) crying, "How can you sit there and eat when I haven't had a bite in years?"

Then there's Ginger, sometimes known as Spikes. She merely makes bread (or, rather, shreds wheat) on my lap until I'm ready to DO ANYTHING, ONLY PLEASE STOP!

Flower, who recently decided she should be a house cat, merely follows behind the other three. She's too much of a lady to ask the servant to fix something for. She'll just have what the others are having, thank you, and you really don't need to go to all the trouble of a special bowl even though that awful Ginger and Terrible Sheba take all her share and Boots wants to make love over the Meow Mix.

Then there's Tom and Pickles, the yard-guard. They only come in the house when it's too cold outside or, (usually 10 minutes before non-cat loving persons arrive), their Bowels are in an Uproar. This tiger-striped pair demand food by prying open the screen door and scratching on the wooden door. They will do this whether it's been 4 minutes or 4 hours since they last ate.

My response? I stand on the porch, cup my hand to my mouth, and sound a cavalry charge. And then I feed them again. After all, that's what they're paying me for.

Addendum: Rusty was my seventh cat. He passed away last weekend.

Tips for avoiding the flu outbreak

If you've been sniffing and coughing lately, with a fever and general malaise, you're another victim of the flu outbreak, according to Ginga Kohncke, Nurse Practitioner at the UNCW Student Health Center.

Kohncke estimated that the outbreak has reached its peak, adding, "We had 88 students in here Monday and about 50 percent of those were flu cases. It seems to be hitting everyone."

Symptoms of the dreaded syndrome include a fever, dizziness, and regular cold symptoms. Advised Kohncke, "Once you've got it, you can medicate yourself with a prescription of Coricidin-D and alternate that with Tylenol every three or four hours."

Other helpful remedies are bed rest ("Sick students should not go to class," warned Kohncke) plenty of fluids, and a codeine-based cough syrup.

"Be nice to yourself, and take care of your body," concluded Kohncke. "If you haven't already got it, staying in good shape may help you avoid the flu - and if you do have it, if you're in good shape you'll get well faster."

Give Yourself
on Valentine's Day.

Portraits Done in Pencil from Photograph
5 1/2" x 7" LEE PHOTOS
791-8698
Satisfaction Guaranteed

Vicki & Ken Wooten welcomes UNCW students to...

THE CLOTHES BASKET

5211 Market St.

— Sale Prices On —

Designer fashions & jeans by:

Calvin Klein, Jordache, Sasson
Bill Blass, Gloria Vanderbilt,
Danelle, and Zena.

Now
Winter skirts, pants, sweaters, & blazers up to

50% off

Open 10:00-5:30
Lays-away

MC-Visa
799-6134

1052 S. College Rd. (Across from Kentucky Fried Chicken) 799-3030

GREAT PRICES

on all of your GUITAR
and

MUSICAL NEEDS

FENDER
KRAMER
GIBSON
IBANEZ
SHURE
HAMMOND
RHODES

CUSTOM ROAD
MOOG

How to survive during the coming hard times in the music industry

by David Carter

Well, gang, it finally had to happen. Double digit inflation and a few rumblings amongst the music industry during the summer - a quick experiment with Xanadu and another as here - the $9.98 record. That's right, the same music industry that has given us recycled vinyl, with its much publicized sales slump, has decided that the way to get sales back up to mid 70's levels is to raise prices on its pop acts by another dollar. The corporate executives of the music industry must be armed with Chrysler rejects or perhaps old music corporate heads merely reappear as current Chrysler executives.

The result is all the same, if the public is willing to take another price hike, you can expect to pay another hard earned dollar for an increasingly inferior pressing - the 33's lp.

Of course, music industry spokesmen site increased recording costs, OPEC price hikes as well as. Astrological disturbances, but the real culprits are probably an incredible amount of incompetence, the four hour work day, and an ordinate fondness for nose and as a legitimate business expense. Actually the $9.98 record is not quite here. Only one label is trying it and if they succeed then others will follow suit. If it fails then corporate executives may be forced to trim expenses, act responsibly and curtail their intake of curious white powder. MCA Records, home of Xanadu, Jimmy Buffet, Smokey and the Bandit II, Steely Dan, and Tom Petty, is currently raising the prices on the fore mentioned acts.

Now very few record stores actually charge full list price but it still means that at it's lowest possible sale price - you will pay $7 and when it goes off sale, $8. There's a revolutionary alternative that could save the world from these misguided, balding, corporate idiots - DON'T BUY

THE RECORD!! Now there are Buffet freaks, Petty fanatics, and Steely Dan worshipers (Gosh knows who would buy Smokey and the Bandit II-again there is an alternative if the previous mentioned groups are a must - "the blank cassette." Home taping offers a better quality product than its pre-recorded counterpart and its driving record execs crazy not to mention their dependent "connections".

Here's the plan. Say for theory's sake the new Tom Petty album has just come out. (The names Jimmy Buffet, Neil Diamond's Jazz Singer, or Steely Dan can all be substituted for Petty). You must have it. So two or more friends buy it together and tape it. Presto - you have the music and have paid less for it. You can get the cassette from your favorite music retailer and probably on sale. Better yet borrow it or tape it from an FM stereo broadcast. The results could be drastic. Record company heads may have to have their Gucci's resoled.

Record company presidents may complain and do a soft shoe explaining that the established artists must produce profits so that new acts can be discovered and its certainly valid to a point. The same argument can be used for classical, country, jazz, and rhythm and blues and yet the price hike always starts in rock. Enough is enough. Prices continue to rise because the public is willing to pay them and that's the proverbial bottom line. Tired of paying more for albums - the solution is so simple - do not buy the new Jimmy Buffet, Tom Petty, Neil Diamond's Jazz Singer, Xanadu, or Steely Dan. (No one's buying Smokey and The Bandit II anyway). If you must have them buy a blank tape and do with this, then the rest of the labels will join in. Ultimately, if we're dumb enough to pay for it - we deserve it.

Spring speak-easy semi-formal dance planned

UNCW's self proclaimed Masters of Programming have done it again! The University Program Board is excited to announce the Spring Speak-easy Semi-Formal dance. The event will be in the Hinton James Building for Pub as the board says! February 14. Pending live vibes will be the band the fabulous Blue Sparks from Hell. They hail from New Jersey and specialize in swing, rhythm and blues.

Reservations are limited to 400 and can be made in the Student Activities Office, room 101 in the Pub. Admission is $4.00 per couple, $2.00 per person. The dance will run from 10:00-2:00 a.m. Beer and wine may be brown-bagged, but no liquor please. Semi-formal attire is required and period costumes suggested.

Come on out and celebrate Valentine's Day with the fabulous Blue Sparks from Hell!

Xerox Machine

The Student Services Building now offers a copy service for students, faculty and staff. An IBM copy machine, similar to those in the library, is located in room 100. Copies are only 5 cents each.

PUB HOURS

Sunday 4 p.m.-10 p.m.

Monday- Friday
8 a.m.-10 p.m.

Saturday Closed

Miss UNCW pageant to replace homecoming

On February 25 and 26 the new Miss UNCW Pageant will be held to take the place of homecoming.

Mark Davis, Chairman of the Program Board says that the homecoming was a pain to produce, and that the production, itself, was not usually that good.

The purpose behind Miss

UNCW is to vote on a female representative who will represent the school in a more dignified and prestigious manner.

Davis feels that the event will be "highly successful." As of right now the University Program Board feels that this event could become very outstanding for the university.

First Impressions Count

For Complete
Hair Care Service
Come To

Larry's Style Shop

Long Leaf Mall

Shampoo, Cut,
and Blow Dry
6.50

Hours:
Tues.-Fri. 9-7
Sat. 9-4

By appointment
or walk-in
Call 799-5029

SAIL THE BAHAMAS

$369

Includes All Food
Plus
Plenty of Beer and Rum

Yachts are fully crewed—no sailing experience needed!

Call Steve Griffin 392-0719

or call FRANK RENFROE (toll-free) 800-223-1682

Intercollegiate Sailing Club Div.
Copeland Cutler, Inc.
183 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10016

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsidlers-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach
SURF SHOP

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50% off

MOST MERCHANDISE IS 25% OFF!

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

Surfboard Clearance
Schroff Aipa-Sunset-
Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country-

Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neill, Bayley, Aleeda

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

Racquetball may rid writers of writer's fanny

What with the health and sport craze settling down just a little bit, I thought I was doing my part with my frenzied, fifty-mile-per-hour typing. Not so! My fingers may be lithe and muscled now, but my thighs are screaming from neglect. Still, I might have postponed the inevitable for a while if I hadn't received 1) a jogging suit for Christmas and 2) scathing remarks from brother dear about the growing abundance of my, er, posterior. (Hey, it's called Writer's Fanny, okay?) It comes with the territory.)

Anyway, one fine day I sat down and reviewed my options. I could run (a joke to someone whose last sprint was in third grade) or I could follow the advice of my sporty friends

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Kuss

and work off inches and aggressions by playing racquetball. A friend presented me with a battle-scarred racket and the decision was made.

The first time was hell. Sweat dripping from every pore. I gasped for breath, and every muscle ached. At last I managed to squirm into my jogging suit. . . but the worst was yet to come. My opponent eyed my form critically. "I didn't know they made sportswear that tight," he commented, and ducked just in time I was dangerous with a racquet in my hand and resentment in my heart.

We stepped onto the court, which looked exactly like a padded cell, only without the comfortable padding to lean on. "This is a serve," he said casually, and then a hard rubber ball whizzed past my ear at 90 mph. I screamed and ran. With few variations, that's what my first game consisted of. Fifteen minutes into the action, I was a wild-eyed perspiring wreck, and my esteemed opponent was looking at me in puzzlement. "You're blue," he observed, while I tried to explain that whenever I didn't breathe for a quarter of an hour, I tended to change hue. Any how was I supposed to breathe when I kept busy just trying to duck that murderous ball?

"You don't run from it," he explained patiently. "You hit it with your racket--and maybe, just maybe, you'll score a point." He didn't sound very hopeful, though. I took a deep breath, let out a Commanche war yell and hit the ball as hard as I could. It bounced limply for about three feet. There was a short, loaded silence. My coach swallowed hard. "I have seen people kill files with more fury," he said numbly.

I could go on, but you get the picture. At the end of the See RACQUETBALL p. 8

WORKING YOUR WAY THROUGH COLLEGE?

Law office needs word processor after 5pm

Male or Female
We will train

Prefer freshmen or sophomores

Send information on typing skills and SAT scores to
P.O. Box 144
Wilmington, N.C. 28402

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- starting salary up to $18,000
- increases over $30,000 in 4 years
- 30 days paid vacation annually
- fully financed graduate programs
- superior family health plan
- more responsibility and leadership opportunities
- world wide travel and adventure
- prestige and personal growth potential

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
AVIATION LAW NURSING
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS
INTELLIGENCE
CIVIL ENGINEERING
SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ELIGIBLE

THE NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus 4, 5, & 6 FEBRUARY. An information desk will be set up outside the CAFETERIA and PLACEMENT INTERVIEWS will be conducted 5 FEBRUARY. To arrange an appointment to Officer Aptitude Test call 1-800-662-7568 toll free.

All Lutheran students away from your home congregations

St. Matthew's Lutheran Church

612 So. College Rd.
(across from Trask Coliseum)

INVITES YOU to a FORMAL

in your honor

on Sunday, Feb. 8th following the 11 am worship service

Our purpose:

- to welcome you
- to become better acquainted with you
- to assist you in any way we can as your church home away from home

WE BELIEVE -- WE SHARE

MIKE CROSS

in concert at

Thalian Hall

Friday Jan. 30th 8:00PM

Saturday Jan 31st 8:00PM

Sunday Feb 1st 2:00PM

Sunday Feb 1st 8:00PM

ADVANCE TICKETS

Gillham's Guitar Works • School Kids Records

Record Bar • Three Penny Gallery

The Pony Express • The Fair Exchange

J.B. Mann's • Whiteville & Southport

ALL SEATS RESERVED

$6.50 advance $7.00 at the door
absolutely no smoking

UNCW

SPORTS

Ohio U. defeats UNCW, 86—81

Ohio State took advantage of the Seahawks tentative first half play and tightened up their defense to combat UNCW's second half surge winning it 86-81.

As UNCW Coach Mel Gibson saw it the Seahawks poor first half play was the key to the loss.

"Defensively, we just did not play well in the first half,"

Gibson said. "When you let a team better its scoring output (60pts.) by 26 points, you're obviously in trouble. They disrupted our offense early and we never could settle into the patient type of game that we have been successful with recently. I thought our effort in the second half was good, but we had dug ourselves into a hole and couldn't quite get out."

Leading the Seahawks were Danny Davis with 18 points and 12 rebounds followed by Alan Salzano scoring 14 points.

The 5-8 Seahawks, on the road this week headed to Cedar Falls, Iowa to face Northern Iowa. Upcoming games are away at Charleston Baptist, Feb. 2 and SC State, Feb. 3.

Intramurals in full swing

From behind a cluttered and unorganized desk, Intramural Director, Lea Larson has brought a new organization to the games that UNC-Wilmington students play.

It will all kick-off this semester with team and individual play in racquetball, one-on-one, free-throw shooting and of course, basketball.

The traditional basketball league play has already begun, but a new twist has been added. For the first time the league schedules have been compiled by the computer services department. This was needed because of the steady growth in popularity for the sport. Five leagues have been set up with 42 teams participating - a new intramural record.

"Once the bugs are out of the program we'll be in good shape. This was the first big test run and the computer has simplified the process greatly. The next step in going to be weekend leagues, but that will call for fee increases," said Larson. The weekend leagues may be used if the current rate of growth continues.

This spring, the teams will play inter-league, round-robin games, and 16 of the 42 teams will qualify for the single elimination tourney to be held at the end of the season. "In the past, leagues were grouped by their skill levels, but now the A and B leagues will be the generally higher skilled leagues, with C, D, and E being a heterogeneous grouping," said Larson. Even though basketball tends to dominate the spring sports docket, there are a number of quality activities and sports being offered.

"Our two main sports are basketball and softball but we'll have several sports working around them, for example: floor hockey, inner-tube water polo and racquetball," continued Larson. There will also be a new added dimension - dorm rivalries. Dean of Students, Gary Juhan, and Robert Taylor have entered the spirit of intramurals by offering incentives and prizes to winning dorms. Check dorm bulletins for more information.

"The bottom line is our philosophy, 'friendship first, competition second', and if someone tried to play everything that we offer they would be physically exhausted by the end of the semester," ended Larson.

There is a method behind the madness, and in Larson's case it's fun.

Lady 'Hawks win sixth straight

The UNCW Women's basketball team now boasts a 12-3 record after six consecutive wins-four at the road and two here in Trask led by top scorers, Sherri Crumpler and Sharon McMillan.

The She-Hawks easily defeated Shaw (74-47) and Gardner-Webb (104-73) at home. Pfeiffer (99-66) away. Wingate (81-63) away and during Saturday's doubleheader against Charleston Baptist in Trask (78-59).

Highlighting this week's action, the Lady 'Hawks defeated UNC-Charlotte, Monday night, averaging their 53-81 loss against them January 9.

The Seahawks led 40-31 at the half and went on to increase their lead by 17 in the second half. UNC-Charlotte surged and came within five points 54-49 with 13:02 remaining. The Lady 'Hawks took over and won it by nine points 86-77.

Top scorers were Sharon McMillan with 23 points, Jill Amos adding 19 and Sherri Crumpler with 17 points. All three girls entered the game with a fifteen plus point per game average.

This week the 'Hawks have a demanding slate with Pembroke, Guilford and Wake Forest in a tough four day road trip.

"Without question, we are approaching the most demanding part of our season," UNCW Coach Marilyn Christoph says. "It's exciting, though to go against these teams and truly feel that if we play well, we can win."

UNCW Bowling Club meets every Thursday

All students interested in joining the UNCW Bowling Club, the meetings are every Thursday at 4 p.m. at Cardinal Lanes Superbowl. We will be bowling against each other.

Football Team meeting

SGA Football Team meeting February 9, 5 p.m. G-119. New members must have $10 membership fee. Very important to be at this meeting if you plan to play in the spring.

Swimmers lose to ECU

The UNCW men's swim team traveled to Richmond for a weekend of competition against Virginia Commonwealth University on Friday, Jan. 16 and University of Richmond on Sat. Jan. 17. Also the men and women faced two-year rival East Carolina on Jan. 24.

UNCW defeated Virginia Commonwealth 71-42. Individual winners were Rusty Lambe and Sam O'Leary both winning 3 events and John Bole winning the 1000 yard free.

With a victory under their belt, the men faced the University of Richmond losing 68-42. Rusty Lambe and Sam O'Leary again raked in the points with Rusty winning three events-200 free, 200 back and swimming in the medley relay. Sam O'Leary also swam in the winning relay and won the 200 yard fly event. Dave Thomas took the one meter diving event.

The ECU swim team carried on their tradition of dominating over UNCW for the past two years, winning for the third consecutive year. Sam O'Leary led the 'Hawks winning the 50 free, and placing himself number one in Eastern later-Collegiate Standings for the 200 fly with a time of 1:54.32 and swimming in the winning 400 free relay. Rusty Lambe won the 200 freestyle event with the seasonal best time. On the diving board Dave Thomas dominated winning the 1 and 3 meter competitions.

Coach Dave Allen commented "We are disappointed but not discouraged in losing the last two meets. We've had good swims along the way, and I feel that in the UNCW Invitational we have a tremendous opportunity to swim well, finish with a high ranking and qualify many individual swimmers in the Post-Season Championships."

Previous to the UNCW Invitational on Feb. 19, 20, and 21 the men's team will face South Carolina State away Jan. 31. The men and Women meet William and Mary also away.

'Jump Rope for Heart' event

The Physical Education Department is sponsoring a "Jump Rope for Heart" event to raise money for the American Heart Association. This jumpathon, scheduled for Thursday, February 26, at 3 P.M. is open to all students, faculty and staff. Members of each team of six alternate jumping and compile as much total team time as possible. Pledges are secured for each minute that the team jumps. Your support as participants or sponsors is encouraged. Further information is available from the Physical Education Department.

Tryouts

Anyone interested in competing in this spring's men's golf squad should see Coach Dean Allen in his office at 113 Trask or call ext. 2260. A 54-hole qualifying round will be held (Feb. 9-13 and spots are open. The first meet will be the ECU Invitational March 9.

Women's tennis team practice is being held from 3 to 5 p.m. on Mondays until daily practice begins in March. In case of rain or temperatures below 40 degrees, practice will be held on Wednesdays.

There are 12 matches scheduled for March and April plus the state tournament at Guilford College. Girls desiring to try out for the team come out for practice or call Mrs. Virginia Skillman, coach, 791-0518.

It's UNCW Night at SPORTSWORLD

every Wednesday
&
Thursday
6:30-10:00
only $1

admission & skate rental
with valid ID

SPORTSWORLD

fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery

Fast, Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. and Sat.

You can help us serve you and others faster if you follow these simple steps when ordering your pizza.

1. Know what you want before ordering (size of pizza, quantity, what you want on it, any drinks).
2. Give your name, your dorm name, room number, phone number (the one we can reach you at during the following half hour).
3. When placing an order, let us know if you have large denomination bills.
4. Remain by the phone after ordering. We may call back to confirm the order.
5. Price that is quoted on the phone includes sales tax but does not include the subtraction of the coupon. The driver will subtract it when the delivery is made.
6. Have the coupons and money with you when the driver arrives.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Onions, Green Peppers and Sausage.
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi
5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives, Onions, Green Peppers and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Onions, Anchovies, Green Peppers, Olives, Sausage, Ground Beef, Hot Peppers, Double Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Our drivers carry less than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.
Copyright 1981

$2.00 off!

$2.00 off a 16" large Deluxe pizza. One coupon per pizza. Expires: 1/28/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12057 5526

$1.00 off!

$1.00 off a 12" small Deluxe pizza. One coupon per pizza. Expires: 1/28/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12057 5526

$1.00 off!

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 minutes, present this coupon to the driver for $1.00 off your pizza. 1/28/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12057 5526

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Yearbook Refunds

Because the publishing company failed to print names on the 1980 yearbooks, all students who paid to get their names printed should go to the SGA office (in the Pub) to get a refund. Those who paid for their yearbook covers should go to the Fledgling office in the Pub and pick them up.

RACQUETBALL from p. 5 hour, I staggered out into the real world, sobbing softly and sweating nicotine. And he, the ultimate pro, was sweating gently, just enough to define his muscles and make passing female jocks eye him lustfully. But I knew a secret. . . I knew it was the sweat of frustration. I knew that faint flush was not from exertion, but from

NOTICE

There was no SEAHAWK last week due to mechanical difficulties.

TV-VIDEO PRODUCTION

Interested in tv-video tape production? There will be a meeting of the UNCW Video Network on Wednesday, February 4 in K109 at 5 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend.

ATTENTION: If the UNCW student who had her 1969 Renault repaired at D&E Dodge is interested in selling this car, contact P.T. Earbour at 458-5207.

holding back wails of despair.

As I tacked erratically down the hall towards the sanctuary of the locker room, he called after me. "Hey! Wanna play again next week?" Bless his heart: a gentleman to the end. I turned and gave him a blinding smile. "No thank you--I'll be writing a best-seller!" I mean, at least Writer's Fanny isn't terminal!

Commercial option available in Parks and Recreation

A new area of concentration in the Parks and Recreation Management degree program has been added.

Dr. David Miller, Chairman of the Health, Physical Education & Recreation Department, announced that commercial option will be available in the Fall 1981 term. This concentration area is in addition to special populations option and outdoor recreation option which are currently offered in the program.

LOST & FOUND

Lost
Pair of brown-framed glasses in brown case
Red windbreaker
Keys on leather ring w/big brass "Q"
Sterling silver hoop earring charm w/turquoise inlay
Red leather gloves
Keys on green key chain
Seiko quartz watch, silver w/blue face
Key ring w/about 30 keys

Found

Pin
Typewriter
Wallet
Watch (ladies)
Notebooks
Thermos
Blankets (2)
Raincoat
Men's sweater

Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub

Recruiting Visits

The following are the recruiting visits currently scheduled for February 1981. Additional visits will be listed as scheduled in the Career Planning Placement Office.

Kinston Schools
Mr. Harold
Mon., Feb. 2
Pos: Teacher
Majors: Elementary, English Social Studies, Sp. Ed.

Career Day '81
Wed., Feb. 4

U.S. Navy
LCDR Spratt
Wed., Thurs., Fri., Feb. 4, 5, 6
Pos: Various
Majors: Any

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Feb. 5
Pos: Mfg. Mgmt. Trainee, Accountant
Majors: Business (Mgmt. Engineering Operations), Accounting

First Citizens Bank and Trust Co.
Mr. Frank Rawley
Thurs., Feb. 5
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Accounting, Business (Economics, Finance)

Hertford County Board of Education
Mr. Vernon E.
Fri., Feb. 6
Pos: Teacher
Majors: Education

United Carolina Bank
Ms. Janice Young
Fri., Feb. 6
Pos: Auditor
Majors: Accounting

Cumberland County Board of Education
Mr. Harry McMillan
Tues., Feb. 10
Pos: Teacher
Majors: Education

Wachovia Bank and Trust
Ms. Dorothy Moore
Mr. Jim Hewett
Wed., Feb. 11
Pos: Retail Mgmt. & Field Rep. Trainees, Programmers
Majors: Accounting, Business (Economics, Finance, Management), Computer Science

First Union Nat'l Bank
Ms. Peggy Patterson
Thurs., Feb. 12
Pos: Commercial Lending/ Training Progra. Branch Mgmt.
Majors: Accounting, Business (Economics, Finance)

J.C. Penny
Mr. Jack Sutton
Thurs., Feb. 12
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business Admin.

NCNB
Fri., Feb. 13
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Accounting, Business

Cherry, Bekaert, & Holland, CPAs
Mr. Eddie Dutton
Fri., Feb. 13
Pos: Accountant
Majors: Accounting

When you need some notes at 3:00 a.m., you find out who your friends are.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 16

February 6, 1981

Eight Pages

Student Government disapproves handling of WLOZ conflict

by Wally Bengtson and
Dianne Russell

Last Thursday the Student Government Association voiced disapproval of the administration's handling of the recent upset at WLOZ.

At a weekly meeting the night of January 29, the SGA voted overwhelmingly to condemn the administration's approach in resolving the WLOZ conflict. Recently WLOZ lost its contract with Progressive Radio Network (PRN) to broadcast "News Blimp," a public information program which comes out of New York City. Local radio station WHSL now has that contract, which UNCW held for three years.

In its claims against PRN, the SGA had expected backing from the administration.

WLOZ station manager Karen Durda said in her monthly report to the student senate that she was not pleased with the manner in which the contract dispute between WLOZ, PRN, and WHSL was handled. She said the decision to let WHSL broadcast "News Blimp" had been made during a meeting at which neither she nor WLOZ faculty adviser Welch was present.

Although Durda was called out of class for the emergency meeting, she said she did not arrive until after the decision had been made.

In response to Durda's report, the SGA voted to support Durda in her statement of dissatisfaction.

"The SGA needs to reevaluate its stand with the administration," said SGA Vice-president Charles Parsons. He suggested that WLOZ be licensed in the name of the SGA rather than in the name of the University, as it is now. This would give the SGA the power to handle future problems without the intervention of the administration.

In other business, Chief Justice John Ward informed the senate that the Parking Committee and the Bicycle Committee had met without informing the student representatives. Several policies were recommended during those meetings.

The Parking Committee recommended that all parking tickets have a set fine of $5 and that first-violation warnings be abolished. The committee also recommended that students residing on campus be required to park their cars in a restricted area near the dorms.

The senate voted to condemn all recommendations made by the Parking Committee.

The senate also condemned the Bicycle Committee's recommendation requiring mandatory registration and fees for all bicycles on campus.

The recommendation also made bicyclists subject to $5 parking fines.

In the vice-president's report, Charles Parsons asked that students who oppose next year's increase in student fees come to the SGA office and voice their opinions. In cooperation with the student governments of other UNC schools, UNCW is now circulating petitions to halt increases in student fees.

SGA President Jesse Sanders reported that a campus telephone directory for the dormitories was being looked into for next year. He also mentioned that an improved student consumer card with discounts from 21 local businesses was being prepared.

Finally, the senate approved the charter for the Math and Computer Science Club and approved guidelines for the Football Club.

Betty Kunsta was appointed as the new SGA treasurer, replacing Michelle Bond who resigned last week.

WLOZ Station Manager Karen Durda gives monthly report to the SGA. Left to right are Durda, SGA Secretary Lynn Wells and Vice-President Charles Parsons.

Atlantis staff plans mid-February release of magazine

by David Carter

The Atlantis, UNCW's biannual literary publication, is slated for release in mid-February.

Although the student body is generally accustomed to receiving the fall edition of the Atlantis before Christmas, Editor-in-Chief Sherry Nivens said the Atlantis staff waited until after exams so that people would be more receptive and "not as burned out." This free publication will soon be available at various points throughout the campus.

Composed of students' original poetry, prose, and art, the Atlantis this year features something new. The prose portion formerly consisted entirely of short stories, but the new edition includes essays.

This will hopefully open up the field to new talent who are good writers, but aren't comfortable building plots and characters," stated Nivens. In the new edition, four of seven prose pieces are essays.

The spring issue is due to be released in mid-April. The English department is currently accepting prose and poetry for spring. Manuscripts should be typed and should include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Kelly Morris, poetry editor and Judy Stallsmith, prose editor and their staffs read all the entries, evaluate and discuss them. The entries which are assigned numbers, are selected in total anonymity, and by majority rule.

See ATLANTIS, p. 8.

Inside

Letters.....	p. 2
Fraternities.....	p. 3
Mike Cross.....	p. 4
Campus Chuckles.....	p. 5
Sports.....	p. 6
Campus Calendar.....	p. 7

Fires pose problem at dorms

Fires have become a problem at the dormitories according to Dean of Students Gary W. Juhon.

Due to the smoke from a Christmas tree that was set on fire, the New Dormitory had to be evacuated during the Christmas season. There has also been a small fire in the dormitory trash room.

The most recent fire started on the night of January 18 in Hewlett Dorm.

The fire department was called to the scene. The fire was extinguished by the time the fire department arrived.

arrived.

With the exception of the Christmas tree, Juhon said he doesn't think the fires were deliberate. "I am very concerned with the safety of the students and their personal property. These dorms are their homes, and some students have all of their belongings here," said Juhon.

This far none of the fires have caused any major damage, but Juhon wants all students to be alert to the possibility of fires in case of a fire alarm.

Dr. David Miller

Miller to become Assistant Dean of Arts and Sciences

Dr. David Miller, Chairman of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department, had been selected as Assistant Dean of Arts and Sciences effective July 1, it was announced by Dr. Daniel Pieler.

Dr. Pieler, Dean of Arts and Sciences, said the position opened when Dr. John Stokes vacated the post in order to return to teaching full time. Stokes will remain as head of the Advising Center.

Dr. Miller was an undergraduate at UNCW on a baseball scholarship in 1965 and has been a faculty member here for the past ten years.

"I am looking forward to my new responsibilities as Assistant Dean," Miller said recently.

An interim chairman for the Health, Physical Education and Recreation department for fall and spring terms 1981-82 is yet to be determined.

LETTERS

Professor denied tenure, students object

current UNCW students, but for the benefit of future UNCW students.

Kathleen A. Hornyak
Karen Housand
Denise Hayes

To the Editor:

Recently, Dr. Larry Gerstenhaber, who has been part of the Psychology Department faculty for 5 years, was denied tenure and given 3 semesters to leave his UNCW teaching position. As a group of concerned students, we would like to take this opportunity to voice our discontentment with this decision.

As an instructor, Dr. Gerstenhaber shows competence and interest in the subjects he teaches. As a counselor, he shows sincere interest and willingness to assist any student in need of his help. And as a person, he shows an interest in and consideration for students not only as a group, but as individuals with varying ideals, attitudes, opinions and beliefs.

We feel that Dr. Gerstenhaber is a valuable member of the Psychology Department faculty and an asset to UNCW. We wish to show our support of Dr. Gerstenhaber by circulating a petition and ask that all students who share our feelings show their support by signing this petition.

As the policy now stands, UNCW students pay their tuition and have virtually no say in who their instructors will be. In this instance, however, we feel the need to voice our opinions on the matter. We feel that Dr. Gerstenhaber has done an excellent job in the past and we would like to see him remain in his present capacity not only for the benefit of

Greeks have fun passing the pigskin

To the Editor:

This past September the Interfraternity Council of UNCW held its annual interfraternity football tournament and it was quite a success!

The four fraternities that comprise the IFC: TKE, SAE, Chi Phi, and IIKO, all entered into battle in hopes of winning and of gaining possession of the coveted IFC trophy. The competition consisted of a regular season of each fraternity playing three games a piece and a playoff season of two games each with the last game being the championship contest. At the start of the season, the odds makers picked TKE as the likely championship team and they were right. At the end of the tournament TKE was undefeated and had scored a total of 94 points while only allowing 8 points to be scored against them. (Can you tell that this writer is a TKE?)

All the games were played on Brooks Field and all the Greeks would like to thank several people who helped during the tournament. We would like to thank Greg Dalton from the Athletic Department who gave us the use of a limo to line the playing field. Also we would like to express our thanks to Chief Norman and the UNCW Campus Police Dept. for the use of their traffic cones which we used as end zone markers. And finally we would like to thank all the students who came out and watched the games each week. This is just one example of the great things that Greeks do together so the next time you see a group of us, come out and experience the fun and brotherhood that we have!

Pete Divoky

SEAHAWK Deadline

Deadline for all copy is Thurs. at 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

Seahawk/Fledgling office numbers

If you wish to contact the Seahawk or Fledgling offices the phone number is 791-4330 ext. 2229 for the Seahawk, and ext. 2548 for the Fledgling. The number listed in the 1980 phone directory is no longer in use.

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions. Scholarships and/or compensation are available for some positions.

Sports Writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel
Typesetters

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Jim Davis, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Typesetter: Cheryl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

AND IN RECOGNITION OF 20 YEARS OF LOYAL SERVICE
HERE AT THE NUCLEAR WASTE DUMP...

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Fraternities place emphasis on community involvement

Over the years, the word "fraternity" has come to mean beer-chugging contests, chaotic frat parties, a secret handshake, and above all, an overwhelming environment of brotherhood.

Frats of the eighties are not very far removed from the boys' club atmosphere of the 50's and 60's, but there have been changes. Now there is more emphasis placed on academic achievements and community involvement.

Steve Hamilton, President of the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, put it this way. "We (of SAE) are proud of the fact that this past semester our cumulative grade point average was 2.8. The semester before that it was 3.0

We are also involved in fund-raising efforts to aid the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation." SAE also sponsors a foster child in Thailand, sending $50 monthly to a young boy. "He writes letters," explained Steve Griffin ("Styger"), also a member of SAE. "We can't really understand them because they're written in Thai, but it's still nice to hear from him."

SAE is presently functioning as a colony, and members are confident that the frat will receive chapter status at a national convention in Kansas

City June 18-20. They are also in the process of acquiring a frat house "a short distance from campus" according to Hamilton. All that remains is to complete financial arrangements and hire a housemother. The housemother will be responsible for preparing one meal a day and keeping the main living area clean. A member of the fraternity will be appointed as housemanager. The housemanager will have the privilege of a private room, although there is no salary attached to the position. On April 1, the IFC will host a wheelchair basketball game, with all proceeds being donated to various charitable organizations. This event will kick off Greek Week (April 1-3). Greek Week will include frat songfests and field events. Commented Hamilton, "We want to show that fraternities really have a lot to offer."

UNCW Racquetball Club

The world's fastest growing sport is also a UNCW favorite, as is obvious to those who've lately tried to reserve a racquetball court later than early morning. Though you may have been lucky enough to get a court, could it be that you weren't so lucky finding a compatible partner, one as good/bad (circle one - be honest) as yourself? If you circled either, your problems cease here. The UNCW Racquetball Club was made for you, and we invite you to come and try us out. We are compiled of a range of abilities from novice to advanced, and offer the chance to meet numerous others with ability similar to yours. A ladder exists for the more competitive type to inspire incentive, along with deciding who travels to compete with other schools. Divided into advanced, novice, and ladies, the ladder is displayed in front of the courts. Intercollegiate, the club boasts a fine record, defeating such larger schools as ECU, UNC-C, and NC State. Tentative spring scheduling presents home games with ASU, UNC, UNC-C and NC State. Future events also include a beginners clinic provided for all UNCW affiliates.

If racquetball fever has caught you, come to our special meeting on Tuesday, February 10, at 7:30 p.m. or join us at our reserved court time on Tuesday nights from 5:30 until 7:30, which will resume with the completion of the Intramural Tournament. The special meeting features award winning racquetball film starring National Champ Mike Yellon. For more information call Andy Bowles, 392-1979, Dr. Wolfe, Trask Gym, or Mitch Covington, 791-9292.

SAIL THE BAHAMAS

$369

Includes All Food
Plus
Plenty of Beer and Rum

Yachts are fully crewed—no sailing experience needed!

Call Steve Griffin 392-0719

or call FRANK RENFROE (toll-free) 800-223-1682

Intercollegiate Sailing Club Div.
Copeland Cutler, Inc.

183 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10016

Intramural Hockey

Anyone interested in playing Intramural Floor Hockey come by Intramural office for Rosters. Men's and women's teams are available. Rosters are due Feb. 17. Managers meeting will be held on Feb. 19 at 4:30 in Hanover gym.

UPB Valentine Jam

Don't forget what's happening February 14! The University Program Board's Dance Committee presents the First Annual Valentine Jam, with live vibes provided by Blue Sparks From Hell.

This band must be heard to be believed! They play a unique blend of rhythm and blues, with a lot of swing mixed in. They have a stage persona that is unlike any other act touring today. Come on out Valentine's Night and listen to the fabulous Blue Sparks From Hell!!

Yearbook Refunds

Because the publishing company failed to print names on the 1980 yearbooks, all students who paid to get their names printed should go to the SGA office (in the Pub) to get a refund. Those who paid for their yearbook covers should go to the fledgling office in the Pub and pick them

EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION HAS ALWAYS BEEN IMPORTANT.

Man learned at a very early age that good ideas have to be heard to be effective. So he devised his own method of getting those ideas across. Today, on the job... or in school, communication remains a vital part of our world. Which is exactly what we'll be talking about in the upcoming issue of "Insider"—the free supplement to your college newspaper from Ford.

We'll tell you how to improve your communication skills

Look for "Insider"—Ford's continuing series of college newspaper supplements.

... from writing term papers and doing oral presentations, to communicating with friends, parents and persons of authority. And whether you're looking for an internship or a full-time job, we've got loads of info to help you get there. With tips on how to write a persuasive resume, handle an interview gracefully, use the telephone effectively, and much more.

Check out the next issue of "Insider," and while you're looking, be sure to check out Ford's great new lineup for 1981. Including Escort, the new world car that's built in America to take on the world.

FORD

FORD DIVISION

Mike Cross, draws packed houses at Thalian Hall

by Julie Russ

Mike Cross, that guitar-pickin', fiddle-playin', story-tellin' good ole boy, has done it again. Left Wilmington gasping, that is. Cross, a Carolina legend (and a concert promoter's dream) drew packed houses when he played Thalian Hall January 30-31 and February 1.

Cross usually performs in Kenan Auditorium when he blows into town, but this time around he chose historic, haunted Thalian Hall, and with good reason. Acoustically, the auditorium is almost perfect, and Mike Cross used this to his advantage by recording a live album during his dates there.

With friend and Mom(yeah, my mom likes him, too) in tow, we arrived at the box office and were granted box seats (oh, the advantages of being a reporter!) and shortly thereafter, the fun began.

Mike literally bounded on-stage dressed in a top hat and a spiffy tuxedo t-shirt. That famous countryboy grin went from ear to ear as he grabbed his guitar and started the show. He made the 12-string slide guitar hum as he launched into a welcome song, "Goin' down to Wilmington," he wailed, sounding as bluesy as any cotton-picker.

When the audience was informed of this fact during the show Sunday afternoon, the results were predictable. Cheering and whooping nearly drowned out Mike's good-time singing.

I had tickets for the Sunday night festivities, and the whole weekend reports came sifting back about the phenomenal gigs: Mike played what the crowd wanted to hear; he fiddled as if Rome were burning, fanning the audience to a fever pitch of excitement; he was Cross the clown, joking and making comic faces at the microphone. Being thus prepped in advance, I thought I was psyched for the Sunday night show. Besides, I'd seen Mike several times before (hey, I'm a fan!) so I thought it would be a typical Cross concert.

"Blue Skies and Teardrops" was a definite crowd pleaser. Sighs wafted through the hall as Mike lamented, "But the road says/You got to move along." "Nobby" was sung with enthusiasm in every sleazy syllable. The crowd shrieked at this familiar tale of a pimp who gets his just reward. "Not a Good Woman to Love" featured the incredibly handsome Zan MacLeod on electric guitar. This tune has just been released as a single and met with the crowd's noisy approval.

"Rocky-Top Barbeque" and "Start Drawing the Lines" were first-class rockers. Cross romped through them with unflagging energy, eliciting whoops from the beat-hungry fans.

"Rock 'n' Rye," "Strip Poker Massacre" and "Gospel Wine" were also favorites, the first being an achingly beautiful reminiscence, and the last being a rowdy commentary on the merits of wine mixed with religion.

Cross was in rare form Sunday night, with the fans eating out of his hand. He closed with "I Wish I Was In Dixie," and when he received a standing ovation he blazed back with "Will the Circle Be Unbroken," a song which he sang from the depths of his heart. He followed that with "Amazing Grace," which he sang a capella.

It is not media hype to say that no one left this concert unmoved. Cross was at once uplifting and soothing, and once again his music has taken Wilmington by storm.

COLLEGE POETRY REVIEW

The NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

announces

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is

February 15th

ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred because of space limitations.

Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANUSCRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS.

NATIONAL POETRY PRESS

Box 218

Agoura, Ca. 91301

Leo's
BEER KING

10 0/0 discount for students on sandwiches

Happy Hour Mon.-Fri.
5:30-7:00

221 Kerr Ave.
392-0480

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsliders-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach
SURF SHOP

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50% off

MOST MERCHANDISE IS 25% OFF!

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

Surfboard Clearance
Schroff Alpa-Sunset
Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country

Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Aleeda

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

It's time for klutzes to come out of the closet and be counted

I think it's time for a certain oppressed minority to stumble forward and be counted. Klutzes of America, unite! Believe me, I know whereof I speak—I am a charter member of this exclusive club.

What it comes down to is, you pay a certain price for being a natural-born klutz. Me, I've been paying dues for 20 years now, and still going strong. The trials and tribulations are many: my mother cringes when I walk into the kitchen, my brother howls if I even look

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Kuse

at his stereo, and my dog whines when I try to pet her. I mean, it's not like I mangle things on purpose, y'know? It just sorta...happens.

Recently, in the course of one day, I... knocked the alarm clock into my aquarium, got tangled in the bedsheets and crashed to the floor, dropped two eggs on the stove, stepped on my father's hat (well, what was it doing in the way?), spilled a can of Tab, singed my nostrils while lighting a cigarette, caught my sweater in the car door, dropped a stack of books in the library, and walked out of the ladies' room with toilet paper stuck to my foot. All this before noon! By this time, even I was beginning to wonder.

Finally, my best friend confronted me—from a distance. "Hev," she yelled. "I know you're clumsy, kid, but lately you've been dangerous!" I smiled—how sweet of her to be concerned. I rushed to hug her and knocked her glasses off. Backing away, I felt my foot crunch—a pair of designer frames. "That's okay," she said feebly. "I needed new lenses anyway." What could I say?

There's only so much you can do to improve this kind of situation. Wear soft-soled shoes, move slowly (so people have time to get out of your way) and never, ever get drunk in public. You could be arrested as a moving menace to society.

But the best thing to do is carry a big supply of Band-aids and an apologetic smile—we may be clumsy, but at least we're not rude!

Center can aid in studying troubles

Do you have trouble studying? Have you lost your self-confidence? Or, are you just not sure what the problem is? Then the UNCW Counseling and Testing Center may be just the answer for you.

The Center, located in room 106 of the Student Services Building, offers help in vocational, educational, and personal problems. It staffs Dr. Darwin Newton, Dr. Ed Reilly, a counselor and reading study skills specialist, and three part-time psychologists.

The testing portion of the center's services offers 25 to 30 types of tests to students who have adequate reasons for taking them. A few examples are the SAT, the GRE, and various personality tests. One of the vocational interest tests is the Kudar, which measures students' desires to work in specific occupations.

The center also offers group discussions on couples enrichment, self-improvement, decision-making, life-planning and other topics. The groups are free, and times will be announced when more definite plans are made.

"Most of the students who come are referrals from other students," said Newton. "Everyone knows that this service is here, but they don't relate it to themselves. They think it's a weakness to admit they need help."

Those interested can pick up information pamphlets at the library front desk, or make appointments with the center's staff.

COMING
FEB. 7th
our regular
HOT FUDGE
SUNDAE!
ONLY 99¢
MAYBERRY
Guaranteed to brighten your day.

THE UNIQUE VALENTINE

Call about our
Valentine's
Day Special

18" heartshaped
red/silver
metallic balloons

Say it with balloons!

The Hot Line

Fast...Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.25

16" cheese $6.15

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Hours:

4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.

4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry
less than $10.00.

Limited delivery area.

Copyright 1981

Dinner
for 4

Only $7.00!

Includes a 16" 1 item
pizza and 1 qt. of Pepsi. Price includes
tax. Customer pays deposit. One coupon
per pizza.
Expires:

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12342 5526

Dinner
for 2

Only $5.00!

Includes a 12" 1 item
pizza and 1 qt. of Pepsi. Price includes
tax. Customer pays deposit. One coupon
per pizza.
Expires:

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12342 5526

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks face demanding seven game stretch

A road-weary UNC-Wilmington basketball team returns to Trask Coliseum for its only home contest in a demanding seven-game stretch here Saturday when the Seahawks host UNC-Charlotte at 7:30 p.m.

UNCW, 7-9 after dividing four away games during the past 10 days, hopes to regain the services of leading scorer and rebounder Danny Davis for the intrastate matchup with the 49ers. The 6'7" senior has missed three straight games with pericarditis, a viral condition near the heart, but was scheduled to resume practice with the Hawks today after a week's absence.

UNCW has held up rather well without Davis' 16.7 points and 10 rebounds per game, winning two-of-its last three outings—all close decisions, though. The pair of wins were both overtime affairs, while the most recent game, a 53-48 loss at South Carolina State, was not decided until the final 20 seconds.

"We have to be proud of the effort and togetherness that this team has shown," UNCW coach Mel Gibson says. "Danny's illness came at a bad time since we had won three-of-four and with the exception of the Ohio U. game (an 86-81 loss) had finally begun to play the style of ball that we need in order to win.

"Performances like Scott Prudhoe's at Baptist (18 points) and Randy McMillan's at South Carolina State (20 points, 12 rebounds) are encouraging, of course, but we're still eager to have Danny back, hopefully for the Charlotte game."

Like the Seahawks the 49ers are in the unfamiliar position of entering February with more losses than wins. UNCW's record fell to 7-12 Tuesday in a 90-80 setback to Virginia Commonwealth.

Charlotte has not had a losing season since 1969-70, while UNCW has put winning years together four straight times since becoming Division One in 1976.

Coach Mike Pratt's squad has lost two key players during the 80-81 season, however. Top returning scorer Bobby Potts was sidelined for the year after just three games with an injury, while center George Devone, the team's top rebounder, was an academic casualty at midseason.

The talented backcourt of 6'3 junior Phil Ward (15.3 ppg) and 6'3 senior Donnie Koonce (12.6) make the 49ers a formidable foe, though. Other likely starters are 6'8 freshman Harrison Finklea or 6'8 sophomore Lawrence Furlow.

Furlow had a career-high 19 points in Tuesday's loss to VCU.

Gibson utilized 10 players in Tuesday's loss at SC State, with seven of those playing 18 minutes or more.

If Davis cannot go, the likely frontline starters will be McMillan, Prudhoe and Shawn Williams, with Frankie Dickens and Edward Timmons in the backcourt. Alan Salzano and Dennis Tobin are the top reserves at the guard spots, while Jimmy Denton, Leon Nickelson and Mike Prudhoe all will probably see action, too.

Other than Davis, Williams is the club's only double figure scorer at 11.3 ppg and top rebounder with a 5.1 average.

UNCW and UNCC did not play last season, but the 49ers have a four-game win streak over the Seahawks dating back to 1977.

Following Saturday's contest, the Hawks return to the road, visiting UNC-Asheville next Monday (Feb. 9) and Appalachian State on Wednesday (Feb. 11).

Lady Hawks best ever

The school's first-ever winning season already assured, and a Division Two state playoff berth almost in its grasp, the UNC-Wilmington women's basketball team heads into the closing phases of its regular season, still with its biggest challenge of all just ahead.

The Lady Seahawks, 14-5 after Tuesday's 91-51 demolishing of Coastal Carolina, play at Livingstone on Thursday (Feb. 5), then return home next Tuesday to host powerful East Carolina.

The Lady Pirates, 17-8 entering a Thursday contest with North Carolina, recently defeated both NC State and Virginia, two nationally ranked teams, and are now 18th in the country.

Game time in Trask Coliseum on February 10 is 7 p.m.

"We haven't had much time to think a lot about ECU, having played five games the last nine days," UNCW coach Marilyn Christoph says, "but I think that the girls are starting to look forward to next Tuesday now.

"It's a chance for us to go against one of the best teams in the state, and maybe in the country. ECU has a veteran team and we're starting three freshmen, but we're all a little anxious just to see how we can do."

Christoph's freshman trio of Sharon McMillan (16.4 ppg), Jill Amos (15.4) and Sherri Crumpler (15.4) have been the Lady Seahawk scoring leaders all year.

Crumpler's 13.2 rebounds per game easily tops the UNCW stats in that category. The Union High product grabbed a season-high 21 in the win over Coastal Carolina and has led the team in bounds in every game but two this season.

Following Tuesday's encounter with ECU, only four games remain in the regular season. UNCW was rated 10 in the latest computer rankings, which will determine the 12 participants in the state tournament, beginning February 25 at Lenoir-Rhyne College in Hickory.

The Lady 'Hawks still have home games with UNC-Asheville (Feb. 14), Pfeiffer (Feb. 16) and NC Central (Feb. 18) and a road date at Charleston Baptist (Feb. 20).

One-on-One Tourney

College students who usually sit in the stands and dream of being Magic Johnson or Larry Bird will get a chance to bring their fantasies to life when Miller Brewing Company and Coastal Beverage Company bring their Miller High Life One-on-One Basketball Tournament to UNCW.

Participants in this tournament will engage in a five minute basketball game. The winner will be the first player to score ten points, or who is leading by two or more points at the end of the game.

To be eligible, all participants must be currently enrolled at UNCW as a graduate or undergraduate student. Students having lettered in collegiate basketball are ineligible. The winner will receive a $200 scholarship award and a trophy. In the event that he/she is not eligible to accept the award because of financial assistance restrictions, the money will be donated to the school's athletic department.

Second, third, and fourth place winners will receive trophies. The top fifty participants will receive a pair of Miller athletic tube socks and a One-on-One jersey.

The tournament will begin on February 8 at Trask Coliseum and will run for two weeks.

Those interested in participating in the Miller High Life One-on-One Tournament at UNCW should sign and complete the registration/liability waivers which are available at the intramural office through February 6. Positively NO entries will be accepted after the February 6 deadline.

Swimmers prepare for Invitational

The 1980-81 dual meet season comes to a close during the next two weeks for the NC-Wilmington men's and women's swim teams, who are looking forward to a strong regular season finish to give them momentum for the Seahawk Invitational later this month.

The home portion of the schedule concludes Friday when the Hawks (both men and women) host Furman at 4 p.m.

That meet will end the Lady Seahawks' dual meet competition, while the guys wrap up their season on February 14 at William and Mary.

Still ahead, too, is UNCW's own invitational meet here,

Feb. 19-21, which this year includes 17 teams, among them defending men's champion East Carolina and 1980 women's titleholder Virginia Tech.

"We're healthy for the first time in two weeks and hopefully have the flu and injury bugs behind us," Seahawk coach Dave Allen says. "The next couple of meets are important as we start to prepare in earnest for the Seahawk Invitational and our other championship competition in March."

UNCW will once again this year be represented in both the prestigious Eastern Intercollegiate in Cleveland, O., (menonly) and the women's Division Two national championships at Marquette, Mich.

Three Seahawks have already qualified for the Easterns, including junior Sam O'Leary, the defending champion in the 100 butterfly. O'Leary has made the minimum time also in the 200 fly and 50 free. Mike Malone has qualified in the 200 breast, while Rusty Lambe will be entered in the 200 free and 200 backstroke.

The Lady Seahawk medley relay team recently qualified for the nationals, as did sophomore Janet Johnson in both the 50 and 100 breaststroke events. Johnson was second in the country last year in the 50-yard competition.

It's UNCW Night at SPORTSWORLD

every

Wednesday

&

Thursday

6:30-10:00

only $1

admission & skate rental
with valid ID

SPORTSWORLD

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Lecture series offered on Great Decisions '81

Students, faculty and staff can look forward to the upcoming lecture-discussion series, Great Decisions '81 sponsored by the Department of Special Programs.

Eight topics of international interest will be presented each Wednesday evening from 7:30-9:30 p.m. beginning February 11 in King Building auditorium. Topics and speakers will be: The U.S. and the Soviet Union, Dr. Thomas Mosley (Feb. 11); From Cairo to Kabul, Dr. William Schneider

(Feb. 18); John Haley, China After Normalization (Feb. 25); Fred McRee, South Africa (March 4); Dr. Carlos Perez, Central America and the Caribbean (March 18); Dr. Richard Wells, Food (March 25); Dr. Melton McLaurin, Made in USA (April 1); The World in 1981, Charles Anderson (April 8).

The series is free to all UNCW students, faculty and staff. For more information call extension 2194 from 8-5 p.m.

Lost and found items

Lost

Men's gray button-up sweater
Men's wallet
USMC PLC shirt
Aigner ladies wallet
Red wallet w/meal ticket
Eyeglasses in red tweed case
TI-30 calculator
Pair of natural-color gloves

w/leather palms

Found

Books
Calculators
Umbrella
Notebooks
Check with Chyrl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

New York City Tour this spring

Plans have been announced for the First Annual Spring Tour to New York City, hosted by Carole Ellsworth Tallant, assistant professor of speech at UNCW. Dates for the trip are April 16-20, 1981. Total cost is $396 per person based on sixteen in the group staying in quad rooms.

Special features for the trip will include round trip airfare from Wilmington to New York, an orientation session, tickets for two Broadway plays, a backstage tour of a current Broadway play, a theatre seminar with a leading Broadway professional, a ticket to the New York Philharmonic and a backstage tour of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Cost also covers hotel accommodations for five days and four nights, including taxes and tips. There will be plenty of free time for sightseeing, shopping, museums and concerts.

Working through the Field Studies Center of New York, Dr. Tallant is able to plan the trip with the local participants' interest in mind. The trip is individually designed by Dr. Tallant, and allows those going to take advantage of economical group rates.

Those who are interested in further information and a brochure on this five-day, four-night trip, should call Dr. Tallant at UNCW at 791-4330 extension 2443, or at home, 343-8493. Early reservations are recommended as space is limited.

Wilmington Pro Musica

The Wilmington Pro Musica will be in Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for students and UNCW students will be admitted free with college ID.

Unclaimed checks

Three hundred or more checks are still unclaimed in the Financial Aid Office. They are in room 104 of the Administration Building. Financial Aid would like all checks to be picked up as soon as possible.

Applications for the 1981-82 year are also available in 104. NADL (student loan) checks can be picked up in the Financial Services Office, room 203.

Real People to be at Goodwood

The University Program Board's Half-Moon Productions is excited to announce Real People, a jazz trio February 6, in the Goodwood Tavern. The event will be from 9-11 p.m. and you're encouraged to bring your favorite beverages.

Members of the Trio are: Benjie Seawell, bass player.

who also jams with Level Four, another Jazz-oriented band; Charlie Britt, guitar; Larry Price, saxophone.

These guys play main line jazz, with a high-energy level that will knock your fillings loose. Admission is, as always, free - so come out to the Goodwood Tavern and jam with Real People!

WORKING YOUR WAY THROUGH COLLEGE?

Law office needs word processor after 5pm

Male or Female

We will train

Prefer freshmen or sophomores

Send information on typing skills and SAT scores to
P.O. Box 144
Wilmington, N.C. 28402

Wilmingtons only
complete record store with discount prices.

Just in / New

Aprilwine 5.99
Toto 5.99
Styx 5.99
Clash 9.99
Nicolette Larsen 5.49
Ry Cooder 5.45
Manfred Mann 5.49
Steve Winwood 5.49
David Allen Coe 5.49

Many More

Thanks to everyone - [You know who you are] for your support!

DON'T BE MISLEAD
When other stores have a few albums on special

Hits

Pat Benatar 5.99
Kenny Rogers 5.99
Stevie Wonder 5.99
AC/DC 5.99
Blondie 5.99
Rod Stewart 5.99
REO Speedwagon 5.99
Chris Cross 5.49
Boyz Scaggs 5.99
Dire Straits 5.49
Rock Pile 4.77
Outlaws 6.49

Kool & Gang 5.49
Stevie Wonder 5.99
Jacksons 5.99
Lakeside

Teddy 5.99
Whispers 5.99
Shalamar 5.99
Manhattans 5.49
Con-Funkshun 5.99
Kano 5.99
Yarbou & People 5.99
Prince 5.49

Blues Brothers 5.49
Beatles 67-70
62-66
9.99 each
Jim Carroll 5.99
Firefall 5.99
Manhattans 5.49
Neil Young 5.99
John Lennon 6.49
Alan Parsons 6.49
Ronnie Milsap 5.99
Anne Murray 5.99
Kansas 5.99
B-52's 5.49
Doobies 6.49
E. Klugh 5.49
Grover Washington 5.99
Weather Report 5.49
Full Jazz Selection

Coming Soon - Jimmy Buffet
Dan Fogelburg

Two Record Sets

Fleetwood Mac 9.99
2 record sets
Yes Shows 8.99
Eagles 10.49
Clash 9.99
Springsteen 11.49
Earth, Wind & Fire 9.99

$3.99 Specials

Bonnie Raitt
Firefall
Steely Dan
Lynd Skynrd
Jimmy Buffet
Dan Fogelburg
Joe Walso
Joe Walsh
James Taylor
Steely Dan
Little Feat
Van Morrison
ZZ Top
Spirit
Jeff Beck
Blue Oyster
Linda Ronstadt
Emmy Lou Harris

JUST EXAMPLES OF
SCHOOL KIDS RECORDS
LOW PRICES ON ALL
ALBUMS

ATLANTIS, from p. 8.

Artwork should be turned in to the Creative Arts department to Donna Moore, the art editor. A major consideration in determining art selections is what fits the themes of the prose and poetry previously chosen. The art staff then makes contributions as needed. An Atlantis cover contest is held each semester, the winning artist receiving a cash prize.

The entire Atlantis staff looks forward to the completion of the new Student Union, where they will have their own facilities instead of having to work around the busy Seahawk schedule as is currently the practice.

Staff is needed and submissions are encouraged. Anyone interested should contact the English department.

Football Team meeting

SGA Football Team meeting Feb. 9, 5 p.m. G-119. New members must have $10 membership fee. Very important to be at this meeting if you plan to play in the spring.

WLOZ meeting

WLOZ will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, February 17 at 4 p.m. in the Pub. Meetings are held every other Tuesday. Everyone is welcome.

SAIL THE BAHAMAS!

What a great break from spring break!

includes round trip
transportation from Chapel
Hill to Miami gourmet meals
on board limbo band

entertainment
All alcohol beverages
beer, wine, liquor, & champagne

spaces available
call today
919-767-8117

919-799-4250

McGOWAN'S FLORIST
A COMPLETE FLORAL SERVICE

HATTIE & JOE HOLLOWAY
OWNERS

5042 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE
WILMINGTON, NC 28403

5th floor
1st Union Bank Building
762-4747

Wash, cut, blow dry, & style

1/2 price
for UNCW students

Ladies reg. 15.00 now 7.50
Men reg. 10.00 now 5.00

by appointment only limited offer

with this coupon
and UNCW ID

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 17

February 13, 1981

Eight Pages

Three new representatives take seats in Student Government

by Wendy Robbins

Three representatives-at-large were chosen in a special election Wednesday, February 4. The new representatives are Beth Hughes, Julie Russ, and Beatrice Kittrell.

Theresa Stuchel was automatically given the position as freshman vice president on January 29 because she was the only person to file a petition.

The final vote count in the representative-at-large elections is as follows: Beth Hughes, 113; Julie Russ, 82; Beatrice Kittrell, 71; Pamela Alberti, 68; Scott Miles, 64; Jean Willard, 34; and Andrea Tyndall, 26.

Hughes, Russ, and Kittrell were sworn in by Chief Justice John Ward at the last Senate meeting. Stuchel was sworn in two weeks ago.

Hughes, a junior, said she was "ecstatic" about winning. "I'm very, very happy," she stated. "I'd like to present ideas that will help the Senate and the student body. I thank the ones that put me in here. I hope I can live up to their expectations."

Russ, a junior, said she felt "terrific" about getting a seat in the senate.

"I just want to have a say in what goes on in student government," she explained.

"I've been coming to the SGA meetings for three or four months now. I've seen what they're doing, and I think I can do a pretty good job in helping to make decisions."

Kittrell, a freshman, is pleased that she won and said that she wants to "give the students the same backing" they gave her. Kittrell also stated that one of her main concerns is getting more unity between the clubs and the Senate.

Stuchel said she was glad she won the freshman vice president position. Many freshmen have told her some of the things they are concerned about, she explained, and she plans on bringing these concerns before the Senate.

"If the students want anything done, they should let me know and I'll see what I can do," she stated.

Larrimer Mellon

Sadhu Ittyavirah

Schweitzer award winners announced

by Wendy Robbins

Sadhu Ittyavirah, a Catholic Indian devoted to serving the poor and needy, and Larrimer Mellon, founder of the Hospital Albert Schweitzer in Haiti, were announced recently as recipients of the 1980 Albert Schweitzer International Prizes.

Ittyavirah, known as "God's newspaper boy," is the winner in humanities and Mellon is the medicine recipient. Andres Segovia, the internationally known guitarist, was announced as the winner in music by Chancellor William Wagoner on January 14.

"We're very pleased with this year's recipients," said Dame Catherine C. Carpenter, director of the international prizes.

"They're just remarkable. They're outstanding people in their own right. In order to get this award, you have to do something in the spirit of Albert Schweitzer. You have to want to help other people through love."

The prizes are awarded at five-year intervals by the North Carolina Educational, Historical and Scientific Foundation, Inc. They are given in Dr. Schweitzer's three fields of interest—music, medicine, and the humanities. Each recipient gets $5,000 and a bronze medallion. The awards ceremony will be held on UNCW's campus.

The first international prizes were awarded in 1975 to Mother Theresa in the humanities, Gian-Carlo Menotti in music, and Theodor Binder in medicine.

Albert Schweitzer's work in medicine served as an inspiration to Larrimer Mellon, who began studies in that field at the age of 39. Mellon, originally from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, specialized in tropical diseases, according to his biography. Over twenty years ago, he established the Hospital Albert Schweitzer in Haiti, which serves approximately 150,000 people. Mellon used his own money to found the hospital.

Mellon devotes much of his time helping the villagers dig decent wells and develop native hand crafts. He also furnishes trees to help stop soil erosion, supplies an immunization program through mobile teams and provides supplementary nutrition needs.

Sadhu Ittyavirah was born March 18, 1922 in Kerala, India, to Catholic parents. For five years during World War II, he served in the Indian army, his biography states.

It was while serving in the army that Ittyavirah became interested in helping others and with studying religion and science. He often did without food so he could feed the hungry children and read all available literature on religion and science.

In 1950 he joined the Society of Jesus and began the process of Jesuit training. But in 1958, only nine months away from ordination, he left the order after receiving due dispensation because he was called to be an itinerant witness unto God. Since then he has been described as a "vagabond in the name of God."

In 1973, he started a center of dialogue between science and religion at Raipur, in Central India. He later had to leave it under the control of a local bishop because the climate adversely affected his health.

Ittyavirah travels widely in India with no possessions except for a bowl in which he receives offerings of food from anyone he encounters.

He has written 23 books in English and 22 books in Malayalam. His books, magazine and news articles have been widely praised in India and abroad.

See AWARDS, p. 3.

Andres Segovia

Classes to begin at 8 o'clock next semester

by Dianne Russell

UNCW students can chalk up 8:30 a.m. classes as a luxury of the past.

Due to excessive enrollment at UNCW, classes will begin at 8 a.m. next fall instead of 8:30 decided the administration two weeks ago.

According to Chancellor Wagoner, the new time will relieve some of the problems created by severe over-enrollment.

"We need every bit of classroom space we can get," he said. "The only way to accommodate is by lengthening the academic day; the earlier schedule will create another class period at the end of the day," he explained.

This year North Carolina State and UNCW are the state's two most over-enrolled schools. Because of a space shortage, UNCW's incoming freshman class must remain the same size as this year's class.

"Eighty-three classes are an anachronism; they have carried over from the past when the school was much smaller," said the Chancellor. He pointed out that there are few schools which begin classes as late as 8:30.

"In my own experience, I attended Wake, East Carolina, and Chapel Hill, classes started at 8 a.m.," he said. "And that was cons ago," he added.

The Chancellor said the idea had been discussed before, but had not been as critically necessary as now.

He also said the earlier schedule would be more cost efficient, since most of the school employees start work at 8 a.m., and the buildings are operating this early anyway.

He does not think the new time will be a serious impediment to working students.

"It could place a burden, on working students, but without it, we would have to cut back on those enrolled," he said. "Actually if a schedule is

See CLASSES, p. 8

Inside

Letters.....	p. 2
Prime Time.....	p. 3
Giovanni.....	p. 4
Honor Society.....	p. 5
Sports.....	p. 6
Campus Calendar.....	p. 7

Miss UNCW Pageant degrades image of UNCW women

EDITORIAL

There were those of us in the neighborhood who liked playing Miss America.

The summer before fifth grade, and other summers, too, my girlfriends and I spent many sunny afternoons at the poolside-strutting down imaginary stage ramps in ruffled bikinis, or draped in bright beach towels, one shoulder exposed seductively; crooning; sighing; flashing gape-toothed smiles at the panel of judges—one or two bored younger brothers and maybe a mother waiting for the kitchen floor to dry—who looked on from the back steps.

Our pageants were pulled off to perfection [we had studied the extravaganzas on TV] so that even a knock-kneed ten-year-old could spout an impressive line of rhetoric in response to "What famous person do you admire most?" and "What does the Miss America title mean to you?"

Those were the same years we had all decided to become airline stewardesses, except for Tracey who was destined to be tall, and therefore wouldn't qualify.

Now they tell me UNCW is going to have its own pageant. A two-night gala event with talent shows, personal interviews, poise, an evening gown competition, and Girls! Girls! Girls! Apparently, somebody decided that UNCW absolutely had to have a "female representative," that since the homecoming queen was no longer guaranteed to be female [last time around the students chose a male], something had to be done. Not only will the pageant guard against such a disaster in the future, but they tell me it will be graced with "quality," "dignity," and "prestige."

What is this "representative" required to do—give birth, perhaps, I wondered, trying to imagine why it is so imperative she be female. But, no, she shall do nothing quite as gender-related as that. Miss UNCW's duties, I discovered, "include but are not limited to personal appearances at all major events of the University and community..." Now, do breasts and a pretty face really enhance one's capabilities for fulfilling this job? Of course not. But they do make one a superior adornment. Like so many glass Christmas balls, women have been used to decorate everything from advertisements and parades [especially Azalea parades] to presidential campaigns since anyone can remember. Well, now we can hang another ball on the tree—and how the light will dance and flicker as it bounces off that delicate inscription—Miss UNCW '81.

"But this pageant's different; we're going for quality!" someone argues. "You know—brains. There's even a requirement on the application," they insist.

I looked, but found no required standard of quality. What I did find was that the applicant's GPA must be no less than a 2.0.

I face it, a 2.0 exhibits the quality of a no-star motel. Obviously, the required black and white photo will have more bearing on "quality" than any academic achievements.

Quality aside, at least the pageant will impose some dignity on UNCW's homecoming celebration, the argument continues. But I'm afraid there is little dignity in parading before a panel of strangers, getting eyed up and down, trying your utmost to convince them that you are, indeed, everything a girl should ever want to be. Or at least what society tells her she should be. And there is very little dignity for the rest of the women on campus who must pursue an education at a university where such antiquated values are not only upheld, but are praised.

Even without dignity, a panel of judges "composed of community and University leaders" undeniably adds prestige to the whole shebang.

Not long ago I had the experience, as a waitress, of serving another panel of judges for a local beauty pageant. They, too, were well-known in

See EDITORIAL, p. 3

LETTERS

Student chose college, not beauty school

To the Editor:

Regarding the Miss UNCW Pageant, if this is the kind of thing expected of the women on this campus, then we should all have our tuition refunded. If I had wanted to enroll in beauty school, I would have—I chose college instead. Or so I thought.

Dottie Lamb

Students say Durda too busy

To the Editor:

We would like to bring about a matter concerning WLOZ, the college radio station. Our station manager, Karen Durda, seems a bit too busy to care about the proper management of a radio station.

Numerous times we have tried to get in contact with her during her supposed office hours, yet not once was she there. When this fact was brought to her attention she took down her posted office hours. As a result, she no longer has office hours and anyone wishing to contact her must wait until she feels like coming to the radio station.

Maybe she doesn't care about the improvement of WLOZ yet there are many people who are seriously concerned with its progress.

Miss Durda's other responsibilities, a full-time student and manager of a local store, seem to be interfering with her running of WLOZ very much. We have spots open for people to work and also have new D.J.s coming on who aren't fully trained. Yet all Miss Durda is interested in is the suing of the PRN and WHSL. She should make the management of WLOZ her first priority and suing her second. Sure we'll get money from the suit but don't you think there are better means of raising money?

Maybe the station personnel were right in the fall when we stated our objections to Miss Durda's nomination for station manager.

Cindy Smith, Program Dir.
Derrick Stanley, Music Dir.
Paul Stanfor, News Dir.
Wally Kunz, Production Man.
Joe Hoffenburg, Asst. Bus. Manager
Elsie Sugar, Asst. Music Dir.
Carol Bella, Ex Music Dir.
Ellen Honeycutt

Brick walls should not be priority

To the Editor:

I suppose everyone has noticed the lovely new brick columns that adorn the entrances to our school. They certainly do enhance the appearance of UNCW to anyone driving by. Unfortunately, I am not merely driving by, and if you are reading this letter, you probably aren't either.

But if, by chance you are driving by, may I suggest you also drive by our Hanover Hall Gym and check out our athlete's weight room? Either one will do, but why not use the downstairs room for an example; it's the better of the two. To your right you will find the leg curl/leg lift machine, but you'd better not use it—it does more harm than good.

The pads on its bars fly off when you do as few as five leg lifts, and the seat pad is torn so that the vinyl may cut your legs, or merely pinch it. Also, the rubber cork that holds the weights on is cracked, so the weights fly off, too. But best of all, the whole machine wobbles from side to side so badly that you'll only hurt your knees if you use it. An isolated example? Hardly. The shoulder press has no stool, the ankle pads on the incline sit-up board are detachable, the wire has snapped on the "lats", there is masking tape holding much of the padded equipment together, and if there are three people using the universal machine at one time, you'll have to wait because there are only three pins to regulate the weights. Seen enough? Well, on your way out, as drive past Brooks Field, don't forget to admire our lovely track. What track? I don't know either, but maybe we could trade some of these new brick towers in on 440 yards of used cinders.

Does anyone know where the funds for our bricks and bushes came from? Mr. Dempsey in the Chancellor's office does. He said that the funds came, in part, from a Wilmington garden club, and the balance of the funds used was STATE MONEY. When asked who it was that approved the spending, Mr. Dempsey snidely retorted "the State".

Well, I hadn't really expected him to say "Nevada" or anything absurd like that, so I suppose "the State" was a logical answer. Unfortunately, "the State" is a pretty big place, and since I can't very well open a letter with "Dear North Carolina", I decided it would be just as beneficial to write a letter to The Seahawk, and to challenge anyone who might be able to solve the mystery of who "the State" is to write them a letter and find out why we have a new cement bench by the highway to sit on, yet we don't have a shoulder press bench in the weight room to sit on because the masking tape that was holding the seat together came unstuck. I invite a reply.

Barbara J. Grob

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Jim Davis, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy

Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Circulation Manager: Doug Broune

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

* The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Peacetime patriotism means junkerism in America

"Patriot: One who loves and supports his country and its interests." Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary.

We Americans are strange people. We cry, "Peace. Peace," yet only when we're fighting mad do we ask "God Bless America." Why is it only when we're threatened, humiliated, or irritated that we're unashamed to display our patriotism? Any why is it that patriotism is so often exhibited as an urge to kill?

It would be easy to say our lack of everyday patriotism stems from disillusionment with our government; that, because of Vietnam, Watergate, and Abscam, we don't "love and support" our government. But this American propensity toward wartime patriotism and peacetime

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

indifference isn't indicative of only this generation.

Up until December 7, 1941, many Americans were telling FDR, "Keep us out of war, or else." Yet these same Americans rallied 'round the flag in love and support of the government they were griping about on Dec. 6th. In 1939, Hitler's parties were the rage on college campuses. American youth laughingly donned brown shirts and pasted on mustaches to celebrate disguised as that crazy (but harmless) Furer. A few years later, many of those same young people would be dying in the struggle to rid the world (especially America) of the threat of Hitlerism. Thus it has been throughout our history. Only when we're goaded do we go to war, and only then do we wave our flags.

Of course the hostage situation, while it brought out millions of flags, didn't result in war. But it got our dander up as it got out our flags. If it didn't end in war, it wasn't because we weren't mad. It wasn't because we didn't feel patriotic.

Yet, we show our patriotism by anger in wartime, how do we show it in peacetime? Ironically, we declare our belief in Americanism (i.e. freedom, equality, and enterprise) by belligerently opposing our fellows.

We bumperstick our flags and warn: "Love it or leave it." We convene in groups to declare: "Black Power, White Power, Person Power, even Kid Power." We call each other every name but American: "Nigger, Kike, Pollock, Honky, Pig." We train our children to salute the flag, finger their neighbor, and fist for their rights. Thus, as in war, peacetime patriotism means junkerism.

Yet, how do we change it? How do we remove the anger and put the love back into our patriotism?

By asking questions. First we can ask ourselves what being an American means to us. Is it merely a call to war, or is it also a call to peace? Is it merely for us, or is it also for our neighbor? Is it merely a right, or is it also a privilege?

Then we can look at our flag. Does that red, white, and blue cloth represent pride or defiance? Is it only a one day Independence decoration, or is it an everyday Independence celebration?

Most importantly, we must ask ourselves, and answer frankly: "Can we live our patriotism as eagerly and unwaveringly, as we'd fight for it?"

Addendum: When was the last time you said the Pledge of Allegiance--and did you think about what it meant when you did?

EDITORIAL, from p. 2.

the community. They sparkled; they glittered; they didn't eat their baked potatoes; and while the women were in the "little girls' room," the men told dirty jokes to each other.

Dinner conversation consisted of reevaluating the evening's contestants:

"Oh, I've just never seen such lovely hair. It shone like glass!"

"But, what eyes! And just the right amount of make-up!"

"Yes, she really was darling--except for those shoes. If only she had worn spiked heels, she might have had a chance."

Be sweet, sit erect, have something nice to say, but most of all, be beautiful. Its ironic, and disappointing, that in the very place where women are trying to step out of such unproductive stereotypes--at a university--they are pushed right back into the role of the nineteenth century lady.

When I was young and we played Miss America, we could never understand why the boys didn't share our enthusiasm for the game. I notice that on this campus, however, it's the boys trying to get the girls to play. Of three pageant coordinators, two are male. And from what I understand, applications from those budding beauties, those future Miss UNCWs, are drifting in like snow in July. The fact is many women find beauty pageants offensive and degrading. UNCW has a fine representative in its SGA president. This year that person happens to be a male. But, when a woman is elected to that position, will the University find it necessary to choose a male representative with poise, talent and nice teeth? You tell me.

By the way, Norway's new prime minister is a woman. Imagine--she's never even won an evening gown competition.

Dianne Russell

AWARDS, from p. 1

Andres Segovia, the internationally renowned classical guitarist, was born in 1894 in southern Spain. As a child, he was attracted to the guitar after seeing one at the home of a friend.

When Segovia was unable to find a capable instructor, he became his own guide on the instrument. He made his first public appearance at the age of 14 in Granada, according to information in his biography.

Within a short time he was known throughout Spain. At the age of 22, he appeared at the Paris conservatory of music and afterwards began an extensive concert tour.

In 1919, Segovia became a sensation in South America, but he was still unknown in the United States. He made his debut in New York in 1928 and within five years he attained a record of six completely sold-out concerts in that city. In 1946, backed by a small orchestra, Segovia performed for the first time at Carnegie Hall. For part of the year, Segovia lives in Madrid and Switzerland and during the other months he tours extensively in the United States, Europe and South America.

The Schweitzer Awards will be presented at 2 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium on Thursday, April 23. On April 24, a two-part symposium on Schweitzer's book The Quest of Historical Jesus will be conducted.

SEAHAWK Deadline

Deadline for all copy is Thursday 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

For Sundae Lovers

9¢ reg. 1.55

Attention Sundae Lovers! Our Hot Fudge Special is just for you! Steaming hot fudge ladled over two scoops of naturally flavored vanilla ice cream. Crowned with whipped topping, a juicy cherry and two sugar wafers. YOU'LL LOVE IT! NOW ONLY 99¢.

MAYBERRY
Guaranteed to brighten your day.

BONUS: Ask for "I'm A Good" sundae with Sundae purchase. Offer good through Feb. 13, 1981.

FOUR WINDS NIGHTCLUB

EARLY GOOD LUCK VALENTINES PARTY

FRIDAY the 13th!

Students FREE with valid ID

Four Winds is a private club open to members and their guests.

Wilmington welcomes Giovanni

Poet Nikki Giovanni, who has been soothing, touching, moving and making people sit up with a start through her flights of verse for a long time, successfully wided her poetic powers over her Wilmington audience last Wednesday night, to the delight of all.

Giovanni's February 4 presentation in Kenan Auditorium was sponsored by the Black Student Union and sorority Delta Sigma Theta in honor of Black History Month. It proved to be one of the most exciting and refreshing events UNCW and the community have been able to enjoy in a long time.

"I'm delighted to be in Wilmington," said Giovanni after the almost full house welcomed her with a standing ovation. "Of course, you're quite famous," she commented, and applause thundered as recollections of the Wilmington 10 trial ran through people's minds. "But then, it's nice to have a bottom line to move up from," she added with a smile.

Giovanni opened by discussing the "new thought" that will be needed in the twenty-first century. She stressed a need to look ahead without fear.

"There is no great past - there is only the future," she said.

Emphasizing the need for people to shed their prejudices and start making the best of their lives, she pointed out the futility of trying to dominate other people. "None of us are enhanced by putting others of us in boxes," she said.

Iran reminds us all that none of us want to be held captive."

Describing herself as a child of the sixties, Giovanni chided the myopic views of white male America. "Earthling doesn't mean exclusively white man," she said. "It does not even mean exclusively male and the white females he wants."

Giovanni spoke strongly for the rights of females to live full, independent lives. "Those of us who are females should have the right to control our own bodies," she said to another roar of approval.

In her remarks, Giovanni also stressed education. Telling students not to retreat when the work gets tough.

"If you fail a course, don't give up - take it again," she said. "You're not stupid, and don't let anyone make you think you are. Do what you have to do."

She also remarked to a peal of laughter that since there are few discos in the area, there is no reason that students couldn't study five nights a week.

Focusing directly on the young people, she said people should wait to get married. "See as much of the world as you can before you start playing those roles," she said.

Giovanni expressed a respect and love for the black community, praising the unique openness and loving acceptance found there.

Ultimately, Giovanni's hope for the future lies in that openness. "We have got to become vulnerable to being alive," she concluded.

During the reading of her works, Giovanni told some of the real-life stories that have inspired her poetry. Most of her selections were earlier, more famous poems, including 'Mother,' which explores the love we never express to our parents; 'The Life I Led,' and 'I was born in the Congo,' which opened with a thunder of audience approval and soared to its climactic final lines.

Giovanni also read 'You Were Gone,' 'Winter Poem,' 'It's My House,' and that slightly erotic poem of an unrequited love in the sixties called 'Seduction.'

A newer work, 'Cotton Candy on a Rainy Day,' captures the loneliness and half-realized dreams of the seventies.

One of her latest works also included 'This is not a poem for John Lennon,' a prosaic collage revealing frustration and outrage. Her final poem, 'That Day,' a humorously erotic love poem, praises the kind of one-day love affair that is short but worth the memories.

Born in Knoxville, Tennessee and raised in Cincinnati, Giovanni attended Fisk University during the turbulent sixties, a time of emerging black consciousness and militance. She entered into the political activity of the day, working on a newspaper and participating in writers' workshops.

She has received grants from the Ford Foundation, the National Foundation of the Arts to attend Columbia School of Fine Arts, and the Harlem Cultural Council on the Arts.

She has an honorary doctorate of Humanities from Wilberforce University and an honorary degree from the University of Maryland. Boston University has a complete collection of her work.

Giovanni has also received achievement awards from 'Mademoiselle' magazine, 'Ladies Home Journal,' and omega Psi Phi fraternity. She also received the National Book Award for her book 'Gemini.' Her hometown of Lincoln Heights, Ohio celebrates Nikki Day in her honor.

Nikki Giovanni

(919) 799-4250

McGOWAN'S FLORIST
A COMPLETE FLORAL SERVICE

HATTIE & JOE HOLLOWAY
Owners

5042 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE
WILMINGTON, NC 28403

THE HAIR HUT

5th floor
1st Union Bank Building
762-4747

Wash, cut, blow dry, & style

1/2 price
for UNCW students

Ladies reg. 15.00 now 7.50
Men reg. 10.00 now 5.00

by appointment only
limited offer

with this coupon
and UNCW ID

Specialty Sandwiches for Two

Your Valentine and You!

GOOD ONLY AT

4404 Oleander Dr.
4205 Market St.
819 S. 3rd. St.

© 1980 Burger King Corporation. All rights reserved. Printed in U.S.A. N-3409

PLEASE PRESENT COUPON TO CASHIER BEFORE ORDERING
Buy One Specialty Sandwich, Get One Specialty Sandwich FREE of less or equal value

WITH THIS COUPON ON Saturday, Feb. 14 or Sunday, Feb. 15, 1981
Only at BURGER KING® after 5pm

4404 Oleander Dr.
4205 Market St.
819 S. 3rd. St.

© 1980 Burger King Corporation. All rights reserved. Printed in U.S.A. N-3409

THE PUB DANCE COMMITTEE IS NOW TAKING RESERVATIONS FOR ITS
SPEAK-EASY
SEMI-FORMAL
VALENTINES DAY, FEBRUARY 14

Reservations limited to 400 and can be made in the Student Activities Office, room 101 in the Pub.

Admission: $4.00 per couple
$2.00 per person

10:00-2:00 AM
in the Pub

SWING, RHYTHM AND BLUES BY:

UNCW GRAPHICS
PUB

COUPON

The
NO NAME SALOON

WITH THIS COUPON INVITES
ALL UNCW STUDENTS
to join at a special membership rate
ONLY $3 ^{ages 19 and over}
during the month of February
COME ENJOY THE SOUNDS of
SADDLE TRAMP
WEDNESDAY NITE IS UNCW NITE
STUDENTS FREE
OPEN TUES.-SAT. 7:30-1:00 / SUN 8:00-12:00
ON OLEWIDER DR. NEXT TO TUESDAY'S
A PRIVATE CLUB FOR MEMBERS
ALL ABC PERMITS

COUPON

Students tapped for membership in honor society

Seven students at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington have been tapped for membership in Alpha Kappa Delta, the international sociology honor society. They are Tameia R. Shackelford, Rita M. Harris, Marsha Candice Brisson, Maura K. Connolly, JoAnn S. Nunalee, Mark Weathers and Tonya D. McMinn.

UNCW faculty sponsor, Dr. Rob Miller, said to be eligible for membership students must be officially declared sociology majors with junior or senior class standing, have an overall 3.0 grade point average and a 3.0 grade point average on all courses taken in the major, and must have completed at least four courses in sociology.

The organization is an open, democratic, international society of scholars dedicated to the ideas of Anthropologist Katamanthanein Diakonessien: "To investigate humanity for the purpose of service."

The organization promotes interest in the study of sociology, research of social problems, and other social and intellectual activities leading to improvement in the human condition.

Dr. Shelburn gives lecture

Dr. Walter Shelburn of the UNCW Philosophy Dept. will give a lecture on "What is Wholistic Philosophy", Feb. 19, Thursday 7:30 p.m. (In Good Wood Tavern)

Presented by UNCW B. Frank Hall Philosophy and Religion Society

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

Cliffs Notes answer your questions about literature as you study and review. More than 200 titles available for novels, plays and poems — see our Cliffs Notes display:

I'd Rather Be Reading

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100
hours 10-6 p.m. daily.

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- starting salary up to $18,000
- increases over $30,000 in 4 years
- 30 days paid vacation annually
- fully financed graduate programs
- superior family health plan
- more responsibility and leadership opportunities
- world wide travel and adventure
- prestige and personal growth potential

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ELIGIBLE

THE NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus 4, 5, & 6 FEBRUARY. An information desk will be set up outside the CAFETERIA and PLACEMENT INTERVIEWS will be conducted 5 FEBRUARY. To arrange an appointment to Officer Aptitude Test call 1-800-662-7568 toll free.

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
AVIATION LAW NURSING
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS
INTELLIGENCE
CIVIL ENGINEERING
SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

UNCW

SPORTS

Coach Allen pleased with swimmers

On Friday February 6 the Seahawk swimming team hosted the Furman swim team in a tough dual meet. The Seahawk men's swim team defeated Furman by a score of 68 to 49. O'Leary led the team with a school record time of 2:00.6 in the 200 yard individual medley and a first place in the 100 yard freestyle. Other first place finishers were Lambe who finished first in the 200 yard freestyle and the 200 yard backstroke, with Bole, Moore and Malone also finished first in their individual events. Dave Thomas also broke a school record in the one meter diving competition with 214 points.

The Lady Seahawk swimmers suffered a tough loss to the Furman team by a score of 67 to 52. First place finishers for the Lady Seahawks were Cushman in the 100 yard and 200 yard backstroke and Johnson in the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke.

Coach Allen of the Seahawks said, "that the women had been worked very hard in practice, and were tired coming into this meet." Allen also commented that he "was very pleased with both the men and women."

The Seahawks next home meet will be the Seahawk Invitational held on February 19, 20, and 21. Eight teams will be attending the invitational which begins at 12 p.m. on the 19 and 20, and at 10 a.m. on the 21.

Seahawk swimmer working out

Seahawks edge out UNC-Asheville

The Seahawks rolled from a seven point deficit with five minutes left in the game to gain a 53-51 victory over the UNC-Asheville Bulldogs.

The 'Hawks now 9-9 move up to the .500 mark with their seventh win out of their last nine outings.

Top scorers in the game were Randy McMillan scoring twelve points followed by Danny Davis who scored nine points, recently recovered from pericarditis, a heart inflammation.

UNC-Asheville led 49-42 at the 5:50 mark but the 'Hawks hustled to take a 51-49 advantage.

A 22-foot shot by Dennis Tobin began the comeback followed by a score by Randy McMillan bringing the 'Hawks within three, 49-46.

The Bulldogs began to feel the bite of UNCW's tough defensive play as they failed to score after two turnovers which Tobin and Solzano took advantage of for a 51-49 Seahawk advantage.

UNC-Asheville recovered the ball and dug their grave with another missed shot when the Seahawks began to run the clock out with 2:11 remaining.

Asheville's Pat Jolley tied the game with 44 seconds remaining but fouled Shawn Williams underneath.

Shawn Williams stood at the free throw line with a 89 percent free throw average and scored two points putting the 'Hawks ahead 53-51 with :28 seconds left.

The Bulldogs were unable to score in the remaining seconds of the game.

Coach Mel Gibson commented, "It was a close win but we'll take it. We bought a 19-8 team here last year and won by three points - it's a tough place to win."

Lady Seahawks defeated by ECU

Before an estimated 400 fans, the Lady Seahawks were defeated by ECU, 96-65.

ECU took advantage of two-time junior college All-American Sam Jones who chocked up 27 points for ECU and All-State Kathy Riley scoring 25 points.

East Carolina now 20-5 took an early and held it throughout the game outshooting the Seahawks ECU shot 61 percent against UNCW's 43 percent.

Jill Amos led the 'Hawks scoring 18 points followed by Sherri Crumpler adding 14 points and ten rebounds.

"We fell out of the game early, and once you get behind against a team like ECU's, it's hard to catch up. I didn't think we played well offensively. We missed a lot of shots inside and you have to make them against a team of this caliber," commented Coach Marilyn Christoph.

The She-Hawks will host UNC-Asheville in Trask Coliseum, Saturday February 14. Be there.

Marilyn Christoph
Basketball Coach

It's UNCW Night at SPORTSWORLD
every Wednesday
&
Thursday
6:30-10:00
only $1
admission & skate rental
with valid ID

SPORTSWORLD

SAIL THE BAHAMAS!
What a great break from spring break!

includes round trip
transportation from Chapel
Hill to Miami gourmet meals
on board limbo band

entertainment
All alcohol beverages
beer, wine, liquor, & champagne

spaces available
call today
919-767-8117

NEXT TIME
YOU BOWL

BOWL
1ST
CLASS

"WHERE THE FAMILY BOWLS"

CARDINAL LANES

Bowling at its best. BRUNSWICK
32 ASTROLINE LANES

PRO SHOP - SNACK BAR - PLAY ROOM POOL TABLES

3907 Shipyard Boulevard
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

799-3023

Join the UNCW Bowling Club every Thursday at 4:00

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Speak Easy Semi-Formal Saturday night

The UPB Dance Committee reminds you that the Valentine's semi-formal swing dance is this Saturday night, February 14. It will last from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Tickets are $2 for singles and $4 per couple. The festivities will be held in the Pub, with semi-formal attire advised.

Reward offered

Offering $35 reward for the following items, or information leading to the apprehension of the thief. No questions asked if items found and brought in. Please contact Victor Royal 392-3477 or Campus Police.

Brown leather wallet
Red (Britania) Jacket
Levis shirt (blue checked)
Dark blue canvas gym bag

Be a disc jockey

Anyone interested in being a disc jockey at WLOZ is welcome. There are some shifts still open for this semester. The next staff meeting will be February 17 in the Pub at 4 p.m.

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions. Scholarships and/or compensation are available for some positions.

Sports Writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel
Typesetters

Students are encouraged to bring their favorite beverages, but no liquor, please.

Come on out and boogie to the vibes of Blue Sparks From Hell, a fantastic swing/rythm and blues band that will knock your socks off. It's all happening in the Pub Saturday night, courtesy of your friends on the University Program Board.

Volunteer opportunities

The Voluntary Action Center is in need of volunteers to cut wood during these cold winter months.

The City of Wilmington Parks & Recreation needs people to help train mentally handicapped children for the Special Olympics. They are also in need of people to be in charge of 4-8 children during the day of competition.

Girl Scouts Council of Coastal Carolina has positions open for consultants and troop leaders.

For more information on these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, room 104 in the Pub.

Top drawer entertainment comes to the Goodwood

The University Program Board Half-Moon Coffeehouse is doing it again - bringing you top-drawer entertainment in the Goodwood Tavern. Friday February 27 is the date for a hot musical experience.

Silent Partner, a duo consisting of Kemp Jones and Don Porterfield, breathes new life into soft rock. Their unique original tunes have been dubbed "listening rock."

Jones performs admirably on keyboards and guitar, and Porterfield takes charge on bass, keyboards, and guitar.

While Performing with Ben Bickerstaff as a trio, the band released an excellent debut LP, "Hung By A Thread." The Athens, Georgia-based band has been performing (with various lineup changes for several years, and they have a polished, critically-acclaimed sound that will have your ears in ecstasy!

Silent Partner will begin playing at 9 p.m. and wind up at 11 p.m. Admission is as always, nil. So stock up on your favorite beverages, and hike on over to the Goodwood to experience Silent Partner!

Lost and found items

Room key on leather "D"
5 keys on flip flop
Key ring w/4 keys and bottle opener
Men's gray button-up sweater
3-subject notebook
Found
Men's sweater (2)
Gloves
Notebooks

Check w/ Cheryl Kane, room 101 in the Pub.

Filing for spring election to begin

The UNCW SGA would like to announce that filing forms for the Spring 1981 Regular Election shall be made available on Feb. 16, 1981 at 8 a.m. in the SGA Office. The filing forms will be accepted throughout the week until 5 p.m., Feb. 20, 1981.

The offices in contest in this election are:

Student Body President
Student Body Vice President
Student Body Chief Justice
Attorney General
8 Representative-at-Large positions
Class officers, which include President, Vice President, and 2 Senators from each class respectively

For further information, you are encouraged to contact the Student Government Office in the Hinton James Bldg.

George D. Ward,
Chairperson, SGA Board of Elections

Miss UNCW Pageant to be held February 25-26

UNCW's University Program Board is pleased to remind everyone that the Miss UNCW Pageant will take place in Kenan Auditorium February 25-26. It will begin promptly at 8 p.m. each evening.

Contestants will be judged in a talent competition, and will also be rated on poise, public speaking, personal interviews, in addition to participating in an on-campus "popularity vote" contest. These will also be an evening gown competition. Contestants may register in the Student Activities Office in room 101 of the Pub.

The crowning of Miss UNCW will take place Thursday evening, February 26. The panel of judges will consist of seven prestigious and university leaders. The pageant will be a formal affair, and tickets can be purchases at the door.

HELP WANTED

Earn up to $1,000 or more for a few evenings work. No selling. Just hang posters on your campus advertising our half-price tours of Europe. For details, write:

TRAVEL STUDY INTERNATIONAL
2030 East 4800 South, Suite 101
Salt Lake City, UT 84117

CAMPUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

wants you!

to be our valentine at a covered dish dinner on Feb. 14.

7:00 pm

at Winter Park
Presbyterian Church
Christian Contemporary Music, Fun, & Fellowship will be provided.

Everyone is invited!

THE UNIQUE VALENTINE

Call about our
Valentine's
Day Special

18" heartshaped
red/silver
metallic balloons

Say it with balloons!

763-8480

BERTS

Beach Footwear
Portsidiers-Topsiders

Wrightsville Beach

Summer Wear
Clearance
20-50% off

SURF SHOP

New Summer Arrivals

Lightning Bolt
Jewelry

All Winter Wear
30% off

Short & long sleeve
surf tee-shirts

Schroff Alpa-Sunset-

Sebastian Inlet-Canyon-Town & Country.

Wetsuits, Vests, Spring Suits
by: O'Neil, Bayley, Aleeda

Fall-Winter Wear
by Lightning Bolt &
Ocean Pacific

Open 7 days a week 10:00-6:00pm
256-9110

6 Lumina Ave., Wrightsville Beach

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

- ACROSS
- 1 Entangles
5 Fret
9 Back: Pre-fix
14 At the peak
15 — stick
16 Man's name
17 Mrs. Copperfield
18 GBS' homeland
19 Charge
20 Beseeches
22 Streams
23 Weight allowance
24 Beverage
25 Herrings
28 Vintage works
32 Golf clubs
33 Performers
34 Egyptian king
- 35 Short swims
36 Sulked
37 Journey
38 Dutch town
39 Stirred
40 Gainsay
41 Fated
43 Performed
44 Individuals
45 Papal name
46 Affright
49 Ornaments
53 " — is Born"
54 Pace
55 Key
56 Hit hard
57 Likewise
58 Fastener
59 Slave of old
60 Numeric suffix
61 German noble
- DOWN
- 1 Invented
2 Solar disc
3 Wroful act
4 Greeks of old
5 Weapons
6 Rich cake
7 Shield
8 Triumphed
9 Hold back
10 Misplays
11 Small group
12 Stone
13 Spanish cheers
21 Dines
22 Awn
24 Agonize
25 — with: Supported
26 Animal group
27 Riatas
28 Contended
29 European land
30 Marie or Pierre —
31 Charger
32 Birds
36 Cash
37 Feting
39 Tower
40 Sad
42 Large berry
43 Engine part
45 Carriage
46 Short race
47 "Woe —"
48 Commuter plane
49 Death rattle
50 Despot
51 Lamb
52 Ego
54 Ship channel

Recruiting Visits

The following are the recruiting visits currently scheduled for February 1981. Additional visits will be listed as scheduled in the Career Planning and Placement Office.

First Union Nat'l Bank
Ms. Peggy Patterson
Thurs., Feb. 12
Pos: Commercial Lending/
Training Program, Branch
Mgmt.
Majors: Accounting, Business
(Economics, Finance)

J.C. Penny
Mr. Jack Sutton
Thurs., Feb. 12
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business Admin.
Cherry, Bekaert, & Holland,
CPA's

Mr. Eddie Dutton
Fri., Feb. 13
Pos: Accountant
Majors: Accounting
NCNR
Fri., Feb. 13
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Accounting, Business

Roadway Express, INC.
Mr. Joseph Kostelac
Tues., Feb. 17
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business (Economics Management, Marketing)

Burlington Industries
Mr. Maultsby
Mr. Chuck Beidler
Wed., Feb. 18
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Any

United Methodist Church
Mr. Bob Pryor
Wed., Feb. 18
Pos: Various (Summer Jobs)
Majors: Psychology, Recreation, Any

A.L. Williams Insurance Co.
Mr. Hayes Perry
Mr. Nelson Burton
Wed., Feb. 25
Pos: Insurance Representative Majors: Most

CLASSES, from p. 1.

carefully planned it would mean an extra thirty minutes in the afternoon."

Student reaction is mixed on the subject.

"It's difficult to work three to eleven and get up that much earlier," said Stuart Johnson, a senior from Wilmington who will be continuing here next year. "For those of us who work late, it simply means thirty minutes less sleep," he said.

Sonja Robinson, a junior, favors the change. "I function better at that hour, and since I have a family I have to be up early anyway," she said. Summer classes will commence at 8 a.m. as usual.

SOPHOMORES/JUNIORS EARN OVER $850 PER MONTH DURING LAST TWO YEARS OF COLLEGE

Get a head start on an exciting challenging position after graduation, while you finish school, we will pay you over $850 per month to study and maintain good grades. We have the best graduate level nuclear training program in the world and math, physics, chemistry, technical majors and engineering students can qualify. U.S. citizens less than 27 years old, a 3.0 GPA or better, and good health are the requirements. We offer a projected salary of $35,000 after four years. For more information send college transcript to:

LT. Russ Jowers
Navy Nuclear
Programs Manager
1001 Navaho Dr.
Raleigh, NC 27609 or call
1-800-662-7568

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 18

February 20, 1981

Page 1

Campus security shows how to lower flags in six easy lessons

Unidentified campus security officer first lowers North Carolina flag...

then haphazardly places it on the cannon...

proceeds to lower United States flag...

also puts US flag on cannon...

crumples up both flags...

and walks back into the Administration Building.
See "Letter to the Editor" on p. 2.

Campus radio station closes down due to drug bust

by Wendy Robbins

WLOZ, the campus radio station, is off the air because of an incident involving drugs that occurred last Friday night. According to Chief Winston Norman, campus police went to WLOZ at approximately 9:30 p.m. because they suspected some students had marijuana in the station.

Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs William Malloy said that "it was alleged that a female student bought drugs from a male student who was working as a DJ in the station. According to campus police, they followed the female in her car and confiscated around a quarter of a pound of marijuana from under the front seat."

Possession of that amount of marijuana, stated Malloy, is a felony and could result in a five-year prison sentence if convicted.

Dean of Students Gary Juhan said that a total of six individuals were involved in the incident, one of them a non-student. One student has been suspended and the rest are still attending classes.

Juhan said he knew that some of the individuals were taken to the security office and questioned by campus police.

Chief Norman reported that no one was arrested and no charges have been filed at this time.

There have been reports that the students involved had a choice between being dealt with criminally or administratively, and the students opted to go with the administration.

Juhan said that those reports were just speculative. "At this point, I just don't know," he stated. "The situation is still in the investigative process."

Karen Durda, the radio station's manager, said she wasn't informed about the incident until Saturday morning, when a campus police officer informed her by telephone that there had been a problem at the station the night before involving drugs. She was told that everyone had been taken out of the station by campus police.

The officer told her that she would need Malloy's permission to get into the station, which she said led her to believe that the administration had closed WLOZ down.

This prompted her to put a note on the station's door stating that it was closed by order of the administration.

Both Malloy and Juhan emphasized that the administration did not close the radio station down.

"The station had to go off the air Friday night because the DJ was involved in the problem," Malloy explained.

"There was no one to take over, so the station was closed down. Subsequently, in all the investigation that has been going on, it stayed closed."

Earlier in the week, Durda met with Juhan, SGA President Jessie Sanders, Director of Student Activities Linda Moore, WLOZ Advisor Betty

Jo Welch, SGA Vice-President Charles Parsons and Media and Publications Chairperson Nancy Kelker. It was agreed at this meeting that the station should be kept off the air until a definite decision is made about its future.

Durda said that Sanders asked her to make a recommendation concerning the station. He also told her he wanted to go in front of the senate Thursday night to give some type of decision.

WLOZ's future is uncertain as of this date. Malloy did state that the station will be allowed to air the Metropolitan Opera on weekends.

"But other than that, whether or not WLOZ will be allowed to air is really in the hands of the SGA," he stated.

Speakeasy Semi-formal Dance not even semi-successful for UPB

by Dianne Russell

Whatever people were doing on Valentine's Day, they weren't doing it at UNCW.

The Speakeasy Semi-formal Dance held in the Pub last Saturday night attracted only about ten people out of an anticipated 300 to 400, according to disappointed UPB Dance Committee Chairman Paul Weaver. Tickets to the event cost $2.00 per person.

Replacing the traditional homecoming dance, the Valentine's Speakeasy was part of UPB efforts to encourage more participation in UNCW's homecoming celebrations. Weaver said last semester's dance, at which the homecoming queen was crowned, drew 400 to 500 people.

Weaver did not attribute the Speakeasy's failure to any particular cause. "I really don't know," he said. "Maybe some people didn't have a suit, or maybe they didn't understand swing and rhythm and blues. Probably some didn't want to show up without a date."

Weaver described UNCW as a suitcase school. "A lot of people wanted to go home, especially because it was Valentine's Day," he said. "They would rather go home to see boyfriends and girlfriends than bring them here."

Weaver said the failure of the dance has triggered discussion among members of the University Program Board on how to produce more successful programs. The Board is now conducting a student survey to determine what kinds of programs are in demand. Weaver hopes student feedback will help the Board create more effective programming in the future.

The UPB spent between $1400 and $1500 on the dance, according to SGA sources.

LETTERS

Atrocities to the Flag

To the Editor:

On several occasions I have been a witness along with others to the atrocious mistreatment of our American flag and North Carolina state flag by campus security officers. I have seen these officers take the flags down, wad them up in their arms, and leave the scene of what I saw as a disgrace. On another occasion, I witnessed one officer taking down the flags at which time the officer literally tossed the flags on the cannon. My belief in the American flag and what it symbolizes remains as it always has been, extremely loyal and tremendously proud.

However, my faith in the campus security has taken a profound decline. If the campus security does not have respect for the flags that symbolize freedom to all, how can they be expected to respect the rights and privileges of the people on this University campus, and yes, even the laws that govern this country? I charge Campus Security Chief Winston Norman to take prompt and effective action in correcting this behavior that has caused me bewilderment and discontent with that department. Please teach them to fold the flags with courtesy if not with pride.

Respectfully,
Lynne Wells

Sick of sexist comments

To the Editor:

I'm sick and tired of the nasty and sexist comments I get on the Miss UNCW Pageant. As Special Events Chairperson of the Program Board I took on this event to help find a female representative for UNCW.

But it seems as if some people are trying to hinder our good intentions by degrading the pageant and the people connected with it.

When I first began to organize the Miss UNCW Pageant it was then that I was first attacked by several people that this event was sexist and degrading to the female population. These remarks concerned me very much.

Once again I must explain that this is not a "beauty pageant" or a popularity contest. This event is intended to select a female representative from UNCW, not pick a beauty queen.

In response to the editorial in the February 13 issue of the Seahawk I found some of the remarks insinuating and false. For instance I found the remark about the 2.0 grade average as having "the quality of a no-star motel" being very offensive and degrading to the people on this campus. Also the indirect hints about our judges being men who told dirty jokes to each other is offending to our prestigious panel of judges.

The only sexist ideas that I have heard about the Miss UNCW Pageant are from those individuals that are condemning this event would participate, they might gain a different perspective of the Miss UNCW Pageant.

Sincerely,
David Newbern
Special Events Chairperson

WHAT WAS I TO THINK?... WE CAME HOME AND FOUND OUR FURNITURE BROKEN... PORRIDGE ALL OVER THE FLOOR... AND THEN BABY BEAR SAW SOMETHING MOVING UNDER THE BLANKETS...

SEAHAWK Deadline

Deadline for all copy is Thurs. at 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions.

Sports Writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Jim Davis, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Cartoonists: Buck Propst, Fred Maroon

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stallsmith, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Circulation Manager: Doug Browne

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

I DON'T CARE IF HE IS YOUR BUDGET DIRECTOR... HE'S GIVING ME THE WILLIES...

Pronoun affair makes writers feel they're 'neutering the language'

I'm considered a non-traditional student because I'm over twenty-five and still an undergraduate. Yet, at heart, I consider myself a pretty traditional person. I never really wanted to be anything but a housewife and mother, and, perhaps, do a little writing on the side. Yet, financial difficulties have forced me to become a "career person." O.K. I'll do my part. I'll become independent, another liberated woman marching "as to war." I'll

Prime Time

by Judy Stallemith

Forgo my traditional standards too much because, even if I'm not a housewife any more, I'm still a mother. And mothers, even non-traditional mothers, take care of their kids. Yes, I'll go with the new—in some things. The others? Well, if needs be I'll give in there, too. But I ain't gonna like it.

Take this pronoun business, for instance. For some strange reason nothing in the whole bloomin' "new" world upsets me like the furor over pronouns. It is no longer correct to say he when it might be she. We must say he/she, or [s]he, or he in one paragraph and she in the next. I liked using he; I was comfortable saying he; never had to think about he. Oh, me.

This whole he/she affair reminds me of a story[true, though stranger than fiction] a friend told me. There was this he-person who wanted to become a she-person. So he had the first operation necessary to become she. This was a success; [s]he developed breasts. Then, before the final operation, [s]he had an automobile accident which resulted in him/her being paralyzed from the waist down. Now [s]he has a beard and breasts and the rest doesn't matter. For all practical purposes [s]he is an it and [s]he will never play the violin either.

What I'm saying is that every time I have to write [s]he, he/she, or bisexual paragraphs I feel I'm neutering the language. Somehow I no longer see a person reading what I've written. I see an it, a faceless, responseless, it. And I don't like it.

BSU visits Chapel Hill for Program on Black History

The Black Student Union participated in UNC Chapel Hill's Discovery program on February 6, 7, & 8, held in honor of Black History Month.

Mary Ellis, Fred Webb, and Mary Balint were the representatives of UNCW participating along with the other 15 UNC schools.

After arriving Friday afternoon, their first event was to attend a buffet dinner with Reverend Ben Chavis, which was followed by a candlelight march to a hall where he lectured.

In Chavis' remarks he stressed the importance of black history to all people because of its link to world history. "Black history is a history of genocide, suffering, protest and struggle with the odds stacked against us," he said.

He also asked whether blacks had a reason to celebrate their history. And his answer was yes: "Through all the trials and tribulations the race has faced, 30 million have survived," he said.

Four elements unfolded in his speech for betterment of the black race. Political independence having priority, he said that blacks shouldn't support any party that didn't have their best interests at heart. And he declared that blacks should support the National Black Independent Political Party.

In order to have political independence "we need independent economics," he said. He added that the small amount of money used for welfare, unemployment benefits, and federal programs for the youth and elderly are not responsible for sky-rocketing inflation, but that the capitalist system in which the U.S. operates is.

Another important note he made is that blacks need to recapture and retain their culture as a people, saying that black culture was not the same as American or European cultures.

Chavis pointed out that blacks should work closer with the church. He said the church is a sleeping giant with a lot of potential.

In his closing statement he mentioned that blacks' determination to be free must be stronger than their oppressor's determination to keep them oppressed.

A reception followed where students had the opportunity to meet with Chavis and get autographs.

Saturday's events included a numerous variety of workshops to choose from. A sample of the titles ranged from "The Presentation of Blacks by the Media," by Waltie Rasulala from WRAL TV in Raleigh, "How Do Blacks Stand Before the Legal System?" by Judge Joseph Williams from Greensboro.

"Why Is There a Resurgence of Antiminority Groups?" a film by WUSB TV Atlanta with Wes Sargentson reporting, and "Black Male/Female Relationships" with Dean Joyce Clayton and Mr. Harry Am-ana.

Later, the visiting student leaders got together to discuss ways of maintaining communications among the schools and also to let each other know what they're doing on these campuses.

Teresa Artis of the publicity staff for the project told students that they hope to make this an annual event. They hope to be able to rotate the host of the project from year to year in the future.

The evening program consisted of a cultural program featuring the Opeyo Dancers, the Black Student Movement Choir, and the Ebony Rappers-Onyx Theatre group all from UNC-CH.

Visiting entertainment included a Fayetteville State Dance group, a NCCU Jazz Company, "Black Dance" from Duke, the Appalachian Drama Guild, and an A&T Dance Group.

The last event in the program was a disco dance held in the student union.

Sunday was check out day which had no set time, enabling everyone to rest up before the long journey home.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Cradle
4 Laths
9 Soap plant
14 Friend: Fr.
15 Go —
16 Bird
17 TV fare:
2 words
19 Massage
20 Attorney —

DOWN

- 21 Part of ETA
22 Knight
23 Minor
24 Hominy fare
25 Mon: Blanc,
etc.
29 Pitch
31 Letter
32 Soft drink
33 Washington
city
36 Install
38 Fuel
39 High peak
41 Diver's device
43 Suffer
44 Barracuda
46 Stylish
47 Killed
48 Slip
50 Entity
51 Comfort

71 Seine DOWN

- 54 Applier
58 Man's name
60 Arab cloak
61 Sufficient
62 Childlike
64 Of the skin
66 Over
67 Study piece
68 Verse
69 "Gee whiz!"
70 Magazine

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Drama department to present 'Summer and Smoke' February 19-22

by Bridget Munger

The UNC-W Drama Department will present Tennessee Williams' drama "Summer and Smoke" on February 19-22 at 8 p.m. in the S.R.O. Theatre in Kanan Hall. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m.

"Summer and Smoke" was considered by many of the best critics to be Tennessee Williams' finest play when it was first produced in 1948. Generally it is one of his most penetrating character studies. The heart-breaking tragedy of an idealistic repressed small-town girl, Alma Winemiller, who sees life and the only man she wants passing her by, is a story theatre-goers will not soon forget.

Alma, played by former UNC-W student Peggy Pridemore, is the daughter of a minister, a religious bigot, in Glorious Hill, Mississippi. From childhood she has been in love with the boy next door, John Buchanan, the town rake, played by Larry Matthews who plans to attend UNC-W as a drama major next fall. Her father has repeatedly told her she is too good for John.

John's father, on the other hand, has forced him through medical school in the hope that he will take over his practice. Now home again but still rebellious, John seems bent only on dissipating his talents and his life. His disillusionment is as strong as Alma's illusions. Her lack of worldly understanding prevents her from knowing him, yet she worships him more than ever.

Caught up in a net of family responsibilities, hampered by a meager and unrealistic education, Alma is the victim of her own environment and stuffy ideas. Her spiritual and idealistic beliefs which make her life bearable are the very qualities which prevent her reaching into the world of the man she loves and wants.

Dr. Terry Theodore, Professor of Drama in the Creative Arts Dept., who is directing the production said, "This is one of the most poetic, moving, and profound plays written by the great American playwright."

Assisting Dr. Theodore in directing will be Kelly Morris. Eileen LeBlanc is the over-all technical coordinator and the set is designed by Lori Howard. Lighting design is by Karl Heidemann and sound is by Tony Pender.

Tickets may be purchased at the door on the evenings of performance or may be reserved by calling 791-4330, extension 2440. UNC-W students will be admitted free with a valid ID while admission for non-students will be $1.00.

Larry Matthews and Peggy Pridemore in "Summer and Smoke"

SGA treasurer resigns

The Student Government Association has hired a new treasurer after a formal resignation was submitted by Mike Bond at the January 29 meeting.

According to SGA President Jessica Sanders, Bond was not fired but was asked for her resignation. He said she was spending three to four hours a week for a job which required eight to ten.

Bond resigned in a speech at the January 29 meeting. The same meeting introduced Betty Kusta, a non-traditional student with experience in bookkeeping to the position.

Seahawk/Fledgling office numbers

If you wish to contact the Seahawk or Fledgling offices the phone number is 791-4330 ext. 2229 for the Seahawk, and ext. 2548 for the Fledgling. The number listed in the 1980 phone directory is no longer in use.

Office of Special Programs presents lecture series

The Office of Special Programs is sponsoring the Great Moments in U.S. History Lecture Series. The dates for the lectures will be:

February 25—"China After Normalization: How Good a Future for the U.S.?" The speaker will be Mr. John H. Ha.

March 4—"South Africa: Can We Be Aided?" The speaker will be Mr. Fred M.R.

March 18—"Central America and the Caribbean: New Political Earthquake Zone?" Dr. Carlos A. Perez will be the speaker.

March 25—"Food: Humanity's Need, America's Interest." The speaker will be Dr. Richard Wells.

April 1—"Made in U.S.A.: Is U.S. Competitiveness Slipping?" Dr. Melton McLaurin will be the speaker.

April 8—"The World in 1981" The speakers will be Dr. Lee Johnston, Dr. Sved S. Ahmad, and Mr. Charles Anderson.

All lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m. in King Auditorium. There will be no admission charge for faculty, staff, and students with I.D.'s. There is a $10 fee for non-students.

Study guides for the lectures can be purchased for $5 each in room 212-Hoggard Hall prior to the series.

DAVID RUSSELL

INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIONS WON:

1977 Benicasim (Spain's major Guitar competition)

1977 Andrés Segovia Competition, Palma de Mallorca

1975 Santiago de Compostela

Twice winner of Julian Bream Prize

"An Extraordinary Artist"
JOSE TOMÁS

King Hall - February 24 at 8 p.m.
Tickets are $3.50 at the door for students. David Russell is sponsored by the Creative Arts Department.

Saigon 2 Sam
Army-Navy
Surplus

GRAND OPENING
FEB. 21ST

REGISTER FOR A $100 GIVE AWAY
March 21st

10% discount
w/school ID

3901 C Wrightsville Avenue
392-6232
Open 10 to 8
Monday thru Saturday

1981 MISS UNCW PAGEANT

NCW
PUB
PRESENTS

Coming February 26th, to the campus of UNCW-Wilmington, is the 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant. This precedent setting event will occur in the Sarah Graham Kenan Auditorium. It promises to be a grand affair and will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.00 general public, $1.00 for UNCW students with ID.

The 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant has been devised to take the place of our traditions, which were very difficult to execute and ran the outlay of money into the thousands. About the time these difficulties were being faced, the crowning of a female school representative, a tradition that falter somewhat, and not provide the recipient with a sense of identity in the selection process.

After much deliberation and research into the alternatives, the decision was made to elect a female school representative through the structure of a beauty pageant. It was upon reaching this decision that the birth of the 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant was born. Upon careful consideration, three members of the student body were selected to coordinate this new and exciting event. The Pageant Committee are as follows: President, Program Board Chairperson, Mr. Mark Davis; Speech, Events Chairperson, Mr. David Newman; and Ms. Cindy Smith.

This group of three immediately got together and commenced to work together on the order, selection of the final polished production. With approximately 10 months of preparation, time, weekly meetings, appointments with advisers, and committee members, the pageant and the late night brainstorming sessions culminated in the final event, the crowning of the 1981 Miss UNCW.

Mr. David Newman, "I think the 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant will benefit the whole campus of UNCW-Wilmington and surely add much more quality and prestige to the campus of a female school representative."

Mr. Mark Davis, "Our university is still young, and has the opportunity to make some changes that could in the future become established traditions. The Miss UNCW Pageant is a tradition that is exciting as any event ever held on the campus of UNCW-Wilmington."

Ms. Cindy Smith, "The Miss UNCW Pageant will add an extra element to the campus of UNCW-Wilmington and give the university a sense of identity in the selection process. It is a tradition that is exciting as any event ever held on the campus of UNCW-Wilmington."

With much preparation and excitement, the 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant will be held on the campus of UNCW-Wilmington. The Pageant Committee are as follows: President, Program Board Chairperson, Mr. Mark Davis; Speech, Events Chairperson, Mr. David Newman; and Ms. Cindy Smith.

The UNCW University Program Board, Special Events Committee is proud to present the contestants of the 1981 Miss UNCW Pageant.

1981 MISS CONTESTES

CATHIE ANN DIECKMANN
Age: 22
Sponsored by: North Carolina Association of Student Educators
Class Standing: Senior
Major: Education 4-9

KAREN ANN WADDELL
Age: 19
Sponsored by: UNCW Student Government Association
Class Standing: Freshman
Major: Communications (Pre-Law)

PAMULA DARLENE ROGERSON
Age: 20
Sponsored by: Alpha Phi Omega
Class Standing: Sophomore
Major: Special Education

KIMBERLY ALISE MILLS
Age: 19
Sponsored by: North Carolina Student Legislature
Class Standing: Sophomore
Major: Communication

They bring with them representation of many sections of the state and nation, new talents and energies, and a willingness to give of themselves to the institution that they are receiving their academic training in.

SS UNCW STANTS

The contestants for this year's pageant are composed of some very fine ladies, representing many different areas of our outstanding university. Student voting will be February 25 & 26, Cafeteria lobby - 11-3 PM.

LYNNE DANIELS

Age: 18

Sponsored by: Tappa New Keg

Class Standing: Freshman

Major: Criminal Justice

CAROL ANN HAWKE

Age: 22

Sponsored by: Tau Kappa
Epsilon

Class Standing: Senior

Major: Speech and Communications

ANITA JOHNSON

Age: 18

Sponsored by: Omega Psi
Phi

Class Standing: Freshman

Major: Business

MICHELLE BOND

Age: 21

Sponsored by: Phi Beta Lambda

Class Standing: Senior

Major: Business Administration

ANNETTE HASSELL

Age: 21

Sponsored by: Society of Physics Students

Class Standing: Senior

Major: B.S. degree in applied math with a minor in Physics

THERESA PARHAM

Age: 20

Sponsored by: Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Class Standing: Junior

Major: Biology

THE PANEL OF SEVEN JUDGES WERE DRAWN FROM A LIST OF OVER TWENTY DIGNIFIED UNIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY LEADERS. THE JUDGES FOR THIS YEAR'S PAGEANT ARE:

MS. BEVERLY COBB; THE LOWER CAPE FEAR ARTS COUNCIL PROGRAM DIRECTOR
DR. WILLIAM WAGONER; CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON

MR. BEN HALDERMAN; MAYOR OF THE CITY OF WILMINGTON

MR. TOM JERVAY; EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL

DR. HURBERT EATON, SR., M.D.; PHYSICIAN AND UNCW BOARD OF TRUSTEES MEMBER

MRS. JACQUELINE MORRIS-GOODSON; ATTORNEY AT LAW AND UNCW BOARD OF TRUSTEE

MS. LINDA WOOD; COORDINATOR OF THE NON-TRADITIONALIST STUDENTS - MAJORING IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION

THE CRITERIA AND PERCENTAGE COUNT THAT EACH CONTESTANT WILL BE JUDGED ON IS AS STATED:

PUBLIC SPEAKING: 20%

POISE: 15%

UNIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT: 5%

STUDENT VOTING: 35%

TALENT: 15 1/3%

INTERVIEWS: 10%

Sexually related problems increase among student population

by Muriel Ross

She looked more like a high school student than a college freshman. The agony of her decision showed in the clenching and unclenching of her hands, in the bright, tearless eyes.

"It has to be an abortion," she said, softly. "We can't be married until he finishes school. I don't want my parents knowing."

...

The girl slammed down her books angrily. "My boy friend called me last night and told me to get checked for gonorrhea. To think I trusted that guy!"

...

"This is my third abortion," another girl acknowledged, nonchalantly. "No babies for me until I'm ready."

...

The preceding are examples typical of the problems heard almost daily by the staff of the Student Health Center of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

"We are seeing an epidemic of unwanted pregnancies," said Physician's Assistant Catherine Vangellow. "Between August 28 and November 5, 1980, we did 33 pregnancy tests and 53 gonococcus/syphilis tests. Ten of the pregnancy tests, or better than one-third, were positive. Five GC/STS tests proved positive for venereal disease.

"We're concerned about the lack of sexual information either not known or not utilized by sexually active students," Vangellow said. "An example is the casual attitude some have toward abortion. By the time the woman who has had multiple abortions wants a child, the uterus often cannot retain the fetus."

Several UNCW administrators and faculty members expressed concern about the increase in sexually related problems among the student population. The late Dean Helena R. Check noted "many students are away from home for the first time and are often concerned about peer approval, causing them to yield easily to peer pressure."

This concern is not new on the campus. In 1978, a survey made by a campus organization of faculty and students called APPLES (A People to People Learning Experience About Sexuality) determined UNCW students' knowledge, attitudes and practice in the area of human sexuality. Dr.

Richard D. Dixon, assistant professor of sociology, pointed out that while more than 80% had ever engaged in sex, of that group sexually active in the past two months, about 30% said they had used birth control methods no more often than sometime.

Almost 40% thought their sexual knowledge was less than good understanding, not surprisingly, because the same percentage of students said they received their knowledge from friends.

Three-quarters of the respondents to the survey said that a sexual relationship between unmarried persons was alright when the couple loved one another whereas half thought the relationship was alright if the persons liked one another.

More than 50% said it was the woman's responsibility to prevent pregnancy, and less than 40% thought the man should make sure that he or his partner used a method of birth control.

Dr. Dixon said: "The survey indicated that slightly less than one-half of the students with a history of sexual activity used birth control more than three-fourths of the time they engaged in sex."

Close to sixty percent disagreed that danger to the woman's health should be the only criterion for abortion.

Dr. Gerald R. Weeks, assistant professor of psychology, noted that nationwide studies indicate that most students receive inadequate sexual information despite greater sexual freedom.

Nationwide, a higher ratio than the UNCW study thought premarital sex was alright if the couple loved one another (90% men, 88% women).

Dr. Weeks also stated that college students' standards tend to be similar to their peers and their friends, not their parents. Students express approval for premarital sexual experience, especially in more committed relationships.

Why, then, the national increase in premarital sexual activity? Robert B. Bell and Kathleen Coughy in Family Relations list several factors:

Rebellion against traditional values typically found in family, education, and religion.

Influence of the rebellious experiences of student militants and alternative life style.

Development of women's movement with a rejection of the double standard of sexual morality.

Availability of legal abortion in past ten years.

Institutional control over social life of students greatly reduced or eliminated.

Females no longer required to live in housing under direct control of university authorities.

Students' preceptions of their friends' sexual behavior a stronger influence on their behavior, rather than parental influence.

Certainly UNCW students and their compatriots on other campuses have greater sexual freedom than did their parents in the 50s and 60s. In spite of their unrestricted activities, they are as sadly lacking as their parents in knowledge of male and female anatomy, the nature and uses of contraceptives, sexually transmitted diseases, and the different emotional and physical responses of men and women. The problems of today's students have increased greatly in comparison to their parents'.

There are now over 20 sexually transmitted diseases (STDs).

Five must be reported by doctors to the health department: syphilis, gonorrhea, chancroid, lymphogranuloma venereum (LGV), and granuloma inguinale. The most prevalent STDs are thought to be gonorrhea, trichomoniasis, and nongonococcal urethritis.

See SEX p. 12

Wilmington Civic Ballet presents spring concert March 13, 14 and 15

by Jean Honeycutt

"Versatile" is probably the most all-encompassing adjective being used to describe the completely original choreography offered by The Wilmington Civic Ballet's Spring Concert. The concert will be presented at Thalian Hall March 13, 14 and 15.

The pieces to be performed are entitled: Tarantella, Shades of Dahlia, Kanon, Doodles, The Ballet Class and The Magical Doll Shop.

Tarantella, choreographed by Annette Crumpton, is set to Don Quixote by Ludwig Minkus. It is a colorful, character piece with tambourines. It has a Spanish flair and is done in five different sections.

Shades of Dahlia, choreographed by Lucia Wooley, is set to Antonio Vivaldi's Concerto #7 in D Minor, Opus 8. It is a casual, contemporary, semi-modern ballet with free-flowing movement performed in barefeet.

Kanon, choreographed by Pamela Reynolds, is set to the Kanon by Johann Pachelbel. This piece is romantic, lyrical and complex. It is mathematically oriented with the dancers imitating each other's movements like a skillfully fashioned canon.

Doodles, choreographed by Doris Levy, is set to the music of Bohuslov Martinu's First Sonata for flute and piano. It is a very colorful and unconventional pointe piece. It is light-hearted and not only do the dancers perform for the audience, but they "doodle" for their own amusement.

The Ballet Class, choreographed by Kathryn Stout, with music by Frederic Chopin, a collection of waltzes, nocturnes, and mazurkas, is a romantic piece. It was inspired by the paintings of Edgar Degas and depicts a dancing class in a 19th century studio. This humorous piece gives the audience an idea of what goes into the preparation of becoming a dancer.

The Magical Doll Shop, choreographed by Ann Vorus, is set to the music of Dimitri Shostakovich. This children's ballet will be presented each evening with a special Sunday

Children's Matinee. It is set in a doll shop. The shopkeeper is very busy and tired, but tries to entertain her son who is quite bored and is constantly vying for her attention. When the exhausted mother falls asleep, the son is visited by the fairy princess who brings all the dolls to life with her wonderful magic.

The clever, colorful and fanciful costumes for the children's ballet were designed by Wilmington native, Linda Register. The ingenious set design and special effects come under the direction of Tony Rivenbark.

Make plans now to attend this most versatile Spring Concert presented by The Wilmington Civic Ballet. Curtain time for the evening performances will be 8 p.m. The Children's Sunday Matinee will be at 3 p.m. Reservations are necessary for all performances. For reservations call 763-1540 between 5-9 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults, $2.50 for children or by membership.

Wilmington Civic Ballet will perform in March

Forensics Team places fourth in competition

In the forensics tournament held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute on January 24 and 25, the UNCW team proved again that there is strength in small numbers.

The team was the third smallest entry but in the end placed fourth out of a total of twelve entries.

In the competition, Brian Perry placed first out of 22 speakers in the After Dinner Speaking division. Mike Stroud placed fifth in the Extemporaneous Speaking and fourth in the Persuasive division. Aaron Oliver placed first and Doug Browne placed third in the Poetry Interpretation.

A total of seven trophies were won by the UNCW team. Others that attended the tournament were Lisa Sanders and Erin Ford.

The coaches of the Forensics team are extremely proud of the UNCW competitors and urge any interested students to join the team.

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

Cliffs Notes answer your questions about literature as you study and review. More than 200 titles available for novels, plays and poems — see our Cliffs Notes display:

The Bookery

318 1/2 street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100
hours 10-6 p.m. daily.

UNCW

SPORTS

Seahawks defeat ECU in final seconds 57-55

For the first time since opening the 1980-81 season with three straight losses, the Seahawk basketball team rose above the .500 mark with a dramatic win at East Carolina this past Monday, and is now 11-10 on the year.

The 'Hawks hosted North Carolina Central in Trask on Wednesday, and are home again this Saturday and Monday against Northern Iowa and Campbell.

Victories in these three home games would guarantee UNCW its fifth consecutive winning season as a Division One participant.

"When you think back to mid-January when we were 2-7, it's hard to believe that we are in within reach of a winning year," head coach Mel Gibson says.

to our players that they did not get discouraged, that they kept working hard, and I'm glad for them that they have the opportunity to finish as winners."

Perhaps the year's biggest win—and unquestionably the most exciting—came on Monday in Greenville, when junior guard Edward Timmons sank a twisting jumper from 10 feet out to give UNCW a 57-55 victory over the rival Pirates.

After playing well early, the 'Hawks went through a cold spell in the first half and trailed, 24-22, at intermission. They came out smoking in the second half, however, hitting eight straight field goal attempts during one stretch, to take the lead again.

ECU kept hanging close, though, and tied the contest at 55-55 with 14 seconds left.

Following a UNCW timeout, the 'Hawks brought the ball upcourt, attempting to get it to Shawn Williams for the final shot. Williams had already hit for a new career high 24 points in the game.

The ECU defense denied Williams the ball, however, and Timmons took matters into his own hands, sending an enthusiastic group of Seahawk followers who made the trip to Greenville into delirium.

The victory gave UNCW a 9-3 record in its last 12 games, including three wins in overtime since late January.

Last Saturday's exciting triple overtime win in Trask over Maine, 57-52, was the Seahawks' sixth OT contest this year—a school record.

Senior Danny Davis, who has been hampered by both illness and injuries this year, has still put together an excellent final season. The 6'7 center averages 15.4 points per game and 9.8 rebounds, while ranking nationally in field goal percentage with 62.4 mark.

Williams, the team's second-leading scorer at 12.1 ppg, was also very prominent in the national statistics last week, ranking fifth in free throw percentage. He has since slipped slightly to 87.0 percent, though, but should also be in this week's figures.

Both upcoming Seahawk games in Trask begin at 7:30 p.m. UNCW will then conclude the 80-81 season on the road, traveling to North Carolina A & T and Howard University next week.

Shawn Williams

Lady 'Hawks 16-7

by Jim Davis

The UNCW Women's basketball team now boasts a 16-7 record after Saturday's loss to UNC-Asheville and a handy victory over Pfeiffer College here Monday night.

The Lady 'Hawks will have concluded their final home game after playing NC Central this past Wednesday.

Behind 16 points early in the second half the UNC-Asheville Bulldogs surged to win by one point, led by top scorers Lisa Berry, scoring 25 points and Shelia Ford adding 21 points and grabbing a record 29 rebounds.

Sharon McMillan and Vertha Dixon were the biggest assets to their team Saturday despite losing both adding 20 points.

During Monday night's game against Pfeiffer College the Lady 'Hawks showed their strength indicative of their winning record overpowering Pfeiffer College 78-64.

The She-Hawks broke at halftime with a commanding 22 point lead (44-22).

Pfeiffer College tried to close their halftime deficit in the second half by rallying using the game's top scorer Liva Adams who added 25 points to the scoreboard.

Pfeiffer's rally wasn't enough for as they added points the 'Hawks kept on adding more. The final score was 78-64.

Leading the 'Hawks in scoring were Sharon McMillan (18 pts.), Shelia Patterson (18 pts.), Sherri Crumpler (15 pts.) and Jill Amos (14 pts.).

The Seahawks are on the road the rest of the season starting with Charleston Baptist tonight in Charleston.

Seahawks swim last dual meet

by Dave Newbern

On Saturday February 14 the Seahawk men's swim team won their last dual meet against William and Mary beating them 67 to 46, finishing out their season with an 8 and 4 record.

Individual winners in the dual meet were Rusty Lambie who won the 1,000 meter freestyle and 200 yard backstroke. Other winners were Greg Williams in the 200 yard freestyle, Chris Moore in the 50 yard freestyle, and Mike Malone won the 200 yard breaststroke. Both the 400 medley relay team and 800 freestyle relay team won their events.

The lady and men's Seahawk swim teams will be hosting the Seahawk Invitational which will be held on February 19, 20 and 21.

The Lady 'Hawks will be hosting Virginia Tech, Furman, ECU, James Madison, University of Tampa and the College of Charleston. The men will be hosting the University of Richmond, James Madison, ECU, Washington and Lee, William and Mary, College of Charleston and the University of Tampa.

The Seahawk Invitational will begin at 12 p.m. on the 19 and 20, and at 10 a.m. on the 21.

COUPON

The
NO NAME
★ SALOON

WITH THIS COUPON INVITES
ALL UNCW STUDENTS
to join at a special membership rate
ONLY $3 (use 3x over)

During the month of February
COME AND ENJOY THE SOUNDS OF SADDLE TRAMP

WEDNESDAY NITE IS UNCW NITE
STUDENTS FREE

OPEN THURS-SAT 7:30-11:00 / SUN 6:00-12:00

ON OLEANDER DR. NEXT TO THE SIXTH'S
A PRIVATE CLUB FOR MEMBERS
ALL ABC PERMITS

COUPON

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Short Story and Essay Contests announced

The UNCW English Dept. announces the 1981 Shannon Morton Essay Contest and the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest. Entries for the essay contest should have one or more of the following themes: "The Promise of the Eighties - for me, for my community, for UNCW, for North Carolina or for the nation." Themes for the short story contest are left up to the writer. Both contests will award a $50 first prize and prizes of $30 and $20 for second and third place.

The contests are open to all UNCW students and those interested should submit entries to the English Dept. Deadline for entries is Thursday, March 19.

Spring elections to be held March 18-19

The UNCW Student Government Association would like to announce that the Spring Elections for 1981 will be conducted on March 18 and 19. The offices that will be in contest are as follows:

Executive Offices-Student Body President, Student Body Vice-President, Student Body Attorney General, and Student

Body Chief Justice. Legislative Offices-(from each class except freshman class)-President, Vice-President, two senators, and eight Representative-at-Large positions.

The voting times and locations will be announced later. For more information contact the SGA office in the Pub or call 791-4330, ext. 2553 or 2554.

Suggestions needed for University Theatre's 81-82 season

The University Theatre 1981-82 season will be selected prior to March 1, 1981. Selection of plays to be produced will be made by a committee consisting of the officers of the University Theatre Student Association, the faculty of the Drama Division of the Department of Creative Arts, and the University Theatre's producer and Creative Arts Department Chairman, Dennis J. Sporre. Students are encouraged to submit written suggestions for plays for the 1981-82 season directly to the Department of Creative Arts, 107 Kenan Hall. Deadline for suggestions is February 20, 1981.

Mandatory meeting for recipients of NC Insured Student Loans

Tuesday, March 31, there will be a "borrower's conference" on the NC Insured Student Loan program. The two sessions-4:15 and 5:15 p.m.-will be held in the Morton Hall Auditorium (New Classroom Building). No new loans will be given out to continuing borrowers unless they attend this meeting.

The meeting will explain how the new application forms should be completed, how students will be billed, and what the laws and responsibilities of repayment are. Past and future borrowers are advised not be required to attend.

New borrowers with an interest in the program should write to College Foundation, Inc., 1307 Glenwood Ave. Raleigh, NC 27605.

Woodstock plays at Kenan

"Woodstock," with Joan Baez, Joe Cocker, Jimi Hendrix, and a host of other revolutionary rockers of the sixties and early seventies, will be shown on March 3 at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

The L.A. Times called this film a "masterpiece," and the Saturday Review said it was "absolutely dazzling."

Admission is $1 for students; $1.50 for non-students.

Display in lobby of Kenan Hall

The display cases in the lobby of Kenan Hall currently contain an exhibition of fall semester term projects by the students in John W. Myers' Art History and Appreciation courses. "Projects With Statements" was an assignment designed to involve the student more completely with the art of a historical period through experimentation in a specific medium and with an actual style. Students were required to research the project and produce works of art accompanied by written statements which explained the rationale for their choices, materials and processes used, and problems encountered in execution. The projects will be on display through the end of February.

Readers Theatre tryouts

Tryouts for a Readers Theatre production of Alice Gerstenberg's "Overtones" will be held on Thursday and Monday, February 19 and 23 in the Kenan Hall Lobby at 7:30 p.m. There are roles for four women. Scripts are available in K-107A.

Jessie Rehder Short Story contest

The UNCW Department of English is sponsoring the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest for UNCW students. First, second, and third prizes will be awarded at $50, $30, and $20, respectively.

Submit manuscripts to the Department of English by Thursday, March 19. Limit: two manuscripts per student.

Lost and found items

Lost
Burgundy belt strip with sea shell buckles
Blue shirt with numbers on it
Black umbrella with brown wooden handle
Book-Computers and Man
Set of keys-dorm and car
Men's green jacket
Book-Plants and Life
Dorm Key
TI-30 calculator
Orange notebook
Brown wallet
Dark green hat
Green ski gloves

Tan ski sweater
German book and notebook
Found
Toboggan
Sweat jacket
Sweaters-Men's [2]
Rain coat-ladies
Gloves
Notebooks
Blankets [2]
Men's chain
Ladies watch [2]

Check with Chryl Kane, Room 101 in the Pub.

Atlantis accepting manuscripts

Atlantis, the UNCW literary magazine, is now accepting poetry, prose, (including essays) and artwork for the spring issue.

Submit manuscripts to the English department. Submit art to the Creative Arts department. Deadline is March 19.

PEANUTS

Volunteer opportunities

The Voluntary Action Center is in need of volunteers to cut wood during these cold winter months.

The City of Wilmington Parks & Recreation needs people to help train mentally handicapped children for the Special Olympics. They are also in need of people to be in charge of 4-8 children during the day of competition.

Girl Scouts Council of Coastal Carolina has positions open for consultants and troop leaders.

For more information on these and other volunteer openings, see Linda Moore, room 104 in the Pub.

HELP WANTED

Earn up to $1,000 or more for a few evenings work. No selling. Just hang posters on your campus advertising our half-price tours of Europe. For details, write:

TRAVEL STUDY INTERNATIONAL
2030 East 4800 South, Suite 101
Salt Lake City, UT 84117

THE HAIR HUT

5th floor
1st Union Bank Building
762-4747

Wash, cut, blow dry, & style

1/2 price

for UNCW students

Ladies reg. 15.00 now 7.50

Men reg. 10.00 now 5.00

by appointment only
limited offer

with this coupon
and UNCW ID

SEX from p. 5.

Over a million cases of gonorrhea were reported in the U.S. in 1979. A common misconception is that men always have some discharge or pain during urination, but a number of men are without symptoms. Since women often have no symptoms, the first knowledge they have of gonorrhea is when they develop pelvic inflammatory disease. This condition causes scarring which blocks the fallopian tubes resulting in sterility or ectopic pregnancies in partially blocked tubes.

Virologist Lawrence Corey reports that 20-30% of the sexually active U.S. population may have genital herpes. There is no known cure for herpes, which starts as a water blister, becomes sore, then heals with no scars. It is transmitted mostly when there's an open sore, but occasionally during the asymptomatic phase. The disease is extremely dangerous to an unborn baby and adults can die from infectious encephalitis. Genital herpes should not be confused with oral herpes.

The first sign of syphilis is a chancre—a shiny, red, round and usually painless lesion—that appears on the genitals, mouth, or other sites where the broken skin comes in contact with a chancre. Syphilis can cause miscarriages and stillbirths or result in a child with congenital syphilis. Years later, if untreated, the disease can cause blindness, insanity, cardiovascular disease and death.

In dealing with human sexuality, students are often confused by the controversy of whether the differences between male and female are because of attitudes, education and environment or if they are inborn. Joseph Katz and Denise M. Cronin in Change report that some data indicate "that on a deeper, less conscious level many students still cling to traditional conceptions and stereotypes of male and female roles that are at variance with consciously expressed ideas."

Ray E. Short, professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin, for example, has made studies of live-in arrangements of college couples to determine if they were better prepared for better and longer marriages. The results of the studies, as published in the Chicago Sun-Times, showed that women gave their main reason for living with someone was hope for security and eventual marriage. In contrast, the majority of the men said they had little intention of eventually marrying their partners.

"The basic pattern I see in live-in arrangements is irresponsibility," Short said. He said the duration of the live-in arrangement of those studied ranged from three weeks to five years, the mean was 9.6 months. Women entered into the relationship voluntarily, but he felt that many did so blindly because many of the men accepted the privileges of marriage with few or none of its obligations.

These and other sexually related problems face young people entering adulthood. UNCW students have multiple sources to turn to for help. Most of these services are without charge.

The physician's assistants at the Student Health Center can provide information in sex instruction, birth control methods, family planning services, abortion and medically related problems.

There are others available for counseling. Gary Juhan, dean of students, has extensive experience with students who have undergone trauma and depression, resulting from their parents' divorce. He welcomes suggestions about the needs of students adjusting to college life.

Dr. Gerald R. Weeks is a clinical psychologist and a licensed practicing psychologist. He recently became a Certified Marital and Family Therapist in North Carolina under a newly passed law. Dr. Weeks has a private practice with an ob/gyn group, but his services are free to UNCW students.

Bob Haywood serves UNCW students as a full-time campus minister. Almost 90 percent of the students expressed a church preference, but only 20 percent attend church services weekly. Haywood contends that "churches often are unrealistic in their approach to teaching their children sex education. Instead of simply teaching do's and don't's, churches need to help young people deal with the struggles that ineffably emerge during the long span of time from early puberty to marriage at age 22-23 when youth most need help in dealing with sexual problems."

Finally each person must realize that he/she must accept responsibility for his/her actions or take the consequences of irresponsibility.

Trower-Subira gives lecture on economic survival

A presentation by George Trower-Subira, author of the book Black Folks Guide to Making Money In America was sponsored by UNCW's Department of Continuing Education in conjunction with the Heritage House on February 5.

In his lecture to the small audience of non-students, it was evident that Subira believes the reason a high level of poverty exists among blacks is that they haven't, for the most part, been taught the fundamentals of making and managing money. A simplistic argument perhaps, but the premise is the cornerstone of his book.

He opened the lecture stating that everyone's definition of the word education is different and that a common element left out of the definition is "economic survival." "It's a common assumption that people already know economic survival techniques," he said.

Subira says that we are moving into an era of "self-education" and that people must learn by doing. He also states that all the blame cannot be put on the politicians for failing to make the oppressed economically secure. He says that people must have an individual method for their own economic security written out. "The 580,000 people or more in this country that are worth a million dollars or more surely had a plan," he says.

In outlining his book, which is in second print from independent distribution, Subira touches on the problems of the single black woman parent, how blacks hold themselves back, and the "24 characteristics of fortune builders."

Subira went on to state that an advantage that black people have is the lack of competition amongst themselves. To explain this he used his self as an example, declaring that he is the first black person to write a book geared to overcoming the financial problems of blacks in the 115 years of freedom in this country.

Subira came to Newark, N.J., in 1970 after studying at the California State University at Los Angeles, and taught black studies at Seton Hall University for five years while earning his master's degree from the Rutgers Graduate School of Education.

He said he decided to write the book because, "I was sick and tired of black folks begging. About $120 million goes through black folks hands every year, and for us to still be poor as far as resources and assets is kind of ridiculous."

The book is available at N.C. State and Central University bookstores. It is distributed locally through the Heritage House.

Azalea Garden Tour to stop on campus

Thanks to the Cape Fear Garden Club's beautification project, UNCW will be a part of this year's Azalea Garden Tour.

Plants, including azaleas, gardenias, and pansies will decorate the new "Pedestrian Mall and Plaza" here. Ticket sales from the 1979 and 80 garden tours enabled the club to raise $8,800 to pay for the plants.

The club worked with UNCW to select the plants which will be maintained by the campus grounds crew. The project has to be completed by April 10, "But I'm sure it will be done before that," said grounds supervisor Robert Catalinic.

The garden tour will begin this year with a ribbon-cutting ceremony April 10 here at UNCW. The Azalea Queen will do the cutting, with Minnie Pearl and possibly Bob Hope on hand. According to club president Joan Pence, "This will be the first ribbon-cutting dedication ceremony in our 55 years."

When asked why UNCW was chosen as the target of their beautification efforts, Pence pointed out that the University is the second biggest attraction in Wilmington next to the battleship. The club felt it needed more landscaping, next to the other two entrance gates.

Tickets for the Azalea Garden Tour will be on sale April 10-12.

Think college is one big time out. Hold school records for most games played. Once managed to drop 7 pounds and 3 courses in same day. Cal drinks Lite Beer from Miller because it's less filling. With his schedule he can afford to get filled up. Today he has to be in two places at once. Insists on playing center and quarterback. Spends spare time going to class.

Lite Beer from Miller. Everything you always wanted in a beer. And less.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 19

March 5, 1981

Twelve Pages

Elections Board extends, 'halts' filing deadline for candidates

by Dianne Russell

Although the official filing deadline for 1981-82 student government candidates was last Friday afternoon, February 20, that deadline was extended briefly into this week.

Because several student government positions still remained open or unopposed after the Friday deadline, Board of Elections Chairman George Ward decided to allow students to continue filing through Wednesday afternoon, February 25. However, that extension was abruptly halted at 1 p.m. on Tuesday after some candidates who had filed within the original deadline questioned the validity of such an extension.

The four students who filed for candidacy during the extended deadline will be allowed to remain as candidates. Estella Davis filed for representative-at-large on Monday, February 23. On Tuesday, Kevin Sills and Melissa Morgan also filed for representative-at-large positions. Morgan had filed previously for sophomore class senator, but decided to withdraw and file for a different position.

Also on Tuesday Bill Samson filed for student body vice-president. Nancy Kelker then withdrew her name from that office in order not to cause a split vote, she said.

Many positions, including student body president, remained unopposed. Attorney-general chief justice and two representative-at-large positions still remain open. All students have the option of declaring themselves as write-in candidates for any office.

Candidates for the 1981-82 student government are as follows: Student body president - Charles Parsons. Student body vice-president - Steven M. Schmidt, Bill Sampson. Senior class president - Pete Divoky. Senior class vice-president - Steve Griffin. Senior class senator (2) -

Elliot Mascoop, Dale Fish. Junior class president - Buck Propst, Jill Hubbard. Junior class president - Kimberly Mills. Junior class senator (2) - Mark Bremmer, Blaine "Raeford" Sutton. Sophomore class president - Ed Paul, Jr. Sophomore class vice-president - Mindy Barnes. Sophomore class senator (2) - Dedee Newton, Judy Shumate. Representative-at-large (8) - Sandra Johnson, Renee Holloway, Jeff Newton, Estella Davis, Kevin Sills, Melissa Morgan.

WLOZ officially off the airwaves

by Wendy Robbins

WLOZ, the campus radio station, was shut down by order of SGA President Jessie Sanders Monday, February 23. The decision to close WLOZ resulted from an incident involving the sale of marijuana in the station on Friday, February 13.

According to Sanders, the radio station will not be closed permanently. If the Federal Communications Commission grants UNCW another license, the station will reopen when the University Union is completed. The original plans call for the union to open in September of 1982. The facility has space provided for a campus radio station.

"It's not a total, permanent deal," said Sanders. "We're going to shut them down until the new student union opens. It was decided that closing it down was in the best interests of 4,700 students on this campus. If the radio station is only benefitting the clique that works inside the station, then student government has the total right to close it down."

There is a possibility that UNCW may not get another license for a campus radio station because of WLOZ's violations of Federal Communications Commission rules. SGA Vice President Charles Parsons expressed hopes that the FCC would grant UNCW a license.

"The fact that we took steps to end the problem before we got caught on the air is a strike in our favor. Chances are that we'll be able to get the license back," he stated.

The SGA has put between $50,000 to $60,000 into WLOZ, according to Sanders. If the station applies for a new license, it will have to go to a minimum of 150 watts. It would cost approximately $84,000 to increase the wattage to that amount.

Parsons said that the lack of funds, personnel problems and unprofessionalism contributed to the demise of WLOZ.

"There have been incidents in the station involving drugs, drug deals and indecent language on the air. Most students we have talked to have said that the student government has already spent too much money on WLOZ."

Karen Durda, the radio station's manager agreed that the shutdown was in the best interests of the students.

"We had to improve our image, and they (some staff members) were refusing to do that. I worked and worked to get the drug situation cleared up. They wouldn't stop it on their own, so it stopped for them," she stated.

According to Sanders, the SGA will have to keep and maintain all of the station's equipment. The communications department may be able to open up a lab in the station.

Sanders said that the feasibility of a campus radio station will have to be re-evaluated.

"We're going to really do some long-range planning for a station on campus," he explained. "We're going to make sure that the next station doesn't get started off on the same foot as this one. A campus radio station is something that has to be considered in a professional and effective manner."

No immediate plans for a new campus radio station.

Incompetence and personnel behavior are some of the main reasons why the radio station is in bad shape, Sanders reported.

"I feel that WLOZ signed its own death warrant. I don't think anybody else did. It was helped along by other people, but it was signed specifically by the staff," he stated.

SNCAE candidate wins crown

Cathie Ann Dieckmann, a senior education major from Jacksonville, was crowned Miss UNCW 1981 at the first Miss UNCW Pageant Thursday evening, February 26.

Dieckmann, who was sponsored by the Student North Carolina Association of Education (SNCAE), has worked with remedial high school students in math and science and plans to teach ninth and tenth grade science.

Dieckmann and her "partner" Leon, a lion puppet, entertained the audience Thursday night with a unique ventriloquism routine.

"This pageant offers me a chance to make new friends and an opportunity to exhibit my talent on stage once more," stated Dieckmann on her Miss UNCW application.

"If I win, my partner 'Leon' and I would have the chance to bring smiles to people wherever we go," she stated.

Dieckmann has acted as master of ceremonies for other pageants and has entertained for pageants and community organizations with her ventriloquism act. She is a high C-range student.

First runner-up was Annette Hassell, a senior applied math major sponsored by the Society of Physics Students. Tau Kappa Epsilon's candidate, Carol Ann Hawke, won second place. Hawke is a senior speech and communications major.

The University Program Board spent approximately $500 on the Miss UNCW

See MISS, p. 9.

Guitarist Leo Kottke comes to Kenan Auditorium this month

Leo Kottke, whose guitar playing has been described as an integration of ragtime, folk, bluegrass, country, classical and bottleneck styles, is scheduled to appear in Kenan Auditorium March 25 at 8 p.m.

Kottke, a 6-and-12-string guitarist, has recorded nine solo albums, among them "Dreams And All That Stuff," "Lee Water," "Mudlark," and "Chewing Pine."

The versatile musician was voted Best Folk Guitarist for three successive years by readers of GUITAR PLAYER magazine.

Tom Murthat, in the Minneapolis Star, said that "Kottke's fingers somehow always touch the implicit logic of the guitar fingerboard. His unpredictable melodies extract a truth from the instrument every guitarist has always known is there but has never been able to state himself. The notes stay within the mind, then return to the listener when he least expects them... That is why so many listeners who hear Kottke's music for the first time have a feeling they have come to the end of a long search."

Tickets are $5.50 for students and $6.50 for non-students. Advance tickets can be bought at the UNCW Bookstore, Gillham's Guitar Works, Record Bar, School Kids Records and Three Penny Gallery.

LETTERS

Dance Committee wants student feedback

To the Editor:

On February 14, the UPB Dance Committee presented "A Speakeasy Semiformal." This was done in the interest of providing the students of UNCW with a new and innovative kind of semiformal dance. The Dance Committee put in many long hours to plan the dance and to convert the student union into a "Speakeasy" type of nightclub. The Goodwood Tavern became a silent movie lounge and bar, the billiard room was decorated as an old time "top of the city" shimmering 20's dance hall complete with a super dance band out of New Jersey. The Pub was used because it is the only facility now available to us for dances.

In spite of all of the preparations and advertisement, very few people attended this event. In order for us, the Dance Committee, to better program for the student body in the future, we are asking all students to please fill out the survey below and return it to student activities office in the Pub.

The Dance Committee meets every Tuesday at 4 p.m. (directly following the Program Board meeting) in the Goodwood Tavern. Come by, join us, and help us put on the kinds of dances you'd like to see at UNCW.

Sincerely,
Paul M. Weaver
Chairman, UPB Dance Committee Survey:

1. What was your reason(s) for not attending the Speakeasy Semiformal?
 - A. beverages not provided
 - B. not enough information (i.e. the band, the music, the format)
 - C. the cost factor
 - D. did not want to attend without a date
 - E. other (please specify)
2. What types of dances would you like to see at UNCW?

Missed the point

To the Editor:

I'm sorry that Mr. Newburn missed the point of my February 13 editorial regarding the Miss UNCW Pageant. Mr. Newburn, I may have made a few sexist accusations in my life, but a "sexist comment" has never passed from my lips or pen.

The very fact that 1. you were attacked by several people concerning the pageant, 2. that there has been little enthusiasm on the part of the general female student population for participating in it, and 3. that my editorial received overwhelming approval from students and faculty should be evidence enough of the common aversion towards, and at least discomfort with, such an event.

It is puzzling that you could be offended by my factual comment about a 2.0 GPA, while you have insensitively chosen to ignore the deep insult and embarrassment which the pageant has imposed on a majority of women on this campus.

To suggest that those of us who oppose the Miss UNCW Pageant should participate in it is like asking the Black Student Union to come join the fun at an Al Jolson look-alike contest.

Dianne Russell

Homecoming revival

To the Editor:

In case you haven't heard, we are not having a homecoming celebration of any type this year at UNCW. According to program board chairman Mark Davis, 'Homecoming is simply a pain in the butt to produce'. Other reasons given by the program board (at a recent SGA senate meeting) for cancelling the dance are that students will not dress up for a semi-formal type dance and that there is not enough student input (despite the fact that over 400 students attended last year's dance)! It is intuitively obvious that a crowd of over 400 is all the input a program board should need to justify repeating an event! Any committee which chooses to ignore such positive figures and arbitrarily decides to cancel an event long cherished by students is intrinsically unsatisfactory.

The UPB did try to replace the homecoming festivities with a Valentine's Day semiformal and a Miss UNCW Pageant. The dance held February 14 at the cost of almost $1500 was a complete loss. Only eleven people showed up to try and dance with the unknown rhythm and blues band 'Blue Sparks From Hell'. Don't get me wrong, they played fantastic rhythm and blues, but have you ever tried to dance to it? As for the Miss UNCW Pageant, I wish them luck. I wonder though, if only a few people show up, will they have it again next year?

If you are disappointed over the loss of our homecoming watch for a survey that will soon appear in the SEAHAWK. This the only chance that we have to bring the dance back. Please fill out the survey and return it. I don't think this school is quite ready for progressive programming and I hope that the UPB will take a look at some of the more successful events that they brought us last year and last semester and use the success of these events as an indicator to simulate the same, returning to the good job they have done in the past.

Kevin Silis

Student defines 'suspend' for administration

To the Editor:

Yes, it is true. I just looked at my calendar and the year is 1981. Over a decade has passed since the psychedelic 'sixties', and UNCW is still hasseling students over marijuana. Granted, marijuana is illegal, but so is beer drinking in the halls of the dorms, and no one to my knowledge has been kicked out of school for that. Oh! I see. Marijuana is a dangerous hallucinatory drug that our wise federal government deems it necessary to outlaw. (This is the same government that tried unsuccessfully to prohibit alcohol earlier this century.) So, the deans 'suspended' a student from the university because she got caught by everyone's flag-folding friends, the campus police, with a quarter pound of pot. That is some reason to throw someone out of school and consequently ruin her planned career (radio broadcasting, ironically enough). This student also made a 3.7 GPA in her freshman fall semester, which, as things turned out, was to be her last completed semester.

Before this letter is closed, I would like to ask Dean of Students Gary Juhon where he went to school, since he obviously does not know the difference between the words 'suspend' and 'exzel'. 'To suspend' is to send a student home for a few days, two weeks at the longest, surely. 'To exzel' is to kick a student out of the school, as is the case here, Mr. Juhon.

Kit Gogier

Mickey Mouse on speed

To the Editor:

I for one was not in the least bit surprised to hear that a major narcotics arrest on the UNCW campus occurred in connection with the school's student-operated FM radio station, WLOZ. I say this because the great majority of music that had been aired on WLOZ, when I chanced to listen to it, was rather criminal in nature. Rock-N-Roll, Acid Rock, Hard Rock, and Heavy Metal are only a few of the slang names by which drug addicts casually refer to this type of music. Rock, which is what it is called for short, has doubtlessly done more than any other single force in our society to glorify drug use and drug culture. Implicit and explicit drug references correlate extremely positively with Rock Music; whereas they are almost non-existent in classical music, for example. Not only does Rock Music abound with drug references, but even the so-called artists of this music are heavy drug addicts - it is by no means uncommon to hear of deaths resulting from drug use among such people - Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, Jim Morrison, Tim Hardin, Paul Butterfield, and countless others.

I suggest that we learn a valuable lesson from this incident at WLOZ, and prohibit the airing of Rock Music on our radio station/music to which no one but drug addicts listen to anyway) and replace it with reruns of the Metropolitan Opera if need be.

...Hee, hee...I just couldn't resist, and I admit it is a great satirical practical joke to take 'LOZ off the air because of a bust, but the novelty is wearing off. OK? And I'm faced with the grim reality of waking up to assume commercials that sound as if they were made by Mickey Mouse on speed - courtesy of "Wilmington's 'best' Rock."

Tom Smith

Practice what you preach

To the Editor:

I would like to take this time to respond to the letter which appeared in the Seahawk concerning the taking down of the national and state flag by the Campus Security Officers. I presently hold two jobs which I am equally proud of - the first being a Campus Security Officer and the second one as a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserve. I will not try to insist that the story was improper or wrong. If I did, I feel it would only be a biased account.

However, it should be noted that I did not appreciate the implication that I am unpatriotic and have little or no respect for the flag which I defend. It is easy to sit down and preach patriotism when one feels his/her patriotic rights have been treaded on. This type of individual is a dime a dozen. There is the other individual who gives his/her body and soul to express their patriotism. I would like to set the record straight that I do not merely take the time to sit down and preach patriotism, nor do I feel that how one takes down the flag shows their patriotic beliefs.

I attended Army Basic Training in the summer of '78 at Ft. Jackson, SC. Needless to say it was no picnic. It was eight weeks of pure hell. Not having enough of that, I attended Officer Candidate School. I have crawled through mud and absorbed more harassment than anyone reading this will ever have to tolerate in their lives. Having received my commission as an Armed Forces Officer I spent four months in Officer Basic

See LETTER, p. 12.

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions.

Sports Writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newburn

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stals, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Circulation Manager: Doug Broune

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Remembering the sweet days of youth and immortality

I think it was when my cousin Jim was 18 and I was 14 that I last saw him. But maybe not. We could have been a little older or younger, though that doesn't matter. Exactness isn't what counts when you thumb through memories. No one really remembers exactly what happened in their childhood; what they remember with aching clarity is the feeling of the experience, the essence of the happening.

That day, twenty or so years ago, Jim and I sat at the kitchen table in his parents' apartment, late afternoon sunshine spilling gold onto the redchecked and warming the slightly chilly Autumn air. I know it was Fall because we were listening to a football game and talking about the teams whose combat was brought to us over Youngstown's WKBM.

Yet what I remember most

Prime Time

by Judy Stallemitz

about that day is how proud I felt to be sitting there talking to a male animal with neither throat-closing fright nor face-warming embarrassment. For the first time since I was 12, I was comfortable in the presence of a boy. And not just any boy, Jim was a hunk, a real, move-over-Fabian dreamboat. He was also remarkably kind. Not only did he treat me like a person, he helped me to unself-consciously treat him as a person.

But then he had always been that way. Even when I was 5 or 6 and wanted to trail along with him and my brother, he didn't treat me like a Dumb-Girl-Kid. Sometimes they went places I couldn't but he always made sure I had something to do until they returned and that we all played together later. How many times did we play tag, hide-and-seek, cowboys and Indians, and Captain Video? How many Winter days and Summer twilights did we fill with never-going-to-end childhood laughter?

Now, so unbelievably many years later, I remember one game of hide-and-seek in particular. It was the time I learned you could hang yourself without a noose. Mom had told me for years, "Stay away from the clothesline. You'll hang yourself."

I had always thought if I went near the line while playing Something Would Come Over Me and I'd yank the cotton cord down and head for the nearest tree. Not so. I didn't realize clotheslines could disappear in the mystic time between sundown and dark. Certainly I knew that shadows deepened, noseums intensified, and you could say "Star light," before you realized you were wishing on a lightening bug not the first star. But I didn't know clotheslines became invisible.

That night, between "allegee, allegee," and "in free," I had my first conscious encounter with Death. As I lay on my back, wondering how I could be seeing stars when my eyes were closed, I knew I had to be dead. No one could live without an Adam's apple. And mine was gone, crushed into sauce that gurgled and rattled where my throat used to be.

Then Jim was pulling me up, the only one who had witnessed my misadventure, patting me and begging, "Don't cry. Don't tell. We'd have to go in." Voiceless, I could only nod.

"Come on, we'll hide together." I knew he was rewarding me—not so much for my bravery as my discretion.

For one delicious half-hour

we bellied-down amid the room-like lower branches of a spruce tree. It was a half-hour of necessary yet comfortable silence, a silence that only erupted into stifled giggles when we watched the black shapes which were our brothers hunting fruitlessly for us about the yard. They never found us and we never told that we had hidden together or that I had nearly died seeking a place to hide.

It's strange when I remember that night to know I believed in death at 6 yet didn't at 14. That last time I saw Jim we talked of football and maybe even of life but, certainly, we didn't speak of death. At 14 and 18, we were immortal; each day was only one of a million tomorrows, the first day of the rest of our lives.

But now I'm 33 and, on January 2, at 37, Jim died from cancer. And for the first time I'm glad it's been twenty years since I saw him. I'm glad that, for me, my cousin Jim will always be 18-immortal. That way, perhaps, I can believe for a little longer that I am too.

THE HAIR HUT

5th floor
1st Union Bank Building
762-4747

Wash, cut, blow dry, & style

1/2 price

for UNCW students

Ladies reg. 15.00 now 7.50

Men reg. 10.00 now 5.00

by appointment only
limited offer

with this coupon
and UNCW ID

Angela
Clothing Shoppe

WELCOME TO ALL STUDENTS

10% discount on all summer blouses just arrived

Chic & Maverick Jeans

Western shirts,
beachwear

5307 Market St. - Across from Four Winds

Leo Kottke Live in Concert

Wednesday, March 25th at 8:00 P.M.
Kenan Auditorium

UNC-Wilmington Campus

Advance Tickets

In Wilmington:

Record Bar

School Kids Records

Gillhams Guitar Works

Three Penny Gallery

UNC-W Bookstore

In Whiteville:

J.S. Mann's

All Seats Reserved

Students $5.50

Non-Student $6.50

PRESENTED BY:

The University Program Board
Gillhams Guitar Works

Vice-presidential hopeful expresses political objectives

Each year, students gather around the ballot boxes and elect a representative to the Student Government who they feel will best support the student's interest. Well, that time has approached once again and I, Steve Schmidt, have taken upon myself to run for the office of Student Body Vice President.

I believe I can and will fulfill all the duties of Student Body Vice President to the best of my ability. I feel I am extremely qualified for the office since my experience is broad. For two years, I have served as a member of the Student Government Association.

As a Freshman, I was involved in such extracurricular activities as Freshman Class Vice President, Chairman of WLOZ Investigative Committee, a disc jockey at WLOZ, Sports Editor at WLOZ, Media and Publications Board member, and played an active role in the intramural program. As a sophomore, I am Sophomore Class President, Chairman of Fund-Raising Committee, Chairman of Football Investigative Committee, member of Hearings Committee, Student Affairs Committee, Salary Investigative Committee, Football Club, North Carolina Student Legislature, and a participant in intramural activities. These activities have consumed a lot of my time, but I felt honored to devote every second to these organizations in the sense of representing the student's interests.

If elected Student Government Vice President, I will promise to fulfill the duties which the Office of Student Body Vice President entails. According to the Student Government Constitution, the Vice President's duties include: presiding over the Senate, appointing members of all Senate committees, appointing a Secretary (ies) for the Senate, assuming the duties of the President of the Student Government in the absence of the President and appointing a Parliamentarian, etc. These jobs will take a lot of time but I am more than willing to under take these responsibilities.

As Vice President of the Student Government, I will work to achieve a better Student Government. For this to be possible, good communication is a necessity. I will work on the communication problem between the Student Government and the students, between the Student Government and the Administration, and between the Student Government and the clubs and organizations on campus. In order to hear the students' gripes and concerns, I plan to conduct hall meetings with each dorm once a month. I realize I may not reach the whole student body, but I will be reaching a majority of the students.

As for the communication link between the Student Government Association and the administration, I would like to hold a conference once a week or once a month with all the vice chancellors and deans. If this is an impossibility then I shall be more than willing to work hand in hand with vice chancellor of student affairs William Malloy and Dean of Students Gary Juhan.

Steve Schmidt

I feel this will make it a lot easier for the Student Government to take action towards problems that arise. It will also assist the Student Government in weighing the problems by getting both sides of each issue. I also feel that the Student Government Association needs to work closely with the clubs and organizations. Clubs and organizations can't be expected to survive on their own, they need help from their parent organization, the Student government association. In order to assist these clubs, I would like to work together with the President of each club and organization. As I mentioned earlier, communication is a necessity, especially since the Student Government Association acts upon the voice of the STUDENTS.

My second objective as Vice President concerns the issue of Senate meetings. Many Senators have been absent from Senate meetings for, in my opinion, uncalculated reasons. The Senate meets once a week, every Thursday at 7 p.m. One night a week is not too much to ask for anyone, so why can't a Senator represent the Students on that particular night. To alleviate this problem, I intend to set up a policy of senate attendance dealing with absences, tardiness, and people leaving the meetings early.

An important issue I have on my platform deals with Senate Apathy. This year as Sophomore Class President I couldn't express enough the physical responsibilities a Senate member has. I feel it is not just Thursday nights a Senator should act as a Senator, it should also be every day. I would like to see, as Vice President, every Senator being a member of one or two committees. I would also like to see the Student Government have fund-raising projects to aid student organizations. With the ever increasing size and numbers of clubs and organizations, the Student Government needs more money. The only problem is that the SGA isn't receiving any more money and therefore we need to raise the money ourselves so that we can allocate more money among the clubs and organizations fairly.

The Student Government is the government of the students and for the students. Some students don't know who their representatives are. It is my intention to make the Student Government a more effective organization so it can properly serve the students in the capacity it is capable of.

Every organization has its leaders and I, Steve Schmidt, would feel honored to help lead the Student Government for you the students of UNC-Wilmington. So, if you agree with my platform, I would appreciate your support in my bid for Vice President in the upcoming election.

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW

R a different set of jaws.

FILMS INCORPORATED

March 20 and 21 in the Pub at 8 p.m. Students $1.00
Non-students $1.50

Rocky Horror Workshop, Friday, March 20 at 4 p.m. before movie.

ELECT

BILL
SAMSON

SGA VICE-PRESIDENT

- Experience -

Leadership with direction

VALENTINO'S
PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S
PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S
PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Student body presidential candidate presents political platform

It is once again that time of year where the students must choose the people that they feel will best serve their interests. I am therefore announcing my candidacy as Student Body President.

I am at the present the current Student Body President, and those students which know me understand my stand for student's rights here at UNCW. When I came into office last year I promised to make the SGA Vice President's job more active, and I have. I promised to work with various clubs and organizations to help them get back on their feet, and I did. There were many other promises that I made before I took office, and I did them also. I stand by record for being active in the Student Government Association and for seeking student input in every way possible.

When our administration took office in the Spring of '80, we began our work immediately. Our administration has been more innovative to changes, more active, and 150 percent more involved in the problems and concerns that have arisen at UNCW.

I have lived on campus for the past three years and I have taken various stands on issues that affect us all. I have taken stands against mandatory meal plans at UNCW. I helped the UNCW SGA Football Team get back on its feet. I made sure that the SGA had a vital role in the summer orientation of new freshmen. I am at the present standing against major fee and tuition increases that will affect UNCW as well as the 16 other UNC schools, and we are still taking a stand of correcting our "parking problem" at UNCW.

I stand this year determined to follow through on many of the policies of this past year's administration, and a few practical innovations that we need to insure fiscal responsibility. I believe that this Student Body is tired of funding unnecessary clubs on this campus. I fully believe that we should place price ceilings on the amount of money that can be spent for the students of this campus, so that the SGA could not go into deficit spending. I also believe that student as a whole want in the forms of concerts, parties, and etc...

The SGA is authorized to spend around 100,000 dollars to support the various clubs and organizations that sponsor many of the events at UNCW. I feel that we should restructure our system, so that, all clubs and organizations are classified as Academic, Athletic, Medias, and Recreational. These organizations would be grouped under their respective "Boards" composed of members of these groups. These boards would have a larger hand in the overseeing of how the monies are spent on the individual clubs, and the SGA would make sure that the over-all disbursement of funds is checked.

I feel that by having served the SGA for three years and by serving on as many committees as possible in the last three years, that I am more than capable of serving the students of UNCW in a responsive manner. I feel that I have shown by my past performances that I have the leadership qualities that are necessary to perform the duties of Student Body President and to do the best that I can possibly do. Those that know me know that I can do it and do it well.

Thank you,
Charles B. Parsons

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS
1 Cicatrix
5 Outward
10 High notes
14 Gutter site
15 Mara
16 Amerce
17 An ounce of 19 Visage
20 Gnome
21 Cut
23 Cleansers
26 Place
27 Treat again
30 State
34 Of a time
35 Greek monster
37 Dined
38 Vehicle
39 — eye
41 Holy fig.
42 Legal man:
Abbr.
43 — stand
44 Hastened
45 Of mail
47 Tallies
50 High card
51 Boner

52 Since
56 Respiration
60 Intimate
61 1452 ship:
2 words
64 Utah resort
65 Girl's name
66 Ruler
67 African 68 Feel
69 Droops
DOWN
1 Lizard
2 Fish
3 Say
4 Correction
5 Ninesome
6 Feline
7 You: Fr.
8 Man's name
9 Eats in cafes:
2 words
10 Worm out
11 Fabulist
12 Noun ending
13 Kernal
18 English school

22 Poetry
24 Interlace
25 Canadian poet
27 Summary
28 Poetry Muse
29 Stags
31 Quebec area
32 Mink's kin
33 Requires
36 — Bowl
39 Spot
40 Lets go
44 Stripes
46 Turk
48 Polished
49 Average
52 Solid blow
53 Hawaiian city
54 Inner: Comb. form
55 Vendition
57 Composition
58 High sound
59 Witches
62 Thailand river
63 Poetic contraction

Finance Committee freezes 'Atlantis' funds

At the recommendation of the student Finance Committee, the Senate froze funds for the Atlantis, the campus student literary magazine, at its February 26 meeting.

According to SGA Treasurer Betty Kusta, the Atlantis broke SGA policy last year by pushing a debt into this year's budget. Rather than asking for additional funds to cover a $120 debt at the end of the 1980 spring semester, the Atlantis allowed the debt to be carried over into this year's Atlantis budget. Kusta said the Atlantis faculty adviser had been asked several times to request the additional funds but no action was taken.

Apparently the Senate moved to freeze the funds in an effort to bring the Atlantis before the Finance Committee. "Whether or not the funds will be released is up to the Senate," said Kusta. "But until they answer certain questions to the Finance Committee, the funds will remain frozen," she said.

Besides the handling of last year's debt, the Finance Committee and some SGA officials have expressed concern over the lateness of Atlantis' Fall '80 issue.

Until funds are released, Atlantis will be unable to pay any bills. The fall issue, not yet paid for, is at the printers this week and was scheduled to appear sometime soon, according to Editor-in-chief Sherry Niven.

"I think Steve is a fine person and a credit to our school and to Student Gov't."

Charles B. Parsons
SGA Vice-Pres.

STEVE SCHMIDT FOR PRESIDENT

"I wish to say that Sophomore Class President Steve Schmidt is one of the most outstanding students on this campus. UNCW is extremely lucky to share his dedication to the students and this university."

Lynne Wells
Senate Secretary

"Action,
Aggression.
Ambition."

"Mr. Schmidt has gone on to become the president of his class, chairman of important committees, and a respected senator, student, and person. This is no easy task."
Nancy Kelker

"Steve is a young man of culture and education, high ideals, and sound integrity who devotes much of his time to his job representing the students and representing us honestly."
Jamie Lee
Tammy Shields
Sophomores

This Week!

Just tell us what you want.

Your ArtCarved representative will be on campus soon to show you the latest in class ring designs. With dozens of styles to choose from, you'll be proud to select your one-of-a-kind design. Just tell us what you want. And be on the lookout for posters on campus to get you where you want.

Date: MARCH 4,5,6
Location: CAFETERIA

ARTCARVED
CLASS RINGS

See ANSWERS, p. 11.

UNCW

SPORTS

UNCW Baseball Team opens in doubleheader Sunday

Hoping to rebound from only the second losing season in school history, the UNCW baseball team opens 1981 play here Sunday in a doubleheader against Old Dominion at 1 p.m.

The two contests are the first of 35 scheduled games at Brooks Field this spring on an overall slate of 48 contests, with 26 of the first 28 dates also at home.

We're bringing in some of the finest teams in the South-east and I just hope we'll be ready," veteran coach Bill Brooks says as he enters his 25th year with the 'Hawks.

Last year was a disappointment for everyone, but our success in the Summer League should help, and I think we have some new players that can contribute right away," too.

The schedule includes 1980 NCAA playoff participants Clemson, East Carolina and South Carolina, plus other top regional opponents such as North Carolina, N.C. State and Coastal Carolina.

Last year, against a similarly demanding schedule, a young UNCW team was not up to the daily challenges and slipped to an 8-24 record—the poorest in Brooks' career. The Seahawks put wins back-to-back only twice last season and at one point dropped 10 in a row.

An encouraging development, however, as Brooks noted, was the play of many of the 'Hawks during the summer when UNCW managed a second-place finish in last year's North Carolina Collegiate Summer League.

Top individual returnees include junior rightfielder Tom Jones (.310 spring average, .382 in summer), a left-handed hitting speedster who is also a top base-stealing threat.

Veteran Tim Whitehead, who in his junior year will likely be playing his third different position, will likely be playing his third different position, will also be counted on to set the table for the middle of the order behind Jones and himself. Whitehead played shortstop as a freshman, centerfield as a sophomore, and this year could be moved to secondbase after last year's starter at short, Paul Murr, returns from a preseason injury.

Senior John Milkovits and junior Clyde Holley will be two of the big guns in the Seahawk attack. Both are right-handed hitters who enjoyed fine summer seasons after below-par spring years in 1980.

Milkovits, who handled the catching chores in the summer, hit .379 with 29 runs batted in, while Holley, a firstbaseman, hit at a .325 rate and drove across 25 runners.

Other leading returnees are shortstop Murr, along with outfielders Doc Lawing, Richard Foy and Tommy Phillips.

Newcomers who should help include Roger Hudson, Don Stevenson and Johnny Slaughter—a trio of talented freshman outfielders.

The Seahawk pitching staff will be bolstered by transfer Mike Artie, a hard-throwing righthander who will likely join sophomore Kenny Smith, junior Ronald Inman and another sophomore, Carl Willis, in the starting rotation.

The top newcomer among the hurlers is lefty Mike Riggsbee. Veteran Johnny Conner holds down the bullpen duties.

Following Sunday's twinbill, UNCW and ODU play again here on Monday before the Seahawks entertain St. Augustine in another doubleheader on Wednesday.

The complete 1981 schedule follows:

MARCH 1-OLD DOMINION (2); 2-OLD DOMINION; 4-ST. AUGUSTINE (2); 7-GUILFORD; 8-YALE (2); 9-YALE;

10-at Atlantic Christian (2); 12-N.C. STATE; 13-JOHN CARROLL; 14-JOHN CARROLL and MARYLAND; 16-CLEMSON; 17-CLEMSON; 18-WESTERN CAROLINA; 19-WESTERN CAROLINA and WEST LIBERTY STATE; 20-EASTERN CONNECTICUT; 21-SALISBURY STATE (2); 27-PRINCETON; 28-PEMBROKE; 31-NORTH CAROLINA.

APRIL 1-STETSON; 2-STETSON; 3-at Baptist; 4-at Baptist; 5-at South Carolina; 6-at N.C. State; 7-METHODIST; 8-at Campbell; 11-EAST CAROLINA; 12-EAST CAROLINA; 13-COASTAL CAROLINA; 15-CAMPBELL (2); 18-at Old Dominion (2); 22-at Pembroke; 25-at East Carolina; 26-at East Carolina; 27-SOUTH CAROLINA; 28-BAPTIST; 29-BAPTIST.

MAY 2-at North Carolina.

UNCW Men's Tennis team begins season March 2

With five of last year's top six players returning, the UNCW men's tennis team opens 1981 play next Monday, hoping to regain the winning form that deserted it last year.

The Seahawks, under coach Larry Honeycutt, play Methodist College in Fayetteville at 2:30 p.m. Monday (March 2), then begin home competition next Wednesday (March 4), hosting Atlantic Christian.

Junior Ricky Watson and sophomore John Shackelford are currently battling for the number one spot, left vacant when Paul Gemborys concluded his fine UNCW career last spring. Other top Seahawk returnees include soph Lance Thompson, junior Charlie Ponton and sophomore Lee Smith.

Top newcomers who should help are Scott Rodden, Clayton Pressley and Harvey

Goehring—all freshmen. The 'Hawks were 10-14 last year after three winning seasons.

The complete 22-match schedule follows:

MARCH 2—at Methodist; 4-ATLANTIC CHRISTIAN; 9-at Charleston Baptist; 10-at S.C. State; 12-at Georgia Southern vs. Carson-Newman at Statesboro; 13-at Armstrong State vs. Northern Illinois at Savannah; 14-at College of Charleston; 17-at St. Andrews; 19-EAST CAROLINA; 22-SALISBURY STATE and AMHERST; 24-at Coastal Carolina; 27-at Campbell; 28-at N.C. A&T and UNC-Greensboro.

APRIL 3—at N.C. Wesleyan; 7-at Pembroke State; 10-AZALEA CLASSIC (UNCW, UNCC, Campbell, Belmont Abbey); 11-AZALEA CLASSIC; 22-CAMPBELL; 24 and 25-at ECU Tour.

Men's Basketball will finish with breakeven record

Eleven wins in the last 15 outings have assured the UNC Wilmington basketball team of no-worse than a breakeven season, but not the Seahawks shoot for a fifth winning campaign with two year-ending road games this week.

UNCW, 13-11, plays at North Carolina A&T on Thursday (February 26) and at Howard on Saturday (Feb. 28). Both games begin at 8 p.m.

"It is a real tribute to this club that they did not give up or lose their motivation in January," UNCW coach Mel Gibson says. "We've had some low points, but I don't think that anyone hung his head for too long. Instead, everyone pulled together and we now have the opportunity to finish quite well.

The Aggies have run off 10 consecutive wins since mid-January and are now 18-6 on the season. They are already the regular season champions of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference and will gain a bye in the season-ending league tourney.

Leading players for A&T are 6'4 guard James Anderson (18.2 ppg), 6'7 forward Joe Binion (15.6) and 6'5 forward James Horace (12.0). Remarkably, Anderson and Horace are just sophomores, while Binion is only a freshman.

In the past three seasons, UNCW and A&T have played five times—three games went into overtime, one was a one-point decision, and the

See BASKETBALL, p. 7.

Seahawks host Invitational

Men finish second in Seahawk Invitational

The Seahawk Invitational was held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday last week hosting ten other teams. The men swimmers finished in second place behind East Carolina and the women finished seventh. The Seahawks had several national qualifying performances.

After Thursday the men were in first place and the women were ranked seventh out of eight teams. Individual winners were Sam O'Leary in the 50free, 200fly, and the men's 400 medley relay (Tambe, Malone, O'Leary, Blum).

All of these performances and many of the women's qualified several Seahawks for the Nationals.

The men Seahawks fell to second place Friday and the women remained in the seventh spot. UNCW continued to swim national qualifying times.

For the men's team, Tambe, Ruffley, O'Leary, Blum and Michalove will be traveling to Cleveland for the Eastern later collegiate championships. Representing the women's swim team in the Nationals to be held in Marquette, Michigan are Cushman, J. Young, K. Young, and V. Newlin.

Said Coach Allem, "I think we performed well. This was a highly competitive meet and we could have finished anywhere from first to fifth."

We all swam well and several men and women have a chance to extend their season by two or three weeks by qualifying in the Easterns and Nationals to compete against top college swimmers from all over the country."

SUB STATION II
OF THE SOUTHEAST

25¢ OFF

on any whole Sub.

Good Thru Mar 6 - Mar 13

LIMIT ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE

BASKETBALL, from p. 6.

other was a two-point contest that coming earlier this year when the Seahawks defeated the Aggies, 72-70, here in Trask Coliseum.

UNCW has not played Howard this season, but split a pair of meetings with the Washington, DC, school last year.

The Hawks won an opening round game in the Siena Invitational, 77-73 in OT but were beaten by the Bison, 59-53, in Wilmington later in the season. All five starters from that Howard squad are back, although the team has slipped from a 21-7 mark a year ago to a present record of 12-11 (Howard played Delaware State Tuesday).

The Bison boast a formidable front line of James Ratiff (6'8, 18.9 ppg), Larry Spriggs (6'7, 15.2) and James Terry (6'11). Guard Bernard Perry (14.1) gives Howard a third double-figure scorer.

UNCW will attempt to counter the superior size of both A&T and Howard with the one-two scoring punch of senior Danny Davis (15.5) and sophomore Shawn Williams (12.8). Those two are also the Seahawks' leading rebounders, Davis at 9.6 boards per contest and Williams at 5.6.

Davis leads the team in field goal percentage (61.7) and needs only six more rebounds to become the school's top career rebounder, surpassing Garry Cooper's 632.

The 6'7 Alliance, NC, native should reach that goal, and hopefully, do it in a winning cause as he concludes an outstanding UNCW career.

Chuck Waller hits kill shot against NC State in UNCW's 12-2 racquetball victory on Saturday Feb. 21.

UNCW Football Team in practice for spring season

UNCW's Football team started practice on Monday, Feb. 23. The spring season will consist of 4 games: March 21 - UNC-G(H); March 27 - UNC-CHA; April 11 - ASU(H); and April 18 - USMC(H).

The team hopes to play all games at Legion Stadium, but no plans are definite at this time. At the team's February 9 meeting Dale Fish was elected president. Helping him will be Jesse Hayes and Jerry Allen. Don Corry will be head coach.

Anyone who has questions or is interested in playing should contact Dale Fish at 799-4893, Don Corry at 791-2588, or the SGA office.

SEAHAWK Deadline

Deadline for all copy is Thurs. at 5 p.m. for publication in the following week's SEAHAWK. Articles submitted after this time will not be published unless space permits.

UNCW Bowling Club

All students interested in joining the UNCW Bowling Club, the meetings are every Thursday at 4 p.m. at Cardinal Lanes Superbowl.

Golf team to entertain St. Augustine Tuesday

Coach Dean Allen's UNC-Wilmington golf team opens its spring schedule here next week, entertaining St. Augustine on Tuesday at 1 p.m.

The Seahawks, who finished their fall season with a second-place performance in the Coastal Carolina Invitational, have four tournaments and three dual matches on tap for 1981. Home contests will be played at the Echo Farms Country Club.

Highlighting the slate are trips to the Gobbler Classic in Blacksburg, VA, and the Old Dominion Invitational at Nags Head, both coming in late April.

The complete spring schedule follows:

MARCH 3--ST. AUGUSTINE: 9-11--at East Carolina Invitational: 17-CAMPBELL:

APRIL 6-7--at Pembroke Invitational: 13-at Campbell, vs. Towson; State at Campbell: 16-18--at Gobbler Classic: 22-24--at ODU Invitational.

OLDE FASHIONED GET-TOGETHER
ON CAMPUS
MARCH 16-22

MONDAY 16th SPECIAL MUSIC IN FRONT OF CAFE!!! 4:30 [AND...] WEDNESDAY 18th WORSHIP SERVICE, AREA IN FRONT OF CAFE, SINGING FELLOWSHIP & MORE, 5:00 [TOO...] FRIDAY 20th GOSPEL LIVE PER- FORMANCE, ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN, 6th MEET. ST.-UNC-W STUDENTS $2.50, RESERVATIONS 343-0231. CURTAIN 8:30.	TUESDAY 17th SING ALONG WITH BLACK STUDENT UNION GOODWOOD TAVERN 7:30 THURSDAY 19th HOT DOG COOKOUT OUTSIDE OF CAFETERIA AT LUNCHTIME SATURDAY 21st 12:00 NOON TALENT SHOW, RUNNING 25THRS. UNTIL 1:00, SUN. FEB. 22, IN PUB.
---	--

SPONSORED BY CCF

COME-N-JOY A GREAT TIME!

PEANUTS

Sex education in public schools is going to the dogs

I realize this column won't be relevant to some of you, but it's gotta come out. Y'know all the controversy over sex education in the schools? Well...all my mother ever told me was "Don't!" Period. That was enough, however, to get me where I am today (thanks anyway, Mom).

Actually, I learned about sex in a very down-to-earth way (I can hear you gasping already!) My dog, my beloved little Fang, tossed in her Milkbones one night and had a fling with the neighborhood Rin-Tin-Tin. My parents were talking about it in hushed tones the next morning. What would the neighbors say? They cast withering looks at Fang, who licked her chops happily. She felt no shame, that's for sure.

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Kuss

But, alas, she was to pay for her sins.

Soon our fears were confirmed--Fang was in the family way. Terminating the pregnancy was out of the question--she growled whenever the vet was mentioned. The father was your basic Cassanova; two weeks later I saw him cavorting with a French poodle, the cad. Surely Fang was aware of his faithlessness, but she was head-over-paws in love, and determined to be the mother of his children. So, we let her do it her way.

Fang comes up to my ankle, so the effects of her, er, indiscretion were almost immediately obvious. She looked like a small, hairy Goodyear Blimp, and by the end of the sixth week she no longer sat, she slumped. It hurt to look at her as she waddled through the house; she looked as if she had inhaled a watermelon. As the fateful day grew nigh, her eyes bulged continuously and she muttered constantly under her breath--probably asking for a Caesarean.

It happened when there was nobody home but me. There we sat, absorbed in Johnny Carson (Fang thinks he's cute, too). Suddenly she made a very distinctive noise, like "Yawp!" I stared at her, and she blinked innocently. Then, "Yamp!" she announced, and I broke out in a cold sweat. She staggered to her little doggie bed and flopped over her side, grumbling loudly--"Huh-uhuh-huh, huh!"

Now, this kid can't even watch amoeba split, much less a dog give birth. There was a tense silence, and then she began biting at her front paws.

Frustration, I suppose, but at the time it unnerved me completely. Coward that I am, I packed it in--grabbed a beer and hotfooted it out the door. Her squeaks followed me. I felt like a heel, a jerk, a dip, you name it. I emptied the bottle in three gulps standing on the front porch, and went back in. (Come to think of it, she's the one who need a beer!)

In the end, Fang came through with flying colors (and eight sons and daughters) but I was ragged, to say the least. Everyone came home not long afterwards and we had a big Puppy Party. Fang romped through the house on paws that were, I swear, fifteen ponds lighter, and I sat in the rocking chair and felt pale.

Get my drift? There must be easier ways to learn the facts of life!

Symphony performs

Last Thursday evening at 8 p.m. Wilmington was treated to a stellar performance by our own North Carolina Symphony conducted by Eric Knight. Those who attended last week's concert in Kenan Auditorium had a fantastic time. Wilmington's reputation as a cultural attraction is greatly enhanced by the Symphony, especially when they play to a fullhouse as was the case for their third concert this year.

It was an "Evening at Pops" once again and the music was not only outstanding but the crowd was so enthusiastic that Conductor Eric Knight gave two encores in response to a minute-long standing ovation.

Music featured by the Symphony included masterful works by Johann Strauss, Lerov Anderson, Richard Rodgers, and Aram Khachaturian, composer of the famous "Sabre Dance".

There was certainly nothing dull or boring in this concert as the crowd enthusiastically cheered the Stephen Foster Medley consisting of "Old Folks at Home", "Oh, Susannah", "Beautiful Dreamer", "Camptown Races", "Old Kentucky Home", "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair", and much more. An "Evening at Pops" concert is a truly memorable experience that classical music conuers as well as classical novices can appreciate in all of its splendor and brilliance. Those who don't attend the Symphony certainly miss something worthwhile and exhilarating.

There will be one more performance this year on Thursday, March 26, 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Student admission is free with I.D. The North Carolina Symphony deserves your patronage as one of our truly great institutions of cultural advancement.

Library Hours

Saturday and Sunday, March 7-8 CLOSED

Monday-Friday, March 9-13 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Saturday, March 14 CLOSED

Sunday, March 15 4 p.m.-11:30 p.m.

This week!

YOUR OTHER RINGS

HARMED US.

Why this college ring sale had to be perfect for you.

Your rings were difficult. "Never ate vegetables," she said. "Never called my mother for you was a tough assignment."

But you're tough as our toughest customer. Our rings are custom designed and backed by a lifetime warranty.

Save $100 on our Siladium® rings (now only $84.95). And if you're unsure about a college ring, we can make your decision easy. Because you'll get a terrific deal when you trade in your 10K gold high school ring.

You can choose from dozens of styles. We've got something for the most demanding student. Even you.

But don't thank us. Thank your mother.

ARTCARVED
CLASS RINGS

Date: MARCH 4,5,6

Location: CAFETERIA

© 1981 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc.

Children's ballet at Thalian Hall

by Jean Honeycutt

Creating a children's ballet is not all kid's stuff—it entails a lot of ingenuity, creativity and just plain hard work.

"Choreography is not as important in children's ballet as in keeping the child's attention," said Ann Vorus, visiting choreographer for this year's spring children's ballet. "The aim is to entertain and create magic for the children. We start with a theme or story and that becomes the skeleton. It is then fed by all the Company members—it is constantly evolving. It's really a group effort."

This year's story is set in a doll shop. The shopkeeper is very busy and tired, but tries to entertain her son who is quite bored and is constantly vying for her attention. When the exhausted mother falls asleep, the son is visited by the fairy princess who bring all the dolls to life with her wonderful magic. Then the fun begins.

"The ballet is fast paced, with lots of motion. It is humorous, magical, lively, colorful, and has a carnival atmosphere of fun—all lasting thirty minutes," according to

Ann Vorus. She also promised some special effects of magic and some surprises.

The ballet is set to the music of Dmitri Shostakovich's Ballet Suites Number one, two and three. The cast includes: Matthew Levy as the child, Annette Crumpton as the mother, Kim Johnson as the fairy princess, Billy Jo Jones as the clown, Kristie Smith with Anita Harrison and Camille Britt as ballerinas, Lisa Sell as the kitten, Doris Levy as Raggedy Ann, Lisa Love as Raggedy Andy, Crisy Omirly and Alice Pleasants and Tanya Vallianos as gypsies, Keisha Morrissey and vandie Scoggins as acrobats, and a mystery toy which area children will be asked to name in the upcoming weeks.

Ann Vorus, guest choreographer, comes to Wilmington through her friendship with Anne Goodrum, Artistic Director of the Wilmington Civic Ballet. They met at the Atlanta School of Ballet.

Vorus has some impressive credentials. She began dancing at the age of seven. At age thirteen, she began at the Atlanta School of Ballet and participated in all their companies as well as taught there. She was Company Director for the Gainesville Ballet Schools and Company in Georgia. She has her own school and company in Vevard, North Carolina before recently moving to Raleigh with her husband. Jackson Parkhurst, Assistant Conductor and Director of Education for the North Carolina Symphony.

As a student of ballet, Vorus studied at American Ballet Theatre and City Center Ballet (Joffrey). She has danced on tours all over the South performing in numerous ballets. She set Balanchine choreography for the Nutcracker in Atlanta and taught ballet to the hearing impaired there.

Regarding her associating with The Wilmington Civic Ballet, Vorus said, "It's been wonderful. There is a lot of potential here. I was really surprised when I learned the Company was formed just three years ago."

The Spring Concert is scheduled for March 13, 14, and 15 at Thalian Hall. A special children's matinee will be featured Sunday afternoon.

Come and enjoy the finished product resulting from ingenuity, creativity and hard work.

Young ballerinas practice for Spring Concert

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

Cliffs Notes answer your questions about literature as you study and review. More than 200 titles available for novels, plays and poems — see our Cliffs Notes display:

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100
hours 10-6 p.m. daily.

MISS, from p. 1.

Pageant, most of the money going towards advertising. A crowd of just over 200 people attended the event in Kenan Auditorium Thursday night.

MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW TO ATTEND 1981 SUMMER SCHOOL AT UNCW

Preregistration
March 31- April 9

Registration May 26

Summer I May 26-June 26

€

July 7

Summer II July 7-Aug 7

For Further Information, Contact:
Office of Special Programs
UNC-W - Extension 2196
Hoggard 212

Leo's BEER KING

10 0/0 discount for students on sandwiches

Happy Hour Mon.-Fri.
5:30-7:00

221 Kerr Ave.
392-0480

Visiting professor studies learning

by Elliott Mascop

UNCW is honored to have on campus this spring semester world-renowned educational research expert Dr. Joseph D. Novak. Professor of scientific education and biological sciences at Cornell University, Novak is here to share his knowledge and experience with UNCW faculty and students.

Dr. Novak is author of more than 50 scientific journal articles and has written over 14 textbooks on his subject matter. A leader in teaching, research, and publishing, Novak is perhaps one of our nation's foremost pioneers in the field of educational research. He has come to UNCW as a guest of Dr. Carolyn Dunn, assistant professor of biological sciences and plant biology coordinator.

A part-time resident of Carolina Beach, Novak is currently writing a new book as well as teaching occasional seminars and performing research here at UNCW. His work is both fascinating and vital to the continuing growth of our educational development in this country.

According to Dr. Novak, he specializes professionally in "The Theory of educational development and in the improvement of educational processes, both in improving classroom teaching techniques and in building basic knowledge in our educational system." One of his outstanding projects includes that of concept mapping. Dr. Novak explained, "Concept mapping is an attempt to show students how the central role concept plays a part in teaching technique as well as how relationships between conceptual meanings enter into the educational spectrum."

As a doctor of philosophy with a concentration in science education, Novak got involved in this field of research as he became concerned with the quality of schooling in this country. "Public schools today tend to stress rote memorization of material rather than the quality of understanding. Learning gained from memorizing facts is soon forgotten," Dr. Novak said. "We need a commitment from educators and teachers to the theory of redesigning scholastic institutional practices stressing a higher quality of conceptual understanding in the classroom."

Novak expounded somewhat on his current assessment of education in this country and the world. Locally, he is only familiar with the Carolina Beach Elementary School, but he is extremely impressed with the quality of education there, calling it "well above average and a credit to the area." Novak has also spent much time overseas, particularly in Australia, and he describes the main differences in their schooling with that in our own country. "Overseas, in Europe and Australia, educators reach fewer students but with a higher quality of education, while in the U.S. we reach many more students but at a far more mediocre level. This is a generalization for secondary education only," Dr. Novak stated.

First trained to be a science teacher, Dr. Novak was offered a teaching assistantship in a botany department. He had performed all PHD studies in biological sciences but never prepared a thesis. He rapidly became committed to the idea that education could and should be more like a science. For over 25 years, Dr. Novak has pursued a course of research and progressive teaching techniques in an attempt to improve the quality of education. His goal at this point is to "build the theory to the degree that it can begin to guide educators in practice." He said, "We must begin testing our different ideas in order to improve teaching methodologies."

Dr. Novak held a seminar on March 2 entitled "Rote Learning vs. Meaningful Conceptual Learning," at which students and faculty exchanged open dialogue on learning techniques. Novak greatly encourages an open, individual sharing of ideas with students, claiming that he learns about many invaluable ideas and concepts through people. He plans to hold similar seminars later in the semester.

As the head of the "Learning to Learn" program at Cornell, Dr. Novak stressed the need for researchers. "That field is in great need of talented, brilliant research-oriented students," he said. "Too often we get mostly teachers who are not interested in new, experimental ideas. Only a few hundred active researchers exist today in the U.S. who are studying education from a scientific viewpoint. We are in dire need of research-oriented talent. In many universities only a small handful of people are involved in research activities."

Dr. Joseph Novak is dedicated to the advancement of our educational world. Future seminars should prove to be very enlightening experiences.

Dr. Joseph D. Novak

On-campus housing full

On-campus housing is full for the Fall 1981 semester in spite of a 16 percent increase in room and board costs.

Charles King, director of Housing and Food Services, reported that this increase in rates reflects the spiraling costs of food, utilities and maintenance.

By the fall term, on-campus housing will accommodate 1400 students; 1000 in the four residence halls and 400 in the new apartment buildings which will be completed late this summer.

King said there is a substantial waiting list for on-campus housing—enough, in fact, to prompt UNCW to request state authorization to build space for 200 additional students. He said a decision from the state is expected by July.

First woman receives Alumna Award

Estell Carter Lee entered the annals of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington Alumni Association February 6 as the first female recipient of the Distinguished Alumna Award.

Lee and Distinguished Citizen Award recipient Benjamin David Schwartz were guest of honor at a dinner at the Cape Fear Country Club hosted by the Board of Directors of the UNCW Alumni Association. Bonnie Hobbs Coley, alumni vice chairman, presented plaques to the honorees and cited them for their outstanding contributions to the University, the community, the state and their professions.

Lee, president of Almont Shipping Company and a 1955 graduate of Wilmington College, is a native of Loris, South Carolina. The oldest of five children in a farming family, she chose to attend Wilmington College because she had an aunt living here with whom she could board while attending school.

Her first experience in the business world was as a part-time accounts receivable clerk for Garver Manufacturing Company while she was a college student. After earning her associate in arts degree she worked for five years as secretary to the director of operations at Sunny Point Army Terminal.

Since 1960 she has held various positions with Almont Shipping Company, first as a customhouse broker, then secretary, vice president and now president. In spite of her obvious dedication to her career, she found time to marry and raise a family. She and her husband, Franklin G. Lee, a supervisor in the powder preparation division of General Electric Corporation have two children, Rhonda, now 21 and Glenn, 18.

Lee has in her own quiet way invaded a few male bastions in the community. She is the first woman to serve on the board of directors of the local Young Men's Christian Association and the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, of which she also serves as treasurer. She is also director-elect of the National Association of Stevedores, a previously all-male group of about 60 members who represent Atlantic, west coast, gulf, Great Lakes, Hawaiian and Puerton Rican ports.

Her other community activities include vice president of the North Carolina Shipping Association, a group of the state's stevedores and steamship agents; trustee of the International Longshore Pension and Welfare Trust for North Carolina; member of the Wilmington-New Hanover Port, Waterway and Beach Commission; board member of the Wilmington Propeller Club of the United States; member of the city board of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company and the board of directors of the Cape Fear Area United Way. She is also active in the North Carolina Citizens Association and the Pine Valley Baptist Church.

*Diamonds...
Classic Styling for Today*

Diamond settings also change with the times. Choose your diamond in traditional settings with a modern touch. See our entire collection of precious gems. From $000

Kingoff's
INC.
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELLER

"If it's from Kingoff's...it's Guaranteed"

10 N. FRONT ST. INDEPENDENCE MALL
762-5219 799-2100

State delays MBA program

The MBA Program will not be offered next semester as originally planned because of a delay in its final approval, according to the Dean of the School of Business, Dr. Norman R. Kaylor.

The approval of the request to begin planning the graduate program was received by the School of Business in March, 1979.

A curriculum proposal, the finished plan, was sent to the UNC General Administration in March, 1980, but the final approval has not yet been received, Dean Kaylor said.

He is expecting an approval on the proposal by this fall and hopes to get the program started by the fall semester, 1982.

The School of Business is trying to recruit students from the local work forces who have

See MBA, p. 12.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Spring elections to be held March 18-19

The UNCW Student Government Association would like to announce that the Spring Elections for 1981 will be conducted on March 18 and 19. The offices that will be in contest are as follows:

Executive Offices-Student Body President, Student Body Vice-President, Student Body Attorney General, and Student Body Chief Justice. Legislative Offices-(from each class except freshman class)-President, Vice-President, two senators, and eight Representative-at-Large positions.

The voting times and locations will be announced later. For more information contact the SGA office in the Pub or call 791-4330, ext. 2553 or 2554.

Short Story and Essay Contests announced

The UNCW English Dept. announces the 1981 Shannon Morton Essay Contest and the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest. Entries for the essay contest should have one or more of the following themes: "The Promise of the Eighties" for me, for my community, for UNCW, for North Carolina or for the nation." Themes for the short story contest are left up to the writer. Both contests will award a $50 first prize and prizes of $30 and $20 for second and third place.

The contests are open to all UNCW students and those interested should submit entries to the English Dept. Deadline for entries is Thursday, March 19.

Piano and trumpet recital

The Department of Creative Arts will present a joint recital by Richard Reid, piano, and Ned Gardner, trumpet, in the King Auditorium on March 19 at 8 p.m.

The program will include works by Fisher, Chopin, Enesco and Sulpizi.

A graduate of Oberlin and Juilliard, Reid is currently the Visiting Artist at Sandhills Community College in Southern Pines. Reid has conducted previous Visiting Artist residencies at Craven Community College and Davidson County Community College. As a recitalist, he has been praised by the New York Times for his "technical facility and musical sensibility..." and by the London Daily Telegraph for his "poetry...and thunderous, full-blooded sonority." His concerto performances include appearance with the Detroit Symphony and the New Orleans Philharmonic.

Ned Gardner is currently the Visiting Artist at Wayne Community College in Goldsboro. He became the first brass player to participate in the Visiting Artist Program when he was named Visiting Artist at Martin Community College in 1978. A graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts and Catholic University, Gardner has been a member of the U.S. Army Band and the Piedmont Brass Quintet.

This recital is a project of the Visiting Artist Program of the North Carolina Department of Community Colleges, and is made possible as such through the joint sponsorship of Sandhills Community and Wayne Community College.

Admission is free of charge.

Richard Reid and Ned Gardner

Mandatory meeting for recipients of NC Insured Student Loans

Tuesday, March 31, there will be a "borrower's conference" on the NC Insured Student Loan program. The two sessions-4:15 and 5:15 p.m.-will be held in the Morton Hall Auditorium (New Classroom Building). No new loans will be given out to continuing borrowers unless they attend this meeting.

The meeting will explain how the new application forms should be completed, how students will be billed, and what the laws and responsibilities of repayment are. Past and future borrowers are advised but not required to attend.

New borrowers with an interest in the program should write to College Foundation, Inc., 1307 Glenwood Ave. Raleigh, NC 27605.

Financial aid deadline

Students who receive financial aid are reminded to fill out all form for the 1981-82 school year. The application, financial statement, and Basic/Pell Grant results (Eligibility Report) must be received in the Financial Aid Office by March 15 to meet the priority deadline. Applications received after that date will be given consideration as long as funds remain available.

There was no SEAHAWK last week due to production difficulties.

There will be no SEAHAWK the week of March 16-20 due to Spring Break. Production will continue as usual the following week.

Non-traditional

The Organization of Non-Traditional students is scheduled to meet on Tuesday, March 24 at 7 p.m. and Wednesday, March 25 at 12 noon in the seminar room, King Hall Education Building.

Fledgling refund deadline

The following individuals still have not picked up their refunds of the deposit for special lettering on his/her 1979-80 yearbook. Please drop by the SGA office between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The deadline for picking up your refund is March 6. No Exceptions!

Barbara Lynn Bordeaux, James Browne, Ann Case, Ernest Finch, Jr., Shirley Flowers, Melinda Floyd, Cynthia Lynn Harris, Vanessa Huggins, Susan Joyner, Anne Lineberry, Kay Pearce, Wilda Moore, Elizabeth Noel.

Peggy Powell, Maria Rogerson, Paul Scott, Pamela Shackelford, Julia Stephens, Barbara Stein, Richard Warren, Anne Winslow, Nancy Woodcock, George Zidlitz, Gladys Lewis, Eleanor Fields, Frank Colvin.

Red Clay Ramblers

Entertainment is coming to Kenan Auditorium in April. On Thursday, April 2, the UPB Concert Committee presents the Red Clay Ramblers with Joe Smothers and Jack Lawrence at 8 p.m. Special guest John Stanfield will also appear.

Tickets will go on sale March 20 in the Pub and other Wilmington locations. Tickets will cost $5.00, $4.00 for UNCW students with I.D. All seats are reserved.

ANSWERS, from p. 5.

SCAN	ECTAD	ELAR
EAVE	MAONI	FINE
PREVENTION	PAGE
SMITHS	REVERSED
DOAPS	SET
REHANDLE	OREGON
ERAS	ARGUS	ATE
CAR	PRIVATE	STE
ATT	LEVIT	SPEED
JOSEPH	COUNTY	END
ACE	ERSON
WHEE	340	DREATH
HINT	SANDHILL	MARIA
ALFA	ELAM	KING
MOON	SENSE	SAGS

NO NAME SALOON

4102 OLEANDER DR. 392.5920

UNCW NIGHT!

EVERY THURSDAY FREE WITH ID

MUSIC WED~SUN WITH

SADDLE TRAMP

A PRIVATE CLUB FOR MEMBERS AND GUESTS - NOT OPEN TO GENERAL PUBLIC ALL ABC PERMITS

Students attend NCSL Interim Council

Four UNCW students traveled to Catawba University in Salisbury, NC last weekend to attend an Interim Council of the North Carolina Student Legislature (NCSL).

Mark Bremer, chairman of the UNCW delegation of NCSL, Steve Schmidt, vice-chairman, Lynne Wells, chairman of the Research Coordinating Committee, and NCSL member Kimberly Mills were the representatives from the UNCW delegation.

The Legislature acts as a mock general assembly, writing debating, and passing bills from the student viewpoint. Accepted resolutions are sent to appropriate legislators in the state and federal government. Last weekend the Legislature discussed four resolutions and three emergency resolutions.

UNC-Charlotte submitted a resolution to increase per pupil expenditures in the North Carolina public schools. The resolution, which passed, supported increasing per student money to bring that figure up to the national average.

The Legislature also passed resolutions opposing deployment of the MX Missile and supporting changes in NC statutes to allow beer and wine sales on state campuses.

The only resolution to fail supported the adoption of selective county-option sales taxes with the eventual repeal of state property taxes.

Three emergency resolutions passed in the Legislature: one urging the North Carolina General Assembly to ratify the State Equal Employment Practices Act which would set up state enforcement mechanisms to handle unfair employment complaints; one supporting the Equal Rights Amendment; and one opposing the separation of funds for exceptional students and gifted-talented students into two different fund headings.

Resolutions supporting President Reagan's economic policy and a state health education program were put off until Session, which will be held in Raleigh from March 25-29.

LETTER, from p. 2.

Course at Ft. Benning, GA. During this time, I spent many nights without sleep in the most adverse of conditions. This was all done without patriotism in mind, but with the idea that what I was doing was securing Mr. Wells' and so many others' freedom.

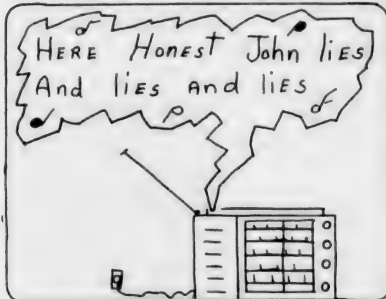

I realize I am not the only one that has done this. I have never seen combat and hope that, because of the job I am doing, no other American will have to.

What I have experienced in a training environment is a piece of cake compared to what some of the other Security Officers have experienced in Vietnam. I do not ask to be respected, because some people will never respect my dedication until it knocks on their front door. Yes, I am an Infantry Officer and will be one of the first to go during the next conflict. I only hope that while I am fighting for your freedom, you will respect me then and be proud that you are able to see the stars and stripes being raised and lowered. While watching, take notes rather than pictures in case you ever have to lower our national and state flags. In fact anyone with any sense of patriotism would lend a helping hand rather than sit back and watch and then complain later.

Sincerely,
Jason R. Tyson
2LT, Infantry

RADIO WAVES

MBA, from p. 10.

on-the-job experience and want to continue their education, Dean Kaylor said. The program is designed primarily for part-time students who have full-time jobs. Consequently, most of the classes will be offered at night.

Dean Kaylor also added that at least three additional faculty members will be hired. A previous attempts to begin planning an MBA program failed Dean Kaylor said. "The faculty members had the experience to teach on a graduate level, but they were spread too thin."

Dean Kaylor said he is confident in the approval of the presently proposed program. He also said the faculty is now larger and has more graduate level experience, and the number of undergraduate students is growing fast.

Atlantis accepting manuscripts

Atlantis, the UNCW literary magazine, is now accepting poetry, prose, (including essays) and artwork for the spring issue.

Submit manuscripts to the English department. Submit art to the Creative Arts department. Deadline is March 19.

GIVE A DAMN!

elect

BILL SAMSON

SGA VICE-PRESIDENT

FOR A STRONG BODY.

When you need big favors you ask good friends.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 20 Special Edition

March 18, 1981

Four Pages

Student body presidential candidate presents political platform

Charles Parsons

It is once again that time of year where the Students must choose the people that they feel will best serve their interests. I am therefore announcing my candidacy as Student Body President.

I am at the present the current Student Body Vice President, and those students which know me understand my stand for student's rights here at UNCW. When I came into office last year I promised to upgrade the Student Senate and I did. Last year I promised to make the SGA Vice President's job more active, and I have. I promised to work with various clubs and organizations to help them get back on their feet, and I did. There were many other promises that I made before I took office, and I did them also. I stand by my record for being active in the Student Government Association and for seeking student input in every way possible.

When our administration took office in the Spring of '80, we began our work immediately. Our administration has been more innovative to changes, more active, and 150% more involved in the problems and concerns that have arisen at UNCW.

I have lived on campus for the past three years and I have taken various stands on issues that affect us all. I have taken stands against mandatory meal plans at UNCW, I helped the UNCW SGA Football Team get back on its feet, I made sure that the SGA had a vital role in the summer orientation of new freshmen, I am at the present standing against major fee and tuition increases that will affect UNCW as well as the 16 other UNC schools, and we are still taking a stand of correcting our "parking problem" at UNCW.

I stand this year determined to follow through on many of the policies of this past year's administration, and a few practical innovations that we need to insure fiscal responsibility. I believe that this Student Body is tired of funding unnecessary clubs on this campus. I fully believe that we should place price ceilings on the amount of money that can be spent for the students of this campus, so that the SGA could not go into deficit spending. I also believe that student programs on this campus should be more in line with what the students as a whole want in the forms of concerts, parties, and etc... The SGA is authorized to spend around 100,000 dollars to support the various clubs and organizations that sponsor many of the events at UNCW. I feel that we should restructure our system, so that, all clubs and organizations are classified as Academic, Medias, and Recreational. These organizations would be grouped under their respective "Board" composed of members of these groups. These boards would have a larger hand in the overseeing of how the monies are spent on the individual clubs, and the SGA would make sure that the over-all disbursement of funds is checked.

I feel that by having served the SGA for three years and by serving on as many committees as possible in the last three years, that I am more than capable of serving the students of UNCW in a responsive manner. I feel that I have shown by my past performance that I have the leadership qualities that are necessary to perform the duties of Student Body President and to do the best that I can possibly do.

Those that know me know that I can do it and do it well. Thank you.
Charles B. Parsons

Write-in candidates present joint political statement

TO THE STUDENTS OF UNCW:

Many people have asked us, "Why are you two running as team?"

Well, actually, the answer is quite simple. We believe that the President and Vice President of Student Government must be able to work together effectively, to best serve the interests of all the students.

We have worked together in the senate for well over a year, and done so quite effectively. Our greatest accomplishment was the creation of the Student Government Constitution, a document far superior to any previous efforts, destined to be an integral part of Student Government for many years to come.

Other candidates speak of their experience. This is all well and good, but we would like to emphasize the quality of our experience. Doug Browne was Chief Justice of the Student Supreme Court in 1979-80. In this capacity, he rendered just decisions in student-related disputes, and formulated the "Court Rules of Procedure," which are still in effect today. This year he has been President of the Senior Class, fighting tremendous odds in the Senate for the interests of his constituents. He has worked for the SEAHAWK, is a member of the University Forensics Team, and has worked closely with President Sanders in an advisory capacity. He is probably the best qualified to assume the duties of SGA President.

Mike Stroud has been a member of the Senate for three years. Few would disagree with the fact that he knows more about parliamentary procedure than anyone else on this campus. His knowledge of the constitution and his ability to establish communication are important qualifications for his candidacy as Vice President. He is a dean's list student, and has served the interests of the students of this University extremely well.

Mike Stroud

We, Doug Browne and Mike Stroud, are waging a write-in campaign because we honestly feel conscience-bound to provide a definite choice in this election. We have been urged by many members of the Senate and the Administration to take this course of action. Our goals are increased representation in the Senate from people of all backgrounds, better and more effective programming on our campus, and increased emphasis of our student newspaper, to provide a more effective means to See CANDIDATES, p. 4.

Doug Browne

LETTERS

Unsure where points directed

To The Editor:

Mr. Tyson has offered the populace of UNC-W a unique perspective of Army Basic Training and Officers Candidate School. As a result I am sure he has done a lot in encouraging new recruits. However, I am not sure where his point, or points, are directed. Equating patriotism and active duty service is a severe assumption considering the present hardships encountered nationwide in securing adequate employment. Another assumption seemingly seeks to justify the respect that in an earlier paragraph he claimed not to expect. The following is a portion of Mr. Tyson's letter to the editor:

"Yes I am an Infantry Officer and will be one of the first to go during the next conflict. I only hope that while I am fighting for your freedom, you will respect me then...."

Such statements nullify his earlier hope that because of the job he is doing, future Americans will not have to see combat. Frankly, I am suspicious of anyone putting the word conflict in a 'future tense' as Mr. Tyson has seen fit to do. Enough. Now, what is my point? Grammar school days are certainly marked by memories for all of us. One of my memories finds a bent over old man with a shiny bald head who could lower and fold the American flag that overlooked the school lawn without one tiny bit of material touching anything but the soft flesh of his hands. I do not know whether he served in the army or not.

Audrey Hamilton
Student

WLOZ benefits more than clique

To The Editor:

And I quote, "It was decided that closing it down was in the best interests of 4,700 students on this campus. If the radio station is only benefitting the clique that works inside the station, then Student Government has the total right to close it down."

When I worked in a little shop in Canterbury Shopping Center, we tuned into the "Z". I didn't know any of the "clique" at the time, nor did my employers or co-workers. It was pleasant, tasteful, rock-n-roll, with a little jazz mixed in and no cutesy zit commercials, or jingles about jock itch.

When I lived on Fifth Street, before I got involved with the station, I fiddled with my radio quite a bit to get that 10 watt station tuned in right. I was devoting 10-12 hours a week to my four hour jazz show-learning a lot and loving it-when the station was cut off the air. I dropped 2 courses so I could run that show. Oh, I know that most of the students at UNC-W would rather listen to whatever the current fad happens to be, but, after all, you can catch top forty on three high power stereo stations, and all the new wave or punk you want for better than 80% of WLOZ's broadcasting hours.

So who did we cater to? What about us "Non-Traditional" students. Twenty-five and older. Well, I barely make it in that group, I guess, but "Non-Traditional" students make up 20% of the enrollment on campus. Hard to believe, isn't it.

Clique? Tell me, Jesse Sanders, did you ever try to join the staff? You must not have.

And in reference to the "drug problem" at WLOZ, I read that first article a number of times, and could never come up with a larger "number of persons involved" than 2. Count'em. One, Two. And there's a possible error on #2, unless you're speaking of what was in the car with the young lady-who conveniently isn't around to testify.

But even the "six individuals" who "were involved in the incident" would not be enough cause to punish those who are innocent, and the other radio stations around the state whose staffs were supplemented by WLOZ-trained personnel, not to mention the local shops and restaurants, and individuals, students and non-students who did tune in.

Ellen Honeycutt
"The Jazz Express"

Support for Parsons and Schmidt

To The Editor:

I would like to take this time to let the students of UNCW know that I am extending my FULL support to the two most deserving men running for the offices of SGA President and Vice President. Charles Parsons and Steve Schmidt have displayed tremendous qualities of leadership and responsibility for the students.

I have served as Senate Secretary for the past year, and have worked side-by-side with these two. I know beyond-a-shadow-of-a-doubt that Charles and Steve are the best for the jobs.

Charles Parsons has proven his abilities as Student Body Vice President to the Administration and to the Students of UNCW. He has fulfilled his promises this past year and has been more active in the affairs of students on this campus than any other Vice President before him.

Charles has also introduced formal rules in the Student Senate as VP. He has spent more time in the Student Government Office, making decisions in the absence of the President and aiding clubs and organizations, than any other person besides Steve Schmidt.

Steve Schmidt has proven his enthusiasm and hard-working ability this past year as Sophomore Class President and as the chairman of several committees. Steve has introduced a great deal of the legislation that has been passed in the Student Senate.

He and Charles have been instrumental in the growth and integrity of Student Government. They are concerned for the needs of the students and the University as a whole.

I enthusiastically urge you to vote for Charles Parsons-SGA President and Steve Schmidt-SGA Vice President. The decision is yours...make it count!

Sincerely,
S. Lynne Wells
Senate Secretary

Concerned student expresses support

To The Editor:

I am a second term senator and a CONCERNED student.

I wish to express my full support for Charles Parsons for President and Steve Schmidt for Vice President. These two candidates have the support of many senators who look forward to an HONEST and conscientious administration in favor of the students.

Student and Senator
Nancy L. Kelker

Student desires honest administration

To The Editor:

Charles Parsons and Steve Schmidt are running for President, respectively. These are two of the most concerned and active members of the Student Government. Charles Parsons is currently VP of the Senate and Steve Schmidt is currently Sophomore Class President. These are two of our most hard-working and honest men.

They have worked hard to represent the Students of this University to the Administration and the 16 other UNC schools. Please vote Charles Parsons-President and Steve Schmidt-Vice President.
Representative-at-Large
Dale Fish

Editor's note: Due to the unauthorized tampering of the last issue of the SEAHAWK, this special edition is being run in order to reprint several political articles. Also the SEAHAWK is not responsible for any errors in the last issue.

PEANUTS®

Ballot box locations

The SGA would like to announce that there will be ballot boxes established at the following places and times for the spring elections.

One box will be set up in the cafeteria on both March 18 and 19 from 10:30 - 4:30 each day. A voting booth will also be set up in the library from 9:30 - 4:30 on both March 18 and 19, also, a third box will be set up in the new classroom building in between classes from 9:20 - 3:35. Note: Booths will be open for only 15 minutes at a time.

For the first time ever, the SGA will also run a night-time voting booth. The booth will be in the library from 6-9 p.m. on the nights of March 17 and 18.

The SGA encourages all UNCW students to vote and support the SGA.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy St. Louis, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Circulation Manager:

Typesetter: Cheryl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Vice-presidential hopeful expresses political objectives

Each year, students gather around the ballot boxes and elect a representative to the Student Government who they feel will best support the student's interest. Well, that time has approached once again and I, Steve Schmidt, have taken upon myself to run for the office of Student Body Vice-President.

I believe I can and will fulfill all the duties of Student Body Vice-President to the best of my ability. I feel I am extremely qualified for the office since my experience is broad. For two years, I have served as a member of the Student Government Association.

As a Freshman, I was involved in such extracurricular activities as Freshman Class Vice-President, Chairman of WLOZ Investigative Committee, a disc jockey at WLOZ, Sports Editor at WLOZ, Media and Publications Board member, and played an active role in the intramural program. As a sophomore, I am Sophomore Class President, Chairman of Fund-Raising Committee, Chairman of Football Investigative Committee, member of Hearings Committee, Student Affairs Committee, Salary Investigative Committee, Football Club, North Carolina Student Legislature, and a participant in intramural activities. These activities have consumed a lot of my time, but I felt honored to devote every second nd to these organizations in the sense of representing the student's interests.

Steve Schmidt

If elected Student Government Vice-President, I will promise to fulfill the duties which the Office of Student Body Vice-President entails. According to the Student Government Constitution, the Vice-President's duties include: presiding over the Senate, appointing members of all Senate committees, appointing a Secretary(ies) for the Senate, assuming the duties of the President of the Student Government in the absence of the President and appointing a Parliamentarian, etc. These jobs will take a lot of time but I am more than willing to undertake these responsibilities.

As Vice President of the Student Government, I will work to achieve a better Student Government. For this to be possible, good communication is a necessity. I will work on the communication problem between the Student Government and the students, between the Student Government and the Administration, and between the Student Government and the clubs and organizations on campus. In order to hear the students' gripes and concerns, I plan to conduct hall meetings with each dorm once a month. I realize I may not reach the whole student body, but I will be reaching a majority of the students.

As for the communication link between the Student Government Association and the administration, I would like to hold a conference once a week or once a month with all the Vice Chancellors and Deans. If this is an impossibility then I shall be more than willing to work hand in hand with Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs William Malloy and Dean of Students Gary Juhan. I feel this will make it a lot easier for the Student Government to take action towards problems that arise. It will also assist the Student Government in weighing the problems that arise. It will also assist the Student Government in weighing the problems by getting both sides of each issue. I also feel that the Student Government Association needs to work closely with the clubs and organizations. Clubs and organizations can't be expected to survive on their own, they need help from their parent organization, the Student Government Association.

In order to assist these clubs, I would like to work together with the President of each club and organization. As I mentioned earlier, communication is a necessity, especially since the Student Government Association acts upon the voice of the STUDENTS.

My second objective as Vice President concerns the issue of Senate meetings. Many Senators have been absent from Senate meetings for, in my opinion, uncalled reasons.

The Senate meets once a week, every Thursday at 7 p.m. One night a week is not too much to ask for anyone, so why can't a Senator represent the Students on that particular night. To alleviate this problem, I intend to set up a policy of senate attendance dealing with absences, tardiness, and people leaving the meetings early.

An important issue I have on my platform deals with Senate Apathy. This year as Sophomore Class President I couldn't express enough the physical responsibilities a Senate member has. I feel it is not just Thursday nights a Senator should act as a Senator, it should also be every day. I would like to see, as Vice President, every Senator being a member of one or two committees. I would also like to see the Student Government have fund-raising projects to aid student organizations.

With the ever increasing size and numbers of clubs and organizations, the Student Government needs more money. The only problem is that the SGA isn't receiving any more money and therefore we need to raise the money ourselves so that we can allocate more money among the clubs and organizations fairly.

The Student Government is the government of the students and for the students. Some students don't know who their representatives are. It is my intention to make the Student

See SCHMIDT, p. 4.

Vice-presidential candidate's goals

As the SGA elections draw near, candidates are evaluated and issues are addressed. The incoming administration will have the privilege of following through with many successful programs as well as the responsibility of answering the sound demands of the student body. It is with these objectives in mind that I, Bill Samson, seek the office of your SGA Vice-President.

Some inequities exist on campus. The Program Board is split between the demands of students for more concerts and beer-socials, while maintaining a diversified programming schedule. With the funds now allocated to the Program Board it would be impossible to do both. As I see it, the answer is to give the Program Board the money necessary to provide the services that the students have petitioned for. I believe this can be done without harming other SGA funded clubs and organizations. The SGA should also encourage growth in academic and recreational clubs. There is also a neglected need for new equipment in some vital student services, such as the Seahawk.

Having served in the Senate and the SGA Finance Committee, I feel I have a grasp on the proper direction for the SGA. If we want to make improvements and expand services, we must be more successful in our attempts to raise money. The Football club, Forensics, BSU, The Seahawk, The Program Board, and many other campus organizations all show a need for more money. To meet these needs, the SGA must hold more fund raisers.

I do not look upon this position as a stepping-stone toward any other office. The Vice-President plays a critical role in the day-to-day operation of the SGA. I differ from my opponent, in that I do not feel the problems that plague the Senate can be remedied by enlarging the already counterproductive bureaucracy. Forming more SGA Administrative committees will only serve to slow the wheels of student government. The answer to these problems is not a bigger SGA, but, a stronger SGA.

Those who know and support me, know I am sincere and dedicated. My ambition is to serve you. I know the SGA can work for you. If you take only one minute and vote for me, I pledge to work all year for you. Thank you
Bill Samson

Bill Samson

"I think Steve is a fine person and a credit to our school and to Student Gov't."

- Charles B. Parsons
SGA Vice-Pres.

STEVE SCHMIDT
FOR STUDENT BODY
VICE - PRESIDENT

"I wish to say that Sophomore Class President Steve Schmidt is one of the most outstanding students on this campus. UNCW is extremely lucky to share his dedication to the students and this university."

Lynne Wells
Senate Secretary

"Action,
Aggression,
Ambition."

"Mr. Schmidt has gone on to become the president of his class, chairman of important committees, and a respected senator, student, and person. This is no easy task."

Nancy Kelker

"Steve is a young man of culture and education, high ideals, and sound integrity who devotes much of his time to his job representing the students and representing us honestly."

Jamie Lee
Tammy Shields
Sophomores

ELECT

BILL
SAMSON

SGA VICE-PRESIDENT

- Experience -

Leadership with direction

Leo Kottke will be appearing Wednesday March 25 in Kewan Auditorium for one show beginning at 8 p.m. student tickets are $5.50 and are on sale at the Bookstore. All seats are reserved.

Workshop for test preparation

A workshop, "How To Get Ready For Standardized Tests," will be offered Tuesday, March 24 from 3:00 to 4:00 p.m. in the Counseling and Testing Center to help students get organized to take exams such as the LSAT, GRE, and NTE. Topics will include:

- How to be "test wise";
- How to sharpen rusty skills.

- How to plan and stick to a review routine.
- What resources are available.
- What to do about test anxiety.

The Counseling and Testing Center is located in Room 106 of the James Student Services Building (Pub).

ELECT

Kimberly Mills
for Junior Class
Vice-President

"For A Progressive Government"

THE JESSIE REHDER SHORT STORY CONTEST FOR UNC-W STUDENTS

Sponsored by The Department of English
University of North Carolina at Wilmington
First Prize $50
Second Prize $30
Third Prize $20

DEADLINE MARCH 19
SUBMIT MANUSCRIPTS

To: Dept. of English
(Limit 2 per student)

PUB HOURS

Sunday 4 p.m.-10 p.m.

Monday- Friday
8 a.m.-10 p.m.

Saturday Closed

SCHMIDT, from p. 3.
Government a more effective organization so it can properly serve the students in the capacity it is capable of. Every organization has its leaders and I, Steve Schmidt, would feel honored to help lead the Student Government for you the students of UNC-Wilmington. So, if you agree with my platform, I would appreciate your support in my bid for Vice-President in the upcoming election.

CANDIDATES, from p. 1.
communication. Our Administration will be dedicated to thoughtful, responsive, mature leadership. Please write-in: Doug Browne, President; Mike Stroud, Vice President.

Thank you
Doug Browne
Micheal Stroud

GIVE A DAMN!

elect

BILL SAMSON

SGA VICE-PRESIDENT

FOR A STRONG
STUDENT BODY.

Friends wish you luck
on a big exam. Good friends stick around to see how you did.

"They say they were just hanging around killing time, and by the way, 'How did you do?' You tell them a celebration is in order, and that you're having the best. 'Looks like one of the m's says, 'If you did that well, maybe something special' tonight, let's be the Löwenbräu."

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

THE SEACROCK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 21

April Fool's, 1981

Eight Pages

Ex-biker trades leathers for presidency

Now that he has made it into office, new Student Body President Charles Parsons, whose campaign motto was, "It just doesn't matter," has decided that it really does.

"I'm cleaning up my act," said the ex-Hell's Angel in his inauguration speech before an astonished but approving student government at a special dinner meeting last Tuesday night.

Donning a new clean-cut look with a close-cropped, freshly styled beard and meticulous braid, Parsons was hardly recognizable to fellow politicians. "He almost looks conservative," said Senator Aaron Oliver. "Some of us had our doubts about the outcome of the election, but now we're very pleased," he said.

Yanking at his necktie while gasping for air several different times throughout the evening, Parsons admitted it was the first time he'd worn a suit since he appeared before his parole board seven years ago.

"I've dropped my leathers at the dry cleaners in a deliberate and symbolic move," said Parsons. "I want everyone to know that I am ready to make sacrifices. No longer will the administration be able to impose its tyrannical reign over the student body. This year we get whatever we demand," he said, pounding his fist emphatically into Vice-President Steve Schmidt's stuffed potato. "There will be no more kissing a--!" he concluded in a fiery and enthusiastically received climax.

In regular business the Senate passed two bills proposed by Parsons: one to begin construction of an 1100-foot hill climb on Brooks Field, and the other to establish a topless dancing lounge on the first floor of the men's dorm.

"But I really don't think that the women on this campus..." protested Senator Nancy Keller, who was immediately told to shut up by the new president. The lounge bill was amended to give qualified female students an opportunity to earn tuition scholarships.

After business, the festive celebration continued smoothly and uninterrupted except for a momentary distraction when the restaurant manager doubted the validity of Parsons's identification and refused to serve him beer. The trouble was quickly assuaged, however, when Parsons, with the swift and forceful action so admired in competent leadership, immediately cracked a breadboard against the manager's skull and made his own way to the keg, chanting "Ooge Chocka, ooga chocka," and knocking out ceiling lights with a tire iron.

"It just doesn't matter!"

Psychology Department adds sex lab to sexuality class

UNCW is making several changes next semester including 8:00 classes, one week for fall break as well as an earlier start in August. The greatest change of all will be the addition of a sex lab to the Human Sexuality class offered by the Psychology Department.

"We feel that this new sex lab will increase interest in the sexuality class," said Department Chairman John Williams. The lab, which will be required with the sexuality class, will consist of three hours weekly and will enter into such topics as arousal techniques, a variety of intercourse positions, testing of birth control methods, abnormalities of human sexuality, and any other interests students may have. "We are hoping to get students really excited about this course so we are leaving the curriculum up to the students," said Williams.

Larry Gerstenhaber, Psychology professor, will head up the new lab. "I hope this class will raise interest as well as attendance and that the students will come each week," said Gerstenhaber. The lab will begin with "art films" and will progress through the semester to include testing extensive research done by Masters and Johnson.

According to Gerstenhaber UNCW has needed a sex lab for many years. "Recent surveys show that 69% of UNCW students are sexually active and a great percentage of these are ignorant about what they are doing. Hopefully the new sex lab will inform these people along with teaching them and others on campus about fantastic world of sex," stated Gerstenhaber.

Subjects will be needed for testing during the lab. Not only will the volunteers get great enjoyment from the lab they will also be paid $4.50 an hour. "I am sure any volunteers will be greatly rewarded for their part in the advancement of science," said Gerstenhaber.

The lab will be offered on Thursday nights from 7-10 p.m. The reason for the night lab according to Gerstenhaber is that students seem more interested in sex at night and also so it will be easier for the shy students in the class to find a dark place to run their experiments. Interested students are encouraged to sign up early since this lab should be in great demand and there is limited bed and floor space.

Garden Club bribes Chancellor

It appears that Chancellor Wagoner may be involved in one of the biggest bribe scandals ever to evolve at UNCW.

After being clued in on covert administrative dealings just moments before they were about to take place, Seahawk investigative reporters were able to snap a photograph of Chancellor Wagoner allegedly accepting a substantial amount of bribe money from two Wilmington Garden Club officials.

Apparently, the bribe came after Wagoner refused to let the Garden Club plant petunias on the UNCW campus as part of its beautification efforts.

"Wagoner has always hated petunias," said an unidentified administrative source. The subject has been taboo around here ever since he came into office. Now he's letting them plant the things right on campus. Something's up, and whatever it is, it's big."

By means of a tiny microphone planted on the lapel of one of the women, reporters were able to overhear parts of the conversation between Wagoner and the women.

Mrs. "X": OK, Billy, - you asked for it; you got it.

Wagoner: Uh huh.

Mrs. "X": I hope it's enough, but just give us a buzz if you need some more. You know our number.

See p. 5.

Wagoner allegedly accepting bribe from Garden Club.

EDITORIAL

Spring fever outbreak

Spring fever has hit UNCW hard. Class attendance is a joke - so are the thinking abilities of most of the faculty. And spring fever has its own special meaning for college students on campus.

The dreamy sweet smell of honeysuckle is entwined with the dream-inducing smoke of cannabis. The energetic creaking of the spring crickets intermingles nicely with the aggressive popping of Budweiser tops. The hoarse croaking of romantically inclined bullfrogs serves as a background for the coarse breathing of the romantically entwined couples experiencing the great outdoors.

While most wildlife, at this time of the year, shows tremendous activity due to the adrenalin headrush associated with the mating season, most students exhibit immobility due to the extreme headrushes accompanying most of the intoxicating beverages and what-not indulged in during spells of spring fever. Signs of spring fever in those students still in class are very apparent. As quadratic functions and antiderivatives are being rattled off automatically by numb instructors, feverish students will fidget uncomfortably in their seats and gaze glassy-eyed with longing out any open windows.

Unfortunately there is no cure for spring fever. However, there are some measures you can take to alleviate or lessen your symptoms. These include skipping class, howling at the moon, streaking, running around at the beach half naked, staying incurably inebriated, or staying with your lover till the call of nature ceases to beckon. Spring fever might be a blessing or a curse - but, with help, you can survive it.

Al Edmondson

WAIT, DON'T TELL ME... THE HOUSE JUST VOTED DOWN A CONGRESSIONAL PAY RAISE...

This edition of the SEA-Crock is a special April Fool's edition put out annually by the SEAHAWK staff at UNCW.

All articles and events in this publication are entirely fictitious and any articles or events related to real articles or events is completely coincidental.

This year's edition is dedicated to Janet L. Hundley. We miss you!

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Productions: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy St. Louis, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

*The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

LETTERS

Paying parking tickets is always a pleasure

To the Editor:

Getting a parking ticket on campus would be a nightmarish experience if it wasn't for the great amount of understanding and compassion that Mrs. Cornelia Royal, the secretary of security, listens to students excuses about why they had to park in one of the many extra faculty parking spaces on a rainy day or how their car was broken and they had to drive dad's car.

Mrs. Royal, affectionately known as "Corney" by all who love her, said "I really understand students' problems and I want to help them anyway I can, sometimes I ever pay the tickets myself. I have probably spent $1,000 of my own money helping students get out of parking tickets."

Her great love for UNCW is what keeps Mrs. Royal here.

She has been offered positions at other schools including Yale, Harvard, and UCLA, with a great increase in pay. Royal is in such great demand because of her ability to communicate with students. Mrs. Royal is a great asset to UNCW and everyone should be grateful. So the next time you have to pay $5 for parking in the 15 minute area in front of the dorms for 20 minutes remember your friend "Corney" and pay with a smile.

Concerned Student

UNCW's University Union is near completion.

'Apocalypse Now' at Galloway dorm

In a Friday night massacre the third floor of Galloway took over the entire building, eliminating all frat brats and preps. Chief Normal and his police force quickly shut off Galloway Hall from the rest of the campus. Fear grew in other dorms as they began to wonder if they were next.

Screams were heard throughout the night as the Third Floor War Corp continued their violent acts of terror. Police and SWAT teams were unable to penetrate the building so the National Guard was called onto the scene. But not even the National Guard was able to break into the building.

Finally, it seemed as if a solution might be reached when an unidentified number of the third floor agreed to speak with reporters. When reporters reached the first floor lobby they were met by a man dressed in black, wearing a black hood with an occult sign carrying a M-16 automatic rifle. The third floor informant demanded mass quantities of marijuana and liquor. When asked about the reason for the sudden take over of Galloway Hall the informant replied violently saying, "We are sick of having to live with those frat brats and preps! We will wipe out the world of those brats!" The informant went on to say that their motto is rape, pillage, plunder!

Wilmington remains in shock over the Galloway Hall massacre. Students live in constant fear for their lives. Chief Normal remains in shock just saying to himself over and over again, "The horror, the horror!"

Cats cannot taste sweetness.

*The Seahawk staff
presents*

The Secretary of the Century Award to

Susan Goodrum

[No Kidding!]

[She works for the SGA, but we love her any way!]

Third Floor War Corps hold out for demands

David Newman

Stacy Robbins
Hendy

Seahawk

at the

from us

Scott Sibley

Day

Seon
Kane

April Fool's

Happy

Tony Britt

Wally Bengsten

UNCW / SNORTS

Basketball coaches shuffled

Mel Gibson resigns to take Georgia Tech Job; Lady 'Hawks' Christoph new men's coach

UNCW men's basketball coach Mel Gibson has resigned to cause a major coaching shuffle in the Seahawks' basketball program, and will take over as the new head coach at Georgia Tech.

UNCW women's coach Marilyn Christoph will succeed Gibson and the Lady Seahawks' team manager, Joan Thompson, will move up into the women's head coaching position.

"It all comes as a complete surprise to me," said UNCW athletic director Bill Brooks. "(Sports Information Director) John Justus usually handles this sort of thing, so you better talk to him."

"Dave Hanners will stay on as Christoph's assistant," said Justus. "Gibson's departure shouldn't cause too much problem, except in winning ball games consistently. Christoph's been seeking this sort of power, and Miss Thompson seems to already have the women players under control."

Gibson replaces Dewayne Morrison as head coach at Georgia Tech of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Morrison was forced to resign after his team compiled a 4-22 overall record and a winless slate in the ACC.

Gibson says he's anxious to start working in the Yellow Jacket's office.

"I hate to leave UNCW, but Georgia Tech offered me a helluva lot more money and I'll get to coach in the ACC and live in Atlanta. About the team, I know if sucks, but we'll try to turn it around. I'm already recruiting a couple of 7'8" guards."

Gibson leaves after nine years at UNCW. He compiled a 121-104 record with only two losing seasons.

Last season was Christoph's first at UNCW. Her team won a school record 18 games and earned its first state tournament berth.

Thompson, a sophomore, has no previous coaching experience.

Gibson out

Christoph in

Mackovic rejects UNCW; accepts Dallas job

Hopes of former Wake Forest head football coach John Mackovic coming to UNCW died last week as the Deacon mentor elected to go to the NFL's Dallas Cowboys over the Seahawks' club football organization.

"Wilmington has a lot to offer - the beach and 69% of the students engaging in sex-but Dallas will keep me up to my ass in money which UNCW could not," said Mackovic.

The UNCW staff reportedly offered Mackovic mega-cases of beer in addition to a humble salary. UNCW club football players say they'll keep their invitation into NCAA Division I competition despite the disappointment of Mackovic's decision.

Football gets NCAA Division invitation

UNCW's club football team has received an open invitation to join the NCAA Division I level of competition and will reportedly accept the invitation officially sometime this week.

In a statement before some 1,000 writers and photographers NCAA chairman Wayne Duke said, "It gives me great pleasure to extend this invitation to the little-regarded football club at UNC-Wilmington. Although small in numbers and size and not supported by the school administration, the UNCW football club has shown great endurance for the NCAA's most desired endeavor-beer-drinking." Although this year's squad has supposedly been "going straight," it feels the club can get back into beer-drinking shape and uphold the school's tradition.

"We're gonna try to outdrink everybody," said running back I. M. Slough, "even those blue-bellies in Chapel Hill that beat us last week. We're going to bring heavy-duty drinking back where it belongs-to the UNCW football club!"

UNCW Baseball Team begins Asian road trip

UNCW's baseball team begins a three-month long road trip to Asia this week. The Seahawks will play 100 games opening with the defending national champions of Japan to balance the schedule with their home games. Coach Bill Brooks, still sick in bed at home and expected to die soon, is the only team member that won't make the trip.

The Seahawks will leave in the team bus late Saturday night after the bars close. The road trip will take them to Japan, Cambodia, China, Siberia, Pakistan, North and South Vietnam and Thailand, so we aren't sure if the squad will return. If the school hasn't received voice communications in two weeks all intramural softball games scheduled for field #4 will be moved to the baseball field.

Any student wishing to complete the Seahawks' remaining home games as a team should sign up at the PUB.

Coach Brooks, or his ghost, will coach the team.

Seahawks sign first recruit

UNCW's first announced basketball recruit for the 1981-82 season is Jon L. Seagull, an 4'11", 315 pound bird from #3 sandbar, Wrightsville Beach inlet.

Seagull, whose wingspan is as awesome as that of UNC-Chapel Hill's Sam Perkins, is one of those players who spends more time above the basket than on the floor. He recently signed an international waterways letter-of-intent to attend UNCW.

"We're real happy to get Jon," says UNCW coach Marilyn Christoph. "He's great at deflecting shots and long-court passes, and should add a new dimension to our game - the alley-oop lob pass. He's so quick he literally flies up and down the court. When he fouls on defense he usually draws blood, so he should be good for four-or-five opponents a game."

"His only problem is ball handling and he's injury-prone, but we'll work with him on that."

Pine Cones kept UNCW feet happy

With arrival of spring another sport is lost to us for a semester. Not basketball or anything like that, but pine-cone kicking.

Several tractors covered the campus this week collecting nearly all of those useless critters. No longer can we kick them about between buildings on the way to class.

It's a campus-wide pastime from early-October to now. You can kick a whole bunch, or stick with one all the way to class. Sometimes you'll be kicking just one and you'll accidentally kick it too far off your path to class. Oh well, there's another one to kick. What's really fun is kicking two at a time, or getting one to land straight-up, like a little Christmas tree. Then you can really put your toe into it for height and distance. Once and a while you can catch one just right and it'll sail over a bicycle rack. "Damn!" you think. "That must be a world's record."

It's an official intramural activity at colleges like Washington State and Boise State where pine trees reach the sky. You can occasionally see one-on-one going on here. They usually only last a short time because arguments arise on which pine cone is being used.

Student Government Association abolishes itself after drug bust

UNCW's Student Government Association was abolished because of an incident involving the sale of drugs that occurred Friday, February 31. According to Chief Winston "Starsky" Norman, a special campus police S.W.A.T. team raided an SGA meeting at approximately 9:30 p.m.

Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs William Malloy said that "it was alleged that Vice-President Charles Parsons was auctioning off quantities of marijuana, heroin, cocaine and LSD to senate members during the meeting. This explains why the senate has behaved in the manner it has this year."

"It wasn't such a big deal," snorted SGA President Jessie Sanders. "It was just a nickel and dime affair."

According to Sanders, all of the SGA's paraphernalia will be kept and maintained by WLOZ's staff members.

There is a possibility that UNCW may not get another Senate. SGA Vice-President Charles Parsons feels confident that the senate would get reinstated.

"Chances are we'll be able to bribe Chancellor Wagoner," he explained.

The SGA, according to Parsons, has put between $50,000 to $60,000 a day into its habit. He said that the high cost of drugs and the extraordinary needs of some Senate members contributed to the demise of the SGA.

"There have been incidents within the SGA involving all sorts of drugs and drug deals. Most students we have talked to have said that we have already spent too much money on ourselves, and not enough on such fine organizations as The Seahawk. It was decided that abolishing the SGA was in the best interests of the 4,700 innocent students on this campus. If the SGA is only benefitting the concealed fools that work within it, then we have to close ourselves down," Parsons maintained. Dirty hypodermic needles and inflated egos are the main reasons why the SGA is in bad shape, Sanders reported.

"We're going to make sure the next SGA doesn't get started off on the same vein as this one. The senate signed its own death warrant. It was helped along by marijuana and LSD, but it was signed specifically by the senators," he stated.

Miss UNCW Essie May Woodstick

Woodstick wins pageant

Not by Dianne Russell

Essie May Woodstick, a senior janitorial major, won the hallowed title of Miss UNCW in a touching coronation pageant held on campus last night. Ms. Woodstick has appeared in several Broadway musicals and played the esteemed part of "Miss Twigg" in the enormously successful show, "The Moppit Movie."

Ms. Woodstick said she entered the pageant mainly to "Clean up the image of UNCW women."

When asked how she keeps so trim, Ms. Woodstick replied, "I die two or three times a week. Besides, stick-thin is in."

Ms. Woodstick unveiled some of her heavy secrets. "I'm on a special diet," she explained. "It's guaranteed to make you lose weight—it's called 'The Cambodian Diet.'"

The new Miss UNCW isn't worried that her stringent diet will make her waste away. "I can handle it," she declared.

To keep her beautiful complexion, Ms. Woodstick says she soaks in ammonia.

"It gives your skin a nice, tingling feeling," she said. "You can feel it at work. I also bleach my hair with clorox. It eats dandruff right up. And I never have to worry about bad breath because I gargle with lysol. It also helps keep mono away."

Ms. Woodstick said that the main goal she has in her life is to be a housecleaner. She is also anti-ERA.

"I don't understand why women aren't satisfied with just being housecleaners. I don't mind scrubbing floors. The dirty jobs are the most challenging," she stated.

Ms. Woodstick is also due to get married soon. The lucky groom is O'Cedar Angler, a local chimney sweep.

Senate called before Seahawk committee

At last week's Seahawk staff meeting members of the staff voted unanimously to bring the UNCW Student Government Association before them at their next meeting. The reasons for this, said Business Manager Cindy Harris, is to audit their accounts for the past semester and examine the worth of their salaried personnel. Added Seahawk Editor

Tricia Wallace, "We want to know exactly what they're doing with all that money up there before we decide to accept any more funds from them for next semester."

Memorandums will be sent to SGA President Charles Parsons, Vice-President Steve Schmidt and Office Manager Susan Goodrum as to the exact time and date of the meeting.

Moore decides to stay on at UNCW

Director of Student Activities Linda Moore, who had turned in her resignation two months ago to pursue a career as a nun in a South American convent, reversed her decision this week, deciding to stay on at UNCW.

Moore, who will be giving birth in a few months, said there is no particular reason for her change in plans.

"Well, I really like my job here," said Moore. "The kids are a lot of fun, and I have weekends off."

Administrative officials said they were relieved by Moore's decision to stay on.

"Linda Moore has always done an exemplary job as far as activities go," said the head of the committee to hire her replacement. "Yes indeed, we all agree that nobody can do it like Linda can," he said.

Anyone interested in applying for a summer position in El Salvador should stop by the Student Activities office in the Pub.

Azalea Queen

Rita Jenrette, wife of the convicted South Carolina Senator and Playboy's February centerfold, will reign over this year's NC Azalea Festival, it was announced at a press conference Friday.

While admitting that Jenrette is not exactly a star, Festival President Donald E. Britt described her as "a real household name—someone the people here can really identify with."

"We are honored to have Rita represent the community as Queen Azalea XXXIV—even though we all know she's really a thirty-six," he said. "This was the least we could do for the many people who won't get to see Bob Hope."

Jenrette will follow a busy schedule of appearances around Wilmington during the festival, April 9-12, including a stop at UNCW where she will open the Azalea Garden Tour. She is also scheduled to appear at several Front Street bars and adult book stores where she will be available to sign autographs.

Landfill at UNCW

In a unanimous and jubilant decision, county commissioners agreed Monday to end New Hanover County's refuse crisis by putting a landfill on the UNCW campus.

"We've been knockin' on our neighbors' doors for so long, we all feel like a bunch of real dumb bunnies for not seeing the solution sooner," said one of the commissioners after the meeting. "Chancellor Wagoner has reminded us over and over again to keep the University in mind, and this time we almost let him down."

Chancellor Wagoner of UNCW said he is "Thrilled" about the Board's decision.

"It has always been our goal to cooperate with the community in any way we can," he said. "Heck, we've got plenty of room here. We're always glad to help out."

The Chancellor did not say how much compensation the University will receive from the county.

County workers have already begun clearing land on the east end of the campus to make room for the landfill. Dumping is expected to begin some time next week.

Devo draftee?

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager for the Seahawk, has announced that she will not return to her position next semester.

It has been rumored that Lewis has been asked to join the new-wave, punk-rock band "Devo." Ms. Lewis has been spotted on campus on several occasions wearing cat-eye 3D sunglasses with Kermit the Frog trailing after.

When asked to confirm this rumor, the only comment Ms. Lewis would make was, "Whip it, whip it good."

Ira Chimp, Cafeteria Manager

New Cafeteria manager

Dull, mundane, sometimes dangerous meals will soon become an endangered species at UNCW's cafeteria. So says Ira Chimp, newly hired manager for the campus cafeteria.

Chimp, a 1978 graduate of Hancover High School was given the title of cafeteria manager last week filling a position vacant for over a month. The previous manager was declared "missing in action" after not returning from the cafeteria storerooms after inspecting some newly arrived produce.

Chimp says that she will begin changing cafeteria fare almost immediately. "Dog meat and soybeans don't make it in my kitchen," chirped Chimp. Combining knowledge, determination, with an almost "animal like" nose for detail it appears that the students are in for some good eating.

Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs William M. Malloy had a face lift over spring break. Here he is showing off his new looks.

Last year there was a sex survey at UNCW revealing that 69% of the students engaged in sexual intercourse or other sexual activity. This rare photograph shows "the other 31%" at their annual beach-day. Note the use of pills for relaxation. More importantly, note why they are "the other 31%."

the queer hunter

They're tough! They hate fags! They love blood!

"Inspiring!" - Jerry Falwell

An Anita Bryant Production*

From p. 1.

Wagoner: Uh huh.
When reporters presented Wagoner with the photograph, his secretary spoke up immediately, saying he was out of town during the month of February. Wagoner refused to comment on the incident, after which he yanked an entire handful of hair from his scalp, stomped into his office, and attempted to shut his head inside his desk drawer.

UNCW Campus Police are currently investigating the bribery accusations.

Get a
"Meet Bob Haywood"
T-Shirt
Yours FREE!

($4.99 for postage and handling)

[For special rush orders be sure to include the words "Tell me what your deepest thoughts are."]

Mail checks, money orders to Beach club,
Great Harbour Cay, Bahamas

Just one of many of the fine specimens available at the UNCW Biology Club plant sale.

Plant Sale

Sponsored by

The Biology Club

At the

UNCW Greenhouse

Many varieties, all at reasonable prices

BIG BROTHER, IT SAYS RIGHT HERE IN MY DATE
BOOK THAT WE HAVE TO REMINDED EDITORS TO REMIND THEIR READERS THAT THERE ARE THIRTY MORE SHOPPING DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS!

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 22

April 9, 1981

Eight Pages

Shannon Morton

Building officially named 'Morton Hall'

by Wendy Robbins

On Thursday, April 2, the "New Classroom Building" officially became "Morton Hall." The dedication ceremony was held at 3 p.m. at the front entrance of the building. "Morton Hall" was named in honor of M. Shannon Morton, former chairperson of the department of English and the first dean of women. Morton retired from Wilmington College in 1965 and now resides in Henderson, NC.

Chancellor William Wagoner delivered the opening statements at the ceremony. Wagoner called the ceremony "an exciting occasion," particularly since it involved the "recognition of someone who has given a lifetime of service to a cause we all love."

After referring to UNCW's motto "Dare To Learn," Wagoner stated that Morton was "an individual who not only dared to learn, but dared to teach all kinds of students under all kinds of circumstances."

Wagoner also presented Morton with a large framed photograph of the building.

"We did not want you ever to forget what this building looks like," he stated.

Reverend Archie McKee, of St. Andrews Covenant Presbyterian Church, gave a prayer of invocation.

In her dedication remarks, Morton stated, "It is impossible for me to express adequately my deep appreciation of the honor the Board of Trustees have bestowed on my by giving my name to this imposing hall of learning on the campus where I have served."

"Although my years of service were prior to the Act of the General Assembly that changed this institution from a college to a university, I have continued to visit the campus frequently and to participate on occasion in a few of its activities and am well aware of the spirit of learning that goes on within these walls."

Morton attributed UNCW's progress from a local junior college to a university to four principal factors. The first factor, she said, was the people of Wilmington and New Hanover County, who in 1947 voted a tax on themselves to establish a junior college. The other factors she cited were the influence of the University's professional leaders, the faculty, and the student body.

In her concluding statements, Morton said that it was her "fervent wish that this hall on the campus of the University of Wilmington should be a place where the faculty and students work together in the light of truth, enjoy the liberty and freedom of expression, and dispense and acquire knowledge and learning."

After Morton's speech, Wagoner unveiled a plaque commemorating the occasion. A reception was held after the ceremony.

Charles Parsons, Steve Schmidt win elections overwhelmingly

by Dianne Russell

Commanding an overwhelming 69% and 61% of the vote respectively, Student body President Charles Parsons and Student body Vice-President Steve Schmidt won secure victories over their opponents in the March 18-19 student elections.

Both winners faced opposition from the self-declared write-in team of Doug Browne and Mike Stroud. Schmidt also faced opposition from SGA member Bill Samson. According to Elections Board Chairman George Ward, 808 students voted on the executive ballot, totaling 18.33 percent of the student body - a slight increase over the past two years.

OVERALL PERCENTAGE OF STUDENTS VOTING - 18.33%

PRESIDENT
Charles Parsons	558
Doug Browne	71
VICE PRESIDENT
Steve Schmidt	493
Bill Samson	176
Mike Stroud	41
CHIEF JUSTICE
John Ward	133
Jeff Fieldstein	6
Dale Stevenson	4
ATTORNEY GENERAL
Dave Kerman	59

ELECTION RESULTS

REPRESENTATIVE-AT-LARGE

Jeff Newton	322
Melissa Morgan	315
Estella Davis	315
Sandra Johnson	318
Kevin Sills	315
Renee Holloway	314
Jim Lowe	21
Ray Yates	16

SR. CLASS PRESIDENT

Pete Divoky	160
-------------	-----

VICE PRESIDENT

Steve Griffin	162
---------------	-----

SENATORS

Dale Fish	155
Elliot Mascoep	144

JR. CLASS PRESIDENT

Jill Hubbard	109
Buck Probst	65

VICE PRESIDENT

Kimberly Mills	167
----------------	-----

SENATOR

Mark Bremer	115
Blaine Sutton	91

SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESIDENT

Ed Paul	218
---------	-----

VICE PRESIDENT

Mindy Barnes	215
--------------	-----

SENATOR

Judy Shumate	184
Dedee Newton	163

SGA on Tuesday night, March 24 at the Rustic Inn.

Upon leaving office, former SGA President Jesse Sanders said he was pleased with his administration. "It's been an interesting job," he said. "The only regrets I have is that I've had to make some tough decisions which have hurt some people, but my interest has always been for the students. I think the office is in a little better shape than when I took over. Overall, I have a good feeling about my administration," he said.

Parsons began his first official working day on Wednesday, March 25. As student body president he will receive a monthly salary of $106 per month.

Charles Parsons

Immediately following his presidential victory, Charles Parsons drove to Chapel Hill on March 20 to attend a meeting of the UNC Association of Student Governments, a monthly gathering of UNC-system student body presidents with UNC President Friday. The main issues discussed at the meeting were the effects of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts on education, and architectural centralization, a proposed bill in the NC State Legislature which would centralize all UNC architectural design.

According to Parsons, President Friday expressed strong opposition to the architectural centralization bill which would require UNC chancellors to discuss building plans with and obtain approval from an architectural board based in Raleigh. Parsons pointed out that such a plan would strip the immediate campus of decision-making power and would indirectly create a blacklist of "undesirable" architects.

Concerning the Reagan cuts, Parsons said there was special fear among all students that BEOG grants and federal aid to minorities would be extinguished, causing harmful repercussions across UNC campuses. The Adhoc Committee on Black Campuses and Concerns took a strong stand against the Reagan cuts, stating that 90 percent of the student body at Winston-Salem depends on federal money. The committee concluded that the cuts will result in entire courses and departments being dissolved at the University. In an effort to oppose the cuts, students at the meeting made tentative plans to lobby on state and federal levels this month.

Parsons was inaugurated at a special dinner meeting of the

Steve Schmidt

LETTERS

President says thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to take this time to thank all my friends and classmates who voted and helped me to be elected.

All students should know that our office is open every day from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., during the week. Any student having problems or complaints or would just like to find out what Student Government does-please drop in.

I will be taking applications for the positions of justices to the Student Supreme Court, to the University Court, and to various other positions as well.

If you are interested, please get in touch with our office.

Thank you,
Charles B. Parsons
Student Body President

Congratulations from second floor

To the Editor:

This letter is not one of anger, but disgust. First let me congratulate Team #9, sixth and third floor Galloway, for an outstanding showing of enthusiasm, school spirit and participation, and of course being #1. We would also like to thank John Lackey, Bob Taylor, and their committee for an excellent job of organization and control of Spring Fling '81. Finally let us thank Nadine Fixler and her staff for a job well done at the pig pickin'.

Now we would especially like to thank the girls of fifth floor Galloway for their overwhelming performance at Spring Fling, considering only one girl out of seventy-two showed up and participated while the rest of the girls on fifth floor were either at home or at the beach. We (the guys of second floor Galloway) who showed up and participated in Spring Fling just want to thank all of the girls of fifth floor for the great esprit de corps and courtesy they showed us and their team (#8) in general.

Once again we want to congratulate Team #9 for winning, but especially for being enthusiastic about it.

Thanks a lot,
Robert Underwood
and second floor Galloway

Board of Elections expresses thanks

To the Editor:

The SGA Board of Elections would like to express thanks to the many people who helped make this last election a record setter, with 18.33% of the student body voting.

Special thanks go to: Former President Jessie Sanders, Susan Goodrum, those students who manned ballot boxes, the offices and members of the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, the Non-traditional Student organization, THE SEA HAWK.

We would also like to thank those UNCW students who made this record possible.

Sincerely,
George D. Ward
Chairperson, SGA Board of Elections

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions.

Business Manager
Sports Writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern Kim Vajta

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stals 3th, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

* The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Winning contest essays describe 'experiences in past decades'

by Bridget Munger

Winners of the 1981 Shannon Morton Essay Contest were named last week. First prize of $50 was awarded to Sherry Niven for her essay "A New Recipe for American Pie." Second prize of $30 was awarded to Judy Stallsmith for her essay "Shifting Away", and third prize of $20 was awarded to Barbara Grob for her untitled piece on the sixties. All of the winners are seniors at UNCW.

The theme of submitted essays was "The Promise of the Eighties - for me, for my community, for UNCW, for North Carolina or for the nation." All three women wrote reflective essays describing their experiences in past decades and how those experiences taught and guided them towards the future goals they now have.

Contest winners Barbara Grob, Sherry Niven, and Judy Stallsmith

The annual contest was first begun four years ago by two instructors in the English Dept., Mr. McCall and Dr. Rosselet, who were both hired in 1959 by Shannon Morton when she was chairman of the English Dept. Every year they organize and finance the contest in her honor. The New Classroom Building on campus is also being named in her honor.

Every three years the prize-winning essays are bound and presented to the school library, making them available to students. This year the first bound volume was presented by Dr. Brooks Dodson, chairman of the English Dept.

This year's contest judges were Mrs. Dorothy Dempsey from John T. Hoggard High School, and Dr. Margaret Parish and Ms. Sylvia Welborn both of UNCW English Dept.

Social Sciences and Liberal Arts Majors

Concerned about the future? You may be halfway to a challenging career which will use all your present knowledge and more...

The College of Criminal Justice, University of South Carolina, offers a master's program in a field seeking solutions to a myriad of complex problems which beset our nation. Graduates pursue careers in such areas as court services, law enforcement, corrections, juvenile justice, research and planning, and education and training.

The College provides career-related work assignments for up to 40 highly qualified graduate students. These half-time assistants earn up to $4,500 per year and receive substantial tuition reductions. The 36-semester-hour program combines theory and professional practice. For further information, write or call:

Director of Graduate Studies

COLLEGE OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE
UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia, S.C. 29208

Phone (803) 777-7097

'A New Recipe for American Pie'

First Place Essay

by Sherry Niven

My daughter came in from school the other day flinging gym shoes in one direction, her violin case in another, dropping her overloaded book bag (on her foot, as it happens) and gleefully announced that her class had gotten another lecture from the teacher. Her source of pleasure was not in the rebuke itself for although she can be as perverse as the next child, she is not quite reactionary enough to enjoy a scolding. No, her satisfaction derived from the fact that this lecture fitted neatly into one of the two categories into which she had divided her teacher's extemporaneous communications: the Basic-Blood-Pressure Speech ("I'm not going to let you kids aggravate pressure go up.") and the You-are-the-Leaders-of-Tomorrow Speech. Today's oration had been a variation of the latter.

Although I was only half-listening, something mothers get to be quite adept at, the gist of what my daughter was saying lodged in my brain and started me thinking. While I can't presume to speak for my entire generation, personally I am not quite ready to turn the reins of leadership over to a group who, if my daughter is any measure, thinks pizza is a dietary staple and Mork from Ork is the great mind of our time. At thirty-one, I finally gained some worthwhile knowledge and experience and I want a chance to use them. And the promise of the eighties for me is that they will be the years that will give me that opportunity.

The eighties will be the first full decade that I have approached with my priorities in a logical order. Previously I have always done things in a manner that my grandmother would have described as "hind part before." I had always thought of myself as a wife, a mother, and a woman. And there's nothing wrong with the description; it's the ordering that is illogical. As a Southern girl in crinolines, black patent-leather shoes, and ribbons in my Toni home-permed hair, I grew up thinking that the natural progression of a female's life was from being someone's daughter to someone's wife. What I didn't learn, because during my youth it was not considered necessary or relevant, was that before I could be a successful wife and mother, I had to be a successful woman.

At the age of nineteen, to quote a Janis Ian song, I "married young and then retired." I became my husband's appendage. Charles is a former athlete and is still well-known in this town. Few weeks go by that someone doesn't ask as soon as they hear my name, "Oh, are you related to...?" After our marriage this happened at work, at the cleaner's at my gynecologist's office and each occurrence seemed to reinforce the idea that my identity depended on my husband.

When my daughter was born I expanded my role to include being someone's mother. Wearing the uniform of the day (anything that was pit-up proof), I became a model stay-at-home mommy and began rearing my daughter to be just like me.

Then just before I turned thirty I discovered that my slice of the American pie had lost some of its sweetness. I was dissatisfied with myself and yearned to do something. The search for this something led me through two years of intensive needlepoint therapy, numerous self-help books, and home-demonstration gurus who encouraged me to let Tupperware change my life or to be an Avon lady and achieve inner peace. My brother finally provided the answer when he suggested I take some college courses. For the first time nobody cared who I was related to. I had to generate my own ideas, reach my own conclusions, solve problems weightier than how to get a whiter-than-white wash or dispense with waxy yellow build-up.

The continuance of my development as a woman is one of the most exciting prospects of the eighties for me. Fortunately, society is now receptive, if not completely adjusted, to the notion that personal skills, ambition, and accomplishments are a more definitive measure of a woman's worth than how ell

See PIE, p. 6.

NO NAME SALOON

4102 OLEANDER DR. 392 5920

UNCW NIGHT!

EVERY THURSDAY FREE
WITH ID

MUSIC WED~SUN
WITH

SADDLE TRAMP

A PRIVATE CLUB FOR
MEMBERS AND GUESTS - NOT
OPEN TO GENERAL PUBLIC
ALL ABC PERMITS

Yankee learns to do as the Wilmingtonians do

Passing a friend walking across-campus the other day, I casually raised my hand, smiled, and called, "Hey!" Me, the kid from Ohio, unconsciously saying "Hey." Not "Hi," not "Hello," not even "Howya." It dawned on me that I'm finally Southernized.

Back in the sixties, as a member of that civilized society known as the Mid-West, I viewed with condensing amusement a program called "The Andy Griffith Show." That Andy Taylor, and Aunt Bee, and Barney really were a funny bunch of Southern yokels. But the funniest was Gomer Pyle. Boy, what a nerd! This guy was so stupid he made Chester A. Riley look like Einstein. What I liked

Prime Time

by Judy Stallemit

best was the way he'd walk around Mayberry, his grease-smeared clothes hanging on his lanky body, his ball cap squashed sideways on his pointy little head, and he'd flash his hound dog grin at all and sundry and, flinging his forearm back, draw out, "Hey!" Was this a klutz or was this a klutz?

And now, twenty years later, here I am drawing out, "Hey," myself. I ain't no klutz. It took me a long time to get to where I am today. Shortly after I moved here a lady asked me my name. I told her, and she said, "Oh, well who's y'all's kinta?" This was in the days before my hearing started to go and I'd found the many ways to say "Huh?" without saying, "Huh?"

She looked at me much as I had viewed the inhabitants of Mayberry. "Who's y'all's people." Once it became clear she knew nothing about a single Ralph, Burkie, Price, or Hollis, she shook her head disgustedly and said, "I didn't think y'all were from here."

How could she say that? Of course I was from here. I lived here, worked here, beached here. I didn't know any of her people either, even though she'd told me everyone from here to Georgia she was kinta. Boy, and they said Southerners were friendly. I'd come here with a Samsonite not a Bigelow bag, and anyway my folks were undoubtedly every bit as good as her folks.

But you can't survive forever in a hostile environment just by being defensive. No, you've got to give in sometime, do as the Wilmingtonians do. (And can you imagine my saying I was originally a New Waterfordian?) Gradually I took on Southern language coloration: an occasional "y'all," an infrequent "Gawd knows!" once or twice a "do what?" And I quit saying,

"Hi." I no longer said, "Hello." I determinedly refrained from, "Howya."

It worked. People smiled when I greeted them, my forearm flung back, my mouth drawing through a grin, "Hey!" Only when alone did I run to the mirror, searching intently for the shade of Gomer Pyle on my freckled Yankee face. After a while Gomer faded away and nothing remained but the freckles to remind me I was not a real Southern lady.

Yes, there are still times I long for the four seasons, real Dago pizzas, and all night television of civilized Ohio. But I don't think I'll ever go back there to live. It's taken me too long to really be from here.

New SGA President,s first priority is to represent the students

UNCW's Student Government Association has undergone its annual personnel shuffle. These changes include the election of new executive officers and student representatives. SGAPresident Jessie Sanders was replaced by former Vice President Charles B. Parsons, who has extensive first-hand knowledge in the actual practice of student legislature.

Parsons, a junior majoring in political science, has been involved with UNCW's student government for three years, and he says, "I feel as though I know the system pretty well; I've had dealings with all aspects of our student government." His reason for campaigning for the position of President was stated simply: "I didn't want to see all that we had worked for go down the drain."

Defeating his opponent Doug Browne by a wide margin, Parsons maintains that he was never completely certain of victory. "I figured I had a 50/50 chance. I thought the election could go either way," he commented, adding, "I never underestimate anyone."

Outlining the goals he hopes to accomplish during his term, Parsons stated, "I hope to make our SGA more fiscally responsible, and I want to insure that it remains fiscally responsible. I'd also like to make the atmosphere in the (SGA) office more formal, in accordance with our reputation as one of the most prestigious student governments within the UNC system. I also intend to weed out unnecessary spending, in the interests of the students." Parsons explained that his number one priority is to "represent what is in the best interests of the students, first and foremost."

The SGA office is located in the Hinton James building, at the top of the stairs adjacent to the rec room. Parsons emphasized, "This office is open to any student, if he feels he's been treated unfairly, has a gripe, whatever. I have office hours and I'm here to listen." The President's office hours are: M-W-F-8:30-9:30 a.m., and from 11:30-"until." T-Th...10

WalkAmerica to be held

The annual March of Dimes WalkAmerica is here once more. On April 25th all students are encouraged to put on their most comfortable shoes and join in the 30 kilometer walk to prevent birth defects.

"Not only does the walk promise a fun day for all, but it offers each and every one of us the opportunity to help those less fortunate than ourselves," says John Perriit,

WalkAmerica Chairman.

"Each participant gets sponsors to back him or her with monetary pledges which are used to support March of Dimes programs in birth defects research, medical service and education," he adds.

Students from UNCW Students from UNC-Wilmington will meet at the Wrightsville Beach Park at 8 a.m. For more information, contact the March of Dimes at 392-1565.

Golf team tied for third

On March 26 and 27 the Lady Seahawks Golf team tied for third place in the William and Mary Kingsmill Invitational with a combined team score of 701. The Lady Seahawks shot a 352 on March 26 and a 349, which was the second lowest score on March 27.

Individual winners were Dar-ci Wilson, who tied for fifth with a score of 172, Bobbi Roberts who also tied for sixth place with a score of 173, and donna Barnette who placed eighth with a score of 177. Other finishers were Cindy Flowers who finished tenth, and Connie Poole who tied for eleventh.

April 13: Deadline for hole in one sign up. Deadline for archery sign up.

April 14: Archery Tournament 3-5 p.m.

April 15: Hole in one contest, 3-5 p.m.

April 21: New Games, sign up at Intramural Office.

April 22: Deadline for surfing sign up.

April 25: Surfing contest.

April 27: Deadline for New Games sign up.

April 28: New Games Day.

Biology plant sale

Biology Club Plant Sale at UNCW greenhouse. Friday, April 10 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Selling plants, geraniums, and hanging baskets.

NEXT TIME
YOU BOWL

"WHERE THE FAMILY BOWLS"

CARDINAL LANES

*Bowling at its best. BRUNSWICK 32 ASTROLINE LANES

PRO SHOP - SNACK BAR - PLAY ROOM

POOL TABLES

3907 Shipyard Boulevard
Wilmington, North Carolina 28401

799-3023

Join the UNCW Bowling Club every Thursday at 4:00

-Now open-

BRIANS

-Now open-

Hot Dogs prepared 10 different ways
(we serve the famous Oscar Meyer Weiner)

Hamburgers

Pressure Cooked

- Bar-B-Que -

Fried Chicken

Gigantic Homemade Onion Rings

Come see us at 4904 Market St.
(across from Holiday Inn)

10am-8pm

EAT IN OR DRIVE THRU

J.R. has quite a reputation to live up to

My father started it. He tapped on my bedroom door and called, "Hey, J.R., come to dinner." I went, but not before throwing him a look that would curdle milk.

J.R.! What kind of nickname is that? I mean, those are my initials, but... I can think of more, er, flattering pet names.

Come to think of it, I've never had much luck in that department. Long ago, before I discovered my vocal cords are proceeded to wail night and day, they called me Sunshine. Needless to say, that one didn't last very long. Then came my adorable toothless period, any dear old Dad named me Snaggletooth, just like that (I'm beginning to wonder about the depth of his affection for me!) I remained

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Kuss

Snaggletooth until I was nine, when I bit my brother's best buddy (whom I was madly in love with) because he started calling me Snags instead of Cutie. Thus died Snaggletooth.

For the longest time I was just plain Julie, and I got a little bored with it. A nickname (even a weird one) sets you a tiny bit apart from all the Joes and Janes. So when granddad started hollering, "Miss Julie!" I didn't really mind; thought it sounded a bit like a Southern belle, as a matter of fact. That one stuck for quite a while, and to this day if someone casually says "Miss Julie", it reminds me of several hazy summers when I was almost-but-not-quite-a-Southern-belle.

Even now I am not sure who first dubbed me (oh, God, this is embarrassing) BUG! WOMAN, but there it is. All I remember is that one fine day, out of nowhere, came God's Own Cockroach, heading straight for yours truly. Now, bugs are not so bad. Frogs reduce me to quivering jelly (I must have been a fly in a former life) but bugs I can live with. But this bug was no human bug. This bug could have won wrestling matches in NYC sewers. So when I saw this refugee from a landfill marching at me, I did what any normal female would have done: I jumped, screamed, jumped further, and ran like hell.

Someone equipped with a size thirteen Adidas eventually dispatched the roach to that Big Bughouse in the sky, but I was a wreck. And before I knew it, Bugwoman was me, man. I hated it, especially at work. A tiny, infantile beetle could appear on the horizon and someone would be sure to bawl. "Looks like a case for BUGWOMAN!"

All things must pass, and eventually I was plain old me again, no longer toothless, no longer wanting to be a Southern belle, no longer dreaming about giant bugs. Life was normal. Well, for awhile I was the Wesson Oil Kid, but that's a loony story.

And then came "Dallas." And that sweetheart J.R. Ewing, dammit! Oh, I've gotten used to it now. Everybody. I mean everybody, calls me J.R. now. Girls, guys, friends, foes, even by boss. But that's not the problem. The problem is, now I have quite a reputation to live up to!

Forensics team wins

UNCW's Forensics team won the 1981 Carolina Forensic Association tournament, held at Appalachian State University March 20, 21 and 22. This is the third consecutive year UNCW's team has won the North Carolina-South Carolina tournament.

The UNCW team went into the states' tournament after finishing third at state college, Shippensburg, Pa., a tournament involving 50 northern colleges and universities, held over our spring break. It

The results of the CFA tournament are as follows:

In extemporaneous speaking - Mike Stroud finished third, Aaron Oliver, fourth.

In persuasive speaking - Mike Stroud was first, Carole Hawke, second.

In impromptu speaking - Mike Stroud, second; Lisa Sanders, fourth; and Doug Browne finished sixth.

In poetry - Lisa Sanders took third place.

In prose - Carole Hawke finished second.

In after dinner speaking - Brian Perry was first.

In dramatic duo - the team of Lisa Sanders and Brian Perry finished third.

In informative speaking - Doug Browne was second; Aaron Oliver, third; and Lisa Sanders, fourth.

Dramatic interpretation - Brian Perry was fourth.

Pentathlon winners (entered 5 events) - Lisa Sanders, first; Mike Stroud, fourth; and Brian Perry, fifth.

In Cross-examination debate, the team of Aaron Oliver and Mike Stroud were semi-finalists, and Mike Stroud received the fourth speaker award.

In individual events (all except debate) Sweepstakes - UNCW, first place-191 pts.; second place, Appalachian State-148 pts.; Davidson, third place-402 pts.

This years' success is directly attributable to the coaches - Bob and Rita Rosenthal and John D. Williams. The UNCW Forensic Team's next and last tournament for this semester will be the national tournament in Bowling Green, Ky., the week before exams.

UNCW hosts ribbon cutting ceremony

On Friday, April 10 from 7 a.m.-11 a.m. a portion of Street B (which runs parallel to CollegeRoad) will be barricaded to accommodate arrangements for the official ribbon cutting of the 1981 North Carolina Azalea Festival to be held on the university pedestrian mall. There will be no parking west of Alderman and James Halls (on the ends of Alderman and James Halls facing College Road.)

Over 1,500 visitors and celebrities will be on campus for this occasion.

Managerial seminars at Bear Hall

The Office of Special Programs is sponsoring one-night programs in April, in the area of business management. The programs are special seminars for the business or non-business person and the business student, to provide opportunities for development of managerial capabilities.

The seminar, "Performance Appraisal and Development," is designed to help individuals understand performance levels and develop ways to improve performance. Dr.

Stephen Harper will conduct the seminar.

The seminar will be held April 9, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in room 111 at Bear Business Building. Program fee is $16 per participant. Registration deadline is April 2.

"How to Deal with Employment Discrimination" is a program dealing with employee complaints and unlawful discrimination. Conducting the program will be Dr. H. M. Shatshat.

The program will be held

April 14 from 7-10 p.m. in room 111 at Bear Hall. The fee is $22. Registration deadline is April 7.

"Transactional Analysis: Becoming an OK Boss" is designed to provide participants with an understanding and application of transactional analysis. Dr. Stephen C. Harper will conduct the program.

This program will be held April 23, from 7-9:30 p.m., in room 111 Bear Hall. The fee is $16 per participant. Registration deadline is April 28.

Schedule your next French class in France.

It's a lot easier than you think. As you'll discover in the next issue of Insider — the free supplement to your college newspaper from Ford. And it makes a lot of sense. If you're going to learn French, why not learn it from the experts.

Insider will include everything you need to know to do just that. We'll tell you how to get there, what it costs, how to plan, differences between American-affiliated universities and foreign learning institutions, an outline of language requirements and, most importantly, how to find a job.

So if you've been thinking about taking a semester or two abroad, stop thinking. And next time registration comes around, schedule your French class where you'll learn the most...in France.

Don't miss the next issue of Insider. Besides travel tips, you'll see the great new lineup of Ford cars for 1981. Featuring Escort, Mustang and the exciting new EXP...tomorrow is here from the world of Ford.

Look for Insider. Ford's continuing series of college newspaper supplements.

FORD

FORD DIVISION

University Program Board plunges ahead with 'Seaside Jam'

In spite of administrative setbacks and an unusually late start, the University program Board is plunging ahead with plans for the second annual Seaside Jam Save-the-Whales Benefit Concert this month.

Because of numerous noise complaints from nearby residents during the Beach Music Festival last fall, the administration had decided not to allow any more outdoor music events on campus, according to UPB member Paul Weaver. However, because Beach Fest was produced through a private promoter rather than through a campus-affiliated organization, the administration reconsidered its stand when the UPB sought permission for another Seaside Jam, Weaver said.

Chancellor Wagoner officially granted the UPB's request on Thursday, April 2, leaving less than a month to prepare for the event which is planned to take place on Saturday, April 25 in Brooks Field from 12 noon until 6:30 p.m., with gates opening at 10 a.m.

Already the UPB has set up tentative contracts with the musical groups Le Roux, Choice, and the Rob Crosby Group. The female mime duo Mainly Mime, who appeared at UNCW in February, and Dr. John's World Champion Frisbee Show will add to the days festivities.

As last year, campus clubs and organizations will have booths to sell and display items and to distribute information about themselves. Crafts will be on sale from local merchants.

Ticket prices for Seaside Jam II are $4.00 for students and $6.00 for non-students with $1.00 of each ticket sold going to the Save-the-Whales Fund. Advance tickets are on sale at Gilham's Guitar Works, Surg and Stuff, The Record Bar,

School Kids Records, McGrath's, and the student bookstore. T-shirts, buttons, and bumper stickers will be on sale soon in the Pub. No glass containers will be allowed thru the gates the day of the festival.

The Student North Carolina Association of Educators had seven delegates that went to the State Convention in Asheville, NC April 2 and 3.

Left to right: First row - Gail Jackson [President], Terry Williford [Treasurer], Judy Myers [Vice-president], Mrs. Betty Stike [Advisor], and Dennie Padrick [Vice-president

-elect].

Back row - Donna Holden, Sharon Brown

[President-elect], and Freda Andrews [Secretary-elect].

PIE, from p. 3.

she bakes brownies. Gaining the knowledge that I am a competent person in and of myself has brought a new perspective to my other roles in life. I no longer see marriage as an institution for those who have survived adolescence and have nowhere else to go. It is a relationship based on choice, not necessity. My role as a mother is to enjoy my daughter. This child is to laugh with, to agonize for, but not to make over or live through. The eighties will be an opportunity for the growth and strengthening of these relationships.

The most important of all the promises that I envision for myself in the eighties is that I have finally learned who must be the maker and keeper of the covenants. Most of my life I have been waiting for the great nameless THEY to ring my doorbell and hand me my future the way Michael Anthony delivered million-dollar checks on an old television program. But that isn't the way it happens. Robert Frost said in "Stopping By Woods on a Snowy Evening": "But I have promises to keep.

Mr. Frost knew about promises. He didn't expect his little horse or the man in the village house to do his job. By the same token, I no longer expect someone else to make or keep the vows that will give my life meaning.

Every major event in my life has occurred when the world was moving into a new decade. I was born in 1949 when the country was sliding into the cold-war-build-yourself-a-bomb-shelter-and-rock-around-the-clock fifties.

I turned ten in 1959 just in time to spend the first part of my adolescence in Camelot among pillbox hats and Nehru jackets dancing to Mersey beat and the last part with the flower children in the shadow of Vietnam. At the end of the sixties I discovered marriage and motherhood and at the end of the seventies I discovered myself. Perhaps the last years of the eighties will hold some new adventure for me, but I don't plan to sit around just marking time until then. I am going to spend this decade working to fulfill the promises I've made to myself for the eighties. I've waited long enough for Michael Anthony.

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- starting salary from $15,000 - $22,500 with increases to $25,000 - $40,000 in 4 years.
- 30 days paid vacation annually fully financed graduate programs
- superior family health plan
- more responsibility and leadership opportunities
- world wide travel and adventure
- prestige and personal growth potential

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
AVIATION LAW NURSING
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS
INTELLIGENCE
CIVIL ENGINEERING
SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ELIGIBLE

THE NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus: APRIL 22 & 23. An information desk will be set up outside the CAFETERIA and PLACEMENT INTERVIEWS will be conducted APRIL 22. To arrange an appointment to Officer Aptitude Test call 1-800-662-7568 toll free.

OUT-OF-SIGHT SAVINGS ON EYEWEAR

$25⁰⁰ OFF

This coupon entitles you to $25.00 off the regular $99 price for soft contact lenses from Bausch & Lomb or American Optical. Price includes starter kit. Eye examination not included. Present coupon at time of order or not valid. Offer expires April 30, 1981.

Bausch & Lomb or American Optical
Soft Contact Lenses Reg. Price $99

PEARLE
vision center

A SEARLE COMPANY

$10⁰⁰ OFF

This coupon entitles you to $10.00 off the regular price of any complete pair of glasses you select with glass lenses. This includes bifocal lenses. Present coupon at time of order or not valid. Offer expires April 30, 1981.

Prescription Eyeglasses with Glass Lenses

PEARLE
vision center

A SEARLE COMPANY

$15⁰⁰ OFF

This coupon entitles you to $15.00 off complete eyeglasses made with Halfweights® brand lenses—the tough lenses that are ½ the weight of glass. Present coupon at time of order or not valid. Offer expires April 30, 1981.

Prescription Eyeglasses with Halfweights® Brand Lenses

PEARLE
vision center

A SEARLE COMPANY

WILMINGTON—Independence Mall
3500 Oleander Dr., Tel. 392-0948.
For other locations call toll-free 800-331-1000.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Commencement exercises

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 16, 1981, at 10 a.m. in Trask Coliseum.

The bookstore began distribution of caps and gowns on Monday, April 6. Your $15 graduation fee covers the cost of the academic regalia. In addition, graduation announcements are available in the Campus Bookstore.

There will be a brief rehearsal for commencement on Friday, May 15, at 10 a.m. in Hanover Hall. Please plan to be present.

Fledgling needs photographers

Do you own a 35mm camera? If so the yearbook staff sure could use your help. We need about eight or so enterprising students to shoot a roll of film for us, capturing various aspects of UNCW student life for the 1982 yearbook. If you feel you are up to the challenge call or drop by room 107 in the Pub between 3 and 4 p.m. (during General Hospital) Monday through Thursday. Phone - 791-4330, ext. 2548.

NOW to march in Raleigh

New Hanover County National Organization for Women and campus feminists urge your participation in a statewide march for ERA in Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, May 2. The march, sponsored by North Carolinians United for ERA, will begin at noon at the corner of Peace and Salisbury in front of the Archdale Building in Raleigh. Bus transportation to and from Wilmington will be available. For more information call Darrel Cummings at 256-9637 or Renee Hartman at 762-7135.

'River to the Sea' bike-a-thon

The first ever "River to the Sea" Bikeway BIKE-A-THON will be held on April 25, from 8-2, at the Greenfield Lake Bicycle Path. The event is co-sponsored by UNC-Wilmington's Outdoor Recreation Majors and Coca-Cola to raise funds for the newly proposed county-wide bikeway system. The ride is 5 to 50 miles and persons of all ages are encouraged to participate. Also, a total prize package of $1,400 will be awarded.

Sponsor forms may be picked up at the Two Wheeler Dealer and the Physical Education office in Trask at UNC-Wilmington.

For information please call, 392-6737.

New English courses offered

UNCW's English Dept. plans to add several new courses this fall. Students who are interested in signing up for one or more of these classes are encouraged to come and talk with the instructors in the department offices.

The following courses will be added: War Fiction (Eng 292-01) to be taught by Dr. Stokes; Introduction to Shakespeare (Eng 292-02) to be taught by Mr. McCall; Intermediate College Writing (Eng 201-01) to be taught by Mrs. Pferrer; Editing and Tutoring (Eng 492-01) to be taught by Dr. Clifford; History of the English Language (Eng 313-01) to be taught by Dr. Veit; and Introduction to Folklore (Eng 250-010) with the instructor to be named later.

'Between the Testaments'

The Office of Special Programs is presenting a class entitled, "Between the Testaments", on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 8-10 p.m., May 5-28. Registration deadline is April 28.

The course is concerned with providing an interpretation and overview of the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. This is literature of doubtful origins that is closely related to the Bible.

The class will meet in Kenan Hall, room 202. Dr. James Megivern will be the instructor.

The cost is $35. For further information, contact the Office of Special Programs, 791-4330, ext. 2194.

Lost and found

Lost
Hewlett Packard Calculator
Bass umbrella
UNCW white rainjacket
Dark rim glasses in brown case
Brown and yellow umbrella
Books-Drugs and Behavior
Human Sexuality
Exploring the Ways of Mankind
Set of keys with "K" on ring

Found
Calculator
Sweater (2)
Bracelet
Books
Notebook
Check with Chyri Kane, Rm. 101 in the P

Student teacher applications due

All students who plan to student teach in the Fall of 1981 or the Spring of 1982 must apply to student teach. Applications should be completed and returned to the School of Education no later than April 15, 1981.

Applications are available in E-102.

Yearbooks on sale

The 1981 edition of the Fledgling, UNCW's yearbook has arrived and is on sale. If you would like to purchase one or have ordered one, come by room 107 in the Pub Monday-Thursday, 11:30-12:30 or 3-4 and get yours today. They only cost $7, less than the price of an average high school annual.

WANTED

PEOPLE INTERESTED IN MAKING

A SUCCESS!

Final on location tickets

Friday, April 24

Thursday, April 23

Wednesday, April 22

Tuesday, April 21

Monday, April 20

All tickets are at $10.00

in room 107 of the Pub. Or, order by the UPL office anytime.

UNCW GRAPHICS
Pub

new Pub

UNCW delegation attends Annual Session of NCSL

by Lynne Wells

The 44th Annual Session of the North Carolina Student Legislature was held in Raleigh at the Old Capitol Building on March 25-29. Schools from all over the state joined together to present and vote on bills written by individual schools, similar to the way the North Carolina General Assembly does.

The delegation from UNCW attended this session with great success. UNCW presented a bill concerning the disposal of hazardous waste and a bill concerning a decrease in the rate of inheritance tax. These two bills were the only two to pass by acclamation (the strongest form of consent possible) in the House. Both bills passed in the Senate-hazardous waste by consent. Other bills introduced at Session were adoption laws, redistricting, sex education, driver's education, alcohol and drug education, social worker's licensing, open-bed hauling, and capital punishment.

Chamber sessions of both houses were held on Wednesday through Saturday. Friday morning both chambers met in the House to receive Governor James B. Hunt. In his speech, Governor Hunt spoke about the future of North Carolina, emphasizing education, maintenance of state roads, and increased industry. Later that afternoon, a legislative reception was held in the Rotunda, attended by most of the members of the North Carolina General Assembly. Also at the reception were Governor Hunt, Secretary of State Thad Eure, and Secretary of Agriculture Jim Graham.

Members of NCSL met with these dignitaries, discussing current issues facing the General Assembly and lobbying for NCSL Legislation.

On Saturday morning elections for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney General of NCSL were held. Mark Bremer of UNCW was elected by acclamation to an unprecedented second term as Attorney General.

Saturday night, NCSL attended a banquet at the Holiday Inn ballroom. Chancellor William Wagoner, Vice Chancellor William Malloy, and his wife honored the UNCW delegation by attending the banquet. Liz Green Hair, former Commissioner of Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, was the featured speaker for the evening.

On Sunday morning NCSL was honored by the distinguished Vice President Walter Mondale. After an interesting and excellent speech by the Vice President, NCSL held its final plenary. UNCW's Lynne Wells, chairman of the Awards Committee, presented awards for the best bill-small delegation, best bill-large delegation, best small delegation, and best large delegation. The award for best bill for a small delegation went to the UNCW delegation for their disposal of hazardous waste bill, authored by Steve Schmidt and Mark Bremer. This bill set up a board to deal with the management and disposal of hazardous or chemical waste.

UNCW-NCSL members meet Chip Wright in Raleigh

Catawba College received the best small delegation award.

UNCW ran a close second to Catawba, thus receiving honorable mention.

Members of the UNCW delegation that attended Session were Mark Bremer, Tom Hyde, Kimberly Mills, Ed Paul, Jr., Steve Schmidt, and Lynne Wells.

Hungry's Maryland Fried Chicken

4012 Oleander Dr., Wilmington, NC 28401

PHONE 392-5282

SPECIAL

Chick Fillet ←$1.99→ French Fries

FREE

Cherry, Vanilla, or Choc. Coke

Hungry's loves hungry people

We have authentic scrub pants & shirts in white & assorted colors. Sleep in them or play in them.

PROFESSIONAL UNIFORM
CENTERS INC.

2245 South 17th St.

Next to New Hanover Hospital

also in Whiteville, NC, Myrtle Beach, & Columbia, SC.

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S
PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, NC

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S
PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, NC

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 23

April 16, 1981

12 Pages

ROTC On Campus This Fall

by Dianne Russell

A brigade of young men donning army fatigues and combat boots shout in unison and charge across a field somewhere in the south...

This scene may become familiar to UNCW students as the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (AROTC) program gets under way on campus this fall—a program officially approved by the Board of Trustees at their quarterly meeting on Wednesday, April 8.

According to Dean of Arts and Sciences Daniel B. Plyler, the AROTC program will be housed in the College of Arts and Sciences and will be offered as a supplement to the BA and BS programs already offered by the University. The AROTC program will involve a balance of course work in military science, including military drills, and related liberal arts subjects, such as ethics, political science and military history. Veterans and non-veterans are eligible to join ROTC, with veterans being allowed to surpass some ROTC training.

Dean Plyler said the University is acting on a responsibility to the entire nation in implementing this program.

"Scholarships and career opportunities are only secondary benefits of the program," said Plyler. "The most significant benefit may not be solely to UNCW, but it involves a philosophy shared by administrators here. The philosophy is that the military training of officers is much better within the context of a liberal arts institution—that responsible military leaders are more likely to be produced in such an environment, rather than in a purely military atmosphere," he said.

At the Wednesday board meeting a faculty advisory committee was appointed to formulate an AROTC curriculum for recommendation to the Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee. Members of the AROTC Advisory Committee are Dr. Joseph Awkard (Psychology), Dr. Richard Cooper (History), Dr. Timothy Haywood (Physics), Dr. Lucinda Hollifield (Recreation), Dr. Roger Lowery (Political Science), Dr. David Padgett (Biology), and Dr. Thomas Schmid (Philosophy & Religion). Dr. David Miller, who becomes Assistant to the Dean of Arts and Sciences in June will be coordinator of the committee.

Plyler said the University plans to pattern the program after the ROTC programs at Chapel Hill, in which there is a 1:1 ratio of military courses to liberal arts courses in the ROTC curriculum. Chapel Hill was one of the few universities to redesign its military programs in the sixties when anti-war sentiments among college students resulted in the elimination of military programs from college campuses. Plyler said he hopes the AROTC Faculty Advisory Committee will be prepared to make its recommendations by the end of the semester.

According to Plyler, the AROTC program will not cost the University.

"Usually the hosting campus is expected to bare certain expenses, but in this particular incident because of the budgetary situation, the University is unable to provide office space or staff accommodations," he said.

"I don't know at this point where military drills will take place," he added. "I assume some will be on campus and some will be at the local armory. We do not have space for any new programs; the Army has had to find its own space."

Although UNCW will provide classroom space, any new ROTC faculty or staff members will be provided by and salaried by the Army. These new members will be subject, however, to the same administrative approval as other University employees.

Plyler said that ROTC classes should not interfere with UNCW's already tight class schedule.

"We still have quite a bit of available class time from 3 to 10 p.m., but ROTC classes will be worked around regular course offerings," he said. He said the decision earlier this year to begin classes thirty minutes earlier next fall was not made in anticipation of the ROTC program.

Although the AROTC program has come as a surprise to many at UNCW, the Army has shown a persistent interest in establishing a unit here for over two years, according to Plyler. However, it has only been in the last semester and a half that any definite action has been taken either by the

(Continued On Page 12)

Honor Society To Hold Second Initiation

UNCW-Wilmington will have its second initiation of undergraduate and graduate students, as well as one faculty member, into the National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at 4 p.m. in King Hall on April 22, 1981. The initiates will receive a certificate and a key or pin signifying the event.

Immediately after the initiation there will be a reception for the initiates, their families and friends, as well as members of Phi Kappa Phi.

Dr. Joseph D. Novak, Distinguished Visiting Professor at UNCW, will be the guest speaker for the ceremony. Dr. Novak is on leave from Cornell University where he teaches and does research in cognitive learning theory.

Phi Kappa Phi was established last year on the UNCW campus through the efforts of Dr. W. Lee Johnston and a core of other faculty members who were elected to membership in this honor society in their graduate or undergraduate years.

The Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society was founded at the University of Maine at ORONO in 1897. Men and women of all academic fields are eligible for membership on the basis of scholarship, integrity, and character. The Society's By-Laws allow for consideration for membership of those senior and second semester junior students who are in the top 10 and 5 percent of their classes, respectively. (These conditions can be more stringent as decided by the local chapter.)

The Officers of Phi Kappa Phi for the 1981-82 school year are as follows:

President: Timothy Haywood
Vice-President: Fred Toney

Secretary-Treasurer: Rebecca Sawyer

Public Relations: Lewis E. Nance

Thaddeus George Dankel, Jr. and Candace Dale Halecki are initiates from the faculty and graduate school, respectively.

Seniors who are initiates are as follows: Marta Bullard Appleton, Barbara Hart Anderson, Robert Edward Calder IV, Marilyn Oliver Carter, Bettye Francis Chinniss, Joan M. Clifford, Anne Wyatt Cook, Linda Strickland Curtis, Teresa Kim Dixon, Jacqueline Elaine Ennis, Selena Grady Jordan, John T. Knowlton, Karen McMillan, Sherry J. Niven, Ralph S. Pennington, Thomas J. Prestia, Charles Frederick Stanland, Dianne C. Russell, Dianne Irene Taylor, Kimberly Ann Vaughn, and Thomas H. Wessell.

Juniors who complete the 35-member group for initiation into Phi Kappa Phi are as follows: Janis Raw Axton, Mary Elizabeth Dail, Christ Lynn Dennis, Cynthia S. Dwiggins, James B. Mitchell, Margaret O. Pearson, Kevin J. Peters, Andrea June Smith, Judith B. Stallsmith, Diane E. Thomas, Mary Grace Walters, and Dorothy Cox Watkins.

Attention Seniors

There will be a meeting for all seniors graduating on May 16, 1981 in Morton Hall (New-classroom Building), on April 21, 1981, Tuesday, at 4 p.m. Students will have the opportunity to question members of the Graduation Committee concerning the May 16 commencement. This is your graduation. Please make plans to attend.

Application Deadline Set

The Media and Publications Board has set Thursday, April 23, 1981 as the application deadline for new editors and managers of campus publications.

Anyone interested in applying for positions with the Atlantis, the Seahawk, the Fledgling, or the Forum, for the 1981-82 school year should talk to Director of Student Activities Linda Moore in the Pub.

Applications should be turned into Moore, or to Media and Publications Board Chairman Steve Griffin in the SGA office.

Dr. Joseph D. Novak will speak at Phi Kappa Phi initiation.

LETTERS

Positions Open in SGA

To the Editor:

The spring semester is coming to an end, but the new administration of the Student Government is just beginning. It is at this time that I would like to declare the following seats vacant: Freshman Class Vice-President, Freshman Class Senator, One Representative-at-large.

If a student presents a petition signed by 50 students for one of the above offices, then that student shall be appointed to the vacant seat in which one petitioned. If two or more students petition, then an election will be held to determine the new legislator.

The following seats are also vacant, but are subject to appointment and approval of the Senate: One Election Board Chairman, Two At-Large Students for Finance Committee, Four Justices to University Court, Five Justices to Student Court.

If you are an interested student, please contact me, Steve Schmidt, in the Student Government Office or call 791-4330 ext. 2553 or 2554. I would like to encourage everyone to begin considering which seat you can fill to help build up a stronger and more efficient Student Government. Remember, we are students who work for students. So let us all work together to make the Student Government Association of 1981-82 a success.

Thank you,
Steve Schmidt
SGA Vice-President

TKE Masterpiece

To the Editor:

We the undersigned students at "Institution of Higher Learning" are appalled at the behavior exhibited by one of our more clubby fraternities. To wit: Tau Kappa Epsilon. It seems that some members of the above mentioned fraternity have taken it upon themselves to "decorate" an otherwise uninteresting and dull sidewalk as well as an unimposing and inconspicuous bulletin board with a great work of art extolling the virtues of that wonderful fraternal organization. Never mind the fact that the student majority must view this masterpiece daily. And never mind the fact that it infringes upon this institution of Learning. ART IS ART! Let the perpetrator of this masterpiece step forward and be recognized for his efforts. Such infantile and assinine behavior must be applauded as it confirms the viewpoint held by much of this campus. Thank you, whoever you are for stepping out of the closet and applying your right hand to more industrious efforts. These embellishments are greatly "Appreciated" by us and we hope that our more close-minded constituents will realize the intrinsic value of these endeavors.

Many thanks,
Walter C. Kunz, Jr.
Lawrence McDaniel

Thanks From Delta Zeta

To the Editor:

I would like to express my sincere congratulations to the Interfraternity Council officers and representatives for a successful 1981 Greek Week. It took a lot of planning, organizing, and hard work. You did a great job guys! I truly enjoyed working with you. And thanks for letting Delta Zeta be a part of this Greek gathering.

Thanks also goes to Steve Gnadt, IFC advisor, to Dr. William Malloy, and to Bob Taylor for being patient judges. Your help was greatly appreciated. And last but not least, thanks goes to all the Greeks that participated.

Without you there would not be a reason for Greek Week. I look forward to next year's Greek Week which I hope will be even more successful. Go Greek!

In Loving Friendship,
Donna Kay Moore
Delta Zeta

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Side dish
- 6 Grate
- 10 Pike
- 14 Unaided
- 15 "— boy!"
- 16 Particle
- 17 Pettifog
- 18 Bearing
- 19 "Scat!"
- 20 Appeared
- 22 Ruelful
- 24 Over
- 26 Unike
- 27 Fused
- 31 Conger
- 32 Strove
- 33 Approaches
- 35 CSA soldier
- 38 Country
- 39 Movie
- 40 Fuel
- 41 Numeral
- 42 Tolls
- 43 Vassal
- 44 Face value
- 45 Staggered
- 47 Fixes
- 51 Mrs. Nick
- 52 Value too highly

DOWN

- 54 Buccaneer
- 58 Empty
- 59 Bull. Sp.
- 61 Can-Am
- 62 Norse god
- 63 Oklahoma city
- 64 Zest
- 65 Check out
- 66 Remit
- 67 Vapor
- 1 Cysts
- 2 Wings
- 3 Devotion
- 4 Enlivened
- 5 Removed
- 6 Batter
- 7 On tiptoe
- 8 Charger
- 9 Baskets
- 10 Light shade
- 11 Alternate
- 12 Crazy ones
- 13 Act
- 21 Beetle
- 23 Currier and
- 25 Five: Pre-fix
- 27 Will battle

site

- 28 Asian land
- 29 Diamond crew
- 30 Distributed
- 34 Fire crime
- 35 Bellow
- 36 Roof part

- 37 Leeches
- 39 Nodules
- 40 "Scram!"
- 42 Couple
- 43 Cords
- 44 Forbear
- 46 Vertex
- 47 Automaton
- 48 Circumvent
- 49 Persian
- 50 Rock
- 53 Emerald
- 54 Isle
- 55 Pulley
- 56 Block
- 57 part
- 58 Bye-bye
- 59 Biblical
- 60 Unusual

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions.

Business Manager
Sports writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern Klm Vajta

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy St. Is'th, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Yesterday I Turned Thirty: Happy Birthday or Happy Hunting?

A friend called yesterday to wish me a happy birthday and asked, "How does it feel to be over the hill?" Well, it was early--too early to think--so I used my all-occasion profound comeback: "Hub?"

"You're thirty today. From now on it's all downhill." (I was beginning to get a little bugged with that hill.)

Two phone calls and two replays of this conversation later, I was more than a little bugged. I was a lot bugged. These women had feared their thirtieth birthday; it was their deadline. They had resigned

Prime Time

by Sherry Niven,

themselves to vicarious living and they assumed that I had done the same.

Why did they feel this way? Perhaps our adolescence is a clue. The whole world worshipped youth then. Adults adopted its symbols. Our grandfathers wore Nehru jackets; our parents danced the Watusi. Everyone used our slang. Our motto, "Never trust anyone over thirty," limited that youth. But we didn't worry--thirty was light-years away from us.

The world grew and changed. Twiggy gained weight and lengthened her skirts; Eldridge Cleaver put on a three-piece suit and came home; even Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden got married and decided to work within the system. Most women of my generation grew, too. They became aware of their possibilities and capabilities and found that every year brought a valuable perspective and growth. Yet, adolescent philosophies still victimize some women and their refrain (at least once a day) is, "If Only I Were Eighteen Again."

I'm sorry, friends. I don't want to be eighteen again. It was magic and wonder, but it was hard work and pain that I don't wish to replay. And so was twenty-one--and twenty-five. I paid the dues for those years willingly but to go back and try to recapture them would be silly.

I used to think that at thirty I would be granted instant omniscience. It was a rite of passage that I expected as certainly as acquiring a driver's license at sixteen and achieving legal majority at twenty-one. I was wrong. I didn't become suddenly wiser, but I have become kinder, a little more tolerant. And thirty is going to be a very good year.

RADIO WAVES

HAPPY
HOURS

PIZZA PORT
WANTS YOU TO COME AND GET DRAFTED

7 DAYS A WEEK
5pm - 8pm

PINT SIZE
MASON JAR
BUD DRAFT 40¢
SLICE OF PIZZA 50¢

DELIVERY HOURS

MON-THURS 11-12

FRI-SUN 11-1

799-8413

ALL YOU CAN EAT

HOMEMADE
PIZZA BUFFET

PIZZA & SALAD

7 DAYS A WEEK

11am - 2pm

$2.50 plus tax

Best quality at the lowest prices!!
Ask Luigi

University Theatre's 'Alice In Wonderland' Plays To Full House

by Bridget Munger

As part of Studio '81, the University Theatre's entirely student-produced project, "Alice in Wonderland" was presented Thursday and Friday, April 2 and 3. The show was a great success, playing to full houses both nights.

The play is Andre Gregory's adaptation of the famous stories "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass" by Lewis Carroll. It is the tale of a little girl, Alice, who follows a rabbit down his hole into a world where the amazing and fantastic are very very real. Some people consider "Alice" a story for children, others consider it a story for adults, but Thursday night's performance was a delight for everyone.

Director Sheila Burhart, who also performed in the play, explained how they turned the problem of a low budget into a workable theme. According to Ms. Burhart, the theatre group which originally did the show in New York worked from the central idea: "How would a group of children present this play?" Burhart's cast worked from a similar theme: How would a group of poverty-stricken college students present this play? The result was a show that sparkled with imagination and creativity.

To begin with, the box office was a good tip-off that this was no ordinary production: Audience members were given fresh carrots instead of tickets, then, following green footprints which led the way to SRO Theatre, everyone crawled through the 3 foot-high rabbit-hole door. That's what you call atmosphere!

The set was simple but effective. Multi-colored tumbling mats covered the floor and huge parachutes hung around the stage. A center-upstage sliding board was the only permanent fixture. Other than Alice, the players were costumed in jeans, sneakers, and brightly colored T-shirts and socks.

Aileen LeBlanc played Alice beautifully. The part is a roller coaster of childlike emotions - delightously happy one instant, baffled and perturbed the next. LeBlanc transcended these ups and downs, bringing a vital continuity to the play. The other cast members were Lisa Bosworth, John Fogleman, Karen Durda, Gary Winley and Laura Mae McLean. The actors assumed a different role in each scene.

Particularly memorable were Durda as Humpty Dumpty, complete with bow tie and bathing cap, and John Fogleman's dingbat do-do bird. McLean was hysterically funny as both the caterpillar perched high on a mushroom and as the doormouse at the Mad Hatter's tea party.

The show's pace seemed to drag a bit in the last scene between the White Knight (Gary Winley) and Alice. This final scene was much too long and was jumbled. As a result the White Knight wasted "the best song he knows."

Director Burhart should be very proud of this production. The staging was polished and professional. The cast worked well as an ensemble, adding songs and dances which made the show their own. Most importantly, they made the show fun for the audience - a priceless quality in a theatrical production.

Lighting for this production was designed by Karl Heide-mann and the lighting technician was James Burke.

English Club Book Sale

The bi-annual English Club Booksale pulled in over $200 during a two-day period April 2 and 3. Dr. James Collier of the English department and his wife Margaret collected book donations throughout the year and ran the booksale last week. Profits from the sale are used as prize money for the Jesse Rehder Short Story Contest and for other events sponsored by the English department.

Scholastic Honor Society Seeking Applicants

The Scholastic All-American Selection Committee is now accepting applications for the 1981 Spring Semester. Students who are active in scholastic organizations and who perform well in class are asked to join.

The Scholastic All-American is an honor society founded to recognize this country's top undergraduate and graduate students. Students are selected from over 1,280 schools covering all 50 states. Members participate in various nationally organized service projects each year.

Students are selected for consideration based on the extent of their academic and scholastic performance both in and out of the classroom. No one factor is weighed heavier when a new member is considered. A student's best asset must be his or hers "well roundedness."

Interested students are asked to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Application" Scholastic All-American, Administrative Offices, P.O. Box 237, Clinton, New York, 13323.

All students are encouraged to submit an application regardless of their grade point average.

SUB STATION II OF THE SOUTHEAST

30¢ off
on any whole sub

15¢ off
on any half sub

LIMIT ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE

SCHOOL KIDS RECORDS AND MCA RECORDS

MCA-5179

Wilmingtons only

MCA-5186

BUDDY RICH BAND

MCA-5159

RUFUS
PARTY 'TIL YOU'RE BROKE

MCA RECORDS

"NIGHT HAWKS" original motion picture soundtrack written, produced and performed by KEITH EMERSON.

MCA-5169

JIMMY BUFFETT
COCONUT TELEGRAPH

ALBUMS ONLY $5.99!

AVAILABLE ON MCA RECORDS AND TAPES

UNCW

SPORTS

More sports on page 8.

Updating The Seahawks

Baseball

The Seahawks downed the Pirates 6-3 and 3-1 to revenge four losses to ECU last season, and boast this season's record to 24-11.

UNCW met Coastal Carolina Monday and played a doubleheader with Campbell Wednesday. The Hawks travel to Old Dominion for a twin bill Saturday, then go the Pembroke State Wednesday for a single game.

Rightfielder Tom Jones has been the Seahawks' most outstanding performer recently. Jones, a junior from Maribel, was 3-for-3 with three stolen bases Saturday, and is 12-for-26 with six thefts in the last seven games. Through Sunday's games he leads the team in runs(33), hits(44), triples(6), and stolen bases(12), and is second in batting with a .346 average.

The Seahawk outfield suffered a major loss when senior Doc Lawing broke a bone in his wrist and will be out for the rest of the season. Lawing, a 6-4, 195-pound Belmont native fractured the bone sliding into second base Saturday.

Softball

UNCW's women's softball team's visit to Charlotte for an eight-team double-elimination tournament was a real trip!

The Lady Seahawks did well in the tourney finishing fourth behind Elon, A&T and host UNCC, the tourney winner. However, on the way home to Wilmington the team accumulated three traffic tickets and were involved in an accident causing over $1,000 in damages to the station wagon it was traveling in.

The team had two more road games this week - to Mt. Olive Community College Monday and to Pembroke State Wednesday. The Seahawks also had a home game Tuesday with Elon and return home next Wednesday to host NC Central for their final regular season game of the season.

After that is's on to the AIAW Division II state tournament April 24-26 in Graham. The Lady Seahawks are 17-13 overall and 13-8 against Division II opponents.

Men's Golf

The Seahawks' best performance of the year came on April 2 as they edged Campbell, 387-388, for the lone UNCW win. Bob Mailloux, a sophomore from Angus in Quebec, Canada, tied for medalist honors that afternoon with a 75.

Freshman Tom Schaffernoth, of Winston-Salem, shares the lowest 18-hole total of 72 in UNCW's five-stroke loss to Pembroke State. UNCW suffered another disappointing loss the following week to Amherst College, 410-411.

In the Pembroke State Invitational, the Seahawks' most recent match, John Cregan put together a 74 and 72 to finish second individually in the tournament.

The Seahawks are participating in the Gobbler Classic at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va. today through Saturday. UNCW closes out its season April 22-24 at the Old Dominion Invitational.

Men's Tennis

UNCW's men's tennis team closes out its 1981 season next week with a home match against Campbell and the East Carolina Invitational in Greenville.

It has not been a very pleasant spring for coach Larry Honeycutt's Seahawk netters. A current 8-13 record marks the team's worst season in five years and the second straight losing season.

The Seahawks' only bright spot has been the play of no. 1 seed player John Shackelford. The sophomore from Asheville was number-three on the team last year. This year he has the best individual record on the team with a 14-7 mark in singles' matches.

Prior to last weekend's Azalea Classic tournament with UNC-Charlotte, Campbell, and Belmont-Abbey the Seahawks had won four straight matches. The two losses - to UNCC and Belmont-Abbey - ruined UNCW's hopes for a .500 season.

Women's Tennis

The Seahawks played two matches this week - Atlantic Christian Monday and St. Andrews Wednesday - in preparation for the three-day tourney that begins next Thursday.

This season has been a real struggle as the 1-5 record indicates. In fact, in matches prior to this week UNCW had been outscored 12 - 42.

The Seahawks' lone victory was a 6-3 decision over Pembroke State March 31.

Football Club Trounces ASU

Staff photo by Janet Hundley

The UNCW football club overwhelmed the football club of Appalachian State Saturday at Legion Stadium for a 20-0 victory to conclude the 1981 spring season.

Defense sparked the Seahawks' attack. Tim Baldwin intercepted three Mountaineer passes in the UNCW secondary, and linebacker Rudy McKnight made two interceptions.

"Rudy probably played the best ballgame played by a linebacker in two years at UNCW," said third-year coach Don Corry, who'll be graduating and leaving the team now. "He was all over the field involved in every play.

"I also think we've got the best two defensive ends in our conference," Corry said.

"Donald Borden and Kenny Edwards held Appalachian to minus-yardage around the ends. They really contained the outside."

The Seahawks moved to the ASU 3-yard-line in the first quarter on a 40-yard pass from quarterback Greg Karam to Paul Wood. Karam snuck over for the Hawks first touchdown on the next play.

UNCW scored again in the second quarter on a 30-yard pass-play from Karam to Wood.

Halfback Horace Jacobs, the game's leading rusher with 173 yards, scored the 'Hawks' last touchdown on a 55-yard scamper in the third quarter.

UNCW's Dave Marshburn, playing for the first time at fullback, gained 70 yards including 30 on the first play of the game.

The football club's record is 1-1. It lost its season opener at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Improved Seahawks Seek 30 Wins

"We've got a lot of young boys who've done a pretty good job to this point," said Brooks. "Of course that's history. We need to win over 30 games before we'll even be considered for the playoffs."

The 'Hawks are seeking a bid to the NCAA tournament which begins in early May. The committee selecting teams for the field uses different variables for its decision, and UNCW's remaining games can be very important in that decision. The Seahawks have beaten several good teams that may receive bids - Stetson, Maryland, Yale, Old Dominion, and Clemson.

"NC State's the only one that's really worn us out," said Brooks. "Most of the teams we've played are having fine years, so from that standpoint with the NCAA we're in pretty good shape."

Hitting and pitching are equally important and pretty well balanced for the Seahawks. The team batting average through Sunday was .281, 36 points over the opponents.

See Baseball p. 8

COLLEGE I. D.
= 10% DISCOUNT

SUBS
TURKEY - HAM
ROAST BEEF
- SALAMI

KEG BEER
CHEAP

SUPREMES
THE KING
THE QUEEN
THE JACK

221 S. KERR AVENUE 392-0480

THE
NORTH CAROLINA EDUCATIONAL, HISTORICAL & SCIENTIFIC FOUNDATION
and the
UNCW UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD
present

THE 1981 INTERNATIONAL SCHWEITZER AWARDS

NO ADMISSION CHARGE

KENAN AUDITORIUM

Thursday, April 23

9:30 Lecture - Zen & Transcendentalism
10:30 Lecture - Zen & Shakespeare
11:00 Student/Recipient Social 11:30 Award Ceremonies
4:00 Bach Piano Recital

Friday, April 24

10:00 & 2:00 A two-session
Symposium on "The Quest of the Historic Jesus"

APRIL 25, 1981 ON BROOKS FIELD
PRESENTS

pub
new

MUSIC BY

LE ROUX

The Rob Crosby Group

SPECIAL EVENTS BY

Dr. John's

World Champion Frisbee

DISC SHOWS

Mainly MiME

GATES OPEN AT 10:00 AM

FESTIVAL STARTS AT 12 NOON

ADMISSION:

STUDENTS: $3.00 + $1.00 OPTIONAL DONATION

GENERAL PUBLIC: $6.00

NO GLASS THRU GATES

pub GRAPHICS
pub

T-SHIRTS ON SALE

ROOM 103 - $5.00

Seahawks Recruit Transfer: Women Sign 2 All-State

Basketball recruiting as an annual springtime disease. Interest in the chases for Ralph Sampson swept the nation like an epidemic two years ago. This year most of the big-name high school stars have already committed themselves to one school or another. Ewing to Georgetown, Jordan to UNC-Chapel Hill, Dreling to Wichita State, etc.

UNCW's first official recruit for the 1981-82 season won't be able to play in a game until 1982-83. He is 6-3 Scott Gray, a transfer from Dayton University in Ohio. Since he'll be transferring from one NCAA Division I school to another he is forced to sit out one academic year before being allowed to participate in an official game.

Gray, currently a freshman from Wheelersburg, Ohio, was highly recruited out of high school by the likes of Clemson and Arizona State. Once he got to Dayton he missed a lot of games due to an injury and an illness. Disappointed with his performance when he did get to play he decided to start over at UNCW. He got in touch with Seahawks Mel Gibson and received a scholarship.

"He'll come in for us year after next when we'll lose three guards," said Gibson. (Edward Timmons, Alan Salzano, and Dennis Tobin will be seniors next year.) "He'll ease the burden of replacing a guard."

Gibson said, "Defense is his specialty."

With only one scholarship remaining this season Gibson and his staff will make a careful selection. They're looking for a big man to replace 6-6 Danny Davis and 6-4 Jimmy Denton. Among the prospects, said Gibson, are a 6-6 guy from Indiana, 6-9 David Thompson of Pender County, and 6-5 Onno Stager of Shawnee Junior College in Portsmouth, Ohio.

Gibson said both Thompson and Stager had made the one allotted visit to the campus. Thompson has also visited Richmond and Syracuse. Stager made all-region as a forward at Shawnee JC.

One advantage the Seahawks have for next season is the availability of two players forced to see little and no action this past season. 6-5 Carlos Kelly and 6-8 Dave Prenatt will be sophomores on next year's team. Kelly played in the first five games of last season before suffering a broken ankle in December that forced him to sit out the rest of the season. Prenatt, who practiced regularly with the Seahawks during last season, transferred from Butler University and becomes eligible after this semester.

"Next year will be a year where we're going to have some new faces," said Gibson, "but we've also got some people who are used to the system coming in to play."

Another new face next season will be 6-5 Scott Pearce of Durham, who plans to be a walk-on. Pearce helped lead Class 3-A Jordan to the state championship this season.

The one that got away was 6-6 Mike Warren of Raleigh. He signed with NC State.

UNCW women's coach Marilyn Christoph announced the signing of three freshmen recruits for her team that won a school record 18 games last season. They are 6-0 Cathy Jones of Greensboro, 6-1 Gwen Austin of Wallace, and 5-8 Sonya Pickard of Lumberton.

Jones averaged 19.4 points and 12 rebounds a game for Smith High School. Her high-game was 40 points. She was an all-conference selection three years and Metro Player of the year as a senior.

Austin is from nearby Wallace-Rose Hill High School. She averaged 23 points and 18 rebounds with a high-game of 39 points. She made all-conference three years, first-team all-east two years, and first-team all-state as a senior.

Coach Christoph calls Pikard "A good ballhandler with good court sense - a smart player."

Baseball from p. 5.

The first four members of the hitting lineup are the heart of UNCW's offensive attack. Leadoff batter Tim Whitehead, a junior second baseman, leads the team in home runs with six and bats around The 'Hawks also have 11 hits and seven home runs more than their opponents. The pitching staff's earned run average was a tolerable 4.04 with 13 complete games.

The .300 mark. Junior right-fielder Tom Jones is the number-two hitter and the hottest player on the team right now. He leads in four categories and is second in average at .346. Senior John Milkovits, the best hitter with a .390 average, moves around from catcher to designated hitter to rightfield. He also leads in runs batted in with 30.

Clyde Holley, a 6'2", 200-pound junior first baseman from Leland, bats cleanup for the Seahawks. Batting .333 Holley had only struckout six times in 126 at-bats.

"We've got a pretty good pitching staff," Brooks said. "We've got four or five pitchers we're able to rotate without using one too much."

The development of freshman Mike Antle has been the biggest reward to the UNCW pitching staff. Antle stands 6-3, 190 and leads the team in strikeouts with 45 in 58 innings. The Tar Heel native is 6-2 in nine starts with four complete games and a 3.24 ERA.

Relief specialist Johnny Connor is 7-2 in 17 games appearances. Junior Ronald Inman leads the team with a 3.02 ERA. Ken Smith(4-1) has pitched in 60 innings with 41 strikeouts.

"Once we get this far we've got to stick to our same routine and stay in shape," said Brooks. "The main thing to look for now is wins. These remaining games are very important. We've got to take them one at a time."

"Sometimes a little success breeds success."

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Kuss

Dreamers Never Die

We've all seen them, in all walks of life. The dreamers. Male, female, tall, thin, short, chunky, they form a secret, silent brotherhood. You probably know one. Maybe, long ago, you were one.

You can spot them in a heartbeat. They're the ones with an honest-to-God aura of serenity. The color of their eyes doesn't matter, just the subtle glow that's always there. It doesn't take a lot to make them smile, and they do it everywhere: in class, grocery shopping, alone at night. For them, it seems to come naturally.

I wish I knew what makes them tick, these gentle people.

How can they exist so peacefully in today's reality? Where do they find that untroubled calmness? They glide through days that are wrapped in promise, eyes fixed on some magical inward goal. Children are drawn to them, recognizing a peculiar kind of kinship. Parents worry about them, fear that they will not survive "in the real world." Theirs is the most fragile kind of Utopia.

Others think they are inattentive when they choose to ignore pointless conversation.

They are thought to be stupid when they stare at the same page for hours. They are considered clumsy when they trip over shadows. Not so there are simply times when they are in this world, but not of it.

These chosen ones wald in the rain and celebrate the sunshine. They bask in dew-covered meadows full of wildflowers, but accept this life as here and now. They listen to and believe in James Taylor. Their minds are rarely in the same vicinity as their bodies. Their intelligence is sometimes subject to debate, for they are not those who boldly display knowledge.

Most of them have known sorrow and death. Politics are meaningless to them; Bob Dylan is where they belong. Friends are forever, or so they believe. Loyalty is the same as drawing breath.

I've loved my share of dreamers. You have, too. We hope life is gentle to them, these children of the sun. We accept them, and try to understand. We envy their tranquility, and treasure their friendship. We are them, and they are we. Most of all, we live with the ultimate truth: Dreams die, but dreamers live forever.

We have authentic scrub pants & shirts in white & assorted colors. Sleep in them or play in them.

PROFESSIONAL UNIFORM CENTERS INC.

2245 South 17th St.

Next to New Hanover Hospital

also in Whiteville, NC, Myrtle Beach, & Columbia, SC.

Wilmingtons only

HUNDREDS of 3.99 specials plus thousands of used albums from 99¢ to $2.99

School Kids Records has more new releases - more top selling albums at lower prices than any other record store in the area!

Open

11 - 8 Mon. - Thurs.

11 - 9 Fri. & Sat.

CHECK US OUT!!

North Carolina Dance Theater To Perform At Kenan

The North Carolina Dance Theater will be performing May 2 in Kenan Auditorium, in conjunction with the University Program Board's Fine Arts Committee.

Even if you've never been a bona fide patron of the arts, this nationally recognized troupe of seasoned performers is guaranteed to provide you with an evening of culture and beauty.

Premiere dancers Ricard Prewitt and Deborah Dawn are renowned for their elegant solos and pas de deux portions of the performances. During these showcases of two great talents, visual backup is provided by a superb corps de ballet.

This is a highly successful eleventh season for the North Carolina Dance Theater. A professional affiliate company of the North Carolina School of the Arts, the Dance Theater will give European premiere performances this summer, including one at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy.

An excerpt from the entertainment section of the Greensboro Record: "Rarely has a company demonstrated such versatility. This is a troupe with a new look, able to convey the emotional sense behind a piece...this company really acts as it performs, adding a new dimension to a firm foundation of basic technique."

So, for a touch of class, come on out to Kenan Auditorium May 2, at 8 p.m. Admission is $3 for students, and $6 for nonstudents. Do it - absorb some culture with the NC Dance Theater! Tickets can be purchased in the student activities office in the Pub.

North Carolina Dance Theater will be in Kenan May 2.

National Honor Society In Psychology Establishes UNCW Chapter

A chapter of Psi Chi will be officially established at UNCW on May 1, 1981. As the National Honor Society in Psychology, Psi Chi's purpose is to advance the science of psychology and to encourage, stimulate, and maintain scholarship of the individual members in all fields, particularly in psychology. Founded in 1929, Psi Chi has chapters on 480 senior college and university campuses and a membership of over 50,000. It is an affiliate of the American Psychological Association of College Honor Societies.

Faculty sponsor for this chapter is Dr. Joseph Awkard, Professor of Psychology. Accepted as charter members from the student body are: Angela Allen, Barbara Anderson, Marcia Avedon, Janice Braswell, Stephanie Ferguson, Denise Hayes, Thomas Hinkle, Kathleen A. Hornyak, Karen Housand, Ella Jayson, Julian Keith, Joanne Likens, Libby Martin, Gail Ormsby, David Powell, Sue Phifer, Cynthia Rider, Sonja Robinson, Polly Sanderson, Kathy Scott, Teresa Tesh, and Emily Thompson.

Faculty initiates are: Dr. Polly Applefield, Dr. Michael Bradley, Dr. Robert T. Brown, Dr. Joseph Kishton, Dr. Kathleen Kowal, Dr. Sue Lamb, Dr. Darwin Newton, Dr. William Overman, and Dr. Richard Sanders.

The initiation ceremony will be held on campus the evening of May 1 and installed as officers at this ceremony will be: Ella Jayson as President, David Powell as Vice-President, Sue Phifer as Secretary, and Kathleen A. Hornyak as Treasurer. Following the initiation an Installation Banquet will be held at the Boucan Room in the Heart of Wilmington Motel, downtown Wilmington.

The official name of this chapter will be "Psi Chi at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington" and membership is open to faculty and students who meet national and local requirements.

Students May Have Information Withheld

Did you know that personal and academic information about you is given to anyone that asks for it? But, by right of an act passed in 1974, this can be withheld.

Such information as name, phone number, grades, class schedule and physical factors is released to anyone unless otherwise designated.

This data, classified as "Directory Information", may be withheld under provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974.

Interested students must obtain a form from the Registrar's Office and return in signed, before next semester.

According to Dorothy Marshall, only three students have exercised the right this semester.

The problem is when a student needs to be located in an emergency. If a student agrees to have information withheld, it is done so impartially. Neither a spouse or a parent may invade it.

Don't Miss
The Fledgling

Only
$7.00 In
The Pub

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- starting salary from $15,000 - $22,500 with increases to $25,000 - $40,000 in 4 years.
- 30 days paid vacation annually fully financed graduate programs
- superior family health plan
- more responsibility and leadership opportunities
- world wide travel and adventure
- prestige and personal growth potential

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
AVIATION LAW NURSING
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS
INTELLIGENCE
CIVIL ENGINEERING
SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ELIGIBLE

THE NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus APRIL 22 & 23. An information desk will be set up outside the CAFETERIA and PLACEMENT INTERVIEWS will be conducted APRIL 22. To arrange an appointment to Officer Aptitude Test call 1-800-662-7568 toll free.

fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery

Fast, Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:

4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
 4:30 - 2:00 Fri. and Sat.

You can help us serve you and others faster if you follow these simple steps when ordering your pizza.

1. Know what you want before ordering (size of pizza, quantity, what you want on it, any drinks).
2. Give your name, your dorm name, room number, phone number (the one we can reach you at during the following half hour).
3. When placing an order, let us know if you have large denomination bills.
4. Remain by the phone after ordering. We may call back to confirm the order.
5. Price that is quoted on the phone includes sales tax but does not include the subtraction of the coupon. The driver will subtract it when the delivery is made.
6. Have the coupons and money with you when the driver arrives.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.25

16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe

5 items for the price of 4
 Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
 Onions, Green Peppers
 and Sausage

12" Deluxe $7.65

16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi

5 items for the price of 4
 Mushrooms, Olives,
 Onions, Green Peppers
 and Double Cheese

12" Vegi $7.65

16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
 Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
 Green Peppers, Olives,
 Sausage, Ground Beef,
 Hot Peppers, Double
 Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
 12" pizza $.85 per item
 16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include
 applicable sales tax.

Our drivers carry
 less than $10.00.

Limited delivery area.

Copyright 1981

$2.00
off!

$2.00 off a 16"
 large Deluxe pizza.
 One coupon per pizza.
 Expires:

Fast, Free Delivery
 4119 Oleander
 Phone: 392-5656

12057 / 5526

$1.00
off!

$1.00 off a 12"
 small Deluxe pizza.
 One coupon per pizza.
 Expires:

Fast, Free Delivery
 4119 Oleander
 Phone: 392-5656

12057 / 5526

$1.00
off!

30 minute guarantee
 If your pizza does not arrive within 30 minutes, present this coupon to the driver for $1.00 off your pizza.

Fast, Free Delivery
 4119 Oleander
 Phone: 392-5656

12057 / 5526

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Commencement exercises

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 16, 1981, at 10 a.m. in Trask Coliseum.

The bookstore began distribution of caps and gowns on Monday, April 6. Your $15 graduation fee covers the cost of the academic regalia. In addition, graduation announcements are available in the Campus Bookstore.

There will be a brief rehearsal for commencement on Friday, May 15, at 10 a.m. in Hanover Hall. Please plan to be present.

WalkAmerica to be held

The annual March of Dimes WalkAmerica is here once more. On April 25th all students are encouraged to put on their most comfortable shoes and join in the 30 kilometer walk to prevent birth defects.

"Not only does the walk promise a fun day for all, but it offers each and every one of us the opportunity to help those less fortunate than ourselves," says John Perritt,

WalkAmerica Chairman.

"Each participant gets sponsors to back him or her with monetary pledges which are used to support March of Dimes programs in birth defects research, medical service and education," he adds.

Students from UNC-Wilmington will meet at the Wrightsville Beach Park at 8 a.m. For more information, contact the March of Dimes at 392-1565.

'Between the Testaments'

The Office of Special Programs is presenting a class entitled, "Between the Testaments", on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 8-10 p.m., May 5-28. Registration deadline is April 28.

The course is concerned with providing an interpretation and overview of the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. This is literature of doubtful origins that is closely related to the Bible.

The class will meet in Kenan Hall, room 202. Dr. James McGivern will be the instructor.

The cost is $35. For further information, contact the Office of Special Programs, 791-4330, ext. 2194.

'River to the Sea' bike-a-thon

The first ever "River to the Sea" Bikeway BIKE-A-THON will be held on April 25, from 8-2, at the Greenfield Lake Bicycle Path. The event is co-sponsored by UNC-Wilmington's Outdoor Recreation Majors and Coca-Cola to raise funds for the newly proposed county-wide bikeway system. The ride is 5 to 50 miles and persons of all ages are encouraged to participate. Also, a total prize package of $1,400 will be awarded.

Sponsor forms may be picked up at the Two Wheeler Dealer and the Physical Education office in Trask at UNC-Wilmington.

For information please call, 392-6737.

NOW to march in Raleigh

New Hanover County National Organization for Women and campus feminists urge your participation in a statewide march for ERA in Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, May 2. The march, sponsored by North Carolinians United for ERA, will begin at noon at the corner of Peace and Salisbury in front of the Archdale Building in Raleigh. Bus transportation to and from Wilmington will be available. For more information call Darrel Cummings at 256-9637 or Renee Hartman at 762-7135.

Fledgling needs photographers

Do you own a 35mm camera? If so the yearbook staff sure could use your help. We need about eight or so enterprising students to shoot a roll of film for us, capturing various aspects of UNCW student life for the 1982 yearbook. If you feel you are up to the challenge call or drop by room 107 in the Pub between 3 and 4 p.m. (during General Hospital) Monday through Thursday. Phone 791-4330, ext. 2548.

Library Hours

The Library schedule for the Easter holidays is as follows: Friday-Sunday, April 17-19

CLOSED

Monday, April 20

4 p.m. - 11:30 p.m.

Tuesday, April 21

Resume Regular Schedule

Surfing Contest

The East Carolina University Surf Club is sponsoring: "The ECU-Open Invitational" at Cape Hatteras, North Carolina, Easter Weekend, April 18-19. Eight trophies will be awarded with possible team competition. Entry fee is $3 per person and the meeting place is the Light House at 8 a.m. on April 18.

Yearbooks On Sale

The 1981 edition of the Fledgling, UNCW's yearbook has arrived and is on sale. If you would like to purchase one or have ordered one, come by room 107 in the Pub Monday-Thursday, 11:30-12:30 or 3-4 and get yours today. They only cost $7, less than the price of an average high school annual.

Business Bowl

The First Annual School of Business Bowl will hold on April 22 at 3 p.m. in room 112 of Bear Business building. Teams should sign up by April 16. The public is invited to attend.

UNCW Vocalists Sing In Regional Competition

Two University of North Carolina at Wilmington students, Jayne Humphrey and Jane Caropreso, were selected to represent North Carolina in the Mid-Atlantic regional auditions of the National Association of Teachers of Singing held at Winthrop College on April 3.

The vocalists, both students of Dr. Joe Hickman, lecturer in music at UNCW, were selected for the regional competition in auditions held at Appalachian State University in late March. Thirty students were selected for the regionals from the 191 who auditioned.

Capture time in an exciting new way.
Seiko Quartz.

From $19.95

Kingoff's
INC.
WILMINGTON'S LEADING JEWELERS

NO NAME SALOON

4102 OLEANDER DR. 392-5920

UNCW NIGHT!
EVERY THURSDAY

FREE WITH ID

MUSIC WED~SUN WITH

SADDLE TRAMP

A PRIVATE CLUB FOR MEMBERS AND GUESTS - NOT OPEN TO GENERAL PUBLIC
ALL ABC PERMITS

Recruiting Visits

The following are the recruiting visits currently scheduled for April, 1981. Additional visits will be listed as scheduled in the Career Planning and Placement Office.

U.S. Navy
LCDR Spratt
Wed. & Thurs., April 22 & 23
Pos: Various
Majors: Any

Jack & Ruth Eckerd Foundation
Ms. Donna Rosenberg
Thurs., April 23
Pos: Counselors
Majors: Recreation, Psychology, Sociology

Scotland County Schools
Mr. John Massey/Mr. Robert Young
Mon., April 27
Pos: Teaching
Majors: Education: K-3, 4-9, Special Ed.

Students must be registered with the Placement Office in order to sign up for interviews and are expected to honor appointments scheduled.

Appointments with recruiters should be made in the Career Planning and Placement Office, 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Safety Office Urges Observing Campus Safety Rules

The university's Safety Office feels that observation of the following basic safety and health regulations will enhance everyone's enjoyment of campus facilities:

BICYCLES. Students are encouraged to use bicycles on campus, but should acquaint themselves with bike safety regulations and parking rules. These are posted on campus bulletin boards.

PETS. While the university sympathizes with the desire of many students to have their pets on campus, the safety and welfare of the UNCW community has made it necessary to insist that pets such as cats and dogs are not to be housed in the dorms. This ruling comes from the Wilmington Health Department, with which we must comply. The general rule is that no dogs shall be brought on campus except seeing eye dogs in the performance of their duty and dogs who accompany their masters en route to another destination and remain in a car or on a leash. Under no circumstances is a dog permitted to run loose or be brought into a building.

SMOKING. Smoking in classrooms is discouraged and should be confined to the hallways, where receptacles are provided, or outside the buildings.

FOOD AND DRINK. Food and drink should not be brought into classrooms in order to avoid accidents that may occur where beverages have spilled and health problems resulting from insects and vermin attracted to food crumbs or wrappers.

FIRE DOORS. Fire doors, usually located just inside the main doors leading to the outside of a building, must be kept closed at all times in compliance with a city ordinance.

OFF-LIMITS PROPERTY.

The eastern sector of the university's property, which is undeveloped, should not be used for any purpose by students. Comprising approximately 60% of the total campus, the area is posted with "No Trespassing" signs which should be observed. Students are, however, encouraged to visit the Bluethenthal Wildflower Preserve adjacent to the campus bookstore.

ROTC From Page One

Army or the administration. In fact, in an interview last September, Chancellor Wagoner doubted the possibility of such a program in the near future.

"The Board of Trustees has endorsed such a program in principle, but it is not possible until space and resources become available," said the Chancellor early last semester.

"We do not anticipate any immediate action," he stated in that late-September interview.

As things stand presently, the AROTC program should be in operation at UNCW by fall.

Other state campuses in North Carolina with ROTC programs are Appalachian, East Carolina, N.C. State, N.C. A & T, Chapel Hill, Western Carolina, Pembroke, Elizabeth City, and Winston-Salem.

Private universities with ROTC programs on campus include Campbell College, Duke University, and Wake-Forest.

RESUMES: Precise, Prompt & Professional
Call: 762-5540
6:00-10:00 pm daily
9:00-5:00 weekends

Anderson Conducts Trumpet

Robbie Anderson, a music major at UNCW, performed for his Senior Recital in Trumpet April 3 in Kenan Auditorium.

The program began with Concerto in D major by Torelli, then a more familiar piece by Bach. Eight other musicians played in the opening compositions, with Harry McLamb conducting Anderson is now a student of McLamb.

Next were two pieces written for trumpet and piano, a sonata by Stevens and Concerto in A Flat major by Arutyunian, a very colorful piece performed well and received the most enthusiastically by the audience. Richard Deas played the piano accompaniment.

Finishing the recital were two sets of compositions written for Brass Quintet by Dukas and Ewald.

Anderson also prepared the background information on each composer in the program notes.

(704) 794-4291

McGOWAN'S FLORIST
A MEMBER OF THE FLORIST SERVICE

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE
WILMINGTON, N.C.

1400 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
WILMINGTON, N.C. 28402

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF

on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF

any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Now comes Miller time.

THE SEAHAWK

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXIV Number 24

April 28, 1981

Twelve Pages

Three suspended after test-stealing

by Dianne Russell

Disciplinary action has been taken against eight UNCW students after their involvement in a test-stealing incident was uncovered during an investigation by the dean of students office this month.

Three students have been suspended from campus until after 1982, effective at the end of this semester, and five others are on recorded probation for the remainder of their stay at UNCW.

The situation surfaced in the psychology department when some faculty members became aware that certain students had access to tests in the department. Those faculty reported the situation to Psychology Department Chairman, John Williams, at which point an investigation was begun by Dean of Students Gary Juhan. During the investigation, Juhan discovered that the department of physical education was also involved.

According to Juhan, three work-study students who were working in the departmental offices took advantage of their positions to gain access to tests and supply illicit copies to other students on campus.

"This is one of the worst things you can do to undermine the University's honor code and the integrity of the system," said Juhan.

Although Juhan said he found no provable evidence that test copies were being sold to other students, he emphasized the powerful influence of peer pressure on work-study students to take advantage of their jobs. The three work-study students were immediately relieved of their work-study duties, according to the Dean. He would not specify whether these students were the same three who have been suspended.

"Cheating as a whole - that is, spontaneous cheating where a student looks on someone else's test or something like that - occurs quite frequently," said Juhan.

"I'm not sure those implicated in this investigation understood the seriousness of what they were doing. It's surprising; I've never dealt with a nicer group of people," he said.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs William Malloy expressed hope that the test-stealing incident has taught some lessons to those on this campus.

"If there is any good that is to come out of this incident, it is a lesson for the students involved," said Malloy.

"Hopefully, departments on campus have learned that putting students into that situation is taking a risk. Any tests run off by a department should be run off by the departmental secretary, rather than putting students into the situation where they have access to tests. Peer pressure just enhances the temptation to take advantage of the situation," he said.

Although reluctant to speak in specific terms about the test-stealing incident in his department, Psychology Department Chairman, John Williams, said the incident has stirred strong feelings in him about UNCW's honor code in general.

"The honor code should be amended to ensure that nobody could make a claim that they didn't know they were breaking the rules," said Williams. "The code's introductory statements aren't as strong as they could be, and there is a severe omission in the code, in that there is no provision dealing with repeat offenders," he said.

Williams added that he believes anyone found guilty of repeat offenses should be on automatic suspension and that second-time offenders

See TEST, p. 11.

Faun catches a frisbee in midair during Dr. John's World Champion Frisbee show at Saturday's 2nd annual Seaside Jam. This year's jam was a huge success drawing a crowd of over 2,000 people

Non-Traditional Student Organization serves special need

by Jean Willard

The Non-Traditional Student Organization is now an official service club chartered by the UNCW Student Government Association on March 5.

Its purpose is to serve the growing number of students of a non-traditional college age who have returned to the formal education process after a number of years. They now account for twenty percent of the 4,400 students enrolled at UNCW this spring, according to Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities.

Most of the non-trad students are taking courses in the business and education fields. A survey done as an honors project by Betty Chinn, Treasurer of NTS and a non-trad student, shows that 36 percent of the non-trads are pursuing graduate degrees, but the majority are working toward their bachelor's degrees.

Linda Wood, President of NTS, was one of the initiating forces behind organizing the NTS group. Wood saw the special needs of non-trads and kept working towards an organized representation to help meet these needs. "All along," Wood said, "the UNCW administration was supportive and recognized the need of an organization to represent non-traditional students."

The university is considering designing a separate orientation program for the non-traditional student, Dean of Students Gary Juhan said. He added that the university is hiring an associate dean of students who will serve as a contact person for this group.

In various meetings held this semester, according to Sherry McCarley, Vice President of NTS many non-trads suggest-

See NTS, p. 4.

Freshman wins short story contest

The Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest awards presentation was held Wednesday morning in the library auditorium.

Freshman Vicki Bartosik, a psychology major, was awarded first prize of $50 for her short story "Dried Flowers," an engrossing account of a day in the life of an old woman who awaits the arrival of her family from out of town.

Second place went to Barbara Grob, a senior English major, for her story "False Start," and third place went to Terri Marshall for her story "Thirteen Candles." Marshall is a senior communications major at UNCW. Honorable mention went to students Sam Lewis, for "Undermined," and Charles Horton, Jr. for "Evening's Call."

The awards were presented by Henry Rehder, brother of the late Jessie Rehder, whom the contest commemorates. Jessie Rehder was director of creative writing at Chapel Hill for many years and is best known for her novel Remembrance Way.

Judges for this year's contest were educator David James and Bennet L. Steelman, who writes for the Star News. In an opening statement, James praised the efforts of all the writers who submitted stories to the contest.

"Writing is important in a time when people are becoming increasingly devoted to television and less and less devoted to the written word," he said.

Doug Swink of the creative arts department read the winning story to the audience. The presentation was followed by a brief reception.

Search for associate dean continues

by Mark Stanland

The search for the replacement of the late Dean of Students, Helena Cheek, is nearing the final stages, and there has been a large response from position announcements, according to Gary W. Juhan, Dean of Students.

The position announcement for the new associate dean was advertised around the 16 state colleges and with the Southern College Personnel Association but only 19 to 20 applications were received as a result.

"The application deadline had originally been set for the end of February, but we wanted a larger application pull," said Dean Juhan.

In hopes of a larger response, a position announcement was also advertised for two weeks in THE CHRONICLE OF HIGHER EDUCATION. The application deadline has been extended to May 29, and thus far over 90 applications have been received, Dean Juhan said.

The dean's office plans to begin sorting through applications by the end of May and to make choices for interviews, which will be scheduled for June.

A search committee will schedule these interviews, and recommendations for filling the position will be made to the Vice Chancellor and Chancellor, Dean Juhan said. The Board of Trustees must also approve the recommended applicant.

See DEAN, p. 3.

LETTERS

TKE not responsible

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to inform the co-authors of the letter "TKE MASTERPIECE" and the rest of the student body that TAU KAPPA EPSILON was not, in any way, responsible for the painting of the "uninteresting and dull sidewalk as well as an unimposing and inconspicuous bulletin board." It amazes me to think that someone in college is capable of making such a mistake as naming the wrong fraternity even when there were two-foot-high letters painted everywhere and embarrassing so many people especially when one considers that wherever the men and women of the greek system of this campus go, they go with pride, pride in their university, and pride in themselves. The men of TKE are especially proud and have left excellent impressions when they attended two conferences this year (one being a district meeting out of state). Also the TKE chapter is sending several representatives to a national meeting in August and these brothers go with the knowledge that they come from a damn fine university with one of the most beautiful campuses in the nation.

In closing I would like to say that the painting of the sidewalk and bulletin board was an unfortunate and untasteful act that never should have happened and that a very thorough investigation was conducted and the paint will be removed at the artist's expense because the fraternities and sororities feel a very deep pride and desire to keep this campus beautiful. As for Mr. Kunz and Mr. McDaniel, my suggestion would be to come down out of the clouds, open your eyes, and show some evidence of intelligence by acquiring the proper information and writing accurate letters.

Thank you
Pete Divoky
vice President, TKE

Tau, Pi - It's all Greek to me

To the Editor:

I would like to point out my supreme stupidity concerning the graffiti painted at the cafeteria here at this campus. It seems I've made a little mistake. . . I named erroneously Tau Kappa Epsilon as the perpetrator of the vandalism. It seems that in my ignorance of Greek letters I mistook TKE for the letters of Pi. Kappa Phi fraternity. I would like to make an apology to the members of TKE for my error. In fact, it seems that TKE has approached the Inter-Fraternity Council to see that the perpetrators of this act of vandalism should recompense their deeds. I would like to say that, furthermore, I do endorse such activities fully and hope to wish them luck in their endeavors. Although my ignorance cannot be excused, I would like to apologize once again, and praise them for their efforts.

Humbly and apologetically yours,
Walter C. Kunz, Jr.

A vulture named ROTC

To the Editor:

Following the news of Reagan cutting tuition assistance programs, a creature stirred from the woodwork and descended on UNCW. Like a vulture it circles overhead hoping to catch a money-starved student. ROTC is its name, and it is a shame it came.

It may be just my imagination, but it seems funny that ROTC should come out of nowhere after news of the budget cuts. The administration needs something to make the school look big and the Army wants bodies. The students of UNCW will end up paying in some way for all this mess.

UNCW is crowded - so crowded we have to go to 8 a.m. classes next semester (yawn!). Waiting lists are miles long for the dormitories and there are barely enough teachers to teach the programs they have now. Where are they going to put these 'beginning Patton's', where will they be trained, and who will teach them? In your dormitories, in your classrooms and with your instructors, paid for by your tuition money. They may not have much effect now, but like a cancer they'll grow. In a few years it might as well be "Fort UNCW".

Think about the poor students who are being sold this program. Betsy Aaron on NBC did a story on how army recruiters stretch the truth to trick innocent people into joining. That recruiter in the cafeteria sounds just like those on TV. So, watch out Seahawks, one slip of the pen around campus could put you in combat fugitives for a decade. But seriously, is it right for those people to practice chicanery in the very heart of this institution of higher education?

I'm not downgrading the military. Though it is not as professional as it used to be, it is still an honored profession. I just feel we (UNCW) don't need it right here, right now. I wonder what the Board of Trustees was on when they said ROTC could come.

Finally, the lead paragraph in last week's SEAHAWK tells of a brigade of young men charging down a field. Last time I saw that on a college campus was last semester, on TV, on a documentary about Kent State. College campuses should forever be demilitarized zones.

RELAX... IF YOU CAN'T FIND YOUR LUGGAGE... IT'LL PROBABLY BE ON THE NEXT SHUTTLE...

"Tin soldiers and Reagan's coming..."

Disparagingly,
Don Roberts
Sophomore

Volunteer woodcutters help needy

To the Editor:

The Cape Fear Voluntary Action Center Woodcutting Project for the period November 1980-April 1981 has been brought to a successful conclusion. For your information we cut and delivered approximately 150 loads of wood to persons in need of help. In most of these cases these families had wood as their only source of heat because of either financial conditions or inadequate or non-existent heating units in their homes.

It may interest you to know that this project was conducted entirely by volunteer efforts.

On behalf of the Voluntary Action Center and the many persons helped because of unselfish efforts, I express my appreciation to Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity for a job well done. If everyone, in communities such as ours across America gave of their time to aid persons less fortunate than them as APO has, think of the great progress that could be made in eliminating poverty, ignorance, and other ills we must cope with.

Our efforts in this field will resume again in September or October. We hope APO will be available at that time to help in this program. From all of us, it was a pleasure knowing and working with them.

Sincerely,
Earl Brooks, Coordinator
VAC Woodcutting Project

Vice-president says thanks

To the Editor:

After many long, hard days campaigning for the office of student body vice president, I finally reached my goal for the year. I would like to take

See VP, p. 3.

The SEAHAWK is now accepting applications for the following positions.

Business Manager
Sports writers
Staff writers
Layout personnel

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Dianne Russell, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Susan Lewis, Advertising Manager

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Production: Walter Bengtson, Jr.

Advertising: Leslie Gabbel

Sportswriters: Dave Newbern Kim Vajta

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, David Carter, Judy Stals, Brad Wheeler, Beri Marshall, Dianne Russell, Muriel Ross,

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Business Advisor: Linda Moore

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of the University at North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

On women degraded: the myth of the American dream-girl

I sit here reading a small front page article in a past issue of the Wall Street Journal. It discusses the problem of sexual harassment faced by many working women. In italics at the conclusion of the article is a statement by a top business executive in a New York firm, claiming that sexual harassment is difficult to pinpoint because "there are some women who consider being called a girl to be degrading." Perhaps it is the italics, perhaps the words "some women," but an image forms in my mind of the executive leaning over his desk, pencil poised authoritatively in his hand, a smirk on his lips as he passes on his observation to the reporter. Their eyes meet and they exchange non-verbal sympathies with shrugs and signs and doubting shakes of the head.

Maybe I am unfair, but the fact is, those men will never know the bitter experience involved in that kind of degra-

Student Forum

By Dianne Russell

dation. They can laugh and shrug it off as so much more evidence of the "fickle female," but I cannot laugh. I did not laugh in French 101 when I was called "jeune fille" and the boy in front of me, "jeune homme." Again images. "Jeune fille" always conjured up images for me of a field of young fillies, the storybook kind with round dappled haunches and eyelashes that undulated with a blink, a field of these horses, horses romping and frolicking coyly, forever young, in front of their male onlookers, prospective buyers perhaps, admiring them from the fence. "Jeune fille" made me squirm, and that's what degradation is: squirming. Being made to feel very uncomfortable: deeply and personally insulted. "Jeune fille" made me squirm and so does "girl" when applied to a woman. Girls and boys are children, adolescents: learning, but still not competent; responsible, but still naive; helpful, but never wise. For men to refuse to recognize women as women is to refuse to recognize women as capable, functioning adults. "Girl" is a symbol of a male dream, created and perpetuated by the male will, for male convenience. It is a dream of the dependent, submissive, and therefore inferior female, who is, to male delight, forever and forever young.

Society feeds on this dream. George Burns has become a national hero because, well in to his eighties, he dates twenty-five year olds. Women are swamped with stay-young products: products to wash away the gray, to bleach age spots, to smooth away wrinkles. Women are not only denied the respect that comes with age, but even the natural process of aging. Aging is an unnatural process for the female body. It is failure. Society's emphasis on youthful women has knocked women down to a marketable level.

Like cars and horses, they become purchases that grow old and useless with age. And their function? While in the glory of her youth, woman exists for man's sexual pleasure. In the male dream, women are nothing more than sexual objects.

Objects are items; they can be bought and sold. Women as sexual objects are the most bought and sold items on the market today. From television "jiggle sex"--Suzanne Somers, a spattering of thighs and cleavage and bare navels across the screen--to the cover of Penthouse, women are being prostituted in the broad, legal daylight. Society is her pimp and her john. This is degrading. But a deeper degradation comes from society's unquestioning acceptance of it all. Pornography is king. Hugh Hefner is a celebrity, allowed to celebrate his kingdom with television specials. But what he celebrates is nothing more than the degradation of women, which has made her into a marketable product and made him rich. Hugh Hefner is a successful pimp. And it all will persist as long as the male dream dominates reality, as long as women are viewed as less than human beings, as objects put on the earth to serve men.

VP, from p. 2.

this time to thank all of those who supported me during the election. Of course, I can not list all of you, but I would like to say I greatly appreciated all 493 students who took the time and initiative to put a check beside my name. I also would like to grant a special thanks to Pete Divoky, Nancy Kelker,

Ed Paul, Jr., Lynne Wells, and the newly elected SGA President, Charles Parsons - for those are the students who strongly supported me with their assistance.

I promise nothing but hard work. My goal will be to make the student government a more viable and responsive organization. I encourage everyone to work together, students and the SGA, to make the 1981-82 Student Government Association a success.

Thank you,
Steve Schmidt
SGA Vice President

DEAN, from p. 1.

Dean Juhan said the dean's office hopes to have a replacement at least by July 1.

"I'm real excited about having an associate dean," he added. "I hope to see some new, positive programs started on campus."

The Hot Line

Fast...Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Our Superb Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Onions, Anchovies, Green Peppers, Olives, Sausage, Ground Beef, Hot Peppers, Double Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry less than $10.00.

Limited delivery areas.
Copyright 1981

Dinner for 4

Only $7.00!
Includes a 16" 1 item pizza and 1 qt. of Pepsi. Price includes tax. Customer pays deposit. One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 5-3-81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

12342 5656

Dinner for 2

Only $5.00!
Includes a 12" 1 item pizza and 1 qt. of Pepsi. Price includes tax. Customer pays deposit. One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 5-3-81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

Unique family-style theatre in Nags Head this summer

"Summer theatre family style," featuring lively musical revues and original programming for children, premieres June 13 in The Shell, Nag's Head's unique new entertainment showcase.

Housed in a Portomod dome in the Galleon Esplanade, The Shell will stage three seafaring or star-striped shows daily six days a week through September 7. Old flicks with a swashbuckling flair will be screened in between live performances. (During the winter The Shell will be rented out as a meeting hall.)

According to Managing Producer, Emily Hyatt, The Shell goal is to offer tourists on the Outer Banks "a total family entertainment experience different from what they could find anywhere else."

UNCW students make WHO's WHO 1981

Thirty-four students at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington have been selected for inclusion in the 1981 edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES.

UNCW's representatives were selected by a committee of students and administrative faculty. They are Andrew Kent Allison, Michelle Fay Bond, Douglas Robert Browne, Gary Wayne Carter, Jack Gaylor Carter, Paula Charlene Chewning, Franklin Edwards Colvin, Francis Xavier DeLuca, Bruce Elliott

"Broadway shows presented in local dinner theatres or little theatres are a 'dime a dozen.' What we're offering - revues of familiar song and dance favorites performed by a professional cast of eight actors, dancers, singers, and instrumentalists - is unusual and dynamic. Because we have chosen to diversify and present a different theatre form, I think we will be successful - both artistically and financially," she said.

Hyatt said she also hopes The Shell can present some experimental theatre in future seasons.

"Once we get this enterprise off the ground, we want to give promising new writers and performers a showcase for their talents," she said.

For now, however, the entire artistic burden of writing and choreographing the seven different shows to be presented during the season is borne by Janie Musten, a veteran performer and director.

Musten, appearing in the company of such stars as Dick Van Dyke, Chita Rivera, Hal Holbrook, Tony Randall, and Vincent Price, has acquired a long list of stage and television credits. She was assistant musical director of the national tour of "How to Succeed..." and musical director of regional productions of "Fiddler on the Roof," "Little Mary Sunshine," "Boys From Syracuse," and "A Funny Thing Happened..." She has also directed, choreographed and produced a USO tour and an American Revue at the Kennedy Center.

Musten, speaking from her cottage by the sea in Nag's Head, said she has been working on the programming for The Shell since October.

"This has been one of the biggest challenges of my career, but I think we can bring good theatre here, and I think the people are ready for it," she said.

Besides its unique format, The Shell is also distinguished by its female management team. According to Hyatt, no other show in North Carolina boasts both a female producer and director.

Hyatt and Musten have directed several projects relating arts to school curriculum through the nationally recognized Arts in the Basic Curriculum program sponsored by the John D. Rockefeller, III Fund. Hyatt has also produced an arts camp for children in Dare County.

Hyatt's Husband, Robert, currently director of marketing and development for the North Carolina Symphony and former Lost Colony general manager, will act as co-producer of The Shell.

For further information contact: Emily B. Hyatt, Managing Producer, Box 391, Mantoloking, N.C. 279

ANSWERS, from p. 12.

ALAN	GWONE	ROBS
MOTO	ROBOW	SPRE
UNAP	TRING	SENT
REPEAL	YORREMS
TILT	RAIM
PANTHERS	VOTERS
SWEAT	APPEL	SLIT
FAH	SEC	CHORDS
UKES	ZERO	PSALM
DEWLA	P	TAIPISES
OLLA	EIRE
DIASPO	RAISED
ARCH	DIS	TELLERS
PAITE	ESSEN	ERGO
NEER	RENEC	ROSS

RESUMES: Precise, Prompt & Professional
Call: 762-5540
6:00-10:00 pm daily
9:00-5:00 weekends

NTS, from p. 1.

ed a need for academic advising at night, more flexible registration hours and childcare facilities geared to student parents' needs.

As their first official project, the NTS organization sponsored a forum on March 17 to present SGA presidential and vice presidential candidates. The forum provided an opportunity for the candidates to state their platforms and for students to learn the candidates positions on specific p.m. in the library on both election nights. The voter turnout during these hours was significant according to

George Ward, SGA Elections Board Chairman.

The Non-Traditional Student Organization hopes that as an organized group it can provide a network system to assist non-trads in many areas and generally to help them become acclimated to the challenges of academic life.

issues and policies. NTS also manned ballot boxes from 6-9

Law-learning opportunities in D.C.

Students wanting to test their interest in law and public service or those wanting marketable skills have four unique opportunities this summer in Washington, D.C., with the National Public Law Training Center.

"Public Benefits and Entitlements," June 15-19, offers basic information for those expecting to work with under-represented or economically disadvantaged populations. The curriculum addresses the regulations, eligibility criteria and due process rights for consumers of such programs as Social Security, Unemployment Insurance, and Food Stamps. Cost is $375.

"Legal Advocacy Skills," June 22-26, will put students a step ahead in their education. Classes will develop participants' abilities in legal writing and research, client representation, investigation and documentation, and handling administrative hearings. Combined with "Public Benefits," cost is $650; "Legal Advocacy Skills" alone, $375.

"The Advocacy Spectrum," July 13-17, focuses on the establishment, development and strengthening of community advocacy and ombudsman programs. Skills development will range from empowerment to legislative strategies to legal reform. Cost is $375.

"Negotiation and Mediation Skills," August 5-8, will allow participants to practice alternative dispute methods which are being used more often as litigation becomes a slower and costlier process. Increasingly, community practitioners are resolving disputes between landlords and tenants, family members, neighbors, and employers and employees in settings outside of a courtroom. Cost is $350.

NPLTC is a non-profit, educational organization that conducts seminars each month which teach law to non-lawyers. Each NPLTC course provides a thorough knowledge of regulations, legal options, administrative procedures and advocacy strategies.

National experts teach the classes using a variety of techniques - lectures, films, role plays, small group discussions and simulations.

To enroll, a participant must submit an application form (available on request) and a $20 deposit no later than three weeks before a program begins. Participants are usually sponsored by their employers or through training grants they obtain locally. Fees covering training and materials average $350 for each course. Lodging is arranged by NPLTC, but is not included in the program fee. A brochure on each course, providing class topics, itemized costs, and an application form, is available three months in advance.

For information, contact NPLTC, 2000 p. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 872-0660.

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

Long Leaf Mall next to cinemas

$1.25 OFF
on any Valentino's
EXTRA LARGE 16" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

$1.00 OFF
any Valentino's
LARGE 14" PIZZA

(Can Not Be Used With Daily Special)

VALENTINO'S PIZZA

FOR FAST SERVICE
CALL AHEAD ON
ORDERS TO GO

392-0826

LONG LEAF MALL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Dr. Terry Mount and Dr. Joann Mount become Danforth Associates.

UNCW Spanish professors earn honor

by Mark Stanland

Drs. Terry and Joann Mount of the department of Modern Languages have been appointed Danforth Associates, according to a news release from the Danforth Foundation, St. Louis, Mo.

The Mounts are two of 531 persons in colleges and universities to be appointed to the Danforth Associate Program. More than 8500 persons representing all academic fields in more than 1000 colleges and universities participate in the program, according to the release.

"The program is unique in that associates work directly with students on a personal basis in an effort to improve student-faculty relations and to strengthen the teaching-learning process," said Gene L. Schwilck, president of the Danforth Foundation.

Established by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, the Danforth Foundation is a national organization dedicated to improving the quality of teaching and learning.

Conferences are held for associates to discuss and possibly develop new styles and skills for more effective teaching and bettering faculty-student relationships.

Office of Special Programs will sponsor three business seminars

The Office of Special Programs is sponsoring three one-day programs in May for persons interested in business.

The program entitled Leadership Development will be conducted May 14 from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. in room III, Bear Business Building.

This course is designed to provide individuals with an understanding of the complexities of leadership.

Dr. Stephen Harper will instruct the class. The cost is $35.00. Registration deadline is May 7.

Interpersonal and Organizational Communication for Managers will be held May 19 from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in room III at Bear Hall.

This seminar will provide participants with a greater awareness of communication to increase participant's effectiveness in communicating in business and non-business organizations.

Dr. Betty Jo Welch will conduct the class. The program fee is $35.00 per participant. Registration deadline is May 12.

The Special Programs Office will also sponsor Motivation and Productivity on May 21 from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. in room

III at Bear Hall.

This program will include things such as motivation techniques and ways to increase productivity.

The instructor will be Dr. Stephen Harper. The fee is $35.00. Registration deadline is May 14.

Don't miss
the Fledgling!

Only $7.00
in the Pub

Arts Council May Calendar

DATE	EVENT	TIME	PLACE
9	MAYFAIR		Gov. Dudley Mansion
10	"Maytime"	8 p.m.	Thalian
15-17	December's Drama	8 p.m.	Art Center
24	Good Vibes at Edgewater
28-31	"Over Here"	8 p.m.	Thalian

NO
NAME SALOON

4102 OLEANDER CR. 392.5920

UNCW
NIGHT!
EVERY THURSDAY FREE
WITH ID

MUSIC WED~SUN
WITH

SADDLE TRAMP

A PRIVATE CLUB FOR
MEMBERS AND GUESTS - NOT
OPEN TO GENERAL PUBLIC
ALL ABC PERMITS

Update: University Union

The west side of the University Union building facing highway 132.

Union to 'provide means to bring together offices, services to convenience

Due to construction delays, the latest estimate for the completion of the new University Union is the spring semester of 1983. Containing approximately 50,000 square feet, the union is being built by the Harnett Construction Co. at a cost of between three-and-one-half-million dollars.

The Union will be located around the corner from the bookstore near the Wildflower Preserve, and will have the same Georgian architectural design as other buildings on the campus. There will be columns across the main entrance and arches similar to those of the library along the west side. This side will also have a rotunda entrance.

The new University Union will consolidate student services. It will provide the means to bring together in one building the offices and services to more conveniently serve students. After its opening, the union will house the student supply store, the University Health Service, and a post office.

The post office will have mailbox space for every student, whether resident or commuter. Initially 6,000 mailboxes will be installed with room for more as the enrollment grows. The post office will have its own zip-code. Also, in this area will be space for automatic banking services.

The union will consist of two stories built around a courtyard with a one story wing extending from the back of the structure. The first floor will house the post office, dining area, and the Student Supply Store. There will also be dressing rooms and storage and office space. A game room and a living room with two gas-fired fireplaces and a glass-enclosed study area will be located on the first floor.

A multi-purpose room, approximately 73 by 39 feet, will be available for concerts, dances, and other activities. There will be a ceiling-suspended screen and a control room for sound, lights and projectors. The dressing rooms in this area will provide a private place for performers to change and relax. A moveable partition can divide the room if necessary for two smaller events occurring simultaneously or, if a large crowd is expected, they can overflow into the landscaped courtyard.

The second floor will house the student and administrative offices and meeting rooms. According to Linda Moore, the architect has understood the whole idea of the university's needs and has created a workable layout d includes for the d offices. Fledgling

Office s radio included productio program will be s for prod

The se location Activitie

n to open in spring 1983

ntly serve students' efficient office design. This layout administrative offices director and staff, SGA and Seahawk and g office.

space for a future FM station has been with one studio for on, one for on-the-air ming, and one that share with Video Tape uction.

cond floor is also the for the Student Director and staff and the University Program Board. Another feature is club closets which may be rented by the various clubs to be used for files or as storage areas and two small meeting rooms and two medium-sized meeting room.

The lounge on the second floor will be a quite, nicely decorated room for more formal purposes. Its atmosphere will be conducive to religious services or formal ceremonies such as iniation of club offices.

Combination of monetary sources finances Union

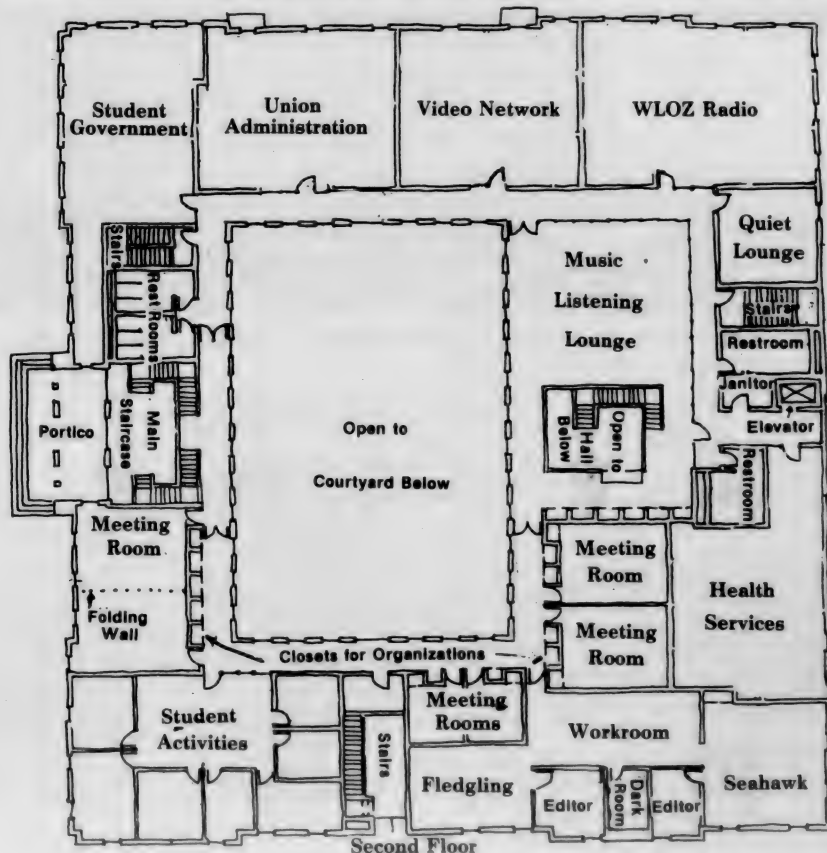

The University Union now under construction will cost approximately 3.5 million dollars. It will be financed with a combination of student fees, revenue bonds, and health and food service funds.

As with the bookstore, residence halls and food service facilities, the new Union must be a "self-supporting" operation, constructed and operated without the benefit of state appropriations. Therefore, a new student fee was required this year, to increase the Union's income now, at a time when many of the costs of the project must be paid. Site clearing, subsoil borings, fill dirt, drainage culverts, and the extension of utility lines are examples of services which must be accomplished and paid for before construction can begin. Before the building is occupied, a large amount of money will also be needed to purchase furnishings, pay the architect, and cover operating costs.

Revenue bonds will be issued for 2,750,000 to provide the funds not on hand. Student fees not collected during the life of the bond will be used to repay the bond's interest and principal.

Choice's drummer enjoyed Saturday's blue, sunny skies. Choice played first at Seaside Jam and set the mood for the rest of the day by returning with two enthusiastic encores. The Rob Crosby Group and Le Roux performed later in the afternoon.

PEANUTS®

RADIO WAVES

UNCW

SPORTS

Updating the Seahawks

Softball team reaches state tourney.

The UNCW women's softball team finished with a 24-14 regular-season record to earn a berth to the NCAIAW state tournament this past weekend in Graham.

The Lady Seahawks' opponent was not named until after press deadline Thursday.

"It's actually a regional qualifying tournament because there are teams from all three divisions competing," coach Debbie Dowd said. UNCW is a Division II member of the AIAW.

Outfielders Marva Graham and Melony Williams were the team's top hitters with .333 batting averages. Sherri Bray batted .301 and led in runs batted in with 20. Joy Champion batted .298 with 18 RBI.

Men's tennis end season at ECU.

The UNCW men's tennis team closed out its season over the weekend in the East Carolina Invitational at Greenville. The Seahawks finished their dual-match schedule last Wednesday against Campbell. The 'Hawks' 8-13 record mark their second straight losing record and worst results in five years.

UNCW won four consecutive matches in late-March and early-April to threaten at break-even season, but lost twice in the Azalea Classic to kill chances at finishing .500.

Number-one player John Shackelford, only a sophomore who played in the number-three spot last season, had the best individual record for the Seahawks. He was 14-7 prior to the ECU tournament.

UNCW golfers close with 1-4 mark

The UNCW men's golf team concluded its season last week in the Old Dominion Invitational, the Seahawks' fourth tournament participated in this spring.

Tom Shaffernoth's two-day 75-74-149 total in the recent gobbler Classic at Virginia Tech was only three strokes behind the tourney medalist.

UNCW was 1-4 in dual-match competition.

Lady netters finish 1-8

The UNCW women's tennis team participated in the NCAIAW Division II state tournament at Guilford College this weekend despite a disappointing 1-8 regular season record.

Coach Jackie Bartlett cited number-four player Cindy Watson as the Lady Seahawks' best shot in the state tourney. "We've lost two players between the fall and spring, and that really hurt," Bartlett said. "Everybody had to move up a couple of spots and play against much tougher players."

Seahawk Sports Editor got early start

by Jill Davis

SEAHAWK Sports Editor, Tony Britt isn't new to sports, just to the SEAHAWK. His first article was published in the DURHAM MORNING HERALD at age 15.

At that time Britt was deeply involved in high school sports. He commented, "I played football, basketball, baseball, wrestled, ran a little track - did a bit of everything, but didn't specialize."

The UNCW freshman's real interest in sports writing came when calling in scores as manager for a Carrington junior high school team.

As his sports interest grew, Britt noticed the DURHAM MORNING HERALD had high school students working for it. He took the initiative to ask for a job and was hired in February 1977.

By age 16 he was writing two to three hours a week for the HERALD as well as writing for his high school newspaper.

In November 1979, THE WASHINGTON POST called Britt's supervisor, Sports Editor Keith Drum, asking for coverage of the North Carolina Central University vs. Howard University football game.

When Drum suggested Britt, the POST spokesman said, "We don't want a high school student; we want someone dependable." But Drum went with his better judgement and asked Britt to write the story.

Two weeks later at only age 17, Britt received a payroll check from THE WASHINGTON POST for publishing his article.

In December 1980, Britt ended three years of writing on the HERALD sports staff to move to Wilmington and become a UNCW student.

He is now writing part time (two- or three-day assignments) for the WILMINGTON STAR NEWS.

Britt commented that responses to his work have not

The final week of UNCW's 1981 baseball season may be the most demanding of the year. The Seahawks faced nationally-ranked South Carolina yesterday, host Charleston Baptist today and tomorrow, then travel to UNC-Chapel Hill at the end of this week to conclude the schedule.

The 17th ranked Gamecocks' earlier game with UNCW was called after four innings because of rain. Seahawk coach Bill Brooks was the most upset because UNCW held a 6-2 lead at the time of the decision.

The Baptist Buccaneers defeated UNCW in back-to-back games earlier this season, 0-3 and 8-7, on the Seahawks' first road trip.

The Tar Heels, an Atlantic Coast Conference power, beat the Seahawks, 11-6, here on March 31.

Despite the stiff competition the 'Hawks face this week, they'll be trying to match a school record of 30 wins set in 1970. This year's team has already set one record for most victories since joining NCAA Division I. The season record prior to this weekend's games with East Carolina was 27-14. The old NCAA team record was 25 set in 1976.

UNCW walloped Pembroke State, 14-1, Wednesday as John Milkovits and Clyde Holley homered. Holley's homer was his seventh of the season, tying him with second baseman Tim Whitehead for the lead. Holley went 4-for-6. Whitehead went 4-for-5, and Milkovits and Paul Murry each had four runs batted in. Milkovits' team-leading RBI total reached 39. Milkovits also leads in batting average at .386.

Another top hitter is junior rightfielder Tom Jones. Jones always been favorable, although the majority have been. Even the negative reactions don't bother Britt, however.

Britt

"It's important to know what your readers think," he said. "I try not to brag, but I am proud of what I do because there is a lot more responsibility in this job than other jobs. If you do something wrong, you hear about it."

'Hawks wind up successful season

Jones

leads in hits (53), stolen bases (13) and triples (7) which he is 10th in the nation. He's the number two batter with a .356 mark.

Relief pitcher Johnny Connor and freshman starter Mike Antle have combined for 15

Connor

wins and only 6 losses.

Connor, a senior, stands 7-3 in 19 game appearances. Antle (8-3) leads the 'Hawks in innings pitched (75) and strikeouts (53), and is second in earned run average.

Davis in all-star flop

UNCW's Danny Davis, Barry Taylor and Dave Hanners combined for 95 points to lead the Red Squad to a 115-101 win over the Blue squad last Friday night (4-17) in Trask Coliseum in a college seniors all-star basketball game.

Actually the game was a huge disappointment as only three players invited from UNCW, South Carolina or the Atlantic Coast Conference showed up - Davis, Jimmy Denton of UNCW and Jim Suddath of Duke.

Taylor, a graduate student at UNCW who was an all-Southern Independent selection for the Seahawks a year ago, and Hanners a former UNC-Chapel Hill player and now an assistant coach at UNCW, were two of the fill-in players used to make the substituted lineups.

Other players included two UNC-Chapel Hill football players, Laney High's basketball coach, and some guy from Capital University in Columbus, Ohio. Ever heard of Capital University?

Davis tied with the Blue's Willis McRae of Gardner-Webb for scoring honors with 39 points apiece. Taylor scored 29, Hanners 27, and Denton scored 24 for the Blues.

UNCW runners shine in meet

UNCW's Al Brantley won the 10,000 meters in 36 minutes and Robbie Burke took the 1,500 meters in 4:06 last Saturday, April 18 at the St. Andrews Invitational track meet in Laurinburg.

Julian Keith, a third member of the UNCW cross country team, was second in the 5,000 meters with a 16:43 clocking.

Brantley, Burke, and Keith were the only Seahawk participants and accumulated 21 points to finish fourth among five teams.

WHY NOT BOWL
THIS WEEK-END
AT

CARDINAL LANES

32 LANES - SNACK BAR - GAME ROOM
OPEN LANES MOST ANY TIME
SPECIAL RATES 12 MIDNITE TO 2:00 A.M.

OPEN BOWLING
SCHEDULE

DAY TIMES
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 til 6 p.m.
Sat. 1:30 til 2 a.m.
Sun. 10 a.m. til 6 p.m.

NITE TIMES (D.O.D.)

Mon. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Tues. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Wed. 8:30 p.m. til closing
Fri. 12 MID. til 2 a.m.
Sat. 1:30 p.m. til 2 a.m.

PHONE 799-3023
3907 SHIPYARD BLVD.

Collection of antique music donated to Rare Book Room

by Wendy Robbins

The Helen Hagan Rare Book Room houses many fascinating and unique publications, and the Laura Harriss Howell Collection of music is no exception.

This particular collection of nineteenth century music was donated to the Rare Book Room at the beginning of the fall semester by Laura Schorr, a Wilmington resident.

When asked why she gave her private music collection to UNCW, Mrs. Schorr replied, "I want all my Wilmington papers to stay in Wilmington. I'm very loyal to Wilmington."

She also added that the idea originated from Walser Allen, an instructor in the history department, who suggested she speak to Director of Library Services Eugene Huguélet about giving the music to the University.

Mrs. Schorr said she was "thrilled" that UNCW wanted the collection, which originally belonged to her grandmother, Laura Harriss Howell.

Mrs. Schorr described her grandmother as "quite a fine musician," who sang and played the piano and guitar. According to Mrs. Schorr, her grandmother bought most of the music in New York.

Dr. Sherrill Martin, instructor in the music department, has extensively studied American music and is currently researching the Howell Collection.

According to Dr. Martin, most of the collection consists of music from the 1840s to the 1850s, at a time when Laura Harriss Howell was growing up. Howell married just prior to the Civil War, and died on May 12, 1911.

The antique music was recently catalogued, and the entire collection, said Dr. Martin, represents approximately 61 bound volumes in addition to about 250 separate sheets of music.

"It really is an incredibly large collection," Dr. Martin explained. "I believe that this is the most significant and the largest collection of nineteenth century American music that was owned by a single person. There are other collections that are larger and they were owned by several people, but for a single person I think this must be the largest extant collection."

In addition to the nineteenth century music, Mrs. Schorr also donated a large amount of twentieth century music, which is listed as the Schorr Collection. Included in this group of music is a first edition of "Carolina in the Morning," which was published in 1922.

Dr. Martin has primarily confined her research efforts to the Howell Collection, and she has discovered some interesting things.

Perhaps the most exciting discovery Dr. Martin made involves a piece of music with a picture of singer Jenny Lind on the cover. Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," was "certainly the most famous singer of the nineteenth century," said

[L to R]: Eugene Huguélet, Laura Schorr, Sherrill Martin.

Dr. Martin. Beside the picture is what could be Lind's actual signature.

Since Lind was reputed to have come through Wilmington in 1850, there has been speculation that the autograph is original. Dr. Martin said that efforts are being made to determine the authenticity of the signature.

"We are trying to find out now," she explained. "We have actually sent out a number of letters to people who have done a great deal of research and there is a good possibility it is original."

Mrs. Schorr isn't quite so optimistic, however.

"My Presbyterian conscience will not let me say that is her autograph," she stated. "To me it doesn't seem possible or in any way feasible that it is her original autograph."

There is an "incredible" number of first editions included in the collection, said Dr. Martin. "Dixie" (1860) and the hymn "He Leadth Me" (1864) are two examples of first editions, along with four Stephen Foster tunes, "Old Uncle Ned" (1848), "Old Folks at Home" (1851), "Oh Boys Carry Me 'Long" (1851) and "My Old Kentucky Home" (1853).

Henry Russell, whom Dr. Martin described as an English ballad singer, was one of the first people who came to America that started a social reform movement. He wrote pieces such as "The Maniac," which protested conditions in insane asylums, and "Woodman Spare that Tree." The first edition of Russell's most famous song, "The Old Armchair" (1840) is in the Howell Collection.

The Howell Collection also contains piano pieces by the Austrian composer Sigismund Thalberg. Some people contend that Thalberg was the first real matinee idol in America during the nineteenth century, said Dr. Martin.

Since Dr. Martin is a music historian, having access to such a large amount of antique music as the Laura Harriss Howell Collection is "exciting" to her.

"The collection is a goldmine," she said. "It really is a tremendous find."

[L to R]: The first edition of 'Carolina in the Morning,' from the Schorr Collection; an edition of a Jenny Lind song and the 'Barber of Seville,' both from the Howell Collection.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Three-day seminar sharpens managerial skills

The Office of Special Programs is sponsoring a special summer seminar entitled Professional Office Management.

It is a three-day program for executive secretaries and administrative assistants.

The program will teach participants new managerial skills as well as sharpen old ones.

The first seminar will be held June 14-16, the second August 2-4. The fee is $185.00 which includes meals and housing.

Registration must be received two weeks prior to the beginning date.

For more information contact the Office of Special Programs, 791-4330, extension 2194.

Dance troupe to perform in Kenan May 2

The University Program Board Fine Arts Committee reminds you that the North Carolina Dance Theatre will be performing in Kenan Auditorium May 2 at 8 p.m.

This nationally renowned dance troupe has performed all over the world, and this is your chance to see them right here on campus. Tickets are

$3 for students and senior citizens, $6 for the general public. Tickets may be purchased at Belk Beery, Community Arts Center, and the Student Activities Office here at UNCW. This event is sponsored by the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear and the UPB Fine Arts Committee. Come on out and enjoy!

TEST, from p. 1.

should be flagged immediately for harsh discipline.

"I don't think academic dishonesty should be tolerated," he said.

According to Dean Juhan, he has no evidence that other departments are experiencing similar test-stealing situations. He said as a result of the incident in the psychology and P.E. departments, a panel will probably be formed to study academic dishonesty and make recommendations for alleviating the problem.

NOW to march in Raleigh

New Hanover County National Organization for Women and campus feminists urge your participation in a state-wide march for ERA in Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, May 2. The march, sponsored by North Carolinians United for ERA, will begin at noon at the corner of Peace and Salisbury in front of the Archdale Building in Raleigh. Bus transportation to and from Wilmington will be available. For more information call Darrel Cummings at 256-9637 or Renee Hartman at 762-7135.

Slight delay in financial aid notifications

Due to problems associated with the Basic Grant and student loan programs, there will be a delay in notification of the 1981-82 awards. This is due to probable changes being brought about by the Reagan administration.

Do not be concerned if you do not receive word right away--it may be July or later.

LIBRARY EXAM SCHEDULE

April 29 - May 8, 1981

April 29 8:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

April 30 8:00 a.m.-Midnight

May 1, Friday 8:00 a.m.-6:30 p.m.

May 2 Saturday 9:00 -5:00 p.m.

May 3 Sunday 2:00 p.m.-Midnight

May 4-7 8:00 a.m.-Midnight

May 8 8:00 a.m. - 6:30 p.m.

Summer job opportunity

Janitors Needed

Student Union

Both summer sessions and fall semester

$3.35/hr. Mostly evenings

Contact: Linda Moore, room 104 in the Pub by Wednesday, April 29, 5 p.m.

Fledgling

The Fledgling deeply regrets the difficulty some students have been having getting their pictures back. The company which took the pictures, Image Works, is having a lot of difficulties in their lab and expects to get them printed eventually. If you have not received your pictures or a refund and would like to speak with Image Works, call 1-800-227-8944 (toll free) and ask for Nate.

Yearbooks On Sale

The 1981 edition of the Fledgling, UNCW's yearbook has arrived and is on sale. If you would like to purchase one or have ordered one, come by room 107 in the Pub Monday-Thursday, 11:30-12:30 or 3-4 and get yours today. They only cost $7, less than the price of an average high school annual.

BSU picnic at Maid's Park

The Black Student Union (BSU) will sponsor an end of the year picnic at Maid's Park on May 2, 1981 at 3:00. Maid's Park is located off on Princess Place Drive near the McDonald's on Market St. Turn right at the bus shelter across from the elementary school--Maid's Park is at the end of the road. All college students are invited. Come out and enjoy yourself. Bring games if you want. See you there.

Red Cross Blood drive

The Red Cross will be holding a blood drive at St. Matthews Lutheran Church across from UNCW on April 30 from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Everyone who is able to give blood is encouraged to donate.

A & G

OUTLET

GOOD LUCK ON EXAMS!

The summer season is coming up and you should have the newest in summer attire. So come in A & G Outlet and look over our selection. Including:

Ladies' skirts in prints and solids
$24.95

L.L. Bean Moccasins
Men's and Ladies'

Ladies' oxford dresses.

Seagull sailing shorts with pockets
Men's and Ladies'

Duck head khakis - new shipment
$16.95

50 dozen polo knits arrived
Monday, April 27

Men's print, madras, and solid dress pants

Men's knit shirts as low as $3.95 and much more.

A&G OUTLET

Glen Mead Plaza

Bring this ad in and get a 10% discount off selected items in the store.

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

WE OFFER

- starting salary from $15,000 - $22,500 with increases to $25,000 - $40,000 in 4 years.
- 30 days paid vacation annually fully financed graduate programs
- superior family health plan
- more responsibility and leadership opportunities
- world wide travel and adventure
- prestige and personal growth potential

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
AVIATION LAW NURSING
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS
INTELLIGENCE
CIVIL ENGINEERING
SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

MOST LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ARE ELIGIBLE

THE NAVY OFFICER INFORMATION TEAM will be on campus

APRIL 22 & 23. An information desk will be set up outside the CAFETERIA and PLACEMENT INTERVIEWS will be conducted APRIL 22. To arrange an appointment to Officer Aptitude Test call 1-800-662-7568 toll free.

EXAM SCHEDULE - SPRING 1981

	9-12	2-5	7-10
Thursday April 30	0830 M-W-F	1300 -T-T	Thursday night
Friday May 1	1130 M-W-F	1430 -T-T	Friday night
Monday May 4	1230 M-W-F	1000 -T-T	Monday night
Tuesday May 5	0930 M-W-F	1330 M-W-F	Tuesday night
Wednesday May 6	0830 -T-T	1430 M-W-F	Wednesday night
Thursday May 7	1030 M-W-F	1130 -T-T	1730 M-W-F
Friday May 8	1530 M-W-F	1600 -T-T

All exams are to be held as scheduled. Prior permission from the appropriate dean must be obtained in order to hold exams at unscheduled times.

SUB STATION II
OF THE SOUTHEAST

30¢ off
on any whole sub

15¢ off
on any half sub

LIMIT ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE

We have authentic scrub pants & shirts in white & assorted colors. Sleep in them or play in them.

PROFESSIONAL UNIFORM
CENTERS INC.

2245 South 17th St.
Next to New Hanover Hospital

also in Whiteville, NC, Myrtle Beach, & Columbia, SC.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Winged
- 5 Elf
- 10 Steals
- 14 Marquand detective
- 15 Batman's pal
- 16 Fencing weapon
- 17 Not ambitious
- 19 Transmitted
- 20 Rescind
- 21 Downpours
- 23 Joust
- 25 Shower
- 26 Mates
- 30 Balloters
- 34 Perspire
- 35 Church part
- 37 Slash
- 38 To lamb

39 Abets

- 42 African hemp
- 43 Hawaiian insts.
- 45 Dry Comb. form
- 46 Sacred song
- 48 Wattle
- 50 Gads
- 52 Spanish pot
- 54 Ireland
- 55 Biblical Dispersion
- 59 Reared
- 63 Foot feature
- 64 Brewers
- 66 Pace
- 67 German city
- 68 Thus
- 69 Cape
- 70 Break one's word: Var.

71 Betsy —

- DOWN
- 1 Asian river
- 2 Single
- 3 Nipa palm
- 4 — stone
- 5 Grating
- 6 Conjunction
- 7 Death notice
- 8 Lesser
- 9 Etched
- 10 Is indignant
- 11 Candid
- 12 Crooked
- 13 Colerics
- 18 Enamels
- 22 — Grande
- 24 Vestige
- 26 Sham: Comb. form
- 27 Alert
- 28 Begin again

29 Game

- 31 — Howe
- 32 Plunder
- 33 Stalks
- 36 Sleep sound
- 40 Detonator
- 41 Helical
- 44 Splashes
- 47 Skewer: Ger.
- 49 Peak
- 51 Ventilating
- 53 Get up
- 55 Mend
- 56 Dies —
- 57 Performs
- 58 Org.
- 60 Serum: Comb form
- 61 Energy units
- 62 Military awards: Abbr.
- 65 Golf mound

See ANSWERS, p. 4.

Friends wish you luck
on a big exam. Good friends stick around to see how you did.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV Number 1

September 3, 1981

Associate Dean takes office

By Robert Eubanks

Take one young, rapidly growing university, with a diverse student population constituting a cultural potpourri that emanates a feeling of independence and achievement; add to this a new Associate Dean of Students (one Abby Hastings) full of charm, vigor, and the desire to achieve new heights of excellence and you have one of the most dynamic teams in the UNC system.

Newly arrived from UNC-Charlotte where she has spent the past 9 years "doing a little bit of everything", Abby Hastings now enters her first semester at UNCW as our Associate Dean of Students. Her blonde hair, girlish looks, and deep blue eyes make her seem too young, too fresh for the weighty position appointed her, but it doesn't take long to realize she is more than equal to her task. Already she has set about organizing an Alcohol Awareness Task Force to aid the students here. The goal of this task force, which will be made up of student leaders as well as administration officials, will be to make students more prepared to deal with the inevitable effects of alcohol.

"We're not out to form an abstinence committee here," says Dean Hastings. "we just want to make students aware of how to protect themselves and others when they drink." Hopefully, by doing so the task force can cut down on the number of unfortunate mishaps and even fatalities that can plague a campus community so exposed to drinking.

Dean Hastings sees her duty as being proactive rather than reactive; that is, she wishes to deal with a potential problem before it has manifested itself. Addressing issues on campus in a positive light figures prominently in her goals, as well as helping students as they organize groups and attempt to grow.

"This seems to be a free-er campus, more liberal. The students have done so much for themselves, by themselves. With such an input of ideas it has come to a great state of well-being." Dean Hastings' role-to help get things to an even higher level of well-being.

Other duties include working with the great non-traditional student population on campus, which accounts for some 24% of the students at UNCW. Also, she works with international students, sometimes functioning almost as an immigration officer as she assists our foreign students with visas and other federal regulations.

There is an air of physical good health and vigor about the young Abby Hastings, and for a good cause. When she first went to UNC-Charlotte she was a graduate assistant, setting up a female intramural program which she subsequently was placed in charge of. Teaching activity classes, coordinating womens athletics, coaching womens volleyball and golf all reinforced her physical stamina while getting her use to working closely with students. Counseling with the students. Counseling during orientation further familiarized Ms. Hastings with the intricacies of the student mind. With a Masters in Counseling she is fully qualified and experienced in assisting students, and she seems very eager to continue to do so here at UNCW.

Abby Hastings, Associate Dean of Students

Originally from the Delaware coastal area, Dean Hastings says she feels comfortable here, already falling under the alluring spell of Wilmington and UNC by the sea. She expresses great faith in the students here, and hopes to get to know many, many more of the student population. At such a rapidly expanding campus, with such a unique student body, she admits "it's an exciting time to be here."

Piney Woods Festival begins Labor Day weekend

The Piney Woods Festival is here again! The festival, which is an annual celebration of our cultural heritage, happens every Labor Day weekend at Hugh MacRae Park. This year's festival will be held on Saturday, September 5 and Sunday, September 6 and features skilled artists and craftsmen, versatile entertainers, and equally skilled and versatile food booths.

Everything gets under way Saturday at 10 a.m. with the opening ceremonies. Throughout Saturday and Sunday some of the Southeast's finest artists and craftsmen will display their finished works and also demonstrate their techniques right before your very eyes. Along with the craftsmen, will be a variety of food booths to appease the most insatiable appetite. Food booths will represent a very diverse selection of exotic dishes from all over the world. Look for the colorfully decorated concession stands at various locations throughout the festival area. Foods from areas such as Spain, France, England, Africa, and many others will be represented.

In addition to all of this, continuous free entertainment will be provided Saturday and Sunday during the day up until 6 p.m. Some of the area's finest musicians will be providing non-stop toe-tapping, hand clapping sounds. Some of the artists performing during the day include New Knothole Revue, the jazz sounds of Real People, Dan Holmes, Laura Mae McLean, Chapel Hill's Red Rose Flyers, and many, many more.

The highlight of this year's Piney Woods Festival will be the Saturday night concert. This year's concert features Phil Kelly, Nee Niny Band, and headliner Norman and Nancy Blake. The concert gets underway at 8 p.m. at Hugh MacRae Park (Roland Grise Auditorium if it rains) and costs $3 to the public and $2 to UNCW students with a valid I.D.

Headlining this year's Piney Woods concert is guitarist Norman Blake. Norman got his first big break back in 1969 when he moved to Nashville to do the Johnny Cash TV show, in which he played as a member of Cash's group. Along with C & W sessions, Norman recorded with Bob Dylan in "The Nashville Skyline" album. He was a member of Kris Kristofferson's first road group and did a seasonal tour with Joan Baez; he has recorded with both John Hartford's Aeroplane band. After that band dissolved, he toured with Hartford as his accompanist for a year and a half, during which he recorded his first solo album, "Home In Sulphur Springs". He also recorded

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

[l to R]: Nancy Blake, Norman Blake and James Bryan. They will be performing at the Piney Woods Festival.

with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band on the legendary "Will The Circle Be Broken" album. After a nine month tour with the Red, White, and Blue (grass), he left to go back on his own, where he has been ever since.

Norman Blake has recorded nine solo albums and is accompanied on stage by his wife Nancy, on cello, and James Brown on fiddle. Tickets for the Saturday night concert are available on campus in the Student Union/Activities Office, room 104 in the Pub.

The Piney Woods Festival is sponsored by the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear and the New Hanover County Parks and Recreation Office. The Saturday night concert is co-sponsored in cooperation with the UNCW University Program Board.

Letters

ROTC challenges Peaceworks

To the Editor:

As head of a new department at UNCW I would like this opportunity to take issue with two pieces of literature circulated by a group called the "Peace Works" during registration at UNCW on August 21, 1981. The first was a card, on it the word "If" in large letters. This card linked ROTC with war, killing and draft registration. I don't want to get into a lengthy discussion on the morality of war or that people are killed and soldiers die. However, it seems once again that individuals - some of whom have never been in the military or war, have become experts on its horrors. I have never met a soldier who wanted to die or, who wanted to see his friends killed or wanted to be away from his home and family for months on end. Perhaps a greater insult was to read that the ROTC program here was associated with the draft, something I am vehemently opposed to.

The second item was called "ROTC: A guide for prospective Cadets and Midshipmen." This pamphlet is outdated and contains some serious errors. The first states that the contract, which Advanced ROTC cadets sign, is one-sided in favor of the Army. Students have to meet strict dress requirements, keep their grades up, get haircuts and have high moral standards, and in return the Army give the students nothing. Cadets aren't even brought on active duty.

The Peace Works overlooked the fact that the Army pays the student $2,750 if they are non-scholarship, or if they are scholarship it pays tuition, books, lab fees plus $100.00 a month for each month the student is in school. More importantly is that students do not sign anything until their grades are 2.0 on a 4.0 scale and they don't get haircuts during the first two years of the program. There are no dress requirements when the students are not in uniform. (Uniforms are worn for 3 and 1 1/2 hours per week). Homosexuals are permitted to take ROTC classes. Any cadet who wants active duty will serve three years in the Army, only those who want three months active duty will be faced with the possibility of not getting their wish. Therefore, not one argument raised in the first three paragraphs of this article is factual information.

Secondly, the next six paragraphs are concerned with "Punitive Active Duty." This is where the cadet who drops out of school, flunks out, or wants to quit ROTC after he has signed a contract or is on a scholarship is forcefully called on active duty as an enlisted man. At great financial loss to the Army none of these individuals has ever been placed on active duty.

The next topic covered was that ROTC scholarships have to be repaid if a student drops out of the program. Again this is not true, and once more you the taxpayer are the loser - not one dollar of Army scholarship money has to be repaid.

The pamphlet went on to attack ROTC instructors as unqualified to teach at the college level. Stating "Most do not have advanced degrees and they were not screened by the university to which they were assigned." The Peace Works is not talking about the program at UNCW. On April 24 I was screened by the ROTC Advisory Committee which was appointed by the Dean of College of Arts and Sciences. In January of 1974 I was awarded a masters degree from Georgetown University with Distinction and was accepted into the PhD program. At this time I decided to fulfill my ROTC obligation and enter the military service. For two and one half years I was an instructor at the U.S. Army Intelligence Center and School. I feel qualified to teach ROTC at UNCW.

Another point raised by the Peace Works is that students are overburdened by ROTC classes, and mandatory ROTC related courses. There are only two mandatory ROTC related courses, Evolution of Warfare and Military Ethics. These are in addition to one ROTC class per semester for which students receive credit. Furthermore the Army does not require a student to major in anything that he or she does not want to.

The next argument raised by the Peace Works has to do with racism and sexism in the military. I would like to compare the percentage of minority and female members of the Army to any of the occupations represented in the "Peace Works." Granted that percentages are not a good way to measure racism, but I doubt that the Army is any more or less racist than the society that produced it.

The last attack made by Peace Works is that ROTC cadets may be committing themselves to a war that their classmates, by not signing up, will avoid. If there is a war the draft will return, as the Reserves and National Guard will not be sufficient. To meet this need UNCW students will be drafted out of school, not given the choice of assignments, and will spend their time as enlisted men or women. ROTC cadets, on the other hand, are exempt from the draft and over 50% will choose from numerous specialties which have little to do with combat.

I would like to invite the Peace Works to come to my classes, and see for themselves that I have nothing to hide. I will meet them in any public forum of their choice to discuss the ROTC program at UNCW. I hope they accept the opportunity or refrain from passing out inaccurate, outdated and biased material.

Gordon S. Macrae
CPT MI
Assistant Professor of Science
UNCW

Here's the latest family
Killed by an IRA terrorist attack...

Here's an IRA terrorist on a hunger strike...

Guess which one will be called a martyr...

Peacework criticized

To the Editor:

Sitting in the middle of 'C' Street, at 7 a.m., while waiting to register, I was startled by a silent young man shoving a printed card at my face. My first thought was "who let the deaf-mute on campus?" Noticing the expensive clothes and upbeat expression however, I wondered "pledge week, so soon?" Then glancing at the card with ROTC in blue capitals, and remembering I had validated that program; I told the fellow "not today, thanks." Later, upon awakening, I became aware of the sinister nature of that clandestine group called PEACEWORK who, throughout a tedious day of line-standing, kept a barrage of literature and litter headed toward a seriously unconcerned, but otherwise captive audience. Unfortunately, my attempts at apathy; while smiling at the manipulators of the finest, most numerous, and perfectly executed bottle necks I've even encountered since bootcamp; were disrupted by PEACEWORK activities. Accordingly, I began to reflect on numerous reasons I suspect PEACEWORK of collectively developing that severely debilitating condition where, due to extreme skeletal distortion, one's heart begins to beat out one's brains.

One of the historic strengths of our Republic has been the decision, from the day of independence, to maintain a MINIMUM military standing force. This requires our military to go through rapid expansion to meet National Emergencies caused by diplomatic failures of the political administration. We have faithfully been unprepared for, and just as faithfully demobilized after, every war. The social benefit is twofold. Rather than spend taxes on maintaining a large, dedicated, prussian-like military, we can apply a greater portion of our national debt on welfare programs. Secondly, by constantly changing the cadre of junior officers, we help insure that no major political power will arise in the Armed Forces. A quick check of Colonel's, General's and ex-military strongmen posing worldwide as "Head-of-States" will help PEACEWORK appreciate the wisdom in this.

Does the Military appreciate the constant turn-over of junior officers? From my experience, I say 'NO!'. Any military commander realizes that money spent every few years training replacements could be better applied to improving the finances of senior experienced personnel, funding weapons research, or increased training. This is, in fact, one of the highest cost items in the military "personnel" budget. There is not a General or Admiral worth his/her salt that doesn't secretly desire a completely dedicated, personally loyal, and totally obedient force of battle hardened veterans, especially officers. Fortunately, liberal minded Americans continue to serve only one hitch before going home to bigger and better things. I am thankful every time I see ten young people sign up for ROTC, because I know only five of them will be commissioned, three or four will return to the civilian community after their initial obligation, and only one will stay on to become a senior officer.

I have a few questions for PEACEWORK: First - If no one joins the ROTC, do you really think the military will go without officers? There are three other major sources for Officers: Up-through-the-ranks, Officer Candidate School, and Military Academy's. On a scale of one-to-ten, evaluate all four commissioning sources for liberal, humanitarian backgrounds, thought, or psychological make-up. Let #1 represent an Artist, #10 an Aggressor, and pick any civilized social value you wish. Go ahead, mark at will!

See EDITORIAL, p. 4.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Advertising: Janet Hundley, Bill Estep

Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern

Photography: Jan Loy, Laurie Black

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Robert Eubanks, Dave Newbern

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

the pickle & barrel

Deli-Restaurant

Long Leaf Mall South College Road

Submarines

- 1 Italian Sub 2.65
Genoa Salami, Cappelicola Provolone Ham,
Swiss-Cherry Peppers
- 2 Kosher Sub 2.65
Beef Bologna, Beef Salami, Corned Beef or Pastrami, Swiss or American
- 3 Cheese Sub 2.50
Provolone, Swiss, American, Hot or Cold
- 4 Tuna Sub 2.50
Tuna Fish, Celery Mayo, & herbs

Subs include: lettuce, tomatoes, onions, special dressing

Specials

All Specials & Sandwiches come with chips and pickles

- 5 Roast Beef Special 2.95
5oz Roast Beef, Special Sauce,
Cole Slaw on Kaiser Roll
- 6 Turkey Deluxe 2.60
1/4 lb Turkey Breast, Special Sauce,
Swiss cheese, lettuce, Tomato-Kaiser Roll
- 7 Leonard's Special 2.65
Pepperoni, Pastrami, Swiss Cheese,
Mustard, Hot on Rye
- 8 Brian's Hope 2.50
Beef, Knackwurst, Sauerkraut, Mustard & melted Swiss Rye or Pumpernickle
- 9 Reuben 2.75
Corned Beef, Sauerkraut, Swiss cheese,
Mustard or Special Sauce, Hot, on Rye
- 10 Ham & Cheese 2.45
Ham & American Cheese, Hot on Kaiser Roll
- 11 Turkey Club 2.75
Turkey Breast Triple Decker, lettuce, Tomato Bacon, Whole Wheat Toast
- 12 Deli-i-cious 2.80
Corned Beef, Turkey, Imported Ham,
Swiss, American, Provolone, Rye

Sandwiches

- 13 Imported Ham 2.35
- 14 Turkey Breast 2.35
- 15 Roast Beef 2.70
- 16 Corned Beef (hot) 2.30
- 17 Pastrami (hot) 2.35
- 18 Chicken Salad 2.05
- 19 Liverwurst 2.10
- 20 Beef Bologna 1.85
- 21 Kasher Hot Dog 1.30
- 22 Toasted Swiss 1.75
or American
- 23 Chopped Liver &
Onions 2.35
- 24 Egg Salad 1.60
- 25 Bacon, Lettuce
Tomato 1.85
- 26 Tuna Salad 2.10
- 27 Bagel w/cream
cheese 1.10 with Lox 2.70, toasted with butter .50

Sandwiches come with your choice of: Rye Bread, Kaiser Roll, Sub Roll, Bagel, Onion Roll, Pumpernickle, White or Whole Wheat, and chips and pickles
Tomato .15 Cheese .15 Extra Meat .30 Cole Slaw .10
Alfalfa Sprouts .10

Plates

- 28 Chopped Liver Plate - with potato salad, lettuce, tomato, onion, Rye or Pumpernickle 2.90
- 29 Tuna Salad Plate - with cole slaw, lettuce, tomato, Rye or Pumpernickle 2.90
- 30 Chicken Salad Plate - with macaroni salad, lettuce, tomato, white or Pumpernickle 2.90
- 31 Egg Salad Plate - with macaroni salad, lettuce, tomato, white or whole wheat 2.70
- 32 Dieter's Plate - lettuce, tomato, carrots, celery, cottage cheese, turkey breast & crackers 2.85

Side Orders

- Potato Salad .55 New York or German
Kasher Pickles .40
Macaroni Salad .55 Cole Slaw .55

Salads

- Tossed Salad - with cheese bits 1.25
Chef's Salad - ham, turkey, cheese 2.85
House Salad - alfalfa sprouts, sunflower seeds & cheese bits 2.40

Desserts

- Cheese Cake 1.00 Cannoli .90 Carrot Cake .85

Beverages

- Dr. Brown's (free refills on coffee & tea)
Cream .55 Pepsi .45 Coffee .40
Celray .55 Mountain Dew .45 Tea (unsweetened) .35
Cherry .55 Diet Pepsi .45 Milk .45
Orange .55 7-Up .45 Perrier Water .75
Root Beer .55

House Wines

- Robert Mondavi - Burgundy - Rose - Chablis
Glass 1.00 Carafe 3.00

Beers

- Draft: Bud .65 Miller Lite .65
Bottled Domestic:
Michelob Light .85 Bud .75
Miller Light .75 Miller .75
Natural Light .75 Lowenbrau .90
Michelob .85 Lowenbrau Dark .90

Bottled Imported:

- Moosehead 1.25 Heineken 1.25
Beck's 1.25 St. Pauli Girl 1.25
Beck's Dark 1.25 Molson's 1.25

No. 1 - ITALIAN SUB

Genoa Salami - Cappelicola Ham - Provolone - Ham - Lettuce
Tomatoes - Onions - Special Dressing - Charles Chips
Kosher Dill Pickle

Plus All The Tea You
Can Drink

$2.65

Good thru
Sept. 3-9

No. 5 BEEF SPECIAL

5 Oz. of Top Sirloin Roast Beef - Our Special Sauce
Cole Slaw - On Kaiser Roll - Charles Chips - Kosher Dill Pickle

Plus All The Tea You
Can Drink

$2.95

Good thru
Sept. 3-9

Hours Monday through Saturday 10:00 - 10:00

Sunday 11:00 - 7:00

Across from Balentine's Cafeteria

Call In Orders Welcome

EDITORIAL from p. 2.

Second - Assuming the military will find someone who desires to be given the apparent position, authority, and pay of an officer, which would PEACEWORK rather have defending the country or serving in the nuclear strike forces?

A. A good officer.

B. A not-so-good officer.

C. An intelligent individual, schooled by college, and educated in a system containing a healthy interaction of various social, moral, emotional, philosophical, religious, etc. values.

D. A military, selected military trained military educated individual who rejects the military criteria for the PER-ET MILITARY OFFICER.

1st - Please name one incident in our history where any military officer entered into conflict or combat without the direct orders, expressed approval, or implied consent of either the President and/or Congress. I suggest that those of PEACEWORK who seriously believe they will have significant impact on the pugnacious aspects of human nature by irritating the guard dogs, instead of trying to reason with the head-of-the-household, would find a greater theater for their comedy by grabbing their brooms and heading out to Wrightsville Beach. I think the tide is coming in!

PEACEWORK are you not working to create the very monster you claim to abhor? Think about it.

SANKEY

Being a woman is a special gift

To the Editor:

I have kept up with the "Student Forum" sporadically this semester by direct confrontation in "The Seahawk" and more indirectly through comments I have heard on campus. I appreciate your attempts with the various articles on "the woman situation": a positive consequence being a catalyst for self-evaluation.

HOWEVER, what I don't appreciate is that there seems to be a failure to recognize that being a woman is a very special gift from a very Supreme Creator. Women are unique creatures. We have an incredible ability to express our hearts, minds, souls, and bodies. How each of us chooses to execute that expression is a very personal decision, and in my opinion not merit for imposing a differing self-concept. To quote from the April 28 edition of "The Seahawk": "in the male dream, women are nothing more than sexual objects." It appears that the misconception here is that women are sexual BEINGS--as are men! I ask "in the woman dream, what are men?"

Please allow me to quote from a book by Jien Karssen, "Her Name Is Woman": "Although completed after Adam Eve was certainly not an afterthought. She was as much a part of God's original plan as Adam was. Eve was created equal to her husband" - she came from his rib--remember? Not his feet! She was carved to be man's helper, not a slave to anyone or anything.

I may very well be imposing my values as much as the "Forum" staff writer. If so, I apologize. I feel led to say that I am proud to be a woman. I realize that how other women choose to conduct themselves has an indirect consequence on me as a sharer of gender.

Therefore, I conclude, we all have a choice as to how we conduct ourselves in this world--whatever our sex. In a day where confusion and fear run rampant, I think it a plausible notion to calm down and graciously accept what we have. We live in a great nation; a land where we have the freedom to voice our opinions--the trouble begins when respect for personal values is disregarded.

Paula Suttle
Class of 1981

Why boycott Nestle?

On the road to the beach and our soaking up the rays with a cool beer in hand, it is easy to ignore world issues before which we feel so powerless.

There is a need to which you can respond very simply and effectively every time you do your grocery shopping or pick up a candy bar. Simply do not buy any product by Nestle Corporation.

Why? The aim of the Nestle Boycott is to force this giant Swiss food company to stop its unethical promotion of infant formulas in developing countries. Where clean water is inaccessible and poverty the norm, bottle feeding is called "the baby killer." Bottle contamination and formula dilution lead to diarrhea, malnutrition and untimely death.

Throughout the world millions

Stillpoint by Bob Haywood, Campus Minister of babies suffer from this bottle disease. Nestle controls about one half the infant formula sales in the third world and its promotion helps convince mothers to abandon breast feeding in favor of the more modern western bottle; and it convinces doctors in hospitals to start bottle feeding right at birth.

Since 1977 a national organization, INFECT, has initiated a boycott against Nestle's supported by many church denominations and groups in our country and beyond. Even the World Health Organization and UNICEF on October 12, 1980 called for far reaching restrictions of marketing and promotion of infant formula.

Sun-warmed friends, babies are dying because of the corporate greed of the company that makes your beloved Nestle Crunch Bars and your other favorite goodies.

BOYCOTT NESTLE'S.

If you want more information and want to join the organized efforts of INFECT to promote the boycott, get up with your Hershey's Chocolate Loving Company Minister, Bob Haywood, 709-1160.

Greeks actively influence student lives

by Robert Eubanks

For years now, Greek organizations have been actively influencing student's lives on major campuses across the country. Now, at UNCW, the fraternities are emerging in force to attract and capture the attention of their fellow students. Through the guiding hand of the Interfraternity Council, this year should see the already rapidly growing Greek system entrench even stronger on this campus.

The IFC (Interfraternity Council) is made up of representatives from each of the four national and one local fraternities at UNCW. This governing body is responsible for the promotion of Greek life on campus through the cooperation and interaction of its members. As this school year begins representatives from Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Pi Kappa Phi, Chi Phi, and Tau Nu Kappa (the five fraternities on campus) will draw up plans for many of the activities the IFC will be sponsoring. By corresponding with fraternity and IFC leaders on other campuses the Council here can inject new ideas into their schedule of events for the year, always keeping in mind their goal of providing healthy competition and enjoyable social functions while spreading the ideal of the Greek system.

The social outlook for this fall seems very promising. To get the school year started on the right foot the IFC will sponsor an open Rush Party at a local night spot the first night of classes, which will be followed by many more parties throughout the year. Some special events are being planned to enhance campus life, the culminating event to come in early April in the form of the Second Annual Greek Week. Many special activities will make this an exciting week for all students, as well as provide tests of skill for the members of the IFC through competition on the sports scene.

An intensive publicity campaign will attempt to instill the spirit of the Greek system in many men and women on campus this year. The IFC will be spreading the word on the outstanding benefits of joining a Greek fraternity, and what it can mean in the student's life both now and in the years to come. Students interested in joining a fraternity are encouraged to talk with the diverse groups of men established on this campus. The primary goals of the IFC can be summed up in two words--Go Greeks!!

Opening Soon
THE BEER BOX

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

A One Stop Beverage Shop

Atlantis

Student literary magazine now accepting original prose, poetry, fiction, and artwork. Also in search of staff members with critical minds, provocative ideas. Contact dept. of english or call 762-4128

We're Domino's Pizza

And that means a delicious well rounded meal delivered straight to your door at no extra charge.

We make only pizza. Pizzas are our business. Fast, free delivery is our specialty. Call us.

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Fast, Free Delivery

392-5656
4119 Oleander

Our drivers carry less than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.
©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Onions, Green Peppers and Sausage.
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi
5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives, Onions, Green Peppers and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Onions, Anchovies, Green Peppers, Olives, Sausage, Ground Beef, Hot Peppers, Double Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

$1.00
Off!

Any pizza with pepperoni.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/13/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
15420 / 5526

$1.00
Off!

Any pizza with extra thick crust.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/13/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
15420 / 5526

$3.00
Off!

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 minutes present this coupon to the driver for $3.00 off your pizza.

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
15420 / 5526

One free
quart of Pepsi!

With any size pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/13/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
15420 / 5526

President welcomes students

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome all students and faculty back to UNCW for the 1981 Fall Semester.

The Student Government Association has been handling a variety of students' problems, from the simple to the complex. We feel that the Student Government is more involved today than in past years. This means that every semester one more student is added to the aggregate number of enrolled students at UNCW, and the Student Government Association must be more responsive to the needs of our classmates.

We have been working diligently throughout this past summer to coordinate the affairs of the students, and to accomplish a variety of goals for this year. Some of these goals include an SGA Procedures Manual, which would list all of the SGA's policies and the procedures for filling out all necessary paperwork that passes through our office. Other goals include: the improving of our campus communications by studying the improvements necessary for our campus medias. Also we are striving to be more fiscally responsible and conservative, and also looking into the possible legal ramifications concerning the liabilities of the various athletic clubs on campus. We have many more goals for this year dealing with the new apartments, the alcohol policies at UNCW, the variety of parking problems, and the potential crime areas on campus.

I encourage all students to participate in some way on our campus either in our clubs and organizations or with the Student Government itself. Elections for freshmen class officers along with several representative-at-large positions, and the Attorney General's office will be held in, about two weeks - so start thinking about running for these positions.

The first Student Senate meeting will be held on Thursday, September 3, 1981 at 7 p.m. in Morton Hall Auditorium.

Charles B. Parsons
Student Body President

College life—a lot like a brick

Welcome back! Here we are, another collegiate year stretching before us in an endless trail of books, beer, and bong-uh, sorry, Ma. Just kidding, Dad.

College life is a lot like a brick: when it hits you full-force, you either keel over, run home howling, or stand there stunned for several minutes. This is my fourth year of the brick, and every time the blow gets a little easier to take. But even professional students (and that, friends, is what I wanna be When I Grow Up) never learn to duck. Masochists, all of us. After a summer spent in the Real World, life in the semester zone starts to seem like a dream. Wake up, y'all, and welcome to reality!

Professors add a whole new dimension to the dream. There are a few (2, to be exact) professors I adore, several I admire intensely, and 26 I try to avoid. To be brutally

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

honest, those hapless 26 probably feel the same about yours truly, and for a very good reason: satire may be fine in print but it rarely goes over in the classroom. It is not wise to criticize anyone who has the power of pass of fail.

It's easy to tell when you're in the presence of a real killer prof. Your body's defense systems kick in and you break out in a cold sweat and/or hives. Of course, this may also be a reaction to 8:00 classes, but either way, listen to your body and get the hell out of there. Nobody is completely rational at 8:00 a.m. and the sooner you learn that, the better off you'll be.

I realize that professors are people, too. They get corns on their feet and have car payments to make like everybody else, and a few of them are funny in spite of their status.

In fact, some of them are so witty, you'd think Henry Youngman wrote their lines. I like these professors—I appreciate grace under pressure.

If you have an instructor who makes Attila the Hun look like Captain Kangaroo, forget the comradely pals bit and buckle down; be as grim about learning as he is about teaching.

After all, he wants to teach or he wouldn't be standing in front of that blackboard every day. And you want to learn, or you wouldn't be craning your neck to see what he's written up there. It all evens out in the end!

RETENTION CHART

Students are classified as freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Semester hours passed are used to determine these classifications. In order to graduate in 8 semesters, a student must average 15 to 16 hours per semester. The required number of hours passed for each classification is as follows. Less than 27 semester hours - Freshman.

From 27-58 semester hours credit - Sophomore.

From 59-88 semester hours credit - Junior.

More than 88 semester hours credit - Senior. Scholarship is both encouraged and required at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington. In order to remain at the University, all students must meet the quality point requirements as outlined below:

Total Hours Attempted

6-26

27-58

59-88

89 or more

Required Quality Point Average for Eligibility To Continue in the University

1.2

1.5

1.8

2.0

Transfer students are placed in the above retention chart based on total hours attempted at all institutions attended. A transfer student's quality point average is computed only on work attempted through the University of North Carolina at

Cut Outs
Used Albums
True Bargains

5.99 Top Selling Specials
Lowest Overall Prices
on ALL Albums

Wilmington's truest discount album and tape store.

Over 25 top selling albums at special prices

Pat Benatar 5.99

Journey 5.99

Foreigner 5.99

many more

We also carry TDK and Maxell blank tapes by the box or single

3.84 each (10 to box)

3.99 each (12 to box)

We feel we offer more for less - there is truly no rip off on any item in the store!

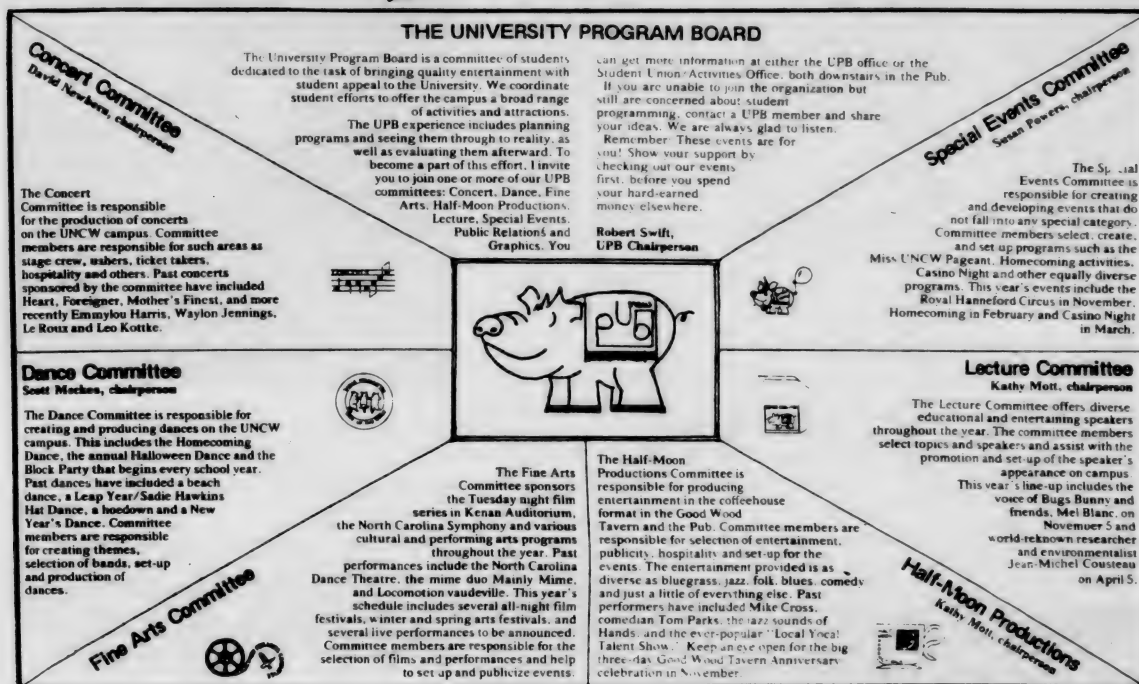

OPEN 10 till 9 Mon.-Sat.

School Kids Records
turn right on Wrightsville Ave one block on left [beside

Coming Soon - Dan Fogelberg, Meatloaf, Carly Simon, Hall & Oats, Devo, Kinks, Grateful Dead - electric new releases each week.

UNCW PRESENTS The Pub An Open House

THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD INVITES YOU TO ATTEND OUR OPEN HOUSE ON TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8 AND WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9 IN HOPES OF STIMULATING YOUR INTEREST IN YOUR STUDENT ACTIVITIES. NOT ONLY WILL ALL THE UPB COMMITTEES LIKE DANCE, CONCERT, COFFEEHOUSE, FINE ARTS, SPECIAL EVENTS, LECTURE, AND GRAPHICS BE REPRESENTED, BUT ALSO SUCH CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS LIKE SEAHAWK, STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION, FLEDGLING, AND MANY, MANY OTHERS.

PLEASE FEEL FREE TO COME BY AND TALK TO US ABOUT THE PROGRAM BOARD, WHAT WE ARE, WHAT WE DO, HOW WE CAN HELP YOU, AND HOW YOU CAN HELP US. THE FUN GETS UNDERWAY AT 10 AM AND LASTS UNTIL 3 PM. REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED AND SPECIAL PRIZES WILL BE GIVEN OUT. BEFORE YOU LOOK OFF CAMPUS, SEE WHAT WE CAN OFFER YOU ON CAMPUS!!!

MARK THESE UPCOMING EVENTS ON YOUR CALENDAR.....

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 5 - PINEY WOODS CONCERT WITH NORMAN BLAKE AND THE NEE NINGY BAND. STUDENT TICKETS $2 AVAILABLE IN ROOM 104 OF PUB. CONCERT STARTS AT 8 PM AT HUGH MACRAE PARK.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8 - MOVIE, I LOVE YOU ALICE B. TOKLAS STARRING PETER SELLERS AND HARRY NILSSON'S THE POINT, 8 PM IN KENAN AUDITORIUM. ADMISSION IS $1 WITH STUDENT ID AND $1.50 FOR NON-STUDENTS.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11 - COFFEEHOUSE WITH MORRISON & POWELL AT 8:30 PM IN THE PUB, ADMISSION IS FREE AND REFRESHMENTS ARE BYOB.

Sports

Soccer Starts Friday

The UNCW soccer team's success can no longer be considered a secret. The Seahawks compiled a school-record 14 wins - including victories over two nationally-ranked opponents - and lost only twice as they cracked the national top 20 for the first time in the school's history. However, 1981 poses more of a challenge because coach Calvin Lane is faced with a more difficult schedule and has one of his youngest squads ever.

"Our program has grown tremendously in the past five years," Lane says, "but that means we can't slip up on anybody. Soccer has become so competitive all over the country that you can't just stay the same - you have to get better or be left behind."

The UNCW program has achieved significant recognition among the top soccer-playing schools in the South, ranking as high as third in NCAA Division I competition.

The Seahawks closed out last year with nine straight wins, including a 1-0 season-finance over ACC champion Duke.

This season the 'Hawks face all three of last year's Southern Regional qualifiers - Appalachian State, Alabama A & M and Duke - at home, plus stiff competition against North and South Carolina. UNCW opens the season this weekend against highly-ranked Division III member UNC-Greensboro in the Four Points Tournament at Charlotte. The championship will be played Saturday against the winner of the UNC-Charlotte - UNC-Asheville game.

"We lost five very fine starters from a year ago," says Lane, who needs just nine victories to reach 100 career wins, "but I feel that we have a good nucleus of players returning. We must have some contributions from a couple of new players, and find a replacement for Charlie Ingold, our All-South goalkeeper."

Seniors Dennis Davis and Jim Slowinski are the 'Hawks' top returning players. Davis, a striker, led the 1980 attack with a team leading 13 goals. Slowinski, a sweeper, is the team's most valuable defensive player.

Also returning on the front line are junior Dave Karlson, who set a school-record with 12 assists last year, and sophomore Dave Compere. Leadership in the midfield will come from sophomore Mike Lawrence, a starter last year, while junior Paul Felscher adds experience at fullback.

Sophomore Mike Lyons, who appeared in three games last year, and freshman Bill Lawson are fighting to replace Ingold at goalie.

Other returning lettermen are senior Keith Donnelly, juniors Eric Benson and Buddy Kelly, and sophomores Louis Arno, Mark Morris and Keith Webster.

Newcomers include freshmen Lee Morgan, Kevin Cox, Sherman Thurmond, Alberto Rodriguez and Nick Perry.

Lane says that seven freshmen and six sophomores have made the 22-man squad, and possibly as many as five sophomores could beamong Friday's starters.

"After such an outstanding year last season, it is a great challenge for this year's team to even come close to repeat-

Schedule
Sept. 4-5 - Four Points Tournament; 10 - ATLANTIC CHRISTIA; 12 - at Pembroke; 16 - NORTH CAROLINA; 18 - ST. ANDREWS; at NC States; 20 - ALABAMA A&M.
Oct. 3-4 - Kiwanis Classic; 8 - CAMPBELL; 11 - at Wake Forest; 21 - EAST CAROLINA; 24 - APPALACHIAN STATE; 28 - at Methodist.
Nov. 1 - at South Carolina; 3 - DUKE.

Compere kicks for UNCW Staff Photo/Scott Sibley

We Need Your Help

...to provide you with the most complete, concise and consistent sports news, so please feel free to contact us with your comments, complaints and contributions. We encourage writers to submit stories, club representatives to make us aware of announcements, and you to let us know when we goof. Please give the sports editor any ideas or questions you have. Thank

Surfing

...is one of UNCW students' most popular sports, and recently waves have been very good.

Staff Photo/Laurie Black

Looking Back, Looking Ahead

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

With a new school year comes another sports season. Or is it with a new sports season comes another school year? I sometimes get my priorities confused. At any rate this fall looks to be full of action.

We'll probably all look at sports, especially professional sports, differently for a while because of the major league baseball players' strike. Baseball itself took the sport away from its main supporter - the fan - and we never really understood what the problem was. And we didn't like it.

The summer was different and unusual in other ways, too, and who knows what the fall holds in store for us.

Of course, the split season in baseball has been the weirdest thing. What did the strike accomplish anyhow? Finally, baseball's return was spectacular. The National League won the re-scheduled all-star game, 5-4 before a record crowd of 72,086, due its 10th consecutive victory. The next day Pete Rose, a sure Hall of Famer who we had been following along his assault on Stan Musial's all-time hit record before the strike, collected his 3,652 base knock after a seven-week delay.

There was some other excitement before the strike also. Montreal's Tim Lincecum was incredibly averaging a stolen base per game, and Cleveland's Len Barker pitched the best perfect game since 1908.

In tennis John McEnroe broke Bjorn Borg's string of 41 straight Wimbledon victories and five straight titles with a four-set victory. In the semi-finals McEnroe was fined $10,000 for misbehavior, then when it was over he refused to attend the awards banquet saying his invitation had been retracted. Who's to be believed?

Meanwhile, Chris Evert-Lloyd won her third Wimbledon championship.

Elsewhere, Sugar Ray Leonard won his second professional boxing title. American Bill Rogers captured the 110th Annual British Open. Earvin "Magic" Johnson earned himself the highest salary ever paid to an athlete - $25 million over 25 years. That's what I call 'magic'!

Even since we've returned to school the world record in the mile has been broken four times yet 50 years ago Glenn

Cunningham amazed the world with his four minute mile.

The summer at UNCW was eventful, too. The baseball team won its third summer league tournament title after finishing the regular season at .500. The women's golf team traveled to Sioux City, Iowa where it finished third in the National AIAW Division III tournament.

Two athletes were picked in professional drafts. Basketball center Danny Davis was the first pick of the 11th round by the Dallas Mavericks in the NBA draft. Junior outfielder Tom Jones was drafted by the New York Yankees and now plays minor league baseball in Kentucky. He was batting .450 when he left the Seahawks in June.

We don't know what to expect from the fall. There are, however, many sporting events we can look forward to.

Beginning here on campus, the UNCW soccer team will be looking to better its best season ever of last year. It won't be easy. The Seahawks may have the most difficult schedule in the South. Coming to UNCW will be three of last year's Southern Regional qualifiers - Duke, Appalachian

State, and Alabama A & M, which finished third in the nation.

The Seahawks also face stiff competition against North and South Carolina as coach Calvin Lane tries for his 100th victory at UNCW. Lane, in his 11th year, needs only nine victories to reach the century mark.

Around the nation, college and pro football are just around the corner. Will Oakland repeat as Super Bowl champions? Michigan is ranked number-one in pre-season polls. What impact will George Rogers have in the pros? Or Hershel Walker at Georgia?

Sugar Ray and Thomas "Hit Man" Hearnes fight for the world welterweight title Sept. 16. McEnroe and Borg could meet again in the U.S. Open. The baseball league playoffs start Oct. 6 with the World Series scheduled to begin Oct. 20.

It looks like a busy fall around this and other sports offices, and we're barely out of the summer. Thank goodness for cablevision and especially ESPN. I don't know how much I will get done this semester, but I'll sure enjoy doing it.

Sports Calendar

Thursday

Entries available for "Almost Anything Goes" at intramural office.

On TV: "Inside the NFL", Ch. 4, 7:30 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.; Reds vs. Phillies, Ch. 2, 7:30 p.m. and 1:30 a.m.; Cardinals vs. Dodgers, Ch. 2, 10:30 p.m.

Friday

Men's Soccer - Four Points Tournament at Charlotte. Entries available for flag football at intramural office.

On TV: "Inside the NFL", Ch. 4, 7 p.m.; Yankees vs. Royals, Ch. 6, 8 p.m.

Saturday

Men's Soccer - Four Points Tournament at Charlotte. Men's X-Country - Rocky Point 10,000 meters, 9 a.m. On TV: Braves vs. Mets, Ch. 11, 2 p.m.; Major League Baseball, Ch. 6, 2 p.m.; Wilfred Benitez vs. Carlos Santos boxing, Ch. 2, 6 p.m.

Wednesday

Deadline for intramural surviving contest sign-up.

Runin' 'Hawks Look Good

As the 1981 cross country season draws near, third-year coach Bill Atwill is extremely pleased with the men's and women's teams' progress.

Last year's young teams are a year older and a year more experienced giving Atwill his most optimistic outlook yet.

Both squads start their seasons September 12 at the Campbell Invitational. The men will run time trials this Saturday at the Rocky Point 10,000 meters race.

"Right now I couldn't tell you who my top five runners are," said Atwill. "We're just going to run Saturday to determine which seven are going to travel with us."

The extra year of experience for nine returning runners has added considerable depth to the Seahawks' attack, an ingredient the squad lacked last year.

"We do have a lot more depth," Atwill said. "Everybody has faster times and we should be able to win on the track." Lack of depth was a couple of close duels because of it."

Senior Paul Lupica is the team captain. He and Julian Keith were two of the Seahawks' top harriers last season, but other team members - such as Al Brantley, Arnold Houston or Robbie Burke - should consistently finish in front of the pack. Other runners include David Hodge, George May, Tim Jackson, Keith Lankford and George Walker, who each have greatly improved according to Atwill.

"We're aiming to win all of our home meets and place well in the invitationals," said Atwill. "We'll stand a good chance in every meet we run."

The women's team is still getting organized, but some runners are definite. Juniors Stacey Almond and Dawn Goley are two of the strongest runners in the women's team's second official season. Barbara Grob and Brenda Walker also return from last year.

UNCW will only host two meets this season, but will also run locally in the Wilmington

Staff Photo/Scott Sibley

Running Strong: Keith, Lupica, May.

Mini-Marathon. The fall schedule:

Sept. 5 - at Rocky Point 10,000 Meters (men only); 12 - at Campbell Invitational; 19 - at Pembroke Invitational (men only); 26 - BAPTIST & UNC-Charlotte, 10 a.m.
Oct. 3 - Wilmington Mini-

Marathon at Greenfield Lake, 9 a.m.; 17 - at Raleigh: State Meet for men. AIAW Meet for women; 24 - at Charleston, SC: men vs. The Citadel & Davidson, women vs. Davidson; 31 - ST. ANDREWS & FRANCIS MARION, 10 a.m.
Nov. 14 - at Greenville, SC: District III Regionals for men.

Haskins Picked

Former UNCW player John Haskins was selected as an assistant coach to the men's basketball team. Haskins, a starter his senior year in 1979-80, is a native of Raleigh. He spent last year obtaining a masters degree from Appalachian State.

Also selected was Melanie Hinton of Pembroke State as an assistant women's basketball coach.

Shackelford wins

John Shackelford, the top seed for UNCW's tennis team, won the Wilmington Seagulls tournament with a 3-6, 7-6, 6-2 decision over No. 2-seed Herb McKim for the men's open singles title Sunday at Empie Park. Shackelford had earlier beaten No. 1-seed Paul Gemborys to advance to the finals.

Shackelford finished runners-up with UNCW teammate Lance Thompson to Gemborys and Kenny House in the men's doubles.

Over the summer -

Two UNCW sports teams and two individuals fared surprisingly well over the summer.

The summer league baseball team won its third tournament title while the women's golf team finished third in the national tournament, and basketball star Danny Davis was drafted by the NBA's Dallas Mavericks while baseball player Tom Jones was selected by the New York Yankees in the major league draft.

The Seahawks baseball team won three straight games in the double-elimination tournament to claim the first North State League title with a 3-2 championship game victory over East Carolina on July 25, coach Bobby Guthrie's birthday. UNCW also won titles in 1972 and 1975.

The women's golf team was led to its third place finish in the National AIAW Division III

Championships at Briar Cliff College in Sioux City, Iowa June 17-20 by Donna Barrette, who ranked 10th in the nation. She was followed by Lady Seahawks Robbie Roberts (12th), Darci Wilson (14th), and Cindy Flowers (16th).

Davis, a 6'7", 220 lb. graduate from Alliance, was the first pick of the seventh round of the NBA draft by the league's newest expansion club. He will report to training camp in mid-September among players such as Mark Aguirre, Tom Lagarde and Jim Spanarkel.

Jones, a two-year starter in the outfield for the Seahawks, was the 285th player selected in the annual major league draft. He signed a contract for a reported $30,000 immediately and is now playing for the Yankee's Appalachian Rookie League team in Paintsville, Kentucky.

Notes...

The Football Club is working hard in preparation for its September 19 home opener with UNC-Greensboro. The team of around 30 players is coached by Captain McCrae and Sergeant Younts of the Army ROTC office. Sign-ups for the driving contest, "Almost Anything Goes," and flag-football began this week in the Intramural sports office. Deadlines for entries are September 9 for the driving contest, September 10 for "Almost Anything Goes," and September 16 for flag-football. . . . 1981-82 will be the best season yet for bowling enthusiasts of the Ten Pin Club. The Seahawks will have, in addition to a club, a five-man team to join a league of other schools in North and South Carolina around mid-September. Saturday matches will begin in late October. Annual dues are around $5. To join, call Tom Prestia at 392-1979 after 6 p.m. . . . Men's tennis coach Larry Honeycutt will officiate football in the ACC this fall. He has worked junior college and college junior varsity games while on the ACC reserve list, and will continue to call high school games this fall. . . . Honeycutt said the men's tennis team will be involved in two fall tournaments: the Francis Marion Invitational September 26, and the Seahawk Invitational during October. Anyone interested is encouraged to contact coach Honeycutt. . . . Women's tennis coach Judy Peel will hold a meeting for prospective players Tuesday, September 8 at 4 p.m. in room 143 of Trask gym. If you cannot attend, but are interested, call ext. 2251. . . . For information on the Racquetball Club call Andy Boles at 392-1979 or Dr. Robert Wolff (ext. 2767). Call Dr. Wolff concerning the Sailing Club, also, or Walker Gold at 256-3548. . . . The Women's Soccer Club will host UNC-Chapel Hill September 16. . . . The volleyball team begins its season September 18 with a home match against High Point College and NC A & T.

Casual Corner's 20% Off

Casual Corner would like to welcome the returning students and the new incoming freshmen by offering an introductory 20% discount on your purchase. Casual Corner is stocked with all the latest fall fashions, so bring your I.D. card, the coupon below and your naked body to Casual Corner—we'll do the rest!

STUDENT *20% DISCOUNT COUPON

Please bring this coupon with your college I.D. or temporary I.D. for your 20% discount at your nearest Casual Corner. Only one coupon per purchase.

*Coupon good only on regular priced merchandise.

Offer expires September 12, 1981

Casual Corner.

INDEPENDENCE HALL

Campus Calendar

Riders needed for Bike-a-Thon

On Saturday, September 19, the Wilmington Youth Council will be sponsoring the "Wheels for Life" Bike-A-Thon to help raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia. This will be part of a nationwide effort to raise money to go towards finding a cure for childhood diseases, such as leukemia and other types of cancer.

You can be a very important part of this worthwhile project! We need riders (of all ages) to obtain sponsors (family, friends, neighbors) and ride in the Bike-A-Thon. Sponsor sheets can be picked up at the UNCW P.E. Office, YMCA, the YMCA, and the Community Arts Center.

Your help will be greatly appreciated by the Wilmington Youth Council as well as millions of children and parents across the country. For more information call Polly Shaver or Teresa Tilley at the Wilmington Youth Council (762-0136).

Circle K club meeting

The Circle K Club, a coed service organization, meets every Sunday night at 7 p.m. in room 107 of Hoggard Hall. Any interested students are strongly urged to attend.

Circle K is an international service club and is a division of the Kiwanis Club.

Answers to Crossword Puzzle

REVIEW FASTER WITH CLIFFS NOTES!

CLIFFS NOTES

Exam time or any time. Cliffs Notes can help you earn better grades in literature. Our complete stock covers most frequently assigned novels, plays and poems. Get the ones you need today.

GET CLIFFS NOTES HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

Business Fraternity rush party Friday

Sigma Alpha Beta is a professional fraternity organized to foster the study of business and to promote closer affiliation between the business world and the students of business. Only those students regularly enrolled in the University of North Carolina at Wilmington Department of Business or pursuing pre-business administration subjects shall be eligible to election of this fraternity as a member. No one may be initiated into this chapter until he has acquired a minimum of 24 hours of university credit, with a scholastic average of at least 2.5 overall or at least a 2.5 average in his last 12 hours of business courses. All qualified persons interested are invited to attend the fraternity's rush party Friday, September 4, 1981. The party will be held at the Good Wood Tavern from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Please see Dr. Jack B. Levy in the Department of Chemistry (C-129) immediately concerning the possibility of your applying for one of the spaces in out-of-state institutions allocated for North Carolina residents. Students chosen for these spaces are charged a reduced rate for tuition.

First Fledgling meeting Sept. 9

The Fledgling will have its first meeting on Wednesday, September 9. It will be held in room 107 of the Pub at 6 p.m. Any student wishing to help us record life at UNCW for this year is invited to attend. No prior experience or special skills are necessary, except the willingness to do some work.

1981 Yearbooks are on sale in room 107 in the Pub. It's the only hardcover book that you'll find around here for $7. They have plenty of pictures and no homework questions. Get yours today! Older yearbooks are also available for you oldtimers. 1980, $5; 1979, $5; 1978, $2.

The portraits for this year's yearbook will be taken in early October in the Pub by a firm from Winston Salem. A $2 fee will be charged but the student will receive proofs and the $2 paid will count off on the price of any ordered.

Your professional growth...

Important to you, important to us. At the Medical College of Virginia Hospitals learning is a daily experience. It takes a special person to work in our dynamic environment. We'd like to talk to you about clinical practice opportunities in:

- OB/GYN
- Critical Care
- General Medicine
- Oncology
- Pediatrics

Our benefits include:

- Educational Waivers for VCU classes
- 12 Official Leave Days for Continued Education
- Free BC/BS (single plan)
- Vacation, Holiday, and Sick Leave
- Retirement and Life Insurance
- Combination 8/12 hr. shifts in ICU/4 day work week
- 8 hr. shifts in non-ICU areas
- Every other weekend off in most areas
- Competitive salaries with a 9% increase
- New Graduate clinical rotation programs
- Hospitality Weekends in the Fall/Winter/Spring

We think you will find an interview with us worth your time. Call collect at (804) 786-0918. Diane Blankenship. Check with your placement office or School of Nursing Department — we may be visiting your campus. Our Nurse Recruiter, Beth Martello would like to meet with you!

Medical College of Virginia Hospitals

Personnel Services
MCV Station
Box 7
Richmond, VA 23298

MCV/VCU is an AA/EQ Agency

Blood drive this month

On September 22 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and on September 23 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., the American Red Cross will be holding a blood drive in the Pub.

Amy Aiken, representative of the Red Cross, hopes to gain strong support from the groups and organizations on campus. The Red Cross's objective is to generate a larger response to the blood drive this year.

Last year 300 people signed up to participate in the blood drive, and only 200 people gave blood.

This year Ms. Aiken hopes to receive larger support from the students. The Red Cross hopes to obtain 250 units of blood this year from UNCW.

It takes 992 units of blood a day to supply the hospitals within this region. If the Red Cross can gather 250 units of blood from UNCW, it can help to save 100 lives.

Walk-in advising now available

Unclassified students may now receive academic advising through the General College Advising Center. Ten advisors will be dealing with the special needs of the unclassified student.

If an unclassified student wishes to be advised between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, he or she should call the General College Advising Center at extension 2245 for an appointment with an unclassified student advisor. The following faculty members will be advising unclassified students: Dr. William Ainsley, Jr., Dr. Polly Applefield, Ms. Annette Broden, Dr. Denis Carter, Ms. Carolyn Dunn, Dr. Lee Anderson Jackson, Dr. Marcee Meyers, Dr. Margaret Parish, Dr. Walter Shelburne, and Dr. John Stokes.

Special evening advising hours will also be available. Unclassified students may see an advisor on a "walk-in" basis between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. on the following dates: Tuesday, September 8, Monday, September 14, Tuesday, September 22, Monday, September 28, Tuesday, October 6, Monday, October 12, Monday, October 26, and Monday, November 23.

All advising will take place in the General College Advising Center on the 2nd floor of Randall Library.

Start a new chain of events

Recruiting Visits

N.C. State Highway Patrol
Trooper Henry F. Moore
Tues., Sept. 22
Pos.: Trooper
Major: All

Internal Revenue Service
Ms. Leah Sattin
Mr. Al Lambeth
Tues., Sept. 22
Pos: Revenue Agent
Major: Accounting, Business Administration

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John Moore
Tues., Wed., Thurs.
Sept. 29, 30 & Oct. 1
Pos: Various
Majors: All

U.S. Navy
Lt. J. Ross
Tues., Wed., Thurs.
Oct. 6, 7, 8
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Roses Stores
Mr. Jim Anderson
Fri., Oct. 9
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business, Any

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earl Fidalgo
Tues., Oct. 13
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineer
Trainees, Computer Prog.

Majors: Business Admin.,
Computer Science, Math,
Physics

S. Preston Douglas & Associates, CPA's
Mr. Carl Wilkins
Wed., Oct. 14
Pos: Staff Accountant
Major: Accounting

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Oct. 15
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt.
Trainee
Majors: Business Admin.,
Acctg Engineering Operations

WORKSHOPS

Resume - Wed., Sept. 2, 2 p.m.
The Job Search - Fri., Sept. 4, 1 p.m.
The Job Interview - Thurs., Sept. 10, 11 a.m.
Resume - Wed., Sept. 16, 4 p.m.
Resume - Thurs., Sept. 17, 11 a.m.

Professional and Administrative Career Examination (PACE) Registration dates: September 9 through October 13, 1981.

Nothing can attract that girl or guy more than the look of real gold next to your skin. Get your message across. Karat gold jewelry at Consolidated Jewelers, 1015 S. Kerr Ave. 25% discount to UNCW students. Open 10-7.

799-0715

The Paperchase
Chandler's Wharf

All New to Wilmington
Stationery Personalized
In Shop or to Order
Matching Pen Sets
Unique Cards for all Occasions

cards stationery & paper goods

CONSOLIDATED JEWELERS • 1015 S. KERR • Repairs, Trade-Ins, Special Orders 25% discount to Students

CONSOLIDATED JEWELERS

KROGER

COLLEGE RD.
UNCW

ALLEN

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS
 1 Left
 5 L.P.
 9 Door part
 14 Coins of Europe
 15 Inner: Pref.
 16 Over
 17 The Orient
 18 Wow: Slang
 19 Contends
 20 Kind of wel.
 22 Deadliest
 23 Mr. Grant
 24 Couch
 25 Chateau
 28 Exciting movie
 32 Dole out
 33 — acid:
 Antiseptic
 34 Mr. Whitney
 35 Travel
 36 Runs

DOWN
 37 Edda
 38 Chemical suffix
 39 Invigorate
 40 Bowl
 41 Mississippi feeder:
 2 words
 43 License
 44 Assert
 45 Girl's name
 46 Of mail
 49 Shy
 53 "For want of —"
 54 Vessel
 55 Ripener
 56 Inflexibility
 57 House part
 58 Alaska city
 59 Very hard
 60 Of the USA
 61 Illum

1 Insect
 2 Suspect one
 3 At one time
 4 Radio device
 5 Wish
 6 Tooth filling
 7 Mr. Musial
 8 Demure
 9 An ocean
 10 Away from the mouth
 11 Negative: Slang
 12 Days before
 13 Just in case
 21 Tar
 22 Entertainer
 Day
 24 Termagant
 25 Minister to 26 On one's own
 27 Twisted
 28 Drinker
 29 Rent

30 Scots city
 31 Mirthful
 33 Faux pas
 36 Equable
 37 Impregnate
 39 Opposition
 40 Indonesian island
 42 Allotment
 43 Golf club
 45 Liberty
 46 Golf scores
 47 "Step —"
 "I": Hurry
 48 Pudding base
 49 Be a nomad
 50 Operatic prince
 51 Verne captain
 52 — Friar
 54 Miss Lillie

Sheriff's Association offers Scholarship

The Student Financial Aid Office invites applications from students who may qualify for scholarships offered by the N.C. Sheriff's Association. Applicants must be full time residents of North Carolina and be the son or daughter of any law enforcement officer killed in the line of duty. Sons or daughters of deceased, retired, or active North Carolina law enforcement officers will also be given consideration.

Official Withdrawal

To officially withdraw from the university, contact the Office of Student Affairs in Alderman Administration Building. Failure to officially withdraw will result in the student receiving an "F" in all courses.

TYPING

All typing needs same day service in most cases
 call: 791-0990

IMPORTANT

Student Government Meeting

date: Every Thursday

place: Morton Hall Auditorium

time: 7:00 p.m.

by
 the sea... Sweetwater

SURF SHOP · WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C.

Men's Swimwear
30% Off

Men's Shirts
25%-35% Off

Ladies' Swimwear
40% Off

Balinese Imports
20%-30% Off

Fall Merchandise

Sweetwater and Ocean Ave
 Boards

Custom
 Orders

10% off
 all regularly priced merchandise

$2.00
 off on T-Shirts

When you need big favors
 you ask good friends.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 2

September 11, 1981

Eight Pages

Malloy asked SGA for assistance for OVA

SGA gives Veteran Affairs loan

by Rob Eubanks
News Editor

Thanks to a loan from the Student Government Association, the Office of Veteran Affairs here on campus is still functioning after losing almost half of its federal grant to Reaganomics this summers.

As a result of the tight budget policy of President Reagan, the Veterans Cost of Instruction Program which pays for the operation of the Veterans Affairs Office here cut the UNCW grant from $9,742 to $4,547 for this fiscal year. Due to the lack of advance warning from the federal government the UNCW Administration unable to allocate money from their already-completed budget.

Since the OVA directly aids some 300 students, Dr. William Malloy asked the SGA for assistance in the matter. They responded by loaning the Veterans Affairs people $4,500 which will be repaid through funding of the Student Handbook. The SGA ordinarily would contribute $2,400 towards printing the handbook, but now will be responsible only for $900, thus resulting in a 3-year savings of $4,500.

The loan decision was chosen as the more desirable course of action as opposed to closing the VA office and spreading their duties among the other Student Affairs personnel. Closure of the office would have been mandatory as federal requirements demand a full-time staff member in the office, something impossible to do with the new grant balance. Loss of the OVA would have meant not only the loss of the regular office person, Carolyn Johnson, but the loss of two work-study positions also funded by the federal government.

Library installs detection system

Beginning this fall semester, students at UNCW will be able to enjoy faster and more efficient service at Randall Library due to a "new book detection system" installed this summer by the library staff. With the ever increasing cost of books being lost, misplaced, or possibly stolen, the library staff headed by Director of Library Services

Eugene Huguélet and Circulation Librarian Arlene Hanerfield, installed the new system to help speed up the process of leaving the library.

The new system works on the principle of treating each and every book with an electrical target device which is sensitized before the book is put on the shelf. Likewise when the book is checked out it is then desensitized to prevent the alarm from going off when a student leaves the door. This system, costing the library approximately $18,000, will eliminate the need of having a person always standing by the door and checking one's book bag. The biggest advantage of the system is to provide better and more efficient service to the students and faculty here at UNCW.

This new system which is made by the 3M Co. was selected after careful consideration of its track record at other libraries across the country. Since the system's fully operational date of August 6, the library staff, students and faculty have had nothing but praise for it.

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

North Carolina Symphony to perform in Kenan September 18

The North Carolina Symphony, led by associate conductor James Ogle, will present an all-Beethoven program in Kenan Auditorium on the UNCW campus in Wilmington on Friday, September 18, at 8 p.m. Cellist Leonard Rose, who was originally scheduled to appear with the symphony as a featured soloist, has been cancelled due to budgetary cutbacks.

The program will include the "Egmont Overture, Symphony No. 8 in F Major, and Symphony No. 5 in C Minor."

James Ogle, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is now in his fourth season as associate conductor of the North Carolina Symphony, after having served four years as its assistant conductor.

Winner of the symphony's first Young Conductor's Competition in 1974, he was also a 1974 winner in the Malko International Conducting Competition held in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Ogle appeared with the International Festival of Young Artists Orchestra in Leysin, Switzerland, and won the statewide James Bland Memorial Scholarship Contest in Virginia. He has also been a great conductor of "Music from Bear Valley," a music festival held each summer in the High Sierra Mountains of California.

Ogle served as assistant conductor for the University of Michigan Orchestra and its Arts Chorale, and for two summers was guest conductor for the Winston-Salem Symphony's summer season.

He studied at the National Conservatory of Music in Paris and with Igor Markevitch in France. In 1980 Ogle studied with Seiji Ozawa, Leonard Bernstein, Andre Previn, and Sir Colin Davis at the renowned Tanglewood Music Festival, summer home of the Boston Symphony.

This past summer he was conductor-in-residence at Appalachian State University's Cannon Music Camp, where he directed the string and symphony orchestras, taught conducting, and held conducting seminars for high school musicians.

Admission to this concert is by season subscription, or tickets may be purchased at the door. Prices are $6 for adults, $4 for senior citizens and students 16 and over, and $2 for children 15 and under.

North Carolina Symphony

Prime Time by Judy Stallsmith Staffwriter

'Old Time' radio better than TV

"Waiter! Waiter! Phil, have you ever seen such poor service?"

"Relax, it's not service you need. It's..."

Sanka coffee? Advice from Marcus Welby Young? No, what Phil needs is Carter's Little Liver Pills, and this isn't a commercial from 1980's TV, but from 1930's radio. Naturally it sounds familiar; many commercials and many more programs we watch now are based or copied from radio. "I Love Lucy," "Dragnet," "Gunsmoke," even "The Guiding Light" originated on radio, as did countless others. And, while TV isn't all bad, just as radio wasn't all good, the majority of radio's stories display writing talents that rank with the finest of our time in any genre.

Although I can recall certain programs from my childhood days BT(before the Tube), it has only been since I began collecting "old time" radio cassettes that I've been able to appreciate how very talented radio writers were. Not only did they have to write good stories, they had to write good stories capable of projecting both audio and visual images without being able to transmit the actual story picture. This they did, and did wonderfully. Indeed, some (heck, all) of the stories I listen to project a more emphatic, enjoyable image than most of the rerun, unpolished, uncreative stuff on TV.

Another way radio writers' craft was difficult was that many of their creations were adaptations of material from short stories, novels, and movies. Adaptations—not based upon. This meant they had to change another writer's work into the same story in a different form. One of the most memorable of these adaptations was Howard Koch's rendition of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds." You know, the one that caused the panic and made a sensation of Orson Wells? Maybe some of you remember that panic, the very real fear this very realistic program caused.

Listening to it now, for the nth time, I can understand how the panic started. One minute you're listening to Latin rhythms from the "Meridian Room" at the "Park Plaza Hotel," the next you're hearing a newsbreak about the meteorites falling at "Grover's Mill, New Jersey." Within a few more short moments you're on the spot as "the Intercontinental" radio network's reporter, Carl Phillips, describes the opening of the space cylinder, the ghostly, "pulsating, quivering," thing which comes out of it. And then, quick as the exploding of the Hindenberg, the strange creature shoots a death ray out into the crowd. "Oh Lord, they're turning into flames," Phillips gasps into the mike, then, "It's coming this way now...about 20 yards to my left..." And silence.

Yes, there are clues this is a radio drama—the time lapse is too short for everything to have happened, for everything to have been destroyed which is said to have been. The Secretary of the Interior who places his trust in God to preserve humanity and who pleads with Americans not to panic sounds a great deal like Orson Wells imitating FDR. And, as a small voice asks, "Isn't there anyone on the air? Isn't there anyone?" you realize that, of course, the radio is on the air. But these clues all come well into the program, if you miss the opening announcement of "The Mercury Theatre On The Air Presents..." you're too scared to wait for the clues. Even if you hear it, it's hard to remember it's only a story.

How many TV shows are like that? Certainly we have real-life dramas, but so what? As for me, I'm tired of looking at the same old stuff, the same old people, acting in the same old stories. I'd much rather see what's on the "old time" radio again.

Letters

Title IX covers women's equal opportunity in sports

To the Editor:

Title IX, part of the Education Act of 1972, has recently come under fire by the Reagan administration. Title IX covers women's equal opportunity for participation in school sports. Title IX is why two million young ladies participate in high school sports today, compared with less than 300,000 before its enactment. It has given us the advantage of 10,000 collegiate athletic scholarships for women, compared with almost none prior to 1972. Because of Title IX, intercollegiate women's competition is now available in 17 sports. Today, there are 784 active member schools in the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women(AIAW), and 100,000 women competitors in collegiate athletics—almost five times the number before Title IX.

And while Title IX hasn't been fully enforced yet when it comes to spending—$400,000 for women compares with $1.5 million for men at full football schools—even the let-'em-be-cheerleaders Reagan administration cannot deny that the increased spending and opportunity for women's sports brought about by Title IX has encouraged a significant increase in women's sports interest, participation, and benefits.

Why, then would the Reagan administration want to review the rules of a regulatory game that's already been won? Simply because of pressure from the revenue producing NCAA football schools. When announcing that Title IX would be reviewed, Vice President Bush directly quoted the president of Notre Dame as saying that something had to be done about Title IX. This review is little more than a blatant putdown of women, because about Title IX. This review is little more than a blatant putdown of women, because now women's sports are going to suffer because football farms don't like the current rules.

It's interesting to note that after the Reagan administration is through with Title IX, the next victim to review is going to be the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's guidelines against sexual harassment on the job.

It's often been President Reagan's argument that the Equal Rights Amendment is unnecessary because, he claims, federal and state regulations already protect women's civil rights and prevent sexual discrimination. Now, he had his administration are demonstrating how easily these protections can taken away without benefit of the ERA.

Barbara Grob

Reporter gets close-up look at Klan hatred

CH. A Duke U. student newspaper got a discomfortingly close look at Ku Klux Klan bigotry recently when he unsuccessfully tried to pass himself off as a non-Jew during an interview.

Rob Satloff of the Duke Chronicle staff arranged the interview with Glenn Miller, grand dragon of the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, under the condition that no black or Jewish reporters would attend. Satloff is Jewish.

Armed with a phony press pass which identified him as Robert A. Statler, Jr., and wearing a shorter haircut and a small cross on a chain around his neck, Satloff accompanied fellow Chronicle staff member Shep Moyle to Miller's home outside Angier, a small town an hour from Duke.

The disguise did him little good. Satloff says Miller's first words were "Are you a Jew?" Although the reporter denied his religion on that occasion and twice more during the first minutes of the interview, it was to no avail. Miller's comrades, one of whom wore a Nazi uniform, were convinced that Satloff was Jewish. The interview was interrupted while the Klansmen presented Satloff his options: leave immediately, stay and face the consequences or agree to incarceration for the afternoon to allow Moyle to finish the interview alone.

As Satloff later wrote in the Chronicle, his first impulse "was to get as far away from that place as quickly as possible. These people had rifles, pistols, automatic weapons—they were not fooling around." He finally consented to being locked inside. Moyle's car, where he spent two-and-a-half hours under armed guard.

Satloff's account of his incarceration, Moyle's interview of Miller and a series of on-the-street interviews both reporters did in Angier appeared in the Chronicle's weekly magazine, Aeolus, and drew substantial positive support from the Duke community. "We had a lot of congratulatory notes and a lot of requests for copies," says Satloff. "I think it was a frightening realization for students here, to know the Klan is that close. It's one thing to read a wire story from somewhere else, but the proximity to the Duke campus made a much bigger impact. There wasn't any reaction from the Klan—but then we didn't send them a copy."

Satloff was admittedly nervous about the story's appearance, especially after a note bearing the letters "KKK" was placed on Moyle's car in a Duke parking lot a few days before the articles were published. "I don't think we went anywhere alone after that," he says.

See KLAN p.6

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonya Roberts, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley

Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern

Photography: Jan Loy, Laurie Black

Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Robert Eubanks, Dave Newbern

Typesetter: Chryl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Wine, Cheese Party major issue at Senate meeting

by Marty Cathell

The subject of cheese seemed foremost in the mind of the SGA at their first meeting held Thursday at 7 p.m. in Morton Hall. An often heated discussion concerning the purchase of cheese for a Wine and Cheese Party for campus club, organization and media leaders occupied half of the meeting which convened at approximately 7:05 p.m. and adjourned around 8:50.

Other topics were also discussed.

Campus Security and the SGA will be working together to establish two committees: 1) a Crime Watch Committee, and 2) a Car Congestion Committee. Also SGA President Charles Parsons asked that the SGA request the location of the new Campus

Security Office (presently located in a trailer behind the dorms) be changed to a more central area, saying that at this time it was "in the wrong place."

Two Executive Orders which Parsons issued this summer were reviewed: 1) the transfer of money left in the 80-81 SEAHAWK budget to the 81-82 SEAHAWK budget, and 2) the granting of an SGA loan for $4,500 to the Office of Veterans Affairs.

The Cheese Issue was first introduced by Parsons at the end of an extended opening address. Parsons explained the purpose of the Social, to be given by the Dean's Office and the SGA Executive Branch, is to create more communication and cooperation among campus clubs and organization leaders, which Parsons said was also a prime goal of his administration. Calling for optimism, Parsons concluded, "Let's go for a positive year."

The party, scheduled for Sept. 9, was brought up again by SGA treasurer, Shirley Mayfield, who requested the Senate back her in the disapproval of allocating SGA funds meant for the general student population for the purchase of food for an exclusive group. Ms. Mayfield argued that the purchase of food with student fees was against SGA policy and that by making this exception the Senate would be "taking support out from under your treasurer."

The topic was again dropped until announcements when Senator Jeff Newton suggested that Ms. Mayfield be backed in her suggestion.

Then followed a short period of confusion concerning Parliamentary Procedure which resulted in Senator Newton being declared out of order, and it looked as though the subject would rest, until someone offered to move into informal discussion. This prompted debate by all, with heated discussion reaching a height as President Parsons stood up, rapidly walked to the front of the auditorium, shouting over presiding officer Vice President Steve Schmidt, and demanded to be recognized. A short shouting match took place, as Schmidt tried as calmly as possible to put the outspoken president back into his place. Finally, Parsons was recognized by a senator, legally giving him the floor which he used to re-explain the value of the Wine and Cheese Party.

After more debate, a vote was made to use $75 of $200 raised by the SGA in 80-81, instead of funds from student fees. After the voting, Dean Juhan announced that in an effort to begin the year with as little controversy as possible and in hopes of providing a friendly atmosphere at the Wine and Cheese Party that the Dean's Office would accept no money from the SGA. The funds are to come from donations.

SURF recruiting UNCW

students for Research/Vessel

Southeastern Undersea Research Facility (SURF), a federally funded marine research program is recruiting UNCW students who are qualified divers to accompany scientific parties aboard the Research/Vessel SEAHAWK.

Students interested in becoming involved in the SURF program must be certified by a National Diving Organization (NAUI, PADI) and who have completed five working dives or equivalent. The closing date for applications is September 15, 1981.

The rigorous training program, under the supervision of L.T. Edward M. Clark, Jr., Operations Director, will last approximately seven days.

Diving successfully completing the free training program will accompany the SURF crew and scientists on the R/V SEAHAWK missions as needed. The will participate in undersea research activities and work with professional divers (SURF) and scientists.

According to Stephanie M. Reed, Secretary for SURF, there have been 32 applicants received as of September 2, 1981. The applicants will be screened to determine eligibility and eleven divers will be chosen to take the training course.

The divers will be qualified to use mixed gas and surface air supply system, in addition to the open diving bell which will be aboard the R/V SEAHAWK.

The R/V SEAHAWK has undergone extensive renovations. The appearance of the vessel has changed since its original design for use as a trawler. The R/V SEAHAWK completion date is mid-October, according to program director, Dr. Gilbert Bane.

The R/V SEAHAWK will be transporting visiting scientists to various locations along the Eastern Seaboard for experimentation and research in water depths of 90 to 300 feet. Divers using conventional equipment will be restricted to depths of approximately 60 feet, but specialized equipment will allow divers to go deeper.

If you are interested in expanding your diving experience to a professional level, applications can be obtained at the SURF Center 232-B Marine Science Building (end of Randall Drive - on campus).

Health Clinic lists cold "cures"

The UNCW Health Clinic, which is located on the first floor of Dorm '79 (new dorm), says the cold season is underway. The common cold can be caused by over 100 different viral agents. Symptoms include a tickling, dry sensation in the throat, cough, nasal congestion, fever, bodyache, and chills. Colds caused by viruses are self-limiting, meaning they do not respond to antibiotics. Avoiding a cold can save much discomfort. A cold is communicable one day before onset and up to five days afterward.

If you do catch a cold it is best for you to treat it immediately so that recovery is quicker and there will be less discomfort.

Since prescription antibiotics are useless it is not always necessary to see a physician. The most effective remedies for the common cold can be self-administered. They include: 1) limiting your physical activities, don't push yourself; 2) drink at least two quarts of liquid a day, preferably fruit juice; 3) take aspirin or aspirin substitute to relieve aches.

Although colds are generally not serious they do weaken the body's resistance to more serious illnesses such as bronchitis, middle ear infections, and pneumonia. If a cold persists it may be wise to consult a physician.

P & R department presents lecture series

A lecture series presenting different perspectives of Humanism will be presented this fall by members of the Philosophy and Religion Department and religious leaders in the community.

Entitled "Perspectives of Humanism: A Public Dialogue" will be held in the UNCW Library Auditorium at 8 on Thursday evenings, Sept. 24, Oct. 15 and continue on Oct. 29 and Nov. 5.

The series will present different perspectives on the meaning of humanism, its history and how it affects people today, both politically and religiously.

Two panel discussions will be included in the series. On Sept. 24 the panel will be moderated by Dr. W. Thomas Schmid, associate professor of philosophy and religion. The panel will consist of Dr. Melton A. McLaurin, professor of history; and Dr. James J. Megivern, professor of philosophy and religion. The third panelist, Dr. Edward E. Ulrich, is the Director of the North Carolina Association of Christian Schools.

The second panel discussion Oct. 29, will be moderated by Mr. Allen Laymon, pastor of First Baptist Church, Wilmington. Dr. Sandy D. Martin, assistant professor of philosophy and religion, will serve on the panel, as well as two other religious leaders from Wilmington, not yet named.

The lectures are free and open to the public. Time for audience participation will be reserved.

by
the sea...

Sweetwater

SURF SHOP • WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C.

All Summer Merchandise

On Sale

New Shipment of Wet Suits

Long Sleeve T-Shirts

Long Sleeve Sweat Shirts

Fall Merchandise

Arriving Daily

$2.00 off on all Sweatshirts With Coupon

Coupon Good 9-11 thru 9-17

Sports

'Hawks seek improvement

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

Two missed penalty kicks and what coach Calvin Lane called "a lack of aggressiveness in the second half" cost NCW's soccer team a 1-0 season-opening loss to UNC-Greensboro last Friday in the Annual Four Points Tournament at UNC-Charlotte.

The Seahawks bounced back on Saturday with a 11-1 rout of UNC-Asheville for third place, but it was not enough to offset Friday's disappointing defeat.

"We were extremely disappointed because we've had a lot of success in the tournament before," said Lane.

"We thought we should've won the game. We got on top early and had a scoring opportunity. We played well in the second half, but we were not as aggressive as we should have been in the first half."

UNC-Greensboro scored the season's first goal in the first overtime period. UNCW outscored UNC-G 15-12, and twice UNCW senior Dennis Davis missed penalty kicks that could have sealed a Seahawk victory. Twice Davis shot hit the goalpost.

The next day was much more pleasant as 10 UNCW players scored, tying a school record for different players scoring.

Freshman Alberto Rodriguez, who had two goals, scored the Hawk's first goal

Coach Lane looks over soccer practice, ahead to this week's matches.

Staff Photo/Scott Sibley

eight minutes into the contest. UNCW led 6-0 at halftime, and it was not until late in the match that UNC-A got through UNCW's rookie goalie, sophomore Mike Lyons.

"I was fairly happy with our line play and at goal," said Lane, whose Seahawks met Atlantic Christian here Thursday. Dave Karlson and Paul Felsner were honored to the all-tournament team.

"I think we've improved since the tournament," Lane added. "We have a lot of new people and new positions to fill. At this time we're trying to put the right combination on the field together."

"We've got a lot of potential and some very skilled players. We're optimistic we can put together a consistent winner. I think the players realize now the price they have to pay to be a winner."

The 'Hawks travel to Pembroke State Saturday then return home for a big match against UNC-Chapel Hill on Wednesday.

"UNC is undefeated so far," Lane said. "They beat High Point and Atlantic Christian pretty badly. They have a fine team, and it'll be a very difficult game, but we've had a lot of success against Carolina in the past."

Sports Calendar

Saturday

Men's Soccer at Pembroke State.
X-Country at Campbell Invitational in Buies Creek.

Tuesday

Intramural 'Almost Anything Goes' day.

Wednesday

Men's Soccer vs. UNC-Chapel Hill, 4 p.m.
Women's Soccer vs. UNC-Chapel Hill.
Deadline for Intramural flag football sign-up.

Notes...

Women's basketball coach Marilyn Christoph is excited about her 81-82 edition of Lady Seahawks, which have already begun informal practice sessions. Two all-state high school players will be joining six returning players from last year's 18-8 season - best in UNCW history - when the season starts November 24...

The men's cross country team swept the first three places in last weekend's Rocky Point 10,000 meters. Robbie Burke took first, followed by Julian Keith and George Walker. Coach Bill Atwill announced the rest of the traveling squad for Saturday's Campbell Invitational. They will be Al Brantley, Paul Lupica, Dave Hodge and Arnold Houston...

Atwill is pleading women runners to join the women's cross country team. Atwill says UNCW desperately needs women who can run three miles if the team is going to make any kind of strong showing. Anyone interested is encouraged to contact Atwill.

Intramural sports underway

by Mary Kraemer
Journalism Contributor

The UNCW intramural program has been bringing fun and fitness to the lives of interested students year around in a variety of seasonal sports and games for the past three years.

P.E. instructor and women's golf coach Lea Larson has successfully coordinated the program during this time.

At the present time the teams we can get involved in are football, soccer, baseball, golf, and tennis. Teams can be changed to suit student interest since the opinion of the participant is the main decision making source in the intramural program.

Since the introduction of intramurals to the UNCW campus, the program has come to play a major role in the lives of students and athletes as well. The casual atmosphere and the disregard of intense competition that prevail in the program make intramurals an outlet for relaxing activity to students.

Larson's goal is: "Friendship first, competition second."

The first scheduled event was the golf driving contest held Thursday. "Almost Anything Goes," which is exactly what it implies, takes place Tuesday. After that there is flag football, a fishing derby Oct. 7, volleyball, corksball, soccer, a bowling tournament Oct. 10-11, a cross country run Oct. 12, and basketball.

Deadline dates for sign-ups will be posted around Hanover

Gym and printed weekly in The Seahawk.

The UNCW intramural program seeks to bring fun and casual competition back to the playing field. A combination of energetic sports activities with enthusiastic sportsmanship help make UNCW a healthy campus community.

Club sports

The Ten Pin Club held its first official meeting Thursday. Future meetings will be held every Wednesday, 4-6 p.m. at Cardinal Lanes on Shipyard Blvd. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The Football Club will have new equipment as it returns to fall competition. The Seahawks, which broke up during the 1980 season, but re-organized in the spring, bought pads and bright, Kelly green helmets with their $4,200 allocation from the SGA. The Seahawk will preview the football club's 1981 season in next week's issue.

Walker Gold, captain of the Sailing Club, says meetings will be held every other Wednesday, at 8 p.m. in the Pub. He says this year's club will be involved in pleasure and racing sailing, and will hopefully be joining the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association (SAISA).

It's not too late to be a member of the Racquetball Club. For information call Dr. Robert Wolff (ext. 2767), Andy Bowles (392-1979), or Mitch Covington (191-9292).

The Women's Soccer Club opens its fall schedule with a home match Wednesday against UNC-Chapel Hill.

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

Cliffs Notes answer your questions about literature as you study and review. Each is designed to help improve your grades and save you time.

Come in and see our Cliffs Notes display.

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100

WANTED

Responsible person to share two bedroom furnished house 3 miles from campus, $110 rent plus 1/2 utilities, contact Myra Gilbert, c/o offices: Phys., Art, Security, Psy. Leave name and phone number.

fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery
 fast, free delivery

Fast, Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.

©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

You can help us serve you and others faster if you follow these simple steps
when ordering your pizza.

1. Know what you want before ordering (size of pizza, quantity, what you want on it, any drinks).

2. Give your name, your dorm name, room number, phone number (the one we can reach you at during the following half hour).

3. When placing an order, let us know if you have large denomination bills.

4. Remain by the phone after ordering. We may call back to confirm the order.

5. Price that is quoted on the phone includes sales tax but does not include the subtraction of the coupon. The driver will subtract it when the delivery is made.

6. Have the coupons and money with you when the driver arrives.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce
and Real Cheese

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe

5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Onions, Green Peppers
and Sausage
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi

5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives,
Onions, Green Peppers
and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.

We use only 100% real
dairy cheese.

Pepsi / Quarts
Customer pays deposit.

4 Quarts Of Pepsi

15833 5526

Free with any 16" pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/23/81
Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

2 Quarts of Pepsi

15833 5526

Free with any 12" pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/23/81
Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

$3.00 Off

15833 5526

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 mins., present this coupon to the driver for $3.00 off.
Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

Over 1200 attend UPB Block Party

The University Program Board on the campus of UNCW has been a committee of students dedicated to bringing fine entertainment to the rest of the students enrolled. Saturday night, August 29, was the first attempt this year, and it was no exception. On hand in the Pub, was the Program Board's first block party of the semester.

According to Robert Swift, the Chairman of the Program Board, the man to be congratulated was Dance Committee Chairperson, Scott Meckes.

Swift said that over 1200 people attended the event to enjoy rock-n-roll performed by a local band named "Stormz".

The band was reported to have played such hits as, "Never Been Any Reason", and "Going Down For the Last Time."

Normally, the Program Board requires student identification for participation in campus events, but Swift claimed that the general public had been welcomed as well. Quite a number of non-student Wilmington residents were reported to have attended.

Those present to enjoy the entertainment relaxed inside the lobby of the Student Union building after an expected shower occurred shortly after 10 p.m. The precipitation did not seem to bother the majority of the attendants as they continued sipping the assorted alcoholic beverages they were invited to bring along.

As the evening came to a close around midnight, the band had performed two encores before clean-up crews began their work.

MORRISON & POWELL, FRIDAY NIGHT IN

THE GOODWOOD TAVERN AT 8 PM

General College Advising Hours

The complete schedule for advising unclassified students at the General College Advising Center during evening hours (5 p.m. - 7 p.m.) is as follows:

DAY	ADVISOR
September 8, 1981	Mrs. Brogden
September 14	Dr. Parish
September 22	Dr. Stokes
September 28	Dr. Dunn
October 6	Dr. Jackson
October 12	Dr. Ainsley
October 26	Dr. Meyers

Communications Club changes

To change one's image can often be a very difficult and painful job. The Communications Club, however, which had its first meeting scheduled for September 3, plans to do just that.

In the past the organization has been seen as an on-going Wine and Cheese Party with no real purpose or goals. This year club chairman Aaron Oliver hopes to make the club more of a service organization.

"I want to see the Communications Club provide job information to Communications majors", Oliver explained, "as well as helping other clubs with their advertising and promotional efforts."

This year Student Government has allocated the club with a small amount of monetary support. With these funds Chairman Oliver hopes the organization can develop additional revenue, to help bring the guest speakers and even provide a newsletter for communications majors.

Founded in the Spring of 1979 the club has had fluctuating membership. Presently it is unknown just how many members there are in the organization. "A lot of people who worked with the club graduated last year, and we just don't know who's left," Oliver added.

It is hoped that with posters up and department faculty announcing the club meeting in class, that old members will return, and other interested students will become involved.

KLAN from p.2

What little criticism the story garnered came from those who thought any mention of the KKK is publicity for the organization and from some who objected to Moyle's agreeing to make a $5 donation to the group in order to be allowed to take pictures of Klansmen, their weaponry and a firing range on Miller's ranch.

Satloff says the Chronicle intends to do more Klan coverage in the future. "I don't know if I'll be involved personally," he says. "My ability to investigate the Klan is pretty much depleted."

Your professional growth...

Important to you, important to us. At the Medical College of Virginia Hospitals learning is a daily experience. It takes a special person to work in our dynamic environment. We'd like to talk to you about clinical practice opportunities in:

- OB/GYN
- Critical Care
- General Medicine
- Oncology
- Pediatrics

Our benefits include:

- Educational Waivers for VCU classes
- 12 Official Leave Days for Continued Education
- Free BC/BS (single plan)
- Vacation, Holiday, and Sick Leave
- Retirement and Life Insurance
- Combination 8/12 hr. shifts in ICU/4 day work week
- 8 hr. shifts in non-ICU areas
- Every other weekend off in most areas
- Competitive salaries with a 9% increase
- New Graduate clinical rotation programs
- Hospitality Weekends in the Fall/Winter/Spring

We think you will find an interview with us worth your time. Call collect at (804) 786-0918, Diane Blankenship. Check with your placement office or School of Nursing Department — we may be visiting your campus. Our Nurse Recruiter, Beth Martello would like to meet with you!

Medical College of Virginia Hospitals

Personnel Services
MCV Station
Box 7
Richmond, VA 23298

MCV/VCU is an AA/EEO Agency

Campus Calendar

Writing Center offers services to students

The Writing Center, located in room 203 of Morton Hall, is designed to assist students who need help with any aspect of their writing, including content, style, spelling, grammar, etc. The Center is staffed by Director Richard Veit, Ms. Sylvia Welborn, Dr. Sally Sullivan and four student tutors. The staff will work with each student individually, at their own pace and according to their own strengths and weaknesses. There are no grades assigned, and no cost involved.

The Writing Center is presently open five days a week from 9:15 a.m. till noon, 1 till 3:45 p.m., and on Thursday evenings from 6:30 till 8:30. All interested students are welcome to stop by. For more information call the English Department at 791-4330, extension 2320.

Biology Club

Biology Club Fall Plant Sale, UNCW Greenhouse, 8 a.m. - 4 p.m., Friday, September 11, 1981. House plants, hanging baskets, orchids, cacti, and succulents.

Historical Society presents lecture

The UNCW Historical society proudly presents "Rescuing Herstory" why study woman's history with guest speaker Professor Kathleen Berkeley (specialist on women's history). September 14, 1981 7:30 p.m. in Morton Hall, room 100.

English Club

film series begin

The English Club's 1981-82 film series is entitled "Films of Mystery and Suspense." The first film will be show on Thursday, September 10 in the library auditorium at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. The film is entitled "Green for Danger," and is a murder-mystery in a hospital setting. The 1947 film stars Trevor Howard, Allastair Sim and Sally Gray. Deborah Newton, President of the English Club, extends everyone an invitation to join the club.

Fifty attend Campus Christian Fellowship meeting

Approximately 50 students and faculty attended the weekly meeting of the Campus Christian Fellowship Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the Good Wood Tavern where upcoming activities were discussed:

1. A retreat is to be held at Camp Kirkwood, 30 miles from Wilmington, September 18-20. Cost is $15, including lodging and food.

2. The CCF, together with four other campus groups, will be enlisting people to participate in the blood drive to be on September 22 and 23.

3. "Lamb," a Messianic duo from Philadelphia, Pa., will be in concert on Friday, October 2, at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Grise Auditorium. Admission is free, but a love offering will be taken. This concert is being jointly sponsored by the Youth Council of the Wilmington Presbytery and CCF.

Three small study groups were started this year by CCF. The groups meet weekly in Galloway Hall, Dorm '79, and the College Manor Apartments.

Communications Club

Communications Club Meeting #2, Sept. 17, 3 p.m., K-103. It's not too late to join!

Pi Kappa Phi Rush party

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity will have a rush party in the Pub on Friday, September 18. Admission will be free for all UNCW students. Beverages will be provided.

Sheriff's Association offers Scholarship

The Student Financial Aid Office invites applications from students who may qualify for scholarships offered by the N.C. Sheriff's Association. Applicants must be full time residents of North Carolina and be the son or daughter of any law enforcement officer killed in the line of duty. Sons or daughters of deceased, retired, or active North Carolina law enforcement officers will also be given consideration.

Phi Beta Lambda open to all

The UNCW Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda is part of a national business fraternity, open to all students enrolled in the UNCW School of Business. We are a growing organization, interested in new ideas and inputs.

All students enrolled in the UNCW School of Business are invited to attend the Phi Beta Lambda rush party on Sept. 10 (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. Those unable to attend the party may still join by attending the Sept. meeting. (Date will be posted in Bear Hall.) We are looking forward to seeing you!

Atlantis reveals deadlines

Students, see your name in print! Atlantis, UNCW's only student literary magazine, is now accepting original prose (fiction and non-fiction), poetry and artwork to be considered for inclusion in the Fall '81 edition. Bring your creations to the Department of English by 4 p.m., Thursday, October 8, 1981.

Also, anyone interested in working on the Atlantis staff, leave your name and phone number in the English Department office or call 762-4128.

Reach out to over 6000 - Advertise in

THE SEAHAWK

September

Four Winds

Thursday

10 Ladies Welcome
John Glover in the Garden

17 Ladies Welcome
Dan Holmes in the Garden

Saturday

12 John Glover in the Garden
19 Dan Holmes in the Garden

Tuesday

15 UNCW Night
No cover with college ID

Friday

11 Control Group
Happy Hour 3-8
18 John Glover Jam Band
Happy Hour 3-8

Sunday

13 Stormz
Cook-out
Doors Open at 6:00

Wednesday

16 Joja Band
99 cent night

PEANUTS®

PAINTING BY NUMBERS?
I'M ASHAMED OF YOU

THAT DOESN'T TAKE TALENT...ANYONE CAN DO THAT!

IS LXXXVII
YELLOW-GREEN OR BLUE-GREEN?

TYPING

Termpapers, Manuscripts,
Resumes, Applications, etc.
call- 791-0990

Find out what's going on -

read

THE SEAHAWK

each week.

Atlantis

student literary magazine now accepting original prose, poetry, fiction, and artwork.
also in search of staff members with critical minds, provocative ideas. contact dept. of english or call 762-

Deadline October 8, 1981

PIZZACITY

FREE DELIVERY

PIZZA AND SANDWICHES

392-5515

OPEN

4 PM

The Paperchase

All New to Wilmington

The craziest one-of-a-kind cards you have ever seen!

Stationery ready to monogram in bright bold colors!

Paper goods to fit your every need.

Mon.-Sat. 10-5 call 762-2245

Opening Soon

THE BEER BOX

Keep your eye on this space

for a new concept of

Wilmington's most complete

Beverage Center!

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

A One Stop Beverage Shop

"BACK WHEN I WAS IN SCHOOL, MY
BASEBALL COACH TOLD ME THAT SOMEDAY
THERE'D BE A LESS FILLING BEER. HE ALSO TOLD ME TO TRY OUT FOR GLEE CLUB!"

Marv Throneberry
Baseball Legend

BEER FROM MILLER.
EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER. AND LESS.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 3

September 17, 1981

Twelve pages

UNCW hosts SGA representatives

by Rob Eubanks
News Editor

UNCW played host this past weekend to SGA representatives from 7 different UNC schools, as the monthly meeting of the UNC Association of Student Governments came to order Saturday morning, Sept. 12 in Alderman Hall. Charles Parsons, president of the Student Government Association here, welcomed representatives from Chapel Hill, NC State, UNC-Charlotte, Appalachian, Elizabeth City State, NCCU, and the North Carolina School of the Arts to the meeting, with Dean of Students Gary Juhan representing the UNCW administration. Primary goals of this month's meeting were the establishment of a new budget for the UNCASG and adoption of a statement of their views on the Consent Decree settlement between the UNC system and the Department of Education (formerly HEW) concerning desegregation.

D.C. Leroy Beatty III, SGA president at ECSU, chaired the Black Ad Hoc Committee established to draw up a formal statement of views on the UNC-DOE Consent Decree. The committee took issue with several points in the decree, and asked President of the UNC system, William Friday to recognize these questionable areas. Curtis Massey, president of the SGA at NCCU, questioned the lack of financial aid to retain minority students recruited with lucrative financial aid after their freshman year. He felt that black students recruited with lucrative financial aid were left on their own once they were settled into school. At present there are retentive programs for blacks or whites at most universities in North Carolina. There are also many aid programs available for any students showing need.

Also raised was a question on the intention of the UNC General Administration to implement 29 academic programs in the traditionally black institutions. Massey, who is also chairman of the North Carolina Association of Black Student Governments, stated that it is felt that the programs are outdated ones suggested some years ago, and that newer programs should be included. It was not stated what those newer programs are. As for programs already established on traditionally black campuses, it was stated, again by Massey, that the UNC decision to remove funding from failing academic

See SGA p. 12

SGA representatives from seven different schools met at UNCW.

UNCW's ROTC program gets underway

by Rob Eubanks
News Editor

"BE all that you can be...It's not just a job—it's an adventure." Sound familiar? Thanks to the introduction of the Army ROTC program here this fall, many of UNCW's students will get the opportunity to find out just how the Army is backing up those statements. Coming to our campus as we go into another year of record-setting growth, ROTC has entered the field at UNCW with the beginnings of a program offering students the opportunity to train for something more than your ordinary 9-to-5 job.

On assignment as part of Reserve Officer Training Corps extension at UNCW, Captain Gordon MacRae and SFC Younits have kicked off the program with 17 freshmen and 23 juniors for this fall. Of the juniors, 10 are regular non-service students and 13 are UNCW students already serving in the National Guards and desiring to go into the Army Reserve as officers. All of the juniors have until the summer after their sophomore year to declare themselves in or out. For sophomores who desire to enter the program there is a Basic Camp at Ft. Knox, Ky. during the summer before their junior year, where they can be trained up to the appropriate level. This past summer saw six UNCW students (three male, three female) attend the Basic camp, where the cadets learned everything from how to spit polish one's boots to map reading, marksmanship, and studying small unit tactics. During the camp, two UNCW students were singled out for special awards; Janet Johnson won the High Physical Training test for males or females, and Jerry Swanner won a two year ROTC scholarship. Several other cadets were recognized as Outstanding Leaders.

For the 17 freshmen entering the course, the first class they take (there is only one required class per semester) will teach them the history of the ROTC program, its organization and mission within the framework of our National Defense system. They will become familiar with traditions within the Army, orient themselves on the principles of war and understand the development of small-unit weapons utilized in warfare. As noted, there is only one required course per semester, but cadets must have 90 hours of training after their freshmen and sophomore years as ordered by Congress. ROTC officers are good men; they must be good men, and they must bring fresh new ideas for our Army to evolve and grow. One cadet in particular, Glen Page, seems to be fulfilling this demand. Now a junior here, Page spent 12 weeks this past summer in Marine Basic Camp at Parris Island, SC. His reason:

"Self-satisfaction and the personal challenge. I wanted to see what the bottom was like so I'd know what to expect as a leader from my men." Page is planning to go into the Airborne Infantry for the excitement and travel, and after a tenure there transfer to a post more suitable to his intended major in Business Marketing.

Dave Kermion, a Marine Corps veteran of over three years, is going through the program because he feels the military is his calling, and the program here can give one "better attitudes, better studying habits. It trains you to act not just as a commander, but as a leader to your men, someone they can count on." The Marine Corps is not the only service branch represented here, though. There are many veterans of the Army and the Air Force in the ROTC program.

Since coming here this summer, the ROTC office has received offers from several UNCW professors with past military experience interested in helping the cadets with and study problems they might have. The ROTC instructors themselves have become active in the school by volunteering their services as coaches of the UNCW Club Football team. Some services they will be setting up include white-water rafting, snow skiing, a trip to Washington, DC, and tank gunnery on the ranges at Ft. Bragg.

Captain Gordon MacRae

UNCW student dies Thursday

Kathy June Waynick, a 19-year-old sophomore from Charlotte, died last Thursday evening at approximately 5:30 p.m., according to Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs William Malloy.

Preliminary reports said Ms. Waynick died on cardiac arrest. The reports also indicated that she possibly took a combination of prescription drugs and alcohol.

Malloy said that Ms. Waynick was taken to the hospital by rescue squad from Belk Hall at about 3 a.m. Thursday morning for treatment. She went into a coma and never regained consciousness.

Ms. Waynick's family ordered an autopsy, said Malloy, but the results are not known. Her funeral was held this past Sunday in Charlotte.

Graffiti today shows lack of breeding and sensibility

Dr. Byington asked our Folklore class the other day if the Ladies' restrooms at UNCW had graffiti as the Men's do. Oh, my, do they! And, while I've no personal experience in the Men's, I think it's safe to say the Ladies' can't be any less picturesque, no less than the Men's. This is one of the first campus attractions I saw as a Freshman was also the first disillusionment of my collegiate career. Frankly, I didn't believe intelligent people (and you got to be intelligent to get into college) went in for that sort of thing.

Oh, I'm not talking about the kids' rhymes like, "Here I Sit All Broken-hearted," or "It's

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

Hard to Keep Your Concentration," or even "One Bright Day in the Middle of the Night." Those things are cute, an innocuous word for innocuous things. Even Ogden Nash is cute sometimes. I'm talking about the rhymes and messages that aren't cutely vulgar, that aren't even shockingly vulgar although I think they are meant to be.

I wasn't shocked as I was initiated into collegiate graffiti in the upstairs Ladies' Lounge of Randall Library; I was flabbergasted. Yet had as those "writings on the wall" were seven semesters ago, they have gotten worse. Now they not only show a lack of breeding, they show a lack of sensibility.

The "for a good times" have expanded to include not just names and phone numbers but also graphic word and picture explanations of how John Doe will give you a "good time". The advice to and/or opinion of the President door surveys have lengthened to encompass not just his mentality but also some ideas of certain very strange (and totally impossible) sexual acts he should indulge in. The comments on the "Jesus Saves" messages have stretched out into accusations Nero would have been proud of, written in language he might have been ashamed of.

But the worst is the message I've found on booths in the library, the cafeteria, and Kenan Hall: "So-and-so has an illegitimate child." Now is that necessary? Why should anyone feel called upon to write that on a bathroom wall? Or write it at all for that matter. That's not cute, that's not even vulgar. That's ignor-antly cruel.

Sergeant Esterhaus, the "Hill Street Blues" philosophy philosopher, says it best in this observation quoted in the September 14 issue of Time: "It seems that we've reached a new low, graffiti-wise, in both the men's and women's lavatories. Now, in an organization of mature men and women, I suggest that we clean up our act... our vocabulary... at the very least" our spelling. To they anonymous bathroom poet, breast is generally spelled b-r-e-a-s-t...

Addendum: To the anonymous bathroom Devo enthusiast, "Wipe it, Wipe it!" does not spell "Whip it, Whip it!" A Freudian slip, perhaps?

Letters

Peaceworks stands behind its facts

To the Editor:

With regard to a recent letter from the ROTC commander at UNCW, did Peaceworks have its facts wrong?

On Friday, August 21, during registration at the University of North Carolina-Wilmington, Peaceworks distributed several handouts presenting information not included in Army promotional literature and not generally known to potential ROTC candidates. This was an effort to assist students by providing information prior to enrollment in ROTC, information not included in Army brochures. It was not the intent of Peaceworks to dissuade anyone from joining ROTC but rather to prevent students unaware of the limitations of an Army contract from being attracted by the possibility of an officer's commission, job training, a stipend or scholarship and membership in a new campus organization. Contracts like these have been judged by the Committee on Military Justice of the Harvard Law School to offer protection only to the military. The contracts are subject to change by law and by Army Regulations and can leave the ROTC member vulnerable to removal from school to punitive active duty as an enlisted man, or potentially liable for the repayment of his 'scholarship' money. The members of Peaceworks feel that and all information it provided at UNCW registration should be available. We stand behind the accuracy of that information.

The card referred to in the letter names two individuals available for counseling 1) those considering ROTC, 2) those questioning their role if war comes, 3) those morally opposed to killing as a possible part of military service and 4) those concerned about the newly reinstated draft registration. Any or all of these topics should be of interest to members of any generation, vulnerable at a time of a military buildup which can end in war.

The members of the Peaceworks organization sincerely regret that the director of the new ROTC program misinterpreted both the content and the intent of our handouts.

Sincerely,
Elie Stewart

Paper accused of using 'National Enquirer' tactics

Collegiate Hedlines-Sexual harassment in the classroom has been a major topic in many student newspapers this year. But when the Ball State U. paper began investigating the extent of the problem on that campus, it came under attack from university officials who claimed the coverage was sensationalized.

That coverage began with two separate incidents: creation of a student government task force to examine rumored "sex for grades" incidents, and receipt of a letter from a harassment victim. The woman who wrote had taken her case to the university the previous summer, but hadn't been pleased with the way it was handled, says Daily News Editor Randy Brameier.

Even though final exams were closing in, sexual harassment quickly became a hot topic among students and staff, says Brameier. Various campus groups held forums on the issue, which the Daily News covered, and the paper itself devoted three of five editorials to that topic in the week before semester break.

One facet of the issue was the apparent vagueness of BSU's policy for dealing with sexual harassment complaints. A newly hired provost had handled the summer case, Brameier says. But most students didn't know where to turn if they had a complaint.

University officials denied this was a problem. The school's affirmative action officer said a new policy on sexual harassment cases had been in the works for months, but hadn't been made public. She accused the paper of using "National Enquirer tactics."

Both the university president, who has since resigned under pressure, and the head of the university senate said the paper had blown the issue out of proportion.

Even with the 20-20 vision of hindsight, Brameier doesn't agree. "I don't think there's anything we would do differently now," he says. "We exposed the problem and we exposed a flaw in the university - that students weren't being made aware of the policy."

To make clear its position, the Daily News devoted almost the top half of its editorial page to a chronological breakdown of its sexual harassment coverage. "We just wanted to make sure our readers knew where we stood," says Brameier. "We thought the quality of our work was being criticized, so we had to respond."

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Features Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonya Roberts, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy Stallsmith
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Dean sponsors non-traditional students' day

Dean Hastings, concerned about the non-traditional student at UNCW, discussed various ideas in an interview on how the university could aid and encourage non-traditional students.

First mentioned by the Dean was a non-traditional students' day for individuals over 25 interested in returning to school. The day would include discussions on admission requirements, application procedures, and class scheduling.

Dean Hastings further stated that a separate orientation for non-traditional students would be helpful to them. Peer counseling and encouragement could be given at that time.

The Dean would also like to see workshops during the first six weeks of classes on various topics of concern to the re-entering student. According to Dean Hastings, the first weeks are the most important and the time when extra "Support" is needed. She stated, "If they can make it through the first six weeks, then they're going to be pretty successful." The workshops would include such topics as managing the family while attending school, transition to university life, study skills and habits, time management, career planning and using the library.

Dean Hastings volunteered her views concerning day care for children by first stating that day care was a complicated issue. At the present time, she is considering the formation of a list of local day care facilities for those individuals who might need the information.

Dean Hastings is willing to listen to any problem or possible solutions to the issues facing the non-traditional student and is eager to help during this transitional period.

Will Galloway survive freshmen class of '81?

If you were to ask the freshmen around campus what the biggest change in their life had been since coming to college most would probably say living in a dorm. For most students having to share four bathrooms with sixty instant brothers or sisters is a less than pleasant experience. However, now that nearly a month of school has passed most of the freshmen in Galloway seem to have made the adjustment.

Another Galloway resident who wouldn't give her name said "The R.A.'s are too strict about loud music and visitation, other than that I like living here just fine."

So maybe the freshmen class of 1981 will survive their first year at college, the question is - will Galloway?

the pickle barrel

Deli-Restaurant

Long Leaf Mall South College Road
Wilmington, N.C.

Hours Monday through Saturday

10:00 - 10:00

Sunday 11:00 - 7:00

Across from Balentine's Cafeteria

Call In Orders

Welcome
392-6733

No. 9 Reuben Corned Beef
Saurkraut Swiss Cheese Mustard or Special Sauce Hot, on Rye $2.75

Plus All The Tea You Can Drink
Coupon Good Sept. 17 thru 24

Coupon Good Sept. 17 thru 24

No. 11 Turkey Club
Turkey Breast Triple Decker Lettuce Tomato Bacon

Whole Wheat Toast $2.75
Plus All The Tea You Can Drink

Reader's Theatre undergoes changes

As students return to UNCW, numerous classes and activities are starting up again. One activity that starts up every year is the University Readers Theatre. The Readers Theatre is an organization funded by the SGA. Its funding is being increased because the SGA sees the Readers Theatre as having a potential value for UNCW students as well as the community.

The University Readers Theatre was originally created to give the participants a different theatrical experience other than just the same kind of regular dramatic experience by performing all kinds of literature, as well as plays. Over the years the theatre has blossomed and it has the potential to keep growing in the future.

Although the Readers Theatre is growing, many people have misconceptions about it according to Assistant Speech Professor and Readers Theatre instructor Carole Talant. She says that people think of a Readers Theatre as a theatre full of readers, when in fact, it is not. It is any theatre full of readers for reading literature of any kind. No longer are there designated narrators, black books and scripts. Readers Theatre is undergoing changes and very rapidly at that. Professor Talant, along with Louisiana State University's Associate Professor of Speech Mary Francis Hopkins, is directing a Readers Theatre production of "Spontaneous Combustion," an adaptation of the works of Dorothy Parker, which is to be given October 7-9 in the SRO Theatre located in Kenan Hall. "Spontaneous Combustion" is a Readers Theatre production with scenery, costumes, movements, and no scripts, which the traditional Readers Theatre is not associate with. Dr. Talant see the Readers Theatre as "something that is open to everyone, not just drama students and I encourage newcomers to audition no matter what their previous drama experience may be."

Also, Dr. Talant tries to cast students in roles because the University Readers Theatre is funded by and for the students.

Drop by the SRO Theatre or Carole Talant's office in Kenan Hall and check into the Readers Theatre. There just may be a part for you!

SGA organizes blood drive

Take action when the Red Cross Blood Mobile comes to the Seahawks September 22 from 10 to 3:30 and September 23 from 9 to 2. Anyone is welcome to come donate one unit (1 unit = almost a pint) in the UNCW Pub to help reach the goal of 250 units (approximately 250 people). Amy Akin, Red Cross Consultant working with UNCW, says that if the goal is reached, as many as 1,000 lives could be saved. Akin has hopes that the growing student population (now 5,100) will mean more donors.

The Blood Drive, sponsored in the Fall and in the Spring the past several years by APO (Alpha Phi Omega), is being organized by the SGA. Akin hopes, "By using the SGA possibly we could reach more people." Akin says she considers 20% participation in a group is good. She hopes UNCW may work up to 500 units during each Blood Drive. She says the more "closely knitted" a group, usually the better the involvement. The SAE (Sigma Alpha Epsilon) is responsible for obtaining pledges before the Drive. Other clubs in charge of publicity are APO, Campus Christian Fellowship, and the SGA.

Anyone between 17 and 66, weighing at least 110 lbs., and in good health may donate. Akin speculates at least 350 people are needed to pledge in

See BLOOD MOBILE p. 5

Domino's Pizza Delivers

At Domino's Pizza we promise a hot, nutritious meal delivered in 30 minutes or less. Your pizza is made with 100% real dairy cheese, our own special sauce, and your choice of items. Then we deliver it fast—at no extra charge. Give us a call...we deliver!

Fast...Free Delivery

392-5656
4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.
©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Onions, Green Peppers,
and Sausage
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi
5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives,
Onions, Green Peppers,
and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Pepsi / Quarts
Customer pays deposit.

Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.

We use only 100% real
dairy cheese.

$1

$1.00 off any pizza with this coupon and student I.D.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/23/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

15836 / 5526

$1

$1.00 off any pizza
with extra thick crust.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/23/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

15836 / 5526

$3

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 mins., after you order, present this coupon to the driver for $3.00 off your order.

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

15836 / 5526

One free
quart of Pepsi!

1 free qt. of Pepsi
with any pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 9/23/81

Domino's Pizza
Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

15836 / 5526

If he is an 'airhead,' he is 'double-parked in the twilight zone'

GREENSBORO--Airhead, dork, all-nighter, brewski, wired, snaking, break bad, space cadet.

If these terms sound strange, chances are you've not been around many college students lately. They are examples of what anthropologist Dr. William L. Coleman calls campus dialect, a vocabulary common to the social and cultural settings of college life.

For example: If this rap is a mainstay, don't get freaked out or pull an all-nighter cramming. Mellow out and you may begin to catch the drift of this off the wall rap.

Translation: If the conversation is a problem, don't panic or stay up all night studying it. Relax and you may begin to understand these strange words.

"It's not slang or jargon; it's a dialect," said Dr. Coleman, an assistant professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. "We generally think of a dialect as being geographical, but there are sociocultural dialects. You'll find the campus dialect here similar to that spoken at other schools."

As part of a course on the interaction of language and culture, Dr. Coleman earlier had his students compile a list of almost 500 examples of campus dialect. The following terms and definitions are a part of that list:

Airhead: Someone with no common sense.

All-nighter: Staying up all night to study or write a paper.

Bama: A person behind in the styles.

Space cadet: Absent-minded or lacking in common sense.

Blow chow: Throw up.

Break bad: To act tough.

Brewski: Beer or brew.

Catch my drift: To understand what I am saying.

Crash: Go to bed.

Dip or Dork: A stupid, unattractive person.

Double-parked in the Twilight Zone: A spacey person with no common sense.

Cool out: Lay back, relax, take it easy.

Jammin': Sounding great.

Eat someone's face: To kiss.

Grubbing in public: Kissing in public.

HDR: "Heavy, deep and real," a heart-to-heart talk.

Invest in someone: To take time to really get to know someone.

Juicer: A person who drinks a great deal of beer.

Mainstay: A problem, as in "What's your mainstay?"

Off the wall: A weird person; something that doesn't make sense.

PDA: Public display of affection.

Party hearty: Exclamation meaning to have a wonderful time.

The Pits: A very low emotional state; a boring event.

Snaking or Scoping: Looking at members of the opposite sex.

Spend the night with Jack: To spend late hours studying at UNC-G's Jackson Library.

Wired: To be zombie-like; under the influence of drugs.

Z-out: To fall asleep.

"One of the primary purposes of that course is to look at the interaction of language and culture," said Dr. Coleman, who has made a study of sociolinguistics.

"The campus constitutes a community where students interact on different levels-- shared values, ideas, especially attitudes and, in particular, language patterns," he said. "Social class tends to disappear in campus dialects because the main commonality is that they're all college students sharing similar experiences."

As painful as this campus dialect may be to some people's ears, Dr. Coleman says it can't be stopped and it's only one of many such dialects in every society.

"There are even professional dialects. In the medical field, for instance, there's a dialect of its own. And I'd say part of becoming a medical professional is learning to use the language pattern in that particular social setting," he added.

"There's nothing wrong with that. Language is not static; it's dynamic. Everything about life is dynamic. So it's going to change and no one's going to stop it, not even Edwin Newman (journalist and author of popular books on language)."

As people become adults and grow older, they tend to resist the continuous changing of the language around them, Dr. Coleman said.

"The change is always picked up in the younger generation. So, you find grandmothers and grandfathers talking to their grandchildren, saying, 'I don't understand what they're saying.' But neither do the grandchildren know what their grandparents are saying. They have different language patterns," he added.

The campus dialect vocabulary list will change from year to year as some words drop out and others are added. Dr. Coleman admits that many of the words on the list he had never heard before. College faculty members, however, tend to understand more of the words than the general public simply because they're around the students more often.

Included in the almost 500 words that his students compiled, Dr. Coleman found quite a few nicknames for faculty members.

"I didn't divulge any faculty member's names," he said with a laugh. "But I've got them of cards."

Dr. Antonio Puente

Dr. Puente adds 'air of professionalism'

by Cathy Webb
Journalism Contributor

Dr. Antonio E. Puente has joined the Psychology Department of UNCW this semester. A native of Cuba, Dr. Puente taught at St. George's, a medical school located in the Caribbean, and the University of North Florida. He was also an undergraduate assistant at another Florida institution, and a graduate assistant at Georgia.

He noted the air of "professionalism" in the UNCW psychology department, quite unlike the "snobbish" he has seen at other schools.

Tony Puente is especially interested in Behavioral Medicine, an area that among other things could be used to assess brain damage "without resorting to intrusive measures." Another application has been the treatment of schizophrenia through meditation, but, he points out, the results weren't as outstanding as hoped for.

Dr. Puente would like to continue his research in this field at UNCW, hopefully with the aid of students. There are other aspects of teaching besides the classroom, like research and lab work, he explained.

BLOOD MOBILE from p. 3

order to reach the goals of 250 donors.

Donation of blood takes a little less than one hour. First, the donor registers through the canteen, forms are filled out, then blood pressure, temperature and pulse are checked. A brief medical history is done, and the hemoglobin is checked. The volunteer will pick up his plastic bag and go to the Donor Room area. The actual giving of the blood takes 6 to 8 minutes. Then, the contributor is asked to sit in the canteen for 15 minutes, where there are cookies, crackers, and coke.

More information can be found in the SGA Office, second floor in the Pub.

CONSOLIDATED JEWELLERS, LTD.

3/4 OF US HERE AT CONSOLIDATED ARE RECENT UNCW GRADUATES- WE KNOW
WHERE YOU'RE COMING
FROM.

CONSOLIDATED JEWELLERS, LTD.

1015 SOUTH KERR AVE. 799-0715

KERR AVE

★ CONSOLIDATED JEWELLERS, LTD.

OPEN 10-6

WILKINSON

□ KROGER

□ LAVON

COLLEGE RD

UNCW

25% DISCOUNT TO UNCW STUDENT

REVIEW FASTER WITH CLIFFS NOTES!

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

CLIFFS

Exam time or any time. Cliffs Notes can help you earn better grades in literature. Our complete stock covers most frequently assigned novels, plays and poems. Get the ones you need today.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

Sports

Happy days return to Football Club

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

A lot of hard work had to be done, but it's all going to pay off Saturday when the Football Club plays its season-opener against UNC-Chapel Hill at 1 p.m.

The normal workload for fielding a football team was increased after last fall when the club decided to disband because of extreme disciplinary problems. However, all that's over now. The problems have been solved and the 1981 team is ready to play.

"I don't even want to mention last year," said club president Dale Fish, who got the club back together and prepared practically by himself. "We worked it all out and are glad we disbanded for the good of the team."

"Now we're ready to draw a different kind of blood!"

The team is coached by Capt. McCrae and Sgt. Younts of the Army ROTC office, and ex-UNCW student Paul Wood, but McCrae admits Fish is the driving force behind the entire club's effort.

"Dale's the only one I work with," McCrae says. "He's been doing all the work. Coaching style here is a lot different because you're working with a club, and like any club you're more of an advisor than a coach."

The 1981 team's 35 members are the most in the club's history. It has an abundance of returning players in addition to a crop of newcomers.

Leading the list of returning players are five seniors. Linebacker Rudy McKnight (6-foot-3, 215-pounds) is undoubtedly "the leader of the defensive unit," according to McCrae. "He's got the size, the aggressiveness and as much experience as anybody."

Fish (6-0, 195) also plays linebacker.

Jesse Hayes (5-8, 250) is the noseguard and stalwart on the 5-3 defensive front, but he's not alone. Defensive ends Donald Borden (6-2, 210) and Kenny "Animal" Edwards (6-3, 195) are considered the best in the conference at their position.

The top defensive back is a former player at Appalachian State and currently an assistant coach at Pender Academy. Tad Baucom (6-2, 185) attends an evening class at UNCW, making him eligible to play.

The Seahawks' pro-set offense will rely heavily on the running of Michael Borden (6-1, 215), Horace "Holly-wood" Jacobs (5-7, 150), and Fred Webb (5-8, 150).

The quarterback is new to the scene. Steve Waldrop will start and be backed up by Stacy Bledsoe, who will also handle the placekicking duties.

The offensive line is headed by junior David Pendergrass (6-2, 205). Security officer Tom Parton and Larry Rutherford add good size up front.

Kevin Wilson has proven himself as the top receiver. Selwyn Foderingham, Norman Hankins, Jacobs and Baucom also figure to do some pass catching.

Manager Gene Hewlett is also a member of the team. He will be handling a lot of odd field duties for the second straight year.

The Seahawks will feature a run-oriented attack during their 10-game schedule, which includes a trip to Washington, D.C., but don't count out excitement.

"Our two highlights will be our rushing and our defensive line," says Macrae. "That, and a mixed bag of tricks. We have a lot of unique plays you can look forward to seeing."

"With club football you're talking about (a level of play) somewhere between high school and college," he says.

"We've got some players who I feel would make good Division III players."

"The most improved aspect of this team is the attitude. It's all in these players' desire. They've rebounded from a bad year, and are stronger because of it. They've got good moral."

Volleyball team young, but strong for season-opener

by Michele Wilkerson
Sports writer

The 1981 volleyball season is getting underway as the Lady Seahawks take the floor Friday against High Point and N.C. A & T. The team plays again Saturday morning at 10 o'clock against High Point and Pembroke State.

This year's team is very young and very talented with six returning players and six newcomers. Coach Jackie Bartlett is optimistic about the season.

"Our offense is a lot stronger than it has ever been, and it will be our strongest point," she says. "Defensively we're not as strong, but we should hold our own."

"With our returning players and our new people, we have a lot more depth this year than last year," says Bartlett. "I feel like we're a lot stronger all around than before."

Returning players are juniors Becky Simmons, Jamie Molash and Bridgette Toomey, sophomores Judy Binder, Bonnie Whitaker and Michele Wilkerson. New additions include senior Luanne Gentry, who played at Peace College, juniors Maggie St. Ledger and Brenda Tew, and freshmen Robin Campbell, Sarah Womble and Robin Huffman to round out this year's team.

The co-captains are Simmons and Whitaker. The Seahawks were 18-12 last year.

Spikers start '81 season Friday

Men's and Women's golf teams hope for better success this fall

The UNC-Wilmington men's and women's golf teams will swing into action during the next 10 days with both squads hoping for improved showings this fall.

Coach Lea Larson's Lady Hawks tee off Thursday in the three-day Longwood (Va.) Invitational. Junior Darci Wilson leads the UNCW contingent, which will be dominated by newcomers.

Freshmen Leigh Walters, Heidi Crossley and Celeste Marks have all qualified for the team's top five and will join Wilson and sophomore Cindy Flowers in Larson's opening lineup.

"We'll be very young, but should be improved," Larson says. "I've been pleased with our qualifying scores and I think the girls are ready for outside competition."

Mailloux

Coach Dean Allen's men's team will also feature a number of new faces this fall, although the top qualifier was veteran Bob Mailloux.

Transfers Graham Williams and Bob Kay along with Wilmington freshman Robert long have added quality depth to the Seahawks' attack.

Wilson

"We should be stronger and deeper all the way down, thanks to our new players," Allen says. "We got off to a slow start last fall, but we're hoping for a quick getaway this year."

The UNCW men open their fall season next Monday in the Methodist Invitational.

A. Rodriguez

Kickers Top ACC, Pembroke

The men's soccer team improved to 3-1 after wins over Atlantic Christian and Pembroke State last week. The Seahawks routed ACC 6-1 last

Sports Calendar

Thursday

Sign-up for Intramural Fishing Derby begins.
Women's Golf tournament at Longwood 9 a.m.

Friday

Men's Soccer vs. St. Andrews 4 p.m.
Volleyball vs. High Point, N.C. A & T. 6:30 p.m.
Women's Golf tournament at Longwood 9 a.m.

Saturday

Football vs. UNC-Greensboro.
Men's X-Country at Pembroke Invitational.
Volleyball vs. High Point, Pembroke, 9 a.m.
Women's Golf tournament at Longwood 9 a.m.

Monday

Intramural flag Football managers' meeting, 4:30 p.m.
Men's Golf tournament at Methodist in Fayetteville.
Women's Golf tournament at Appalachian State.

Thursday and edged Pembroke 1-0 Saturday.

"I thought our first half versus ACC was the best we've played all year," said coach Calvin Lane.

"Against Pembroke we were real flat," Lane said. "We weren't really mentally ready. We dominated the game (18 shots on goals by UNCW compared to eight by Pembroke), but things didn't click like they should. When you play poorly and win, however, I think it's a sign of maturing."

UNCW played unbeaten UNC-Chapel Hill Wednesday and host St. Andrews at 4 p.m. Friday. The Hawks have a seven-day layoff before their next game Sept. 26 at N.C. State.

X-Country team fares well in 1st run

The men's cross country team finished seventh out of 14 in last weekend's Campbell Invitational. However, as coach Bill Atwill stated, the results may be deceiving.

"We looked a lot better than seventh place sounds," Atwill said. "We really weren't as good as we should have been, and that's my fault. I worked them too hard too close to the race, and they were a little leg-heavy."

Robbie Burke was the top Seahawk runner with a time of 21:20, over the four-mile course. George Walker was next with a 21:43 clocking.

Julian Keith, Al Brantley, freshman surprise Thomas Christian and Paul Lupica followed in a clump in just over 22 minutes.

The women's team finished last behind Radford College (VA) and St. Augustine's. UNCW's Dawn Goley finished second overall with a two-mile time of 12:40. Darcy Lee placed 12th in the field.

"We had tremendous pack running at Campbell," said Atwill, whose squad travels to the Pembroke Invitational Saturday. "I think our team is going to run better as a pack than at the individual level."

Notes...

The racquetball club is now meeting every Wednesday 6:30-9 p.m. at the racquetball courts. The team expects fall matches with N.C. State, East Carolina and UNC-Chapel Hill, but none have been confirmed yet...

The sailing club begins weekly competition this weekend in Columbia, S.C., according to Dr. Robert Wolff. Meetings are held every Wednesday at 5 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at Banks Channel in Wrightsville Beach... The women's soccer club began its season with a preliminary to the men's game Wednesday. The club is coached by ex-UNCW player Johnny Miller. The Seahawk will feature the club in next week's issue...

The Seahawk will also feature former UNCW basketball star Danny Davis who is training here in Wilmington for his NBA debut with the Dallas Mavericks Sept. 28... If your sports club has any announcement to make, please see the editor.

Slowinski: More than a good soccer player

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

Jim Slowinski, senior co-captain of the UNCW soccer team is not just an average 'jock'.

"People might laugh," he says, "but I'm one of those who believe education is the most important thing. Classes always come first."

But soccer, the thing Slowinski says he is best at, and his teammates, who make it all worthwhile, are not far behind in importance to the Towson, Md. native.

"That's all I've been doing all my life," said Slowinski, a 6-foot-1, 155-pound sweeper. "I've been playing soccer since fourth grade."

Slowinski's value to the Seahawks goes much farther than the number of goals he scores (second highest with eight during UNCW's 1980 record-breaking season). His qualities of leadership, dedication, self-discipline, loyalty, and intelligence make him a key ingredient to the 'Hawks' success in 1981.

Slowinski came to UNCW as a junior college all-American from Essex Community College, and one in a long line of Seahawk coach Calvin Lane's recruits from the Baltimore area. He led Essex to fifth place in the nation in 1979.

Slowinski

Now that he is in Wilmington, he doesn't want to leave.

"North Carolina is really where I'd like to stay because of the growth in business industry," said Slowinski, a market management major in the UNCW business department. "I love it here. I didn't want to go home this summer. To be at a school this small with the quality of education it offers is the perfect mix."

Being on the soccer team adds to Slowinski's 'perfect mix.'"

"This soccer team is a family," he said. "We get each other up for classes and also we goof off together. Nobody on this team is so self-centered that they won't help each other. I've never been in this role of captain before. All it is just a little bit of giving on each other's part."

On the field Slowinski makes opponents feel real bad. His outstanding defensive abilities and calm collectiveness in pressure situations earned him all-tourney honors in the Four Points Tournament and the Port City Classic last season. Coach Lane says he is capable of dominating either end of the field.

Off the field Slowinski is popular and active in social and athletic gatherings. His hobbies include swimming, water skiing, golf, girl watching and partying with his teammates.

"There's a lot of time for other things," Slowinski said. "You make the time to do things you have to do, so the free time you have is more enjoyable."

And our parties are fantastic! But don't get me wrong. We don't try to overdo it. Even if you get the chance, you shouldn't abuse your body anyway. You work so hard on condition, so why go out one night and blow it?"

It's that type of attitude that has been so beneficial for Slowinski. A coach could hardly require anything more from a captain, and Slowinski is meeting those expectations in everything he does.

UNCW FOOTBALL COMES ALIVE

Saturday, Sept. 19, 1 p.m.

1981 UNCW Football Club

1981 Fall Schedule

Sept. 19	UNC-CH	H
Sept. 26	New River	H
Oct. 3	N.C. State	A
Oct. 9	UNC-CH	A
Oct. 17	Duke	H
Oct. 23	Gallaudet	A
Oct. 31	Wake Forest	A
Nov. 7	N.C. State	A
Nov. 14	DUKE	H
Nov. 21	UNC-CH	H

McKnight

Left to right: Front row: Norman Hankins, Ricky Williams, Alan Sewell, Steve Caudill, Dennis Thacker, Larry Rutherford, Ken Ramsauer, Charles Bailey, Byron Kilpatrick, Selwyn Foderingham, Mike Borden, Phillip Powell. Second row, Tom Parton, Jesse Hayes, Tim Miller, Fred Webb, Masaru Yanaka, Stacy Bledsoe, Mark Smith, Steve Waldrop, Andy Albert, Gregory Waddell, Horace Jones. Back row, Kevin Wilson, Jon Seigner, Ben Thomas, Rudy McKnight, David Pendergrass, Bill Price, Ken Thomas, Gene Hewlett(mgr.), Kenneth Edwards, Dale Fish, Mitchell Case.

MacRae

"For a group of individuals who were supposed to have faded away after a disastrous previous year, they're amazing! Tremendous attitude and drive! I think we will have a winning season. I really appreciate the support the SGA and the athletic department have given us."

Fish

An advertisement by the Football Club

THE UPS CONCERT COMMITTEE
AND BEST TICKET PROMOTIONS
PRESENT
ATLANTA RHYTHM SECTION
WITH SPECIAL GUEST

FRIDAY
OCTOBER 2, 1981

TRASK COLISEUM
8 PM

UNCW STUDENT TICKETS $7.50
(LIMIT OF 2)
CALL 791-4330 EXT. 2283
FOR OUTLET INFO

GENERAL PUBLIC TICKETS $8.50
AVAILABLE AT: RECORD BAR
SCHOOL KIDS RECORDS

TICKETS GO ON SALE ON - MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

ALL SEATS RESERVED

NO SMOKING OR ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES ALLOWED

Revco Discount Drug Center
College Square
Shopping Center

Everyday Low Prices

Stroh's	$2.17
Budweiser	$2.17
Natural Light	$2.22
Miller	$2.17
Pabst	$2.17
Pabst Extra Light	$2.22
Schlitz	$2.17
Beer[No-Name]	$1.70

Fourth annual Piney Woods Festival another huge success

by Si Lawrence, III
Journalism Contributor

Not only can the University brag about the success of its Program Board, but after this past weekend, September 6 and 7, all of Wilmington got a chance to see how it and another entertainment committee can join together and form a large, successful community outing.

The scene was Hugh Macrae

Park in Wilmington for the fourth annual Piney Woods Festival. Putting their coordinative talents together were Program Board advisor Steve Gnadt and the local Art's Council's own John Bates. Both were responsible for arranging musical entertainment and stage coordination of the festivities. According to Gnadt, the entire Program Board members sacrificed a well deserved Friday night vacation in order to have two stages completed for the Saturday morning/afternoon opening.

The small stage Gnadt spoke of, highlighted two performances put on by Laura Mae McLean and later, the New Knothole Review.

The following day hosted three more performances as well as a crowd of more than 300 people. Musician Phil Kelley took first honors in getting the crowd alive. Following him was the local Nee Ningy Band, a group which has appeared quite often in the Wilmington area. Rapping up the festivities was Norman and Nancy Blake who had the audience clogging to the sounds of traditional folk and bluegrass.

As if the Piney Woods Festival was not enough, our own Program Board hosted a double feature in Kenan Auditorium. Tuesday, September 8, featuring both the films, "I Love You Alice B. Toklas" and "The Point". New Fine Arts Chairperson, Karl Heideman.

was in charge of the film direction and showed excellent supervision as a rookie.

Art series on display

by Aaron Oliver
Journalism Contributor

On display this month in the lobby of Kenan Hall is a marvelous art series, produced by the students of John Myers' Art History and Appreciation courses.

The art work, Mr. Myers explained, was created out of a course requirement that "either gives the student the option of doing a short term paper or creating a project that involves the process of doing." The purpose is to encourage greater student involvement with the art of a historical period under consideration in the course.

Students who choose to do art work were given the option of copying a famous work or creating an original work based on the style of an individual artist or period in art history. Once they developed a bases of understanding about the art, they were then "to try and reproduce the work using a medium as close to the original as possible." Mr. Myers said.

Several works that can be seen include "Symbol of St. Mark," which is an example of art work dating back to ancient times, "Fur Traders on the Missouri," where the artist was concerned with lighting, and a beautiful stained glass window entitled "Christ's Entry into Jerusalem."

This window, Myers said, was produced from a photographic slide. The student (Michael Steiner) "attached a piece of paper to the screen and drew the basic outlines of the design and filled in the lead portions and marked the individual areas as to what the color was, and then he went away and did it." The end result is something even Mr. Myers would like to have in his collection.

With the end of the month drawing closer all students should take the time to stop by Kenan Hall to see these fine works of art.

Sleep: not everyone needs eight hours

While sleep is important for our bodies, not everyone needs eight hours of sleep each day. Throughout our lives sleep patterns change, with the major influences being age and emotion.

Infants need from 14 to 16 hours daily, children from age three to ten need 12 to 14 hours, and teenagers from 8 to 10. But as we grow older significant changes occur in our sleep patterns. Many people past the age of 50 find three to five hours of sleep is all they need.

In general the older we get the higher the incidence of disturbances as the deep sleep of youth is replaced by a lighter sleep. While older persons may have a lighter sleep they usually find it easier than when they were younger to wake up.

Many elderly people do not sleep long periods at night because they often get short naps during the day. Many people refuse to accept "catnaps" as a normal part of aging and are unwilling to admit to them. However, by carefully noting the amount of time spent sleeping during a 24 hour period, they are often surprised to find out that they do get 5 to 6 hours, even eight hours of sleep each day.

The most significant emotional cause of sleep disturbance is depression. Symptoms of this include loss of appetite, reduced sexual desire, a worn out feeling, and difficulty sleeping. The important key in dealing with this condition is for the person to realize he is depressed and should seek medical treatment.

If you are having trouble sleeping there are a few things you can do: Retire about the same time each night; Take a warm shower or bath shortly before retiring; Do moderate exercises before retiring; Reduce "catnaps" to one hour or less during the day; Avoid stimulants such as coffee, tea, and soft drinks several hours before bedtime; Avoid alcohol.

While a modest amount of alcohol may help some people sleep, most of us should refrain from it.

If you can't sleep - don't. There is no justification for laying in bed. Use the time to watch TV, read, do correspondence, or do some of the things you never seem to have time to do.

Decorate with posters

OLD MOVIE POSTERS
PREPPY POSTERS
UNICORNS
SURFING POSTERS
SAILBOATS
LARGE TRAVEL POSTERS

Georgia O'Keeffe
Jerry Schurr
Caulder Circus
Jamie Wyeth
and many more!

Framing Available

Fidler's art materials

COTTON EXCHANGE
ACROSS FROM PARKING LOT

All posters shrink wrapped on foamcor or card-board

Convenient Food Mart

431 Eastwood Road
Now Has Your Favorite Keg Beer

10% Discount
To UNCW Students

When Kegs are Pre-Booked
and
Pre-Paid

Contact:
David Hixson
or Art Farmer
799-8676

Charisma makes the difference between drips and drool material

Today, class, we will look at a very important subject: men. Men are good to have around. For some rather obvious reasons. But what is it that makes a man good to be around?

Glad you asked. What makes some men drool material and others well, drips? According to an informal poll conducted by one exceptionally curious female, it can be summed up in one word: charisma!

Now, I thought "charisma" went out with macho and disco, but no, it's still holding out and hangin' on. It's something about the way a man smiles, strokes a cat,

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

brushes his teeth, cooks a five-course dinner(!), lends you his umbrella, smells!!!! We will not discuss smell preferences today, class, and picks up after himself. Personally, I would trade my grandmother for a man who picks up his own moldy socks.

So far, we have not said one word about physical appearance. This does not mean that charismatic men have no, er, appreciable attractiveness (Whew! Got out of that one). What I think it does mean is that when a man bowls a lady off her feet by smiling, stroking cats, brushing his teeth, cooking dinner, lending her his umbrella, smelling heavenly, and picking up his dirty clothes... she is not going to worry about whether or not he looks like Bobby Sherman. Know what I mean?

The sad truth is, even the most promising hunk of man can turn out to be a real dud. By "dud" I mean (according to my sources) that he exhibits little traits like selfishness, jealousy (a real downer), immaturity ("Who ate my last Oreos?"), and lack of understanding ("I know you're trying to study but I wanna listen to my Heavy Metal album NOW!"). Little things like that can kill a relationship quicker than you could say

"split".

A few basic facts about charisma are: a blue-eyed stare can be very unsettling and therefore blue-eyed men have greater charisma potential than, say, gray-eyed men. A sense of humor is a must. Frowning men have very little charisma. On the other hand, a cackling idiot has very little appeal, also. All in all, a charismatic man is someone who is smart, funny, thoughtful, determined, and has time for in his life.

So...when you find one of these gems, don't keep him to yourself. Share!!

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

"When is it?" (I know you are ready to go, now!)

I know you are ready to go now but you have to wait until Fall break October 17-20th.

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

On to the Mountains... Fall Break

Looking for a change?

Looking for a change of pace from the rock-n-roll rut? Then join the University Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee's "Half-Moon Productions" diversity of musical entertainment and become addicted to the mood of club-act atmosphere! This committee gives you an alternative - a new and exciting opportunity to become involved in a diverse entertainment organization. Experience the difference in bluegrass, jazz, folk, blues, comedy, and just a little of everything else. We're looking for people like you to help us make these events unique and a "happening" on campus. If you're interested in selecting entertainment, doing publicity or hospitality, and/or helping set up for events through lighting, sound or stage work then this is the place for you! You'll feel the excitement while working on making a special night for yourself, friends, and fellow students to enjoy. Also feel the thrill of seeing a great time, FREE for all, everytime the lights go down and the music warms the room and the audience with every note, throughout the year. Interested? - Then wait no more and come by the Program Board Office, room 101 in the Student Services Building, and say, "I want to help get music by the mugful from the Coffeehouse Committee!"

The Patio

50 cents OFF ANY SUB
Grill open 11 a.m.-7

Mon. Ladies' Night
Wed. College Night - 7 kegs
Thurs. - John Glover Band
Friday Afternoon 25 cent Hotdogs 4-7
Fri. John Glover Band
Sat. John Glover Band
Sun. Men's Pool tournament

Call about discounts for clubs
and fraternities

PIZZA CITY
FREE
DELIVERY

PIZZA AND SANDWICHES

392-5515

OPEN 4 PM

Campus Calendar

Earth Science sponsors trip

A field trip to West Virginia, featuring gourmet foods, resort accommodations and experienced guides, is planned for Easter break, April 8-12. The trip is offered as a one hour course: Geology 391. Base cost for the five-day trip is $75.00 which covers all transportation and guides. The excursion will feature many natural wonders of the sea. Interested students may sign up in the Earth Science Department office without obligation. In order to determine the level of interest in the field trip, the Earth Science Department urges interested students to sign up now.

Also, those students who are signed up for the Coastal Plains trip of this semester and missed the organizational meeting of September 2, are asked to come by the department office to be registered for the up-coming field trip.

Atlantis announces Deadline

Students, see your name in print! Atlantis, UNCW's only student literary magazine, is now accepting original prose (fiction and non-fiction), poetry and artwork to be considered for inclusion in the Fall '81 edition. Bring your creations to the Department of English by 4 p.m., Thursday, October 8, 1981.

Also, anyone interested in working on the Atlantis staff, leave your name and phone number in the English Department office or call 762-4128.

Phi Kappa Phi

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity will have a rush party in the Pub on Friday, September 18. Admission will be free for all UNCW students. Beverages will be provided.

Communications Club

Communications Club Meeting #2, Sept. 17, 3 p.m., K-103. It's not too late to join!

Fine Arts presents

Bette Midler

Fine Arts Committee presents - BETTE MIDLER in DIVINE MADNESS, Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. Kenan Auditorium. $1.00 with UNCW ID, $1.50 for guests.

PART TIME WORK

Part-time work on campus, stapling poster to bulletin board. Choose your own schedule, 4-15 hours weekly. No selling--your pay is based on the amount of material distributed. Our average campus rep earns $4-$7 per hour. This position requires the ability to work without supervision. For information, contact Jeanne Swenson, 500-3rd Ave. W., Seattle, Washington 98119, (206) 282-8111.

Workshops offered

Workshop: "Choosing A Major"

For: Undecided Students or Decided But Wavering Students

When: September 24, 1981 - 3-5 p.m.

Where: Counseling and Testing Center, 106 James Student Services Building

FOUR WINDS NIGHTCLUB

SEPTEMBER

15 TUES.
16 WED.

UNCW Nite - No Cover with College ID

JOJA BAND

99' Nite

18 FRI.

ROBBIN THOMPSON BAND

22 TUES.

UNCW Nite - No Cover with College ID

23 WED.

FABULOUS KNOBS

99' Nite

25 FRI.

FIRE UP

Rock n Roll

29 TUES.

UNCW Nite - No Cover with College ID

30 WED.

BADGE

99' Nite

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to general public. Members and guests welcome.

LOCATED 5430 MARKET STREET BY THE 132 OVERPASS
PHONE 392-0855

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Show surprise
5 Went quickly
9 Not far
14 E. Indian vine
15 Harangue
16 Boos
17 Coined
19 Hindu honor
20 British composer
21 Contrives
23 Teeter
25 Dovetail part
26 Repeat
28 Stogies
32 In original state
37 Grave: Comb. form
38 Lakes canal, for short
39 Exhausts

DOWN

- 41 Girl's name
42 Mature
45 Dionnes' birthplace
48 Hold back
50 Country road
51 Students
54 Deluded
58 Hockey player:
2 words
62 Off. worker
63 Not kindled
64 Parallel
66 Crumpet's cousin
67 Small group
68 In any way
69 Cut to size
70 Steam: Prof.
71 Asian weights
1 Contests
2 Soap plant
3 Char
4 Source of delight
5 Before Sat.
7 Happening
8 Tapered item
9 Chinese: Fr.
10 Cough drop
11 Sleep
12 Vesper, e.g.
13 Adjective endings
18 Delineate
22 Bus. abbr.
24 "— a mess!"
27 Of the ear
29 Barrer
30 Journey
31 Glide
32 Army res. gp.
33 Orbit point
34 Tipster
35 Victorian, e.g.
36 Vaie
40 Criticize
43 City in Quebec
44 Ran
46 Herb
47 Snuggles
49 Dawn liquid
52 Precepts
53 Equine sound
55 Desert
56 Record
57 Performers
58 Of the USSR
59 Peruvian
60 Incandescence
61 Ghostly
65 Kangaroo

See ANSWERS p. 12

Find out what's going on -
read
THE SEAHAWK
each week.

by
the sea...

Sweetwater
SURF SHOP · WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C.

All Summer Merchandise
On Sale

New Shipment
of Wet Suits
Fall Merchandise
Arriving Daily

Long Sleeve T-Shirts

Long Sleeve Sweat Shirts

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

NC State Highway Patrol
Trooper Henry F. Moore
Tues., Sept. 22
Pos: Trooper
Majors: All

Internal Revenue Service
Ms. Leah Sattin
Mr. Al Lambeth
Tues., Sept. 22
Pos: Revenue Agent
Major: Accounting, Business Administration

US Marine Corps
Capt. John Moore
Tues., Wed., Thurs.
Sept. 29, 30 & Oct. 1
Pos: Various
Majors: All

US Navy
Lt. J. Ross
Tues., Wed., Thurs.
Oct. 6, 7, 8
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Roses Stores
Mr. Jim Anderson
Fri., Oct. 9
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business, Any

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earle Fidalgo
Tues., Oct. 13
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineering
Trainees, Computers Prog.
Majors: Business Administration, Computer Science, Math, Physics

S. Preston Douglas & Associates, CPA's
Mr. Carl Wilkins
Wed., Oct. 14
Pos: Staff Accountant
Major: Accounting

SGA from p. 1

programs at individual schools for reallocation within that same school could reduce enrollment as students went elsewhere for that dropped program. He felt, and was supported by the committee, that the failing program should receive increased funding in an effort to improve its performance.

It was further asked that increased funding be provided the traditionally black institutions in order that they may "catch up" with the academic quality of the larger, traditionally white institutions. An example would be upgrading the Nursing School at NCCU to a level more equal to that of the School of Nursing at Chapel Hill.

According to Charles B. Parsons, SGA President here at UNCW, "we are for the Consent Decree here. It's beneficial for the UNC system and is a step forward in the struggle to stamp out inequality." Parsons stated that, due to the budget cuts in traditionally white schools to aid the traditionally black schools UNCW will see a delay of several programs slated for implementation here. One such program is the funding of a committee for planning of a new wing on Randall Library. Parsons says it is still planned, but it could be some time before it is brought about.

In another area of discussion, the Finance Committee chaired by Parsons decided to raise the dues paid by each school for UNCASG membership from $75 per year to $100.

Based on this increase, which goes into effect immediately, a new operating budget was drawn up and approved by the main body. Parsons was appointed the new Treasurer for the UNCASG as he is more knowledgeable in monetary policies and procedures; his appointment was unopposed.

ANSWERS from p. 11

G	A	S	P	F	L	E	O
A	M	I	L	R	A	V	E
M	O	N	E	T	I	Z	E
E	L	O	A	R	E	N	G
S	E	E	S	A	W	T	E
E	C	H	O	C	I	G	A
U	N	T	R	E	A	T	E
S	O	O	T	I	E	S	I
A	D	U	L	T	C	A	L
R	E	T	A	R	D	L	A
C	O	E	D	S	M	I	S
R	I	G	H	T	W	I	N
U	N	I	T	C	O	R	R
S	C	E	N	E	T	R	O
S	A	W	E	D	A	T	M

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100

Open 10 - 6
Monday - Saturday

Coupon good for 20% off on

Paperbacks only
Complete selection:

Classics Dictionaries
Testing Materials

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Term papers,
etc...
call 791-0990

All New to Wilmington

The craziest one-of-a-kind cards
you have ever seen.

Stationery ready to monogram in bright bold colors!
Papergoods to fit your every need.

Mon.-Sat. 10 - 5
call 762-2245

Opening Soon

THE BEER BOX

Keep your eye on this space
for a new concept of Wilmington's most complete
Beverage Center!

5311 Market St.
Across from Four Winds
A One Stop Beverage Shop

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 4

October 2, 1981

Twelve pages

Atlanta Rhythm Section performs tonight in Trask

Atlanta Rhythm Section will be performing tonight in Trask Coliseum at 8 pm. Tickets can be purchased in the Program Board Office in the Pub. Special guest will be the Johnny Van Zant Band.

There is something very familiar and reassuring in the sound of the Atlanta Rhythm Section holding forth across the airwaves year after year, a consistent output that few groups - Northern, Southern, British, you name it - are able to match. It is hard to recall a moment during the last four years when ARS wasn't keeping its hybrid brand of rock 'n' roll at the very top of the charts, starting with 1977's "So In To You," then the following year with "Imaginary Lover" and "I'm Not Gonna Let It Bother Me Tonight," and yet again with "Do It or Die" and their remake of "Spooky" in '79.

There are always those folks, of course, who'd argue that any group with the collective strengths of ARS couldn't possibly lose: the individual talents of each musician in the band, all quiet veterans of the studio session wars long before they'd got together in the band; the awesome song-writing abilities of the band members collaborating with their producer-manager Buddy Bui through the years; and the full-time use of One-man-ied by associate producer-engineer Rodney Mills, long since named "one of rock 'n' roll's great natural resources" by ARS.

Those all-too-human strengths (tempered by a righteous bit of Southern soul) are a QUINELLA you can bet your hard-earned money on, as the title for their lucky 11th album suggests. The Atlanta Rhythm Section joins Columbia Records in 1981 with an LP that more than does justice to the classic ARS sounds of the past, from the very first single to jump off side one, "Alien." Proof of the thriving musical association between the producer and the group are to be found in their songwriting collaborations: with guitarist J.R. Cobb (an association that dates back to their Classics IV string of hits, and here takes on new lifeblood in "Home-sick," "Outlaw Music," "Southern Exposure," and the title tune, "Quinella"; with keyboardist Dean Daughtry (a combination that delivered "So In To You" and "Imaginary Lover," and here opens and closes side two with "You're So Strong" and "Going to Shangri-La"); and with lead singer Ronnie Hammond ("Higher," "Pretty Girl").

Atlanta Rhythm Section performs with Johnny Van Zant Band tonight in Trask.

Not only can you sense the resolution of so many dues-paying years as this musical QUINELLA plays its hand, but there's also a strong feeling for the future in terms of staying true to that past. ARS fans are always reminded of a summer September three years ago, with "Imaginary Lover" as the season's theme song, when the band returned home to Atlanta after a hot tour. They were greeted in the city streets like heroes, and played in front of 60,000 people that day at the Champagne Jam Festival in Grant Field, headlining over Santana, Eddie Money, and the

See ARS, p. 9.

Typesetting machine breaks down

There was no Seahawk last week due to the breakdown of the computational typesetting machine.

An exciter lamp burned out last Monday afternoon. A new lamp was ordered the same afternoon and arrived Wednesday night, from Atlanta, Georgia. An extra lamp was also ordered.

The Seahawk staff replaced the part Thursday afternoon so that copy could begin to be typeset Thursday night.

According to Seahawk Editor Tricia Wallace, "The compu-

graphic machine is seven years old and has had much wear and tear. It is a huge inconvenience to the Seahawk staff and the entire student body. Not only does the Seahawk lose money but the inconvenience of this machine also hinders communication throughout our campus." The editor also added that the Seahawk has been requesting a new machine for two years.

This is the third time the machine has broken down in the past eight months.

'Separationists' seek to form chapter

The Society of Separationists, aka American Atheists, is seeking to form a chapter at UNCW by complying with the guidelines under which all organizations are chartered at UNCW.

Ed Paul, chairman of the Charter Committee of the SGA, stated that the SGA Constitution contains guidelines which all organizations must meet before they are chartered. Paul said there were from twelve to fifteen discrepancies between the constitutions of the SGA and the Separationists.

Ed Blythe, a student and Separationist, submitted his National Chapter's Constitution to the Charter Committee. Blythe said this constitution is mainly to organize state chapters, not university chapters. It includes the stipulations that the National Chapter have a voice in electing officers and accepting any members and that the dues collected be sent to the National Chapter.

SGA President Charles Parsons and Paul stated that the SGA Constitution does not allow for the intervention of national organizations into campus organizations and that any monies collected by a campus organization is to be deposited in the school bank account.

They continued by saying that the SGA Constitution requires that an organization have at least four enrolled students as officers before it can be chartered and that at the present time the only

See CHAPTER, p. 12.

Soccer Action

Alabama A & M, which finished third in the nation last year, played the Seahawks on Brooks Field Monday. A & M won, 3-1. Story on page six.

Staff photo/Jamie Moncrief

Students report indecent exposure

Recently, two female students were confronted with a situation that most of us can only imagine.

On September 2, 1981 as the girls jogged around the UNCW campus, they noticed a man on a motorcycle acting suspiciously. He followed them as they jogged and when the girls reached B Street, which runs in front of Kenan Auditorium, the rider turned his motorcycle around so that it was headed straight for them.

As he approached the students they saw that he had his pants unzipped and was exposing himself as he yelled obscenity remarks.

The man was described as a white heavy set male about 25 years old. He has shoulder-length dark brown hair with a mustache and a beard. The helmet and motorcycle were shiny black.

Chief of Campus Police, Winston Norman said that he did not believe it was a student; but if anyone knows or sees someone answering to the description, please get the license number and contact the Campus Police.

Murphy's Law holds true for cats, washing machines

You've all heard of Murphy's Law -- anything that can go wrong will -- well, I'd like to explain on that a little. Anything that can break will break and lots of other things that can break will break at the same time.

It all began a few months ago with a cat on a hot TV. I keep telling Sheba if she eats her Meow Mix too quickly it'll come up. So, this fine spring day (right in the middle of "Ryan's Hope") Sheba's lunch rose and fell and converged all over the grill of the TV. And it slithered down through

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

the tiny plastic slats and slid onto the tiny circuit board. I have now been using my mother's Zenith for almost four months and probably will continue using it until I find out if there is really financial life after graduation.

After Sheba's indiscretion with indigestion came the first muggy days of Summer. Five days into June my air conditioner went into pulmonary arrest. My brother tinkered with it; my father tinkered with it. Finally they got serious and performed a motorectomy. Als, their sweating, swearing, taunting, tearing effort was to no avail. You can't cure the elderly of oldness. I have been using my mother's 21 inch window fan for almost four months and...

Then there's my washer. A fine old girl, she's chugged out eight loads a week for seven years. Till she got itchy. I first noticed signs of her disaffection when my clothes came out with Tide dandruff -- wet Tide dandruff. I used a little less detergent next time, thinking perhaps a miracle had happened and my water was getting softer. No help.

Finally, feeling like a betrayer for imagining her betrayal, I followed her through her cycle. Peering surreptitiously under her lid as she spun her final spin, I breathed a relieved sigh as she completed her chore as faithfully as she ever had. Gladly I reached in to take out the clean stain-free dark clothes. And stopped. Gurgling, choking, bubbling with what I swear was a malicious death breath, she vomited up the Tide water she'd been hiding beneath her tub. I have been using her mother's washer...

Yet, things could have been worse. At least my hearing aids were still under warranty.

Besides, my mother doesn't have any hearing aids any more.

Senate questions dual role

Some student government senators at the U. of New Mexico are apparently irked by a fellow senator's status as news editor of the student newspaper.

They're considering a resolution condemning Judy Nakamura's joint role on the grounds it constitutes a conflict of interest.

But Nakamura's editor, Helen Gaussoin, says it's actually the news editor's politics that bother her fellow senators.

Gaussoin says any resolution against Nakamura will be ignored "because they have no authority over us." Only the Student Publications Board, publisher of the Daily Lobo, can handle such complaints.

Gaussoin points out that another Associated Students senator serves as the Lobo's night editor, yet wasn't mentioned in the original resolution against Nakamura or in a request for an ASUNM attorney general's ruling on the issue. That ruling found no constitutional provision preventing Nakamura from holding both positions.

Gaussoin doesn't believe the conflict of interest charge is valid. "We've done so much to make sure that doesn't happen," she says. Nakamura doesn't write or edit any student government stories.

Those senators favoring the resolution say allowing Nakamura to hold both posts creates a dangerous precedent, and deny charges that the resolution is being sought on personal grounds.

Nakamura herself believes the issue is a waste of the senate's time. "If I tell them

Gaussoin says the controversy hasn't harmed the quality of Nakamura's work, but has taken time away from actual news production.

"We're spending so much time going over to the senate to explain and dealing with senators who come here to complain, it's taking us longer to get the paper out."

I'm against killing...

but as a public official I represent the Moral Majority...

and they demand capital punishment.

take him away...

Mike Coyne

Letters

Thanks expressed to UNCASG organizers

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago UNCW was the host of an important meeting of the student body presidents and representatives from 16 schools that compose the UNC system. The meeting, which was held in the Board Room in the Administration Building, lasted from 9 a.m. until 7:30 p.m., and the main topics of discussion were the agreement between the Department of Education and the UNC system concerning discrimination, a bill in the NC General Assembly that would raise the drinking age for beer and wine from 18 to 21 years old, campus parking on all the campuses and several other members of the UNCASG agree that our student body president, Mr. Charles B. Parsons, did an excellent job as host of this meeting and we all extend our thanks for the many hours that Mr. Parsons put into make this an effective and well-organized meeting. Also a special thanks goes to Ms. Nadine Fixler and PFM for providing coffee, to Krispy Kreme Doughnut Company for the doughnuts, to Mr. Dale Fish and Mr. Si Lawrence for hosting the social the Friday night before the meeting and to the Miller Beer distributor, Coastal Beverage, for providing the refreshments at the social.

Thank you,
Pete Divoky
Senior Class President

Concert spirit emphasized

To the Editor:

The other day I was wasting my time in the library, and I thought about the upcoming Atlanta Rhythm Section concert Friday night, and the Charlie Daniel's Band I've heard's coming to UNCW in November. Wandering around I came to the reference section where The Fledgling yearbooks are located, and decided to see what other big-name bands have performed here.

These two upcoming concerts are a treat for us because for the past year or so, we have had to go to Raleigh, Greenville, or Greensboro to see the super groups. As seniors will remember, it wasn't that way in 1978 and '79. In a little over a month, between late-September and early-November of '79, there were four local concerts including Heat-wave, Wet Willie and Outlaws together, and Evelyn Champagne King and Mother's Finest together.

In 1978, two of today's super, super groups once performed in Wilmington. They were Heart and Foreigner. Dolly Parton, Andrew God, the Sanford Townsend Band, Mother's Finest with Brick, and Firefall and Wet Willie together, also played here in '78.

Charlie Daniels and Jimmy Buffet played here in 1977. Buffet was also here in '76. Todd Rundgren and the Earl Scruggs Revue played here in '74, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band in '72, and Chicago in '71.

Probably the best concert took place at Hanover Hall in 1972. It was Yes, hot off three of the group's best albums; "Fragile", "Close to the Edge", and "Yessongs".

Just thought I'd try to get you into the concert spirit for Friday night!

Tony Britt

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy Stallsmith
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill
Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Creative Arts Dept. presents 'A Flea in Her Ear' Oct. 2-4

"A Flea in Her Ear" by Georges Feydeau will be presented by the Department of Creative Arts - Drama Division on October 2-4, in Kenan Auditorium on the UNCW campus. Curtain time is 8 pm.

"A Flea in Her Ear" is probably one of the funniest plays ever written. Georges Feydeau created a masterpiece of farce, and one that audiences love. It was revived in recent years, directed by Gower Champion and presented in San Francisco and New York. Variety said of it, "The play, translated by Barnett Shaw, is pure cotton candy - lighter than air."

Imagine, if you can, one jealous wife, played by Kiri Allen, who suspects her innocent husband, played by Frank Fioriti, of being unfaithful. Add to this, a cast of zany characters who get involved in the wife's plan to prove her husband's guilt, and you have Georges Feydeau's uproarious comedy - "A Flea in Her Ear."

First, there is a letter written by the wife's best friend played by Suelien Herstine. The letter invites the husband to an inn for a rendezvous with a secret admirer. Throughout the play the letter falls into the wrong hands. For instance, the wife has an admirer played by Bob Caldwell, who sees the letter and believes it is intended for him and a pistol wielding Spaniard played by Frank Williams, sees the letter, recognizes his wife's handwriting, and thinks she is being unfaithful.

Complicating the rendezvous further is the fact that the husband's secretary, played by Michael Lusk, has arranged to bring the wife's maid, played by Audrey Tolar to the inn at the same time. This rendezvous must also be secretive as the maid is married to the valet played by Garth Anderson.

The inn, well-known for its guests who are all respectable married people who come here often, but never with each other, is owned by Ferrailon and his wife, played by Wayne Milligan and Brigitte Lanier. Keeping the inn deceptively clean is Stephanie Smith who plays the maid. In residence at the inn is the owner's Uncle, a rheumatic old coot played by Robbie Stone, who appears inconveniently at all the right moments. Adding to the excitement is a lusty English guest at the hotel portrayed by Chip Taylor who is continually hoping and waiting for someone to call him for - you guessed it - a rendezvous. Rounding out the characters is a meddling doctor played by Lewis Bosworth and a hotel porter who more than resembles the husband.

Stephanie Young, newly appointed Technical Director for the University Theatre will serve as Set Designer and Technical Coordinator for the production of "A Flea in Her Ear." Gary Winley and Lisa Bosworth will be Stage Manager and Assistant Stage Manager respectively. Karl Heide-mann is Lighting Designer and Anne Fitzgibbon will be Costume Designer.

James Burke who composed music for last summer's production "On Golden Pond" will once again be composing original music for "A Flea in Her Ear." Director for this production is Doug W. Swink.

Oct. 2-4 at Kenan Auditorium. Admission for UNCW students with ID cards, $1.00; UNCW faculty, $2.00; and non-students, $3.00. Reservations may be made by calling 791-4330, extension 2442, Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 pm.

Campus Christian Ministry sponsors mountain trek fall break

Are you adventurous and willing to try anything at least once?

If so, how 'bout backing and white-water canoeing in the Blue Ridge Mountains?

This mountain trek is sponsored by the United Christian Campus Ministry during the fall break. Twelve beginners or novices will be leaving Wilmington by van on Saturday morning, Oct. 17, and returning Friday afternoon, Oct. 23.

All the equipment needed, food, and an experienced staff is provided at the cost of $150 per person.

Bob Haywood, Campus Ministry, said that this trek is for "personal growth and to push yourself to the limit" to see what you can accomplish.

There are still eight spaces available; so if you're interested, contact Bob Haywood at 799-1160 or at 610 S. College Road (across from Trask). A deposit of $25 is needed.

BEGINNER OR ADVANCED Cost is about the same as a semester in a U.S. college. $2,689. Price includes jet round trip to Seville from New York; room, board, and tuition complete. Government grants and loans available for eligible students.

Live with a Spanish family, attend classes four hours a day, four days a week, four months. Earn 16 hrs. of credit equivalent to 4 semesters taught in U.S. colleges over a two year time span). Your Spanish studies will be enhanced by opportunities not available in a U.S. classroom. Standardized tests show our students' language skills superior to students completing two year programs in U.S.

Hurry, it takes a lot of time to make all arrangements. We depart Jan. 31, and return June 1, 1982. FULLY ACCREDITED-A program of Trinity Christian College.

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

2442 E. Collier S.E. Grand Rapids, Michigan 49506
(A Program of Trinity Christian College)

CALL TOLL FREE for full information 1-800-253-9008
(In Mich., or if toll free line inoperative call 1-616-942-2541 collect.)

What's big and new and well-stocked with all your favorite party beverages, mixes and fancy foods?

It's Grape and Hops Shop.

Under New Management

Now open on Wrightsville Avenue.
Keg Prices and Case Lot Special's

Full Line Of Blank Tapes Maxell

90 Min. UDXL - II 3.99 ea.

TDK

90 Min. - SA - 90

4.39 ea.

D - 45 - 1.99 ea.

Stereo Cartridges

Stanton Shure

Audio Technica

Nagatron

Need Cash?

We Buy Used Albums
Not Abused
Albums

Atlanta Rhythm Section
5.99

Bob Seger Live — 9.99

Dan Fogelberg — 8.99

Rolling Stones — 5.99

Stevie Nicks — 5.99

Foreigner — 5.99

Mike Cross — 5.99

Many More Specials

WILMINGTON'S

TRULY

DISCOUNT

ALBUM

AND

TAPE

STORE

Corner Of

Kerr & Wrightsville

We Also Buy And Sell

Used Albums!!!

Bargains

At

Super Low Prices

Over 2,000

To Choose

From

Just In Stanton

Headphones

29.00 And 39.00

All 8.98 List Albums

Are Never

Priced Over 6.99

Open Till 9:00

Mon. — Sat

Creative Arts Dept. expands to offer Documentary Film course

by Mike Senter
Journalism Contributor

A each school year comes, and goes, so does teachers and courses at all institutes of learning. One course that has come to UNCW is Documentary Film for Television in the Creative Arts Department, a course that has never been taught at UNCW before. The course is numbered Com 492, meaning the class is an experimental one and if it receives a good response will be offered again. So far only two other Mass Media courses have been offered. Broadcast Journalism and Survey of Mass Media. These two classes seemed to broaden the interest in the Mass Media area.

As the Speech Communication department grows, so does the interest in Mass Media. It seems that most people stereotype people with Speech degrees as one who is to become a newscaster, which is not entirely true.

The Documentary Film course is designed to expose its students to the techniques and the know-hows of the TV industry. Not only do students learn how to operate cameras and video equipment, but they also learn tips on how to interview and be interviewed, and how to write scripts for television. An added extra provided by the course for the students is that each student gets the opportunity to spend the entire day with either Channel 3 TV or Channel 6 TV and its staff. This will expose the students to what goes on at a TV station and to the duties of each person that makes the station work. It will also give the student the opportunity to familiarize himself with the equipment used in newscasting and what efforts are needed to put it together. This is a very good way to gain experience and knowledge that may prove rewarding if one decides to pursue the Mass Media field further.

Government leases land tracts off NC coast for exploration

During the first week in August of this year, the Federal Government leased several tracts of land off the North Carolina coast to oil companies for exploration of oil and natural gas. The deep water off the North Carolina coast is a limiting factor for oil and gas exploration. Technology for drilling in such deep water is new and it is difficult to produce a commercial amount of either product from such a deep well. Regardless of the problems, drilling is scheduled to begin within a year and as the date grows nearer the geology and the biology departments are developing contrasting views of how the new industry will affect UNCW and the local community.

According to Dr. Thayer of UNCW's geology department, the university stands to gain several geology majors while at the same time lose several of its geology professors to the tune of doubling their salaries as oil company employees.

Students may also gain from the off shore drilling in jobs that require little training but pay quite well.

For Wilmington the discovery of hydrocarbons, indicating the presents of oil or gas, would cause an undescrivable economic boon according to Dr. Thayer.

UNCW biological oceanographer Dr. Robert George sees the offshore drilling from another point of view. Some of the tracks set aside for the drilling are located near a reef-like structure called "Live bottoms" which support a number of marine animals. According to Dr. George it is better that these "Live bottoms" remain left alone. The hydrocarbons present at oil and gas production sights may leak and cause environmental damage. There is also a problem with oil leakage during transportation, which may also cause environmental damage.

The initial price for an oil tract paid to the government is only the price to have the right to drill. The actual drilling costs millions of dollars whether any discovery is made or not. The possibility of coming up empty is even more likely in a new area such as off the North Carolina coast.

Job possibilities in biology aren't as varied as those in geology. The Federal Government offers Biologists positions to study the effects of hydrocarbon leakage on the environment. Some oil companies offer biologist positions in research.

University Program Board searches for dedicated volunteers

Robert Swift, chairperson of the University Program Board reported last week that the UPB is searching for dedicated volunteers willing to aid various committees within the organization.

According to Swift, there are openings to be filled in the following areas. Dance Committee. Chairperson Scott

Meckes requires volunteers interested in joining crews for lighting, stage set-up, promotion, and creativity of events; Fine Arts Committee - Chairperson Karl Heidemen requests volunteers interested in donating time to aid in projection of movies, selection of fine arts, promotion of events. Special Events Committee -

Chairperson Susan Powers requires people interested in publicity, ticket-taking, and feedback research; Lecture Committee - Chairperson Kathy Mott requires aid in promotion, hospitality, and chauffeurage.

Be Preserved Forever

Have your yearbook picture taken with your classmates...

'Special Friends'

Drinking Buddies...

DON'T ALLOW YOURSELF TO BE FOTGOTTEN

Good times deserve to be remembered

Pictures Taken at . . .

Pub Rm 107 Oct. 8,9 9am-5pm
Galloway Game Room Oct. 12-15 12am-7pm
A $2.00 sitting fee is required to cover costs of proofs which can be deducted from any pictures ordered.
This is not the company they took pictures last year.

SUFFERING "B's" RESTAURANT

2^F1 O R 1 BUFFET!

YOU BUY ONE...AND YOUR FRIEND
GETS ONE FREE!

THAT'S RIGHT...Clip this Coupon and bring a Friend to enjoy Suffering
"B's" delicious Buffet. Buy one Buffet for $3.50 - Your Friend enjoys one FREE! All the Pizza,
Spaghetti, Salad and Crazy Krust
Bread you can eat...Two People eat for the price of one!

$3.50 VALUE

2^F1 SUFFERING "B's" O R 1 COUPON

You must present this Coupon to receive the Suffering "B's" 2 for the price of 1 Sale. Buy 1 at regular price plus tax and get 1
FREE! This offer good 7 days a week Daily 12-2 pm. Evenings
6-8 pm thru Oct. 15. One per person per visit please.
No carry outs.

$3.50 VALUE

SUFFERING "B's"

NORTH 17 SHOPPING CENTER-PHONE 762-7585

Atlantis and Apparition highlight student literary work

by Rene Hurt
Journalism Contributor

Atlantis, the biannual UNCW literary magazine, publishes students' short stories, essays, poetry and art. Atlantis is written and edited by UNCW students and is available at no cost to students. All students are now being encouraged to submit material and to work on the staff. Material should be turned into the English Department. The deadline for all entries is Thursday, October 8 at 4 p.m.

This year's Editor-in-Chief is Barbara Grob. Other editors include Beri Marshall as Associate Editor, Dianne Russell as Poetry Editor, Joe Moenich as Prose Editor, and Rosemary Mitchell as Art Editor. Dr. Joanne Corbett and Dr. James Collier are advisors.

The Atlantis editors are planning something new this year. The Apparition will be a special Halloween promotion publication of Atlantis, and will be available to students the week before Halloween. Material in the Apparition will be selected from last summer's Supernatural Literature class, taught by Dr. James Collier. The broadside will serve as "promotion for Atlantis, and an additional means of publishing students' work," says Dr. Collier.

The Atlantis and Apparition are both funded through the Student Government Association. The SGA has allocated $3,300 to the Atlantis for this school year. Printer's cost is approximately $2,400 per 1000 copies. Considering that there are approximately 5000 students here at UNCW, "we need to publish at least 1000 copies per issue," says Ms. Grob. There is also the additional cost of machine and paper, typist fees, etc. After publishing the Apparition and the fall issue of Atlantis, the Atlantis staff plans to request an additional $1,700-$1,800 in January from the SGA. This will assure a spring issue.

For more information, please contact the English Department.

Johnny Van Zant Band to perform with ARS tonight in Trask

Brother of the late Ronnie, who fronted the renowned Lynyrd Skynyrd, and Donnie, who heads .38 Special, young Johnny Van Zant inherits his legendary family's rock 'n roll tradition with a very special intensity on Round Two, the eagerly-awaited follow-up to last year's acclaimed No More Dirty Deals. Accompanied by the blistering twin lead guitars of fellow band members Eric Leif-Lundgren and Robbie Gay, the steadfast bass of Danny Clausman, and the propulsive drumming of youthful Robbie Morris, Johnny Van Zant's soulful vocals are given and full-tilt backing they deserve, recalling his two seminal forebears—Bad Company's Paul Rodgers and, of course, his brother Ronnie.

Round Two finds Johnny Van Zant and company taking up where they left off their Polydor PolyGram Records debut.

For many years, Johnny Van Zant refused to use his own name for the group because he didn't want people to get the wrong idea. His father Lucy and mother Marion nurtured the band themselves as they did for their other two sons, giving the boys a practice house to get the act together. And, in addition, Ronnie would tell anyone who'd listen that his kid brother would one day challenge, if not surpass, the elder Van Zant.

The Johnny Van Zant Band's first album, No More Dirty Deals, was no ordinary debut from some new, still-wet-behind-the-ear outfit. From the wicked, hook-rich title cut to the achingly inspirational "Standing In The Darkness," no More Dirty Deals showed that young Johnny Van Zant could not only kiss ass, but also demonstrated a lyrical sensitivity far beyond his tender age of twenty-one.

With the release of Round Two, Johnny Van Zant is out from under the log shadow of his famous family, emerging from his influences and personal tragedies to create a work that would make those who have inspired him proud.

All master lyricists must learn the art of turning their deepest emotions into songs for the world to identify with. On No More Dirty Deals, and now, with Round Two, Johnny shows that he has assimilated his lessons well.

The group itself has been together for almost six years. As the Austin Nickels, Johnny, Robbie Gay and Robbie Morris played the Jacksonville, FL, bar circuit, faking their ages for fear the local police would shut the place down, which they often did. Following the suggestion of brother Ronnie, the Nickels added guitarist Eric Leif-Lundgren and a veteran from a bar band called 86 Proof, bassist Danny Clausman. The current line-up was completed.

Bloodmobile fails at goal

On Tuesday, September 22 and Wednesday, September 23, a blood drive was sponsored at UNCW by the New Hanover County Red Cross. The Bloodmobile comes to the university three times a year. Each time the bloodmobile comes, the Red Cross sets a goal to collect so many units of blood. This time the Red Cross set their goal at 250 units of blood with 150 to be collected on Tuesday and the remaining to be collected on Wednesday. After Tuesday, 120 units had been collected and by 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, only 38 units had been collected, leaving the Red Cross 68 units short of its goal.

Blood Service Director Amy Akins says that predicting a goal is difficult. If the Red Cross can reach 90% to 112% of its goal then it is doing well. For UNCW, 80% is good. Akins also considers UNCW as the site in Wilmington to be the major blood collection site for the community. With 5000 students, the Bloodmobile could collect 500 units on each visit, doubling its goal. This would be 10% of the student body giving blood. Miss Akins also considers the college age a good age to work with because there is not many deferrels in this age bracket. There is, however, a hesitation about giving blood. Though the University advertises the blood drives through the school paper, posters, and club and fraternity pledges, the bloodmobile is still missing people to give blood. Akins says that "the main reason people don't give blood is because they aren't asked to give." People usually associate the blood drive with a doctor's office because of the nurses, needles, and things like that.

Akins also added that "UNCW should take the blood drive as a challenge to succeed in community projects. When UNCW commits themselves to so many units of blood, this puts the Red Cross into a situation where we must try to meet the needs of the hospital."

FINAL DAYS* FINAL DAYS*
to submit to

Atlantis

prose • poetry • art

ATLANTIS
COVER
CONTEST $50

UNIVERSITY POETRY
CONTEST $50
30 20

deadline: Thurs. October 8, 1981

Sports

A&M Wins; 'Hawks 4-4

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

The UNCW soccer team completed its most unsuccessful month in recent history Monday when it lost to national powerhouse Alabama A & M, 3-1.

"I hope these tough games will be a help to use for this weekend's tournament," Lane said. "We're had some awfully tough games. Right now we just need to win one."

The 'Hawks' misfortunes began Sept. 16 when UNC-Chapel Hill came to Brooks Field. Prior to that game UNCW had won three games in a row, and held the 10th spot in the ISAA Southern regional poll.

UNC-Chapel Hill, ranked fifth in the South, defeated the Seahawks 2-1 despite playing the entire second half with only 10 players. The Tar Heels led 1-0 early in the game, but had a player ejected near the end of the half after an unnecessary collision with UNCW goalkeeper Mike Lyons.

The Seahawks came back quickly in the second half to tie the game on a Dave Comper goal. However, the Tar Heels scored with seven minutes remaining to secure their sixth win without a loss. It was an especially disappointing loss for the Seahawks since they had a one-player advantage for more than 45 minutes.

Two days later UNCW got a temporary reprieve when it hosted a lesser-skilled St. Andrews team, and won easily, 4-0. With the game tied 0-0, the second unit brought the Seahawks to life when Lane substituted with 15 minutes left in the first half. Freshman Kevin Cox scored two goals within two minutes of each other. B. K. Hawr, got a pair of goals from Mike Lawrence and Vick Perry, improving the season record to 4-2. Freshman goalkeeper Bill Lawson, subbing for the injured Lyons, recorded a shutout in his first collegiate start.

UNCW traveled to Raleigh after a week's rest to play nationally 16th-ranked NC State, and the Wolfpack showed themselves worthy of their ranking as they shut out the Seahawks, 3-0. The 'Hawks' second shutout loss of the season.

On Monday UNCW played host to Alabama A & M, which finished third in the nation last season.

In the first ten minutes of the contest UNCW stunned the visitors as senior co-captain Danny Davis scored on a Dave Karlson throw-in to put the Seahawks ahead 1-0. A & M scored once before the half, midway through the second half, then again with three minutes left for the final score.

UNCW stayed close, but the Bulldogs were a head above.

"Alabama A & M was definitely the best team we've played all year," coach Lane said. "I thought we played fairly well and thought we were in the game up until the last 20 minutes. Maybe we could have had more intensity, but they were very talented."

The 'Hawks' next home game is Thursday, Oct. 8 against Campbell.

Staff photo/Jamie Manserfl

Golfers' strokes much improved

The biggest improvement in varsity sports teams this fall has been in both the men's and women's golf programs. Each team has performed far better than last year in its respective opening tournaments - a fact opponents are coming to expect from UNCW golfers.

The men's team, led by 26-year-old transfer student Graham Williams finished fourth out of 17 teams in the Methodist College Invitational Sept. 21-22, and sixth out of 14 teams in the tougher Campbell Invitational Sept. 24-25.

Williams had a final round of 70 at Methodist, including a 30 on the back nine of the par-72 Cypress Lakes Golf Course, for a 144 total and a two-stroke margin.

At Campbell, Williams took the first-day lead with a 70, but wound up tied with NC State Roy Hunter with a 146 after the second round. Hunter birdied the extra hole to win the playoff.

The team, which was fourth after the first round, shot a 402 Friday 20 shots above its first round score - to drop to sixth. Last year the 'Hawks finished 12th out of 19 teams.

The women's golf team shot a school-record 971 on 54 holes, including a school-record 321 on the second round, to finish third in the Longwood College (Va.) Invitational Sept. 17-19.

"Third place was phenomenal," said women's coach Lea Larson. "William & Mary is the defending NCAA Division II champion, and Longwood was the Division II runner-up, and we beat both of them."

The Lady Seahawks continued their road-trip to Boone where they placed seventh out of 11 schools in the Appalachian State Invitational. After a poor first round, UNCW shot 321 for the second time this season to come from ninth place after the first day.

The women's team is idle until the Duke Fall Invitational Oct. 9-11.

Football club 0-2

Despite a new stronger team moral and improved player attitude, the football club had a rough start in its first two football games. The Seahawks lost to UNC-Chapel Hill 12-6 in sudden-death overtime in their season-opener. The next week UNCW lost by the identical score to the New River USMC team from Camp Lejeune.

In the first game Kevin Wilson caught three passes for 88 yards, including the 'Hawks' only touchdown. Michael Borden, a freshman from Durham, led in rushing with 80 yards on 16 carries. On defense, Dale Fish led with 12 tackles.

The Seahawks took an early lead, but gave way to a Tar Heel touchdown in the third quarter, and allowed UNC-CH to score in the four plays of overtime.

UNCW again took an early lead in the second game on a dive by Borden. Fish had set up the play with the first of his two interceptions. However, New River wore down the Seahawk defense to score a touchdown in each of the final two quarters.

Coaches Capt. Macrae and Sgt. Younts agreed that the offense needs refining.

"We've got adequate special teams, a good defense provided they're not on the field too long, and a good running back in Borden," Macrae said.

"Our offense has been lacking for a number of reasons - we've had a fill-in as offense coordinator, a lot of turnovers have hurt us, and we need depth, which we sadly lack."

"Above all, these guys need to get in shape."

The football club's next home game is Oct. 31 against UNC-Greensboro.

Lots of intramural happenings

Although 'Almost Anything Goes' and the intramural driving contest had fairly low tournaments last month, intramural sports are rapidly becoming extremely popular.

Flag football, which began last week, has two leagues with nine teams each, and four women's teams. Volleyball will begin sometime soon, also.

A fishing derby will be held Wednesday at Center Pier in Carolina Beach. The group will leave from school at 6 p.m. but you may fish earlier also. Separate categories for men and women will be for the biggest, the smallest, the most, and the ugliest fish caught. You do need your own equipment, but pier rates will be reduced. For more information, call Richard Foy at 799-9837.

Corkball, a game similar to softball played with a 2"-long cork and a flat, miniature bat, begins immediately after fall break. Sign-up is already underway. Last year the new sport was a big success.

"Almost Anything Goes" is something that's going to grow every year," said intramural director Lea Larson. "Everything we've had so far has had more participants than last year."

Sports Calendar

Monday

Volleyball at St. Andrews with Catawba.
Intramural soccer sign-up begins.

Tuesday

Flag football: Chi Phi vs. J Hewlett, 4 p.m.; LT's vs. No Fat Chicks, 5 p.m.

Wednesday

Volleyball at Atlantic Christian.
Flag football: Toxic Shocks vs. Stronzo's, 4 p.m.; 69ers vs. Kegmen, 5 p.m.

Sunday

Baseball scrimmage vs. UNC-Chapel Hill.
Football Club at N.C. State.
Men's Golf tournament concludes at James Madison.
Men's Soccer at Kiwanis Classic in Williamsburg, Va.

Running 'Hawks defeat Baptist

After the men's cross country team turned in its "finest performance ever", according to coach Bill Atwill, in the Pembroke Invitational Sept. 19, the Running Seahawks continued their success with a revenge victory last Saturday over Baptist College.

The Seahawks finished third out of 11 teams at Pembroke as every UNCW runner improved his time from last year's annual event. Junior Robbie Burke covered the five-mile course in 26:12 to finish 10th overall, compared to 28th last year. Other UNCW places were George Walker 17th, Julian Keith 19th, Paul Lupica 20th, and Al Brantley 23rd.

"It was without a doubt the fastest field in three years" said Atwill.

The next weekend Walker and Burke's second and third places, respectively, lifted UNCW over Baptist and UNC-Charlotte in a tri-meet held here. The teams scores were UNCW 28, Baptist 32, and UNCC 76. Other UNCW finishers were Keith sixth, Lupica seventh, and Brantley 10th.

"We lost to Baptist by one point last year, so we were hungry," Atwill said. "Our course is very slow with deep sand and tight turns, so you could forget about times."

Both the men's and women's teams will compete in the Wilmington Mini-Marathon to Start Saturday at Greenfield Lake at 10 a.m.

On his way to the NBA

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

Being drafted by the National Basketball Association makes former UNCW player Danny Davis a member of a rare elite. To make the Dallas Mavericks squad, which selected him, will be a dream-come-true for the 6'7", 225-lb. native of Alliance.

"If anybody had ever asked me during my senior year in college if I would be drafted, I'd have said, 'No,'" Davis says. "This is one of those goals I never thought I'd reach."

Davis left for Dallas Sunday. In the four years Davis played here UNCW was 69-37. He averaged 15.3 points and 9.5 rebounds, ranked nationally in field goal percentage (60.8%), and was named to the all-South independent team his senior season.

When Davis was drafted by the NBA's newest expansion club on June 6, he did not even know it until late that night.

"It was a shock!" Davis says. "I was gone all day, and that night Chuck Carey (of the Wilmington Morning Star) called me and asked me about the draft. I told him I'd watched a little bit of it on TV. When he told me I'd been chosen in the seventh round by Dallas, I said 'Oh yeah?'" So I called coach (Mel) Gibson and they'd sent him a telegram."

Davis had been contacted a few times previously by the Detroit Pistons.

After being drafted Davis prepared for his Sept. 28 tryout by practicing every afternoon on campus, and at his part-time job at a local gym. He left for Dallas Sunday.

"I'm self-motivated big time. I realize I have to improve my outside shot and handling the ball, but I'm going to stick with what got me drafted. I've talked with other guys who've been in rookie camp, and basically, I've got to fight for my life for anything. That's what I'm prepared to do."

Davis is the biggest player drafted by Dallas, which includes all-American Mark Aquire of DePaul, Renaldo Blackman of Kansas State and Jay Vincent of Michigan State.

The competition is stiff, and Davis knows his chances are not great. Denny Fields, the last UNCW player drafted, was cut by the New York Knicks in 1978. If he does not survive the tryout cuts, Davis may try to market his basketball skills in the Continental Basketball Association, or the European League. He says if neither of those possibilities work either, he thinks he would go to Washington, DC, where another of Davis' older brothers live.

Davis

Girls get their kicks in soccer

For 25 girls who have practice five afternoons a week, soccer is a lot of fun!

Led by volunteer coach Johnny Miller, the girls' soccer club competes with clubs and varsity teams alike from around the state. The club, in its third year of existence, lost its first game to UNC-Chapel Hill, the nation's second-ranked team, but have seven tentative dates remaining, including a 15-to-20-team tournament in Fayetteville next month. Last year the club competed in a tournament in Tuscaloosa, AL.

But competition is not the team's main concept. Fun is.

"It's not really a varsity sport," club member Diane Lesch says. "It's just to have a good game."

Ginny Jones, another team member, says the club does more than just allow for a good time.

"There are a lot of positive things about being athletic," she says. "We're in a lot better shape than other girls."

Miller enjoys his role as coach, also.

"These girls just come out here because they like to play," he says. "I've coached guys before, and they think they always know what they're doing. These girls are all ears. They might not do something right at first, but they'll try it, and get it right eventually."

Staff photo/Scott Sibby

Jennifer Wilson [21] gets involved in UNC-CH game.

Notes...

The racquetball club will sponsor a campus-wide tournament Oct. 9-10-11 for all students and faculty. There will be skill-level divisions in men's and women's singles, plus men's and women's doubles. Sign-up sheets are available in front of the intramural office. For more information call Mitch Covington (791-9292) or Andy Bowles (392-1979). . . . Steve Spear, a member of the Cape Fear Gale Warnings frisbee club, is trying to get an 'Ultimate' team organized on campus.

Frisbee enthusiasts are welcomed to join on Wednesday evenings and Sunday afternoons on Brooks Field. . . . Sign-up has begun for the third annual 'Fun Run' to be held Nov. 9. Entry blanks are available in the PE Department, and due by Oct. 30 with a $3.50 fee. . . . Junior John Shackleford, the men's tennis team's top player, won both of his matches when the squad competed in the Frances Marion Invitational in Florence, SC last Saturday. Other winners were Lance Thompson, Clayton Pressley and Scott Adams. . . . Tom Prestia says the Ten Pin Club is still getting on its feet for conference matches with other schools that should start this month. Meetings are held on Thursday evenings at Cardinal Lanes. . . . The sailing club placed fourth in a race at Charleston, SC Sept. 19-20, but hope to do better in this weekend's Riverfest '81. Meetings are every other Wednesday with racing done on Thursdays and Sundays. . . .

The men's and women's swimming teams enter their fifth week of practice next week. Although the season does not begin until Nov. 20, coach Dave Allen has had 27 men and 13 women running, swimming and lifting weights in preparation for a 13-date schedule that runs through March.

Volleyball team 4-4

The women's volleyball team has started the season with ups and downs. The Lady Seahawks split their first two home tri-matches, swept their third tri-match, and lost both games on their first road trip to open an even 4-4 record.

UNCW wins have come over N.C. A & T, Pembroke, Wake Forest and N.C. Wesleyan while the Lady Hawks have lost to UNC-Greensboro, Guilford and High Point twice. Tuesday's late match with Baptist and UNC-Charlotte was the last home date until Oct. 29. UNCW will play seven tri-matches and in two tournaments on the road during October.

"We haven't reached our potential yet," coach Jackie Bartlett said. "The team hasn't come together yet. Hopefully in the next few weeks it'll start to come together better. It might take them a little time to get used to playing away."

Guidelines made for sports clubs

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

Due to the increasing number of injuries and risks in club sports, Dean of Student Affairs Abbie Hastings and the SGA have researched the situation at UNCW, and have devised some protective guidelines that all sports clubs will soon be required to follow.

The sport club guidelines, which include several changes in club procedures, have two main purposes: 1) to increase the safety of participation, and 2) to reduce causes of liability. Dean Hastings, who initiated the eight-page study, based her findings on reports of the Intramural Sports Council, and from her own experiences at UNC-Charlotte.

"We feel that if a club is sanctioned by the university, we have at least a moral responsibility to make sure the students are participating as safely as possible," Dean Hastings said. "Just by their nature, sports clubs have an inherent risk of physical injury. Our's is an attempt to educate students of risks, and to assist in limiting these risks."

"The guidelines also extend into liability," she said. "It's to protect clubs, the SGA, and the university. Negligence is the key to liability, and we want to eliminate negligence totally."

Some of the new health and safety standards to students include a physician's consent for participation, proof of insurance, coverage, and a signed release and waiver of liability. The guidelines clearly state: "UNCW cannot be held responsible for injuries incurred through participation in voluntary activities."

New responsibilities of club leaders include preparation of emergency procedures to students and to complete injury reports to the Division of Student Affairs immediately after any mishap.

Also, faculty advisors must be present at all competitive events against outside teams or organizations.

"Some of these guidelines are in effect already for football and soccer," said Dean Hastings. "Because they are so physical, there are certain things Student Affairs must have done. However, the guidelines must also be approved by the SGA. It's a combination effort of the SGA and Student Affairs because they're both involved."

"I think it's very good for the school and the students," Roger Knight, Chairman of the SGA board that worked with Dean Hastings, said.

Running is tops with Goley

by Vickie Maynor
Sports Writer

Being the best takes a great deal of hard work and dedication. Dawn Goley appears to have all of the necessary ingredients to make it to the top and to be the best.

Dawn, a 20-year-old junior from New Jersey, is the number-one runner on the women's cross-country team. She is attending UNCW on a softball scholarship, but running is her preferred sport.

"I began running when I first came to UNCW because I was new here and I was lonely," Goley says. "Now I run an average of six to ten miles a day and 15 on weekends."

Bill Atwell, coach of the cross-country team, describes Dawn as the kind of athlete who is a joy to coach.

"She is a very hard worker and a consistent runner," says Atwell.

Dawn has won the 5-kilometer race here for several years. She was second overall in the Seahawks' first run this year at Campbell. She will compete again in the Wilmington Mini-Marathon Saturday.

"Running gives me a good feeling plus time to be alone and think," she says. "I find that people compare me with a jogger, but the big difference in jogging and running is the supreme dedication needed to run."

"I never took running very serious until I started college. I ran track in high school, but when I came to UNCW, the idea hit me that running was really a great source of pleasure to me. I started the women's cross-country team up with another girl named Stacey Almond.

Goley

"I enjoy writing poetry and working with poetry," she adds. "I am hoping for a career as a marine biologist, but running will still be tops with me."

Behavioral and Social Sciences building to open '82

* The new Behavioral and Social Sciences building may be ready for occupation during summer session 1982. The building will house the Psychology, Social Science, Anthropology, and Political Science departments, and the Philosophy and Religion department on an interim basis.

Larger classrooms and more adequate office space for the faculty are two advantages that Dr. John Williams, Psychology Department Chairman, looks forward to, along with rooms designed to meet specific needs of the department. An area for surgery has been provided, and improved animal care facilities.

Another feature will be classrooms with tables instead of desks, and more electrical outlets, to allow the use of calculators and small machinery, and laboratory areas in locations more conducive to experimental conditions.

Some of the rooms will have one-way observation mirrors. The new building is currently under construction by parking lot M.

Psi Chi starts first year on campus

Psi Chi, UNCW's newest honor society, has started its first year of existence. New Officers were elected on Sept. 8 and are as follows: Vice President - Marcia Avedon, Secretary - Kathy Hornvak, and Treasurer - Sonja Robinson.

To be eligible for Psi Chi, one must be at least a sophomore, have a 3.0 overall average, a

3.0 average in Psychology, and have completed 9 semester hours in Psychology. Candidates must be majoring in Psychology. All interested persons are urged to contact Dr. Joseph Awkard no later

The first project for Psi Chi will be a Yard and Bake Sale on Oct. 10, 1981 at Wachovia Bank on College Rd. between 8 am and 4 pm.

Big Buddy program needs volunteers to sponsor children

by Mike Senter
Journalism Contributor

Want to help a child? Why not be a Big Buddy? This seems to be the slogan for the Big Buddy Program sponsored through the Family Service Agency. A United Way funded agency and also funded by the Community Based Alternative state grant. The main object of the Big Buddy program is to provide a one-to-one relationship between adults volunteers and children, with the adults being 18 years and older and the kids being anywhere from age 6 to age 17.

Many types of people are involved in the Big Buddy Program. Anyone from an airline stewardess to executives to housewives. To become involved in the program, one can make application then go through interviews and training sessions. There is one year mandatory participation in the program with the volunteers spending anywhere from 2 to 5 hours a week with the child they sponsor.

The children are referred to the Big Buddy Program through juvenile court, the Department of Social Services, and from parents themselves who may not have enough time to spend with their children. Pam Pace, Big Buddy Coordinator, says that these children aren't problem kids and resent being called that. Rather they are children who need an adult in their life who can give them the one-to-one positive reinforcement that they could not receive at home.

The adults and kids are matched according to their likes and dislikes as well as their other characteristics. Currently there are 24 matched volunteers. Thirty-seven boys are on the waiting list and this does not mean that only males are involved. The females are equally represented.

To obtain more information on becoming a Big Buddy, one can contact Pam Pace at Family Services, 208 First Union Bank Building, 201 North Front Street, or call 763-5189.

Present peat reserves in North Carolina are sufficient for the state to produce up to 10 years of electricity, says Dr. Roy L. Ingram, professor of Geology at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dr. Ingram spoke to Geology students at UNCW on "Peat - A Potential Energy Bridge for North Carolina." The lecture held on Sept. 16, was sponsored by the Earth Science Department at UNCW. Ingram spoke about the large reserves in Canada, Finland, and Russia, Russia being the largest peat producer in the world producing enough fuel to generate electricity for 60 power plants.

Peat is made of partly decayed plant matter that has collected in swamps and marshes over long periods of time. It is generally the first stage of coal development, forming in layers.

Most of North Carolina's peat is found in the Pamlico and Albemarle Sound peninsula area. This area has the highest concentration of peat in the state. The second highest peat reserve is in the Dismal Swamp area. Croatan National Park in the New Bern area has the next highest concentration. The Green Swamp northwest of Wilmington also has traces of peat content. The peat found in these areas is of the highest energy content. Ingram stated that the peat found in the Southern reserves have a high rate of BTU's as compared to that of other regions.

Ingram noted that many businesses are looking into the future of peat mining for profit. The First Colony Farms Company of Carteret County is presently mining the peat on one of its many land holdings, primarily to reach prime farm land underneath. Due to economic reasons they are unable to use it for fuel at this time, but are looking for interested firms.

Peat may also be used in the making of methanol also as an alternative energy source.

PIZZA CITY FREE

DELIVERY

PIZZA AND SANDWICHES

392-5515

OPEN 4 PM

REVIEW FASTER WITH CLIFFS NOTES!

Exam time or any time. Cliffs Notes can help you earn better grades in literature. Our complete stock covers most frequently assigned novels, plays and poems. Get the ones you need today.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

On to the Mountains Fall Break

See the mountain colors, push your limits, enjoy the wonders of nature and other people!

"What is this adventure?" You ask?

A week long backpacking and white water canoeing trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains (Ooh-Ahh, Ooh-Ahh!!!!)

"When is it?" (I know you are ready to go now!)

I know you are ready to go now but you have to wait until Fall break October 17-23rd. (Notice: You come back Friday, October 23rd in the afternoon so you have a whole weekend to recuperate and celebrate!)

"O.K., O.K. It all sounds terrific, but how much does it cost?"

The cost is only $150.00. Not bad for all you get. Included is all your equipment needs, food (I see those mouths watering already) and experienced staff. All you have to bring is yourself, your smile, your enthusiasm, personality, a sleeping bag, clothes and shoes.

How do I get more information and reserve my place in the fun?"

It's easy! Just call Bob Hayward 799-1660/ 870 South College Road (right across from Trask) Bring a $25.00 deposit and you are ready to go!

By the way, this is for novices and beginners. I don't want any hot shots to show me up! This trip is for those wanting a new experience.

So..... Be Brave....., adventuresome and bold, and get ready for a good time

Rhythm Section

needs experienced Guitarist

Keyboard player, and Female vocalist.

R & B, Rock, and Roll.

Only serious musicians

need apply.

Call 791-0392

ROTC Armor Orientation Day sponsored by Campbell University

On Saturday, the 12th of September, cadets from the Army ROTC unit here at UNCW attended an Armor Orientation Day sponsored by Campbell University and the First 252th Armor Battalion.

The day started with the cadets leaving Wilmington around 9:00 Saturday morning and driving to Methodist College where the cadets met other cadets from Methodist, Campbell, and Pembroke State University. Captain Treehorne, Assistant Professor of Military Science at Campbell, was the officer in charge of the cadets.

After all the students were assembled at Methodist, they were transported by bus to the Tank Live Fire Range, at Ft. Bragg. They arrived just in time to watch the tank crews bore sight their main tank-guns. While the tankers were bore sighting, a Major from the First 252th Armor came and spoke to the cadets in regards to armor mechanics of armor and the duties of a second lieutenant in charge of a tank unit.

When the tank crews had finished bore sighting, they withdrew to the rear of the range for ammunition resupply. During this time the cadets were allowed to climb aboard the tanks and explore the different functions that the crew members perform inside a tank.

Later that afternoon the cadets were given the opportunity to ride in an Armor Personal Carrier (APC), an armor vehicle used by the Infantry. Some of the cadets were even treated to driving the APC.

The day was enjoyed by all; it was a great learning experience. Captain Treehorne thought the day was a success, a "good orientation on Armor" he said. It was also a good day for Cadet Obbie

Blanton of UNCW. He was the highest ranking cadet officer, a Cadet Captain. He was therefore placed in charge of the other cadets by Captain Treehorne.

The cadets that attended the day from UNCW were Janet Johnson, Obbie Blanton and Arthur Hohnsbehn, juniors in the advanced program and Matt Donoghue and Thain Brenman, members of the Freshmen ROTC class.

ARS, from p. 1.

Doobie Brothers. The same month, September 25th it was, Chip Carter brought them to the White House where family and friends came to hear them. "I think I have a lot in common with the Atlanta Rhythm Section," the President said that afternoon. "I remember when they first started, critics and commentators said they didn't have a chance. They said the same thing about me."

More hard work on the road preceded ARS cutting the fourth LP, Dog Days (1975), with its infamous "Boogie Smoogie," a clearly biased observation of the 'Southern boogie' genre. It was also during this period that other acts started using Studio One, like Lynyrd Skynyrd. The touring schedule was still a tough grind and although the next album Red Tape (1976) managed to capture their live sound better, it also sold only moderately. By the end of the year, a frustrated ARS was nearly ready to pack it in. The next LP would be the acid test:

ARS was given 45 days to compose, record, and deliver the finished goods, instead of the usual carte blanche in the studio.

The result was an aptly-titled A Rock and Roll Alternative (1977), their first RIAA gold album, boasting their first top ten single, "So In to You." The smooth ballad approach kept them inside the top ten with their next single, "Imaginary Lover" and then "I'm Not Gonna Let It Bother Me Tonight," both from the album Champagne Jam (1978); the LP also included "Large Time," a tribute to 'Skynyrd after the tragic plane crash of '77. 1979 brought another pair of hit singles, "Do it or Die" and "Spooky" off the Underdog album; and the same year came the double LP live set Are You Ready! recapping such ARS favorites as "Champagne Jam," "Georgia Rhythm," "Doraville" and the other hits. Their tenth album, The Boys From Doraville (1980), rocked the house with "Cocaine Charlie," "Rough at the Edges," and "Next Year's Rock 'n Roll." This was also the first studio recording to introduce new drummer Roy Yeager (who'd been heard onstage earlier in Are You Ready!).

"Our goal," says Hammond, "is to make the audience feel a part of us. It's pure magic when that happens!" It's a safe bet the magic'll be happening a long time.

New sorority established

Phi Beta Psi, UNCW's newest sorority, sponsored its first informal student party on Saturday, September 26. The "Pre-Game Spirit Party" was designed to put everyone in the right psychological frame of mind before the football game.

The party was held from 1 p.m. until 2 p.m. on the Patio. TKE and The Seahawk helped to sponsor the party.

Approximately 70 people exhibited their support for the football meeting, which was held on Tuesday, September 29. Officers were elected at this meeting and they are as follows: Janet L. Hundley, President; Melissa Morgan,

Vice President; LuAnne Darden, Secretary; Loris Mason, Treasurer; Tricia Wallace, Correspondent; Tara Smith, Party Organizer; and Wendy Robbins, Historian.

The sorority chose its colors as blue (for the sea), and white (for the unicorn). The unicorn was also designated as the organization's symbol.

Committees were selected to work on a constitution, to design a crest, and to obtain T-shirts. Various fund-raising activities were also discussed. "Phi Beta Psi is not just people that call themselves sisters," explained President Hundley. "It's organized friends."

UPB holds first meeting

The first meeting held by the University Program Board to recruit interested volunteers was held Monday, September 21, at approximately 4:09 p.m. in the lobby of the Student Union Building.

According to Robert Swift, Chairperson of the UPB, a promotional booth had been set up during summer orientation to provide the in-coming students with information concerning the various committees within the organization. Those students who stopped by the booth and expressed an interest were later mailed an invitation to attend last week's meeting.

Swift reported that approximately thirty students attended the meeting, most of which were freshmen. After committee chairpersons were introduced, each had the opportunity to stress the areas within their committee which required the most attention from volunteers.

Swift rapped up the meeting by reminding everyone present that it would be in their own interest to get involved in the program since the students are the ones that fund the organization. He also stated that the reward of knowing that you are accomplishing something as well as meeting new friends is what the program's motto ("Students working for students") is all about.

Every potential volunteer that attended was reported to have joined at least one committee. Other students are still urged to consider volunteering.

Poetry contest held

The English Department is now accepting original poetry from all UNCW students for the annual University Poetry Contest. Students may submit up to three poems per person. Each entry will also be considered for publication in the Atlanta, UNCW's literary magazine.

The University Poetry Contest is being financed by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis, a ladies service organization in Wilmington. First prize for the poetry contest is $50, second prize is $30, and third prize is $20. There will also be two Honorable Mentions awarded.

A reception for the awards, which is also being financed by The North Carolina Junior Sorosis, will be held the week of October 12, 1981. The precise time and place of the reception will be announced at a later date. All students, faculty and staff are invited to attend. The deadline for all entries is Thursday, October 9 at 4 p.m.

For additional information, contact the English Department.

The Patio

Grill open 11 a.m.-7

50 cents off Patio Special:
turkey, roastbeef, and ham piled high

Your choice of breads, cheeses and ingredients

Mon. Ladies' Night
Wed. College Night - 7 kegs
Thurs. - John Glover Band
Friday Afternoon 25 cent Hotdogs 4-7
Fri. Carl Rosen
Sat. John Glover Band
Sun. Men's Pool tournament

Call about discounts for clubs
and fraternities

What's so funny about Mondays? They never get better

You wanna know what's so funny about Mondays? I'll tell you what's so funny about Mondays: we keep thinking they're going to get better, but they never do.

Nothing can kill a great weekend quicker than Monday morning. And don't talk to me about a fresh new week; when I want a new week, I'll start one. Until then, I'm happy to live in a time warp where it's always Saturday morning.

Why Saturday morning? Because that is the one day of the week when the whole world sleeps in. You can be like Garfield and eat breakfast

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

in bed, or hug your pillow or talk dirty to your teddy bear, or do whatever you want to do.

The point is, on Saturday morning nobody gives a damn. Ah, but Monday mornings are a whole new hemisphere. The alarm clock buzzes sadistically for if you have a clock-radio, like moi, you have

The Who rocking you out of bed) and whom, you're thrust into a new day, a rotten new Monday. Five more days of class, five more days of studying till your eyes bleed, five more days until Saturday. No wonder the majority of college students wake up cursing on Monday!

I prefer to go to bed as late as possible on Sunday night, in the hope that I will sleep right through Monday. This rarely works, as anyone can testify. When you wake up, Monday is still there, waiting to jump out and maul you. Is there a cure for that dreaded first day of the week? Drugs don't do it; even in a semi-conscious stupor there is still a tiny voice screaming in your ear that says "You gotta get up and go to class, schmuck!!" Ditto for alcohol. Hangovers always hurt more on Monday, anyway. You could lie to yourself and go to the beach, but your professors would not appreciate this: "I woke up and thought it was Saturday, I swear!"

Alas, there seems to be no answer to the Monday blues. The only solution would be to somehow arrange it so that a) you get hit on the head with a hard object (a frisbee will do fine) and then b) develop acute amnesia. That way, not only will you not know the day of the week, you won't really care!

Forensics team to begin 81-82 season

by Aaron Oliver
Journalism Contributor

The State Champion UNCW Forensics Team is preparing to begin its 81-82 season. "We have come off three real good years, with three State Championships in a row, and the strongest season we ever had was last year," Dr. Bob Rosenthal, team coach, said.

The team begins its season in October at Ohio State, and will then go on to compete at Appalachian State and Shippenburg University in Pennsylvania.

According to Dr. Rosenthal the team is "a little bit smaller than we have been, but I expect a very strong season." Returning to the team this year are State Champions Mike Stroud and Brian Perry. Also joining the team are two High School Champions who were recruited from North Carolina schools. In all the team will be made-up of two women and six men.

Dr. Rosenthal hopes to have some novice debaters this year, but feels that individual speaking events will be the team's strong point. "In individual events I think we have developed, probably year in and year out, one of the stronger programs not only in the State, but in this area of the country," he said.

As far as in-state competition the team expects its hardest opponents to be Appalachian State and Western Carolina. Some of the out-of-state schools that might give the team problems are James Madison and Old Dominion University in Virginia, Pennsylvania State, University of Maryland, Ohio State, and the National Champions, East Michigan.

In trying to plan and schedule the season's tournaments Rosenthal says the biggest problem he faces is the distances the team has to travel. "The problem with this section of the country," he said, "is that everything is so spread out. You don't have a concentration of programs."

Last year the team logged between 10,000 and 15,000 miles. This year the team's shortest trips will be to Wingate College and Appalachian State.

Although Student Government has been very helpful and supportive, the team is still planning some fund raisers. "We've been thinking about a guest speaker, and we've also been thinking about a raffle," Rosenthal stated.

With the first tournament still three weeks away Dr. Rosenthal stated that new students are welcome to join the team. That for further information you can contact him in Kenan Hall.

Museum offers various displays and lectures

The World Cultures Museum at UNCW, with Dr. Gerald H. Shinn as Acting Director, introduces students to other cultures through various displays and lectures.

Presently, the Museum consists of exhibits located in the library and in the Institute for Marine Biomedical Research.

The library exhibit is located in the second floor foyer and changes every three months. The display includes artifacts and books on various cultures, and a lecture is held in conjunction with each display. The cabinet which houses the library display was given to UNCW by the Museum of Natural History in Raleigh.

The exhibit located at the front entrance of the Institute for Marine Biomedical Research is a permanent display of sea shells.

All artifacts are original; no copies or reproductions are included in the displays.

Future plans are to add exhibits to various buildings around the campus.

Exhibits last year included artifacts from the South American Indian, Greek, Roman, and Alaskan cultures.

The current display is on Hebrew and Canaanite cultures. In conjunction with this exhibit, a drama entitled "Esther" will be presented this fall under the auspices of the Wilmington Parks and Recreation Department. Also, an archaeological lecture is being planned.

The lectures and exhibits of the Museum are held at UNCW; however, the Museum is funded by the North Carolina Education, Historical and Scientific Foundation, Inc., located at Wrightsville Beach.

Find out what's going on -
read
THE SEAHAWK
each week.

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100

Open 10 - 6
Monday - Saturday

I'd Rather Be Reading

Coupon good for 20% off on

Paperbacks only

Complete selection:

Classics Dictionaries

Testing Materials

Is This YOU

IT COULD BE - IF YOU WANT IT TO!

JOIN

the UNC-W DIVERS ASSOCIATION

Our club is forming now.
We want people who seek adventure!
We are planning a program of trips,
Guest Speakers,
Instruction,
Safety Programs

and

FUN!

You can be part of this program.
Join us Wednesday Evenings at 8:00
In Marine Science Bldg.

All certified Divers and Interested Polywogs welcome.
Now is the time, so do it!!!

For more information, call Paul (392-7647) or Mat (392-7890).

Campus Calendar

Communications Club discusses various projects

The Communications Club held its second meeting of the year on September 17. The meeting was called to order by Chariman Aaron Oliver, who then opened the meeting with information on the North Carolina Communication Association Convention to be held on the weekend of October 2-3.

There was then discussion on the Club sponsoring the 1933 "War of the Worlds" broadcast on one of the local radio stations on October 30th or 31st. A vote was taken and it was decided to follow through with the idea.

Co-chairperson Beth Hughes reported on SGA meetings as well as the Wine and Cheese Party held as an informal gathering for all club presidents.

Discussion on cleaning up and organizing the bulletin board next to the cafeteria then followed. A vote was taken and it was decided to proceed with the idea.

Carla Sciolino volunteered to act as treasurer, and a request for dues then followed. The meeting was adjourned at 4:00 p.m.

Readers Theatre presents 'Spontaneous Combustion'

The new theatre season in this area is just about to bust wide open. Here at UNCW the University Theatre will present on October 2-4, "A Flea in Her Ear" in Kenan Auditorium.

The very next week here on campus the University Readers Theatre will present "Spontaneous Combustion", October 7, 8, and 9 in the SRO Theatre in Kenan Hall. Curtain time for both shows is 8

p.m.

Out-of-town productions include "The Elephant Man", October 2-3 and 7-10 at the Wake Forest University Theatre, and "Comedy of Errors" October 1, 4, 7, and 10, "Just a Song at Twilight" October 2, 6, and 8 and "Wait Until Dark" October 3 and 9 at the Hight Points Theatre. Curtain time for these shows is 8:15 p.m.

Chancellor Wagoner

guests on WMFD

Chancellor William H. Wagoner will be discussing his assessments of the consent decree between the State of North Carolina and the Department of Education when he appears as a guest on WMFD's "Hidden Heritage", hosted by Fred Meece. Part two of the special radio program airs 8:15 a.m. on Sunday, October 4, 1981.

Financial Aid checks

Mr. Joseph V. Capell, Financial Aid Director, stated that some students have still not claimed financial aid refund checks or signed checks which need endorsing. He requested that these students report to the cashier between 10-12 noon, Monday-Friday.

Wilmington Literary Group conducts workshop

The Wilmington Literacy Group, affiliated with National Affiliation for Literacy advancement, will conduct a Laubach Literacy Workshop at the Wilmington Baptist Association office, 610 South College Road, October 1, 6, and 8, from 6 to 9 p.m. Volunteer tutors trained in the free 12-hour workshop will be trained to teach reading and writing to English-speaking adults or school students. For further information call 799-1160.

Phi Beta Lambda holds first meeting

With the aftermath of a very successful rush party, the Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity held its first meeting with great success. With over 50 people showing up for the rush party the first meeting was held with a third of those people showing up. During the meeting committees were set up to head various projects. One of these projects will be the State Convention that will be held in Charlotte this academic year.

Mr. Lee Sherman, management professor, is the advisor for the fraternity said "there is still plenty of room for members to fill the various committees." The highlight of the whole year is to send as many delegates to the state convention as possible. Last year several of the members came back from the convention with various awards. This year the chance presents itself again with all the new members and their talents, that hopefully will become a permanent part of the business world.

Yearbook portraits to be taken

Yearbook portraits will be taken Oct. 8 and 9 in Room 107 of the Pub. 9a.m.-4p.m. and Oct. 12 through 17 in the game room of Galloway Hall, 12 noon - 7p.m. A sitting fee of $2.00 is required to cover cost of proofs, which can be kept. The $2.00 may be deducted from any purchase made.

All new and old members of Phi Beta Lambda are urged to attend the next meeting which will be held on October 7, at 3:30 pm in Bear Hall. Plans for the October party will be made. Also members dues of $10 will be due at this meeting. For more information contact Todd Smith, President.

Diver's Association holds organizational meeting

The organizational meeting of the UNCW Diver's Association was held on September 16. A dozen certified divers attended the initial session to discuss concerns and needs for a club. Topics discussed included kick-off dives, charter boat rentals, equipment sharing, and a club constitution. Future program plans of guest speakers, novice instruction, boating safety courses, and first aid CPR training were also highlighted. The goal of the Association is to promote SAFE scuba-diving as a FUN sport. All qualified divers and interested polywogs are invited to participate in meetings held on Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. in the Marine Science Building. For more information, call Paul (392-7647) or Mat (392-7890).

SGA needs part-time secretary

Secretary needed for the Student Government Association. Part-time position will perform some clerical functions in the Student Government office. Minimum typing responsibilities. Ability to organize work in an efficient manner. The duties of the Secretary shall be to: 1) record the minutes of each Senate meeting; 2) insure that the minutes of the previous Senate meeting are typed and presented at the next Senate meeting; 3) type all Vice President's correspondence insure that it is sent to its proper place; 4) assist the SGA Office Manager, if necessary. The job will also require one to fulfill office hours: minimum 10-15 hours per week. Please notify the SGA office.

SALARY - FULL TUITION SCHOLARSHIP AVAILABLE. DEADLINE FOR ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS: OCT. 5, 1981.

Delta Zeta promotes sisterhood

The sisters of Delta Zeta Sorority would like to welcome everyone back to UNC by the Sea.

Even though the summer went by so fast the fall semester really looks exciting, especially for us.

For those who are not familiar with Delta Zeta Sorority let me tell you just what this thing called sisterhood is. Sisterhood is the close friendship we, the sisters, have developed with each other. A friendship we have developed by finding common interests with one another. Sisterhood is not just tolerating another just because she is your sister, but learning to live with her, understanding that she too is an individual and appreciate her for what she is. But Delta Zeta is not just this, but more.

It is standing up for each sister, supporting her in her social and also academic ventures. Sisterhood also means often laughing with each other but sometimes crying. Rejoicing in sisters' achievements and sorrowing in their disappointments. But most of all Delta Zeta sisterhood means sisters who are constantly caring for one another and also the betterment of others.

Delta Zeta Sorority does not only work within the Sorority but outside it. We have a national philanthropy - to help those who have hearing problems and in a particular way to contribute to the support of Gallaudet College devoted exclusively to the deaf. Delta Zeta also provides services to the community, like helping the Red Cross and other organizations.

So if you are interested in the growth of yourself and of others give Delta Zeta a chance. It might just be the most worthwhile and rewarding choice you have made.

by the sea... Sweetwater
SURF SHOP • WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C.

All Summer Merchandise
On Sale

New Shipment of Wet Suits

Fall Merchandise Arriving Daily

Long Sleeve T-Shirts

Long Sleeve Sweat Shirts

Sweetwater

and

Ocean Ave. Boards

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 107 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

US Navy
Lt. J. Ross
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.,
Oct. 6, 7, & 8
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Roses Stores
Mr. Jim Anderson
Fri., Oct. 9
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business, Any

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earl Fidalgo
Tues., Oct. 13
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineering
Trainees, Computer Programmers
Majors: Bus. Admin., Comp Sci., Math, Physics

S. Preston Douglas & Associates, CPA's
Mr. Carl Wilkins
Wed., Oct. 14
Pos: Staff Accountant
Major: Accounting

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Oct. 15
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admin., Acct., Engineering Operations

US Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.,
Dec. 1, 2, & 3

Professional & Administrative Career Examination (PACE)

Registration Dates: September 9 through October 13, 1981.

Opening of Internal Revenue Agent Register

The Southeast Region is planning to open the Internal Revenue Agent Register on a continuous basis beginning September 1, 1981. This will be on a trial basis.

CHAPTER, from p. 1.

people on campus involved with this organization are Blythe and the faculty advisor, Dr. Gerald H. Shinn.

Parsons and Paul also said that when, and if, Blythe complies with the guidelines of the SGA to organize a campus organization, he will receive a charter - as would any other organization.

UNIVERSITY POETRY CONTEST

sponsored by the Department of English - UNCW Financed by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis

First Prize $50
Second Prize $30
Third Prize $20

Two Honorable Mentions

Submit poems (limit three per student) to: Dept. of English

Deadline - Thursday, October 8, 1981

All New to Wilmington

The craziest one-of-a-kind cards
you have ever seen.

Stationery ready to monogram in bright bold colors!
Papergoods to fit your every need.

Mon.-Sat. 10 - 5
call 762-2245

COUPON

Free Lunch or Dinner

Yes, buy any one food item, and get the 2nd food item of the same or lesser value FREE

RESTAURANT & TAVERN

318 S. College Road

RESERVATIONS 799-5211

• CASUAL DINING

• PRIME RIB - STEAK - CHICKEN - LOBSTER - KING CRAB

• ALL A.B.C. PERMITS

• Coupon Good Thru Oct. 7, 1981

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Term papers,
etc...
call 791-0990

Opening Soon

THE BEER BOX

Keep your eye on this space
for a new concept of Wilmington's most complete
Beverage Center!

5311 Market St.
Across from Four Winds
A One Stop Beverage Shop

When you need big favors
you ask good friends.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 5

October 8, 1981

Twelve pages

Malloy turns in resignation

Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs William M. Malloy has resigned his position, effective June 30, 1982. Malloy gave Chancellor William Wagoner a letter of resignation on Monday, September 28 and the Chancellor sent back a letter accepting his resignation the following Wednesday.

Malloy announced his intent to leave to the total Student Affairs staff on Thursday, Oct. 1.

"It was hard to do," Malloy said. "I'll miss the school tremendously. I feel like I've had a good part of my life wrapped up in it, particularly with students in the past ten years."

Malloy explained that it was a case of his job "Ceasing to be fun." In the past two or three years, he said he has been loaded down with paperwork and meetings, which has isolated him from the students.

"The school's changed so much in terms of my particular kind of work. I like to work more directly with the students, preferably in a small college situation. UNCW was small when I got here. We had 1800 students," he said.

Malloy has not found another job yet. He said he has a "Couple of good leads" as far as schools are concerned. All of the schools he is interested in are in the southeast. He also has a "more lucrative" lead in a local "rapidly growing business."

"While I'm still young enough I need to go ahead and make a change if I'm going to," he stated. "It's hard to leave the campus because I've been here for a fourth of my life. I think I've enjoyed a real good working relationship with the students here. I'll always value that because that's why I got into this job to begin with."

Chancellor Wagoner probably won't begin the search for a replacement until after June of next year, according to Malloy.

"The Chancellor has indicated that the search wouldn't begin until I was gone because he didn't like to do that while someone was in this position," Malloy explained.

Malloy added that he would hate for UNCW to miss out on the prime recruiting season for replacements, which is in the spring. He said he would have no objection to a committee starting a search at the beginning of next year.

"I know it seems kind of crazy to resign a job in this day and age, with the economy the way it is," Malloy stated. "But I've got several good leads and I'll keep my fingers crossed."

Vice-Chancellor Malloy

SGA President resigns

SGA President Charles Parsons unexpectedly resigned Monday morning. In a letter sent to the Chancellor, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Dean of Students, SGA Vice President, and The Seahawk Editor, Parsons stated "It is therefore with much regret that I must resign my position as Student Body President, effective immediately, due to health reasons. It is my belief that the SGA will gain strength and understanding from my decision."

Parsons was elected president in March of 1981 and took office in April.

Steve Schmidt is now Acting President and Pete Divisy, Acting Vice President.

At the time of Parsons' resignation, no other information was available to The Seahawk before press deadline.

Inside

- Alcohol Awareness Force p. 4
- Sports p. 5
- Extended Library hours p. 6
- New Sorority p. 7
- Campus Calendar p. 8

Charles Parsons

Cage party for students

Last Wednesday (Sept. 30) was another especially festive day on the UNCW campus. It was the annual picnic and cage party for on-campus students, and some 1,000 dormitory and apartment residents filed onto the tennis courts behind Galloway Hall for seven kegs of free beer, with a live band, after a free meal from the cafeteria.

The gathering began shortly after 4 p.m. on the grass in front of Galloway Hall with a picnic of sandwiches, hoagies, fried chicken and other fixings. At six o'clock the crowd moved into the fenced-in tennis courts with its meal tickets, and saw and heard 'Velvet', a five-piece Wilmington-based group, while devouring all of the beer in two hours.

Included in the entertainment was a hat contest for the majority of students who had worn unique headpieces. Winners in the different categories were Lisa Faxon for 'most creative', Joe Paight for 'best looking', Suzanne Burge for 'smallest hat', Rosa Ervin for 'biggest hat', and Peter Stern for 'worst looking', which he called, "a buffalo scrotum hat."

Door prizes and prizes in the hat contest, donated by area businesses, ranged from T-shirts to dinner for two at The Bridge Tender.

Overall the event was thoroughly enjoyed, but there were mixed opinions as to whether it was better than the Block Party Aug. 29 at the Pub. Here were a few of the comments:

"This is good because there's about two or three beers for everyone if it only wasn't Stroh's." (Peter Stern)

See Party, p. 12.

The Atlanta Rhythm Section and Johnny Van Zant Band performed to a crowd of over 3500 people last Friday night in Trask Coliseum.

Staff photo/ Scott Sibley

Cartonists, Layout personnel, News writers, needed for THE SEAHAWK

Independent paper pushed off campus

CH: The editor of a New York City Independent student newspaper claims his publication is being kicked off campus to protect its students' and administration-funded competition.

Greg Perrin, editor of The Torch, says the paper may take legal action after the campus Director of Student Affairs ordered distribution racks removed from campus buildings "because she says we're not a student paper." In its five-year history, The Torch has received student funding every year until this year, Perrin says. "We decided last spring to charge 10 cents a copy rather than take student fee funds," he explains. The decision was made partially because the paper wanted to cut all purse string ties with the administration, he adds. The Torch's offices are located off campus, but its news staff and all but a small percentage of its readers are students, says Perrin.

He believes the administration wants The Torch off campus completely to aid the Washington Square News, another campus semi-weekly but one which receives both student fee funding and administration funds. "I think they want to get rid of us because we embarrass them," he states. "They don't have the control over us that they want, and they don't want a second newspaper on campus when the one they fund is losing money. It's hard for them to announce that the Washington Square News is losing money again when there are a lot of funding shortages here."

Constant Dondore, director of student affairs, denies Perrin's allegations and says The Torch distribution racks were removed because the paper didn't seek permission to sell its copies in academic buildings. "They sent a request to the university president's office and were told to get in touch with me, which they didn't do. If a request is submitted now, Dondore says, it will probably go through a faculty senate committee "to determine a policy on the sale of publications in academic buildings."

Perrin says The Torch did submit a request to the president's office, but that it wasn't processed. He also says the student affairs office promised the newspaper about a need to register as an official student group. "Now they're throwing that at us, but we're not an official student group," he states. The paper is now registering.

Without campus distribution, The Torch's circulation drops from 45,000 to 6,000. Other alternatives, such as free distribution on campus "would be financial suicide for us," Perrin says. The paper's only hope is to get back on campus.

Letters

Comments on former President

To the Editor:

It is with great anguish and concern that I feel compelled to announce the resignation of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington's esteemed President, Charles B. Parsons.

I am not aware of the complete details leading or surrounding his resignation. All I know is he terminated his tenure due to health reasons.

Charles has been involved with our Student Government for about three and one half years. In this time, he has proven to be one of the most efficient, productive, and prominent members of this organization. He is a superb blend of practical application and idealism. Charles dedicated much of his invaluable time to the Student Government, but much of his work was not credited. I honestly feel that Charles was an asset to this or adverse effects, since his services will not be continued. It is my intentions for these reasons as the new SGA President of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, to follow in the footsteps of this respected man and assure that the SGA recuperates from such a misfortune.

It is now time to set this irreversible matter aside and continue with business. If any student has any gripes, problems, and/or ideas, please feel free to contact me in the SGA office at 791-4330 ext. 2554 and arrange for an appointment. Student Government is a government for the students, so let us all unite and make the changes count.

Respectfully yours,
Steven Schmidt
SGA President

Thanks for helping on elections

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank David Bowden and Rudy McKnight for their help in the Student Government Fall elections. These two students volunteered their valuable time to run the ballot box at the cafeteria during lunch hour. Their attitude and actions persuaded many students to vote who otherwise might not have taken the time.

The spirit of helpfulness and the willingness of David and Rudy to take the time to help out in this election reflects the spirit that this campus needs to encourage in all of its students. Taking part in the various functions here at school is an excellent opportunity to get acquainted with your fellow students and to develop friendships that will last long after you leave this school.

Again, thanks to you both for a job well done and for volunteering your time to help out your Student Government.

Respectfully,
Steve Schmidt
SGA Vice President

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy Stallsmith
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill
Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Bluebond contributes broadcasting experience to Creative Arts Dept.

The Philadelphia Eagles are 5-0 in the NFL, and that make Scott Bluebond very happy. Scott is also happy with his new position as a Professor of Speech in the Creative Arts Department.

Scott spent the first 20 years of his life living on the outskirts of Philadelphia, which explains his liking of the Eagles.

His first two years in college were spent at a branch campus of Pennsylvania State. "Goint to a branch campus half the size of this (UNCW) was very beneficial, in that I make a lot of contacts with instructors, because of the small classroom atmosphere," Scott said.

After two years at the branch campus Scott went on to Pennsylvania State where he worked hard in preparation for graduate school.

It was not until Pennsylvania State that Scott took his first broadcasting courses. Up until then he had been "thinking just liberal arts."

Soon he started working at the university's radio station WDFM. "I think the radio station there was a great influence on me. It was student-run with only one faculty advisor, who didn't hang around much. The station had students who were really devoted to radio," Scott said.

Scott started doing five minute sports casts because he "knew a lot about sports." His first play-by-play announcing came with a Pennsylvania State - West Virginia basketball game.

Bluebond adds that "The highlight of my broadcast career is floating around somewhere out in space."

It was his senior year and he was calling the Penn. State - Maryland football game. It was a big affair with lots of important people all around.

Scott was in fine form, and felt he was doing the best announcing he had ever done. However, after the game he returned to the station to find no one had taped the show, and so the whole thing was lost.

Once he had become involved in radio, Scott felt he might have a career in the field. He started doing not just sports, but all kinds of announcing.

Later he worked to get an internship at a commercial station, through the school. The program at Pennsylvania State however was full, and he applied for it at another university.

One internship he passed up was in Harrisburg, Pa. It turned out to be a good thing, too. For three months later, Three Mile Island shut the whole area and the radio station down. "It was like I survived Three Mile Island, I think?" Scott said.

When Scott did get his internship it was at WVIA, where he worked harder than he ever had before. "They put me through the mill at WVIA."

While at the radio station he received a letter from Colorado State offering him an Assistantship in Speech. He promptly sent back a response saying he was not interested at the time.

"I remember the day I went to the mailbox. I tried to throw that letter in about four times, but in the back of my head the job sounded like a good idea," Scott added.

Several days later he called Colorado and said, "You know that letter I just sent you? Well I might have changed my mind."

Scott's first term at Colorado State was "a little worse than a nightmare." His second year however was better. He started working at radio station KCSU doing man on the street interviews. Scott also found out he was a survivor. For out of the 11 people who had started in the graduate program he was one of three to get his Master Degree.

When it came time to finish up and start looking for work Scott realized that while he loved radio he also loved teaching. After checking out a number of teaching job offers he took the position offered him at UNCW.

Student Government busy with freshmen elections, blood drives, meetings

The last couple of weeks have been rather busy for the Student Government Association. We have been extremely busy running the freshmen elections and the elections for various vacancies within the student senate. I would like to take this opportunity to commend the freshmen class for having the largest voter turnout ever here at UNCW.

At this time there are certain positions available to students by appointment. Such positions are: Associate Justices to the Student Supreme Court and to the University Court, Elections Board, Legislative Secretary, and to various positions in our Student Government Association.

This past week, I called upon the student senate to ask the (IFC) Inter-Fraternity Counsel to remove all "Greek" lettering that remains on the campus bulletin board. I do not feel that we can put the blame on any one group for this flagrant act of vandalism, last year, but further acts would not be tolerated.

There was also a blood drive this past month which was co-sponsored by the SGA. This blood drive turned out to be a success, but I feel that next semester we can do much better.

We are working on various proposals within the UNC-Association of Student Governments, and we shall be attending a meeting with William Friday, President of the sixteen constituent institutions. We will also attend a meeting of the UNCASG at North Carolina Central University.

Our athletic clubs have kicked their season off, and although we have met with some minor difficulties in gaining a victory - I am positive that our season will pick up and we will take our seat as the number one team in our conference! I would also like to take time to thank the following groups for a successful Pre-game Warm-up before the UNCW-USMC

See SGA p. 4.

Special Programs offers seminars

UNCW's Office of Special Programs has organized two seminars designed for those in the business world who are interested in a continuing education program. The two seminars are labelled as professional development workshops. This is the first of its type sponsored by UNCW. Although primarily designed for the non-traditional student, all those interested are encouraged to attend.

The workshop on office organization and management is aimed at the person in the executive secretary role. Mrs. Mary Watson, a UNCW faculty member, will be the speaker. The Office of Special Programs said that the seminars will be especially useful to the aspiring career woman.

Those who attend will gain new insight in the skills which will help you deal more effectively with work related problems; the areas of management and organizational techniques. Such concepts will then be related to the work atmosphere. Learning to diagnose office problems is another key practically being looked into. After using the diagnosing technique, the participants relay them to office situations to help solve organizational shortcomings and increase the business effectiveness. Some of the key topics are:

- * Restoring control when the work place becomes disorganized.

- * Communication as the secret to effective teamwork and better morale.

- * Distinguishing the "Now's, wants, laters, and musts." Using the method of small group interaction, these topics can be very valuable to the participants.

An outline of the seminar may be obtained in the office of Continuing Education here on campus. The activities will take place in the Wilmington Hilton on Oct. 19. They are two day affairs with a get acquainted session on the evening prior to each session. The cost for the seminars is $195 for each session.

Parking lot completion nears final deadline

Near the end of October is the final deadline for completion of the new parking lot.

Parking lot "P" located near the new on-campus apartments should be finished soon.

Due to bad weather the construction was halted just before the fall semester started, then the moving in of campus students further delayed the progress.

There has been a streak of bad luck concerning the parking lot construction. With the slight difficulty concerning the contract agreement straightened out, the lot should be open soon.

When the lot is open, it will take care of the overflow of campus vehicles.

Hanover Company, which is now in charge of the construction, was given 90 days from the beginning of this month for completion. Working also on the parking lot is Graves Electrical Co. Electrical wiring has to be put down before the pavement can be laid.

Other main problems concerning the building of the parking lot was the storage situation, but everything is moving along now, so it is only a matter of time before the parking lot is completed.

THE PATIO

Grill open 11 a.m.-7

Mon. Ladies' Night
Wed. College Night - 7 Kegs
Friday Afternoon
25 cent Hotdogs
4-7

Friday - Saturday

Piney Woods Bluegrass Travelers
Sunday - Ladies' Pool Tournament

Call about discounts
for clubs and fraternities

Library staff concerned about noise level

With Fall Break just around the corner, many students are finding themselves squeezing into the library doing some last minute studying for tests.

With more students using the library than expected, the library staff is concerned about the apparent noise problem. Most students don't realize that four people sitting around a study table whispering can make noise in such a quiet place.

Mr. Eugene Hugeluet, Director of Library Services, stated "I am overly concerned about this problem because in the first part of October, we will be adding more stacks to the upper level study area to accommodate the increase of books we have received."

With the reduction of study space in Randall Library becoming more apparent, the need for students to watch their noise level is now more important than ever.

The amount of study space to be reduced will be quite severe. With the addition of 18 new double-faced shelves the reason is obvious. And so when there is a cutback on space, this pushes everybody together creating smaller study areas. Most people don't mean to make noise while in the library. It's just that they don't realize how far a whisper can carry. The next time you're in the library please remember that the person at the next table over from you is also trying to study.

SGA from page 4

Football game last week - the new Phi Beta Psi Sorority, Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, and the UNCW Football Club itself. All student senate meetings are held on Thursday nights at 7 pm in the Chem Physics

Editor's Note: Since this article was written, Charles Parsons has resigned as Presi-

Building Auditorium. Any students or faculty who have problems dealing with student concerns, please go to these meetings or get in touch with my office.

Remember take pride in our university - THE ONLY UNC is UNC-BY-THE-SEA!

dent of the SGA. Steve Schmidt is now acting president.

Unwanted pregnancies on the rise at UNCW

Are you sexually active? If so, do you use any form of contraceptive? Birth control is not being used as widely as it should be among UNCW students. According to UNCW Health Center, of the 24 pregnancy tests done this month, one-third proved to be positive. This is almost twice as many pregnancies than were recorded last year at this time.

Birth control information is available at the Student Health Center, located on the first floor of Dorm '79 (New Dorm). Other services provided by the Health Center include pregnancy testing, routine pelvic exams, pap smears, diaphragm fittings as well as other medical services at no charge.

Catherine Vangellow, Physicians' Assistant, at the Health Center, said, "Our main objective in the family planning area is to prevent unwanted pregnancies. Our attitude at the Health Center is one of concern and complete confidentiality." Vangellow added that there should be no reason for unwanted pregnancies with contraceptives so readily available.

The present reason for unwanted pregnancies stems from a lack of knowledge and communication. Lines of communication should be open between sexual partners. You should talk about birth control and decide whose responsibility it should be. Confront the problem before the problem confronts you. Above all don't just let things go! A relationship should be fun, don't let an unwanted pregnancy spoil your fun.

REVIEW FASTER WITH CLIFFS NOTES!

Exam time or any time. Cliffs Notes can help you earn better grades in literature. Our complete stock covers most frequently assigned novels, plays and poems. Get the ones you need today.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

On to the Mountains Fall Break

See the mountain colors, push your limits, enjoy the wonders of nature and other people!

"What is this adventure," You ask?

A Week long backpacking and white water canoeing trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains (Goh- Ahh, Ooh Ahh!!!!)

"When is it?" (I know you are ready to go now!)

I know you are ready to go now but you have to wait until Fall break October 17-23rd. (Notice: You come back Friday, October 23rd in the afternoon so you have a whole weekend to recuperate and celebrate!)

"O.K., O.K. It all sounds terrific, but how much does it cost?"

The cost is only $150.00. Not bad for all you get. Included is all your equipment needs, food (I see those mouths watering already) and experienced staff. All you have to bring is yourself, your smile, your enthusiasm, personality, a sleeping bag, clothes and shoes.

How do I get more information and reserve my place in the fun?"

It's easy! Just call Bob Hayward 799-1160! 610 South College Road (right across from Frank) Bring a $25.00 deposit and you are ready to go!

By the way, this is for novices and beginners, I don't want any hot shots to show me up! This trip is for those wanting a new experience.

So.... Be Brave..... adventuresome and bold..and

get ready for a good time

Hunter stresses 'consistency' and 'time' as most important

"Opportunities are only good if you're ready for them."

So said Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs Dr. Jaury C. Hunter Jr. as he reflected on what brought him to UNCW.

Hunter began his formal education as a non-traditional student—at 25 years of age. He attended night school at the University of South Carolina at Lancaster but soon decided to attend school full time. In order to attend classes during the day, he resigned his position with a corporation and began working at night in his father's auto body shop.

As a junior, Hunter was offered a scholarship to Appalachian State University and transferred there. Between 1969 and 1977, he earned his B.S. in Business Administration and Economics, an M.A. in Student Personnel and Counseling, A.M.A. in Business Administration and his Ph.D.

Hunter was appointed Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs in 1978. He feels that his position at UNCW combines two professions which he really enjoys: being an administrator and teaching. As an administrator, he provides leadership in financial and property matters and the facilities planning for the University. As a teacher, he is an Assistant Professor of Management and teaches accounting and management courses. Hunter stated that if either part of his job was missing, he probably would not like his job as much as he does. He continued by saying that he likes "the educational environment and the student contact."

He also likes "consistency." When asked who the most influential people were in his life, he replied his parents... because they have always been consistent and supportive.

Hunter may like "the educational environment" and "consistency," but one thing he doesn't like is that "there's just not enough time" to do the things he wants to do.

Time is extremely important to him. Hunter doesn't waste his time or his students'. In his position, he is expected to know "what to do, when to do it, and how to do it," and he expects the same from his office staff and students.

As he thought about the students at UNCW and his past experiences, he said, "Good things just seem to always happen to me; opportunities have come my way." Then he continued, "Opportunities are only good if you're ready for them," and he stressed don't "narrow opportunities to one locale—be prepared to go the opportunities."

Alcohol Awareness Task Force investigates alcohol use and abuse among students

The UNC-Wilmington Alcohol Awareness Task Force intends to investigate alcohol use/abuse among the UNCW student population and to make recommendations in regard to actions of improvement. This will include the identification of existing drinking problems, patterns and attitudes. The Task Force hopes to initiate a pattern of responsible decision-making among students in regard to alcohol use.

Present at the first meeting were Jill Amos, Chief George Antley (Wrightsville Beach Police), Chief Darryl Bruessle (Wilmington Police), Billy Dawson (Campus Security), Robert Eubanks (IFC President), Tom Fields (Criminal Justice), Steve Gnadt (Student Activities), Bob Haywood (Campus Christian Minister), Ginga Koehncke (Health Services), Jean Mansfield, Kathy Mott (University Program Board), Dr. Darwin Newton (Counseling and Testing), Sherrie Newton (Resident Director), Win Norman (Director of Campus Security), Judy Peell (HPER), Dave Ricks, Flo Stein (Crisis Line), Robert Swift (University Program Board), Bob Taylor (Director of Residence Life), George Ward (SGA), and Dr. Cecil Willis (Sociology).

The survey, Drinking in College/Survey of UNCW students, prepared by Tom Fields and Dr. Cecil Willis was presented to each Task Force member as a background for work.

The goals of this meeting were to identify problems associated with alcohol abuse among UNCW students. The following problems were identified:

1. Driving while drinking (i.e. accidents, DUI convictions).
2. Use of drugs with alcohol.
3. The financial drain of alcohol use.
4. Vandalism.
5. Disruptive behavior.
6. Alcohol is the focal point of most social activities.
7. Lack of moderation in drinking ("Drinking to get drunk").
9. Drinking and its affect on sexual activity.
10. Personal injury.
11. Drinking as a means of social acceptance.
12. Academic progress is affected by abuse (i.e. poor class attendance, and poor study habits).
13. Drinking to combat or avoid personal problems (i.e. depression, poor social skills, and feelings of inferiority).
14. Lack of knowledge concerning assistance for alcohol abuse (Community and university resources).
15. Businesses reinforce alcohol use/abuse (i.e. "free beer" concept).
16. Peer pressure to drink.
17. Alcohol abuse affects the perception of the University by the community.
18. Lack of legal consequence and/or parental notification in regard to alcohol abuse.
19. Lack of knowledge concerning consequences of alcohol abuse (legal, physical, and emotional).

Find out what's going on -
read
THE SEAHAWK
each week.

American Collegiate Poets Anthology

International Publications

is sponsoring a

National College Poetry Contest

— Fall Concours 1981 —

open to all college and university students desiring to have their poetry anthologized. CASH PRIZES will go to the top five poems:

$100	$50	$25	$15 Fourth
First Place	Second Place	Third Place	$10 Fifth

AWARDS of free printing for ALL accepted manuscripts in our popular, handsomely bound and copyrighted anthology, AMERICAN COLLEGIATE POETS.

Deadline: October 31

CONTEST RULES AND RESTRICTIONS:

1. Any student is eligible to submit his or her verse.
2. All entries must be original and unpublished.
3. All entries must be typed, double-spaced, on one side of the page only. Each poem must be on a separate sheet and must bear, in the upper left-hand corner, the NAME and ADDRESS of the student as well as the COLLEGE attended. Put name and address on envelope also!
4. There are no restrictions on form or theme. Length of poems up to fourteen lines. Each poem must have a separate title. (Avoid "Untitled"! Small black and white illustrations welcome.
5. The judges' decision will be final. No info by phone!
6. Entrants should keep a copy of all entries as they cannot be returned. Prize winners and all authors awarded free publication will be notified immediately after deadline. I.P. will retain first publication rights for accepted poems. Foreign language poems welcome.
7. There is an initial one dollar registration fee for the first entry and a fee of fifty cents for each additional poem. It is requested to submit no more than ten poems per entrant.
8. All entries must be postmarked not later than the above deadline and fees be paid, cash, check or money order, to:

INTERNATIONAL PUBLICATIONS

P. O. Box 44927

Los Angeles, CA 90044

Sports

Davis survives first cut

Former UNCW basketball player Danny Davis, trying to make the Dallas Mavericks team of the NBA, has survived the first week of training camp, and is one of 14 veterans, rookies and free agents remaining.

Davis, an eighth round draft pick in June, has outlasted such outstanding players as veteran and former UNCC player Chad Kinch, and 6'10" Arnold Housey, a third round draftee from Kansas.

Tryouts have continued through this week.

Sports Calendar

Thursday

Men's soccer vs. Campbell, 4 pm

Volleyball at Pembroke with Elon.

Friday

Women's golf tournament at Duke begins.

Intramural volleyball sign-ups ends.

Saturday

Volleyball tournament at East Carolina.

Women's golf tournament at Duke.

JV baseball at Lenoir Community College.

Football club at Charleston, SC.

Girls' soccer club at Greensboro.

Sunday

Men's soccer at Wake Forest.

Women's golf tournament at Duke concludes.

Girls' soccer at Fayetteville.

Men's golf tournament at Tampa, Fla. begins.

Monday

Men's golf tournament at Tampa, Fla. concludes.

Intramural volleyball managers' meeting, 4:30 pm.

Wednesday

Volleyball at Gardner-Webb with Western Carolina.

Intramural volleyball sign-ups ends.

Men 11th at James Madison

The men's golf team finished 11th out of 18 teams in the James Madison Invitational last weekend in Harrisonburg, Va.

After a disastrous first round score of 349, the Seahawks finished the 54-hole tournament with 317 and 308 rounds.

Sophomore Danny Agapion led UNCW with a 241, followed by junior Tony Herring at 242.

The men's team concludes its fall schedule in the Tampa University Hall of Fame Invitational Sunday and Monday.

Rugby

The Cape Fear Rugby Club played the British ship HMS Ariadne, currently in the Wilmington Port. Monday on Brooks Field. Cape Fear won, 18-12.

'Hawks play here today

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

The men's soccer team participated in the Kiwanis Classic four-team tournament last weekend in Williamsburg, Va. Trying to salvage what has been a disappointing season, the Seahawks started out with a 2-1 victory over Baltimore University Saturday, but had to settle for second place after falling to nationally-ranked William & Mary Sunday.

The Seahawks (5-5) face a tough match here today at 4 pm against Campbell. The Camels (6-1-3) were ranked ninth in last week's Southern poll.

In the first game of the Kiwanis Classic the Seahawks fell behind 1-0, but came back on two Dave Karlson-to-Dave Compere scoring plays.

"The game wasn't played with much intensity by either team," said coach Calvin Lane, "but after two straight losses (last week to NC State and Alabama A & M), we really needed the win."

William & Mary, ranked 20th in the nation, advanced to Sunday's championship game by defeating Virginia Tech, 5-1.

The Indians started quickly with two goals in the first twenty minutes. However, the Seahawks scored two goals of their own to tie the score, 2-2. Nick Perry scored UNCW's first goal, and Compere followed with his team-leading sixth goal of the season.

William & Mary was in the taking a 2-2 lead on a penalty kick 1:09 into the second half. Freshman Sean Cook knotted the score again for UNCW nine minutes later.

The Indians' fourth goal put the contest out of reach for the Seahawks as Cook was ejected for sportsmanlike conduct, and the 'Hawks were forced to play with an one-man disadvantage. William & Mary scored again to win the title, 5-3.

Despite losing five games for the first time since 1978, Lane is optimistic about the rest of the season.

"We matured a lot as a team during the tournament," he said. "We came back in both games, and we're starting to show more consistent play. I think we're just realizing our potential."

Volleyball team on the road again

The women's volleyball team completed its season with a tri-matches away through Wednesday, and a trip to the East Carolina Invitational this weekend.

The Lady Seahawks face Elon and Pembroke State tonight in Greensboro, travel to Greenville Saturday and Sunday for the WCU Invitational, and meet

Western Carolina and Gardner-Webb Wednesday.

The Lady 'Hawks' record improved to 6-7 after defeating St. Andrews and Catawba Monday. The pair of wins halted a five-match losing streak. UNCW played a late match at Atlantic Christian Tuesday.

(Above) Sarah Womble returns shot. (Right, l to r) Jill Amos, LuAnn Gentry and Judy Bender set for action.

Running Hawks compete in mini-marathon

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

Last Saturday in the unusually chilly morning air, UNCW's men's and women's cross country teams dominated the finish in the Wilmington Mini-Marathon at Greenfield Lake.

In all the Seahawks claimed 11 awards in three events. The mini-marathon is an annual road race during Riverfest co-sponsored by the YMCA and WECT-TV. The race featured a one-mile "fun run" for children and a 5-kilometer caterpillar race, in addition to the three other races.

George Walker, a sophomore from Charlotte, won the men's division of the 10-kilometer race with a time of 32 minutes, 46 seconds. He was followed by UNCW runners Julian Keith, second with a 33:08 clocking, and Paul Lupica, third with a 33:41 time.

Junior Stacy Almond, also from Charlotte, won the ladies' 10-kilometer race with a 42:54 time. She was followed closely by teammate Brenda Walker, who finished in 43:02.

Junior Robbie Burke won the men's five-kilometer race in 15:35. Tom Christian finished second with a time of 16:14.

For the second consecutive year Dawn Goley won the women's five-kilometer event with a 19:10 clocking. Darcey Lee came in second with a time of 20:57.

Five kilometers is the equivalent of 3.1 miles, while 10 kilometers equals 6.2 miles. Lee McInnes also finished in the five-kilometer race with a time of 18:50. Other Seahawk runners in the 10-kilometer race were Arnold Houston (11:24), Keith Lankford (36:47), Tina Jackson (39:05), and Caroline Brady (47:34).

Two Seahawk runners competed in the 13.1-mile race, which was three laps around Greenfield Lake. Al Brantley won second place in one hour, 17 minutes, 39 seconds, and senior Barbara Grob placed third among the women with a 1:43:34 time.

Even coach Bill Atwill got involved, placing sixth in his age-group of the 10 kilometer race with a time of 40:23.

Stager Hurt

Onno Stager, one of coach Mel Gibson's new recruits for the men's basketball team, suffered a sprained ankle during an unofficial practice last Friday, and will remain in a cast for several weeks.

Stager, a 6'5" swingman from Ohio, transferred from Shawnee State Community College.

Official team practice begins Oct. 15.

Staff photo Jamie Moncriel

Staff photo Wally Bengtson

Penalties, turnovers sink Football Club 24-0

The Football Club remained winless after a 24-0 loss to N.C. State in Raleigh last weekend. The loss dropped the Seahawks' record to 0-3.

UNCW started the first quarter strong, but turnovers and penalties, a problem for the Seahawks in the two previous games, troubled the 'Hawks again.

"Today penalties killed us," said senior captain Dale Fish. "We were overly aggressive, and got called over and over for late hits and unsportsmanlike conduct."

UNCW took the opening kickoff and drove 40 yards before fumbling the ball over to the Wolfpack. The Wolfpack connected the two scoring passes to a 6'6" receiver, converted both extra-points, and squeezed in a field goal to hold a 17-0 halftime lead.

Ben Thomas intercepted a pass for the Seahawks defense late in the first half that put the ball on the Wolfpack 15-yard line. However, three consecutive personal fouls backed the Seahawks into their own territory and out of scoring range.

Linebacker Rudy McKnight, who suffered a bruised shoulder late in the game, stopped a Wolfpack drive at the UNCW 10-yard line in the third quarter, but when State regained possession, three more personal fouls called on UNCW set up the Wolfpack's third touchdown.

"We just ran our mouth too much, and it killed us," Capt. Macrae said, "and there was nothing we could do to stop them (the UNCW players)."

"We beat the hell out of every team physically, but that's not always what wins games," said Fish. "Our attitude was a problem. We got pissed off, and ran our mouths."

"I swear we've got the talent," he said. "We just don't know how to use it. I think our defense was strong again, and our offense looked better. We've got some great runners, but we still need work on our offensive line and at quarterback."

"Conditioning wasn't a problem in the fourth quarter like it has been before," said Capt. Macrae, "but we still have not played anybody as out of shape as we are."

"There's a lot of confusion here right now," he said. "We need better sportsmanship and organization."

UNCW's next game is Saturday night in Charleston, S.C. against a local club.

Racquetball king

by Susan Trombitas
Journalism Contributor

For three years there has been only one name at the top of the racquetball seedings ladder. Senior Mitch Covington is 26 years old and the original driving force behind the sport's popularity at UNCW. His mature attitude toward enjoying life to the fullest is the main reason for his success on and off the court.

After high school graduation in 1973, Mitch enrolled at Pembroke State, but being unsure of his goals, Mitch quit after a year and returned home to Laurinburg to work for his dad. For three years Mitch worked as a truck driver, a plant worker, and a manager - all before he was 21.

Staff photo/Scott Sibbey

Tourney Slated

The Racquetball Club is sponsoring a campus tournament to be held this weekend. Categories include men's and women's A, B, and C skill levels in singles, and men's and women's doubles.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in each division.

A $2 fee is required by Friday.

But seeing his future mapped out in his father's footsteps at such a young age, Mitch felt restless and dissatisfied.

"I was in a rut," he says, "and it was a very discouraging and frightening thought."

But Mitch is not easily discouraged. Instead of staying in a rut he decided to rearrange his life, and re-enroll in school at UNCW. He started to major in Marine Biology, but realizing the tight job market he opted for a geology degree because he's always liked the outdoors.

After his initial "gotta get a 4.0 GPA," Mitch's concern with physical fitness led him to concentrate on racquetball.

Mitch got started at racquetball after he left Pembroke for the recreation while living at home. He was cut from every sport he attempted in high school, but now he was beginning to excel in racquetball.

Staff photo/Scott Sibbey

"I've always been just a mediocre athlete," he says. "However, I believe you can become good at anything you spend time on."

It is that attitude of Mitch's that does not reflect a trace of defeatism. He plays racquetball for the fun and the sportsmanship - not the competition. When a rare loss does occur he simply puts it behind him and concentrates on the next game.

After his third semester here, Mitch and Dr. Robert Wolff of the PE Dept. started the racquetball club. Since then the UNCW racquetball club has become the undisputed North Carolina champion - just one area of Mitch Covington's life at which he is working hard to succeed.

Notes...

The Surfing Club will present a movie tonight at 8 in Kenan Auditorium. . . A runner's guide to campus trails with the approximate distances is available in the intramural office. . . The baseball team completes its fall scrimmage schedule Saturday with a junior varsity contest at Lenoir Community College. . . Softball coach Debbie Dowd has begun conducting fall practices. . . The women's basketball team began official practice this week. . .

Cooler waves ahead for Surfing Club

Cold weather has arrived, but surfing stays alive with the UNCW Surfing Club. The club, led by senior Mike Fitzpatrick, continues competition this weekend with an intra-club contest at Crystal Pier, and will later be involved in several National Scholastic Surfing Association contests.

The intra-club contest was originally scheduled for last weekend, but was postponed to this coming weekend. The first open contest the club will host, in which the club will have two teams of 12 surfers competing, is scheduled for Oct. 24.

"We called the intra-club contest until this week because of poor waves," said Fitzpatrick. "Contests are based on length of rides and maneuvers, and when waves aren't strong enough to push the board along, it's useless."

Last year the Surfing Club was the Central East Coast champion, and dominated the Carolina district, said Fitzpatrick. UNCW defeated teams from East Carolina, Coastal Carolina, Carteret Tech, and Cape Fear Tech.

This year the club has approximately 40 NSSA members, including Andy Wigmore, a member of the NSSA national team. Meetings are held every other Thursday evening in the Pub, and are open to all students who want to join.

"We want to have little scrimmages everyday after school," Fitzpatrick said.

Tonight the club is sponsoring a free surfing movie to be shown at 8 o'clock in Kenan Auditorium.

"We're getting organized and involved in competition with other schools," Fitzpatrick said. "We'd like to be recognized as a school team as soon as possible."

Lady Seahawks win titles at Campbell

The women's tennis team competed in an open meet at Campbell University Sunday.

Conche Gemborys was runner-up in singles competition and was a member of the doubles championship team. UNCW's Jill Amos was the singles champion and teamed with Miss Gemborys for the doubles title.

Be Preserved Forever

Have your yearbook picture taken with your classmates...

'Special Friends'

DON'T ALLOW YOURSELF TO BE FOTGOTTEN

Good times deserve to be remembered

Drinking Buddies...

Pictures Taken at . . .

Pub Rm 107 Oct. 8,9 9am-5pm

Galloway Game Room Oct. 12-15 12am-7pm

A $2.00 sitting fee is required to cover costs of proofs which can be deducted from any pictures ordered.

This is not the company that took pictures last year.

Sigma Alpha Beta offers resume workshop

Do you find the job hunting problem to be a confusing and slightly frightening proposition? Well, you're not alone. Every year at this time graduating seniors and other students are faced with these problems.

On Tuesday, October 13, Sigma Alpha Beta, the Honorary Business Fraternity, will sponsor a seminar on how to write a resume that will get you the interview you want.

and what to do in an interview to get a job offer.

Mr. Tom Caperton, Vice President of Personnel and Training at United Carolina Bank, will be the guest speaker. He will discuss the very practical issues involved in the resume and interview process from an executive standpoint.

Some of the questions addressed will be: 1) What information does a good resume contain? 2) How long should it be? 3) What sort of questions should you be prepared to answer? 4) How important is research into the company?

These questions and others will be addressed during the hour-long workshop. All students are welcome to attend; however, seating is limited. Please sign-up at the SAB bulletin board in the downstairs hallway, Bear Hall. The seminar will be held in B112 at 2 p.m.

Career opportunity guides outlined at lecture

Career opportunities and graduate school possibilities were the topics of discussion at a lecture presented Sept. 29 by the Psychology Dept. and Psychology Club. Dr. Brown and Dr. Jackson of the Psychology Dept. conducted the presentation, as they have in years past.

Several career opportunity guides were recommended to students attending, along with job outlook handbooks. Strategies for taking standardized tests were mentioned, and taking practice tests in advance was strongly suggested. Subtleties in resume preparation were noted, such as using a colored paper rather than the traditional white. Professional printing as opposed to typing was recommended.

Opportunities and variation in graduate schools were also discussed, and several handbooks are available in the Psychology Dept. and the library for reference. It was stressed that research training during undergraduate school would greatly enhance one's chances of entering graduate school. Students considering furthering their training with a graduate degree were given several steps they should follow. First, students should select several schools of interest, those with doctoral programs or master's programs with pre-doctoral leanings being most important. Applications should be sent out one year in advance, followed by the taking of the Graduate Record Exam in Oct. of the senior year. The GRE results, the student's GPA, and any letters of recommendation should be sent to the schools, and the schools should be made aware of any research training the students have performed.

TKE sponsors oyster roast for Phi Beta Psi

The members of Phi Beta Psi Sorority were invited to a Tau Kappa Epsilon-sponsored oyster roast on Saturday, Oct. 3. The oyster roast was held at 5 pm at Wrightsville Beach.

Phi Beta Psi extends its thanks to TKE for organizing the event, said Janet L. Hundley, the sorority's president.

"TKE went to a lot of trouble to sponsor the oyster roast, but it was worth it because everyone had a good time," said President Hundley.

On Sept. 26, the sorority sponsored its first project, which was a "Pre-game Spirit Party." The party was designed to put everyone in the right psychological frame of mind before the football game. TKE and The Seahawk helped sponsor the party.

Approximately 70 people exhibited their support for the football team by attending the party. The keg was donated by The Patio.

Nineteen people were present at Phi Beta Psi's first meeting, which was held on Sept. 29. The sorority's second meeting was held on Tuesday, Oct. 6 at 4:30 pm.

UNCW professor doubles as court interpreter

Dr. Carlos A. Perez, a UNCW Spanish Professor, works as a court interpreter for international arrests made along the Carolina coast. He is one of only two court interpreters in the state of North Carolina.

Dr. Perez was born in Havana, Cuba. In 1961 he moved to the United States where he attended Wake Forest University. Upon graduating he attended UNC-Chapel Hill where he received his M.A. and Ph.D.

Most of the cases that Dr. Perez interprets deal with marijuana smugglers. Spanish speaking Colombians and other poor South American smugglers are often captured and detained for trial. Dr. Perez, a fluent native Spanish speaker, keeps the defendants informed as to what is going on in their trial. He meets with defendants both in the jail and in the courtroom where he also translates testimonies.

Dr. Perez had to take a rigid examination to be certified as a court interpreter. When asked if he found the work rewarding, he replied, yes and added that he enjoyed it very much.

New head of Nursing Dept. 'quite impressed' with UNCW

As always the beginning of a new school year brings many new faces to our campus. One of these new faces is that of Dr. Marlene M. Rosenkoetter, the new Chairperson of the UNCW Nursing Department.

Dr. Rosenkoetter left her position at Western Piedmont Community College where she was the Director of Health Sciences and Coordinator of Nursing to assume her position is a great challenge because she will be dealing with a larger number of people.

The new chairperson is married to Psychologist John Rosenkoetter. While the Rosen-koetter's have no children, they do have a house full. Four cats and one dog require a lot of time and attention.

Rosenkoetter enjoys music and painting, which she says she cannot seem to find enough time for.

Dr. Rosenkoetter is quite impressed with UNCW and the Wilmington area in general. She stated that she is very excited about being here, and she is looking forward to working with students and faculty. Rosenkoetter stressed that her door would always be open to the students of the University.

Cathode Ray Tube edits study of university

Throughout history, students have learned to accept tests as just another fact of life. But did you know that universities are also "tested"? Every ten years, UNCW is evaluated by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In order to meet their standards, UNCW's faculty members must conduct a general investigation of the University.

Dr. Richard Veit, Assistant Professor of English, has spent all summer using a CRT (Cathode Ray Tube) to edit this year's study of the University. The CRT is not actually a computer, but a computer terminal which connects to a main computer at the Triangle Universities Computer Center at Chapel Hill. It consists of a phone hookup, keyboard, and display screen.

The CRT is very similar to the VDT (Video Display Terminal), a computer-assisted device with television-like display screen and keyboard, which is used in many newsrooms for correcting and editing copy. It then stores all information for future reference.

Although you can play various games on the CRT, it is capable of making corrections, deletions, and insertions. It can also straighten margins, and reverse the order of sentences and paragraphs at your command. The writer then has the advantage of working with a clean copy at all times. There are no strikeouts or handwritten insertions as with typewriters.

Library offers extended hours

With the fall semester well underway, many students find themselves facing "exam fright" and therefore will welcome the opportunity to take advantage of Randall Library's extended hours. That's right folks, when the exams start piling up you really need a quiet place to study. With your roommate listening to loud music and friends down the hall playing Frisbee, where do you go? Randall Library, that's where. Mr. Eugene Huguleit (Director of Library Services) states "the hours were extended to better serve the students and faculty of UNCW."

Formerly, the library was open from 8 am-11:30 pm Monday through Thursday, now it's open from 7:45 am - 12 midnight. On Fridays the hours were changed to 7:45 am - 6 pm, while Saturdays, hours were changed to 2 pm - 12 midnight. All in all there were 3 1/2 total hours added on to the time the library was open.

When asked of one working student if the later hours would help her she replied, "Yes, I do believe they will, because when you work until 9 at night the extra hours really help out."

With regular exams just starting and finals in the future, the need for extra hours at Randall Library will be greatly appreciated by the student body. So fellow students take advantage of the extra hours and who knows, the extra time you put into studying might show up as a better grade.

Fast, Free Delivery

Call us.
392-5656
4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. - Sat.

We use only 100% real dairy cheese.

Our drivers carry less than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.

©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Onions, Green Peppers
and Sausage
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi
5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives,
Onions, Green Peppers
and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Pepsi / Quarts
Customer pays deposit.

1 free qt. of Pepsi with any 12" pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16555 / 5526

2 free qts. of Pepsi with any 16" pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16555 / 5526

$1

$1.00 off any pizza with extra thick crust.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16555 / 5526

$1

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 mins. after you order, present this coupon to the driver for $1.00 off.

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5526
16555 / 5526

Career Planning Registry helps students find jobs after graduation

ALEXANDRIA* VA.--Concerned about finding a job after graduation? Now there's a new campus service that can put your resume in the hands of over 10,000 employers both here and abroad.

Career Planning Registry is the new service's name and it is being introduced this semester on over 1,200 college and university campuses across the country.

CAREER PLACEMENT REGISTRY gives students the opportunity to record their personal and academic credentials in an international direct-access database. Potential employers are able to search the on-line system for any or all of the following prospective employee criteria: college, degree, major/minor, grades, occupational and geographical preference, citizenship status, relevant experience, language proficiency, and special skills.

The data students enter into the CPR system is searchable via the Dialog Information Service. Over 10,000 companies in 44 countries currently use Dialog for information retrieval. CPR enables these employers to match the best qualified candidate to any job opening. Liberal Arts graduates, for example, may easily be screened by personnel directors for trainee programs through the use of the system.

For a fee of $8.00, students may enter the CPR data base for a period of six months. All data entered into the computer will be returned to the student for verification.

Later this year, CPR will be expanded to include college alumni and executives who are or have been in the work force.

This will allow all individuals to enter their college credentials, work experience, and desires for employment. It will further enable present students to continue and up-date their CPR entry after graduation for as long as they desire.

Initial response to CPR from students, college placement officers, and corporate recruiters around the country has been extremely favorable. "At last," said one, "the career field has found the technology to handle professionally the exchange of information." Declared a student, "The $8.00 fee is less than the postage I'd spend sending out resumes!"

To obtain your CPR data entry form, stop by the campus job placement center or write directly to Career Placement Registry, Inc., 302 Swann Avenue, Alexandria, Virginia 22301.

Ritchey, Fleming to perform

The University Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee is very proud to bring you super talented artists in conjunction with their Half-Moon Productions series. On Thursday, Oct. 8 at 8:30 pm in the Student Union there will be an evening of highly professional musical entertainment. Join us to welcome Jim Ritchey and Be Jae Fleming.

Their musical repertoire includes a unique blend of country, folk, old time, reggae, ragtime, and a healthy dose of lighthearted whimsy. This variety is achieved by their instrumental expertise. Be Jae plays guitar, mandolin, and claw hammer style banjo. Whereas Jim flat picks the guitar and occasionally doubles on harmonica. This married duo from Greensboro combined their talents to make enchanting music for your ears! Their material is a combination of originals, by themselves and friends, and traditional songs. On stage they are energetic, relaxed, funny (sometimes outrageous, usually spontaneous) and are somehow able to make it all look so easy.

Jim and Be Jae are also accomplished songwriters. To name just one example of his talent, Jim's song Tennessee Bottle" was recorded by Kenny Rogers on his "Gambler" album. Also they have had numerous songs sang or played by many other well known artists.

So join us for an evening of priceless entertainment (and it's all FREE for you!) at the PUB!! It's BYOB as usual and a great time is to be found by all. And who said that finding a great time cheap was hard to do? Not the University Program Board. We're students working for you in the pursuit of a great time at UNCW!

Activities Board

Among the student services provided here at UNCW the Student Activities Board serves two important functions. Not only does the Board advise the committees responsible for planning student activities, but they also help out with community services.

Director of Student Activities Steve Gnadt, explained that his office is responsible for Pub maintenance and Pub staff supervision. Additional responsibilities include serving as advisors to several student organizations including the University Program Board and the Interfraternity Council. In addition to these services the Activities Board also works with the Symphony, Half-Moon Productions, and placing students in voluntary positions throughout the community, through the Voluntary Action Center. Gnadt personally works with the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear which sometimes results in co-sponsorship of the council's activities through the University.

Humanism lecture draws standing room only audience

"What is Humanism?" The answer was still unclear Thursday evening, Sept. 24, after a panel of lecturers discussed the question in the Randall Library Auditorium to an audience with standing room only.

The lecture, the first in the series "Perspectives on Humanism: A Public Dialogue", was moderated by Dr. W. Thomas Schmid of the Philosophy and Religion Department and involved three key speakers.

The first lecturer was the Chairman of the History Department Dr. Melton A. McLaurin. McLaurin began by stating that Humanism is philosophy, not religion, which deals with the dignity of man, his uniqueness, his abilities to rationalize and his capabilities (constructive or destructive).

The Chairman of the Philosophy and Religion Department Dr. James J. Megivern continued the lecture by first mentioning various meanings of Humanism. Megivern claimed that both the "lefts" and the "rights" of Humanism have concentrated on only one definition—the one dealing with religion—and have completely forgotten the others. He concluded by saying that both the "anti-religious humanist" and the "anti-humanist religion" are equal "abominations."

The third and last speaker was the Executive Director of the North Carolina Association of Christian Schools Edward E. Ulrich. Ulrich referred to the Humanist Manifesto I and II by stating that even though the signers of these documents were few in number, their influence in the area of education has been great. He further stated that the signers claimed Humanism to be a religious movement and called others to follow "in their faith." Ulrich concluded by comparing the views of Humanists and Christians in four areas: origin of the world, authority, man's nature and man's purpose/destiny.

After a few questions, but mostly statements, from the audience, the lecture ended.

Scholastic Search

The Scholastic All-American Search has begun, but nobody seems to know about it.

According to President Mark A. Anderson, not one single UNC student has submitted an application for the fall 1981 class.

"In fairness to each school and to its students, it is our policy to accept members from each of this country's 1,500 schools," he said. The honor society is a small, nonprofit organization comprised of undergraduate and graduate students from all fifty states and several foreign countries.

"We started out with only six members, but our 'All-American' appeal forced us into a nationwide organization," according to Anderson.

The goal of the annual Scholastic All-American Search is to admit top students from each community college, junior college, undergraduate, graduate school in the country.

The organization has no local chapters, instead seeks intellectually mature students on a national level. Students are chosen on the basis of their leadership abilities, physical vigor, and intellectual process.

Students wishing further information are asked to send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Scholastic All-American Honor Society, Post Office Box 237, Clinton, New York, 13323.

PEANUTS®

by Charles M. Schulz

Campus Calendar

Accountants Association established on UNCW campus

A student chapter of the National Association of Accountants has finally come to UNCW's School of Business. It is a new organization on campus directed toward students who are interested in careers in the field of accounting.

Student membership is available at a nominal cost for full-time students carrying not less than 12 hours per semester and who wish to take advantage of the opportunity to meet and know persons working in their chosen profession.

Student members receive all the benefits of regular membership and, upon graduation, are automatically elevated to Associate Member status with only the payment of the new dues level.

Interested students are invited to come to the next meeting on Thursday, October 15 at 3:30 p.m. in Bear Hall 112. Or contact Josh Logan (membership chairman) 791-3809, or Mary Jaye McGowan (president) 392-1335 for an application or other information.

Spring performs ballads, blues

The UNCW Program Board's Half Moon Productions launched yet another successful coffeeshow in the Goodwood Tavern, Friday night, September 25th. Under the direction of coffeeshow chairperson Kathy Mott, the UPB presented to those who attended the sounds of Sally Spring.

Ms. Spring performed several ballads of honky tonk, country blues, and a few original selections with her own unique guitar style and high-range voice.

According to Mott, approximately 65 to 70 people attended the event, and were invited to bring along their favorite beverages which ranged from the water fountain in the hall to Old No. 7.

Mott also announced the upcoming Pub debut of due Jim Ritchey and BeAJae Fleming to appear Thursday, October 8 at 8:30 p.m. in the Pub.

Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities to be awarded

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 35 Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities in a program designed to provide opportunities for continued education and experience in research to American Indians and Alaskan Natives (Eskimo or Aleut), Black Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanos, and Puerto Ricans. Fellowship recipients will be selected from among scientists, engineers, and scholars in the humanities who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education.

In this national competition

sponsored by the Ford Foundation, citizens of the United States who are members of one of the designated minority groups, who are engaged in college or university teaching, and who hold doctoral degrees may apply for a fellowship award of one year's duration.

Awards will be made in the areas of behavioral and social sciences, humanities, EMP fields (engineering sciences, mathematics, physical sciences), life sciences, and for interdisciplinary programs of study. Awards will not be made in professions such as medicine, law, or social work, or in such areas as educational administration, curriculum supervision, or personnel and guidance. Tenure of fellowship provides postdoctoral research experience at an appropriate nonprofit institution of the Fellow's choice, such as a research university, government laboratory, national laboratory, privately-sponsored nonprofit institute, or a center for advanced study.

The deadline date for the submission of applications is February 1, 1982. Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Ave., Washington, DC 20418.

THE SEAHAWK mistakenly reported last week the name of the student interested in forming a chapter of Separationists on campus. The student's correct name is Jeff Blythe.

Chess players needed

Any students desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the Library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Art Department to present shows

Over the next few months the Art Department will be presenting a number of different art shows in the lobby of Kenan Hall.

From October 1st to October 30th art work from Professor Constance Hobbs Intermediate and Advance Life drawing classes will be on view.

In November ceramics and small sculptures from the classes of Professor Stephen LeQuire will be placed on display.

Closing out the old year and bringing in the new will be paintings from the classes of Professor Ann Conner.

The new year will continue with a brand new series from Professor John Meyers Art History and Appreciation courses.

'Laubach Way to English' Workshop

The Wilmington Literacy Group will conduct a Laubach Way to English Workshop at the Wilmington Baptist Association office, 610 South College Road, Wilmington, Oct. 12-16, 6-9 pm. Volunteer tutors trained in the free 15 hour workshop will have the opportunity to tutor international students at Winter Park Baptist Church every Wednesday day morning, and/or tutor students privately at the time and place convenient to the student and teacher, including New Hanover County Schools.

The Workshop will be conducted by Mrs. Sally Lennon, certified tutor trainer of National Affiliation for Literacy Advance. For further information call Wilmington Baptist Association (799-1160).

Backpacking, canoeing trip

The United Christian Campus Ministry is sponsoring a week long backpacking and white water canoeing trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains during Fall break, October 17-23. Cost is only $150, which includes all equipment, food and experenced staff. All students need are sleeping bags, clothes, etc. A $24 deposit will be required before the trip.

For more information, contact Bob Haywood at 799-1160 or come by 610 South College Rd.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

- ACROSS
- 1 Move quickly
 - 5 Ship post
 - 9 Entertain
 - 14 Polish river
 - 15 Key meaning
 - 16 Panama port
 - 17 Farm animals
 - 19 Garment
 - 20 Game
 - 21 Bird
 - 23 Not one
 - 24 Orthodontist
 - 27 Tallow
 - 29 Doomed ones
 - 31 Of weddings
 - 35 Card
 - 37 Not fresh
 - 39 Reverse
 - 40 Golf club feature
 - 42 Electric unit
 - 44 Verily
 - 45 Rains heavily
 - 47 Make tardy
 - 49 Adherent
 - 50 Ill humor
 - 52 Invent
 - 54 At the peak
 - 56 Fertilizer
 - 59 Kind of hog
- DOWN
- 2 Take —
 - 3 Unforgiving
 - 4 City of Italia
 - 5 Bridle part
 - 6 Wedding words
 - 7 Georgia —
 - 8 Seizes
 - 9 Feign
 - 10 Crete peak
 - 11 Elbow bone
 - 12 Evening: Fr.
 - 13 Info. tome
 - 18 Limit
 - 22 Small lump
 - 25 Slave

See ANSWERS p. 12

Sigmer Alpha Beta members

Sigma Alpha Beta would like to welcome all the new members to the fraternity. We look forward to your support.

Tammy Bowden
Pat Brison
David Butler
Julie Dameron
Victor Glenn
Diane Griffin
Kathy Hamilton
Brenda Henderson
Sharon Henderson
Timothy Johnson

Gayle Johnson
William Johnson
Luanne Jones
Frank Keenan
Sarah Lambert
Josh Logan
Mary McGowan
Jay Maready
Sam Marshburn
Robert Rawls
Christine Saronas
Sherry Seabury
Ray Taylor
Diane Warner
Doris Wilson

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Roses Stores
Mr. Jim Anderson
Fri., Oct. 9
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business, Any

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earl Fidalgo
Tues., Oct. 13
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineering, Trainees, Computer Programmers
Majors: Bus. Admin., Comp Sci., Math, Physics

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Oct. 15
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admin., Acct. Engineering Operations

S. Preston Douglas & Associates, CPAs
Mr. Carl Wilkins
Wed., Oct. 14
Pos: Staff Accountant
Major: Accounting

US Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.,
Dec. 1, 2, & 3

Professional & Administrative Career Examination (PACE)
Registration Dates: September 9 through October 13, 1981.

Answers to Crossword

Puzzle

DART	BITT	AMUSE
ODER	IDEA	COLON
LIVESTOCK	FUNIC
EVENT	HEN	MARY
DENTIST	SUET
GONERS	BRIDAL
ACE	TRITE	ADORE
LOFT	FARAD	AMEN
POURS	LAVEN	ISTY
SPLEEN	DESIGN
ATOP	MIRAGE
WART	TAW	RATED
AGAIN	PEACEPIPE
ARISE	ARNO	EVEN
CADET	LEAP	SEES

Party, from p. 1.

"I see a lot of people I've never seen before." (David Stauffenburg)

"I guess they're playing a lot of every kind of music to suit everyone," said Jan Loy. "but most everyone here likes rock and roll."

"Velvet", in its third year together, plays throughout North and South Carolina, however, its audiences are usually middle-aged.

"We have to play a variety of music because we usually don't play to college crowds," said guitarist Horace Pearsall, a '79 graduate from UNCW, whose mother is an English teacher here. "I wish we knew more rock and roll for gigs like this, but we don't get to play it enough, and it's hard with only one guitar to do a lot of rock and roll."

Director of resident life Bob Taylor was in charge of the entire outing.

"The band gave us a good deal, and we only had to pay for half of the beer," he said. "The money came from programming that dorm students paid."

"All of it was coordinated by RA's and the directors of buildings. The whole resident life staff needs a pat on the back."

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

GRAPE and HOPS SHOP

Special on Kegs
Deli Items Now Available

Keg Prices and Case Lot Special's

What's big and new and well-stocked with all your favorite party beverages, mixes and fancy foods? It's Grape and Hops Shop.

Wrightsville Avenue.

OPENS MONDAY

THE BEER BOX

Come See Us Monday
and

Check Our Prices

10:00 am to Midnight
Monday - Thursday

Friday & Saturday
10:00 - 2:00

$1.60 six pack
5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds
A One Stop Beverage Shop

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 6

October 15, 1981

Twelve pages

Truckloads of waste dumped on campus

by Frances Besselle and Marty Cathell

Have UNCW Seahawks been fouling their own nest?

Yes.

At least five truckloads of waste have been illegally dumped along UNCW's nature and jogging trails by employees of the Grounds Division of the Physical Plant. The dump sites are located in the woods between the Marine Science Building and the Athletic Field House. Transporting vehicles obtained access to the spots by way of fire lanes in the woods.

Remains of Hardee's wrappers, pizza boxes, beer bottles, school newspapers, schedule cards and student mail were found in heaps along the trails by members of the cross country team in late September of at least 250 volumes of outdated lawbooks, journals and reference cards stamped "Wilmington College Library" were identified by librarians. According to library sources the lawbooks were part of outdated material that was discarded this semester. Ron Johnson, Acquisitions Librarian, said materials are removed from circulation and disposed of because they are outdated obsolete, or badly worn.

Roger Fry, director of Physical plant, initially denied his staff had anything to do with the dumping.

"It is the policy of the University and in particular the Physical Plant that when we're involved in the disposal of trash that it is not our policy to dispose of it in that manner."

After viewing the dump sites, Fry said he would instruct Bob Katalinic, Director of the Grounds Division, to interview his people to see if they can tell us anything.

Where the responsibility lies exactly was somewhat unclear due to the confusing nature of the duties outlined by various department heads. The responsibility of UNCW waste disposal is shared between the City of Wilmington and the campus Physical Plant.

The city picks up trash at the dumpsters on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. When contacted, Jerry Lewis of the Wilmington Sanitation Department, refused to discuss the city's role with the trash pick-up at UNCW. All other UNCW trash is the responsibility of the Grounds and the Housekeeping Divisions of the Physical Plant. Five Grounds Division trucks pick up loose litter at least once a day and from school receptacles at least twice a week. The receptacles are garbage containers located in and out of the buildings.

According to procedure, the grounds employees then empty these truckloads into the dumpsters.

The housekeepers in the buildings are responsible for transporting the trash from the buildings to the dumpsters.

According to library workers, David Smith and Earl Simmons loaded some donated lawbooks and other discarded materials in the nearby dumpster. These materials had been placed at the library backdoor after a clean-up at the beginning of school. Because of the volume of material the grounds staff was called.

Smith, director of the Housekeeping Division said that he "Referred the library to the Grounds Division because of the massive amounts of books and other materials to be removed."

This sign was posted within 25 yards of the trash.

When asked what happened to the books Willie Brown, acting Director of the Grounds Division said "They (Grounds staff) threw them in the woods."

Fry identified more of the trash, large empty boxes containing broken lightbulbs as being the "Same type" presently being installed at Brooks Field.

The lightbulb boxes contained bulbs a contractor has been installing above Brooks Field since Oct. 4. According to Fry, contractors are normally responsible for cleaning up their own materials. However, the contracting company supervisor said Bobby Guthrie, Assistant Baseball Coach, told the workers to leave the boxes and that he would have someone take care of them. Once again, the Grounds Division was called.

Fry said it was the responsi-

See TRASH p. 3

This is one of the several piles of trash.

New SGA President takes office

by Rob Eubanks
News Editor

With last week's surprise resignation of SGA President Charles Parsons, Vice President Steve Schmidt has taken over as top executive officer of the Student Government Association. In accordance with SGA constitutional guidelines, Schmidt has the option of finishing the president's term of office, which he has indicated he will do, thus necessitating elections for a new president. Polls were opened Wed., Oct. 14 for the election. At press time three candidates had filed for the office: Mike Stroud, Buddy Newton, and left Newton. There was also a fourth candidate, Parsons.

would resign, thus making for a confusing first few days in office as the SGA, completely dominated by Parsons, struggled to orient itself. Schmidt says he has been assured the support of the Student Senate and the Student Attorney General. When confronted with rumors that several other resignations had been tendered, Schmidt dismissed them as false.

While Parsons was in office he was elected treasurer of the UNC-Association of Student Government; Schmidt says he was given the opportunity to fill the post after Parsons' resignation but turned it down, claiming insufficient knowledge of the financial workings of the UNCASG. He will attend this month's meeting in Chapel Hill, where he will meet with UNC General Administration President William Fryday.

When asked about possible policy changes Schmidt said "Charles was well-respected for his policies; I will follow in his footsteps." Schmidt has set several primary goals for his term of office. First, he intends to complete a procedures manual for the SGA, which will provide written rules and regulations for the operation of the SGA and its affiliates. Second, Schmidt plans to finish compiling a set of by-laws for the SGA. He is setting up an Advisory Cabinet to use as a liaison between the

See SCHMIDT p. 12

SGA President Steve Schmidt wants to continue former president's policies.

Editorial

THE SEAHAWK seeks recognition as media

It's that time of year once again. The Senate has sent out memo's requesting all clubs/organizations to renew their charter forms. If these forms are not filled out and returned, the Senate says they'll freeze your buns - oh, pardon me, freeze your FUNDS.

The Seahawk received a club organization form to fill out. Surely somebody has made a mistake.

A club is an organization that meets regularly for a mutual advantage: to accomplish a purpose or have fun. A media is a means of communication that reaches the public and carries advertising.

The Seahawk reaches the student, faculty and staff population of UNCW and even reaches various groups in the Wilmington community. The Seahawk pays for its printing every week with its ad revenue. Because you are reading this now is proof of The Seahawk's communicative powers.

The Seahawk is a newspaper a business run by students. Yet the student government maintains that The Seahawk is a club organization. The Biology Club, the Sailing Club, etc. these are clubs. They do not publish, they do not generate ad revenue. The primary purpose of their meeting is to fellowship with people who have like interests and to have fun. The Seahawk's primary purpose is to operate and publish a newspaper each week. Most people reading this right now have no idea what running a newspaper involves. Copy has to be written, edited, typeset, cropped, waxed, and laid out. Ads have to be sold, typeset, laid-out. (All of this is over-simplified.) Advertisers have to be contracted and billed. Photographs have to be taken, developed, printed, and cropped to fit the page. With the number of current Seahawk staff members, this takes a minimum of one week. Oh, about the fun part. Sometimes a little fun does happen to creep in. But it's at least 10 on our list of priorities.

"Organization" is a pointless generality. Everything has some type of organization (even if its only molecular structure), so technically, you could classify anything as an organization.

The Seahawk is obviously an organization. So is the government. So is a game of backgammon.

I've heard from rumors that the Atlantis and The Fledgling also received club organization forms. They are publications, not clubs. WLOZ probably would have been sent a form, too, if they were in operation. A radio station is definitely a media.

The Seahawk is not a club or organization. It is a campus media and demands to be recognized as such.

Tricia Wallace
Editor

Fate of 'second' paper rests with senate

CH. Two years ago, the U. of Maine-Orono student government gave birth to a new campus newspaper. This week, that same government may decide to kill it.

The staff of the New Edition, a bi-weekly, feature-oriented newspaper, is awaiting a decision on its request for additional funding. The paper needs $539 a month to continue its lease of electronic typesetting equipment, says General Manager Crilly Ritz. It can generate enough ad revenue to cover other production costs.

The New Edition received $3,000 for this school year in student senate budgeting last spring. "We asked for $13,000," says Ritz. "But they were slashing everything last spring. It's a very fiscally conservative group. We took the $3,000 because it was all we could get, but we knew then we'd have to come back this year and ask for more."

The paper has done that, but isn't finding the student senate very receptive, says Managing Editor Lynn Madden. One big problem, she says, is that earlier this year the senate had to agree to pay the university $13,000 over the next three years to retire a debt incurred in the New Edition's first year. "That debt was not the New Edition's debt," insists Madden. "The student government was in charge of the spending at the time and they gave the newspaper an open ticket to funding. There was no fiscal responsibility on their part at all."

"But many student senators aren't aware that the past debt doesn't have anything to do with us now," says Madden. Without enough money from student government to at least cover typesetting equipment rental, she adds, "there's just no way we can continue."

The New Edition was created by the student government to give its activities, and those of its affiliated organizations, more coverage, says Madden.

See PAPER p. 12

Fresh, clean smell of new books seduces reader, begins lifelong love affair

In a February 1976, "Writer's Digest" interview Ray Bradbury said there hadn't been a day since he was ten he hadn't either been in a library or bookstore. Now that's the way to live. Have you ever walked into Randall Library and taken a good, hearty sniff of all those books packed together, their little book hands emitting an intimate book odor. (No, not that it's a scent they send out, but an essence of words, a perfume of language.) I think it was the way books smelled that first seduced me to do it. There was something about the way the books smelled that first day of school-fresh, clean, dry, somehow like a forest. Sniffing a new book for me was like sniffing wine is to a gourmet. By inhaling the bouquet, the traces and suggestions of the forest from which the pages, the cover, the binding were made was a prelude to the sipping of the words, the lingering over the images, the savoring of the whole.

Inevitably as I sniffed and sniffed over my "Dick and Jane" and "Plays" my nose, a tall, thin mustache, the Miss Demeanor would

Prime Time

by Judy Stallsmith

inquire, "Judith, you do have a handkerchief, don't you?"

Of course I didn't. Whereupon she would take me into the cloakroom, wipe my nose (briskly, but completely) with a white Scottie tissue (one did not use colored tissues unless one were making tissue flowers), and administer a short dissertation on cleanliness and deportment.

Undaunted, I would return to Dick, Jane, Sally, Sport, and Puff, surreptitiously, but comprehendingly, perusing their adventures and misadventures. Rap! Miss Braden's ruler would reprimand my hands for turning the pages, her voice would rise disdainingly and I would be informed that, "We do not read ahead in our readers."

We also did not take our readers home. Dick, Jane, et al. were holy, one did not go too far, too fast into the inner sanctum of their story.

Therefore, this one traveled into the territory of her brother's third grade reader, Adventures in Reading. Ah yes, how exciting indeed was that forbidden journey. From my little beddie-by in Ohio (where one was supposed to be asleep), I traveled with the Johnson family to New York (where people rode trains underground), to North Carolina (where porches were called verandas), to Texas, (where Tom and Ellen rode horses), to California (where the ocean was beside the mountains). And Miss Braden never knew.

So maybe my love affair with books did begin illegitimately, maybe it was purely a sensual experience; it has, nonetheless, been for 28 years a meaningful relationship. And if you see me someday in Randall Library, sniffing and drooling, don't offer me a tissue. I'm merely taking time to smell the roses.

Addendum: To the anonymous bathroom writer who has been defacing the "illegitimate child" graffiti: Write on!

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy Stallsmith
Typesetter: Cheryl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwell
Shipping and Handling: Pete Norvel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are not necessarily those of the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorial Board members do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Bicycle regulations

Starting this week, regulations concerning bicycles will be strictly enforced. The crack-down on bicycles comes after a handicapped person was unable to enter a building because of bicycles chained to the hand railing.

If a bicycle is found in violation of any regulation, it is subject to impoundment. If ownership cannot be proven by the owner, it will not be returned. The bikes not identified will be turned over to the Wilmington Police Department and sold at auction.

It is mandatory that bicycles be registered with Campus

Security. The registration is free and helps in identification if the bicycle is stolen or impounded.

Police Chief Winston Norman suggests that students become aware of the regulations concerning bicycles in the traffic regulations booklet.

Bicycles found in violation are subject to a $2 fine as well under Article IX Section 4.

During a 7-day period from Sept. 24 to Oct. 2, 54 bicycles were found in violation and issued warning tickets. The bicycles were chained to handicap railings.

Bicycles chained to hand railings are subject to impoundment.

TRASH from p. 1

bility of the Physical Plant to take care of the refuse and he would try to have it cleaned up by the beginning of the week of Oct. 11-16. As of Monday Oct. 12, the Lawbooks that were previously in the woods, are now in the dumpster behind the Physical Plant.

Fry said "In the future we will be more aware of the situation and will not allow this to happen again."

The same type of sign found on a small receptacle at the apartments...

... Was later found in one of the piles of trash.

Found discarded among the trash.

SAE holds installation banquet Sept. 26

On Saturday September 26, at the Cape Fear Men's Club in Wilmington, 26 UNCW men were installed as the North Carolina Delta Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity; this established them as the 181st chapter in the nation's largest social fraternity (figures based on a California survey firm). An installation banquet was held Saturday night at the Wrightsville Beach Holiday Inn, with the Honorable J.A. "Chip" Wright, NC State Senator and SAE alumnus speaking as special guest. Welcoming the chapter to UNCW was Dr. William Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs. At the banquet, the National President of SAE James Peterson, presented the National Charter to Jeff French, President of the new Delta Chapter. The event marked the culmination of four years of work, taking the men from the local fraternnity of De Kappa Tate who began the move to national status, through the colony stage, to full chapter recognition.

The 26 men installed were Jimmy Brown, George Brunetti, Jeff Bumgarner, Frank Colvin, Rob Eubanks, Jeff French, Parks Griffin, Steve Griffin, Jeff Harvey, Randy Hoyle, John Lackey, Bruce Leybourne, Boyce Mann, Craven Mitchell, Mark Morgan, Jeff Nelligan, Charles Parsons, Ernie Pecora, Mark Powell, Mark Rash, Stan Sherman, Anthony Stephenson, Eric Van Vleet, Randy Walser, Ken Watson, and John Wright. Initiated posthumously was Ricky Knight ~~given~~ a brother who was slain at a fraternity party Nov. 2, 1979, the night before De Kappa Tate gained SAE Colony status.

Established in 1856 at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, the ranks of Sigma Alpha Epsilon have (as of this installation) grown to just over 182,700 with chapters in 45 states. SAE was the first national fraternity to set up a Leadership School, which was begun in 1935 to foster and encourage fraternal strength and leadership qualities.

The new SAE chapter began at UNCW as a local fraternity in September of 1977. Four years ago six young men sat around a dimly lit room in Galloway dorm. They were good friends but they felt that their friendship should be bonded together by more than just mere words. They knew of fraternities but were unimpressed with what they say locally. "Why not start our own fraternity?" came a suggestion. Laughter followed from the other five, but it quickly lapsed into a thought-

See SAE p. 12

American Collegiate Poets Anthology

International Publications

is sponsoring a

National College Poetry Contest

— Fall Concours 1981 —

open to all college and university students desiring to have their poetry anthologized. CASH PRIZES will go to the top five poems:

$100	$50	$25	$15 Fourth
First Place	Second Place	Third Place	$10 Fifth

AWARDS of free printing for ALL accepted manuscripts in our popular, handsomely bound and copyrighted anthology, AMERICAN COLLEGIATE POETS.

Deadline: October 31

CONTEST RULES AND RESTRICTIONS:

- Any student is eligible to submit his or her verse.
- All entries must be original and unpublished.
- All entries must be typed, double-spaced, on one side of the page only. Each poem must be on a separate sheet and must bear, in the upper left-hand corner, the NAME and ADDRESS of the student as well as the COLLEGE attended. Put name and address on envelope also!
- There are no restrictions on form or theme. Length of poems up to fourteen lines. Each poem must have a separate title. (Avoid "Untitled"! Small black and white illustrations welcome.)
- The judges' decision will be final. No info by phone!
- Entrants should keep a copy of all entries as they cannot be returned. Prize winners and all authors awarded free publication will be notified immediately after deadline. I.P. will retain first publication rights for accepted poems. Foreign language poems welcome.
- There is an initial one dollar registration fee for the first entry and a fee of fifty cents for each additional poem. It is requested to submit no more than ten poems per entrant.
- All entries must be postmarked not later than the above deadline and fees be paid, cash, check or money order, to:

INTERNATIONAL PUBLICATIONS

P. O. Box 44927

Los Angeles, CA 90044

Firemen answer student questions about fire equipment.

Residence Life participates in Fire Prevention

The Residence Life Association sponsored several events in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, which was October 5-9.

On Sunday through Wednesday of last week, on-campus residents were given the opportunity to view a slide show entitled "Flare Up." Director of Residence Life Robert Taylor said there was a "mixed response" to the show.

"Our feelings are that if three people see the slide show, those three people are going to know what's happening if a fire does occur. They'll spread the word," Taylor explained.

There were also some announced fire drills. Taylor said, to educate residents on procedures of evacuating the buildings.

Throughout the week, Residence Life staff members conducted a poster campaign concerning fire safety tips. The posters were displayed in the residence halls.

On Wednesday, October 7, from 2-4 p.m., the Wilmington Fire Department put on a demonstration with fire trucks in front of Galloway Hall. Blood pressure checks were made by the Wilmington Rescue Unit during this time.

Fires have occurred in UNCW dorms, according to Taylor. In 1973, a fire did extensive damage to a room in Galloway Hall. The fire was limited to the room, but it had to be completely remodelled. The cause was determined to be a burning candle that was left unattended.

"Some students always think that it's not going to happen to them, that concrete won't burn," Taylor stated. "The fire in Galloway Hall indicates very clearly the rooms will burn."

Taylor recommended a "common sense approach" in avoiding fires. The three main precautions he said students should observe are: picking up trash in their rooms, not using extension after extension on one plug, and not leaving any open flames (such as a burning candle) in the rooms.

Firemen put on demonstration for students in front of Galloway Hall.

Campus Security, volunteers implement Operation Identification

This month Campus Security and volunteers from CHI Phi, INK fraternities and the Criminal Justice Department have been going door to door in the dorms to persuade students to have their belongings marked for identification.

Operation Identification was started several years ago by the Governor's Crime Commission and is being implemented by Campus Security.

An engraver is used to mark items such as televisions, stereos and even credit cards. The owner's driver license number is placed in an unobstructive place and the make, model and serial number of the object is recorded on a permanent document kept at the Campus Security office.

If a stolen item is recovered, police will be able to return it to the owner. When the item is engraved, a sticker with Operation I.D. is given out so that it may be placed in a visible location. This may not be an assurance against theft but it may make a thief think twice about taking a marked item.

"Most cases of reported theft at UNCW are petty larceny," said Officer B.W. Dawson, who was supervising volunteers at Hewlett Dorm Tuesday night, Sept. 22. But last year over $1800 worth of stereo equipment was stolen. The main cause of robbery and thefts is carelessness, and most of the items stolen last year were out of rooms that were unlocked."

Operation identification has been on the campus several years, but it wasn't until after

Chief Norman arrived that a concentrated effort was begun.

September 8th and 9th, Galloway Dorm was invaded by these armed volunteers who marked 312 items in two nights. On September 29 and 30 from 7-9 p.m., Operation Identification will be in Belk Dorm and on the 6th and 7th of October it will be in the New Dorn Apartments. After fall break another I.D. session will be in Galloway Dorm.

This service is not limited to dorm students. Any interested students may go by the Campus Security Office anytime to obtain an engraver to mark their belongings. Plans are being made to offer Operation Identification to students living in College Manor Apts.

Research Council announces awards

The National Research Council announces its 1982 Research Associateship Awards Program for research in the sciences and engineering to be conducted in 18 federal research institutions, whose laboratories are located throughout the United States. The programs provide Ph.D. scientists and engineers of unusual promise and ability with opportunities for research in problems largely of their own choosing yet compatible with the research interests of the sponsoring laboratory. Initiated in 1964, the Associateship Programs have contributed to the career development of over 3,500 scientists ranging from recent Ph.D. graduates to distinguished senior scientists.

Approximately 250 new full Associateships will be available for competitive selection for research in the sciences and engineering and in the social and behavioral sciences.

nationals, and to both recent Ph.D. holders and senior investigators.

Awards are made for a year with possible extensions through a second year; senior applicants may request shorter tenures. Stipends range from $22,400 a year for recent Ph.D.'s to approximately $50,000 a year for Senior Associates. Allowances are made for relocation and for limited professional travel during tenure. The host federal laboratory provides the Associate programmatic support including facilities, support services, and necessary equipment.

Applications to the Research Council must be postmarked no later than January 15, 1982. Awards will be announced in April.

Information on specific research opportunities and federal laboratories, as well as application materials, may be obtained from the Associateship Office, JH 610.D1, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20418.

See the mountain colors, push your limits, enjoy the wonders of nature, and other people!

"What is this adventure?" You ask?

A Week long backpacking and white water canoeing trip to the Blue Ridge Mountain (Ooh-Ahh, Ooh-Ahh!!!!)

"When is it?" (I know you are ready to go now!)

I know you are ready to go now but you have to wait until Fall break October 1-7. (Notice: You come back Friday, October 23rd in the afternoon so you have a whole weekend to recuperate and celebrate!)

"O.K., O.K. It all sounds terrific, but how much does it cost?"

The cost is only $150.00. Not bad for all you get. Included is: all your meals, food (I see those mouths watering already) and experienced staff. All you have to bring is yourself, your saddle, your enthusiasm, personal sleeping bag, clothes and shoes.

How do I get more information and reserve my place in the fun?

It's easy! Just call Bob Haywood 799-1160* 410* until October 1st (from track) Bring a $25.00 deposit and you are ready to go!

no the way, this is for novices and beginners, I don't want any wet up! This trip is for those wanting a new experience.

So.... Be Brave.... adventuresome and hold on!

get ready for a good time

Vehicle Immobilizer used as deterrent to parking violations

Parking violators—beware! UNCW now has a device that will stop parking violators dead in their tracks—literally. The Vehicle Immobilizer, often referred to as a "boot", is a device used to immobilize vehicles parked in illegal zones, until they can be towed away, at the owner's expense. The "boot" clamps onto the rim of a car, and is tightened and locked, which prevents the wheels from turning.

Winston C. Norman, Director of Campus Security, said that the boot "just immobilizes the vehicle, it doesn't puncture the tire. The only time we'll use it is if a vehicle is parked in a handicapped zone, a fire lane or if it is a vehicle that needs to be towed." Other uses will include "any vehicle that we would have to immobilize, such as a stolen car—also any vehicle that has been involved in a crime."

Two of the boots were ordered before Chief Norman arrived at UNCW, one year ago in September, "but we haven't used them, to my knowledge, since I've been here. If we have to, we will use them."

Each time that the boot is used, a sign will be attached to the car, informing the driver not to attempt to move his car. If this warning is disregarded, not only will the driver damage the body of his car, but he will also be charged for destroying state property if the boot is damaged. Violators will be charged a $15 fee for towing, which is $10 below the normal price. "We don't use it (the boot) as a means of collecting money, because we don't get the money," Chief Norman said.

In Washington, D.C., where Chief Norman was formerly employed, there are teams whose specific purpose is to place the boots on violating vehicles. They have proved to be very effective in deterring parking violators.

Chief Norman said that the boots will not be used to force students to settle unpaid tickets. "It is an effective means of collecting fines, but we don't use it for that here. I don't think we should use it against the students." Instead, other tactics are used.

Unless all fines are paid, including parking tickets, library fines, etc., students will not be allowed to preregister for the following semester. After graduation, anyone requesting a student's transcript, including prospective employers, will be denied a copy until all fines are paid.

Concerning the parking situation on campus, Chief Norman said, "I have noticed an increase in traffic this year, but we don't really have a problem. I've been to other universities, and they've got a problem." Other universities have adopted a policy that restricts freshmen or dormitory students from driving to class from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Although UNCW has not present plans to adopt such a policy, Chief Norman said, "I think that eventually it will come to that here."

Humanism lecture presented by Dr. W. Thomas Schmid

Again Thursday night the Library Auditorium was overflowing with humanists, Christians, educators, and "just plain people" for a lecture and dialogue on Humanism. The lecture was presented by Dr. W. Thomas Schmid of the Philosophy and Religion Department.

Schmid began the lecture, "The Roots of Humanism in Ancient Greece", by referring to two different views of senses of Humanism—the broad sense and the narrow sense.

The broad view, Western Humanism, Schmid said, had three general features. It involved respect for the individual and the equality of man, the devotion to liberal education and the free advancement of knowledge, and the idea of self-reliance or that man could shape his own world. Schmid stated that Greek philosophers such as Socrates and Plato could be considered humanists in this sense.

The narrow view of Humanism, according to Schmid, could be called either Secular Humanism or Protagorean Humanism.

Protagoras was a Greek philosopher and humanist who believed that man could know nothing sure about the Divine, that man was the measure of all values in the world, and that morality arose out of the need for order and from thought.

Schmid stated that Protagoras also felt that fact was objective and, therefore, relative to all things, and that values and morals were subjective, and therefore, could be different from man to man or society to society. Schmid said that this is the area where humanist and Christians usually disagree because of the idea that there are no absolutes.

Schmid closed the lecture by referring back to the views of Socrates and Plato. They differed from Protagoras in that they felt there were absolute standards and values.

Those standards and values came from the "spark within man that was Divine," and they could be used not only with different men, but also different societies.

Schmid stated that near the end of Plato's life, he did turn from these views and lean toward an authoritarian view. Plato began to feel that man needed laws to live by and he wanted to impose the truth, as he saw it, by using physical force by the state.

Following the lecture, questions and remarks from the audience were heard.

University Program Board attends convention in Georgia

Our own University Program Board attended a convention last weekend, October 10-13 in Savannah, Georgia at the Civic Center. It was set up by the National Entertainment and Campus Activities Association in order to provide educational sessions concerning activities contracts, self-management, individualization and overall campus life. It also provided an opportunity for the Program Board to view and discuss various artists, bands, clubs, and the various activities which artists would be the most appropriate for assorted school activities.

Program Board advisor, Steve Gnadt, explained that schools from all over the eastern United States attended the event and were able to set up agreements with the different agents representing the showcases displayed to them. This provides the committee with the opportunity to arrange for block booking within the area at a somewhat lower price, thus saving campus activities a substantial amount of money.

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.
$2.99

FREE DELIVERY

Within Certain Limits

Four Winds Nightclub

Located 5430 Market Street
October

16 Fri. Coyote Band

19 Mon. Monday Night Football

20 Tues. UNCW Night

21 Wed. Fabulous Knobs

22 Thurs. Ladies Night

23 Fri. Nantucket - $5.00 advance admission

24 Sat. 50 cent admission until 10:00

25 Sun. Pegasus Plus

26 Mon. Monday Night Football

27 Tues. UNCW Night

28 Wed. 99 cent night Subway

29 Thurs. Ladies Night

30 Fri. Sidewinder

31 Sat. Halloween Night

$500.00 in prizes

Sports

Staff photo/Jamie Moncriel

Elon and UNCW volleyball teams will play through November.

3 intramural sports begin after fall break

With flag-football underway, and three other sports - volleyball, corksball and soccer - to start after fall break, the intramural office is providing students with a variety of competitive, but friendly activities.

Flag-football is just one of the sports Lea Larson's office offers. Two leagues; with a total of 15 teams, play almost daily on Brooks Field.

As a part of intramural class assignments, each sport has a chairman. Billy Parker and Gary Chadwick are in charge of flag-football.

"We had a lot of forfeits so far," said Chadwick. "But everybody's got their schedules down now, and things should smooth out."

Everybody has a good time, Chadwick said. "There are no tempers, and no problems. I've seen guys get beat by five touchdowns, and have a good time right to the last."

There will be some competitive games, but there will also be some romps.

Chadwick's team, the Kegmen, boasts the biggest victory so far - a 51-0 romp of the 69ers.

Results from the Fishing Derby held Oct. 7 at Center Pier in Carolina Beach were unusual because of such a poor fishing day, according to director Richard Fox. Jesse Hayes' 2 1/2 lb. puppy drum was the largest fish caught. Ronnie Stauffer caught the most fish - 13. Len McBride caught the smallest, microscopic spot which wasn't as big as the hook.

According to Fox, Finally, Becky Chilcore's eel won the biggest fish award.

STANDINGS (through 10-9)

League A	League B	IFC League
Kegman 2-0	No Fat Chicks 2-0	Pi Kap 1-0
CC Rednecks 2-0	Pi Kap 1-0	JNK 1-0
69ers 1-1	INK 1-0	Chi Phi 1-0
Low Life 0-1	Chi Phi 1-0	SAE 0-1
Locals 0-0	SAE 0-1	IKF 0-1
Skeets on Cleats 0-0	IKF 0-1	IKF 0-1
Chiefs 0-0	3 Hewlett 0-1
	LT's 0-2

Racquetball tourney successful; another planned

As expected, senior Mitch Covington took first place in the Racquetball Club's campus-wide tournament last weekend. However, Gary Juhn, dean of Students and Covington's doubles partner, took Covington to a tie-breaker before losing, 15-2.

"The tourney went very well," said club president

Andy Bowles. "I thought Mitch and I worked very well, and I was glad we had such a large turnout (of 30 people)."

Lynne Crater was the women's champion, defeating Darcy Lee in Sunday's finals held at the YMCA. 21-10, 9-21, and 15-11 in a tie-breaker.

Other winners were Tom

'Hawks split pair; record drops to 6-6

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

After a strong performance against Campbell, the men's soccer team lost a disappointing 1-0 contest Sunday to Wake Forest, dropping the Seahawks record to 6-6 - the most setbacks suffered by UNCW since 1976.

The 'Hawks will have a nine-day layoff before it faces East Carolina Wednesday during fall break.

Campbell came to Brooks field last Thursday with an impressive 7-1-3 record and No. 9 ranking in the South, but the Seahawks controlled the Camels, and took a 2-0 half-time lead on goals by Ed Donahue and Dennis Davis. Davis' goal came with only eight seconds to play.

Campbell pulled to within 2-1 midway through the second half, but Alberto Rodriguez, a freshman from Silver Spring, Md., added another goal for the Seahawks with only 14 seconds remaining for a 3-1 final score.

In Winston-Salem, Wake Forest jumped to a 1-0 lead, and held it to hand UNCW its third shutout loss of the season, the most ever by a Seahawk team in Division I play.

"We had come off two good games (a 5-3 loss to 20th ranked William & Mary, and the Campbell victory), and I thought we had turned the corner on the season, but we weren't into the game the first half," said coach Calvin Lane.

"In the second half we didn't attack their goal hard enough, and it costs us. I'm disappointed because we were capable of winning, and the loss made it harder to have a really good season."

At this time last year, UNCW was 10-2, in the midst of a nine-game winning streak, and on its way to the 20th spot in the national poll.

Besides, East Carolina and Methodist, UNCW has highly regarded Duke, Appalachian State and South Carolina remaining on its schedule.

Lady Spikers 8-12

by Vickie Maynor
Sports Writer

The women's volleyball team is keeping extremely busy these days with the East Carolina Invitational last weekend, the Coastal Carolina tournament Oct. 24, and two tri-matches in between.

The Lady 'Hawks' record fell to 8-12 after a disappointing performance in the ECT tournament in Greenville. UNCW lost all four of its matches there.

"We were expecting to lose out in the tournament," coach Jackie Bartlett said. "The girls had just come off of a really hard week of playing every night except one. I feel like they played well though, and they never gave up."

UNCW played Western Carolina and Gardner-Webb Wednesday night, and play again today at Elon, with Fayetteville State.

Twelve teams will participate in the Coastal Carolina tournament, and Bartlett hopes for a little better success.

"We finished third in the tournament last year and we hope to do just as well this year," said Bartlett. "The remainder of our season will be pretty rough because we've got a lot of road games coming up. There's going to be some weaker teams that we'll be competing against, but then again there's some stronger ones also."

Sarah Womble (24) deflects shot against Wesleyan.

Staff photo/Jamie Moncriel

Sports Calendar

Monday
Volleyball tourney, with Fayetteville State.

Seahawk Fall Invitational women's golf tournament at Echo Farms begins.

Friday
Intramural soccer sign-up concludes.

Seahawk Fall Invitational women's golf tournament.

DURING FALL BREAK Saturday

Cross country in Durham: men in the state championship meet; women in the N.C. AIAW championship meet.

Football club at Duke.
Seahawk Fall Invitational women's golf tournament concludes.

Wednesday
Men's soccer vs. East Carolina, 4 p.m.

Friday (10-23)
Volleyball tournament at Coastal Carolina begins.

Saturday (10-24)
Men's soccer vs. Appalachian State, 4 p.m.

Volleyball tournament at Coastal Carolina concludes.

Cross country in Durham: men in the state championship meet; women in the N.C. AIAW championship meet.

Football club at Duke.

Already on eastern rugby team, Dufresne shoots for national

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

Being an all-star rugby player is quite an honor in itself. Add a double-major, a position on the Atlantis staff, and a bartending job at Four Winds, and you have described junior Mike Dufresne.

Mike is a member of the Eastern Rugby Union, one of four regional teams in the U.S.

He is also a member of the southern sectional team, the North Carolina state team, and is currently in his third year on the Cape Fear Rugby Club. It's all a ladder to the national team, which Mike is trying to make.

"In the winter of '83 the national team is going to Australia," Mike says. "It is a very big aspiration of mine to go."

A native of Montreal, Canada, Mike has played rugby since he was nine-years-old in Sydney, Australia and Toronto. Between all of his work and travel, Mike found time to organize and coach a women's team at UNCW last year with a friend, Mike Goins.

"We travel all over the state, playing in all the major cities," Mike says, "and every winter the south team goes to

New Orleans and Orlando."

Mike has also traveled to New York and Atlanta with the eastern team, which played the recent controversial game with South Africa.

You probably expect Mike to fit the typical macho image because rugby is such an aggressive sport, but he does not. In his spare time he writes poetry. He is as sensitive as any rugby player you will ever meet.

Lady 'Hawks' lone bright spot sets marks

Darci Wilson, a junior from Clarksville, Tenn., set two school records as the women's golf team participated in the Duke Fall Invitational last weekend in Durham.

Miss Wilson, who also plays basketball for the Lady Seahawks, had a 54-hole total of 734, including a second-round score of 75 - both school records. She also tied the school record for 18-holes with a 154 total after the opening two rounds.

"She's always been capable," said coach Lea Larson.

"She's an intense competitor, and she knew she wouldn't have to go through qualifying (for Thursday's Seahawk Fall Invitational at Echo Farms) if she shot 80 or below."

"She's running a pretty tight schedule with golf and basketball," Larson said, "and I'm sure she knew if she was going to manage her best, she would have to put good numbers on the board."

The team did not fair so well, however, finishing 13th of 16 teams with a 1,009 total.

Although the score was the Lady 'Hawks' worst of the season, it was 64 strokes better than UNCW's last performance at Duke. Larson noted that 1,009 would have put UNCW sixth last year.

"You can attribute the poor showing to playing with three freshmen," Larson said.

"They really haven't adapted to the system yet."

The Seahawk Fall Invitational, which will run through Saturday, will include Wake Forest, NC State and Meredith College.

The men's team concluded its fall schedule this week in the Tampa (Fla.) Hall of Fame Invitational.

Michael Borden (34) carries for Seahawks in earlier game.

Lady Seahawks top Fayetteville in soccer

by Vickie Maynor
Sports Writer

The women's soccer team gained its first win of the season last Sunday, 3-0 over Fayetteville city team in Fayetteville.

A match was scheduled with a Greensboro club for last Saturday, but a schedule conflict postponed the contest to some future date.

The win evened the Lady Seahawks' record to 1-1 after a season-opening loss to UNC-Chapel Hill, the nation's second-ranked varsity team.

Betty Jenkins, one of UNCW's most experienced players, put the Lady 'Hawks' on the board with an early goal. UNCW's first of the season.

Jennifer Wilson scored next on an assist from Beje Barrett.

Correction

In last week's issue of The Seahawk, Becky Simmons was mistakenly identified as Jill Amos in a picture of the volleyball team. Miss Simmons, a junior from Raleigh is one of the team co-captains. Miss Amos does not play on the volleyball team. The Seahawk regrets, and apologizes for the error.

Seahawks lose, 41-0

by Ken Thomas
Journalism Contributor

For the second straight weekend, the Football Club was shut out by a more formidable opponent. Last Saturday night in Charleston, SC, the Charleston Hawks, a semi-pro football team, defeated the Seahawks, 41-0.

The loss brought the Seahawks' losing streak to four games this season.

"We still have a chance for a winning season," said coach Capt. Macrae. "Although we lost, we played together as a team. The sportsmanship and team spirit were outstanding. I felt proud to be associated with this group that was outnumbered and outweighed. They were fearless defenders, despite losing."

The Seahawks play again Friday at Duke, then travel to Washington, DC, Oct. 24, where they will play Gallaudet School for the Deaf.

Staff photo/Jamie Moncrief

Frisbee Club 3rd in Raleigh; seeks interest

The Cape Fear Gale Force Ultimate frisbee team took third place in the state tournament last weekend in Raleigh.

Cape Fear lost to N.C. State in overtime, and to Duke, but defeated East Carolina, UNC-Greensboro, and UNC-Chapel Hill to qualify for the interstate sectional tournament, Oct. 24-25.

Many UNCW students are members of the Gale Force team, and are trying to form a frisbee club on campus. Practices are every Wednesday and Sunday on Brooks Field.

Notes...

Former UNCW basketball player Danny Davis suffered a slight hamstring pull during his tryout with the Dallas Mavericks of the NBA, but he is still on the 16-man roster, and is expected to play in an exhibition game tonight with the Philadelphia 76ers. In his only previous outing, Davis scored four points and had three rebounds in 15 minutes of an exhibition game against Utah.

The Sailing Club is busy racing every Thursday afternoon in Wrightsville Sound, and competing in North and South Carolina, and Virginia on weekends. According to club president Walker Gold, the Sailing Club will have a boat entered in the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association Sloop championships this weekend in Charleston, SC, and the SAISC single-hand championship Oct. 24 in Norfolk, VA. Last weekend Bart Streb competed at Lake Waccamaw after a club trip to Atlanta, Ga. was cancelled.

The Bowling Club is "looking good, but we still don't have any competition scheduled," according to club president Tom Prestia. One tournament date has been scheduled for the last weekend in January at NC State. Meetings are open to anyone interested every Thursday 4-6 pm at Cardinal Lanes.

Tracy takes first in intra-club surfing

Four students from Jacksonville, including winner Bryan Tracy, won four of the top five places in the Surfing Club's first intra-club tournament of the season Sunday morning at Crystal Pier in Wrightsville Beach.

A total of 23 members rode waist-to-chest high waves in a cold, northeastern wind. Many members were absent from the contest, competing from East Carolina Invitational at Huntington.

Tracy's first contest was the first contest of the season. Tracy's first contest was the first contest of the season. Tracy's first contest was the first contest of the season.

inary and semi-final heats, but finished third in the final heat behind Tracy and club president Mike Fitzpatrick, who was runner-up.

"I was getting really confident as it went along," said Tracy, a sophomore. "I was hoping to make the finals."

Tracy, Fitzpatrick, Hales and Andy Wigmore, who finished fifth, all are from Jacksonville. Other places were Ben Korb (10th), Mark Venters (7th), Bill Doran (8th), Scott Shirley (9th), Tom Hinson (10th), Ted Neff (11th), and Don Boltz (12th).

X-Country teams in state championships

The men's and women's cross country teams travel to Durham Saturday for two separate championship meets.

The men will compete in the 33rd Annual North Carolina state championship meet, while the women will run in the second Annual N.C. AIAW championship meet.

The men will be up against their stiffest competition yet, according to coach Bill Atwill. UNC-Chapel Hill is the team favorite, followed by other large schools such as N.C. State, Wake Forest and Appalachian State. Last year

Pembroke finished second to the Wolfpack.

"It'll be our biggest test to date," said Atwill. "It will be the best measure of how we've come along as a team. We're still a year away from being capable of beating Carolina, or N.C. State, but I'm shooting to knock off a couple of Southern Conference teams."

The top Lady Seahawks will be juniors Stacey Almond and Dawn Goble, and seniors Barbara Grob and Darcy Lee.

Both teams will compete again this weekend in Charleston, S.C.

Johnny Mann, launches The Great American Choral Festival

NEW YORK—Johnny Mann, five-time Grammy Award winning director of The Johnny Mann Singers, and producer of the successful musical television series, "Stand Up and Cheer," announced today the launching of The Great American Choral Festival.

A unique program designed to strengthen and unify the spirit of America through singing, the festival is an annual national competition to determine the best amateur choral groups in America.

Sponsored by Hilton Hotels as a community relations project, in association with Greyhound Lines, Inc., Johnny Mann's The Great American Choral Festival is a nationwide opportunity for ensembles of four or more amateur singers to compete for cash prizes and trophies.

phies totaling more than $150,000.

Nearly three years in the making, the festival will begin its competitive activities in each of the 50 states on January 9, 1982, in Los Angeles, followed by contests throughout the country from January through March. Six regional festivals will take place in April and May, with the finals planned to occur during the Memorial Day weekend in a nationally televised event in Philadelphia, in conjunction with that city's tricentennial celebration.

The adjudication panel of more than 250 outstanding music educators and professional conductors is headed by Dr. Charles Hirt, professor emeritus at the University of Southern California, and one of the country's most highly respected choral conductors. The judges include such respected names as Norman Luboff, Henry Mancini, Roger Wagner, Anita Kerr, Ray Conniff, Ray Charles and Fred Waring.

With a potential for thousands of entries, Mann expects to touch millions with good choral music at the grass roots level. "Choral music has improved in the country and we want to expose it," he commented. "Our goals are to encourage existing programs and provide incentive for the development of new groups and singing societies in every corner of America!"

Singing is close to Johnny Mann's heart. His 35 albums have earned him five Grammy nominations, and he has been awarded the coveted statue twice. He was music director of "The Joey Bishop Show" and produced 86 award-winning "Stand Up and Cheer" television segments. In addition, Mann has received four consecutive Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge awards for his devotion to America.

His latest project, The Great American Choral Festival, "...was an idea that came from a strong desire to do something lasting in my lifetime," said Mann, "and to give national exposure to amateur choral groups in order to help revitalize choral singing in America."

The festival is unique in that it is the first such undertaking of national magnitude, and by the fact that groups will be judged exclusively on the quality of their ensemble (group) singing.

"We're getting responses like crazy," said Mann. "Groups are signing up from schools, colleges, churches, barbershop societies and from all community groups."

A full range of activities is planned to each competition, including music workshops, seminars, special concerts, and displays and exhibits by publishers, manufacturers and service organizations.

For further information, ensembles may contact The Great American Choral Festival by calling 800/432-5955, except from California, where the number is 213/701-6111, or by writing directly to 9010 Corbin Ave., Northridge, CA 91324.

Lower prices more important than fancy atmosphere for outlets

How would you like to buy an Oxford brand men's shirt for $7.95? Levi's ladies stretch jeans for $27.95? Totes push button automatic umbrella for $16.95? These prices, from National Outlet, on Kerr Avenue, were compared against similar items in regular retail stores, and found to be considerably lower. The Levi's sold for $35.95 at Just Pants in Independence Mall, the Totes umbrella was $22.00 at Belk Beery, and as for Oxford shirts, J. C. Penny's Oxford Plus was $14.00.

National Outlet is one of several discount stores that opened in the UNCW area in the last several months. Another is Tomlinson's Sales, on College Road. Both of these stores lack the polish and pizzazz of retail establishments in Independence Mall, apparently relying on low prices rather than fancy atmosphere. Tomlinson's is fairly stark, uncarpeted and peg-board walled. National Outlet is a little fancier: carpeting, mirrors and (a real plus for mothers) a brightly painted play area for children, complete with bean bag chairs, kid-size table and continuous cartoons, to amuse the youngsters while parents shop. Both stores provide lounge areas for tired shoppers, too.

It's a far cry from the Mall boutiques and department stores, with chandeliers, oriental rugs and elegant mannequins. However, pricing in the mall stores isn't always higher, although the accoutrements scream "expensive".

For example, a rolling basket cart, made by Ingrid, was marked $19.50 at Tomlinson's, $17.84 at Best Products and only $16.88 at Belk Beery. When shopping for standard, name brand items, it's usually worth your time to shop around.

None of the merchandise at any of the stores was conspicuously labeled "irregular" or damaged, and both Tomlinson's and National Outlet will allow exchanges (Tomlinson's with receipt, and National Outlet with receipt, and all tags intact, within thirty days.)

Something else that most student will appreciate is that all the stores will accept checks, with a driver's license and student I.D.

Overall, the discount and outlet stores seemed like a good place for people on a budget (like most college students) to conserve on that precious commodity, money.

Mike Cross

Advance Tickets

Gilham's Guitar Works
Record Bar
School Kids Records
Three Penny Gallery
Pitch & Post
UNC-W Bookstore
in Whiteville & Southport
J.S. Mann's

PRESENTED BY
GILLHAM'S GUITAR WORKS
THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD

TICKETS

Limited Student $5.50
Public $6.50
All Seats $7.00 day of show

Beggsman
PRODUCTIONS

Friday, October 30th
2 Shows — 8:00 P.M. & Midnite
Kenan Auditorium - UNC-W Campus

Domino's Pizza Delivers

At Domino's Pizza, we promise a hot, nutritious meal delivered in 30 minutes or less. Your pizza is made with 100% real dairy cheese, our own special sauce, and your choice of items. Then we deliver it fast—at no extra charge. Give us a call...we deliver!

Fast...Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.

© 1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce
and Real Cheese

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe

5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Onions, Green Peppers,
and Sausage.
12" Deluxe $7.65
16" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi

5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives,
Onions, Green Peppers,
and Double Cheese.
12" Vegi $7.65
16" Vegi $11.15

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Pepsi / Quarts

Customer pays deposit.

Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.

We use only 100% real
dairy cheese.

$1

$1.00 off any 12" pizza with pepperoni.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/31/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

16556 5526

$.50

$.50 off any 12" pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/31/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

16556 5526

$1

30 minute guarantee
If your pizza does not arrive within 30 mins. after you order, present this coupon to the driver for $1.00 off your order.

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

16556 5526

One free
quart of Pepsi!

1 free qt. of Pepsi with any pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 10/31/81

Domino's Pizza
Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

16556 5526

WHAT COULD THE ARMY POSSIBLY OFFER A BRIGHT PERSON LIKE YOU?

Drop your guard for a minute. Even though you're in college right now, there are many aspects of the Army that you might find very attractive.

Maybe even irresistible. See for yourself.

MED SCHOOL ON US

You read it right. The Army's Health Professions Scholarship Program provides necessary tuition, books, lab fees, even microscope rental during medical school.

Plus a monthly stipend that works out to about $6,000 a year.

After you're accepted into medical school, you can be accepted into our program. Then you're commissioned and you go through school as a Second Lieutenant in the Army Reserve.

The hitch? Very simple. After you graduate, you give the Army a year as a doctor for every year the Army gave you as a med student, with a minimum obligation of three years' service.

INTERNSHIP, RESIDENCY & CASH BONUSES

Besides scholarships to medical school, the Army also offers AMA-approved first-year post-graduate and residency training programs.

Such training adds no further obligation to the scholarship participant. But any Civilian Graduate Medical Education sponsored by the Army gives you a one-year obligation for every year of sponsorship, with a minimum obligation of two years' service.

But you get a $9,000 annual bonus every year you're paying back medical school or post-graduate training.

So you not only get your medical education paid for, you get extra pay while you're paying it back. Not a bad deal.

A GREAT PLACE TO BE A NURSE

The rich tradition of Army Nursing is one of excellence, dedication, even heroism. And it's a challenge to live up to.

Today, an Army Nurse is the epitome of professionalism, regarded as a critical member of the Army Medical Team.

A BSN degree is required. And the clinical spectrum is almost impossible to match in civilian practice.

And, since you'll be an Army Officer, you'll enjoy more respect and authority than most of your civilian counterparts. You'll also enjoy many opportunities, officer's pay and officer's privileges.

Army Nurse Corps offers a national opportunity for advancement. Army Nurses can advance to the rank of Major, and receive the same pay and benefits as other Army Officers.

ADVANCED NURSING COURSE, TUITION-FREE

You get tuition, pay and living allowances. You can also take Nurse Practitioner courses and courses in many clinical specialties. All on the Army.

While these programs do not cost you any money, most of them do incur an additional service obligation.

A CHANCE TO PRACTICE LAW

If you're about to get your law degree and be admitted to the bar, you should consider a commission in the Judge Advocate General Corps. Because in the Army you get to practice law right from the start.

While your classmates are still doing other lawyers' research and other lawyers' briefs, you could have your own cases, your own clients, in effect, your own practice.

Plus you'll have the pay, prestige and privileges of being an Officer in the United States Army. With a chance to travel and make the most of what you've worked so hard to become. A real, practicing lawyer. Be an Army Lawyer.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS

Though you're too late for a 4-year scholarship, there are 3-, 2-, and even 1-year scholarships available.

They include tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus $100 a month living allowance. Naturally they're very competitive. Because besides helping you towards your degree, an ROTC scholarship helps you towards the gold bars of an Army Officer.

Stop by the ROTC office on campus and ask about details.

UP TO $170 A MONTH

You can combine service in the Army Reserve or National Guard with Army ROTC and get between $7,000 and $14,000 while you're still in school.

It's called the Simultaneous Membership Program. You get $100 a month as an Advanced Army ROTC Cadet and up to $170 a month as a Simultaneous Member.

but not necessarily assigned to active duty. Find out about it.

A BONUS FOR PART-TIME WORK

You can get a $1,500

bonus just for enlisting in some Army Reserve units. Or up to $4,000 in educational benefits.

You also get paid for your Reserve duty. It comes out to about $1,100 a year for one weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

And now we have a special program to help you fit the Army Reserve around your school schedule.

It's worth a look.

A SECOND CHANCE AT COLLEGE

Some may find college to be the right place at the wrong time for a variety of reasons. The Army can help them, too.

A few years in the Army can help them get money for tuition and the maturity to use it wisely.

The Army has a program in which money saved for college is matched two-for-one by the government. Then, if one qualifies, a generous bonus is added to that.

So 2 years of service can get you up to $15,200 for college, 3 and 4 years up to $20,100. In addition, bonuses up to $5,000 are available for 4-year enlistments in selected skills.

Add in the experience and maturity gained, and the Army can send an individual back to college a richer person in more ways than one.

We hope these Army opportunities have intrigued you as well as surprised you. Because there is indeed a lot the Army can offer a bright person like you.

For more information, send the coupon.

Please tell me more about ☐ (AM) Medical School and Army Medicine
☐ (AN) the Army Nurse Corps ☐ (AL) Army Law
☐ (FR) ROTC Scholarships ☐ (SS) Army Reserve Bonuses
☐ (PC) Army Education Benefits

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____

Send to: ARMY OPPORTUNITIES, P.O. BOX 85,
NORTH HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. 91321

BE ALL YOU CAN BE.
ARMY.

Campus Calendar

Campus Ministry Backpack Trip

The United Christian Campus Ministry is sponsoring a week long backpacking and white water canoeing trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains during Fall break, October 17-23. Cost is only $150, which includes all equipment, food and experienced staff. All students need are sleeping bags, clothes, etc. A $24 deposit will be required before the trip.

For more information, contact Bob Haywood at 799-1160 or come by 610 South College Rd.

Special Programs presents seminars at Wilmington Hilton Inn

The Office of Special Programs at UNCW is presenting a series of four professional development seminars to be held at the Wilmington Hilton Inn. This program is titled Executive Seminars and will meet on Oct. 12, 20, 26, and Nov. 2. Each session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 4:30 p.m.

The seminars will include such topics as "How to Become a More Effective Supervisor", "Your Executive Image", "Productivity a Paycheck Can't Buy", and "Managing Executive Pressures". Registration fee for each seminar is $225 per person. There will be a social hour at the Hilton Inn at 6 p.m. the night prior to each seminar.

Philosophy and Religion offers Greek and Hebrew

When students express an interest, Greek and Hebrew language courses are offered for credit by the Philosophy and Religion Department.

Since Greek and Hebrew courses are not offered every semester, the Philosophy and Religion Department maintains a list of interested students who would like to take either course. When a significant number of students have signed up for a course (usually at least eight), the course may be offered for three semester hours credit.

The Hebrew course, "Research Tools for Historical and Textual Criticism - Hebrew", is a basic study of Hebrew with special attention to the Hebrew of the Old Testament.

The Greek course, "Research Tools for Historical and Textual Criticism - Greek", is a basic study of Greek with special attention to the Greek of the New Testament.

Students interested in either course may sign up with the departmental secretary in Kenan Hall.

Teke holds parties on and off campus

This past weekend TKE held another party, this one being on Friday night in an apartment near the University. The refreshments ran out around midnight but the party continued on well into the morning. The brotherhood of TKE again had the honor and pleasure of having in attendance members of Phi Beta Psi, the newly formed sorority on campus. According to Pete Divoky, president of TKE, "Everyone had a great time and all the brothers agree that the ladies were the highlight of the social."

Since school started Phi Beta Psi has graced the Tekes by attending an oyster roast two weeks ago and a cookout the week before that. Dan Osborne, one of the brothers, summed up the feelings of the chapter when he said, "The ladies of Phi Beta Psi are of the caliber of ladies that ensure the good time and success of any social function and we (the Tekes) plan to give them all of our support in the upcoming years."

Michael Lorimer

conducts master class

Michael Lorimer, distinguished visiting professor, will conduct a guitar master class on Sunday and Monday, October 18-19 from 1-4 p.m. The class will be in Kenan Auditorium, room T-200. Students are welcome.

SAE announces pledges

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon proudly announce their fall pledge class: Jerry Polk, Bill Ledgett, Bert Sellars, Roddy Hernandez, Wayne Grimes, David Boston, Kevin Sills, Bill Sampson, and Rob Brinkles. Best of luck, guys!

Art Department to present shows

Over the next few months the Art Department will be presenting a number of different art shows in the lobby of Kenan Hall.

From October 1st to October 30th art work from Professor Constance Hobbs Intermediate and Advance Life drawing classes will be on view.

In November ceramics and small sculptures from the classes of Professor Stephen LeQuire will be placed on display.

Chess players wanted

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Seiko watch lost

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court, Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Haircutter's Den

4607 Peachtree Ave. & College Rd.

Haircuts $5.00 with student I.D.

20% off on all chemical services

with student I.D.

No appointment necessary Closed Wednesday

Open late by appointment

Phone 392-5155

UNC-W Program Board Lectures

and

present

"WHAT'S UP, DOC?"

Starring MEL BLANC

— the famous voice of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Daffy Duck, Woodstock, Woodpecker, Barney Rubble, Sylvester the Cat, Yosemite Sam and others!

In Person — 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 5, 1981
Kenan Auditorium

Tickets: $2.50 General Admission
$1.00 UNC-W students, senior citizens,
and children under 12

Tickets available at: UNC-W Student Activities Office
School Kids Records, Bell-Beery Co.

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc.
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Thurs., Oct. 15
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt.
Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admn., Acctg.,
Engineering Op., Psycho.

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earle Fidalgo
Thurs., Oct. 29 (rescheduled
date)
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineering
Trainees, Computer Programmers
Majors: Bus. Admn., Computer Sci., Math, Physics

Wake Forest Law School
Ms. Alleen Keith
Thurs., Oct. 29
Pos: Law School
Majors: All

A.L. Williams Ins., Co.
Ms. Elizabeth Perry
Ms. Pamela Garcia
Tues., Nov. 3
Pos: Sales
Majors: All

Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Mr. Alvin Padrick
Thurs., Nov. 5
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admn. All

Northwestern Mut. Life Ins.
Co.

Mr. William Harwood
Tues., Nov. 10
Pos: Sales
Majors: Bus. Admn., All

F.B.I.
Mr. Charles Richards
Wed., Nov. 18
Pos: Special Agent
Majors: All

Scotchman Stores
Mr. Tod McDonald
Tues. & Wed., Dec. 1 & 2
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: All

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs., Dec.
1, 2, & 3
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Applications are being accepted through October 12 in the Career Planning and Placement Office for the Professional & Administrative Career Examination.

Internal Revenue Agent Register is open on a continuous basis for the Southeastern Region. The register will remain open until further notice.

SAE from p. 3

tul silence. That cool September night a strong brotherhood was formed which became known as De Kappa Tate
fraternity.

It did not take long for DKT to become a major fraternal strength on the UNCW campus. Other fraternities on campus realized this and made many attempts to pledge the brothers of DKT. The brothers stood fast and kept their identity and after careful consideration, chose the national fraternity of Sigma Alpha Epsilon for affiliation.

The brothers felt that the high standards of SAE and its strong condemnation of degrading hazing activities were very much in line with their own ideals. In 1979 DKT was officially accepted as a colony of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Two long years filled with hard work, tragedy, and determination payed off on Sept.
26, 1981. The brothers, now
26 strong, received their acceptance as a national chapter of SAE, the largest fraternity in the nation.

SCHMIDT from p. 1

Executive and Legislative branches of the Student Government. This cabinet will consist of five people Schmidt considers most prominent and well-informed. They are Pete
Divoky, Bill Sampson, Ed
Paul, Roger Knight, and Fred
Adams.

The WLOZ problem will also be worked on by Schmidt through assistance from former radio station staff members. He intends to set up a Trust Fund by setting aside money that would have been used to operate the radio station. Costs for setting up a station to broadcast at 150 watts were stated by Schmidt as about $85,000.

One of Schmidt's major goals will be to develop strong ties with the student community.

He desires to get to know
many of his fellow students, and be open for suggestions for new policies and changes in old ones. He also plans to set up procedures workshops for clubs and organizations within the SGA.

"I'm looking forward to a very productive year. With the Senate and students working with me we can make these changes count for the best."

PAPER from p. 2

"We've gone beyond that now," she says. "We're very issue-oriented. I don't think anyone would argue that the New Edition isn't a good publication - it's not a matter of them not liking what we do,
it's just a money issue."

The other campus paper, the daily Maine Campus, is affiliated with the journalism department.

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Termpapers,
etc...
call 791-0990

Find out what's going on -
read
THE SEAHAWK
each week.

GRAPE and HOPS
SHOP

Special on Kegs
Deli Items Now Available

What's big and new and well-stocked with all your favorite party beverages, mixes and fancy foods?

It's Grape and Hops
Shop.

Wrightsville Avenue.
Keg Prices and Case Lot Special's

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center
Now Open

Hours: Mon-Wed 10:00-Midnight

Thurs., Fri., Sat. 10:00-2:00

Sun. 1:00-7:00

Come See Us You'll be glad you did!

Bring your coolers!!

A One Step Beverage Shop
Across from Four Winds

When you need some notes at 3:00 a.m., you find out
who your friends are.

Löwenbräu. Here's to Good Fun.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 7

October 29, 1981

Twelve pages

Procedure for receiving master cards changes

by Tinker Linebaugh
Journalism Contributor

Preregistration begins Nov. 10, but there is ONE major difference. That is the different colored Master Cards can be picked up in the Registrar's Office any time after Oct. 26. However, course cards cannot be obtained until each class is scheduled to preregister.

Nov. 10-Seniors-White Master

Nov. 10-Unclassified Students-Orange Master

Nov. 11-Juniors-Red Master

Nov. 12,13-Sophomores-Blue Master

Nov. 16,17-Freshmen-Green Master

Schedule cards are obtained as usual from an advisor during a scheduled appointment. For General College Students, the procedure to receive Master Cards is slightly different.

All students in the General College Advising Program will receive letters from their advisors scheduling preregistration appointments. During these appointments, the students will receive a schedule card and most importantly a Master Card. Assistance will also be given at this time in the selection of courses for the Spring Semester.

Dr. John L. Stokes, Coordinator of the General College Advising Center, said, "It is most important that students keep their scheduled appointment." Students will not be able to preregister without their Master Cards.

Mrs. Dorothy F. Marshall, Registrar, said this new procedure will hopefully avoid long lines and students arriving early to preregister. She also stressed how important it was not to lose the Master Card.

REMEMBER - Students cannot preregister without their Master Cards. Therefore, DO NOT LOSE IT!

All other procedures for preregistration are the same.

The last day to return the Master Card and course cards to the Registrar's Office is Nov. 19.

Students wait in line at registrar's office

28 sophomores to be inducted into Phi Eta Sigma on November 7

Twenty-eight sophomores at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington will be inducted into Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society on November 7 in a closed induction ceremony in the conference room of Randall Library. Dr. Daniel B. Plyler, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Dr. Caryl Sue Lamb, Assistant Professor of Psychology, will be inducted as honorary members.

To qualify for membership in Phi Eta Sigma, students must complete their freshman year with a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.5 and make no grade lower than a C while taking a full course load.

Student inductees include Henry W. Albers of Cincinnati, Ohio; Karen S. Autry of Watha, James F. Bernhardt of Lenoir, Todd A. Council of Raleigh, John L. Davis of Red Springs, Kevin R. Donovan of Florham Park, New Jersey; Robert A. Eubanks and Paul J. Seifert of Fayetteville, Michael B. Holder of Kinston, Robert

B. Humm of Greenport, New York; Alan D. Johnson of Clarkston, Martha B. Lawrence of Wilson, Anita K. Lister of Shelby, Karl L. McKinnon of Asheboro, Kim Y. Mills of Wallace, Paula A. Price of Jacksonville, Ray M. Ritchie of Annapolis, Carl H. Smalley of Hampstead, Mark H. Stanland of Castle Hayne, Wendy M. Wright of Oakville, Ontario; and Joanne S. Clayton, Denise A. Deaver, Jayne B. Humphrey, Mary K. Lanier, Andrew F. Nowel, Keith W.

Ogborn, Sheila G. Phillips, and Susan G. Vance, all from Wilmington.

Dr. Gerald H. Shinn, 1981 recipient of the Board of Trustees' Teaching Excellence Award and honorary member of Phi Eta Sigma, will address the new members at a banquet November 7 at 6 p.m. at Ballentine's Cafeteria. His topic will be "My Last Lecture."

Dr. Lee Johnston, faculty advisor to Phi Eta Sigma, said that the honorary members are chosen by the student membership each year. Dr. Plyler was selected "for providing excellent leadership and direction to the academic affairs division of UNCW and for his contribution to establishing the local Phi Eta Sigma chapter and his continuing guidance of the organization."

Dr. Lamb was chosen "for her inspiring teaching, student guidance and personal example of scholarship and academic excellence."

Lecturer says governments face problems because of rejection of humanism

by Tinker Linebaugh
Journalism Contributor

"Humanism and the Foundations of Democracy" was the title of the lecture given Thursday evening, October 15, by Dr. John H. Ahrens of the Philosophy and Religion Department.

Ahrens endeavored to show that the problems faced by democratic governments today can be traced to the rejection of the central principals of Humanism—human needs, interests and experiences.

Ahrens began by discussing the relationship between democratic procedures and Humanism.

According to Ahrens, a democracy can be either substantive or procedural. The substantive sense is concerned with WHAT decisions are made. The procedural sense is concerned with HOW political decisions are reached. Ahrens dealt mainly with the procedural sense of democracy.

Ahrens described Humanism as encompassing two principles: 1. The idea that values and ethical principles need not be grounded in a supernatural conception of the universe. 2. The idea that human beings need to apply reason and observation to develop a set of values and ethical principles consistent with "human needs, human interests and human experiences."

Ahrens then discussed the views of John Locke, a 17th Century philosopher, and John Stuart Mill, a 19th Century utilitarian philosopher.

According to Ahrens, Locke influenced democracy by emphasizing that each individual had the right to act on his own reason to determine the truth; people did not need to depend on the guidance of other authorities, religious or otherwise. He disagreed with the idea of divine monarchy, that some people are endowed by God with the right to rule others. However, he did feel that God imposed certain obligations on human beings and that we must look to ourselves—our needs, interests and capabilities—to discover what these obligations are, and then derive a set of rights and obligations to others.

Although Locke felt that all truths must be certified by reasoning, he had to admit that some individuals are better at recognizing the truth than others, which could lead to a dictatorship of an intellectual elite. This idea led to the development of John Stuart Mill's view of democracy.

According to Mill, each individual had to be given the right to make decisions for himself (even if they were not always correct or the same), thereby developing his intellectual capabilities or personal growth. Mill felt growth was a precondition for happiness. If a person was not growing, his happiness was limited. Ahrens said that Mill rejected any doctrine or goal which conflicted with the greatest possible satisfaction of human needs and interests and the development of human capabilities, whether divine or not.

Ahrens then restated the idea that Humanism has provided some of the strongest arguments for democracy and that the retreat from Humanism can partially explain the problems in the United States today. He said that those of the "New Left" and the "Religious Right" often demand that we pursue their values without an regard for the impact on other human beings—their needs interests. Ahrens then stated that these groups often try to prevent discussion of criticism of their values and that discussion and

Inside

Unclassified Students.....	p. 3
Former president.....	p. 5
Sports.....	p. 6, 7
Record review.....	p. 9
Cartoons.....	p. 10
Campus Calendar.....	p. 11

compromise are important means of resolving any conflict.

In closing, Ahrens said, "Unless all values are open to criticism, it is highly unlikely that the decision of government will be the best possible decision and that the rights of minorities will be protected. And the result of this is the polarization and collapse of the political process that we see in the United States today."

Letters

Comments from Vice-President

To the Editor:

To start out I would like to thank all the students that voted for me in the special election. Also I would like to congratulate the two gentlemen that opposed me, Buddy Henderson and Mike Stroud. The conducted a hard campaign making the Vice Presidential race interesting.

The main goal of this administration will be one of responsiveness. I will be willing and ready to listen to any and all student problems arising here on campus. I also encourage all clubs and organizations to communicate with this office. As a matter of policy to aid in responsiveness to clubs and organizations, each one will be asked to appear before the Senate sometime before the end of the Fall Semester. The reason for this is to inform the Senate of progress being made and plans for the upcoming semester.

Any student, club, or organization that would like to make appointments to meet with me may do so by calling or coming by the SGA office. There are several clubs and organization mailboxes located in the SGA office that need to be checked on a regular basis.

We are also in need of students at large to serve on a number of Senate committees. If you or someone you know is interested in serving in some capacity please leave your name and number at the SGA office. The openings available are: 1 student to the Finance Committee, 2 students to the University Court, and 3 students to the Student Court.

I am looking forward to a productive year in the Senate, and am hoping that we can best serve the needs of the students. In order to accomplish this our doors are always open for suggestions.

Thanks again to all of you for your confidence and support.

Sincerely yours,
Jeff Newton
SGA Vice President

The Apparition is coming ... Pick one up!

Mel Blanc to appear November 5 in Kenan Auditorium

"What's Up, Doc?" - the immortal by-line of the most famous rabbit ever to grace the silver screen and to fill your Saturday mornings will come to life on Thursday, Nov. 5, 1981 in Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. Mel Blanc, the voice that made you roll in the aisles with such characters as Foghorn (Ah said Boy), Speedy Gonzales (Andale! Andale!), Sylvester the Cat (Suffering Succotash), Pepe LePew (french - My Love), Porky Pig, (That's All Folks), Tweety (Twat I taw a puddy tat), Elmer Fudd (Silly Wabbit!), Yosemite Sam (Ya Darn Rabbit!), Barney Rubble (Yuk yuk... Hey Fred!), Daffy Duck (his great billfilled babble), and the jack-hammer laugh of Woody Woodpecker will be here, in person, to fill the evening with laughter! And of you have successfully read the preceding sentence you'll HAVE to come regress to your childhood for the night with the Program Board's Lecture Committee and it's cosponsor, McDonalds! It will be a guaranteed great time for all and a unique experience for sure!

Tickets will be $1.00 for UNCW students, children under 12, and senior citizens. Whereas adult tickets will be $2.50 for the show. Tickets are on sale in the Student Activities Office in the Pub during office hours. Also there are ticket outlets at School Kids Records, Belk-Beery in Independence Mall, and T-Shirts plus at Long Leaf Mall. Don't miss Mel Blanc... the Voice of our favorite cartoon land stars! Come find out "What's Up Doc?"

Student input is focus of radio station fight

A temporary and uneasy truce has been declared in a year-long battle between students and administrators over student input into management of WAER, the Syracuse U. campus radio station.

The skirmish peaked this summer when two student radio station employees were fired, Music Director Patti DiSalvo, attempted to go on the air for her regular shift, the station manager took WAER off the air completely, resuming broadcast 40 minutes later from an undisclosed studio.

That unusual event prompted extensive local media coverage and a successful effort to rally campus support for the fired students. Regular student staff members, including the two fired, were allowed to resume normal operation for the station while Chancellor Melvin A. Eggers worked to negotiate differences between Hardy and the students. Eggers later ordered DiSalvo and Jeff Mayer reinstated and said he would form two committees - one to evaluate Hardy's performance and another to consider the work of DiSalvo and Mayer.

The committees have not yet been formed, says DiSalvo. In the meantime, students continue running the station as usual, but are unsure what the future holds. At issue is the amount of student input into decisions such as choice of staff members, musical selection and programming content.

When founded in 1947, WAER was exclusively a student radio station, funded by student fee money. Within the last few years, however, the university administration has become more involved, providing part of the station's funding and hiring Hardy, the first full-time professional station manager.

The students claim their input is being systematically eliminated, says DiSalvo.

They point to a new station constitution, written by Hardy, which gives responsibility for hiring and firing of staff to the station manager. "Right now, we're an alternative, progressive jazz-rock station," DiSalvo says. "The chancellor has said he would like us to reflect the university point of view - play some classical music and run lectures on the air."

Student staff members don't believe the changes would be popular on the Syracuse campus, she says.

To date, the students have often simply ignored Hardy's order. When he sought control over staff selection last winter, DiSalvo says, "we just told him we weren't going to do it that way, because he would choose the students who would give him the least trouble." DiSalvo admits, however, that students aren't sure what will happen when it comes time to make the annual staff selection this year.

Student telephone directories available

1981-82 Student Telephone Directories are now available at the Student Activities Office in the Pub, Room 101. These directories contain emergency procedures, emergency telephone numbers, general information on "where to go," a list of administrative officers and staff, departmental listings, academic calendar, sports calendar, as well as local address listings for all students who completed the local address card during the ID validation process this fall.

All commuting students are requested to pick the books up at the Pub. The books will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Resident students will have their books delivered to the residence halls.

This book has been prepared by the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and is a must for all currently enrolled students.

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Robert Eubanks, News Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy Stallsmith
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill
Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Be on the lookout for the Seahawkman in future editions of THE SEAHAWK

Philosophy, Religion Department offers two new courses for spring semester

Two new courses are being offered to students by the Philosophy and Religion Department during the Spring Semester and will be taught by Dr. John H. Ahrens.

Ethical Issues in Business will apply contemporary ethical theory to the problems that potential managers will face once they leave academia and enter the business world. Issues to be discussed will include affirmative action, truth in advertising, product liability and responsibility within large corporations.

Emphasis will be placed on case studies from contemporary business practice compiled by Ahrens from business magazines and interviews with businessmen.

Ahrens developed the program at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. He said both the business college and the area business community responded very positively to the program.

The course, P & R 315 - Sect. 01, will be limited to 35 students and will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 2-3:15 p.m.

Philosophical Themes in Science Fiction will cover such topics as the existence of God, the possibility of time travel, the ethical and social implications of technology, the nature of intelligence, space and time, and the limits of human knowledge.

The course will utilize the works of major contemporary science fiction writers, such as Ben Vova, Stanislaw Lem, Philip K. Dick, Ursula LeGuin, Jerry Pournelle, Robert Heinlein, Arthur C. Clarke and Isaac Asimov.

If possible, some science fiction films will also be viewed during the course.

Students will be encouraged to write their own science fiction story, but not required to do so. Ahrens said the course will not be a course in literary criticism, but will deal mainly with philosophical issues.

Ahrens taught the course several times at Bowling Green State University and is currently coauthoring a monograph on how to use science fiction to teach philosophy. He has presented and published several papers on science fiction and the implications of modern technology.

Concerning the course, Ahrens said, "It is especially good for people in technical fields and those interested in creative writing."

The course, P&R 292 - Sec. 02, is limited to 35 students and will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 a.m.

Spring pre-registration begins Monday, November 2

November 5 and Monday November 16.

On November 10 unclassified students will go to each department listed on their Schedule Card to get a course card and department approval. (They must have their MASTER REGISTRATION CARD before they can pick up their course cards).

Students will return the Master Registration Card and course cards to the Registrar's Office no later than November 19, 1981. They are not pre-registered if their packet of course cards is not turned in to the Registrar's Office by November 19, 1981. Bills for tuition and fees for the Spring Semester 1981 will be mailed on December 1, 1981 and must be paid by December 28, 1981.

Unclassified students who entered the University this semester (Fall '81) will be advised for spring semester pre-registration by the General College Advising Center. These students should receive a letter containing their schedule card and an outline of procedure for pre-registration by October 16, 1981.

The Spring schedule of courses and master cards may be obtained from the Registrar's Office after October 26, 1981. After that time, unclassified students may make an appointment with an unclassified advisor at the General College Advising Center, located on the 2nd floor of the Library, Monday - Friday, 8 am - 5 pm or advising can be done on a walk-in basis 5 pm - 7 pm on the following dates: Monday, November 2, Tuesday, November 3, Wednesday, November 4, Thursday, November 5, Monday, November 9, Tuesday, November 10, Wednesday, November 11, Thursday, November 12, and Monday, November 16. The Dean of Students' Office will also be open 5 pm - 7 pm Thursday.

Bill Gillen

to perform

Are you ready for another night of great club-act entertainment? Well then join the Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee and their Half-Moon Productions in presenting Bill Gillen in the Goodwood Tavern!

On Thursday, October 29, 1981 at 8:30 p.m. Bill will be here to fill the Goodwood Tavern with music and stage presence that will fill the room and give you another chance to enjoy the Half-Moon experience! A picker and banjo player, Bill Gillen, will perform a refreshing variety of old time traditional tunes, sea chanties, modern folk, and songs of satire.

So grab a buddy, BYOB (bring your own body, too) and enjoy yourself FREE as always on campus at the Pub in the Goodwood Tavern! Just think... no gas wasted, no cover charge, and a good time with friends and fellow students to boot! It's all just for you and brought to you by fellow students who organize and present activities on campus through the Program Board. Students working for and with students in a single goal - a great time at UNCW! See you there!

MIKE CROSS IS LIVE 'N' KICKIN'

Tomorrow Night and the next night and the next

Friday, October 30
Mike Cross will be appearing in concert at UNC-Wilmington.
See him where he's
most at home, on stage.
Then pick up his live album and take him
home with you.
It's on sale at the Record Bar through Nov. 4 for only $6.49. $6.99 for the tape.

Mike Cross' entire collection which includes Bounty Hunter, Rock N Rye, Child Prodigy
and Born In The Country is also available to keep the home fires crackling
for hours of warmth.
Mike Cross, North Carolina's
most popular performer, is ready for his engagement
at UNC-W
and in your home.

RECORDS & TAPES
Record Bar
4125 Oleander Drive

UNCW English Department, Arts Council publishes Tugboat Review

The Tugboat Review is a literary publication jointly sponsored by the UNCW English Department and the Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear. The magazine, which is published once a year, features short stories, poetry, and artwork by writers and artists of Southeastern North Carolina.

The Tugboat Review staff consists of individuals from the community and UNCW's Faculty. Dr. James Collier of the English Department is the Tugboat Review Editor-in-Chief. Prose staff consists of Dr. Joanne Corbett, Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsall, and Dr. Steven Carter. The Poetry staff consists of Mrs. Nancy Bullard, Mr. David James, and Dr. Sam Garren. Miss Donna Lanier and Mrs. Margaret Collier are on the Art staff.

A few authors who have had work published in the Fall issue of the Tugboat Review include Dr. Sally Sullivan of the English Department, Dr.

Sam Garren, a former professor of English at UNCW, and the late Guy Owen, a prominent North Carolina writer.

Guy Owen wrote a book entitled The Ballad of the Flimflam Man, which was later made into a 'movie' entitled "The Flimflam Man", starring George C. Scott. Mr. Owen has also completed a new novel entitled The Apprenticeship of Joel Jarman, which is as of yet unpublished. The novel deals with World War II and its effect on five high school classmates, and is significant because it takes place in Wilmington in the 1940's. The Tugboat Review contains a story entitled "The Girl On The Bus," which has been taken from a chapter in this book.

The Tugboat Review is financed by subscriptions, book sales, and a Supplemental Support Grant from the North Carolina Arts Council. Although it will not be available on campus, the Tugboat Review is now available at local bookstores for $3 a copy. It is also available through subscriptions, which can be attained through UNCW's English Department.

All North Carolina residents are invited to contribute original material for publication in the Tugboat Review. The magazine will consider all short stories, essays, poetry, and any artwork that can be reproduced in black and white.

DePaul University student newspaper questions censorship on campus

Distribution of the DePaul U. student newspaper was delayed for a week by the university administration after the newspaper's staff defied an order not to cover a campus rape story.

The Rev. Thomas Croak sent word through the newspaper's administration moderator, Al Kipp, that the rape, which allegedly took place in the women's restroom of a campus building, was not to be covered in the student newspaper, in order to protect the victim. When the newspaper staff voted unanimously to cover the story, Croak had all but about 800 copies of the normal 7,500 press-run seized. Hours after his order was issued, however, University President John Richardson announced that the paper would be released the following week and that no penalties would be imposed on its staff, says Editor Vince Kellen.

Richardson also called a meeting of the campus Senate Subcommittee on Student Publications, a student-faculty-administration group. That subcommittee met the following week, recommending the release of the paper. After it was reprinted at university expense, Kellen says, all 7,500 copies of the edition were distributed.

Kellen says the original decision to run the story was based on a belief that the information was important to students. "There was nothing legally, ethically or morally wrong with it," he says. "We didn't print her name and we didn't run some information about her that had been in the local newspapers. We believe if something like this is happening the students need to know about it."

The greater issue now, he says, is censorship. The student publications subcommittee will be meeting soon to consider whether the administration has the right to seize papers containing editorial material of which it doesn't approve. "If we can iron out that situation, and set up some student publications guidelines, we'll be satisfied," says Kellen, who is one of four student members of the subcommittee. He refrained from voting on the recommendation to release the rape story edition, but will participate in future votes on publication guidelines.

Authentic English pub opens

The atmosphere as you enter the Pitch & Posts, located at 1052 S. College Road, is made up of British flags, Rugby Club pictures and darts. The trophy case at the end of the bar includes trophies of the Cape Fear Rugby Club, an authentic Bobbie hat, and a crystal "Yard of Ale" from England dating back to the 1880's.

On Fridays, you'll find plenty to eat at the special Pub Lunch served from a bar buffet between 11 am and 2 pm. At a cost of $3.25 per person, you can receive a choice of meat, two or three vegetables, a roll and butter. But be sure to get there before 1:30 pm.

Trying to appear busy and occupied while eating is necessary as you try not to notice those at the bar who find either you or your food interesting. After receiving your drinks as you finish lunch, you think - is $8.00 too much for lunch for two?

According to Mr. Junie Andrews, a co-owner of the Pitch & Posts, lunch is also served Monday through Thursday for $2.25 - $2.75, depending on the food being served.

Complimentary cheese and snacks are served during Happy Hour: Monday - Friday, 5-7 pm and Sunday from 1-10 pm.

"A quaint little place"

A quaint little restaurant/bar combination has opened up on the south wing of Independence Mall located off Oleander Drive here in town.

Tasty entrees and adequately mixed drinks highlight the menu at Carrie Nation's, ironically named after a liquor protestor of the late 1800's.

The establishment sports a comfortable atmosphere with a two story dining area coupled with a lounge type extension located to the right of the bar. Contemporary musical notes fall from several overhead speakers within well decorated walls.

There are two aspects to Carrie Nation's that will prove especially appealing to UNCW students. First, the going price for the savory recipes is quite reasonable. For a mere three or four dollars, one can enjoy anything from a large domestic Mushroom Burger to a tasty Swiss Pepper Steak on a bed of rice. Also available are Italian delicacies.

Secondly, campus customers will appreciate the nightly happy hour from 10 pm to midnight. During these (quick) two hours it is possible to enjoy mixed beverages of all kinds due to an entrance door located outside the mall, to the right of Morrison's Cafeteria. Drinks served in this time slot are half price and mixed well. Everything from simple highballs to the dreaded "Zombies" are offered at a reasonable tab. The brave and hard-core can enjoy a Carrie's "Ice Tea" for two dollars, but at only one per customer, please.

Each time this brave and hard-core customer was there, the service was excellent and well worth getting out of the apartment. This place undisputedly meets the campus seal of approval and will certainly prosper. Dress is leisure. See you there.

American Collegiate Poets Anthology

International Publications

is sponsoring a

National College Poetry Contest

— Fall Concours 1981 —

open to all college and university students desiring to have their poetry anthologized. CASH PRIZES will go to the top five poems:

$100	$50	$25	$15
First Place	Second Place	Third Place	Fourth
			$10 Fifth

AWARDS of free printing for ALL accepted manuscripts in our popular, handsomely bound and copyrighted anthology, AMERICAN COLLEGIATE POETS.

Deadline: October 31

CONTEST RULES AND RESTRICTIONS:

1. Any student is eligible to submit his or her verse.
2. All entries must be original and unpublished.
3. All entries must be typed, double-spaced, on one side of the page only. Each poem must be on a separate sheet and must bear, in the upper left hand corner, the NAME and ADDRESS of the student as well as the COLLEGE attended. Put name and address on envelope also!
4. There are no restrictions on form or theme. Length of poems up to fourteen lines. Each poem must have a separate title. (Avoid "Untitled"! Small black and white illustrations welcome.
5. The judges' decision will be final. No info by phone!
6. Entrants should keep a copy of all entries as they cannot be returned. Prize winners and all authors awarded free publication will be notified immediately after deadline. I.P. will retain first publication rights for accepted poems. Foreign language poems welcome.
7. There is an initial one dollar registration fee for the first entry and a fee of fifty cents for each additional poem. It is requested to submit no more than ten poems per entrant.
8. All entries must be postmarked not later than the above deadline and fees be paid, cash, check or money order, to:

INTERNATIONAL PUBLICATIONS

P. O. Box 44927

Los Angeles CA 90044

Former SGA President Charles Parsons gives reasons for resigning

by Robert Eubanks
News Editor

After three and a half years, a tradition has come to an end at UNC-W. With the resignation of President Charles B. Parsons Oct. 5, the student Senate met for the first time without the voice of Parsons' experience ringing out. A perfect example of what a dedicated SGA officer should strive to be, Parsons has never missed a meeting since becoming a Freshmen Senator in his first year here. After much consideration, President Parsons resigned due to warnings from doctors to curtail his strenuous schedule.

"It was a very hard decision to make--one you don't want to face," said Parsons. "I feel like I've let people down, but I put most of the policies into effect that I wanted to. As long as no one screws them up now, everything should go alright." According to him, he spent all of his free time in the SGA office, putting health and all else secondary.

Says Parsons, "I wouldn't have had to resign if not for the lack of help in the Executive office."

President Parsons began his SGA career as Senator Parsons in his freshman year. Noting that students were being treated unfairly by the administration, he decided to become a recognized student voice. Working hard, Parsons moved on to become Sophomore Vice President, Sophomore President, then Student Body Vice President. As Vice President, traditionally a figurehead position, Parsons turned down his SGA scholarship, claiming that he didn't feel the position was deserving it. Ultimately, Parsons went on to become Student Body President.

Throughout his career, Parsons has been very vocal because of his belief in student rights. He has associated himself with almost every club or organization on campus in order to become familiar with their needs and problems.

Parsons is also a brother in good standing in the fraternity of Sigma Alpha Epsilon here. As president he has advised other SGA presidents around the state on policy-making. He has run the most authoritative SGA in the 16-school UNC system, controlling a budget of $150,000. Parsons has attempted to get buildings named after students, has worked to establish the Campus Crime Watch, helped alleviate parking problems on campus, helped improve lighting on campus, and had a hand in preventing the closing of Wooddale Drive, the street across from New Dorm.

Late night meetings, long afternoons in meetings, and abuse from teachers have exacted a toll on Parsons, however. He cited several instances where a teacher actually told him to decide between having his grade hurt or giving their special interest club money from the SGA budget.

Parsons is doing fine after a short stay in the hospital.

"In my job in the SGA, I've written half the policies and programs. All of these years have been most important to me, but it came to the point of paying the price--that price being my health. I wish it wasn't like that, but I did the best thing I could do. But I haven't given up yet--people will still hear from me." Parsons said he has always felt that the SGA Executive officer should be the first to show school spirit. Throughout his career, and as his career comes to a close, Parsons declared himself proud to be from "the only UNC--UNC by the Sea!!!"

TKE announces pledges

The brotherhood of Tau Kappa Epsilon is very proud to announce its fall pledge class which consists of the following eight gentlemen: Fred Adams, Freshman Class President; Keith Gust, Junior Class Vice-President; Kim King, Freshman Class Senator; Kevin Moore, Student Representative of the Finance Committee; Bill Price, Election Board Chairman and Mike Stroud, President of the Forensics Team.

The pledge period will take up most of the fall, and some of the events in which the associate members will be taking part in a Halloween party, a semi-formal Alumni party, a seminar conducted by Steve Becker, Fraternity Consultant from TKE International Headquarters and most important they will be introduced to and incorporated in the bond of brotherhood that makes TKE the great fraternity that it is.

Nominations for Who's Who are being made

Attention faculty and students nominations for Who's Who are now being made. Stop by the Dean of Students' Office, A-110, to pick up a nomination blank. Deadline--Wednesday, November 11, 1981.

Students will be evaluated on scholarship ability, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities.

citizenship and service to his/her school, and potential for future achievement. Feel free to give additional information, comments, and observations.

In order to assist the selection process, the following guidelines are suggested: Only junior, seniors, and graduate students matriculated in undergraduate or graduate curriculum are eligible for nominations.

A person may be nominated only once as a junior, senior or graduate student. Nominations may be made by members of the faculty, administration, and student body. (Students may nominate themselves). At the time of nomination the student must have attained an overall GPA of at least 2.5.

Mike Cross

Advance Tickets

Gilham's Guitar Works
Record Bar
School Kids Records
Three Penny Gallery
Pitch & Posts
UNC-W Bookstore
in Whiteville & Southport
J.S. Mann's

PRESENTED BY:
GILLHAM'S GUITAR WORKS
THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD

TICKETS

Limited Student $5.50 (Advance only)
Public $6.50
All Seats $7.00 day of show

Boggsman
PRODUCTIONS

Friday, October 30th
2 Shows - 8:00 P.M. & Midnite
Kenan Auditorium - UNC-W Campus

Sports

'Hawks ranked ninth in South

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

The men's soccer team emerged victorious in two games over fall break as it defeated East Carolina, 4-0, and upset Appalachian State, 4-1 in overtime.

The two wins raised the Seahawks' record to 8-6 with three games left to play.

UNCW used four first-half goals, two by Dennis Davis and one each by Alberto Rodriguez and Keith Webster to get by ECU. It was UNCW's third shutout of the year as they outshot the Pirates, 20-12.

Last Saturday's opponent, Appalachian State, was one of the 'Hawks' toughest of the year. A consistent power in Southern soccer, ASU entered the game ranked ninth in the South, but had lost its two previous matches.

UNCW opened the scoring midway through the first half when Davis scored on a break-away.

The Mountaineers tied the contest with 31 seconds left in the first half, and both teams went scoreless in the second half, although UNCW had several opportunities to take control, outshooting ASU, 10-4.

It took UNCW just three minutes to score in overtime as Dave Compere knocked in a Dave Karlson pass. Karlson was on the assist again as Kevin Cox scored to close out the first overtime period. Cox added another goal in the second overtime to give the Seahawks the victory.

"I was very encouraged to see the team finally put it all together," said coach Calvin Lane, who improved his overall record at UNCW to 99-58-10. "We played with a great deal of confidence and it's the best game we've played from start to finish all year."

Lane credited the tenacity of the Seahawk defense for denying the Appalachian State forwards the ball and was pleased with strong midfield play.

"We put so much pressure on them that the goals had to come," he said.

Karlson tied two school records in the ASU match. Just a junior, the Maryland native tied his own single season assist record of last year (12), as well as the career mark (29).

UNCW played again Wednesday at Methodist, after which they travel to South Carolina before finishing the season at home on Nov. 5, against nationally ranked Duke.

Coach Calvin Lane

Women's gold team to defend regional title next week

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

The men's golf season is over, but the women's team continues playing with the NCAA Division III regional tournament in Williamsburg, Va. next Wednesday and Thursday. The Lady Seahawks will compete against Meredith College, while Longwood College and William & Mary compete for the Division II title.

"We should be favored," said Lea Larson, whose team won the national title last summer. "The fact that it's only a two-day tournament bothers me because we haven't played real well on the first day of tournaments. We'll have to come off the first tee playing our best."

The Lady 'Hawks competed in their own fall invitational last week at Echo Farms, and finished third behind Division schools N.C. State and Wake Forest, and ahead of Meredith.

"I was pleased," Larson said. "We had rounds of 338, 331 and 325, but we still haven't hit that magic figure of 320. We've got to hit 320 for me to feel good about this season. It's a barrier, like the four-minute mile, and once you break it, you can improve even more."

"Golf is a funny sport," she said. "Sometimes you're scared to shoot a good round." Larson explained the problem sport in which you are competing against yourself, or the clock. "Once you reach a plateau, you want to remain at that level. If you drop back, you feel let down in yourself. Therefore, if you never exceed your expectations, you will not have a let down when you fail to maintain high expectations.

"That probably the problem we're fighting against most right now."

The men's team started strong behind N.C. State transfer Graham Williams, but faded late in the season after Williams was ruled ineligible.

"There were some eligibility rules that got real complicated," said coach Dean Allen. "We thought we had them figured out, but it turned out we didn't."

The 26-year-old Williams competed in one match too many at N.C. State to have kept his eligibility when he

Robbie Roberts

See GOLF p. 7

Running 'Hawks compete at Duke, The Citadel

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

Both cross country teams were extremely busy over fall break. The men competed in the NC State Invitational Oct.

17 and in the Citadel Invitational Oct. 24, and the women ran in the NC AIAW Championships Oct. 17 and concluded their season in a dual meet with Davidson last weekend.

The women's races widely contrasted each other. The first race, held in Durham, was on a sunny morning amidst fall colors on the wide fairways of Duke Golf Course. Over Grueling Hills 12 teams took off at a fast pressured pace before disappearing into the woods.

The next race, held in Charleston, SC, where the men were competing also, started slowly on a cold and overcast day on a narrow, flat and sandy five kilometer course.

The men's races were equally diverse. In the state meet, held at Duke George Walker pulled ahead of the rest of UNCW's runners to finish in 28:45. The five-mile course included the same wide, but crowded, start and steep gravel hills as the women's race, and several accidents of elbowing, spiking and pushing along the way.

At the Citadel meet, the narrow course caused a lot of elbowing again, but through the park UNCW's Robbie Burke blistered out the first mile in 4:58 through thick sand. Julian Keith finished as the 'Hawks top runner, followed by Al Brantley and Burke.

The men's team runs at home Saturday at 10 a.m.

George Walker leads pack in cross country meet earlier this season.

Self photo/Jamie Montiel

Sports Calendar

Thursday

Volleyball vs. Francis Marion, 6:30 p.m.
Intramural bowling sign-up begins.

Friday

Seahawk Birdie Bash women's golf tournament begins at Echo Farms.
Intramural cross country sign-up begins.

Saturday

Cross country vs. Francis Marion & St. Andrews, 10 a.m.
Volleyball at N.C. Wesleyan.
Seahawk Birdie Bash women's golf tournament at Echo Farms.
Women's Soccer Club vs. East Carolina, 1 p.m.
Men's tennis fall invitational with Campbell, Coastal Carolina & East Carolina begins.

Sunday

Football Club vs. UNC Greensboro, 1 p.m.
Men's soccer at South Carolina.
Women's Soccer Club vs. Duke, 12 noon.
Men's tennis fall invitational concludes.
Seahawk Birdie Bash women's golf tournament concludes.

Tuesday

Men's soccer vs. Duke, 3 p.m.
Volleyball vs. Pembroke State, 6:30 p.m.

Wednesday

Women's golf regional tournament begins in Williamsburg, Va.

Sailing Club provides competition and relaxation to members

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

If you look out into the sparkling water on Bank's Channel, Wrightsville Beach, just around sunset on any Thursday of the school year, you'll see the reflection of eight Laser sailboats in regatta near the Blockade Runner Motel. The sailboats belong to the UNCW sailing club, which practices twice weekly, beginning about 1 pm on Sunday, the club's "pleasure-sail" day, and 4:30 on Thursday, their intra-squad regatta day.

These races vary in length, depending on the weather conditions; and the scoring, much like golf or cross country, bases the winner on the least amount of points taken.

At the end of each semester, a sailing club series cup is awarded to the team member with the least amount of cumulative points, based on the Thursday regattas for the semester.

The club not only competes among themselves, but also against other teams from Charleston, SC, Norfolk, VA, and Atlanta, GA. Recently the club competed in the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association Sloop championships, and finished sixth out of 10 teams.

"With UNCW having only one type of boat to race, we really can't expect to make a better showing," says club president Walker Gold, "but considering that we have only the Lasers, UNCW's club usually makes a fair showing at races, almost always finishing in the middle of the pack."

Gold, a sophomore, teaches sailing for the Wrightsville Beach Parks and Recreation department during the summer months.

A member of the SAISA, the club has 33 student members, but only 15 are active. Gold says the club's main purpose is "to introduce sailing to people on campus."

Artwork by B.J. Grob

Basketball practices underway

With November just around the corner, sports fans across the nation are looking ahead to college basketball. Such is the case at UNCW, where both men's and women's teams are practicing for their 1981-82 schedules.

Men's coach Mel Gibson, in his 10th season at UNCW and only 12 wins away from his 200th career victory, had 22 men report for the first day of official practice Oct. 15.

"We're starting with an injury situation (newcomer Onno Steger with a broken ankle, and senior returnee Mike Prudhoe with a broken thumb)," Gibson said, "but they should be healed by the season."

"With so few new players," he said, "we're ahead of where we were last year. Also, we're conditioned a lot further along than we were last year."

The women's team, under third-year coach Marilyn Christoph, is coming off the best record in the school's history in 1980-81. With six veterans returning and six promising freshmen, the Lady 'Hawks may be even better in 1981-82.

"The way these kids look," Christoph said, "it could be duplicated. They're working tremendously hard with a lot of enthusiasm. They're doing things a lot better, catching on a lot better, and picking up things real fast."

"They have the potential to be the best that UNCW's ever had."

Davis released by Mavericks

Former UNCW basketball player Danny Davis, the Seahawks' all-time leading rebounder and an all-South Independent team selection last year, was released by the NBA's Dallas Mavericks Monday along with former New Hanover High School star Clarence Kea.

Davis survived the Mavericks first cut two weeks ago and played in several exhibition games. The Mavericks will have one more cut to reduce their roster from 13 to 12 players.

Rick Sund, director of player personnel for Dallas, told UNCW coach Mel Gibson that the Mavericks are attempting to place Davis with some other organization.

"It's a real credit to Danny that he last through the pre-season," Sund said. "We are interested in him still, and will keep in contact with him if he still wants to play."

Davis was scheduled to return to Wilmington Tuesday evening to discuss other possibilities with Gibson.

Gibson has been contacted by the Athletics In Action for Davis' services.

Staff photo/Scott Sibbey

The Sailing Club meets every Thursday and Sunday.

Golf jump from p. 6 transferred to UNCW. between transferring. He returned to the U.S. to capture medalist honors in UNCW's first fall tournament, and tie for medalist honors in the 'Hawks' next tourney before losing in sudden-death.

"Obviously we missed him a lot," Allen said. "According to my records, it was the best a Seahawk golfer had ever played."

Williams' two-tournament average of 72.5 strokes per round was the lowest on the team. Sophomore Danny Agapion was second with a 77.5 average over eight rounds.

Junior Tom Herring, the only Seahawk golfer to participate in each of UNCW's 10 rounds of competition, followed with a 78.8 average.

Fun Run Nov. 9

The Third Annual Fun Run, sponsored by the PE Department will be held Monday, Nov. 9, at 3 pm on Regal Road 'beside Trask Coliseum.

Registration with a $3 fee ends Friday.

Football Club loses twice

The Football Club dropped its record to 0-5 over fall break with a 3-0 loss to Duke Oct. 16, and a 2-0 setback to Galludet School for the Deaf Oct. 24 in Washington, DC.

The Blue Devils scored their field goal early in the contest, and held the advantage the rest of the game. UNCW's only threat, a touchdown run, was called back due to a holding penalty.

In the Seahawks' trip to the nation's capital, UNCW faced a deaf team which responded its offensive plays to a loud drum banged on the sideline.

Galludet scored three of its touchdowns in the first quarter, and then were held to one the rest of the game. UNCW threatened once, but came up empty for its third shutout.

The Seahawks will seek that elusive first win again Sunday at 1 pm on Brooks Field against UNC-Greensboro.

Notes...

The men's tennis team will hold its annual fall invitational, hosting Campbell, Coastal Carolina and East Carolina, this weekend on the courts beside Trask Coliseum. Juniors John Shackelford and Lance Thompson are the Seahawks' top two players. The Wilmington Parks and Recreation department will hold the New Hanover County Special Olympics Nov. 5-6 at Hanover Hall. A snow-skiing course for PED 102 credit will take place Jan. 7-11 in the Appalachian Mountains. Registration is Nov. 6 at 6:30 pm in Trask 119 ONLY! There will be a $40 non-refundable fee towards the $140 cost for beginners, and $150 cost for intermediates. The charge covers all expenses for five sessions - one night and four days. For more information contact Dr. Wolff in the PE department. Sophomore Bryan Tracy won his second consecutive surfing contest last weekend in the I-A class of the Eastern Surfing Association contest at Crystal Pier. The racquetball club will host UNC-Chapel Hill Saturday.

FROM 7 UNTIL 10 PM OCTOBER 31ST
THE P.U.^{NCW} DANCE COMMITTEE WILL PRESENT
THE THIRD ANNUAL

HALLOWEEN COSTUME DANCE

FEATURING
THE ROCK 'N' ROLL
OF

PEGASUS PLUS
HALLOWEEN NIGHT IN HANOVER HALL
(THE OLD GYM)

-B Y O B-
CANS ONLY PLEASE

BEST COSTUME WINS
A PAIR OF TICKETS TO
-CHARLIE
DANIELS-
NOV. 21
IN TRASK

SHUT UP AND DANCE

Joe Vitale displays full range of ability on new album

He has been described as the very model of a hard-working rock-n-roll musician. He is Joe Vitale and his new album Plantation Harbor allows him to display the full range of his abilities as singer, songwriter and instrumentalist.

Vitale may not be that well known to the average rock-n-roll fan but has played with top name rock-n-rollers for years. In 1969 Joe Vitale was drummer for Ted Nugent's Amboy Dukes. In 1970 Vitale began to talk with old friend Joe Walsh about working together. After the James Gang disbanded Walsh and Vitale along with bassist Kenny Passarelli started the acclaimed rock unit Brainstorm.

After Brainstorm broke up Vitale worked with Walsh on his 1975 album So What and again in 1976 on Walsh's You Can't Argue With A Sick Mind.

Not only has Vitale played with Nugent and Walsh, but also with David Crosby, Stephen Stills, and Graham Nash.

In 1976 he was called upon to back up Peter Frampton in Kansas City in front of 60,000 fans, only two days before the show. He remained with Frampton throughout the tour and toured with him again, later through Asia.

Vitale did further work with Joe Walsh and went on tour with the Eagles on their Long Run tour in 1980.

On Plantation Harbor Vitale is backed up by Joe Walsh, Don Felder, Timothy B. Schmidt, Stephen Stills, and

See VITALE p. 12

Non-traditional Students Meet

The Non-Traditional Students Organization will be holding open forums on Monday November 9, 1981 at 1 pm and Tuesday, November 10 at 7:30 pm in the Lounge of James Student Services Building. At these forums, non-traditional students will be able to register their suggestions, complaints, and needs in regard to UNCW services. These meetings will also serve as the basic organizational tool for the Non-Traditional Students Organization. The information received at these meetings will be the primary motivating factor in future programming.

Non-Traditional students have been identified as those students over 23 years of age, who are returning to an educational environment after an absence, and who may have job and/or family responsibilities, in addition to their academic pursuits. At the present time, there are 1,534 students on the UNCW campus who meet this criteria.

If a non-traditional student is unable to attend either of the two scheduled meetings, he or she should address his or her input to Abby Hastings, Associate Dean of Students, 110 Alderman, or 791-4330, ext. 2119.

Paraphernalia Law Challenged

As of October 1, 1981, sale and possession of drug paraphernalia is illegal. This law, passed by the General Assembly last June, like similar laws passed in 22 other states, is based on a model drawn up by the U.S. Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration. It says that no item may be sold with the intent to be used as a drug accessory. Determining what is intended to be used as a drug accessory is up to the discretion of the arresting officer or the District Attorney.

Some shops are fighting the law on the basis of its constitutionality. Already the law has been challenged in Durham County Superior Court. It has been asked, by the challenging company, Rainbow Distributing Co., that the state be prohibited from enforcing the law until the constitutionality of the law has been determined.

Conviction under the paraphernalia law carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail, a $500 fine or both. Possession of less than an ounce of marijuana carries a $100 fine or a 30-day sentence. A conviction for selling or manufacturing any of the items considered drug paraphernalia could bring a maximum fine of $1000 and a maximum two year jail sentence.

The new paraphernalia law is very broad and is hard to define, but its effects are already being felt, because many record shops and novelty stores have removed the items in question from their shelves.

Scandinavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its 1982-83 academic year abroad in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden. This unique learning experience is designed for college students, graduates, and other adults who want to study in a Scandinavian country, becoming part of another culture and learning its language. A new one-semester program, only in Denmark, is also now available.

After orientation in Denmark and a 3-week intensive language course, generally followed by a family stay, students are placed individually at Scandinavian Folk Schools or other specialized institutions, where they live and study with Scandinavians of diverse backgrounds. The Folk Schools are small, residential educational communities intended mainly for young adults. Both historically and socially, these schools have played an important part in the development of the Scandinavian countries. Midway through the folk school year, all the Seminar students and staff meet in the mountains of Norway to discuss progress and make plans for the spring. A final session is held at the end of the year to evaluate the year's studies and experiences.

Because the Scandinavian countries are small, open, and which provides a full range of media services, including planning, graphics, time buying, radio production and all areas of television documentary and commercial production. This fall, he is teaching a new course on the production of television documentaries at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

The attendance fee for the video tape workshop is $5.00. Members of St. John's Museum of Art will be charged $4.50.

Persons who want to attend the workshop should make their reservations by calling St. John's Museum of Art at 763-0281.

Scandinavian Seminar accepting applications for foreign students accessible, the year provides an unusual opportunity for the student to explore his or her particular field of interest by doing an independent study project. On the basis of a detailed written evaluation of their work, most college students receive full or partial academic credit for their year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, and all course-connected travels in Scandinavia, is $5,900. Interest-free loans are granted on the basis of need, as are a few partial scholarships.

For further information, please write to: SCANDINAVIAN SEMINAR, 700 East 85th Street, New York, N.Y. 10028

Humanism Not Monolithic

"Humanism is more than those unfortunate Manifestos."

That was one point which Dr. Hall was trying to stress during the Humanism lecture Thursday evening at King Auditorium.

In opening remarks, Hall stated that humanism is not just one "monolithic" movement and that it is necessary to distinguish among those who are called humanists. There are many different kinds of humanists; therefore, it is not necessarily logical to acquaint Christian Humanism with the Humanist Manifestos.

Hall's definition of a Christian humanist is a person who has a deep concern for mankind and a belief in God.

Hall's lecture centered around several humanistic philosophers in the Renaissance, such as Dante, Petrarch and Pico. Also included in the discussion were such scientists as Gal-bert, Bacon and Galileo. According to Hall, many of these men were Christian humanists.

Hall closed his lecture by saying that the humanists of the Renaissance were concerned for man and they believed in man. They also felt man was divinely commissioned. Hall stated, "when you believe man can do things, he can."

There are two more lectures in the series on Humanism to be held in King Auditorium. On Oct. 29, a panel discussion will be moderated by Rev. Allen Lavmon of the First Baptist Church. Speakers will include Dr. S. Dwayne Martin of the Philosophy and Religion Department and Robert Haywood, Campus Minister. A third panelist is still being sought. The last lecture by Dr. James K. McGowan of the Philosophy and Religion Department will be held on Nov. 5.

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

PEANUTS®

by Charles M. Schulz

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD CONCERTS IN ASSOCIATION WITH SOUND 70 PRODUCTIONS ~

PRESENTS

CHARLIE DANIELS BAND

WITH SPECIAL GUEST

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21 8 PM

TRASK COLISEUM

UNCW STUDENT TICKETS $8.50 (LIMITED NUMBER)

TICKETS GO ON SALE TUESDAY NOVEMBER 3
ROOM 104 IN THE PUBIMPORTANT NOTE: LIMIT 2 TICKETS PER I.D.
CASH ONLY (NO CHECKS)
RESERVED SEATING ONLY

FOR MORE INFO CALL 791-4330 EXT. 2283

Campus Calendar

Campus Ministry sponsors social

The United Christian Campus Ministry in conjunction with the Catholic Churches of Wilmington is sponsoring an evening social for all Catholic students on Sunday, Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pub. All are invited to come meet new friends and help plan for future activities. Refreshments will be provided. For further information contact Sister Margaret Alandt at 762-0539.

Seiko watch lost

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court, Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Chess players wanted

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Philosophy and Religion offers Greek and Hebrew

When students express an interest, Greek and Hebrew language courses are offered for credit by the Philosophy and Religion Department.

Since Greek and Hebrew courses are not offered every semester, the Philosophy and Religion Department maintains a list of interested students who would like to take

'English for Internationals'

Conversational English for Internationals (Conversation, reading, and writing English). Free every Wednesday at 9:45 a.m. Winter Park Baptist Church, 4700 Wrightsville Ave., Wilmington. Call Mrs. Sally M. Lennon - 763-5585, Mrs. Lucille Brown - 763-5383 or Wilmington Baptist Association - 799-1160. Free nursery and transportation furnished.

either course. When a significant number of students have signed up for a course (usually at least eight), the course may be offered for three semester hours credit.

The Hebrew course, "Research Tools for Historical and Textual Criticism - Hebrew", is a basic study of Hebrew with special attention to the He-

Pharmacy lecture

Mr. Joseph Hodge, Assistant Dean of Pharmacy at the Medical University of South Carolina, Charleston, will be on campus to meet with pre-pharmacy students Tuesday morning, November 3, from 9 to 12, in C-102. Students interested in talking with Mr. Hodge should make an appointment through Dr. Martin, Pre-Pharmacy Advisor, in his office C-106.

Art Department to present shows

Over the next few months the Art Department will be presenting a number of different art shows in the lobby of Kenan Hall.

From October 1st to October 30th art work from Professor Constance Hobbs Intermediate and Advance Life drawing classes will be on view.

In November ceramics and small sculptures from the classes of Professor Stephen LeQuire will be placed on display.

brew of the Old Testament.

The Greek course, "Research Tools for Historical and Textual Criticism - Greek", is a basic study of Greek with special attention to the Greek of the New Testament.

Students interested in either course may sign up with the departmental secretary in Kenan Hall.

Delta Zeta welcomes pledges

Delta Zeta would like to welcome our new pledges; Jamie Adams, Lisa Anderson, Felicia Brown, Pam Davis, Betsy Sanderson, Rhonda Strange, Tammie Tusher, Sandra Todd, and Elizabeth Wiegers.

To help celebrate the the pledging we gave a party for them Saturday, Oct. 10, topped off by a cookout on Sunday, Oct. 11.

Delta Zeta along with TNK fraternity competed in the raft race down the Cape Fear, for the second year in a row. We hope to be able to continue this each year. It's a lot of fun and we'd like to thank TNK fraternity for joining in with us this year.

We have been invited by Delta Zeta's at ECU to join them Oct. 31 for their Halloween celebration.

On November 27 we're planning a Founder's Day Banquet for parents and sisters at the Terrace Inn.

Ainsley lectures

Dr. W. Frank Ainsley of the Department of Earth Sciences, will present a seminar on "Architectural Resources of Southeastern North Carolina" on Wednesday, Oct. 28, 1981. The lecture will be in Room 252 of the Marine Sciences Building at 3 p.m. Refreshments will be served afterwards.

Financial forms ready

1982-83 Financial Aid Application Forms may be picked up at the Financial Aid Office following the beginning of the Spring Semester but not before that time. The priority deadline date will again be March 15.

Editor will copyedit

Experienced editor will copyedit and/or edit your papers. Copyedit - $1.00 per page. Edit - $1.50 per page. Copyedit and edit - $2.25 per page. Call 392-3426 after 5 pm weekdays.

Be Assertive

"Becoming More Assertive" November 4, 1981 2:00-5:00 p.m. Hoggard 205 By: Dr. Gerald Weeks More more info contact: Counseling and Testing.

Find out what's going on -
read THE SEAHAWK

ACROSS

- 1 Utensil
- 4 Uncertainty
- 9 Part of India
- 14 — Baba
- 15 Loafer
- 16 Syrup of a sort
- 17 Smoke
- 19 Delight
- 20 Chris —
- Lloyd
- 21 Brink
- 22 Fit out
- 23 Skin: Suff.
- 24 Brazil dance
- 26 Carpet type
- 29 Mr. Buchwald
- 31 Pixie
- 32 Medal winner
- 33 Head man
- 36 Toller
- 38 Uncle: Sp.
- 39 Sheathes
- 41 Widens
- 43 Rowan
- 44 Bugle call
- 46 Red shade
- 47 Wardrobe item
- 49 Witty remark
- 50 Oklahoma city
- 51 Goller
- 52 Vixen
- 54 Kind of file
- 58 Forefront
- 60 Illumination unit
- 61 Scrap
- 62 Book part
- 64 Student's goal
- 66 Ergo
- 67 Fortification
- 68 Circle part
- 69 Prodded
- 70 Dozed
- 71 Formerly called

DOWN

- 1 Set the speed
- 2 Color
- 3 Feline
- 4 Grime
- 5 Plunder poem
- 6 Part of UHF
- 7 Early
- 8 Showed fear
- 9 Of the USA
- 10 Flathead Indian
- 11 Trattoria offering
- 12 High in pitch
- 13 Tree of India
- 14 Naval fleet
- 18 Rivulets
- 24 Kenyan
- 27 Zodiac sign
- 28 Silly one
- 30 Remainder
- 33 Minimum
- 34 Follow
- 35 Attaining
- 37 Ran away
- 40 Plunders
- 42 Biblical peak
- 45 Pastry item
- 48 Spell
- 53 Discharge
- 55 Oriental
- 56 Emporium
- 57 UK coins
- 59 Requirement
- 61 Desire
- 62 That woman
- 63 Margaret's nickname
- 65 Cover

See Answers

p. 12

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]

Grill open 11 a.m.-7

50 cents Off Ham Sub

Mon. Ladies' Night

Wed. College Night - 7 Kegs

Friday Afternoon

25 cent Hotdogs

4-7

Friday & Saturday

Nouveau Riche

Saturday Night

Halloween Party

$100.00 Prize

for Best Costume

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earle Fidalgo
Thurs., Oct. 29
Pos: Mgmt. & Engineering
Trainees, Computer Programmers
Majors: Bus. Admn., Computer Sci., Math, Physics

Wake Forest Law School
Ms. Aileen Keith
Thurs., Oct. 29
Pos: Law School
Majors: All

A.L. Williams, Ins. Co.
Ms. Elizabeth Perry
Ms. Pamela Garcia
Tues., Nov. 3
Pos: Sales
Majors: All

Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Mr. Alvin Padrick
Thurs., Nov. 5
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admn., All

Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co.
Mr. William R. Harwood
Tues., Nov. 10
Pos: Sales
Majors: Bus. Admn., All

F.B.I.
Mr. Charles Richards
Wed., Nov. 18
Pos: Special Agent
Majors: All

Fieldcrest Mills
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Wed., Nov. 18
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Acct., Bus. Admn., Econ., Engineering Op., Psychology

Scotchman Stores
Mr. Tod McDonald
Tues., & Wed., Dec. 1 & 2
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: All

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs., Dec. 1, 2 & 3
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Applications are being accepted through October 12 in the Career Planning and Placement Office for the Professional & Administrative Career Examination.

Internal Revenue Agent Register is open on a continuous basis for the Southeastern Region. The register will remain open until further notice.

Minority Recruitment Day
October 30
Wake Forest University Law School
9:00-5:00 p.m.

The Job Interview
Wed., Nov. 4
4:00 p.m.

Answers from p. 11

POT	DOUBT	ASSAM
ALI	TOLER	MAPLE
CIGARETTE	ELATE
EVER	RIM	BO
DERM	SAMPA	SHAG
ART	ELF	HERO
LEADER	SERP	TIO
ENGASERS	DILATES
ASH	TAPS	GERITSE
SUIT	MOT	ADA
TEER	SIREN	RASP
AN	LOU	WASTE
SPINE	EDUCATION
WENCE	REDAN	ARC
FOOD	SLEPT	NEE

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Temppapers, etc...
call 791-0990

VITALE from p. 9

Graham Nash. The tracks of Plantation Harbor are a mixed bag of rockers ("Never Gonna Leave You Alone...") and the title track), ballads ("Laugh - Laugh") and Caribbean-flavored tunes ("Man Gonna Love You"). Vitale's lyric observations come out of his own life. Whether describing friends or capturing the madness of the road, the songs on Plantation Harbor are honest, upbeat, and fun to listen to.

Joe Vitale's past credits and current work speak for themselves. He took a long time to record this album and the result is for all rock-n-roll fans to savor.

Go to sea and earn credit this Spring

Sail the Caribbean and Atlantic on a 100 foot schooner as part of Southampton College's 1982 SEAmester™ program.

Study the coastline, barrier and coral reefs, plus marine life. Visit major seaports and points of interest. Accredited courses in: Coastal Ecology, Ichthyology, Navigation and Seamanship, Literature of the Sea, American Maritime History, Natural History. Sailing: April 4, 1982 to June 5, 1982.

For more information, contact SEAmester™ Office of Continuing Education, Southampton College of LIU, Southampton, New York 11968 or call 516-283-4000, ext. 117.

GRAPE and HOPS SHOP

Open 10 til 10 Daily
and
1 til 7 Sunday

What's big and new and well-stocked with all your favorite party beverages, mixes and fancy foods? It's Grape and Hops Shop.

Wrightsville Avenue.
Deli Items Now Available

Haircutter's Den

4607 Peachtree Ave. & College Rd.
Haircuts $5.00 with student I.D.
20% off on all chemical services with student I.D.

No appointment necessary Closed Wednesday
Open late by appointment
Phone 392-5155

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center
Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In Window

Come See Us You'll be glad you did!
Stop By After the Mike Cross Concert
A One Stop Beverage Shop
Across from Four Winds

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 8

November 5, 1981

Twelve Pages

Mel Blanc to appear tonight

Have you heard?... Saturday mornings are coming alive TONIGHT! All those critters, varmints, and silly cartoon people will be here to fill your evening with FANTASY, LAUGHTER, and ENTERTAINMENT!!! The great Mel Blanc, the voice of Daffy Duck, Barney Rubble, Yosemite Sam, Elmer Fudd, Tweety, Porky Pig, Pepe LePew, Sylvester the cat, Speedy Gonzales, Foghorn Leghorn, the world famous Bugs Bunny, and the Woodpecker, will be here, in person, at Kenan Auditorium!!

Mel Blanc... The Voice... from the beginning of his radio career in 1927, through appearance with Jack Benny, Abbott & Costello, Burns & Allen, has been treasured member of our fantasy cartoon world of voices. He also has his double-gold recordings for Capitol Records of "I tawt I taw a Puddy Tat" & "The Woody Woodpecker Song" which has been a part of our humor filled culture for years!

His VOICE is estimated to be heard by over 100 million people throughout the world each day - including probably YOU!!!

So come join the University Program Board's Lecture Committee and its cosponsor McDonalds, to welcome Mr. Mel Blanc and regress with us to our childhoods for a guaranteed great, fun-filled night!

Tickets will be $1.00 for UNCW students, children under 12, and senior citizens. Whereas general admission will be $2.50 for the show.

Tickets are on sale in the Student Activities Office, at School Kids Records, Belk Berry - Independence Mall, and T-Shirts Plus - Long Leaf Mall. Also tickets will be on sale at the door at Kenan Auditorium before the show.

Don't miss Mel Blanc!!!! Showtime is 8:00 p.m. TONIGHT, in Kenan Auditorium right here at UNCW!!!! Come join us and find out "What's Up Doc?"

Bugs Bunny is just one of Mel Blanc's famous 'voices'.

Animation art show exhibit in the Pub

If you are a fan of Bugs Bunny, Wile E. Coyote, Winnie the Pooh, or a hundred other cartoon characters, there's an exhibit that's sure to win you over.

Hundreds of animation cel paintings from Hollywood cartoons are the subject of a special Exhibit and Sale to be held at UNCW, Thurs. and Fri. Nov. 5 and 6, from 10 am until 6 pm, in the James Student Services Building. The public is invited. This is sponsored by UPB.

Animation cel paintings, called "cels," are the paintings actually filmed in making the animated cartoon. Each character is painted by hand on a clear sheet of acetate, usually 11" x 14" or larger, then placed against a background and photographed one-by-one to produce a reel of motion picture film.

Cels are one-of-a-kind, not prints or reproductions. They are the culmination of the artistic process - the final image that is photographed by the camera.

This Exhibit was authenticated by Gallery Lainzberg of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the nation's best-known specialist in this unique art form. A representative of Gallery Lainzberg will be on hand to answer questions.

The Exhibit Sale will feature a selection of cels from feature-length Walt Disney films, including "The Jungle Book," "Robin Hood," "Winnie the Pooh," "The Rescuers," "The Aristocats," and the recently-released, "The Fox and the Hound." Original pencil animation drawings from some of Disney's early films of the 1930's and 1940's will also be offered.

Original Disney art work has long appealed to a broad range of collectors. In reporting an auction of Disney animation cels at Sotheby Parke Bernet Galleries in L.A., the L.A. TIMES(7-3-81) wrote, "The cels commanded stiff prices, reflecting the rising demand for Disney memorabilia by art dealers and Disney collectors. And the value seemed to have little to do with the age of the pieces."

See EXHIBIT, p. 8.

Animation 'cel' paintings are the subject of the special exhibit and sale in the Pub.

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

SGA grants American Atheists Organization Charter

The American Atheists Organization (A.A.) was granted a charter Thursday evening by the SGA to establish a chapter at UNCW.

Jeff Blythe, Chairman of the UNCW A.A., had tried to form a chapter in Sept. but was denied a charter because of discrepancies in the A.A. Constitution and the SGA Constitution.

Blythe has since complied with the regulations under which all organizations at UNCW are chartered and, therefore, was chartered.

Blythe said that the purpose of the organization was "to promote the First Amendment" by organizing and speaking out against any violations of the amendment.

A typical meeting will include the discussion of any developments in the news and media concerning the First Amendment or other Constitutional rights. Blythe stated that any person interested in the First Amendment and other Constitutional rights--whether atheists, Christian, agnostic, etc.--is welcome to attend the meetings.

Blythe's first reaction about the charter was that he was "glad" but "not surprised."

See A.A., p. 8.

Jeff Blythe, A.A. Chairman.

Letters

Resignations criticized

To the Editor:

On Oct. 29, 1981 the following persons resigned from certain positions they held: Steve Griffin, Ed Paul, and Bill Samson, were the men who resigned. According to the letters they turned in to Steve Schmidt, president of the SGA, all three felt that due to different and conflicting interests that they would be unable to continue to do the job effectively as they should. My question is why they felt that doing the job as assigned by the SGA could not be done simply because they didn't like the man they reported to? This implies that they were unable to do the job in the first place; protecting the students' rights before their own desires or wants! The three men were elected by the students, but they are working towards their own ends.

Sincerely,

Dave Kermion
Concerned Student

Networks don't give proper coverage

To the Editor:

Imagine for a moment, that you have just entered H. G. Wells' "Time Machine", and have regressed back to Oct. 17, 1981 in Yorktown, Va. I was a sunny fall morning with a raging battle between Lord Cornwallis' British troops and the combined American-French forces under General George Washington.

The air was filled with the boom of cannons, the crackle of musketry, the cries of the wounded, and the crisp, resounding orders of troop commanders. The atmosphere was charged with human emotions—emotions of life and death, defeat and victory, hope and hopelessness.

Suddenly there appeared a red-coated drummer-boy on a British earthwork signaling for a parley. It was a sight to behold—a sight that had more of a symbolic, than physical, significance. It was the symbol of freedom for Americans.

Two days later, Lord Cornwallis surrendered his army to General Washington, and, ironically, a British band played, "The World Turned Upside Down". On that very day, the Marquis de Lafayette, the French commander, said to Washington: "The play, sir, is over".

All of this and much more happened 200 years ago. The events that took place during Oct. 16-19, 1781 changed the course of modern history. They signalled the birth of a nation—a nation of freedom, hope, and opportunity for mankind.

200 years later, the history was re-enacted by a group of dedicated men, women, and children—young and old. It was a splendid performance, so authentic that one didn't need a "Time Machine" to experience it.

Unfortunately, amidst all of this was a tragic note—a very limited TV coverage by the major networks. It is ironic that the networks have enough time to televise the violence of boxing, the stupidity of "Charlie's Angels", and the hypocrisy of Billy Graham's crusades, but only a few minutes for the re-enactment of perhaps the greatest historical moment in the modern times.

Undoubtedly, Alis, "Angels", and crusades are a part of America, but are they as significant as America's bicentennial victory celebration? An adequate coverage would have provided millions of Americans with a lesson in American heritage, sacrifice, courage, and human dignity. A lesson in mankind.

Vday S. Tate
Business Department

'Sex is a very beautiful and wonderful thing'

To the Editor:

I was greatly disturbed by the article "Unwanted Pregnancies on the rise at UNCW", which appeared in the Oct. 8 edition of The Seahawk. The statistics are shocking enough, but what especially bothered me was the manner in which the article was written. It made it sound as if everyone is having sex and that saying no is no longer an option. I would like to remind everyone that it is very much an option, and a very wise one.

Don't take me wrong. I'm not saying that sex is bad. We are creations of God, and it is He that gave us our sexual drives and made it a pleasurable experience. He didn't have to do that. He could have created us such that there was no pleasure involved; such that it was merely a means of reproduction.

So sex in itself is not sinful. But premarital sex is sinful. The Bible calls it fornication and warns that it is to be avoided. Let me clear something up. Contrary to the false impression which many people have, God is not some cosmic sadist, who has laid down this set of rules so that he can blast us every time we step out of line. No, God is a loving father. He wants the very best in life for us. The commandments of the Scriptures are given for our benefit, not His. God knows us better than we know ourselves, because He made us. He knows that if we follow His commandments, we will have the very best lives possible.

Sex is a very beautiful and wonderful thing, in the context that God intended for it. "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife, and they shall be one flesh." You see, sex is a means to an end, not an end in itself. Within a marriage, sex becomes part of the whole experience of growing together, of becoming one, even as God intended it to be. Premarital sex cheats both yourself and your future mate. And for what? For a few brief moments of physical pleasure, which quickly dies away. I do not write to condemn anyone.

I want to commend the Student Health Center for their work. And I agree with the article. If you do choose to have sex, be sensible and use some form of birth control. But I would ask you to seriously consider what I've said and ask yourself, "Is it really worth it?"

Sincerely,
Brent L. Lewis

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

Walk against hunger Sunday

Ten thousand human beings died yesterday from hunger and malnutrition. Ten thousand die everyday. That's twice the number of UNCW students!

You may think the cafeteria food isn't all that great, but try no food at all and a five mile walk for water. As a matter of fact, try imagining what your house at home or apartment would be like if it were made into the kind of shack many third world people live in.

1. Take out the furniture, except a few old blankets, a kitchen table, and one chair.
2. Take away all the clothes except for the oldest dress or suit for each member of the family and a shirt or blouse. Leave one pair of shoes for the head of the family.
3. Empty the pantry and refrigerator except for a small bag of flour, some sugar and salt, a few moldy potatoes for tonight's supper, a handful of onions, and a dish of dried beans.
4. Dismantle the bathroom shut off the water, remove the electrical wiring.
5. Take away the house itself, and move the family into a toolshed.
6. Remove all the other houses in the neighborhood, and set up in its place a shantytown.
7. Cancel all subscriptions to newspapers, magazines, and book clubs. This is no great loss as the family is illiterate.
8. Leave one small radio for the whole shantytown.

9. Move the nearest clinic or hospital ten miles away, and put a midwife in charge instead of a doctor.

10. Throw out the bank-books, stock certificates, pension plans, and insurance policies, and leave the family a cash hoard of $5.

11. Give the head of the family three tenant acres to cultivate. On th is, he can raise $300 in cash crops, and give one-third to the landlord and one-tenth to the local money lender.

12. Take away 25 to 30 years in life expectancy.

People wish such a life, living in such daily anguish deserve and need our help.

You can make a difference. A Crop Walk for World Hunger is taking place this Sunday, November 8, at Greenfield Park, 2 p.m. Some of us are walking ten miles. (Would you believe Big Bird is walking? . . . No? O.K. Would you believe Bob Haywood dressed up as Big Bird is walking?) We need 25 cents a mile to motivate us. Won't you be a sponsor or even a walker? All money raised goes through an international relief agency, Church World Service, for hunger relief and food development projects across the world.

Call 799-1160 all day Friday and talk with Bob Bird (Bob Haywood) or Sonia Clark for more information or to make your pledge. After all, is $2.50 too much to keep someone alive this weekend? Think of it, that's less than the price of a movie. Call.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Robert Eubanks, Features Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley
Production: Wally Bengtson, Dave Newbern
Photography: Jan Loy, Jamie Moncrief
Staffwriters: Julie Russ, Dave Newbern, Judy stallsmith
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill
Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

OK, NOW TRY IT...

Student editors resign to protest removal of newspaper's advisor

Five student editors of the Chicago State U. student newspaper resigned recently to protest a decision to replace their faculty adviser with an administrator. The students say the change was made to stifle articles critical of the school, but CSU President Benjamin Alexander says it was merely "an efficiency move."

As a result of the resignations, all five editors of Tempo lost their writing scholarships, and one, former Editor Bernadette Dunn, was forced to leave school for financial reasons. Alexander says the administration offered to help find new scholarships, "but none of them have come to us asking for that help."

The students and their former adviser, James Friend, a 13-year veteran in the position, believe he was replaced because he resisted administrative attempts to control what the Tempo published and because he had filed a grievance with the American Federation of Teachers last fall over an increase in his class load.

At the heart of the censorship complaint is a series of guest editorials written by a former administrator and current CSU chemistry professor. The articles criticize Alexander's administration and question CSU's lowly academic standing among other Illinois state schools, Friend says. After the first in the series ran, he adds, he was told by James Doptke, assistant vice president for academic affairs, that Alexander "only wanted articles that reflected a positive image of the school," and asked to tell student editors not to run the other installments. When he refused to do so, Friend says Doptke asked if Alexander could see all the articles before they ran, so he could respond in the same issue. That request was also refused.

Alexander admits seeking prior viewing rights, but says it was a request only. He has recommended prior screening and simultaneous rebuttal rights ever since the paper was sued for libel by a professor three years ago, he says.

Friend's removal had nothing to do with those articles, Alexander says, and was only an effort by the vice president for academic affairs, William Sutton, to streamline operations by putting all student publications under one person - Ulysses Chambers, an assistant to Sutton. Chambers has advised other publications and replaced Friend for one term while the latter was on sabbatical. Friend says student editors repeatedly came to him for help during that term because Chambers was unavailable. Alexander says he found students who had worked with Chambers liked him.

Both men agree the victims in this episode are the student journalists who walked out - after publishing a final edition that contained their resignation letters, the final edition that contained their resignation letters, the final two articles in the controversial series and a news story on Friend's removal. All of the students except Dunn remain in school. She is searching for work and hoping to return, after being shocked to learn, while trying to register, that her scholarship had been "deleted."

Dunn still believes she and the others were right in leaving. "If they had given us another faculty member, we wouldn't have walked out,"

she says. "But how can the paper function under an administrator? They want to make Tempo a public relations sheet."

Alexander insists he is unfairly cast as the villain in this play. "The students were taken advantage of in this situation," he says. "They're being used. They got all hot about censorship. Well, there hasn't been any censorship - it was an administrative decision, done for efficiency. All we asked them to do was try it - if it didn't work out, we'd change it."

Dunn and Friend say the Tempo may not survive any more changes. "I don't know how they're going to get a paper out - everyone who knows anything about writing, editing, typesetting, paste-up, anything really is gone," says Dunn. "I just want to see the paper survive this."

Biology Department logo contest underway

Artistic creativity and imagination are in demand and will be rewarded by the Biology Department. There are many aspects of Biology that could serve as a model for the logo which is needed to officially represent the Department. The logo should be submitted on 8 1/2" by 11" plain white paper to the Biology Club mailbox in the Biology Department office, NO LATER THAN Monday, November 23rd. Your name, address and telephone number should also be submitted on an attached sheet of paper.

Your efforts will be well rewarded by prizes valued at over $50, however those who enjoy the beauty of nature and truly appreciate Biology will find the prizes invaluable. The first prize winner will receive: Field Guide to the Atlantic

Seashore; Field guide to the Bird East of the Rockies; Wildflowers of the Outer Banks, Kitty Hawk to Hatteras, and New Hanover Banks; Then and Now; as well as a Biology Club T-shirt (with the official logo) and 2 tickets to the Spring Shark Fry sponsored by the Biology Club. The second prize winner will also receive his/her choice of 1 of any 4 books as well as a

T-shirt.

The Biology Club is sponsoring the event as well as many others, including a shark fry to be held on November 14, and a can drive which is being held in the Marine Science Building. Meetings are held on Wednesdays at 12 noon in MS 151 - so come and join the fun. Remember - Deadline for logo contest entries is November 23rd.

This space contributed by the publisher

American Cancer Society

We want to cure cancer in your lifetime

UPB CONCERTS

Sound Seventy
PRESENTS

THE
Charlie Daniels
BAND

FULL MOON TOUR

WITH SPECIAL GUEST
CHUCK LEAVEL TRIO

SAT., NOV. 21, 8PM

ALL TICKETS RESERVED
$8.50 STUDENTS, $9.50 PUBLIC

TRASK COLISEUM
UNCWilmington

Ticket Outlets: Coliseum Box Office, UNCW Student Activities Office,
School Kids Records, Gillhams Guitar Works, Record Bar (Wilmington Jacksonville)

OH NOOOO
I FORGOT

IF YOU FORGOT TO GET YOUR YEARBOOK PICTURE TAKEN . . . YOU HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE . . .

IN THE PUB* ROOM 107
NOV. 9 through 11 9 am - 4 pm

SLIGHTLY LESS THAN HALF THE STUDENT BODY HAS HAD THEIR PICTURE TAKEN. DO NOT BE LEFT OUT*
THIS IS YOUR LAST CHANCE!
$2.00 SITTING FEE TO COVER COST OF PROOFS.
THEY MAKE GREAT INEXPENSIVE
CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Domino's Pizza Delivers

At Domino's Pizza we promise a hot, nutritious meal delivered in 30 minutes or less. Your pizza is made with 100% real dairy cheese, our own special sauce, and your choice of items. Then we deliver it fast—at no extra charge. Give us a call...we deliver!

Fast, Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

Our drivers carry less than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.

©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $4.25
16" cheese $6.15

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Onions, Green Peppers, and Sausage.
12" Deluxe $7.65
13" Deluxe $11.15

The Vegi
5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives, Onions, Green Peppers, and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $7.65
16" $11.15

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Onions, Anchovies, Green Peppers, Olives, Sausage, Ground Beef, Hot Peppers, Double Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Pepsi/quarts
Customer pays deposit.

We use only 100% real dairy cheese.

Free
Pepperoni

On any 16" pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 11/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16564/5526

Free
Pepperoni

On any 12" pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 11/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16564/5526

Free extra thick crust

On any 16" pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 11/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16564/5526

Free extra thick crust

On any 12" pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 11/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16564/5526

1 quart of Pepsi

With any pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 11/18/81

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656
16564/5526

SAE to hold their annual Mega-Leg Party

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon are continuing the party tradition they established this semester by holding their annual Mega-Leg Party Nov. 7.

Held each year as a last-rites ceremony before plunging into the cold, clothed depths of winter, the brothers and their lady friends gather in a semi-dressed state to celebrate one of the joys of living at the beach—the bare facts of summer.

All of the brothers are very enthused, and the word is being spread among the many young ladies who have attended parties in the past.

This will be one of the last major parties as the brothers of SAE wind down one of the best semesters in their history.

After a five-week stretch of continuous parties, attended by ever-growing numbers of fellow students, the brothers feel they have truly established a precedent for next semester. According to Jeff French, president of SAE, "This has been the best semester yet. We've had more ladies at our parties than we've had brothers—and we all love that!"

All of these parties aided in attracting to the fraternity eight young men who will be the first pledge class to be initiated since SAE received its National Charter Sept. 26. The pledges have engaged in several projects for the brotherhood, and will be conducting a fund raising campaign later this semester.

Several of the pledges have earned respect for their performance on the SAE football team. The team's record stands at 2-1, with games coming up against TNK and Chi Phi.

The brothers of SAE encourage anyone interested in joining to attend the parties and other social functions. SAE stands for a degree in friendship, and extends a hearty welcome to all young men who would like to see what it is that makes SAE the number one fraternity in the nation.

Coffeehouse sponsors contest

It's that time again... To get your act together!! The Coffeehouse Committee's Half-Moon Productions is sponsoring its "Local Vocals Talent Contest" once again! It's a fun-filled night of student talent and a chance for you to feel the pangs of stardom or be a rowdy crowd pleaser for an evening! Anything goes in this show and all types of entertainment - musical, comical, or off the wall - are all encouraged to take part.

So if you love singing in the shower, being the comic at a party, or would like to show your real potential talent get your act ready, bring your back scrubber and 'Mr. Microphone', and join the crowd!

The contest will be held on Thursday, November 12, 1981 at 8:30 in the Good Wood Tavern. Prizes (by local merchants) will be awarded to those who participate in this student-judged show.

So come by the Program Board Office and sign up in room 101 in the Pub and join the fun!

Or if you want to, come join the wild, zany night of entertainment and lay back and watch the fun! You'll enjoy the sometimes pathetic, sometimes hilarious, but always outrageous and always entertaining! Join us in the Good Wood on the 12th for a great time!

Nuclear war threat to be discussed

The threat of nuclear war will be the subject of a convocation in King Hall Nov. 11 3-5 p.m. and 7:30 - 10 p.m.

Sponsored by the Union of Concerned Scientists, the purpose of the convocation is to bring together the faculty, students, and community for an educational exposition concerning the threat of nuclear weapons, the growing possibility of nuclear war, and the urgent need to reduce the risk.

Lectures, films, poetry readings, and music are planned to stimulate awareness of nuclear issues.

The convocation is open to all members of the community. For further information call 791-4330, ext. 2368, 2407.

YOU WANT PERMISSION TO GO INTO TOWN?

BUT WHY? DON'T YOU LIKE THE GREAT OUTDOORS? DON'T YOU LIKE CAMPING UNDER THE STARS?

I DISAGREE

THERE'S MORE TO LIFE THAN DISCO AND ROOT BEER!

PEANUTS® by Charles M. Schulz

ALL RIGHT, GO AHEAD! GO INTO TOWN, AND DISCO ALL NIGHT!

WHAT DO I CARE IF YOU WEAR YOURSELVES OUT? YOU'LL LEARN!

AND DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME! I CAN TAKE CARE OF MYSELF...

I'LL SIT HERE BY THE FIRE, AND PORK OUT ON MARSHMALLOWS!

UNC-W Program Board Lectures and McDonald's present

"What's Up, Doc?"

Starring MEL BLANC

—the famous voice of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Daffy Duck, Woody Woodpecker, Barney Rubble, Sylvester the Cat, Yosemite Sam... and others!

In Person — 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 5, 1981
Kenan Auditorium

Tickets: $2.50 General Admission
$1.00 UNC-W students, senior citizens,
and children under 12

Tickets available at: UNC-W Student Activities Office
School Kids Records Belk-Beery Co.
T-Shirts Plus - Long Leaf Mall

Sports

Seahawks finish '81 soccer season with 9-8 record

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

The men's soccer team, ranked ninth in last week's Southern Region poll, closed its season out this week with a loss Tuesday to Duke, the nation's 12th-ranked team.

In two other games played last week, the Seahawks defeated Methodist, 4-0 last Wednesday, and fell to South Carolina Sunday, 3-2. The Hawks final record was 9-8.

The Methodist game was a milestone for coach Calvin

Lane. It marked his 100th win in 11 years at UNCW. This season brings Lane's overall record to 100-60-10.

"I'm pleased and honored," said Lane, "but the honor must be given to all who have played here. It's a tribute to the players as much as it is to me."

When Lane took over the UNCW soccer program in 1971, the Seahawks had had only one winning season in six previous years. Under Lane, the Hawks have been winners for the past seven years, including a 54-23-5 record over the past five years.

Another milestone reached in the Methodist game was the school record for assists in one season, 13 by junior Dave Karlson. His one assist to freshman Kevin Cox in the second half brought Karlson's career mark to 30, also a school record.

Karlson also scored on an assist from Dennis Davis.

Other Seahawks who scored were Cox, his second of the game, and freshman Lee Morgan as UNCW outshot the Monarchs, 43-1.

In Columbia, S.C., UNCW battled back twice to knot the score at 1-1 and 2-2 by halftime. However, in the second half the Gamecocks, ranked eighth in the South, scored the clincher with nine minutes left to play.

The Hawks were dealt a serious blow to their goalkeeping position as Bill Lawson and Mike Lyons both had injuries, and sweeper Jim Slowinski was forced into unaccustomed goalkeeper duties.

"I was played with the way the team played," Lane said, "but we let them score a couple of easy goals, and that cost us the game."

One Seahawk playing his best of the season has been senior co-captain Davis, who had five goals and three assists in the last seven games, of which UNCW won four.

Dennis Davis

"Dennis seemed to regain his old form from last year," Lane said. "It was something we needed earlier this season."

Editor's Note: Keith Donnelly, the Seahawks' soccer writer, will have a season wrap-up in next week's issue.

Running 'Hawks win at home

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

The men's cross country team closed out its regular season Saturday with a pleasing dual-meet win over Francis Marion College, 24-37. It was an especially rewarding victory because the Seahawks haven't beat Francis Marion in two years.

The race, held at home, was another strong, group effort which coach Atwill called "a good example of team tactics in cross country - we had seven runners between their second and third man."

Atwill was also pleased with everyone's times for the effort and UNCW's number-one finisher, sophomore George Walker, who placed second overall in 34:42.6, a time which is as fast as anyone from UNCW has ever run the course.

Atwill was especially impressed with freshman Tom Christian, who overcame a leg injury and moved up to sixth place overall, fourth for UNCW.

See X-Country on p. 7.

Coach Calvin Lane

Intramural events planned next week

The intramural sports office will hold its annual bowling tournament and cross country meet next week for UNCW students, staff and faculty.

The bowling tournament will begin next Tuesday at Cardinal Lanes on Shipyard Blvd. There will be a cost of 95 cents per game. Registration deadline is Friday.

The cross country meet will take place at 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12. It will be a three-mile race around the campus. Deadline for registration is Monday.

Basketball registration begins Friday, Nov. 13, and will run through Wednesday, Nov. 25.

FLAG FOOTBALL STANDINGS (thru Thursday 10-29)

League A	W-L	League B	W-L
CC Rednecks	3-0	Chi Phi	3-0
Kegmen	3-0	Pi Kap	2-1
Chiefs	2-1	No Fat Chicks	2-1
Low Life	2-2	SAE	1-1
Skeets	1-1	LT's	1-2
Locals	0-3	TNK	0-2
69ers	0-3	3rd Hewlett	0-3

Sports Calendar

Thursday

Women's golf at NCAA Division III Region II tournament in Williamsburg, Va. concludes.
Volleyball at Wake Forest, with UNC-Greensboro.

Friday

Intramural bowling contest sign-up deadline.

Saturday

Football Club vs. Duke, 1 p.m.

Sunday

Women's Soccer Club at Chapel Hill club.

Monday

Third Annual Fun Run, 3 p.m. Intramural cross-country meet sign-up deadline.

Tuesday

Intramural bowling tournament begins at Cardinal lanes.

Wednesday

Intramural bowling tournament concludes.

Cheerleading is a sport, too

If cheerleading is not a sport, what is it?

"People don't think of cheerleading as a sport, but when you're on the squad, it seems like one," said Sue McKinney, co-head of this year's cheerleading squad. "We work just as hard (as athletes), and we're devoted and loyal just as much as they are."

This year's squad has seven girls from last year, plus five freshmen. Also returning is Paul Yelverton, one of only three male cheerleaders last year, and co-head with Sue this year.

"We're still trying to get guys out," said McKinney, a senior from Virginia Beach, Va. "We started late this year. We didn't have tryouts until the last day of September. Guys make the squad 100 percent better."

Along with Yelverton, a junior from Kenansville, are five other guys: Bill Price, a junior from Shallotte; Kirk Bateman, a sophomore from Rocky Mount; and three freshmen, Eric Squires and Troy Richards of Raleigh, and Craig Watson of Rocky Mount.

More guys are welcome to attend practices every Monday and Wednesday.

Other returnees to the girls' group are senior Julia Stephens of Lumberton; junior Lelia McEachern of Wilmington; and sophomores Cathey Woods of Durham, Kim Brookshire of Southern Pines, Teresa Ferrell of Bladenboro, and Janet Nagle of Wilson.

The 1981-82 UNCW Cheerleaders

Newcomers are Julie Turner of Raleigh, Mary Carol Spangler of Durham, Sophie Lewis of Kinston, Becky Ferrell of Wilson, and Karen Zimmerman of Davie County.

One of the squad's first activities will be a car wash and doughnut sale at The Patio Saturday, Nov. 14 to buy new uniforms. The squad is also planning other bake sales and pep rallies the nights before important home basketball games.

"We're still going through the proper channels for the pep rallies," McKinney said. "We've planned three, and we hope to get beer (allowed at them)."

Like last year, the cheerleading squad will be working closely with the Seahawk mascot, the body language of Dave Karlson, the unidentified masked old man, and "the home court advantage" to cheer UNCW to victory.

Freshman standout Kevin Cox shoots for high goals

by Vickie Maynor
Sports Writer

A good athlete is a valuable asset to any team. Kevin Cox seems to fit that mold. He is young, a hard worker, and dedicated to soccer.

a 5-8, 135-pound freshman. Kevin is one of the smallest players on the Seahawk soccer team.

"The fans find my small size a little hard to accept," he said. "The other team members haven't given me any flack about it though."

Kevin's statistics speak for his play. In 16 games this season Kevin has scored seven goals - the most by a UNCW freshman in five years - and has scored two goals on three occasions.

"Kevin is a good athlete," said coach Calvin Lane. "He is quick, anticipates well in soccer, and he's fundamentally sound. I think he'll develop into an excellent college player."

A life-long resident of Wilmington, Kevin attended New Hanover High School where he was an all-conference soccer player his senior season. In addition to soccer practices five days a week, he also works part-time at Boseman's Sporting Goods.

"If I don't make a career out of soccer, then I would like to go into the sporting goods business," Cox, a business major, said.

Some of Kevin's hobbies include surfing, snow-skiing, and anything athletic.

"I feel that the off-season is very important to an athlete. During the season, you practice every day but it's also important to stay in shape when not playing."

"I found out in the ninth grade that I really liked soccer a lot," he said. "My junior year in high school is when I really began to take it seriously though."

"If I improved more in the next three years, then I would really like to play professionally. It would be just great because soccer is important to me."

Kevin Cox

Volleyball team faced with problems

It's hard to find many good things to say about a team whose talent outmatched any in recent history, yet has a 13-20 record. Such is the case with the Lady Seahawks volleyball team.

Coach Jackie Bartlett, in her second year at UNCW, said the season has been a difficult one because the team's problem - on and off the court - have been new and unique to her.

"It just so happens that in this one season we've had so many problems," she said. "I've never dealt with such player and team problems as these."

The problems off the court are personal conflicts for the players, which have interfered with their concentration on volleyball. The problems on the court have resulted mainly from a lot of disappointing losses.

"We've gotten beat by a lot of teams we shouldn't have lost to," Bartlett said, "and we've only beaten one team we weren't suppose to."

UNCW was 12-13 near mid-season, but have only won one of its last eight matches

Racquetball Club defeats Tar Heels

Despite playing without its top two players, the racquetball club soundly defeated UNC-Chapel Hill, 13-6 Saturday in Raleigh.

The Seahawks, defending state champions among N.C. colleges, had only six players instead on the customary eight players required for a match.

Missing on the trip were Mitch Covington and Dean of Students Gary Juhan, the club's strongest players.

"Two of us had to play four matches instead of the usual two, or else forfeit," said club president Andy Bowles.

Bowles and David Downey each played four matches, and won all of them. Double winners were John Mims, John Rich, and Tim Boerner. Rick Alsop won one match over the Tar Heels' top-ranked player.

"Our next match, which isn't confirmed yet, is here in Wilmington, Dec. 4, 5, and 6," Bowles said. "It will be co-sponsored by Miller Lite, and held at Center Court."

Coach Jackie Bartlett

through Saturday.

"Once you get on a losing streak," Bartlett said, "it's hard to get back up. We've lost a lot of confidence which has shown up more recently. We're lacking in that very much."

Bartlett did point out three players - freshman Sarah Womble, sophomore Bonnie Whitaker, and junior Maggie St. Ledger - as being "pretty consistent most of the season."

"We certainly have not reached our potential," Bartlett said, "and this is the most talent of any year we've had. Part of our problem has been being so young. We only have one player whose been playing here three years."

"It's definitely been a learning experience for me and some of the players," she said. "and as a result, next year we should be able to weed out some of these problems."

X-Country jump from p. 6.

A lot of runners seemed much improved, and many like junior Tim Jackson, cut minutes off their best personal times for the course.

Jackson, and sophomore Lee McInnis, both big of stature, unlike the typical lean cross country runners, finished strong.

Behind Walker, UNCW's top finishers were juniors Al Branley, fourth overall in 35:18.8, and Robbie Burke, fifth in 35:39.0.

The Seahawks will compete in the NCAA District III Regional meet Nov. 14, in Greenville, SC.

The race will be a good experience, according to Atwill. "We're going to the districts to try to enjoy running with the best in the country, and to work on personal records."

Notes...

The Football Club's game last Sunday with UNC-Greensboro was cancelled when UNC-G failed to show up. The Seahawks have another home game scheduled for Saturday at 1 pm against Duke. The Blue Devils defeated UNCW earlier this season, 3-0. . . . Also cancelled was Sunday's Women's Soccer Club match with East Carolina, for the same reason. Club representative Betty Jenkins said it was the third time this season a match has been cancelled, and the club will not put up with it anymore. Another match is scheduled for Sunday in Chapel Hill. . . . The Sailing Club will not compete against other schools until Dec. 5-6 in Charleston. Club president Walker Golder, whose name was spelled incorrectly in last week's issue of The Seahawk, said since the weather is getting so cold, there will be no more intra-club races, and points for the series cup will be totalled later this month. . . . Several members of the Surfing Club fared well in an Eastern Surfing Association contest held the past two weekends at Crystal Pier. Club president Mike Fitzpatrick was the best UNCW finisher, placing second in the 3-A level. Gregg Little took second in the 2-A, and Walker Golder finished third in the 1-A. Sophomore Bryan Tracy, competing in only his second tournament, won first place in the 1-A and 2-A levels, and finished eighth in the 3-A. "It's not very often that someone goes through all three levels," Fitzpatrick said. "It's almost unheard of to win all three levels in one day." Other competitors from UNCW were Andy Wiggmore, Mark Venters and Don Boltz. . . .

See Your Jostens' Display At

Place: Kingoff's Jewelry -

Date: November 5th - 14th

UNC-Wilmington Class Rings

10 N. Front St.

and

Independence Mall

Jostens

EXHIBIT, from p. 1.

Today many people are investing in animation cel paintings of all kinds, especially signed pieces. Of particular importance at this Exhibit is a collection of cel paintings featuring the popular Warner Bros. characters - Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Wile E. Coyote, the Roadrunner, Pepe Le Pew, and the Tasmanian Devil. Some of these paintings bear the signature of Chuck Jones, widely regarded as one of America's foremost animators.

Competing for the collector's attention are animation cels from Ralph Bakshi's best-known productions: "American Pop" and "Wizards." Some of these cels have been signed by Ralph Bakshi.

Another highlight of this Exhibit/Sale is the artwork from "Gnomes," an imaginative and popular fantasy film based on the best-selling book.

Finally, the Exhibit/Sale will include cels from dozens of other cartoons from vintage Krazy Kats and Betty Boops to cels from current television shows.

The interest in animation art work as a collectible and as Fine Art has burgeoned in recent years. Part of this growth has to do with the generally reasonable prices for original art work. Writing in Rarities (Summer 1981), a magazine devoted to Collectibles, Leonard Shannon explains, "... animation art is still affordable. All kinds of paintings can be bought for less than $50. But regardless of price, any artwork created for an animated film is, by its very nature, unique and collectible."

Permanent collections of animation art may be found in major museums across the country such as the Museum of Modern Art, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the San Francisco Museum of Art. Original animation art was the subject of a two-month Exhibit at the Library of Congress in Nov. 1978 and this summer, an elaborate Exhibit was held at the prestigious Whitney Museum of Art in New York City, attracting enormous interest.

AA, from p. 1.

He feels that it is his Constitutional right to form an A.A. chapter on campus. He said, "Now that it's been formed, people will see that I'm not a heathen."

The first meeting of the A.A. is expected to be next week. For further information, Blythe can be contacted at 392-694.

Markum discusses 'Stromatolites'

"Stromatolites" was the topic discussed in a lecture given Oct. 15 by Charles D. Markum of the Earth Sciences Department.

Markum, a new faculty member who received his undergraduate degree in Geology from the University of Colorado and his two masters degrees in Geology and Botany from the University of Florida. He comes to UNCW from the University of Maryland, where he taught in the European Division.

Stromatolites are the remains of very ancient algae usually found in Precambrian rocks, which are more than 570 million years old. They are located in the laminated structures formed by colonial algae, which consist in bun-like masses. The major areas where the stromatolites are located are ancient shorelines, and in coral forms of reef development.

Markum's research has carried him to the Funflint area of Canada, the site of his most intensive study. He used slides of the areas, examples, and charts to display the significance of his findings. Markum also prepared an handout as an aid in simplifying his research.

Ainsley lectures on area architectural resources

by Chuck Sullivan
Journalism Contributor

"Architectural Resources of Southeastern North Carolina," was the title of the lecture Oct. 28 given by Dr. Frank Ainsley, professor of Geography.

The lecture was held as one of a series of seminars sponsored by the Earth Sciences Department.

Ainsley's expertise is in the field of cultural, and urban geography. He received his Doctorate from UNC-Chapel Hill, and is presently working in conjunction with the Division of Cultural Resources in Raleigh.

As a part of that work he is surveying southeastern North Carolina area and determining the historical and architectural significance of structures in the region. The reason for the grant is to determine the community evolution and decide what structures are worth saving in the renewal process. Such a study will also aid in reference to a comprehensive planning concept.

The research may also be entered into the National Register of Historic Buildings.

Included in the research is the study of what Ainsley termed "vernacular architecture," or the characteristic of the locality.

Ainsley outlined the features of architectural resources in five types; 1) Distric- exemplified by the historic distric in Wilmington, 2) Site- such as an indian ruin or colonial building site, 3) Buildings- any structure of historical significance, 4) Structures- best exemplified by bridges, and 5) Objects- such as a fountain.

He went on to list the different house types found in this area with an extensive slide show of those examples found in the area.

Higher averages needed to continue at UNCW

The retention chart which shows the quality point average for eligibility to continue in the University of North Carolina at Wilmington is printed on page 67 of the 81-82 catalog. The averages are higher than they were in previous years.

The pre-registration period is the time to check yourself out. In planning a spring 82 schedule, you should:

1. Compare your GPA with the GPA average listed on the chart. This calls for some realistic projection with regard to the present semester. Ask "What is the grade I really think I will earn?", not "What would I like to earn?"
2. Discuss your academic situation with your advisor. Be sure that both you and the advisor know exactly what your status is. Sound academic planning is essential.

Retention ChartTotal Hours Attempted

6-26
27-58
59-88
89 or more

Required Quality Point Average for Eligibility To Continue in the University

1.2
1.5
1.8
2.0

Homecoming help needed

Important! Anyone that has had experience in Homecoming Activities or anyone wishing to help make this year's Homecoming week against ECU a success is needed! There will be a meeting Nov. 11th in the Pub at 8:00 p.m. for all interested people!

Keep Red Cross ready.

Watch this spot for the first episode of:

Seahawk-Man

Master of Land, Sea, and Air

BURRITO BOB'S

Mexican Restaurant

Tues. UNCW Night - ID Required

— HOURS —
TUES. - SUNDAY 11-11
CLOSED MONDAY

392-6520

5901 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

Lifelong habit of losing things baffles family, friends

Frankly, I'm worried. Here it is only Monday and already I'm missing things. Like: my watch, a new Bic lighter, an English book, and my apartment key. Maybe I'm wrong, but I think there is cause for concern here.

All my life I've lost things. I lost my baby teeth before anyone knew I had them. I once lost a $50 bill, only to find it two days later...inside a copy of Reader's Digest. Needless to say, I immediately bought a bookmark-and promptly lost that. I think I left it in the library somewhere.

I've lost dogs, cars(!), friends, clothes, cigarettes, checks,

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

jewelry, retainers, wallets, shoes, records, and more ink pens than I care to count. I've lost my driver's license twice in the past six weeks, so if you're ever in a bar at Wrightsville Beach and find my ID, would you please...?

And if losing things isn't enough, I also have a habit of getting myself hopelessly lost.

This is a quirk that baffles friends and family alike. I cannot find my way back from the mailbox unless I leave a trail of crumbs behind.

If you're ever in Savannah, Ga., please don't mention my name-they remember me there. I'm the one who forgot where the motel was and wandered around downtown without a clue for several hours.

I don't enjoy shuffling around in a daze, but my sense of direction is totally mil. I tend to point south when I mean west, and vice-versa. And yes, I have been known to cruise down one-way streets the wrong way....

Have you ever wandered around for half an hour trying to remember where you parked your car? Well, have you ever had to go home with somebody because you never could find the damn car? It's not fun, folks.

I think the ultimate experience was the time my brother took me to a bar in Myrtle Beach, and proceeded to leave with the barmaid. I remained cool until closing time, when the bouncer began giving me predatory looks. I calmly walked out and began home-or at least I assumed that's where I was going. My brother said I was heading towards Charlotte when he finally found me.

But I think I've figured out a solution to this whole situation. My dad bought me a compass, see, so I always know which way I'm going. It seems like I left it in the car...or maybe on top of the bookcase...or maybe in the room?

'Local Vocals Talent Contest' is here again

It's that time again...To get your act together!! The Coffeehouse Committee's Half-Moon Productions is sponsoring its "Local Vocals Talent Contest" once again! It's a fun-filled night of student talent and a chance for you to feel the pangs of stardom or be a rowdy crowd pleaser for an evening! Anything goes in this show and all types of entertainment - musical, comical, or off the wall - are all encouraged to take part.

So if you love singing in the shower, being the comic at a party, or would like to show your real potential talent get you act ready, bring your back scrubber and "Mr. Microphone", and join the crowd!

The contest will be held on Thursday, November 12, 1981 at 8:30 in the Good Wood Tavern. Prizes (by local merchants) will be awarded to those who participate in this student-judged show. So come by the Program Board Office and sign up in room 101 in the Pub and join the fun!

New Psi Chi members initiated last Friday

Psi Chi, the National Honor Society in Psychology, held an initiation ceremony and banquet Friday, Oct. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Boucan Room in Wilmington. Officers for the local chapter were installed, and 14 new members were inducted. Banquet speaker was Dr. William H. Wagoner, Chancellor at UNCW, and his speech topic was "The Pursuit of Truth and Excellence."

New officers for Psi Chi locally are Ella Jayson, President; Marcia Avedon, Vice President; Kathleen Hornyak, Secretary; and Sonja Robinson, Treasurer. The new members are Cindy Bailey, Robert Eubanks, Jan Hendrickson, Jana Holliday, Virginia Holloway, Nancy Lees, Jerri May, Sandy Moskowit, Sheila Phillips, Stacy Smaltz, Barbara Spencer, Charlotte Stanley, Dorothy Thomas, and Carolyn Tshona.

Membership in Psi Chi is open for Psychology majors who have completed 12 semester hours of psychology courses, and rank in the highest 35% of their class in general scholarship and demonstrate superior scholarship.

Senate votes on funding cutoff

Over a year after student fee funding was withdrawn from the Pikes Peak Community College newspaper, former editors are still seeking a day in court, and current journalism students are still publishing an independent newspaper.

The funding cutoff came in June of 1979, on a vote by the student senate. The senator cited the failure of the Pikes Peak News to submit a proper budget and constitution, but senators also publicly criticized the paper for "negativism, inaccuracies and unbalance." Two former editors filed suit to have the funding restored on First Amendment grounds.

Their case is now in district courts, says John Rodwick, vice president of student Affairs at PPCC. "A request for dismissal has been filed by the attorney general's office, on the grounds that the original plaintiffs are no longer students," says Rodwick.

"Whatever happens, we expect to hear pretty soon."

Rodwick believes that the Pikes Peak Fuse, a news magazine produced from journalism department offices but entire self-supporting, provides adequate campus communications. "I recognize the amount of space (for news) is less," he says. "But the message doesn't seem to be reduced. They deal with some of the same issues."

Representatives of the Fuse staff were unavailable for comment.

Mike Cross

Advance Tickets

Gilham's Guitar Works
Record Bar
School Kids Records
Three Penny Gallery
Pitch & Post
UNC-W Bookstore
in Whiteville & Southport
1 S. Mann St.

PRESENTED BY
GILHAM'S GUITAR WORKS
THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD

TICKETS

Limited Student $5.50 Bookstore only
Public $6.50
All Seats $7.00 day of show

Beggsman
PRODUCTIONS

Sunday, November 8th
2 Shows - 7:00 & 10:00 P.M.
Kenan Auditorium - UNC-W Campus

Entertainment

Restaurants

Dining

Seahawk Restaurant - 4201 Market St. (Highway 17); featuring a seafood and ribs buffet-all you can eat; specializing in seafood, also serving ribeyes, chicken and chops; all ABC permits; Hours: serving Monday-Saturday at 5 pm, Sunday at 4 pm. 763-7300.

Dry Dock Seafood House - 5215 Oleander Dr.; specializing in seafood, also offers chicken, barbecue, steak and hamburgers; Visa and Master Charge accepted; take out service; Hours: 11 am - 9 pm Sunday-Thursday, 11 am - 10 pm Friday and Saturday. 799-7346.

Hieronymous Seafood Restaurant - 5035 Market St.; specializing in broiled and sauteed seafood; all ABC permits; Hours: 5-10 pm seven days a week, lounge opens at 4:30 pm. 392-6313.

Stemmerman's - 138 S. Front St.; an underground restaurant in the Historic District featuring Prime Rib and seafood; all ABC permits. 763-0248.

Skinner & Daniels Barbecue - 5214 Market St.; specializing in barbecued pork, chicken and sliced beef; Hours: 10 am - 9 pm Monday-Saturday; takeout orders until 9 pm. 799-1790.

Music

The Wilmington Concert Association is currently selling tickets for its 1981-82 season. Performances include the Smithsonian Jazz Repertory Ensemble Nov. 9; the Branko Krstanovich Chorus Jan. 28; pianist Malcolm Frager Feb. 15; the N.C. Dance Theatre March 1; and the Rochester Philharmonic, with violin soloist Boris Belkin March 31.

All concerts will be held in Kenan Auditorium. Admission will be by season membership only-$25 for adults and $15 for students-and may be ordered by check from the Wilmington Concert Association, P.O. Box 1769, Wilmington, N.C. 28402.

For more information call 762-54113 or 762-8388.

Mike Cross, Kenan Auditorium, Nov. 8.

Charlie Daniels Band, Trask Coliseum, Nov. 21.

Rod Stewart, Greensboro Coliseum, 8 pm Nov. 11.

Mike Cross Live 'N' Kickin' by Julie Russ Staff Writer

As every Carolinian knows, Mike Cross is a native son who just happens to be a singer, fiddler, storyteller, and performer extraordinaire. His albums are treasured cult classics, and his live shows draw record crowds. Given these facts, it seems logical that Mike's latest LP, Live 'n' Kickin' is a gut-busting set of in-concert tunes.

Live 'n' Kickin' has special appeal for college students and/or native Wilmingtonians due to Mike's repeated references to the area. Recorded in historic Thalian Hall, the LP is a fascinating blend of the nostalgic ("Kentucky Song") and the cut-loose, hoe-down ("Whiskey 'Fore Breakfast") sides of the artist.

THEATER

"Philadelphia, Here I Come," North Carolina School of the Arts, Agnes de Mille Theater, High Point Theater, 8 pm Nov. 5, 6, 7.

"Come Blow Your Horn," High Point Community Theater, High Point Theater, 8 pm Nov. 5, 6.

"The Miser," UNGC Aycock Auditorium, 8:15 pm Nov. 5, 6, 7 and 2:15 pm Nov. 8.

"The Norman Conquests: Living Together," Barn Dinner Theater, Greensboro, NC, 8:30 pm Nov. 8, 10, 11, 12.

"The Glass Menagerie," UNC-Chapel Hill, Playmakers

Repertory Company, Paul Green Theater, 7:30 pm Nov. 12.

MOVIES

Now playing: "Stripes," Manor Theater, rated R. Shows at 2:45, 5:00, 7:15, and 9:30.

"Halloween II," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"Paternity," New Center Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5, 7, and 9.

"Body Heat," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, and 9:30.

"Only When I Laugh," Independence Mall Cinema, rated R. Shows at 2:45, 5, 7:15, and 9:30.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5:15, 7:30, and 9:45.

"Galaxy of Terror," Long Leaf Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3, 5, 7, and 9.

"Kung Fu Executioner," Long Leaf Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"Time Bandits," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

Side One begins with audience anticipation - that is, a screaming crowd. (Cross fans are nothing if not loyal.) Then Mike launches into "Busted Man," a catchy ditty that will have you tapping your tootsies in seconds flat. An old favorite follows - the rib-splitting "Elma Turl," delivered with that special Cross flair.

"Old Paint Peeling," from The Bounty Hunter, sounded a bit better in the studio, but what the song lacks in technical proficiency is made up for by Mike's unabashed enthusiasm.

"The App. Rap/Grub Springs" cut is simply hysterical. Mike's tongue-cemented-in-check explanation of the Appalachian fiddle ("inside the sound chamber we place a live baby kitten") had fans shrieking with laughter. "Grub Springs" is a patented Mike Cross fiddle exercise, guaranteed to get you clogging.

"Kentucky Song," also from The Bounty Hunter, is a wistful look at heaven on earth, where "the bluegrass in the meadow lifts you right up to the sky..." Mike's voice actually quivers when he sings "...and I hope that I can go back to Kentucky when I die." He quickly picks up the pace with the wry "Down at the Lodge," a sketch of what it is like to be "just another Moose runnin' on the loose." Mike's big surprise on this number is his falsetto, which is definitely a crowd-pleaser.

Side Two opens with the rowdy "Whiskey 'Fore Breakfast" from the album Rock and Rye. Mike's fiddle-playing on this cut is exceptional, possibly the best heard on this LP. "Jelly Roll Man," another concert favorite, is your basic Mike Cross novelty tune, funny every time. The Bounty Hunter is excellent, a stand-out cut, if only because it showcases the drama Mike is capable of injecting into his performances.

If you have never heard "The Scotsman," then you're missing vintage Cross. Crowd enthusiasm is at its peak during this classic number.

The "Goodnight Medley" is just that, a collage of tunes that is Mike's farewell to his fans. During the deeply moving "Loch Lomond," Mike's fiddle is at once plaintive and inspiring. "The Banshee" and "—th of January" finds him in rare form. "June Apple" and a reprise of "—th of January" finish up this superlative effort by a man who never gives us less than his best.

Live 'n' Kickin' is no less than what we have come to expect from this fine performer. Mike Cross will be performing in Kenan Auditorium Sunday night.

Art

Exhibits

Recent paintings and other works by Claude Howell on display through Nov. 21 at St. John's Museum of Art. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Paintings by Ruth Hedge and Lillian Sneed on display through December at Poplar Grove Plantation, off U.S. 17 in Scotts Hill. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily, and noon until 6 p.m. on Sundays.

"Former North Carolina Artists," on display through Nov. 15 at the N.C. Museum Of Art, Raleigh.

"Silver Interactions," an exhibition of more than 50 photographs by 14 nationally and internationally recognized photographers on display through Nov. 1, in the Mendenhall Student Center Gallery, East Carolina University Museum Of Art. Also, an exhibition of works by 18 Southeastern photographers on display through Nov. 15.

Watercolors by Robert Irwin on display through Nov. 13 at Deacon Galleries, 109 Castle St. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Classes:

Oil, acrylic and pastel painting classes meet 7-10 p.m. Thursdays at St. John's Museum of Art, 114 Orange St.

Life drawing classes taught by Virginia Wright-Frierson meet 7:30-10 p.m. Wednesdays at St. John's Museum of Art.

Watercolor classes taught by Gladys Faris meet 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays at the Cowan House in Wilmington's Historic District.

For more information on any of these classes, call St. John's Museum of Art, 763-0281.

Animated paintings will be on sale and display in the Pub on Thursday and Friday.

Campus Calendar

Nominations for Who's Who are being made

Attention faculty and students nominations for Who's Who are now being made. Stop by the Dean of Students' Office, A-110, to pick up a nomination blank. Deadline: Wednesday, November 11, 1981.

Students will be evaluated on scholarship ability, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to his/her school, and potential for future achievement. Feel free to give additional information, comments, and observations.

Student telephone directories available

1981-82 Student Telephone Directories are now available at the Student Activities Office in the Pub, Room 101. These directories contain emergency procedures, emergency telephone numbers, general information on "where to go," a list of administrative officers and staff, departmental listings, academic calendar, sports calendar, as well as local address listings for all students who completed the local address card during the

In order to assist the selection process, the following guidelines are suggested: Only junior, seniors, and graduate students matriculated in undergraduate or graduate curriculum are eligible for nominations.

A person may be nominated only once as a junior, senior or graduate student. Nominations may be made by members of the faculty, administration, and student body. (Students may nominate themselves). At the time of nomination the student must have attained an overall GPA of at least 2.5.

ID validation process this fall.

All commuting students are requested to pick the books up at the Pub. The books will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Resident students will have their books delivered to the residence halls.

This book has been prepared by the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and is a must for all currently enrolled students.

Hunger Coalition holds 'Crop Walk'

The New Hanover Hunger Coalition is sponsoring the 3rd annual New Hanover Crop Walk. The Crop Walk is simply a walk-a-thon for world and local hunger. The hunger walk is scheduled for Sunday November 8, at 1 pm in the Greenfield Park Amphitheater.

Locally the proceeds will be used to maintain a county emergency food pantry. This year the pantry will be more necessary than ever with the cuts in social programs.

If your group or organization would like to participate please contact Mary Matthews at 343-1282. Runners and joggers are welcome too!

General Admission
Adults $5.00
UNCW Students, Children under 12, Senior Citizens over 65 $3.00

University Program Board
Special Events along with 63MFD and WWQQ presents

Trash Coliseum
Nov. 16-4 and 8 pm
Ticket Outlets UNCW
Bookstore [for UNCW
students]
Belk Berry, School Kid
Records, T-Shirts Plus

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems.
Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
FRIE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

Fugler spending year in Bolivia

Dr. Charles M. Fugler, professor of biology at UNC-W, is spending the 1981-82 academic year in the jungles of Bolivia as a Fulbright Research Scholar and a grantee of the Organization of American States.

Dr. Fugler is one of a group of research specialists from the U.S., Argentina, Bolivia, Portugal, Japan and West Germany, who are surveying the Amazonian biota of Bolivia.

Financial forms ready

1982-83 Financial Aid Application Forms may be picked up at the Financial Aid Office following the beginning of the Spring Semester but not before that time. The priority deadline date will again be March 15.

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.
$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]

Grill open Monday through Friday

50 Cents Off Roast beef Sub or Sandwich

Mon. Ladies' Night

Wed. College Night - 7 Kegs

Friday Afternoon

25 cent Hotdogs

4-7

Friday and Saturday
Live Entertainment

Recruiting Visits

Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co.

Mr. William R. Harwood

Tues., Nov. 10

Pos: Sales

Majors: Bus. Admn., All

Fieldcrest Mills

Mr. Jack T. Carter

Wed., Nov. 18

Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt.

Trainee

Majors: Acctg., Bus. Admn.,

Econ., Engineering Op.,

Psychology

Scotchman Stores

Mr. Tod McDonald

Tues., & Wed., Dec. 1 & 2

Pos: Mgmt. Trainee

Majors: All

F.B.I.

Mr. Charles Richards

Wed., Nov. 18

Pos: Special Agent

Majors: All

Thom McAn Shoe Co.

Mr. Alvin Padrick

Thurs., Nov. 5

Pos: Mgmt. Trainee

Majors: Bus. Admin., All

Internal Revenue Agent Register is open on a continuous basis for the Southeastern Region. The register will remain open until further notice.

U.S. Marine Corps

Capt. John S. Moore

Tues., Wed., & Thurs.,

Dec. 1, 2 & 3

Pos: Various

Majors: All

The Job Search

Thurs., Nov. 12

2:00 p.m.

Tues., Dec. 8

1:00 p.m.

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Find out what's going on -
read THE SEAHAWK

PEANUTS®

Classified

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court, Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Congratulations to:

Bobby Ford

Tommy Newton

Chuck Grissom

Dan Kempton

who represented UNC-Wilmington in the ACM programming contest held at UNC-Charlotte and placed second out of 18 teams.

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Termpapers,
etc....
call 791-0990

Experienced editor will copy-edit and/or edit your papers. Copyedit - $1.00 per page. Edit - $1.50 per page. Copyedit and edit - $2.25 per page. Call 392-3426 after 5 pm weekdays.

Lost: Small, black dog without collar. Mixed breed, terrier-dachshund. Last seen on campus Oct. 28. Dog answers to the name of Wesley. If found please call 799-2334. Ask for Chris.

WORKSHOPS

"Chosing A Major"

November 11, 1981

3:00 - 5:00 p.m.

Counseling and Testing Office

Room 106

James Student Services Building

'English for Internationals'

Conversational English for Internationals (Conversation, reading, and writing English). Free every Wednesday at 9:45 am. Winter Park Baptist Church, 4700 Wrightsville Ave., Wilmington. Call Mrs. Sally M. Lennon - 763-5585, Mrs. Lucille Brown - 763-5383 or Wilmington Baptist Association - 799-1160. Free nursery and transportation furnished.

Haircutter's Den

4607 Peachtree Ave. & College Rd.

Haircuts $5.00 with student I.D.

20% off on all chemical services

with student I.D.

No appointment necessary Closed Wednesday

Open late by appointment

Phone 392-5155

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center

Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In Window

kegs [we ice them down free]

cases

Wines

Six Packs

Party Mixers

Stop By After the Mike Cross Concert

A One Stop Beverage Shop

Across from Four Winds

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 9

November 13, 1981

Twelve Pages

Police victims of vandalism

by Jamie Moncrief
Staff Writer

The UNCW Campus Police Force were victims of a vandalism that occurred this week on Saturday around 10:30 p.m. As one of the officers left his three-wheeled "scooter" to make footrounds near the Chemistry/Physics Building, all three tires were slashed within the 15 minutes it took for the officer to return.

Chief Norman said "It's just senseless. It takes away from the students." In the longrun it is "paid for by the students."

Chief Norman also said he would give $25 out of his pocket for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandal(s).

Jack Hogan, the maintenance man who repaired the Cushman said "it was definitely a knife, as wide as they (the slashes) are."

Cost to repair the Cushman was around $130.

Mike Cross treats fans to music and laughter

by Julie Russ
Staff Writer

Mike Cross fans were treated to a night of music and laughter Sunday evening, November 8, as Mike returned to Kenan Auditorium with his own special blend of singing and storytelling.

Cross's Halloween concerts here were cancelled due to illness, but the stage Sunday was eerie and exciting, with mummy cases set up onstage and a genuine clogging mummy to enliven the atmosphere.

Mike performed twice that evening, with shows at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. His celebrated mountain twang was in rare form as he wisecracked and sang the tunes that have made him famous. He mixed songs from the past and present, weaving a magic web that captivated the audience.

"Carrboro Crossing" and "Grandpa Was a Fiddler" had cloggers in the crowd twitching with excitement. As the crucial moment, a replica of the King Tut mummy case yawned open and out stomped an unraveling, clogging relic from the past (a/k/a Mark Davis). This drew hysterical laughter and cheers from the fans, as the mummy danced his way across the stage.

"Kentucky Song", "The Bounty Hunter", and "Rock and Rye" revealed the introspective side of Mike Cross, the part of his music that is love and home and family... and even death, as he sings about the fate of the bounty

Mel Blanc brought his cartoon characters to life before a packed audience in Kenan Auditorium Thursday night. Adults and children came out to see "The man of a thousand voices."

Before the show Mr. Blanc insisted on dining in the school cafeteria. After a rushed lunch, he signed autographs for students and answered any questions.

Included in the show were several Warner Brothers award winning cartoons. After the lecture, Mel Blanc answered audience questions. At a press conference later Mr. Blanc was asked about the level of violence in the cartoons and answered sternly, "When the coyote blows up and is fine in the next scene, it's simply slapstick comedy, not violence."

Staff photo/Scott Sibley

hunter. Mike has a rare gift of holding an audience spell-bound as he enralls them with haunting fiddle reels like "Loch Lomond". When he sang the familiar words, "You take the high road an' I'll take the low road/An' I'll be in Scotland before you/Where me an' my true love will never meet again/On the bonny, bonny banks of Loch Lomond..." members of the crowd were visibly moved.

"Say What You Mean," a brand-new tune, is a lively up-beat number that had fans cheering for more. It features Mike's patented phraseology and is catchy enough to remind one of that old favorite "Mountain Mean." "Start Drawin' the Lines", from the "Rock & Rye" LP, showcased Mike's ability to rock and roll with the best.

Mike's voice was beginning to show strains of wear as he coughed a few times towards the end of the last show. After bidding the crowd goodnight, he was persuaded by the cheers and clapping to return for an encore. As pleading cries of "Nobby!" filled the air, he launched into what is perhaps his most beloved tune, the story of a pimp who "keeps track of his women."

From a critic's viewpoint, Mike's performance was excellent. From a personal standpoint, this writer has seen him in concert four times, and he has never failed to deliver first-rate entertainment. He is truly an outstanding performer, who is well-deserving of a place in musical history.

Staff photo/ Scott Sibley

Students and faculty pledged more than $200 to Big Bird for the Hunger Walk. Big Bird made it the full ten miles.

Mike Cross

Staff photo/ Scott Sibley

FOR GOD'S SAKE, PINOCCHIO... QUIT THAT JOB WITH THE NATIONAL ENQUIRER...

Letters

Criticism of

Billy Graham attacked

To the Editor:

In a letter in the November 5, 1981 issue of The seahawk, Viday S. Tate commented on "the hypocrisy of Billy Graham's crusades" in a reference to the network's poor coverage of a historical event. I resent this untrue statement which not only reflects on Billy Graham but on the Evangelical Christians who support him.

In the first place the networks do not "have time" for these crusades. These crusades use time paid for by the Billy Graham Association which is financed through the gifts of Evangelical Christians. These Evangelical Christians feel their primary duty is spreading the gospel of Christ. Many do this in part by supporting the Billy Graham Association.

The Billy Graham Association is one of only 2 religious broadcasters to receive the National Religious Broadcasters Council on Financial Accountability's seal of approval. Any charges of wrong doing ever leveled against the B.G.A. have been disproved. Two 1979 books from non-Christian publishers, Billy Graham: Evangelist to the World (Harper and Row by John Pollock) and Billy Graham: Saint or Sinner (Revell by Curtis Mitchell) provide more evidence that Billy Graham and his ministry are totally ethical and legal, in fact, unquestionable.

It is amazing to me that a man who assisted seven American presidents, who worked for unity around the world, and who was most recently in the news in Las Vegas for comforting people who lost loved ones in the M.G.M. Grand hotel fire is still so blatantly criticized on unfounded heresy. For over 40 years Billy Graham has helped and comforted millions. And for 40 years people have taken cheap shots at him. Too bad they did not listen instead.

Ronald J. Flora

Editorial

Solutions to erosion should use nature as a benefactor

One of North Carolina's most valuable resources was recognized last year by naming 1980 "the year of the coast". But long before 1980 it was evident that our coastline was being stolen! Even before Hatteras's National Seashore was introduced in 1933, "Mother Ocean" was extracting tons and tons of sand from North Carolina's beaches.

The barrier islands of North Carolina are subject to extreme change. They are some of the most mobile and versatile land masses in the world, other than glaciers. Extreme atmospheric conditions mold the terrain as lunar tides and pounding surf take their toll in the form of erosion.

Because of the beaches valuable potential, man has decided to confront nature and alter its course. Groins, jetties, breakwaters, and seawalls are examples of man's futile attempt to stop the beaches from moving. This type of beach stabilization has resulted in a sand-stripping effect as well as uglification of the coastal area. A more popular and costly type of beach stabilization is beach re-nourishment (the pumping of sand onto the beach). Wrightsville Beach is currently involved in a re-nourishment program. Re-nourishment is much more attractive than the previously mentioned methods of stabilization. But as federal funding is becoming less available communities will have to pick up the tab - the ocean will always continue to reclaim its shoreline.

Consequently, man has no choice but to work with nature in the future. Environmentalists have been saying this for years, but only now is it becoming evident to all parties concerned. The only hope for the resurrection of our beaches is to develop solutions which use nature as a benefactor, not any enemy. Such solutions as the sand bypass system and the Longard tube are proving to be quite promising. The sand bypass system uses artificial currents to transport sand while the Longard tube is a five-foot tall, sand-filled tube used as a buffer to protect beach front homes.

The beaches are moving and to try to stabilize our "Mother Oceans" unstable coastline will prove to be costly both monetarily and in terms of natural beauty.

Scott Shaffer
Journalism Contributor

Notice

Deadlines for all copy, ads, letters to the editor, etc., should be turned in to the SEAHAWK no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday for the next week's newspaper.

All copy, etc. is to be typed and double-spaced or it will not be accepted. The SEAHAWK reserves the right to edit all copy for publication.

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

Nuclear weapons prepare us to 'sacrifice anything and everything in the name of security'

It was a warm clear morning on August 6, 1945, when the Enola Gay appeared in the sky over Hiroshima, Japan. Out of her belly fell a force that was to change the world and begin a race toward oblivion. In a literal flash, tens of thousands of people were cremated and an entire city was destroyed. The firestorm that swept the city left the imprint of human shadows on stone as a memorial of that terrible day and perhaps a sign of what is to come if the race is not stopped.

As of 1981, the world arsenal nuclear weapons has increased from two in 1945 to more than 9,000 strategic nuclear bombs and 22,000 tactical nuclear bombs for the U.S. and 6,000 strategic and 15,000 tactical for the USSR.

We stand on the brink of nuclear annihilation and tell ourselves that increasing the number and sophistication of nuclear weapons makes us more secure. It seems we are prepared to sacrifice anything and everything in the name of security and in the name of protecting our way of life.

It seems immoral to me to take the major share of the world's resources from the daily needs of people and use them to make credible our threat and the Russian threat to commit mass murder. Such actions let others live in abject squalor as we divert funds to these weapons so that we might possibly survive a nuclear nightmare. If that is not wrong, then nothing is wrong.

For us who are Christian, the issue is more than immorality. We Christians have got to face facts - nuclear weapons are idols. The ultimate question is where we finally place our security. Biblical faith leads most Christians to say that security lies in the power and the presence of God.

It is obvious that we do not trust God. We trust our technology and skill to develop and threaten the use of these awesome weapons to keep us secure. That is idolatry. And our passive acceptance of these obscene and evil weapons gives the lie to our profession to trust in God as our "refuge and strength."

The people of the world must begin to speak out, to demand a stop to the insanity of the nuclear arms race, to seek a moratorium on construction of more weapons and then a reduction.

Idealistic you say? Perhaps. But history shows us that the will of common people can be heard and does have power. And, besides, our demands to stop the arms race is no more idealistic than the arms race itself is insane. I choose idealism.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Robert Eubanks, Features Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Jamie Moncrief

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Threat Of Nuclear War Convocation' held Nov. 11

On Nov. 11, UNC-Wilmington joined more than 130 colleges and universities in observing "The November 11 Convocation on the Threat of Nuclear War." Mini-lectures, films, music, and poetry readings focusing on the effects of nuclear war, weapons proliferation, and alternatives to the arms race were presented at King Hall Auditorium from 2-6 p.m. and 7:30-10 p.m.

The Convocation marked the beginning of a major public awareness effort sponsored by the Union of Concerned Scientists. Several of the nation's leading scientific, medical, defense and religious organizations cosponsored the Nov. 11 activities. These included the Arms Control Association, the Coalition for a New Foreign and Military Policy, the Council on Economic Priorities, the Council for a Livable World, the Federation of American Scientists, the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, the National Council of Churches, Division of Church and Society, and Physicians for Social Responsibility.

"The world is in mortal danger of nuclear war," warns Dr. Henry Kendall, Chairman of the Union of Concerned Scientists. "There is a greater need than ever before for an informed public which is active in reducing the grave nuclear risk. Proposals have been put forward by many thoughtful people for a negotiated end to the spiraling arms race between the superpowers. The Nov. 11 Convocation will give people in communities throughout the world the opportunity to discuss the potentially devastating effects of nuclear war and the means at hand to avoid this ultimate calamity."

For further information about the Convocation, please contact Dr. McGeviren at ext. 2407 or Markey Bee at ext. 2368.

Off-campus accomodations available

As the end of Fall semester draws near several of you dorm dwellers may be considering moving off campus.

Apartment living, beach living, or downtown are three of the options open to you. Apartment living is the topic in the first of a three part series on off campus housing.

There are several apartment complexes located near UNCW. The closest being College Manor, located on Fillmore Drive just across College Road from campus. Rent ranges from $200 per month for a single bedroom apartment, to $220 per month for a single bedroom townhouse. Rent includes water, sewage, trash pick-up, appliances, tennis courts and pool. All apartments offered at College Manor are unfurnished.

Country Club Apartment Complex is located on Hunt Club Road about a mile from campus. Rent ranges from $1440 per semester for an unfurnished single bedroom apartment to $1980 for a furnished two bedroom apartment.

Rent paid on the student plan includes electricity, water, sewage, trash pick-up, tennis court, and a swimming pool. Country Club requires a $200 security deposit that is refundable at the end of the school year.

University Arms is located off Peppy's Lane just behind College Manor. This complex offers 1, 2, or 3 bedroom apartments renting for $190, $220, and $265 respectively. All apartments are unfurnished and one month's rent is required as a security deposit. Rent includes water, sewage, trash pick-up and appliances.

These three complexes are located within walking distance of UNCW. The University Housing Office doesn't recommend any particular apartment complex. However, if these three are unacceptable they do offer a list of apartments put out by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Forensics Team places 8th

A Halloween victory came to the UNCW Forensics Team while competing at Appalachian State. Out of 35 schools which included the likes of Wake Forest, Duke, and Western Carolina, UNCW's team placed 8th.

Individual victories went to Mike Stroud who took a 3rd place trophy in Impromptu and a 4th in Persuasion. Brian Perry and Chris Cunningham took 6th place trophies in Dramatic Duo, and Chris Cunningham took a 1st place in Dramatic Interpretation.

After a very upsetting loss at Ohio State last month Dr.

Rosenthal, team coach, feels "very successful about the way things went at Appalachian State." He believes the team is not off to a winning start.

Mike Stroud, team chairman, is also very pleased with the team's performance and thinks the team is "beginning to get back on the winning track."

The team's next tournament will be at Shippensburg, Penn. on Nov. 13, 14, & 15. Anyone interested in working with the Forensics Team for the remainder of the term or next semester contact Dr. Rosenthal in Kenan Hall.

This space contributed by the publisher

Keep Red Cross ready.

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc... call 791-0990

A LIVING - LEARNING EXPERIENCE plus

A SAILING CRUISE THROUGH THE BAHAMAS

A unique opportunity for personal growth and a lot of fun is available to you March 6 to 14, 1981. During a week long cruise aboard the Shark II, a 55' sloop rigged sailboat, a group of persons commit themselves to use the experiences generated by living together in this new environment for personal awareness and growth.

The sailing is mainly in the Berry Islands of the Bahamas which are a group of basically uninhabited islands abounding in palm trees, white sand beaches and clear blue-green water. Under the guidance of an experienced captain, the participants crew the boat and learn basic sailing and navigation by compass during daylight and nighttime.

Planned and led by Bob Haywood of United Christian Campus Ministry at UNC-W, who has led this experience for the last ten years, this opportunity is being offered first to students, faculty and staff at a cost of $315 for the week plus transportation to Miami. Those who choose to carpool may expect the cost to be in the neighborhood of $50 each.

If interested fill out the application below and return it to Bob Haywood as soon as possible. Call (919) 798-1180 or mail the attached slip to United Christian Campus Ministry, P.O. Box 3725, Wilmington, N.C. 28406. As soon as enough applications have been received a meeting will be held to give details and make final plans.

Clip here

NAME _____ PHONE _____

LOCAL ADDRESS _____

WHAT KIND OF PERSON ARE YOU? _____

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO GET OUT OF THIS? _____

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

114-A Coral Drive • Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842

NOW AVAILABLE AT THE UNIVERSITY BOOK STORE

WILMINGTON
TRANSIT
AUTHORITY
TICKETS

10 for $3.75

AND PICK-UP YOUR
FREE BUS SCHEDULE

Good things come in 'itty-bitty' packages

Being short is somewhat like having major surgery: people tend to feel sorry for you. True, they don't send flowers or cards saying "Hope you're feeling taller soon," but they do pity the pint-sized. And believe me, I know whereof I speak, having leveled off at five feet tall in the ninth grade.

I am not some militant mid-get who believes the world is designed for tall people. I am a raving maniac who knows the world was, is, and always will be designed for those with height on their side. Me, I have never had a chance: my mother is five foot one, and my Dad, at five-seven, towers over both of us. So, considering the gene factor, why did my brother toop off at five foot nine? He not only got the height (relatively speaking), he to the soft wavy hair, the chiseled features, the green eyes--I'd better stop before I get nauseous.

But I digress. Anyone can have nice hair, cheekbones, etc. It's the height bit that gripes me; it's just not fair! I am sure he would not have won all our sibling squabble if it weren't for the fact that he could drop-kick me like a football. (Those traumatic experiences probably account for my aversion to sports today.)

Still, I learned to live with my

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

shortness. I adjusted to the nicknames: Little Bit, Tiny, Itty Bitty (!!!), Midge, and of course, Shortstuff. After awhile, short became a fact of life; I was beginning to adjust.

Then it happened. I moved in with a girl who is just under six feet. She is graceful and willowy; next to her I feel like a troll. When we have fights it is all I can do to keep from biting her on the knee. When we walk together I strut along on tippytoe. Sharing clothes is out of the realm of possibility. Even our bath towels are cut to size--I figure mine would cover her from chin to chest, and I don't want to think about how many times hers would overlap on me.

So, you know what I do? I think tall. This means I tilt my head back, stick out my chin and swagger like a cowboy fresh off the range. It looks funny (I caught sight of myself in a store window one day and had hysterics) but by God, it works. People think I'm going to grow six inches any minute, and I don't tell them any differently.

When all is said and done, short people (regardless of what Randy Newman says) have made their mark upon the world. Look at Napoleon, Louis B. Mayer, Mickey Rooney, Dudley Moore, Pat Benatar, even! Not a sould over five foot six, but they've all rattled the rafters at one time. If all else fails, I leave you with the words of my great-aunt Cookie (four-eleven), who said: "Fortune cookies are tiny, too, but everybody wants to get their hands on one!"

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

Advertise with THE SEAHAWK

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market St. by the 132 Overpass

Sat. 14 - George Davis - DJ -
Mon. 16 - Monday Night Football
Tues. 17 - UNCW Night Free/Members with UNCW ID
Wed. 18 - 99 cent Night
Thurs. 19 - Ladies Night
Fri. 20 - PKM [formerly w/Nantucket
Fri. 27 - Brice Street & Polar Bear

December 7 - Nighthawks

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

Tonight
Friday 13th Party
Robbin
Thompson Band

Night hawks Playing Dec. 7th

Mediation averts confrontation over editor selection

In a five-hour mediation session, the student newspaper, student government and Publications Committee of the U. of Wisconsin-Oshkosh reached a compromise that ends a highly charged stand-off over selection of the next newspaper editor.

That controversy threatened to produce a confrontation matching the staff of the Advance-Titan and the new editor if had elected against the student government, the Publications Committee and the editor it chose.

Under the compromise, however, both the Publications Committee and the student newspaper staff have input into the selection of the editor, says Dr. Edwin B. Smith, the vice chancellor for student programs and services who arranged the mediation session. "We think the new agreement eliminates the political influence the newspaper was afraid of but also preserves the concerns of the student government and the Publications Committee that there be assurances of access to all students and that we encourage a diversity of application," says Smith.

The new selection process begins with the writing and publication of job criteria by the newspaper and Publications Committee, says Smith. After applications for editor are accepted, a representative of the Advance-Titan and the committee will meet to eliminate those not eligible under the criteria established.

The Publications Committee, which will consist of two faculty members, two students and two student newspaper representatives, will interview candidates and make one of three statements on each: highly recommended, recommended, not recommended, Smith explains. The newspaper's editorial staff will review these decisions and then elect an editor, he says.

Past editors have been selected by a faculty-dominated Publications Committee of the Faculty Senate. While both the student government and the student newspaper wanted to change that process, there was disagreement over how to accomplish that change.

The newspaper staff wanted to elect its own editor, saying that involvement by the student government threatened the paper's credibility and could lead to political interference in its policies. The Oshkosh Student Association maintained, however, that state law requires involvement of the representative student group whenever student fees are used. The OSA wanted to increase on the selection committee, but retain the right to approve all representatives appointed.

Smith says Ken Wysocky, the editor recently elected by the staff, has agreed to submit an application to the existing Publications Committee for next semester. "We expect that process to happen rather quickly, so we can get on with it," says Smith.

Greeks Speak...

Pi Kappa Phi proudly presents their 1st Annual Toga Party at Four Winds on Nov. 23 from 8-till. This affair is being held to raise money for Project P.U.S.H. (Play Units for the Severely Handicapped). Pi Kappa Phi is the only organization which sponsors Project P.U.S.H. Admission charge will be $1.00 with toga. FREE beverages will be served from 8-9:30, and then reduced prices for the remainder of the night. We urge all students to come out and help P.K.P. raise money for this ever-needy organization. We hope to see you there.

Kelly Allard
Vice-Archon

Tau Nu Kappa local fraternity would like to announce with pleasure the induction of its Beta pledge class. These five new brothers, Eddie Del Casino (fresh.), Roger Morgan (fresh.), David Hamilton (soph.), Cliff Hargrove (Jr.), Ricky Palmer (Sr.), are a great asset to our young Greek organization. We feel that TNK is bettering with the growing school it represents. We are now sixteen brothers strong and looking forward to a good spring rush and an exciting Greek Week in '82.

We would like to thank the Delta Zeta's for putting up with and giving up a great time out on the Cape Fear during the Riverfest Raft Race. TNK can't wait till next year.

Also we would like to extend a belated welcome to Phi Beta Psi. It's good to have another "local" on campus. We're looking forward to having some good times with you girls in the months to come.

Saturday, Oct. 31 Chi Phi held its combination Housing Opening & Halloween Party with Phi Beta Psi (a new local sorority on campus). The mixer was a complete success and Chi Phi looks forward to similar events in the future. Also we would like to thank all those who attended and ask all interested in pledging to come by or call 392-9917.

Chi Phi says this will be a fun year.

Cats cannot taste sweetness.

NOW OPEN

Beachcomber Hair Styling Salon

228 Causeway Drive
Wrightsville Beach

Next to Harbor Island
Restaurant

Expert cuts for men and women.
256-9201.

Billing to,
Berit Peck
P.O. box 469
Wrightsville Beach, N

Financial forms ready

1982-83 Financial Aid Application Forms may be picked up at the Financial Aid Office following the beginning of the Spring Semester but not before that time. The priority deadline date will again be March 15.

Phi Beta Psi gets all of their beverages from The Beer Box.
Why don't you do the same? The Beer Box has lots of specials as well as the cheapest ice in town.

Sports

The Third Annual Fun Run was crowded at the start, and the finish where door prizes were distributed.

Fun Run has 285 runners

On Monday at 3 pm beside Trask Coliseum, one-and-a-half and two miles of sheer madness began with the Third Annual Fun Run.

It was sheer madness at the start because 285 students, staff and faculty crowded into one lane of Regal Road. Chancellor William H. Waggoner sounded the starting gun, and the pack of men and women stretched from Hanover Hall to Galloway Dorm, and began back again.

The Fun Run is an special event sponsored by the PE Department - specifically Dr.

Lucinda Hollifield - for PE 101 class students as an outside activity. It also counts as extra-credit for those students.

"It's to let them know they can run outside of class for enjoyment," Dr. Hollifield said. "Plus it's a non-competitive run - a fun run - where everybody wins."

After the run 243 door prizes were distributed among the finishers. The prizes, donated by local businesses, ranged from discount coupons to two full course dinners at Peccadillo's restaurant.

Staff photo/Jamie Moncriel

The Special People

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

There was a special happening at UNCW last Thursday and Friday - the 1981 New Hanover County Fall Special Olympic Games. For two days 320 mentally handicapped citizens, plus their supporters, congregated in Hanover gym. The event was another huge success, but not measured necessarily by the number of records broken. The success of this Olympiad was based on the satisfaction of the participants - the smiles on their faces, and the happiness in their hearts.

However, the rewards of these Olympic Games was not restricted to its participants. For the may officials, friends and volunteers, watching those special individuals thoroughly enjoy themselves was a gratifying experience. It put a warm feeling in everyone's hearts that would linger long after the Games were over.

"The bottom line is if you try Special Olympics for one time, you'll come back for more because it's really a Love Olympics," said Jeff Batson, a senior from Wilmington who has been a Special Olympics trainer for 3 1/2 years and works parttime weekly with mentally handicapped kids in area schools.

Batson, president of the Recreation Majors Club, had most of the club members helping as volunteers.

"It's mainly a learning experience," said Batson, "but it's not just that. I love the kids so much."

Supervisor of Special Population for Wilmington Parks and Recreation, Kathy Kittleson, was the Games coordinator for the sixth consecutive year.

"All of the athletes came from New Hanover County Public Schools or the New Hanover County Workshop," she said. "The purpose of Special Olympics is to provide athlete competition for mentally handicapped athletes. We've run, dribble, shoot, and basketball team-play contests."

"I've got to extend my appreciation to UNCW for such a warm reception," Kittleson added. "Everybody here's been so wonderful. This is the first year we've held Special Olympics at UNCW, and we hope we can continue to hold the Games at these fine facilities."

Ginny Wheeler, president of Special Olympics and in charge of the handicapped swim program at the YMCA, urges all students who are interested in sharing the rewarding experience of working with the underprivileged to contact her at the YMCA. Volunteers are always welcome.

"The bottom line is if you try Special Olympics for one time, you'll come back because it's really a Love Olympics."

- Senior Jeff Batson

Staff photo/Jamie Moncriel

Women's Roundup

Golf

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. - Freshmen Robbie Roberts and Heidi Crossley each shot a two-round score of 174 to lead the Lady Seahawks golf team to a come-from-behind victory over Meredith College in the AIAW Region II Championships Nov. 4-5.

Coach Lea Larson said the reason UNCW was down by six strokes after the first round was partially due to a revised and extremely difficult course at William & Mary. The Lady 'Hawks gained 27 strokes on Meredith the second round to take a 350-371 victory.

Crossley shot a second-round 83 to lead the UNCW assault. Other total scores were 175 by Darcil Wilson, 183 by Celeste Marks, and 184 by Cindy Flowers.

The Lady 'Hawks compete in their final tournament this weekend in the N.C. AIAW Championships at Pinehurst.

Volleyball

The volleyball team closed out its 1981 season Nov. with a split against Wake Forest and UNC-Greensboro to finish with a 14-22 record.

It was the Lady 'Hawks' first losing season since 1970, when UNCW suffered a 3-16 record, and only the second losing campaign in the sport's eight-year history at UNCW. UNCW's overall record is 103-88.

Soccer Club

CHAPEL HILL - The Chapel Hill Women's Soccer Club defeated UNCW, 2-1 here Sunday.

Jennifer Wilson scored the Lady Seahawks' only goal to tie the contest 1-1 in the first half.

"It was a close game," said team captain Betty Jenkins, who played the match with a cold. "We hadn't had a game in awhile, and it was hard to get up for the game because we'd got psyched up for a few games, and they were cancelled. You know how it is."

UNCW will play in a 20-team tournament this weekend in Fayetteville. The teams will play four matches a day with 25-minute halves.

"We're going to have a good week of hard practice," Jenkins said. "We hope to get in some extra running."

Seahawk soccer was disappointing, but not bad

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

Before the start of the 1981 soccer season, 11th-year head coach Calvin Lane knew the Seahawks would have a tough time equalling last year's record-setting season. In 1980 the 'Hawks won a school record 14 of 16 matches for an 87.5 winning percentage, and finished the year with the high ranking of fourth in the South.

Not only would the 'Hawks have a tough time matching the previous year's record, but four opponents who had reached the NCAA post-season tournament in '80 would stand in their way. Then there was NC State, North Carolina and William & Mary - all of which would be ranked in the nation's top 20 when they faced UNCW.

Another shortcoming facing the Seahawks was experience. Five of last year's top eight players, including all-South goalkeeper Charlie Ingold, were gone from the lineup, and seven freshmen replaced them in '81.

So when the season started back on Sept. 4 in the Four Points Tournaments at Charlotte, the 'Hawks could only be optimistic that many of their question marks would be answered in a favorable way. However, they were not. UNC-Greensboro upset the Seahawks, 1-0 in overtime of the first round game.

That first game would characterize the rest of the season for the 'Hawks. UNCW outscored UNC-G, 15-12, and twice UNCW missed penalty kicks that hie the goalposts, which would have sealed the victory. UNC-G scored with 30 seconds left in the first overtime period. The good fortune that carried UNCW to six wins by one goal last year turned sour, and the 'Hawks lost three matches by one goal in '81.

The Seahawks finished the

Carlson

season two months later with a lackluster 9-8 record. Eight losses tied a school record set in 1972 and 1973. Three shutout losses were more than the 'Hawks suffered in the previous four years combined, and the most in one season since 1974.

Despite several injuries to key players and the disappointment of the record, there were several positive outcomes from the season.

UNCW outscored its opponents by 18 goals.

The season marked eighth consecutive winning season.

On Oct. 28, with a 4-0 victory over Methodist, Lane, the third coach in the sport's 17-year history at UNCW, earned his 100th victory.

Goalkeepers Mike Lyons and Bill Lawson combined for four shutouts in their first year of dividing full-time duties. Lyons had 65 saves, and Lawson 29.

Senior co-captain Dennis Davis moved into fourth position in UNCW's all-time leaders in points. In four years he scored 28 goals and had 18 assists for 74 points.

Promising for the future was the offensive play of four players. Junior Dave Karlson set school assist records with 13 for the season, and 30 in his career. He also led the 'Hawks in points with 21.

Sophomore Dave Compere was third in points, behind Karlson and Davis, with a team-leading eight goals. And two freshmen - Alberto Rodriguez and Kevin Cox - combined for 13 goals and four assists to rank fourth and fifth, respectively, in points.

Sports Calendar

Friday

Intramural basketball sign-up begins.

Saturday

Football Club vs. N.C. State, noon.

Men's X-Country at District III Regionals in Greenville, S.C.

Women's Golf at N.C. AIAW Championships in Pinehurst begins.

Women's Soccer Club tournament in Fayetteville begins.

Sunday

Women's Golf at N.C. AIAW Championships concludes.

Women's Soccer Club tournament concludes.

The idea of running suits Julian Keith

by B.J. Grog
Sports Writer

John Lennon once said that life is what happens while you're busy making other plans. This is the basic philosophy of cross country runner Julian Keith.

Double-majoring in philosophy and psychology, Julian is a multi-dimensional person. He takes everything he does seriously, and always in his own perspective.

"I think that too many people focus on things instead of ideas," Julian says. "Maybe that's why I don't have any athletic heroes. It's hard for me to respect a person simply for what they can accomplish physically. I think a lot more of a person who can take an idea and follow it through."

Besides his recent academic accomplishments - an honors scholarship in philosophy - Julian has established himself as a highly-regarded athlete in the Wilmington area.

Julian began running competitively at Hoggard High School. He also was a high jumper on the track team, a pitcher and catcher on the baseball team, and a forward on the basketball team.

When he began training for his first 26-mile marathon as a freshman at UNCW, he was involved in a motorcycle accident the week before the race, preventing him from competing and limiting his running for a month because of a throat injury he sustained.

But he came back to run in The Charlotte Observer and Boston marathons, and win the inaugural Wilmington Triathlon - a grueling 42-mile race that combines swimming, bicycling and running.

Keith

As a member of UNCW's cross country team, Julian is a team leader and example of the perfect student-athlete in coach Bill Atwill's eyes.

"Julian is the type of person you'd want to clone and have 10,000 of him," Atwill says. Atwill's wife, also close to the cross country team, calls Julian, "the kind of guy every mother wishes her daughter would bring home."

Julian was UNCW's top finisher in the NCAA District Championships last year, despite a late-summer bout with mononucleosis, and in the Citadel Invitational this year with a 10-kilometer time of 33 minutes, twenty-four seconds.

In the recent Wilmington Mini-Marathon, Julian finished second in the 10-K race in 33:08, behind teammate George Walker.

"Running is one of the most natural things you can do," he says. "It's like brushing your teeth."

"Running is a transforming experience. Every run is different, and when you get to the end of your run, you are changed. You're a different person. If it stops being transforming, its time to stop and re-evaluate it."

Julian has a concern for the importance of ideas and a disregard of unimportant things that has touched every phase of his life. The idea of running as a constructive experience is far more important to him than the competition of organized races.

Notes...

Former UNCW basketball player Danny Davis is playing with the Athletics in Action in Memphis, Tenn. . . The Surfing Club will host an invitational contest Sunday at Crystal Pier in Wrightsville Beach. . . Dr. Robert Wolff says about 10 people are needed to complete the group for a skiing trip to Boone in early January. For more information contact Dr. Wolff in the PE Department. . . UNCW finished third out of four teams in the men's tennis Fall Invitational Oct. 31 - Nov. 1 here. John Shackelford won all three of his number-one singles matches, and Lee Smith and Clayton Pressley were undefeated at number-three doubles.

Final Three Days
See Your Jostens' Display At

Place: Kingoff's Jewelry -

Date: November 5th - 14th

UNC-Wilmington Class Rings

10 N. Front St.
and
Independence Mall

Jostens

INTRAMURAL STANDINGS

SOCCER		W-L
Kegmen		1-0
Bob Marleys		1-0
Stomping Meatus		1-0
Z-Club		1-0
Racketeers		0-1
Soccer Sweethearts		0-1
Wil-Shire United		0-1
No-Names		0-1

VOLLEYBALL		W-L
Kegmen		4-0
Prime Ribs		3-1
Surfdawgs		3-1
Wizards		1-3
Jerry's Kids		0-4
SAE		0-4

FLAG FOOTBALL

League A		W-L
CC Rednecks		4-0
Kegmen		3-0
Chiefs		2-2
Low Lites		1-2
Skeets		1-3
Locals		0-4

League B		W-L
Chi Phi		4-1
SAE		4-1
Pi Kap		3-1
No Fat Chiefs		3-2
L1 S		0-4
FNK		0-4
3rd Hewlett		0-4

Football Club Loses Again

Duke handed the UNCW Football Club a 19-0 defeat Saturday on Brooks Field, the Seahawks' seventh loss and fifth consecutive shutout.

The Seahawks Oct. 31 contest, cancelled by UNC-Greensboro counted as a forfeit for UNCW. UNCW hosts N.C. State Saturday at noon, and will finish its season Friday, Nov. 20 at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Entertainment

Music

The Innocent Age

by Si Lawrence III
Journalism Contributor

The recently-released Dan Fogelberg album is a long awaited double-LP set of his latest works. The public was first introduced to it through the early release of the hit single, "Same Old Lang Syne." After hearing that particular song many fans have been anxious to hear the rest of the album, titled "The Innocent Age."

Not a lot of Fogelberg tunes will get you in the mood to double the speed limit, nor are they party material, but then it's never been his style, or purpose to do that. Instead, this album will put you in quite a mellow mood. It is perfect on the turntable if you're cuddled up to someone of the opposite sex. If you're not cuddled up with someone of the opposite sex, it'll make you wish you were. Call it romantic (or sexual) motivation if you will. It is also a good album to play while you're slaving through homework, or balancing your checkbook, or whatever.

All selections are written by Fogelberg, with one exception. He also plays the majority of the instruments, except for percussion. Emmylou Harris guests on "Only the Heart May Know."

The album is dedicated to Fogelberg's grandfather and one selection, "Leader of the Band," biographically describes his father.

The current hit being played via Top 40 is "Hard to Say," but radio fans may be in store for another.

All in all the album is a good one and should appeal to everyone, as well as die-hard Fogelberg followers.

The four sides of this Epic label will cost you over 10 bucks, but at least that will get you some good tunes, and even a lyric book to impress your girlfriend(s).

Charlie Daniels Band, Trask Coliseum, Nov. 21.

Concert by pianist Peter Serkin, UNC-G, Aycock Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., Nov. 13.

Alabama with Jane Fricke and Mike Cross Concert, 8 p.m., Nov. 28.

North Carolina School of the Arts Wind Ensemble, Vance Reger, conductor, NCSA, Crawford Hall, 8:15 p.m., Nov. 14.

The Wilmington Concert Association is currently selling tickets for its 1981-82 season. Performances include the Smithsonian Jazz Repertory Ensemble Nov. 9, the Branko Krstanovich Chorus Jan. 28, pianist Malcolm Frager Feb. 15, the N.C. Dance Theatre March 1, and the Rochester Philharmonic, with violin soloist Boris Belkin March 31.

All concerts will be held in Kenan Auditorium. Admission will be by season membership only—$25 for adults and $15 for students—and may be ordered by check from the Wilmington Concert Association, P.O. Box 1769, Wilmington, N.C. 28402.

For more information call 762-54113 or 762-8388.

SORCERER

A WILLIAM FRIEDKIN FILM
SORCERER starring ROY SCHEIDER

The Fine Arts Committee desperately needs YOUR help in organizing this Spring's Film - performance series.

Please attend our meeting at 7:00 p.m., before the Film, Tuesday night, Nov. 17.

University Program Board: Fine Arts

Tuesday, Nov. 17: Kenan Auditorium

8:00 p.m. Students $1.00 Non-Students $2.00

Art

Exhibits

Art works by Claude Howell, a well-known Wilmington artist and teacher, on display at St. John's Museum of Art, 114 Orange St. Mr. Howell will also present a lecture on his artistic development, Nov. 12 at 8 p.m. at the museum.

Paintings by Ruth Hedge and Lillian Sneeden on display through December at Poplar Grove Plantation, off U.S. 17 in Scotts Hill. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily, and noon until 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Watercolors by Robert Irwin on display through Nov. 13 at Deacon Galleries, 109 Castle St. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

17th Annual "Art on Paper" show, Weatherspoon Art Gallery, UNC-G, through Dec. 13. Hours: Tuesday-Friday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; weekends 2-6 p.m. No cover charge.

Oriental Art from Weatherspoon Gallery and Chinqua - Penn Plantation, on display through Nov. 29, Weatherspoon Downtown, Greensboro. Hours: 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday; 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and by appointment.

Exhibition of 42 photographs in Chambers Art Gallery, Davidson College, through Dec. 18. Hours: 10 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays.

"Former North Carolina Artists," on display through Nov. 15 at the N.C. Museum Of Art, Raleigh.

Paintings by Terence La Noue, Philip Wofford, and Jim Sullivan on display through Nov. 15 at the Fine Arts Gallery, Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem.

"Watercolors 1981" by Adele Wayman on display through Nov. 29 at Guilford College.

"Silver Interactions," an exhibition of more than 50 photographers by 14 nationally and internationally recognized photographers on display through Nov. 1, in the Mendenhall Student Center Gallery, East Carolina University Museum Of Art. Also, an exhibition of works by 18 Southeastern photographers on display through Nov. 15.

Classes:

Life drawing classes taught by Virginia Wright-Frierson meet 7:30-10 p.m. Wednesdays at St. John's Museum of Art.

Oil, acrylic and pastel painting classes meet 7-10 p.m. Thursdays at St. John's Museum of Art, 114 Orange St.

Watercolor classes taught by Gladys Faris meet 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays at the Cowan House in Wilmington's Historic District.

For more information on any of these classes, call St. John's Museum of Art, 763-0281.

Theater / Movies

heat

"The Glass Menagerie," UNC-Chapel Hill, Playmakers Repertory Company, Paul Green Theater, 8 p.m., Nov. 14, 17, 18; 2 and 8 p.m., Nov. 15.

The Pennsylvania Ballet, modern and classical works, Owens Auditorium, Charlotte, 8 p.m., Nov. 13.

"The Norman Conquests: Living Together," Barn Dinner Theater, Greensboro, 8:30 p.m., Nov. 13, 14, 15.

"Kennedy's Children," UNC-G Theatre, Taylor Building, 8:15 p.m., Nov. 18.

The Feld Ballet, Duke University, Page Auditorium, 8:15 p.m., Nov. 13, 14.

Movies

"Sorcerer" Kenan Auditorium, Nov. 17, 8 p.m. UNC-W students with I.D. $1.00, and $1.50 for general public.

"Halloween II," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"On the Right Track," Long Leaf Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 2:30, 5:50 and 9:10.

"Hardly Working," Long Leaf Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 4:15 and 7:35.

"Looker," Oleander Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:30, and 9:15.

"The French Lieutenant's Woman," Oleander Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:00, 5:15, 7:30 and 9:45.

"Body Heat," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5:15, 7:30, and 9:45.

"Time Bandits," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

Restaurants

Dining

Seahawk Restaurant - 4201 Market St. (Highway 17); featuring a seafood and ribs buffet-all you can eat; specializing in seafood, also serving ribeyes, chicken and chops; all ABC permits; Hours: serving Monday-Saturday at 5 pm, Sunday at 4 pm. 763-7300.

Skinner & Daniels Barbecue - 5214 Market St.; specializing in barbecued pork, chicken and sliced beef; Hours: 10 am - 9 pm Monday-Saturday; takeout orders until 9 pm. 799-1790.

Dry Dock Seafood House - 5215 Oleander Dr.; specializing in seafood, also offers chicken, barbecue, steak and hamburgers; Visa and Master Charge accepted; take out service; Hours: 11 am - 9 pm Sunday-Thursday, 11 am - 10 pm Friday and Saturday. 799-7346.

Stemmerman's - 138 S. Front St.; an underground restaurant in the Historic District; featuring Prime Rib and seafood; all ABC permits. 763-0248.

Hieronymus Seafood Restaurant - 5035 Market St.; specializing in broiled and sauteed seafood; all ABC permits; Hours: 5-10 pm seven days a week, lounge opens at 4:30 pm. 392-6313.

Burrito Bob's
by Si Lawrence, III
Journalism Contributor

Two words best describe Burrito Bob's, a new Mexican restaurant located at 5901 Wrightsville Avenue--mucho bueno. Brothers Bob and Bill (C.W.) Houston are co-owners of the new establishment which opened a mere four weeks ago. Several factors will prove this place to be especially appealing to UNCW students. From the moment you walk in the door you are offered the choice of relaxing in the lounge to the left or being seated in the main dining room. Whichever you choose, you can be assured of prompt service in a traditional Mexican atmosphere. Incidentally, both the lounge and dining room can supply you with your favorite beverages ranging from domestic and imported beer to selected house wines.

Once ready for dinner, one of 65 seats are available to position yourself in anticipation of a tasty lunch or dinner. How about starting with a bontana (appetizer)? Crispy nachos with assorted toppings can be yours at a surprisingly small fee.

If you're not into tortillas, the menu boasts several soups and salads with unique ingredient combinations all at reasonable prices around a dollar or two.

Mexican food lovers will find it difficult to decide from the abundant choices for the meal's main event. A la carte entrees including tacos, tostadas, enchiladas, and ourritos are available from one to three dollars. All are substantial in size and spices can be adjusted to suit individual taste. College chow hounds can enjoy Burrito Bob's special and combination dinners.

One of the more popular choices is the Burrito Grande. Four dollars gets you a flour tortilla with your choice of either chicken or shredded beef and bean baked in a sauce and covered with lettuce, tomatoe, guacamole and sour cream. All dinners are served with rice and beans. Top all that off with pie or a tray of empanadas and you're one satisfied customer.

By the way, domestic conservatives can still hang with the Mexican crowd and try a "Gringo Burger". It's 1/3 lb. ground beef with the trimmings and according to my roommate, could persuade Ronald McDonald to move to Mexico.

Even more attractive are the future plans the owners have made for Burrito Bob's. November will host the restaurant's grand opening and full ABC permits will be attained in a week or two.

Bill Houston said he is expecting to have a happy hour complete with television and contemporary tunes for customers who enjoy a relaxing evening in the lounge. Even the possibility of a co-ed open-mike night is being considered. Houston expressed a concern for what the public desires and he said any feedback would be appreciated.

An extension of the hours from 11 to 11 is expected and doors are open everyday but Monday. All things considered, my sombrero is off to Burrito Bob's.

Night Life

Local Happy Hours

Bridge Tender - 4-7 Monday through Thursday at the drawbridge on Airlie Road, (near Wrightsville Beach).

Port O Call Lounge - 5-7 daily, Men's Night Thursday - $1 Highballs and 35 cents draft beer; located in the Holiday Inn at Wrightsville Beach.

Fish Market - 5-7 weekdays; located at the corner of Market and Water.

Marina Restaurant - 5-7 daily on Wrightsville Beach.

Mediterraneo Restaurant - 10-12 on Thursday nights; Lumina Avenue on Wrightsville Beach.

Bandito's - 5-6 and 10-11 nightlv; located on Wrightsville Beach behind the Trolley Stop.

Riverview Restaurant - 763-5767. Nightly 4:30 to 6:30 and 10:30 to closing.

Angelo's - 5-7 and 10 to closing every Friday and Saturday, on 421 on the way to Carolina Beach.

Tuesday's - weekdays 4-7, and 4-9 on Sunday.

Gabriel's - weekdays 5-7; located in the Wilmington Hilton on Water Street.

Tolliver's - 4-6 weekdays and 4-7 on Saturday and Sunday; in the College Square Shopping Center.

Suffering B's - 10-11:30 nightlv; located in the North 17 Shopping Center.

Music In Night Clubs

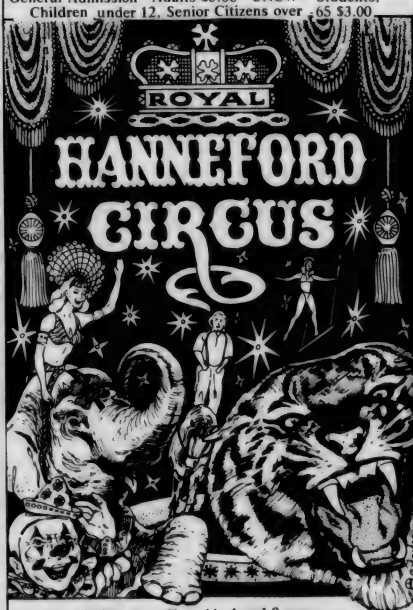

Patlo - 4714 College Drive, 791-4442. This Friday and Saturday, November 13 & 14 - THE JOHN GLOVER BAND.

Four Winds - Market Street at the 132 overpass, 392-0855. Friday, November 13 - THE ROBBIN THOMPSON BAND with TKM (formerly of NAN-TUCKET) appearing Friday 20. Four Winds is a private club with members and their guests welcome.

No Name Saloon - Oleander Drive behind Tuesdays, 392-5920. Friday, Nov. 13 and Saturday, Nov. 14 the country sound of AXCENT. Members and their guests are welcome.

Country Music USA - 5523 Oleander Drive 392-2075; Live bands on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday. This week - THE NEW BAND OF GOLD.

University Program Board Special Events along with
63MFD and WV: QQ presents
General Admission Adults $5.00 UNCW Students,
Children under 12, Senior Citizens over 65 $3.00

HANNEFORD CIRCUS

Trask Coliseum Nov. 16 4 and 8 p.m.
Ticket Outlets: UNCW Bookstore (for UNCW students)
Belk Beery, School Kid Records, T-Shirts Plus

BURRITO BOB'S

Mexican Restaurant
Tues. UNCW Night - ID Required

— HOURS —
TUES. - SUNDAY 11-11
CLOSED MONDAY

392-6520

5901 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

'3 PM' Band to help Goodwood Tavern celebrate sixth anniversary

The annual, ever popular November weekend is upon us again. . . . STARTING TODAY!! The Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee's Half-Moon Productions is very proud to celebrate its Goodwood Anniversary - year number 6!!! That cozy, barn-wood room in the PUB has been the backdrop for so many fun nights of entertainment by the Coffeehouse Committee that we just have to CELEBRATE!! Three days of fun and entertainment for YOU and with YOU make it a weekend YOU won't want to miss!!

Start the good times off tonight with the Local Vocals Talent Contest! At 8:30 p.m. the show begins and anything goes as UNCW students and their friends take the stage to try their luck in the limelight for prizes donated by local merchants. There's always an array of entertainment from musical, comical, to down right off the wall with fun in between by our student MC! So if you'd like to try your luck on some of the prizes sign up TODAY or tonight BEFORE the show at room 101-A in the PUB. Or if you want to come join the wild, zany night of entertainment and lay back and watch the fun!! You'll enjoy the sometimes pathetic, hilarious, but always outrageous and entertaining night! See ya in the Goodwood Tavern tonight!!

Then Friday night is a night you'll hit yourself for missing if you're not there in the PUB at 10 p.m.!! From Raleigh there will be the dynamic sounds of 3PM!! (No it's not a 3 p.m. showtime and a group named 10 p.m. . . . keep it straight or you'll miss out!!!) 3PM plays a most innovative style of jazz rock-fusion that you have to hear to believe!

The band's talent both individually and collectively, literally will amaze YOU!!! Appearing as special guests with Pat Benatar, Dixie Dregs, and others just show that these four jammers are destined for greatness! You'll have to hear them close up, too, because as their album, "Better Late Than Never" says . . . "listen to them at excessive (bone shattering) volume!" 10 p.m. is the time. 3PM is the band - don't miss it!!!

The Red Rose Flyers

To the left: The Red Rose Flyers on Saturday at 2:30 pm

Above: 3 PM Band on Friday at 10:30 pm.

GOODWOOD ANNIVERSARY NOV. 12-13-14

THUR.

Local Vocals
Talent Contest

SHOWTIME: 8:30 PM

PRIZES AWARDED!!

FRI.

3PM

SHOWTIME: 10PM

SAT.

Before coming to the Pub at 2 p.m. go and support your UNCW football team go for the goals against NC State at 12 noon!

*Serving Begins at 1:30 pm
Showtime is 2:30 pm
The Red Rose Flyers
& Biology Club
Shark Fry*

ALL EVENTS WILL BE IN THE PUB
AS ALWAYS FREE AND BRING YOUR OWN CELEBRATION

Campus Calendar

Fun weekend begins in Pub

To wind up the weekend we're doing it with a band! Saturday is going to be a support YOUR campus clubs and organizations day! Start it off with our UNCW football club out on Brooks Field as they battle the NC State club at 12 noon! Then starting at 1:30 p.m. and until they're all cooked out, come over to the PUB and support the Biology Club and their first Shark Fry of the year! For only $3.00 you'll be able to have some shark, cole slaw, hush puppies, and refreshments while supporting the club to boot!

Then while you're getting your fill of a rare treat of shark, let your feet and ears go wild over the Red Rose

Flyers!!! This threesome are a hard driving, southern style, stringband bent on showing YOU a great time! The Flyers have been involved with old time music and old time tunes with a driving style that is so infectious you'll clog the afternoon away!!! DON'T miss this fun afternoon for all!!! Show-time for the Flyers will begin at 2 p.m. at the PUB.

So that's the rundown of our events for THIS weekend so DON'T forget to RUN DOWN to the PUB and be part of the FUN!!! As always there's no admission charge and bring your own celebration for the shows. See YOU there or YOU'LL be sorry YOU missed it!!!

Foreign language career

Dr. William Woodhouse will give a lecture on the many career opportunities involving foreign languages. The lecture will be held Monday, Nov. 16 at 5 p.m. in Morton 100.

Keg to be raffled

Phi Eta Sigma is raffling off a pong dog of Budweiser. Tickets are being sold by fraternity members for 50 cents. Sales end Nov. 17 and the drawing will be held Nov. 20 in the cafeteria.

Typist Available
Betty Ames
799-2578
IBM Executive Typewriter

On-campus accommodations

On-campus accommodations are available for Spring semester 1982. UNCW, at the present time, has four residence halls (one coed highrise, one coed suite type, one all female suite type, and one all male suite type) as well as furnished apartments. If you are interested in living on campus, please contact UNCW Housing Office.

Geology field trip

The Geology Department is offering a field trip for one hour credit Spring semester '82. Geology 391 is the number and will be referred to as the Coastal Geology Field Trip. The class offers "a close look at the physiography, dynamics and politics of the shorelines of North and South Carolina coasts" as reported by the department. The trip will take place from March 6-10 during the spring semester. You may sign-up in the Earth Sciences office during the current pre-registration for the spring. Hurry if you are at all interested due to limited space of 10 participants. The fee for the course is $75.

English for Internationals

Conversational English for Internationals (Conversation, reading, and writing English). Free every Wednesday at 9:45 am. Winter Park Baptist Church, 4700 Wrightsville Ave., Wilmington. Call Mrs. Sally M. Lennon - 763-5585, Mrs. Lucille Brown - 763-5383 or Wilmington Baptist Association - 799-1160. Free nursery and transportation furnished.

YMCA accepts applications

The East Mecklenburg Family YMCA in Charlotte, NC. will be accepting applications for positions as: day camp counselors, swimming instructors, and lifeguards. If you are interested in applying, please write: Ron Morrow, East Meck. Family YMCA, P.O. Box 25382, Charlotte, NC 28212, for an application and please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. Interviews will begin during Christmas break.

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of perspective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Fieldcrest Mills	Resume
Mr. Jack T. Carter
Wed., Nov. 18	Tues., Nov. 17
Pos: Manufacturing Mgmt.	2:00 p.m.
Trainee
Majors: Acctg., Bus. Admn.,	Mon., Nov. 23
Econ., Engineering Op.,	11:00 a.m.
Psychology
F.B.I.	The Job Interview
Mr. Charles Richards
Wed., Nov. 18	Tues., Nov. 17
Pos: Special Agent	2:00 p.m.
Majors: All
Scotchman Stores	Mon., Nov. 23
Mr. Tod McDonald	11:00 a.m.
Tues., & Wed., Dec. 1 & 2
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee	Wed., Dec. 9
Majors: All	10:00 a.m.

Classified

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court. Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Lost: Small, black dog without collar. Mixed breed, terrier-dachshund. Last seen on campus Oct. 28. Dog answers to the name of Weasel. If found please call 799-2334. Ask for Chris.

Experienced editor will copy, edit and/or edit your papers. Copyedit - $1.00 per page. Edit - $1.50 per page. Copyedit and edit - $2.25 per page. Call 392-3426 after 5 pm weekdays.

Congratulations to: Bobby Ford, Tommy Newton, Chuck Grissom, Dan Kempton who represented UNC-Wilmington in the ACM programming contest held at UNC-Charlotte and placed second out of 18 teams.

American Cancer Society

We want to cure cancer in your lifetime

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

CLIFFS
PROPERTY: HAMLET

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems. Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

Find out what's going on -
read THE SEAHAWK

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center

Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In

Special
Natural 12 pk.
$4.50

Natural - Case
$8.50

Cheapest Ice in Town
49 cents

Across from Four Winds

Now comes Miller time.

Sound Seventy
PRESENTS

THE Charlie Daniels
BAND

FULL MOON TOUR.

WITH SPECIAL GUEST
CHUCK LEAVEL TRIO

SAT., NOV. 21, 8PM

ALL TICKETS RESERVED
$8.50 STUDENTS, $9.50 PUBLIC

TRASK COLISEUM
UNC/Wilmington

Ticket outlets: Coliseum Box Office, UNCW Student Activities Office, Samuel Kays Records, Gillham's Guitar Works, Record Bar (Wilmington), Lockwoodville.

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]

Grill open Monday through Friday
Patio's Special - 1/4 lb. Fresh Ground
Beef Cheeseburger on Kaiser Roll
$1.00

Mixed Doubles Pool Tournament
Saturday 3 p.m.

Trophy and Cash Prize

Mon. Ladies' Night

Wed. College Night - 7 Kegs

Friday Afternoon
25 cent Hotdogs

4-7

Friday & Saturday Nights
John Glover Band

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 10

November 19, 1981

Eight Pages

Charlie Daniels to perform in Trask

The Charlie Daniels Band, the platinum-selling group with spectacular success on both the country and pop record charts, headline one show with special guests The Chuck Leavell Trio at Trask Coliseum on Saturday, Nov. 21, at 8 pm.

Daniels grew up and attended school in this area and paid tribute to his home state on the Full Moon album with a ballad titled "Carolina." Another song from that album, "The Legend of Wooley Swamp," is set about 50 miles Northwest of here in Bladen County.

In the past few years, the CDB has walked away with dozens of contemporary music awards including: A Grammy

Award ("Best Country Performance By a Group or Duo" for the 1.6 million selling, number one single "The Devil Went Down to Georgia"); four Country Music Association Awards ("Single of the Year," "Instrumental Group of the Year," "Instrumentalist of the Year," all won in 1979; and "Instrumental Group of the Year," which was won in 1980); two Academy of Country Music Awards as "Touring Band of the Year" (1980 and 1981).

One of the clearest indications of the CDB's ever-increasing popularity has been their record sales. Before coming to Trask, the band first hit paydirt with the 900,000-plus selling single "Uneasy Rider" from their Honey In the Rock LP. The group's early Fire On The Mountain LP achieved gold status (500,000 units sold) when it was first released on Buddah Records. It has sold more than one million units since it was rereleased on Epic a short time later. Saddle Tramp, another album from this era, is now gold. A total of three CDB albums have now been certified gold, and three of them, Fire On The Mountain, Million Mile Reflections, and Full Moon, have exceeded the million-sales mark.

In 1980, The CDB made their film debut in "Urban Cowboy," starring John Travolta. The band performed four songs in the film, two of which were included in the double platinum soundtrack album. The band also has an impressive list of television credits including the Tribute to Chet Atkins, Tomorrow Show, Crystal Gayle Special, Dick Clark's Rockin' New Year's Eve, ABC Newsmagazine 20/20, Austin City Limits, Dinah, PM Magazine and Today.

Former Allman Brothers Band keyboardist Chuck Leavell, who recently jammed onstage with The Rolling Stones at Atlanta's Fox Theatre, is joined by Atlanta musicians Jimmy Craig, bass, and Lee Goodman, drums. Leavell is a founding member of Sea Level, and will return to the studio with that group in December. The trio, in the meantime, has been headlining on the Southeastern club circuit.

Tickets ($8.50, $9.50 reserved) are now on sale at Record Bar, School Kids, and Gillham's Guitar Works, Wilmington; Record Bar, Jacksonville; Paradise Records, Fayetteville; Myrtle Beach Stereo & Tapes; Trask Coliseum Box Office; and the Wilmington Student Activities Office, University of North Carolina.

The Charlie Daniels Band and The Chuck Leavell Trio are presented by Sound Seventy Productions, Inc.

Bunting places first in 1981 University Poetry Contest

by Barbara Grob
Staff Writer

The Wilmington chapter of the North Carolina Junior Sorority Society, in conjunction with the English Department, sponsored the 1981 University Poetry Contest. The contest, open to all UNCW students, was judged by Carol Fink of the History Department and Anne Russell of the English Department. The winning poems were read by Dr. Sally Sullivan, also of the English Department, in a brief awards ceremony Thursday morning in the S.R.O. Theater.

First-place winner, a cash prize of $50, was awarded to junior Ann Bunting for her poem titled "First Editions". Ann is an English major, and a well-known local poet who has published in the Tugboat Review and Atlantis. She has also published a chapter in an anthology called "The Mother's Book", a book of shared experiences.

The second-place winner and a cash prize of $30 went to senior Barbara Grob, who's poem was titled "The Onions". Barbara, an English major and editor-in-chief of Atlantis, was also awarded an honorable mention for her poem titled "Excerpts from 'The Lady in Shalotte'".

The third-place poem, carrying a cash prize of $20 went to senior art and elementary education major Thom Jones, for his poem "Night's Patterns". Thom, a resident of Wrightsville Beach, is a frequent art contributor to Atlantis. He was the 1979 Atlantis art editor, a past winner of the Atlantis Cover Contest, and has recently been published in the Tugboat Review.

Honorable mention for the poem "The Hatteras Lighthouse Rescue" was awarded to junior biology major Thad Beach, also a resident of Wrightsville Beach.

This year's winner of the Atlantis Cover Contest, sponsored by the student literary magazine, and judged by faculty and Atlantis art staff members, is senior Stan Johnson. Stan's pencil, pen and ink drawing was the unanimous choice of the judges.

Stan is from Wilmington, and this is the first time he's submitted material to the contest or to Atlantis. The cover contest carries a $50 cash prize, as well as publication of the work on the cover of the fall Atlantis, which will be available beginning the first week in December.

Grade Point Average must reach 2.0 for graduation eligibility

by Tinker Linebaugh
Journalism Contributor

Fact #1: Every semester there are students who are ineligible to return to school because their GPA is below the required level.

Fact #2: Every semester there are students who are ineligible to graduate with 124 semester hours because their GPA is not at least 2.0.

Fact #3: A GPA of 1.9999... is not enough. The GPA has to be 2.0 or better.

The Assistant to the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs James K. McGowan, is very concerned for students who may not be planning ahead to meet the required GPA's.

McGowan said that it is extremely difficult, if not almost impossible, for a student during his senior year to bring up a GPA of 1.8 to the required 2.0 for graduation.

For example, a student, after attempting 88 hours, has a GPA of 1.8. This student has been making mostly "C's" and "D's." In order to receive a 2.0 after 88 hours, he/she would have to make "A's" and "B's" for the next semester. McGowan thinks it is important to be realistic and ask ourselves if it is likely that this student could begin to make the necessary "A's" and "B's" needed to be eligible to continue at UNCW for the last semester.

McGowan feels this is requiring too much of the student; therefore, he thinks that it is necessary for each student to plan ahead NOW to avoid unnecessary problems for him/her as their academic career lengthens.

McGowan suggests three ways a student could improve his/her GPA:

1. Take a lower number of hours. This will allow more time to concentrate on the more difficult courses.
2. Take courses which involve your strengths - courses a student feels reasonably sure he/she can do well in. McGowan stressed these should not be "crip" courses, but should be courses in areas where the student is strong.
3. Distribute the more challenging courses across several semesters. If a student is taking too many difficult courses during one semester, this could tend to pull the GPA down.

For students, who have low grades in courses, the University does have a policy on repeating a course. The Registrar Mrs. Dorothy P. Marshall said that special permission is necessary for a student to repeat a course and involves certain conditions:

1. The grade received in the course has to be below a "C."
2. The course has to be required for the student's

See GPA p. 7.

Letters

SGA members criticize

letter

To the Editor:

It is with much concern and great necessity that we feel compelled to respond to the letter to the editor from Mr. Dave Kermion, dated Nov. 5, 1981.

This letter dealt with an obvious misconception about the resignation from committees within the Student Government Association. We will not respond on a personal level to Mr. Kermion - rather we will respond to the legitimate question raised in his misinformed letter.

The question raised by Mr. Kermion is as follows: "...Why they felt that doing the job as assigned by the SGA could not be done simply because they did not like the man they reported to?" In response we would like to publicly state that Vice President Jeff Newton is a man of the highest caliber and is doing an excellent job as presiding officer of the Senate. We would like to confirm this, since Mr. Kermion's letter implies that we do not like "the man to whom we report". We feel that this implication was invalid and irresponsible on Mr. Kermion's part.

It is indeed a fact that the SGA is in a present state of turmoil. We made several sincere efforts to deal within this system and used our resignations - only as a last resort. Our beliefs followed in the preceding administration's goals and ideas; whereas presently the new administration has radically veered from previous goals, thus being in direct conflict with our own personal beliefs concerning the welfare of our fellow students. We also feel that our academic life should take some precedence over an over-bundant SGA workload.

In conclusion, we have not resigned from our elected officer, but rather some of the many committees that have burdened us, and we will further continue to represent the students of this esteemed institution - to the best of our abilities.

Steve Griffin
Vice President, Senior Class

Ed Paul, Jr.
President Sophomore Class

Bill Samson
Senator

Ex-President responds to letter

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago a concerned student wrote about the resignation of three students and in a rather short and poorly worded letter the author brought up a point. Unfortunately the letter did not give nearly enough background information and that is the purpose of this letter.

At one point in his career at this university, the author himself was involved in student government on the executive level, and he too resigned because he was unable to do his job as assigned by the SGA - "simply because he didn't like the man he reported to." Isn't this the kettle calling the pot black?

Also we feel it necessary to state that the men in question are three of the most dedicated and concerned individuals that the SGA has ever seen and to make the statement that Mr. Paul, Mr. Samson, and Mr. Griffin are "working towards their own ends" is a terrible mistake stemming from an obvious lack of knowledge of the situation. I encourage the concerned student to, in the future, please gain a total understanding of what is taking place so that he can correctly discuss and voice his opinion.

Pete Divoky
Sr. Class President

Charles B. Parsons
Ex-President of the Student Body, UNCW

Library is heart of university

To the Editor:

If you have been in Randall Library recently, you have probably noticed that it has two highly noticeable characteristics: One, that is has superior facilities for its size and two, that it is entirely too noisy.

This is not meant to reflect negatively on the library staff.

The problem has grown entirely beyond their capacity to deal with it. The problem lies with the students who use the library - both those inconsiderate few who make the noise and the many who "tolerate" the noise-makers because they "don't want to make waves."

Granted that the library should not become "tomb-like" in atmosphere. That is not my aim at all. The library is the very heart of any university, and it is a pleasant place to converse. However, if the library is not a tomb, it is also not Times Square. Your right to study in peace on a quiet supercedes others' rights to noisily converse, at least within the confines of the library walls. If the group at the table next to you is making too much noise, simply get up, and request they "tone it down just a bit." If they do not desist, and refuse to listen to reason, then you have no choice but to turn to the library staff for assistance.

Remember: your right to use the resources of the library in quiet is a superior one. It is also one which must be enforced and protected by you, the individual student. Let's make the library a nice place to work in - and visit again.

HAVE YOU NOTICED THAT PICTURE HASN'T CHANGED IN TWO DAYS?

Sincerely,
George D. Ward

'We are the bomb builders'

To the Editor:

The Union of Concerned Scientist met last week and discussed many aspects of a concept called "nuclear war." The general consensus was such a war would be a "bad thing." Presentations covered many topics, including basic information on atoms, weapons, nuclear energy, arms races, physics, economics, history, and continual references to Hiroshima, the military, Government, President Reagan, etc. Not mentioned was a simple fact of humanity, and this is where the Scientist missed the mark.

PEOPLE MAKE WAR, NOT BOMBS. WE are the bomb builders. WE are the naked ape who throughout history has invented bigger and better weapons to kill with. WE are the cause, not "them," US! Why is it we do this? Because that's who we are. WE are human beings, therefore, by definition competitive, aggressive, insecure, fragile organisms who socially, psychologically, environmentally, evolutionally, and physically believe MIGHT MAKES RIGHT; STRENGTH IN NUMBERS; SECURITY THROUGH POWER; POWER MEANS AUTHORITY; and a whole mess of other garbage.

WE are human beings, and we are what we are. If you want to prevent war; if you seek universal peace; if you desire goodwill towards all men; then you better figure out how to change the NATURE OF THE BEAST. Until you can do that, you're just treating the symptoms, not the CAUSE! Where it is highly laudable to call for a ban on nuclear weaponry, what is the probability this will occur in a society which won't even ban "Saturday night specials?"

As often is the case, well-intentioned people and groups waste their energy trying to change the whole world when they can't even clean up the act in their own front yard.

Peacework, Union of Concerned Scientist, you have to look no further than your friendly campus cop for a symbolic understanding of our social orientation. That may not be a thermonuclear device on his hip, but it is a mirror of WHO WE ARE!

Response to Graham

Letter

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article which was written by Uday S. Tate in the November 5 issue of The Seahawk. In his letter, he made a statement, and I quote part of it: "...and the hypocrisy of the Billy Graham's Crusades..." In God's Word, Paul writes: "And His gifts were that some should be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers." (Ephesians 4:11/RSV). God has given Billy Graham the gift of evangelizing.

In Matthew 28:19, Jesus says "Go ye therefore, and teaching all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit." This is The Great Commission. Billy Graham is preaching the Word of God.

The objective of Dr. Tate's letter seems to be to show us how to benefit society. In 2 Chronicles 7:14, God says: "If My people who are called by My name humble themselves and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land." If we seek the Lord, he will bless our nation.

See BILLY GRAHAM p. 7.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Robert Eubanks, Features Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Jamie Moncrief

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Series of Humanism lectures resembles circus at times

At times, the series of Humanism lectures has seemed to resemble a circus. Instead of animals and high-wire acts, though, the lectures have featured humanists and religionists. The last lecture Thursday evening was given by Dr. James K. McGowan and featured an important circus personality, a clown.

McGowan, of the Philosophy and Religion Department, began his lecture with a story about a clown who had attended a meeting of humanists and religionists.

At this meeting, the humanists discussed the origin and importance of MAN in his existence, and the religionists discussed the importance of GOD in man's existence. Each side developed arguments, listened to and answered objections and became stronger in their respective beliefs. Near the end of this meeting, the clown laughed out loud and explained to those present by saying that he had just seen the truth of their discussion: "Before anything had been said, and after everything had been said, we are faced with some radical possibilities—that God is and that God is not, that man is everything and that man is nothing."

McGowan said that the "human spirit and the religious mind" were invited to come into existence at that meeting.

According to McGowan, in order for each to come into being, there had to be a new beginning which involved the reexamination of what other generations had said on the themes of "God" and "man".

Words, at times, can become obstacles to true dialogue and it is necessary to empty our conceptions of "God" and "man" and reshape them to enable growth.

McGowan feels this "emptying" is what humanists and religionists need to do today in order to be open, without any prejudice, to the possibility that God is and that He is not, and that man is everything and that man is nothing. A person may find it hard to question what he has believed most of his life, but it is necessary for a dialogue—when a person endeavors to really understand "where the other person is coming from." This type of dialogue McGowan sees as a purifying process. A process where one considers the possibility that the other way might be the better way.

By respecting each other, basic beliefs of the humanists and religionists can be realized. For the humanist, such beliefs as the progress of science and industrial techniques, the mutual respect and love among men and the proper education of each person can flourish. For the religionist, such beliefs as the commitment to a deity and the commitment to the human community as the people of God can flourish.

ROTC holds performance

"Present Arms!" This command is given on many campuses across the nation on Veteran's Day. This November 11, one of the nation's most honored occasions, this command was given for the first time on the UNCW campus. New to our campus this year, Army ROTC already has several extra-curricular activities—one is the Color Guard. It consists of five dedicated students who give their extra time and efforts to strive for perfection in representation of their school. They are all cadets in the Senior Army ROTC program on campus. Cadet Sgts. Arthur Hohnsbehn, Del Clark, Obbie Blanton, Janet Johnson, and Mark Reid are the members. This was their first performance this year with more to come. The Color Guard will perform at all the home Seahawk basketball games this season with the first on November 28.

There is also a possibility of a Memorial Day performance and parade. These students are proud to continue an American tradition.

Students should pay spring semester bills by Dec. 28

by Tinker Linebaugh
Journalism Contributor

Bills for the spring semester are scheduled to be mailed on Dec. 1 and should be paid for by Dec. 28.

Students eligible for financial aid should receive a "Postponement Form" with the bills. In order to defer charges for the spring semester and to hold one's preregistration, this form must be presented to the cashier with the bill. If an eligible student does not receive a "Postponement Form" with his/her bill, it is the student's responsibility to obtain the necessary form from the Financial Aid Office.

The submission of a "Postponement Form" by an eligible student officially enrolls him/her in the University; therefore, the student must formally withdraw from the University should he/she decide not to enroll.

Financial Aid Applications Forms for 1982-83 may be picked up at the Financial Aid Office following the beginning of the spring semester, but not before that time. The deadline date will be March 15.

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

114-A Coral Drive • Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT

256-3842

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. — 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

NOW AVAILABLE
AT THE
UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

WILMINGTON TRANSIT
AUTHORITY
TICKETS

10 for $3.75

PICK UP YOUR FREE BUS SCHEDULE

Sports

Swimmers start season Saturday

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

The three-year-old UNCW swimming team starts its 1981-82 season with back-to-back home meets this weekend. Both men's and women's squads will compete against Appalachian State Saturday at 2 p.m., and against East Carolina Sunday at 1 p.m.

The Seahawks have never beaten ECU, although they've come close every year.

"We're still a young team," said coach Dave Allen. "We've got a lot of freshmen, and our attitude and spirit are good."

The Seahawks practice twice a day to face a 13-date season that runs through March. Part of the squad's practice schedule includes a two-week training program in Florida over Christmas break.

The men's team has six seniors, three juniors, five sophomores and eight freshmen. The women's team consists of two seniors, two juniors, one sophomore and six freshmen.

This year's captains for the

Sam O'Leary

men's team are seniors Sam O'Leary and Roddy Michalove.

O'Leary, a native of Williamsville, N.Y., is the pride and joy of UNCW's swimming program. In his three years here, O'Leary has been chosen the team's outstanding performer each year. He holds five school records, plus a relay team record. His specialty is the 100-yard butterfly.

Roddy Michalove

Michalove, a native of Asheville, specializes in the individual medley - a combination of all four major strokes - middle distance freestyle, and the 200 butterfly.

Other senior standouts on the men's team are Mike Malone from Laguna Beach, Calif., the Seahawks' record-holder in the 100 and 200 breaststroke; Terry Cascaddan of Orlando, Fla., a distance freestyler;

Karen Young

Raleigh native Gregg Williams, who will be moving from 1000 freestyle to 500 and 200 middle distances, and relay competition; and Bill DeForest from Rochester, N.Y., a backstroke who has had injury problems, but hopes for a strong final year.

Juniors include Rusty Lambe of Greensboro, the versatile record-holder on the three relay teams who swims the 500 freestyle, and the 200 and 400 IM; Lee Squires from Dunn, a butterfly and freestyle sprinter; and transfer Phil Harden, a 200 and 500 freestyler from Pittsburgh.

The women's team captain is senior Karen Young, a 50 and 100 butterfly specialist from Johnson City, Tenn., who, along with senior Ellen Cushman, a backstroke and IM swimmer from Apex, qualified as all-Americans in 1979.

Janet Johnson, a two-time all-American breaststroker from Fayetteville, and transfer Marcie Laderer, a middle distance swimmer from Conneaut Lake, Pa., are the squad's only juniors.

Women's golf team wins NCAIAW championship

In women's golf's three-year history at UNCW, this fall was the most outstanding. The Lady 'Hawks won the AIAW Division III state and regional titles to qualify for the national tournament again, which will be held here in June.

"My number-one priority is scoring," coach Lea Larson said. "If you look at how we did in the state tournament last year, we lost with a 36-hole 709 total. This year we had a 669, and won by 21 strokes."

Junior Darci Wilson led UNCW in the state tournament last weekend with a 160. She tied for medalist honors, but lost in the sudden death playoff to Luann Johnson of Meredith; the only other school in the field.

"The scores emphasize how much better we're doing," Larson said. "Our team average on the season was 356 last year. This year it was 333."

That's a whole lot from one year to the next, and I know every player I have from last year has improved."

Wilson finished with the lowest round average of 80.7. She was followed by freshman Heidi Crossley with 84.7, junior Robbie Roberts 84.9, freshmen Leigh Walters and Celeste Marks, both 85.9, and sophomore Cindy Flowers 86.7.

Others who played were senior Sibbie Johnson, junior

Coach Lea Larson

Connie Pool, and freshman Ann Hall.

"I think what really made a difference to us in the last three tournaments is Robbie played so much better," Larson said. "Her third round at Duke was when she made some massive improvements - not just in her swings, but also in her attitude."

The team will continue practicing through the winter in preparation for the spring season, which begins in March.

Lady 'Hawks end soccer season well

by Keith Donnelly
Sports Writer

The Women's Soccer Club closed out its fall season last weekend in the third annual Women's Invitational Soccer Tournament in Fayetteville. The Lady Seahawks finished seventh in the 14-team tournament, third in their division, and had a 5-3 overall record.

Playing 4 games a day, UNCW started well, defeating the Crickets from Atlanta, Ga., 5-0, and the Sockers from Reston, Va., 1-0. The Lady 'Hawks lost the next game, 3-0 to eventual tournament winners, the CBC Raiders from Upper Marlboro, Md. UNCW finished the day with a 2-1 loss to the Orange Crush from Fayetteville.

On Sunday UNCW defeated the Charlotte Stingers and Duke by 1-0 scores before entering the playoffs. The Lady 'Hawks beat the Raleigh Strikers, 1-0 in the first game of the playoffs before losing their last game, 2-1, to the same Duke team they had defeated earlier that day.

Individual scoring honors went to Jennifer Wilson, who finished the tournament with seven goals, and Matilda Barker who added four. With the exception of intramural games, the club will not resume play until February.

Green - Gold and alumni basketball set for Friday night

The annual alumni and intra-squad men's basketball games will take place Friday night in Trask Coliseum.

The alumni game, to be played first, will feature 21 of UNCW's all-time greatest players. Two teams will be divided by even and odd years of graduation.

The 1981-82 Seahawks will consist of five seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and one freshman. Fans will get their first look at newcomers Dave Prenatt, a 6-8 transfer from Butler, and Scott Pearce, a 6-4 freshman from Durham Jordan's state 3-A championship team.

Onno Steger, a promising 6-5 junior college transfer, will not play because of a broken ankle.

Among the alumni players will be UNCW assistant coach John Haskins, who scored over 450 points in two seasons 1978-80; Jimmy Denton, a team co-captain in 1980; Denny Fields, UNCW's highest all-time average scorer (22 points per game) with seven 30-point games from 1976-78; Dave Wolff, the number-two all-time scorer with 1,220 points from 1975-79; Gary Cooper, UNCW's second-leading rebounder and number-five scorer with over 1,000 points from 1976-80; twin-brothers Bob and Bill Martin, number one and two on the school assists record with 550 between them; and Mike Cherry, who scored over 900 points in two seasons, 1972-74.

Others to play will be Mike Sobrinsky, Delany Jones, Art Paschal, Greg Kemp, Frank Bua, Lonnie Payton, Greg Scott, Perry "Pearl" Dobson, Ralph Peterson, Jim Brogren, Rick McKay, Ricky Brock, and Willie Jackson.

'81ers beat alumni

The 1981 men's soccer team took a 4-1 decision Saturday on Brooks Field in the second annual UNCW alumni soccer game.

The alumni team had 22 players from the years 1965 to 1980, including 1975 NAIA all-American Gene Borowski, and UNCW record-holder Nino Fleri and Tim Willette. Fleri (1973-76) has the most saves (696) and most shutouts (19, tied with Charlie Ingold) as a goalkeeper.

Sophomore Keith Webster

scored the first goal on alumni goalkeeper Ingold, who was an all-South selection in 1980. The score stood 1-0 at half-time.

UNCW assists record-holder Dave Karlson scored early in the second half to give the '81 Seahawks a 2-0 lead. Ted Kort, a two-year starter in 1977-78, scored to trim the deficit to 2-1.

Later in the half, freshman Lee Morgan and senior Dennis Davis scored to give the '81 'Hawks their first victory of the two alumni games.

Sports Calendar

Friday

Men's and Women's Swimming vs. Appalachian State, 2 p.m.

Men's Basketball Alumni Game.

Men's Basketball Green/Gold Intra-squad Game.

Saturday

Men's and Women's Swimming vs. East Carolina, 1 p.m. Fall Feud.

Tuesday

Women's Basketball vs. Shaw, 7 p.m.

Football Club still proud

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

The fall Football Club schedule has not been a very rewarding experience for the some 30 team members. The Seahawks are 1-8, including a 30-0 loss to N.C. State Saturday for the 'Hawks final home game. The team has not scored since Sept. 27, and its lone victory came in the form of a forfeit when UNC-Greensboro failed to honor its game agreement.

However, the Football Club won one battle that will not show up in the won-loss column. The Seahawks have a solid organization again, which had to overcome some towering obstacles to become one of UNCW's more stable athletic clubs.

Dale Fish, the club president, has been the sole driving force that brought the Football Club from disbandment last fall to a proud position this year.

despite the horrendous record.

"There's no doubt we've had some problems," Fish said, "but we started over, and we're building a foundation for the future. We've had a lot of cooperation from the SGA, the administration, and the athletic department in particular, and it's really working again. Sure it's been very hard to take all the losses. It's terribly frustrating, but the players keep trying even though nothing seems to be working.

"A lot of people don't see how we're still together," he said. "After about the second game the administration was surprised that we were functioning as well as we were. Now, still, the overall moral of the team is not bad considering. The players are proud still to represent the Football Club because they know we're young and inexperienced. We're already looking forward to next year."

Dale Fish

Fish has pinpointed a major problem of improper leadership on the field. In the fourth quarter of Saturday's game, UNCW put together one of its best drives of the season only to be stopped at the State one-yard line due to some misunderstandings in the huddle.

Lack of coaching, especially on the offense, has been another major problem for the 'Hawks this season.

"I think it's a matter of too many chiefs and not enough indians," Fish said. "I heard there was a lot of indecision in the huddle before that fumble. It's partially my fault because I'm not providing enough leadership out there, and that's mainly because we don't have a coach."

UNCW closes out its fall schedule Friday night against UNC-Chapel Hill in Chapel Hill.

Harriers 21st

On Saturday, the cross country team concluded its competition in the NCAA Division I men's regionals in Greenville, S.C.

Of the 36 schools represented in the meet, only 22 were counted in the team scoring, and UNCW finished 21st ahead of UNC-Charlotte.

Sophomore George Walker (battling a side-stitch in the last mile) led the Seahawks with a 34:14 clocking and 114th place out of an overall field of approximately 180.

Freshman Thomas Christian came back from a head cold he had last week to place second for the team in 35:06. He was followed by senior Julian Keith in 35:14.

Coach Bill Atwill summed up his runners' season performance by saying, "What happened with our season was that, except for George and Tom, we peaked in late September and early October, (instead of now)."

Notes...

The Lady Seahawks basketball team will hold an intrasquad scrimmage tonight in Trask Coliseum.

Greg Little took first place in last Sunday's intra-club surfing contest. Andy Wiggmore was second, with Mike Fitzpatrick third, and Mike Brady fourth.

Last week's intramural cross country meet was cancelled when nobody showed up.

"The Home Court Advantage," a cheering section at basketball games led by Richard Foy, will hold an organizational meeting Thursday, Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. in Trask room 119.

Foy said that the meeting will be very important, especially for old members to spread the word.

Joey Janning and Cynthia Taylor were the men's and women's winners, respectively, in the intramural bowling contest held last week at Cardinal Lanes.

Doug Scoggins and Vanessa Hall were the respective runner-ups.

The Miami-Dade vs. Maryland-Rockville junior college soccer playoff game will be played on Brooks Field Friday at 1:30 p.m.

Several students are trying to begin a frisbee club, and they need more members.

Tod Leber and Dan Mone said that meetings are held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 4:30 p.m., and Sundays at 12:30 p.m. on Brooks Field.

The group is holding elections for officers now. For more information, call Leber at 392-7877.

Intramural standings

FLAG FOOTBALL

[thru 11-15]

League A	W-L	League B	W-L
*Kegmen	5-0	Chi Phi	4-1
CC Rednecks	5-1	Pi Kap	4-1
Low Life	4-2	SAE	4-1
Chiefs	3-2	No Fat Chicks	3-2
Locals	1-4	LT's	1-4
69ers	1-4	3 Hewlett	1-4
		TNK	0-4

*clinched league championship PLAYOFFS

Quarter-finals, Thurs., Nov. 19

Semi-finals, Mon., Nov. 23

Finals, Tues., Nov. 24

VOLLEYBALL

[thru 11-10]

W-L	W-L
Kegmen	7-0
Prime Ribs	6-1
Surfdawgs	3-3
Wizards	2-4
SAE	1-5
*Jerry's Kids	0-5
*dropped

SOCCEER

[thru 11-12]

W-L	W-L
Stomping Metis	3-0
Z-Club	2-1
Kegmen	2-1
S. Sweethearts	2-1
Bob Marleys	1-2
Racketeers	1-2
No-Names	1-2
Wil-Shire United	0-3

A LIVING - LEARNING EXPERIENCE

plus
A SAILING CRUISE
THROUGH THE BAHAMAS

A unique opportunity for personal growth and a lot of fun is available to you March 6 to 14, 1981. During a week long cruise aboard the Shark II, a 55' sloop rigged sailboat, a group of persons commit themselves to use the experiences generated by living together in this new environment for personal awareness and growth.

The sailing is mainly in the Berry Islands of the Bahamas which are a group of basically uninhabited islands abounding in palm trees, white sand beaches and clear blue-green water. Under the guidance of an experienced captain, the participants crew the boat and learn basic sailing and navigation by compass during daylight and nighttime.

Planned and led by Bob Haywood of United Christian Campus Ministry at UNC-W, who has led this experience for the last ten years, this opportunity is being offered first to students, faculty and staff at a cost of $315 for the week plus transportation to Miami. Those who choose to carpool may expect the cost to be in the neighborhood of $50 each.

If interested fill out the application below and return it to Bob Haywood as soon as possible. Call (919) 799-1160 or mail the attached slip to United Christian Campus Ministry, P.O. Box 3725, Wilmington, N.C. 28406. As soon as enough applications have been received a meeting will be held to give details and make final plans.

Clip here

NAME _____ PHONE _____

LOCAL ADDRESS _____

WHAT KIND OF PERSON ARE YOU? _____

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO GET OUT OF THIS? _____

BURRITO BOB'S

Mexican Restaurant

Tues. UNCW Night - ID Required

— HOURS —
TUES. - SUNDAY 11-11
CLOSED MONDAY

392-6520

5901 WRIGHTSVILLE AVE.
WILMINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

Entertainment

Art

Exhibits

Ceramics and sculpture by students of Stephen LeQuire, on display through Nov. 30 in the Kenan Hall lobby. UNCW. Hours: 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday - Friday.

Watercolors by Mary Ellen Golden of Wilmington, on display at the Golden Gallery, Level 3 in the Cotton Exchange. Hours: 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Monday - Saturday.

Paintings by Anne Brennan, Betty Brown and Gladys Faris on display at the Island Gallery at The Landing, 530 Causeway Dr., Wrightsville Beach. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Monday - Saturday, and 2-6 p.m. Sunday.

Paintings and ceramics by Wilmington artist Alice Cranston Fenner on display at the Fenner Fine Arts Gallery, 2311 Market St. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. weekdays, and 2 - 5 p.m. Sundays.

Art works by Claude Howell, a well-known Wilmington artist and teacher, on display at St. John's Museum of Art, 114 Orange St. Mr. Howell will also present a lecture on his artistic development, Nov. 12 at 8 p.m. at the museum.

17th Annual "Art on Paper" show, Weatherspoon Art Gallery, UNC-G, through Dec. 13. Hours: Tuesday-Friday, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.; weekends 2-6 p.m. No cover charge.

"Watercolors 1981" by Adele Wayman on display through Nov. 29 at Guilford College.

Paintings by Ruth Hedge and Lillian Sneedon on display through December at Poplar Grove Plantation, off U.S. 17 in Scotts Hill. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily, and noon until 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Recent paintings and other works by Claude Howell on display through Nov. 21 at St. John's Museum of Art. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Exhibition of 42 photographs in Chambers Art Gallery, Davidson College, through Dec. 18. Hours: 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. weekdays.

Oriental Art from Weatherspoon Gallery and Chingua - Penn Plantation, on display through Nov. 29. Weatherspoon Downtown, Greensboro. Hours: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday; 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and by appointment.

Classes:

Life drawing classes taught by Virginia Wright-Frierson meet 7:30-10 p.m. Wednesdays at St. John's Museum of Art.

Oil, acrylic and pastel painting classes meet 7-10 p.m. Thursdays at St. John's Museum of Art, 114 Orange St.

Watercolor classes taught by Gladys Faris meet 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays at the Cowan House in Wilmington's Historic District.

For more information on any of these classes, call St. John's Museum of Art, 763-0281.

Music

The Wilmington Concert Association is currently selling tickets for its 1981-82 season. Performances include the Smithsonian Jazz Repertory Ensemble Nov. 9, the Branko Krstanovich Chorus Jan. 28, pianist Malcolm Frager Feb. 15, the N.C. Dance Theatre March 1, and the Rochester Philharmonic, with violin soloist Boris Belkin March 31.

All concerts will be held in Kenan Auditorium. Admission will be by season membership only - $25 for adults and $15 for students - and may be ordered by check from the Wilmington Concert Association, P.O. Box 1769, Wilmington, N.C. 28402.

For more information call 762-54113 or 762-8388.

Charlie Daniels Band performs at 8 p.m. Nov. 21 at Trask Coliseum. UNCW. Tickets: $8.50 for UNCW students, $9.50 for general public.

reserved seating. The opening act is the Chuck Leavell Trio, featuring Chuck Leavell, a former keyboardist with the Allman Brothers.

UNCW Concert Band, directed by Harry McLamb, performing 8 p.m. Nov. 23 at Kenan Auditorium. Free.

Alabama with Jane Fricke and Mike Cross Concert, 8 p.m., Nov. 28. Greensboro Coliseum.

David Bar-Ilan, pianist, High Point Theatre, 8 p.m., Nov. 19.

UNCG Dance Company, Aycock Auditorium, 8:15 p.m. Nov. 20, 21.

Baroque Ensemble, North Carolina School of the Arts, Stephen Shipp, conductor, Crawford Hall, 8:15 p.m. Nov. 19.

UNCG Chorale Variety Show, Recital Hall, 8:15 p.m. Nov. 20, 21.

Theater / Movies

Theatre

"Dr. Cook's Garden," SRO Theater, Kenan Hall, UNCW, 8 p.m. Nov. 19, 20, 21, 22. Tickets: $1 for students, $2 for faculty, and $3 general public. Call 791-4330, ext. 2440 for reservations.

"The Stingiest Man in Town," Thalian Hall, 7 p.m. Nov. 20, 3 p.m. Nov. 21, and 1:30 and 4 p.m. Nov. 22. Tickets: $12.50 at the door of from Belk-Beery, A-Z Rental, The Bookery, and The Acorn Tree.

"I'm No Angel," a 1933 film with Mae West and Cary Grant, Thalian Hall, 8 p.m. Nov. 21. Sponsored by the Thalian Film Series.

"Dear Brutus," John T. Hoggard High School, presented by the Hoggard Thespians, 8 p.m. Nov. 20, 21, 22. Tickets: $2.50. Call 791-0230, ext. 33 for reservations and more information.

"Children of a Lesser God," Duke University, Page Auditorium, 8:30 p.m., Nov. 19.

"The Red Shoes," Town Hall Auditorium, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20, 2 p.m. Nov. 21, 22.

"Kennedy's Children," UNCG Theater, Taylor Building, 8:15 p.m. Nov. 19, 20, 21, and 2:15 p.m. Nov. 22.

"The Glass Menagerie," UNC-Chapel Hill, Playmakers Repertory Company, Paul Green Theater, 8 p.m. Nov. 19, 20, 21, and 2 p.m. Nov. 22.

Movies

World's Worst Film Festival - including "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes, Attack of the Giant Leeches, Freaks, Reefer Madness, Santa Claus Conquers The Martians, and The Wild Bunch," Friday, Nov. 20 in The Pub.

"Time Bandits," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"The Pursuit of D.B. Cooper," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5, 7, and 9 p.m.

"Raiders of The Lost Ark," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5:15, 7:30, and 9:45.

"Bustin' Loose," Manor Theatre, rated R. Shows at 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.

"Take This Job and Shove It," Oleander Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3 and 7 p.m.

"Night The Lights Went Out In Georgia," Oleander Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3 and 7 p.m.

"The Disappearance," Long Leaf Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.

"True Confessions," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.

"Halloween II," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"Body Heat," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30.

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]

Grill open Monday through Friday

Patio's Special

THREE HOTDOGS
$1.25

Mon. Ladies' Night

Wed. College Night - 7 Kegs

Friday Afternoon

25 cent Hotdogs 4-7

Sunday - Ladies' Pool Tournament

Campus Calendar

YMCA accepts applications

The East Mecklenburg Family YMCA in Charlotte, NC, will be accepting applications for positions as: day camp counselors, swimming instructors, and lifeguards. If you are interested in applying,

On-campus accommodations

On-campus accommodations are available for Spring semester 1982. UNCW, at the present time, has four residence halls (one coed highrise, one coed suite type, one all female suite type, and one all male suite type) as well as furnished apartments. If you are interested in living on campus, please contact UNCW Housing Office.

please write: Ron Morrow, East Meck. Family YMCA, P.O. Box 25382, Charlotte, NC 28212, for an application and please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. Interviews will begin during Christmas break.

Club sponsors film

The French Club will sponsor the film adaption of La Bete Humaine by Zola. The film is in French and with English subtitles. It's tentatively scheduled for Monday, Nov. 23 in the evening.

Everyone is welcome to come. Look for posters next week which will give a definite time and date.

BILLY GRAHAM from p. 2.

Perhaps the real is for us to understand what it means to be Saved. You must believe in your heart that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God, that He was born of a virgin, that

He was crucified, and raised from the dead on the third day.

You must trust him as your personal Savior and Lord. You must have a personal relationship with Him, asking and trusting Him to forgive you of your sins. The Word of God backs all of this up.

Today is the day to get to know Jesus and worship Him. Trust Jesus now, for you do not know when your last heartbeat will be.

Billy F. Capps, Jr.

GPA from p. 1.

major and a "C" or better required in the course.

If a student has failed a course, he/she may repeat the course for credit and a grade without seeking authorization.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs William M. Malloy stated that when a student is declared ineligible, he/she loses housing privileges and also their preregistration, even if the student attends summer school and receives suitable grades. In other words, if the student after attending summer school, is eligible to return in the fall, he/she begins again with the lines and other such inconveniences.

Pi Kappa Phi sponsors party for charity

Pi Kappa Phi proudly presents its first annual fall semester "toga" party on Nov. 23, 1981 at Four Winds. This event will last from 8:15-1 a.m. Admission will be $1.00 w/toga and $2.50 w/o toga.

One cent beverages will be served until 9:30 and then reduced prices for the remainder of the evening.

Most fraternities now-a-days, nationwide and at UNCW, are only known as a bunch of guys who only like to get together for social happenings and big parties. Well many people might consider this "toga" party as only a social party, but one must realize the whole purpose behind this event is to raise money for an ever-needing charitable organization.

This organization is known as PROJECT P.U.S.H. (play units for the severely handicapped). The money received from this fund raising event will be donated to PROJECT P.U.S.H. All over the world today children are handicapped, and Pi Kappa Phi is trying to help ease the pain of these people. These children have no means to interact with their environment and other individuals.

In 1976, the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity began to search for a project that the fraternity could absorb as its National Service Project to be supported by the undergraduate chapters and alumni. Rather than considering involvement in an existing service project, the Fraternity sought a project which offered the challenge of new and unsolved problems. In 1977, Pi Kapp collaborated to produce the first indoor P.U.S.H. unit which was installed in the Deaf/Blind Unit at Western Carolina Center in Morganton, NC. The unit consists of a series of nine areas of space, each of which offers a different kind of stimulus-response possibility.

Pi Kappa Phi also has units in New Orleans and in Silver Spring, Maryland. Units are now being developed in Alabama. This year's national goal is $117,500, far above last year's contribution of $48,000. Bobby Jones of the Philadelphia 76ers is this year's honorary chairman.

All the members of Pi Kapp strongly urge everyone to come out to Four Winds on Nov. 23. We want to help PROJECT P.U.S.H. and we also need your help.

We would also like to thank the following people for their much needed help. Without these people all of this would not have been possible: Four Winds, WHSL, Maccumber Station, Dry Dock, Parkers, Domino's Pizza, Skinner & Daniel, Sophia V. West, Personal Diet Counseling, School Kids, Pizza City, Landing Wine & Cheese, Zales Jewelers, Leo's Beer King, That's Amore Pizza, Kwik Kopy, Coleman Supply, Center Court, and T-Shirts Plus.

Thanks to Delta Zeta

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity wish to thank the sisters of Delta Zeta sorority for a very enjoyable and memorable Hawaiian Luau party Nov. 13. We hope that this event can be the progenitor of a long and happy tradition, and we are proud to be sharing it with the great ladies of Delta Zeta.

Thanks.
S.A.E.

"WE'VE GOT A DATE NOV. 19th."

"That's when the American Cancer Society asks every smoker in America to give up cigarettes for a day. Give it a try. You might find you can quit forever."

THE GREAT AMERICAN SMOKEOUT

American Cancer Society

Classified

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court. Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Lost: Small black dog with out collar. Mixed breed, terrier-dachshund. Last seen on campus Oct. 28. Dog answers to the name of Weasel. If found please call 799-2334. Ask for Chris.

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Typist Available

Betty Ames

799-2578

IBM Executive Typewriter

SEAHAWK-MAN BOUNDS THROUGH THE LIBRARY'S

WHILE IN THE RARE BOOK ROOM...

CONT'D

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Mr. Alvin Padrick
Thurs., Nov. 19
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admin.: All

Kentucky Central Life Ins. Co.
Mr. John E. Willse
Tues., Nov. 24
Pos: Sales
Majors: All

Scotchman Stores
Mr. Tod McDonald
Tues. & Wed.
Dec. 1 & 2
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: All

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
Dec. 1, 2, & 3
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Resume

Mon., Nov. 23
11:00 a.m.

Wed., Dec. 9
10:00 a.m.

The Job Search

Tues., Dec. 8
1:00 p.m.

Internal Revenue Agent
Register is open on a continuous basis for the Southeastern Region. The register will remain open until further notice.

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Term papers,
etc...
call 791-0990

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

CLIFFS

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems. Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
HERE:

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

POPLAR GROVE

Needs Part-time Waiters & Waitresses

For the Holiday Season and On Week-ends
also

History Majors
Call Betty Taylor 686-9503

Sound Seventy
PRESENTS

THE Charlie Daniels BAND

FULL MOON TOUR

WITH SPECIAL GUEST
CHUCK LEAVEL TRIO

SAT., NOV. 21, 8PM

ALL TICKETS RESERVED
$8.50 STUDENTS, $9.50 PUBLIC

TRASK COLISEUM
UNC-Wilmington

Ticket Outlets: Coliseum Box Office, UNCW Student Activities Office,
School Kids Records, Gillhams Guitar Works, Record Bar (Wilmington, Jacksonville)

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center

Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In

Special
Natural 12 pk.
$4.50

Natural - Case
$8.50

Cheapest Ice in Town
49 cents

Across from Four Winds

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 11

November 25, 1981

Eight Pages

Campus Crime Watch lists objectives, possible solutions

The Crime Watch Committee was reorganized this September and consists of students and faculty members.

The Crime Watch Committee has the following objectives:

1. Identify and evaluate potential security hazards on campus.
2. Increase student awareness of security through media on campus.
3. To provide a liaison between the SGA and campus security in the interest of safety and security on campus.
4. To recommend solutions to the SGA.

Within the scope of these guidelines the committee met with Chief Norman of campus security and defined the following problem areas on campus: larcenies from unsecured dorms and apartments, incomplete reporting of crimes, unsecured and improperly secured bicycles, lighting on campus, protection of students after dark.

With these problem areas in mind, the committee discussed possible solutions and recommends the following actions:

1. Increase the security awareness of the students on campus.
- This would be a multi-phase program, consisting of meetings with the residence assistants, providing them with material to be passed on to the students in the dorms and apartments, attendance at hall and apartment meetings by members of the Crime Watch Committee to receive student input relating to safety and security, and providing a method for all students to contact the committee with information relating to safety and security.

2. Discuss with The Seahawk the possibility for a Crime Prevention column in the paper each week where information can be presented to the campus population. One of the major areas this committee is concerned with is the lack of information about campus security and safety that is available to the students and faculty. The inclusion of a weekly column would be of great value in the area of crime awareness.

3. Establishment of a "Ride-along" program with Campus Security. The purpose of this program would be to familiarize the students with the operation of the Security department. Also, the students would have the opportunity to critique the officer, and these critiques would be delivered to the chief of the department.

4. Hold a meeting between the Crime Watch Committee and the Interfraternity Council to explore the idea of establishing an escort service on campus during the hours of darkness for female students. This service, currently provided by the Security department, would possibly be better implemented by the students.

5. Explore the possibility of establishing a Campus Hot-Line. This service, operated by and for the students would give the troubled student an opportunity to talk with someone knowledgeable with the problems of students and able to offer advice and information.

6. Implementation of a Campus Visual Survey. This survey, conducted by the Committee members, would identify areas on campus that are safety hazards. Recommendations in this area would be forwarded to the security department and the physical plant section.

7. Production of security stickers. These stickers will be affixed to the doors of the dorms and apartments as a reminder to lock the door at all times. A simple message (LOCK IT OR LOSE IT) could aid in reducing the number of larcenies from unsecured areas.

8. Construction of a dorm/apartment area crime statistics poster. This poster, compiled from data provided by the Security department would emphasize the need for security in the dorms and apartments. The posters would be compiled and maintained by the Crime Watch Committee.

Along with these recommendations, the Committee will be contacting other campuses to see how they handle safety and security in order to see what can be done on this campus in the interest of the students. Implementation of these recommendations will be an on-going process, and further recommendations will be made in this Committee's monthly reports.

Chief Winston Norman

ROTC holds Cadet Forum at Fort Bragg

by Si Lawrence
Journalism Contributor

More than half a dozen devoted ROTC cadets from UNCW attended a "Cadet Forum" on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at Fort Bragg, Fayetteville, NC. According to Captain Gordon Macrae, chairman of the ROTC dept. here on campus, over 100 cadets from schools such as Methodist, Pembroke State, and Campbell attended the event hosted by Campbell University in the Fort Bragg Officers Club.

The evening got underway around 7 pm with an AUSA charter presentation to Campbell University introduced by Major Chambers, assistant professor of military science at Methodist College. At approximately 7:15, Chambers introduced the evening's speaker, Major Jack Rudolph of the 18th Airborne Corps at Bragg. The Major's lecture centered on the Soviet threat to the United States while focusing on three specific areas. Firstly, Rudolph brought to the cadet's attention the immense intelligence gathering capability of the Soviets through everything from antennae to the Soviet Intelligence officers who obscurely infiltrate after docking as proposed cargo crewmen in such as our own Wilmington.

Secondly, Rudolph elaborated on the Soviet military strength due to the massive number of men involved in the armed services. According to the Major, the number include approximately four and one-half million troops within over 180 divisions.

Rudolph wrapped up his lecture with a half-hour question-answer period. On display were various Soviet Arms ranging from an AKM assault rifle to an RPG anti-tank grenade launcher. Even a volunteer in a replica Soviet Union uniform was on hand to give the cadets some idea of dimensions and trim.

After the lecture, around 8:30, the cadets were endowed with hors d'oeuvres and an open bar upstairs. Later, several cadets enjoyed dancing with their peers in "Willy's," a disco located downstairs in the Officers Club. Macrae stated that the evening was both informative and relaxing. Everyone enjoyed the lecture as well as the sharing of moral.

Deadline for next week

Next week will be the last issue of the Seahawk for this semester. If you have any announcements or articles, please get them in by Monday morning, November 30 at 10:00.

Captain Gordon Macrae

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

The sounds of silence

It is rather remarkable to me how hard we work to avoid silence. We seem to go to incredible lengths to keep our lives filled with noise. Who of us does not go into our room and turn on the radio or the T.V. the first thing? How many of us drive anywhere in our cars with the radio off? Even when we are with friends there is discomfort with periods of silence and an incessant internal push to find something to talk about. Evidence piles upon evidence that silence is uncomfortable and that many of us have either forgotten or never learned to cultivate the rewards that can be found in quietness.

Thomas Merton writes, in The Sacred Lamb, "Those who love their own noise are impatient of everything else. They constantly defy all the silence of the forests and the mountains and the sea. They bore through silent nature in every direction with their machines, for fear that the calm world might accuse them of their own emptiness. The urgency of their swift movement seems to ignore the tranquility of nature by pretending to have a purpose. The loud plane seems for a moment to deny the reality of the clouds and of the sky, by its direction, its noise and its pretended strength. The silence of the sky remains when the plane has gone. The tranquility of the clouds will remain when the plane has fallen apart. It is the silence of the world that is real. Our noise, our business, our purposes, and all of our fatuous statements about our purposes, or business and our noise; these are the illusions."

I think it is true that for many a silent or calm world does "accuse them of their own emptiness." Yet I would like to sing the praises (even though I must use words to do so) of cultivating silence in our lives. The witness of those who speak about the experience of tranquility, peace and inner strength that can be found in silence, may make it worth struggling through the uncomfortableness to the point of finding in ourselves the ability to still and quiet.

Be aware of the noise in your life. Those who are willing to be attentive and risk some discomfort in the quest for life with meaning, can find the sounds of silence an experience of wonder rather than fear.

Student newspaper battles with SGA

The U. of San Francisco student newspaper is the latest to do battle with its student government over issues of financing and editorial control.

The student government president recently announced that the student newspaper, the Foghorn, would not receive advertising revenue unless it agrees to limit its entertainment and features sections to campus events. The action is being taken by the Associated Students of USF in its role as publisher of the newspaper, says ASUSF President Pat McNicholas. The student government allocates student fees to the Foghorn, this year providing $25,000.

Foghorn Editor Kelly Harp disputes ASUSF's right to make any editorial judgments, pointing to USF's Statement on Student Rights and Freedoms. That document states that "The student media of the U. of San Francisco are free of censorship and advance approval of copy and their editors and managers are free to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage," says Harp.

She is trying to enlist the support of the USF Media Council, a student-faculty-administration body that selects the Foghorn editor and the campus radio station manager. "We're trying to get the Media Council to realize it really is necessary to them to intervene between the Foghorn and ASUSF," says Harp. "But they haven't met regularly and we just discovered that the Media Council has been operating for years under by-laws that haven't been ratified by anybody."

The current controversy could change past patterns. "It's really a matter of constitutionally clarifying who is publisher of the paper and to whom we're responsible," says Harp. "We don't think it is the student government."

The issue is further complicated by ASUSF's financial woes. The organization ran a $50,000 deficit in 1980-81 and is determined to make that up this year, says Harp. To accomplish that, student fees were raised $2.50 per person per semester. "They used the rising printing costs of the Foghorn as a reason to raise the student fees, and that passed on a vote," she says. "But they gave us the same allocation as they did last year, even though our costs have gone up."

The Foghorn staff, which turned $11,000 in revenue back in to ASUSF coffers at the end of the 1980-81 year, had produced a workable budget for this year, says Harp, but can't meet that budget without ad revenue. "This is financial blackmail," she says. "My freedom and the freedom I can give my editors is being denied through the use of financing."

Notice

Correction: In a letter to the editor on Nov. 19, 1981, headed "We are the bomb builders," the author's name, Sankey Blanton, was mistakenly left out. We apologize for any confusion this may have caused.

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.
5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

Letters

Reader makes call for responsibility

To the Editor:

There was an article, and a commentary on premarital sex last month in this newspaper. The article detailed problems, known as pregnancy; and the editorial called for abstinence. I want to make another call - let's here it for RESPONSIBILITY.

Men, through my varied Navy experiences, half way round the world and back, I had many opportunities to investigate human sexuality and its place in relationships. Being intelligent, I learned from my mistakes a true meaning of love, and the value of responsibility. One mistake I never made however, was to create a child. I always believed it my responsibility to insure there was a low probability of pregnancy. Always, no matter the passion of the moment, or the state of the high, I made it MY responsibility to know contraceptives were available and would be used by her, by me, or both.

Responsibility prevents pregnancy, and MEN are as capable of being sexually responsible as women. If a man TRULY LOVES a woman, he is concerned enough for her health, well being, and future not to stick

See LETTER, p. 3.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Robert Eubanks, Features Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Jamie Moncrief

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

MY CLIENT WORKS AT A FEDERAL FACILITY WHERE HER SUPERVISERS CONSTANTLY HARASS HER DEMANDING SEXUAL FAVORS...

Non-traditional students encourage social opportunities

Meetings which concerned about 24 percent of the students at UNCW were held in the Student Union Building on Nov. 9 and 10.

The Non-Traditional Students' Organization (NTSO) met for the first time this year by having both a day and a night meeting. The idea of two meetings seemed to please those attending due to the varied schedules and responsibilities of non-traditional students.

The meetings were attended by the Associate Dean of Students Abby Hastings and approximately 30 students.

At the meeting on Nov. 9, Sherry McCarley gave a brief summary of how the NTSO began last year and mentioned two projects in which the NTSO was involved, during the SGA election last year. First, they were instrumental in seeing that ballot boxes were placed in areas around campus which would enable night school students to vote in the election; and second, the NTSO sponsored a forum presenting all the candidates for president and vice-president of the SGA.

McCarley then discussed two purposes of the NTSO:

1. A support group. McCarley stated that many students re-entering school could benefit from the support and encouragement received by talking over problems or difficulties with a peer.

2. Social opportunities. According to McCarley, most of the interests of non-traditional students are different from most activities planned by the University Program Board. Therefore, she feels that the NTSO could be a voice to the University Program Board for future activities which would involve interests of the non-traditional student.

One student at the meeting, Pam Caudill, informed those present that she had been sworn in as the Representative of the Special Students on the Student Senate. Caudill stated that more non-traditional students are needed in the SGA so that their needs and interests will be considered.

Hastings took an active part in the meeting by first stating, "The Administration does have a commitment to non-traditional students." She said that upon coming to UNCW she was informed that she would be working with non-traditional students. Hastings stated that she felt this would be an enjoyable responsibility and added that the non-traditional student "could be the future of the University."

Hastings then discussed a few of the services that the Administration would like to see at UNCW concerning the non-traditional student:

1. A Non-Traditional Students' Day for prospective students.
2. Peer counseling for first-semester students.
3. A Family Day for family members to visit the campus to see where the classes are and to become acquainted with the campus and instructors.

Before the meeting ended, cards were distributed for personal remarks on issues which were of importance to each person attending the meeting.

A list of issues confronting non-traditional students compiled from the meeting includes:

1. Admissions Procedures/Requirements
2. Academic Advising
3. Library Procedures
4. Day Care Services
5. Financial Aid Services
6. Socialization Opportunities
7. Food Services
8. A more responsive and thoughtful attitude among faculty, staff and administration.

The next NTSO meeting will be a lunch meeting at the university cafeteria snack bar on Tuesday, Dec. 1 at 12:15 pm. You may bring your lunch or purchase your food at the cafeteria snack bar.

Beach living alternative to dorms

Looking for an alternative to the dormitory? If so, maybe the beach is a possibility. Beach housing is priced competitively with the off campus apartments in Wilmington. Off season rent for a beach house can be handled fairly easily by three or four students. If you would rather live alone, rooms are not difficult to find at reasonable prices. Weekly rent for a bedroom and bath begins at about $35. Some motels also offer weekly rates. Summer

Sands Hotel at Wrightsville has rooms from $40-55 per week. This includes a bed and bath.

It is, however, difficult to find a room that offers kitchen privileges, so the price of eating out must also be considered in your budget.

If you are moving off campus, read the ads in the newspaper or call a realtor at one of the local beaches and you shouldn't have much trouble finding a place at the beach for Spring Semester.

Over 5,700 attended the Charlie Daniels concert in Trask Coliseum Saturday night. The mayor of Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach proclaimed Saturday, November 21 as 'Charlie Daniels Day.'

Cadets receive CPR training

Military Science I and III cadets are currently receiving cardiopulmonary resuscitation training through the Army ROTC program here at UNCW. After twelve hours of instruction and a final exam the students will be awarded a certificate of qualification through the Red Cross. Military Science I (freshmen) cadets will have the instruction spread over several semesters. Presently freshman cadets are undergoing marksmanship training at New Hanover High School JROTC rifle range. After a successful white water rafting trip on Oct. 16 and a three day field trip to Washington D.C., ROTC cadets will have the opportunity to go skiing in Boone, North Carolina, January 3-8, 1982.

Fugler spends year in Bolivia

Dr. Charles M. Fugler, professor of biology at UNC-W, is spending the 1981-82 academic year in the jungles of Bolivia as a Fulbright Research Scholar and a grantee of the Organization of American States.

LETTERS, from p. 2.

her with a pregnancy she doesn't want. But HO you say, she should have taken care of herself! Well men, you can talk about the woman's problem all you want, and possibly even ignore your responsibility in her future, but what of the fetus? When we deal with pregnancy, we are dealing with three parties: you, her, and junior who up to a second ago was just a potential. Of course, you can take of yourself and deal with your own future, and, she can take care of her own future, but who is going to be responsible for this totally innocent fetus?

Men, let me close with this thought: Sex without concern is self-gratification; true love means concern for the other; and the definitional difference between a "boy" and a "MAN" is responsibility.

Sankey Blanton

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

CLIFFS

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems. Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES HERE.

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]

Grill open Monday through Friday

Patio's Special
50¢ OFF
HAM SUB

Mon. Ladies' Night

Wed. College Night

Friday Afternoon

25 cent Hotdogs 4-7

Fri. & Sat. Jeff Duncan

Sunday Men's Pool Tournament

Lack of staff halts publication of U. of Tulsa paper

The lack of staff members forced the U. of Tulsa student newspaper to cease publication this fall, and the paper may not be revived until next semester.

After publishing three issues with a small and inexperienced staff, Editor Mark Graziano, the only remaining member of last year's staff, led a work stoppage that lasted four weeks. "We wanted people to realize what the staff was up against," says Graziano. "We just didn't have enough people with any experience to get the paper out - it was killing me and killing the staff I had."

The staff of about five stayed off the job for four weeks, then agreed to return, says Graziano.

The Board of Publications met to consider the staffing problem, and some new students volunteered to help out. Like the rest of the staff, however, the new volunteer lacked experience, and Graziano decided he couldn't continue as editor. "It was a matter of quitting or flunking out of school," he says. So Tulsa remains without a newspaper.

The Board of Publications has now chosen a new editor, is seeking new staff members and hopes to get the paper started again soon, says Dr. Emery

Turner, vice president of administration. He believes a combination of poor planning and bad timing led to the paper's demise. "I'm new at this, we had a new faculty adviser and a new student staff," he says. "It's just one of those things where the system broke down."

Pub board members are showing more concern over the paper now, says Turner. "We learned something here and we learned it in a hurry - we need to have more communication with the newspaper staff," he comments.

Graziano agrees that more

Publications Board effort is needed, especially in long-term planning. He and the newspaper staff would also like to get more support from the UT Communications Dept., which isn't currently involved in the paper. The students would like to see course credit used as an incentive to potential staff members. Communication faculty members oppose such a plan, says Turner, because they don't believe they should exert any control over the paper, as they would have to in order to give class credit. "Personally, I believe the students have a stronger argument," Turner says. "We've asked the Communications Dept. to look into it, but I think right now they feel under too much pressure to act. It's a question we could raise in the future and be more successful."

Graziano, who says he'll be willing to help the new editor next semester, believes the problems this fall will benefit the paper in the long run. "People have taken a closer look at the paper and realized the problems it's been facing for a long time," he says. "I think the paper was taken for granted before, like they probably are on a lot of campuses."

Campus Calendar

NTSO to hold lunch meeting

Non-traditional students will meet for lunch at the university cafeteria snack bar on Tuesday, Dec. 1 at 12:15 pm. If you are a student over 23 years of age, returning to school after an absence, and have family and/or job responsibilities, you qualify to join this group for some good lunchtime discussion.

You may bring your lunch or purchase your food at the cafeteria snack bar, but do plan to attend! It's a wonderful opportunity to see old friends, make new friends, and talk about some common issues.

Math Club to sponsor lecture

The UNCW Math Club will sponsor a Computer Software Development Lecture featuring Dr. Robert Herbst, UNCW Computer Science Professor, speaking on "The Safeguard Anti-Ballistic Missile System - Software Development" Dec. 3, 1981 at 7 pm in Morton Hall, room 100.

Dr. Herbst will describe the Safeguard Anti-Ballistic Missile System as well as review the practical considerations of producing software in the real life business setting.

The lecture is open to the public.

On-campus accommodations

On-campus accommodations are available for Spring semester 1982. UNCW, at the present time, has four residence halls (one coed highrise, one coed suite type, one all female suite type, and one all male suite type) as well as furnished apartments. If you are interested in living on campus, please contact UNCW Housing Office.

ID's validated early

The Dean of Students' Office, A-110, will validate ID's for the Spring '82 semester on your last day of exam.

If your name does not appear on the print-out or you don't have proof of payment for tuition and fees, your ID will not be validated at this time.

If you have any questions please contact the Dean of Students' Office.

Classified

Whoever called St. Matthews church last week, would you please get in touch with Jane Zirkle, in the Computing program center at Hoggard Hall, ext. 2542.

Any student desiring to play chess meet upstairs left in the library on Thursday evenings at 7:30.

Lost: Small, black dog without collar. Mixed breed, terrier-dachshund. Last seen on campus Oct. 28. Dog answers to the name of Weasel. If found please call 799-2334. Ask for Chris.

Typist Available

Betty Ames

799-2578

IBM Executive Typewriter

Lost: a silver Seiko watch, day and date (non-digital). Lost at racquetball court, Friday, Oct. 2nd. If found, please call 392-7281. Ask for Ken.

Read

The Seahawk

Greeks Speak...

The Gamma Zeta Chapter of Chi Phi announces the initiation of six new brothers, Alex Bethune, Allen Hunt, Bart Proctor, Robby Skipper, Eddie Tillman, and Neil Grubs (Pledge Spokesman).

These six young men were initiated Nov. 13 and Chi Phi is proud and very happy with its new Brothers. Also we look forward to spring rush and ask all those interested to call 392-9917.

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon wish to welcome into their bonds nine new brothers.

Initiated on Sat. Nov. 21, were the following brothers of Delta Pledge Class, North Carolina Delta Chapter: David Bostain, Rob Brickets, Wayne Grimes, Roddy Hernandez, Bill Ledgett, Jerry Polk, Bill Samson, Herbert Sellers, and Kevin Sills.

Congratulations to these fine young men as they enter the number one fraternity in the nation.

All young ladies interested in pledging AKA in the spring of 1982 are asked to attend a meeting Monday Nov. 30, 1981 at 4 pm in Randall Library. Meet in the lobby.

The Delta Zeta pledges would like to thank Pi Kappa Phi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon for their support and patience in our spaghetti supper. We would also like to thank Mark Bremer of Tau Nu Kappa, and Kevin Fidalgo of Chi Phi. We are looking forward to other events with these fraternities in the future.

IFC Party Four Winds Nov. 30/50 cents admission

Four Winds is a private nightclub, not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

"Liberty means responsibility. That's why most men dread it." — George Bernard Shaw

Next year it's all up to you. Only you can decide to start an insurance program now. The longer you wait, the more it costs. Find out how easy it is to begin our college plan, chosen by more seniors than any other.

Call the Fidelity Union Life Field Associate in your area:

WM C. "BILL" WALLIN, JR.
College Market Representative

P.O. Box 4547
Wilmington, N.C. 28406
Telephone
(919) 392-6813

PEANUTS®

NAPOLEON TALKED ABOUT
"TWO O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING COURAGE"

BUT WHEN YOU HAVE TO GET UP AT SEVEN AND YOU STILL HAVEN'T WRITTEN
THE ENGLISH THEME
THAT'S DUE TODAY...

SIX FIFTY-NINE IS THE WORST TIME OF DAY!

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

Dec. 25th Merry Christmas
Dec. 30th Sidewinder
Dec. 31st New Year's Eve Party

Nighthawks Playing Dec. 7th

Nov. 27th Brice Street &
Polar Bear Jam Band
Nov. 30th IFC Party
Dec. 1st UNCW Night
Dec. 2nd Super Grit Cowboy Band
Dec. 4th Christmas Party
Dec. 7th Nighthawks
Dec. 8th UNCW Night
Dec. 11th Stormz
Dec. 13th Stormz
Dec. 15th UNCW Night
Dec. 18th Robbin Thompson Band

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

Phi Beta Psi gets all of their beverages from The Beer Box.
Why don't you do the same? The Beer Box and PhiBeta Psi wish you a happy Thanksgiving

This space contributed by the publisher

Coming Christmas Attractions

Coming Christmas Attractions in NC: A Victorian Christmas at the Biltmore House, Asheville, NC. The world's largest private residence will host a celebration reminiscent of Christmas parties given by owner George Vanderbilt, when he formally opened the Biltmore house in 1895. The celebration will include 20 Christmas trees, thousands of Victorian ornaments, and a series of concerts. Opening Dec. 5.

McAdenville, a Piedmont town will host "Christmas Town USA" on Dec. 4, including over 275 decorated trees and 300,000 Christmas lights. The McAdenville Men's Club started this traditional festival of lights in 1957.

The annual Christmas show at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, "Star of Bethlehem" is currently showing.

Christmas celebrations in Winston-Salem's Moravian community will begin in Dec. Old Salem highlights include: a Moravian candle tea on Dec. 3, 4, 10, 12; the Piedmont Chamber Singers performing Dec. 13 at the 1788 Moravian Church; the Christmas Eve Lovefeast at the Home Moravian Church, Dec. 19; an open house at the Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts on Dec. 19, 20; also, Moravian bands, candlelight walking tours, and 15 galleries featuring traditional decorations, customs and food.

Candlelight tours of historic areas in Raleigh, Fayetteville, Edenton and Bath will begin Dec. 12.

Christmas tours of the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh will begin Dec. 14. Tours also available Dec. 15, 19 and 20.

For additional information concerning Christmas Celebrations in NC, brochures are available from the NC Travel and Tourism Division, 430 N. Salisbury St., Raleigh, NC 27611. Phone: (919) 733-4171.

Information can also be obtained from the Chambers of Commerce in the towns where events are scheduled.

Night Life

Local Happy Hours

Bridge Tender - 4-7 Monday through Thursday at the drawbridge on Airlie Road, (near Wrightsville Beach).

Fish Market - 5-7 weekdays; located at the corner of Market and Water.

Marina Restaurant - 5-7 daily on Wrightsville Beach.

Angelo's - 5-7 and 10 to closing every Friday and Saturday, on 421 on the way to Carolina Beach.

Tolliver's - 4-6 weekdays and 4-7 on Saturday and Sunday; in the College Square Shopping Center.

Riverview Restaurant - 763-5767. Nightly 4:30 to 6:30 and 10:30 to closing.

Tuesday's - weekdays 4-7, and 4-9 on Sunday.

Suffering B's - 10-11:30 nightly; located in the North 17 Shopping Center.

Mediterraneo Restaurant - 10-12 on Thursday nights; Lumina Avenue on Wrightsville Beach.

Bandito's - 5-6 and 10-11 nightly; located on Wrightsville Beach behind the Trolley Stop.

Gabriel's - weekdays 5-7; located in the Wilmington Hilton on Water Street.

Theater/Movies

Theatre

Children's Ballet: Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker," performed by the Dance Theater of Wilmington, directed and choreographed by Joanne Burnet, 7:30 pm Dec. 11-12 in Kenan Auditorium, UNCW. Presented by the Greater Wilmington Merchant's Association as its 11th annual children's show. Free.

"Scrooge," Thalian Hall, Wilmington, 8 pm, Dec. 10, 11, 12, 13.

"Children of a Lesser God," War Memorial Auditorium, 8:15 pm Nov. 30.

Movies

by Spencer March
Staff Writer

Raiders of the Lost Ark is an extreme example of what a movie can be. Although more people went to the movies this year than ever before, there was still a disappointing amount of entertaining films. Only a handful of movies like: An American Werewolf in London, and Stripes could provide the entertainment that movie-goers seek. Raiders of the Lost Ark ranks second on this year's box office charts (Superman II is first). The reason for such phenomenal success is simple, raiders is just plain old fun.

Raiders is a film on non-stop action and suspense, a blend of the cliffhangers of the 50's and today's James Bond films. The plot is nothing unique. A good guy (played by Harrison "Hans Solo" Ford) tries to obtain treasure (the lost ark of the covenant) before the Nazi's do. This leads to excitement beyond your wildest dreams. One minute Ford is being chased by a giant boulder, the next minute he's trapped in a crypt full of poisonous snakes. The action in the first five minutes can be compared to all the action in one James Bond picture, and it never stops.

One of the reasons Raiders is so well done is because of its creators. It is directed by Stephen Spielberg who has the distinction of filming Jaws and Close Encounters of the Third Kind. Both movies gave Spielberg critical acclaim and both landed on top ten box office charts (Jaws is second, and Encounters is seventh).

The producer of Raiders is George Lucas. Lucas climbed to fame with Star Wars, first on the charts, and The Empire Strikes Back which is currently third.

Raiders, like Star Wars and Superman, is the first of a projected series of movies. Unlike the other two, Raiders is believable. The audience is drawn into the story. I find Raiders of the Lost Ark to be the most entertaining movie since The Empire Strikes Back.

7525252525252525252525252525252525

"Raiders of the Lost Ark," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3, 5:15, 7:30, and 9:45.

"Halloween II," New Center Cinema, rated R. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"Time Bandits," Independence Mall Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15.

"Night The Lights Went Out In Georgia," Oleander Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3 and 7 pm.

"Take This Job and Shove It," Oleander Cinema, rated PG. Shows at 3 and 7 pm.

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

Restaurants

Dining

Thinker's Hill - 2024 Eastwood Rd., Wrightsville Beach; specializing in a variety of subs, soups, salads, sandwiches, chili, and natural foods; daily specials; weekend entertainment with no cover charge; game room and patio; Tuesday - UNCW "Ladies Nite," ID required; Hours: 11 am - 1 am, closed Mondays. 256-9715.

Hieronymous Seafood Restaurant - 5035 Market St.; specializing in broiled and sauteed seafood; all ABC permits; Hours: 5-10 pm seven days a week, lounge opens at 4:30 pm. 392-6313.

Dry Dock Seafood House - 5215 Oleander Dr.; specializing in seafood, also offers chicken, barbecue, steak and hamburgers; Visa and Master Charge accepted; take out service; Hours: 11 am - 9 pm Sunday-Thursday, 11 am - 10 pm Friday and Saturday. 799-7346.

Stemmerman's - 138 S. Front St.; an underground restaurant in the Historic District; featuring Prime Rib and seafood; all ABC permits. 763-0248.

Maccumber Station - 2025 Eastwood Rd. at Wrightsville Beach; specializing in steak, prime rib and lobster; all ABC permits. 256-9516.

Seahawk Restaurant - 4201 Market St. (Highway 17); featuring a seafood and ribs buffet-all you can eat; specializing in seafood, also serving ribeyes, chicken and chops; all ABC permits; Hours: serving Monday-Saturday at 5 pm, Sunday at 4 pm. 763-7300.

J. Michael's Philly Deli - Hanover Center, Oleander Dr.; featuring a variety of Philadelphia style sandwiches and hogies, pizzas and salads. 763-6466.

The Bridge Tender - Airlie Rd. at Wrightsville Beach; specializing in steak, prime rib and seafood; all ABC permits. 256-4475.

At one time or another we all have to deal with the 'Head Honcho'

At one time or another, we have all been employees. And as such, we have all had to deal with employers: the Head Honcho, the Top Dog, the Boss-man.

Well, yours truly works in a local restaurant, and let me tell you about my boss. He is a cross between Robert Mitchum and Henny Youngman. When he is having a bad day, everyone tiptoes. Have you ever seen 10 waitresses pussy-footing around while holding their breath? It can be done.

When the Boss is having a good day, all is rosy. We smile, we joke, we act normal-

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

even to each other. If the Boss is in positively jovial frame of mind, he picks on us. All of us. No one escapes his bionic eye, his sarcastic tongue. But, our motto is "'Tis better to be teased than ignored." Besides, we waitresses give as good as we get. Have you ever seen a grown man cringe?

Neither had I, until I told the Boss one of my patented tasteless jokes. He chuckled weakly, staggered back into the kitchen, and I believe is still recovering. We all shock him at times, although he is too tough to admit it.

Naturally, the Boss has a wife (all good bosses do; it keeps them out of trouble). She recently gave birth to a son who resembles his father to an eerie degree. As a result, we not have a boss who lapses into baby talk without warning. (He claims he's practicing so he can communicate with the kid, but I personally think the man is regressing).

But I don't give him enough credit. It is no easy task, keeping thirty-odd (and I do mean odd) employees happy, not to mention satisfying the customers. He has to be diplomatic, fair, stern, sympathetic, and occasionally even nice. By and large, if the customers are happy, he is happy. And if, God forbid, the customers are unhappy, we quake in our Keds. But the majority of our customers leave with full tummies, and a full tummy makes a smiling face, so everything works out in the end.

So there you have it, the story of a boss and his kingdom. I hope he likes this article... and if he doesn't, I'm sure I'll hear about it. And if he does... how about it, Boss? Can I have a raise?

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by the Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Kentucky Central Life Ins. Co.
Mr. John E. Willse
Tues., Nov. 24
Pos: Sales
Majors: All

Resume

Wed., Dec. 9
10:00 a.m.

Scotchman Stores
Mr. Tod McDonald
Tues. & Wed.
Dec. 1 & 2
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: All

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
Dec. 1, 2, & 3
Pos: Various
Majors: All

The Job Search

Tues., Dec. 8
1:00 p.m.

Internal Revenue Agent
Register is open on a continuous basis for the Southeastern Region. The register will remain open until further notice.

Read THE SEAHAWK

See Peter Sellers as President and many other roles in "Dr. Strangelove" in the Library Auditorium, Wed., Dec. 2 at 8 pm. Admission is $1.00.

There will be another showing that same day at 3p.m. in Morton Hall 102.

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Term papers,
etc...
call 791-0990

Advertise with THE SEAHAWK

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

114-A Coral Drive • Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center

Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In

The Beer Box would like to wish students and faculty a happy Thanksgiving.

Across from Four Winds

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 12

December 4, 1981

Eight Pages

'Atlantis' to be available soon

by Rene Hurt
Entertainment Editor

The Fall issue of Atlantis, UNCW's biannual literary magazine, which publishes students' short stories, essays, poetry and art, will be available to students at no cost by the end of this semester.

This year's winner of the Atlantis Cover Contest is senior Stan Johnson. Stan is an accounting major, and his pencil, pen and ink drawing of a water scene was the unanimous choice of the judges.

Thom Jones, a senior majoring in art and elementary education, has also contributed art work in this issue. Thom was the Atlantis art editor in 1979, and has recently had some of his work published in the Tugboat Review.

Joe Moenich, this year's Atlantis prose editor, said that Atlantis will include four short stories, whose settings range from Vietnam to Greece and New York. Two stories are written by senior Sam Lewis, who is majoring in English.

"Undermined," is a bizarre tale of international intrigue, and "Respite for a Hired Hand," explores the workings of an increasingly sick mind. Scott Chiverton's "Endings" brings home the grim realities of an unreal war, and "The #1 Fan," written by Stuart Kahn takes an irreverent look at the theology of the NFL.

Dianne Russell, the Atlantis poetry editor, said that approximately 35 poems will be included in this issue, ranging in themes from the ocean to pornography. "I think that there are a lot of different poems this time - they're REALLY different," Dianne also added that there has been a huge response this year. More than 100 poems were submitted. In addition, most of the winning poems in the Poetry Contest will be published.

The Atlantis is written and edited by UNCW students, and is funded through the Student Government Association. All students are encouraged to submit material for the Spring edition.

Art Guild holds sale

The UNCW Art Guild, in cooperation with the UPB, had an art sale Dec. 1 and 2 in the Student Services building. The art work consisted of pencil drawings, sculptures, photographs, ceramics, oil and acrylic paintings and home-made paper pieces.

All art work was done by UNCW students and was on display from Tuesday up until 9 pm and then again on Wednesday until 5 pm. All the art works were for sale and the funds were going 99% to the actual artists and 1% to the University Program Board.

Becky Icard, vice president for the Guild said "The students were just begging for a place to show their works."

Entertainment was also provided in the Goodwood Tavern by flutists and ablibbed performances were given by James Burke, Billy Stanley, Karen Durda, Bob Cadwell and Dierdra Brewster.

Art Guild sells UNCW artwork. Staff photo/Jamie Moncrief

Knowlton receives Dodson Scholarship

John Thomas Knowlton, physical education major at UNCW was awarded the "Taylor Dodson Scholarship Award" at the 1981-82 North Carolina Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation Convention held in Asheville, NC, Nov. 19-21. The scholarship is awarded annually to an outstanding student majoring in health, physical education and recreation.

He maintains a Grade Point Average of 3.7.

Christmas Ballet to be held at Thalian

by Jean Honeycutt
Journalism Contributor

This Christmas' Ballet Concert to be presented by the Wilmington Civic Ballet December 18-20 at Thalian Hall promises to be a delight to audiences of all ages.

Approximately forty dancers (including two males and seven children) will dance "The Snowmaiden," a Russian folk tale. It is set to a collage of traditional Russian folk tunes by Russian composers. Authentic folk dances are brought to the Wilmington Civic Ballet by John Lehman, this season's guest choreographer, through his association with Isaac Dukovich, a Russian trained dancer. The costumes reflect the authenticity and are designed by Lehman and recreated by Marilyn Perry.

In addition to "The Snowmaiden," a Can Can piece, choreographed by Lisa Love, will be presented with all the frills as well as a modern piece, choreographed by Billie Jo Jones, set to the music made popular by Kermit the Frog, "The Rainbow Connection."

The talented choreographer,

John Lehman, is the founder, Artistic Director and major choreographer of the North Carolina State Ballet Company in Raleigh. His credits are numerous: Ernie Pyle Theater in Japan, Korea, Okinawa and the Philippines, Ballet Theater Company of Raleigh, "The Lost Colony," North Carolina Playmakers, Raleigh Little Theater and he has worked on other stage and television productions.

He has a degree in Dramatic Arts from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. He has studied under Balanchine, Carlos, Kobeloff, Hanya Holm, Anna Sokolow, Cansino and others.

"The Snowmaiden" is a 40-minute production which takes place in a small wintery Russian village. Ivan and Marouska, a childless couple, forge for wood in the bitter cold. Entertained by the villagers, they soon forget their discomfort. Together they build a snowmaiden (contrary to our snowman) and the Snow Queen works her magic to bring the snowmaiden to life. The winter passes with affection and games. But eventually the seasons change, as they must, and the snowmaiden is threatened by the warming sun. The Snow Queen's magic protects the snowmaiden inside the cabin of Ivan and Marouska.

As the festival season approaches, the villagers begin the festival dance. The snowmaiden is soon enticed by all the gaiety and joins the fun. But before long Marouska notices her disappearance and solicits the villagers aid in her search, but to no avail for unfortunately, the fragile snowmaiden has melted. Ivan tries to console Marouska with flowers, but it is not until she realizes that winter will, indeed, come again that she is finally consoled.

The concert's evening performances will be a 8 pm and the Sunday Matinee at 3 pm (The Sunday Matinee will feature only "The Snowmaiden"). Tickets are $4 for adults, $2.50 for children or by membership. They will be available at Thalian Hall two weeks prior to the concert.

The Christmas Ballet will be held on December 18-20.

The Countdown for Christmas begins

Only 19 days until Christmas. The countdown has begun. We count down the days until exams and then until exams are finished. For Christmas it is the season of Advent, the countdown to Jesus's birth. For most it is a time for looking forward to family times, to times of sharing and laughing. It is a season of expectancy, that breathless waiting and looking forward to something special.

We need such expectancy. There is not much of it around these days. Rather than expectancy there seems to be a kind of winding down which touches most of us at least on an economic level as families face holidays with less and not more, so that shopping generates frustration and tension. And in a world that seem to be winding down toward a nuclear Armageddon, there seems all too little expectancy attending the

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

beginning of arms limitation talks in Geneva.

It becomes important then, for those of us who like the uplift and excitement of expectancy and the hopefulness that comes with it, to remind ourselves that the fulfillment of that to which we look forward was and is not related to exams completed, presents to be opened, families gathered or ever nuclear war averted.

Rather, the fulfillment of expectation that comes out of the unimportant land of Judea, in the unlikely town of Bethlehem and in the ill favored circumstances refugee family in a stable is the discover or rediscovery that God Himself is With Us. That is the song that rings out in the voices of the angels after all the stereotypes have gone silent. That is the news that brings peace to all caught up in the Christmas Countdown and to all those whose lives stand in counterpoint to the Christmas gait - the hungry, the lonely, and the despairing. At the center of our noisy, whirling Christmas time universe there is: there really is a stillpoint where in breathless hush we can kneel and know beyond all the argument of logic - God Himself is With Us.

NEWS ITEM: SCIENTISTS HAVE FOUND WHAT IS BELIEVED TO BE THE OLDEST FOSSIL FOOTPRINTS

Letters

Fine Arts Chairman resigns

To the editor:

It is with regret that at this time I feel compelled to resign my position as chairman of the University Program Board's Fine Arts Committee. The decision to take this action has been a slow, difficult one for me to make, and I sincerely hope that the following explanation will adequately clarify the situation to those who may be surprised by this action.

The primary reason for my resignation is simply a lack of time, but there are other aspects of this that need to be mentioned. Since I assumed the chairmanship late this August, I have not yet found any (certainly not enough) other students who are interested in fine arts programming and who are also willing to work dependably, regularly, and responsibly. The new power for the Fine Arts Committee has been trying to do has caused the vast majority of the work to be left up to me alone. Though I am more than willing to do this work, my greater responsibilities to my academic work, my personal life and health, and my professional endeavors simply do not leave me with enough time to do all the work necessary for the committee to function well, let alone do it with the quality and care it should have.

I strongly feel, therefore, that my resignation is not only in my best interest, but overall is in the best interest of the entire UNCW student body. I will continue to serve as chairman of the Fine Arts Committee through the completion of the committee's fall semester schedule, and, due to my position at Kenan Auditorium, will assist my successor in whatever capacity I feel most beneficial to myself, the committee, the Program Board as a whole, and of course, the student body.

Respectfully submitted this 23rd day of November, 1981
Karl Heidemann

Compliments to 'Fall Feud'

To the editor:

On behalf of the residents of UNCW, I'd like to compliment the people responsible for Fall Feud '81. This is the 4th one I've participated in and I think this year's was organized the best. Each event was carried out very smoothly and all the judges knew what they were doing.

The main purpose of Dorm Day is for everybody to have a good time and meet the people we live with. From what I could tell, everyone did just that.

Special thanks go to Nadine and her staff, the judges, and last but not least, Bob Taylor and Ernie Pecora.

Sincerely,
Angela Gaskill and teammates-
2nd floor Belk & 2nd floor
Galloway

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.
5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

Neglected recorder complicates conflict

An open meeting battle between the student government and student newspaper at California State U.-Long Beach has been complicated by an inexperienced reporter's mistake.

The reporter, who has not been identified, was one of three Daily Forty-Niner staff members present when the CSULB student senate tried to close its meeting to discuss a personal matter. Both the city editor and the managing editor rose to challenge the closing, and asked the reporter to tape record their challenge. Minutes later, when he was ordered out of the room by student government personnel, the reporter left the tape recorder running. After both editors were also ushered out, the machine was discovered by student senators inside a backpack under a seat in the gallery.

The student senate is currently consulting with attorneys to decide if any legal action can be taken, says Daily Forty-Niner Editor Phil Villa. Although student government officers want to let the matter die, some senators would like to take action against the paper through the campus judiciary or the local courts, he says.

"We're not tied to them in any way," he says. "So it's hard for them to get to us. The only thing they could do, really, is to burn the student who had the tape recorder and that would be politically stupid."

Even if the senate doesn't take action, the episode blunted the paper's struggle to keep senate meetings open, Villa admits. "Unfortunately, now we're talking about a political gambit on each side's part," he says. The Daily Forty-Niner thought it had a good case, Villa adds. The student senate had cited incorrect statutes in closing its meeting, listing state laws that pertain only to the U. of California system, not CSU schools. The statutes covering CSU allow meetings to be closed when employees are to be discussed, but student sena-

See BATTLE, p. 3.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Tony Britt, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Advertising: Janet Hundley

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Jamie Moncrief

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Circulation Manager: Aaron Oliver

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

*You Are InvitedCampus Wide Candlelight Christmas
Communion ServiceTuesday, December 8, 1981 at 11 o'clock p.m. at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church - across College Road from Trask ColiseumMusic: UNC-W Brass & Organ Ensemble
BSU Gospel ChoirLed by: Bob Haywood - campus minister Harold McSwain - pastorSponsored for each and every person related to UNC-W, and their families by United Christian Campus Ministry'Level Four' trio to perform

The end is near . . . the semester is coming to a close!! But, the cramming for those dreaded finals is upon us and the mind is a bit frazzled--RIGHT??!! Well, come Friday night, December 11, you'll need a break and the Coffeehouse Committee's Half-Moon Productions has just the thing to clear your head . . . JAZZ by LEVEL FOUR!

This local group, that's been together for three years, will be in the PUB for a great night of JAZZ. The band consists of Benji Swells on bass, Bobbie Russell on guitar, and Bruce Pierce on drums. This dynamically "together" trio will be giving YOU an evening of modern, mid-sixties style and original jazz. There will also be some fusion jazz to tantalize your jazz appetite!!

Sound like a good excuse not to study on the evening of the 11? Well, don't pass up a FREE evening of good times at the PUB. Be at the PUB around 8:30 pm for the great jazz sounds of LEVEL FOUR and don't forget to bring your own celebration. We all need to celebrate making it this far in the semester and need some inspiration to keep us going. So, come CELEBRATE "The End is Near" with the Coffeehouse Committee and LEVEL FOUR. See you there!!

UPB accepts applications for Fine Arts Committee chairperson

A new Fine Arts Committee Chairperson is needed to organize the spring semester's performing arts and film series. All those interested please contact Robert Swift in room 101 of the Pub.

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM?
ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

114-A Coral Drive • Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842*BATTLE, from p. 2.

tors aren't legally state employees, says Villa.

He doesn't believe the paper will take any legal action, but many challenge future closings. "As one of the student senators said to me, they're not lawyers, they're students," he says. "They make mistakes. In this case, they didn't understand the state law."

TYPING

Resumes, Applications,
Transcripts, Temp papers,
etc....
call 791-0990

EXAM SCHEDULE - FALL 1981

	9-12	2-5	7-10
Thursday
December 10	0800 M-W-F	1100 T-T	Thursday
Friday
December 11	1100 M-W-F	1400 M-W-F	1700 M-W-F
Monday
December 14	1200 M-W-F	0800 M-W-F	Monday night
Tuesday
December 15	0900 M-W-F	1300 M-W-F	Tuesday night
Wednesday
December 16	1230 T-T	0930 T-T	Wednesday night
Thursday
December 17	1000 M-W-F	1400 T-T	1700 T-T
Friday
December 18	1500 M-W-F	1530 T-T	1600 M-W-F

All exams are to be held as scheduled. Prior permission from the appropriate dean must be obtained in order to hold exams at unscheduled times.

THE PATIO

[behind Hardee's]Grill open Monday through Friday*Patio's Special*50 cents OFF*Ham Sub
or
Sandwich*Mon. Ladies' Night*Wed. College Night*Friday Afternoon*25 cent Hotdogs 4-7*Fri. & Sat. Carl Rosen Band*Sunday Ladies' Pool Tournament*f~stop*PHOTOGRAPHIC SERVICES*Portraits*Fraternities*Sororities*Clubs*Sports*Organizations*799-4496 / 799-4848

Sports

Dickens and Williams await rebound for UNCW vs. Green Bay

Men's basketball team narrowly drops first two games

Tony Britt
Sports Editor

For the second year in a row, the men's basketball team has lost its opening two games, both by close margins. Wisconsin-Green Bay defeated the Seahawks 50-48 Saturday night in the opener, and Ohio University nipped the Hawks 66-62 in Monday's second game.

Our two-game debut certainly hasn't been too successful," said veteran head coach Mel Gibson, especially disappointed after his team lost two consecutive games in Trask Coliseum for only the second time ever. "I can't tell you how disheartening it is for me looking at two L's. We've been prepared. It's been a matter of critical mistakes. Six points could have changed those L's into W's. It especially hurts to lose the close ones at home."

The Phoenix of Wisc.-Green Bay were playing their first game as a NCAA Division I team after finishing fourth nationally in Division II with a 23-9 record last year.

Sorry

There was no sports section in last week's issue of THE SEAHAWK because copy was late for deadline.

UNCW trailed 30-29 at halftime, took a 31-30 lead to start the second half, but then stayed behind until tying the game 46-46 with 6:47 left to play.

With the score knotted 48-48 the Seahawks controlled the ball for a good shot for the next four minutes, and with 1:19 remaining UNCW's Scott Prudhoe went up for a dunk that would have given the Hawks a two-point cushion. However, Prudhoe's shot bounced off the back of the rim, and Green Bay took possession.

"I think that was the turning point in the game," Gibson said. "At first I thought he should have laid it in. But after viewing the game film, it probably would've been blocked. He did the right thing. It was a tough shot."

Green Bay held the ball until Nathan Barnes was fouled under the basket and made two free throws for a 50-48 lead.

UNCW tried to set up at halfcourt for a final shot, but lost the ball out of bounds with five seconds left. After a missed Green Bay free throw, the Phoenix intercepted a UNCW pass to end the game.

Junior forward Shawn Williams led the Hawks with a game-high 19 points and a team-high six rebounds in playing the entire 40 minutes.

The second loss was even harder to accept for Gibson and his players. Ohio had been soundly defeated by East Carolina two nights earlier, and UNCW seemed favored to do the same.

"The two teams we've played were as good as any teams that have been in Trask in the past few years," Gibson said. "Losing these games definitely has an adverse effect on us. It depresses me a lot, but it only makes me want to try harder. We won't get our heads down over only two out of 27 games."

Again UNCW trailed 30-29 at halftime. The Bobcats scored six straight points to open the second half and led most of the rest of the game. UNCW did manage a couple of one-point leads, and down the stretch were within two points.

However, UNCW was forced to foul the Bobcats, and Ohio made its free throws to keep ahead of the Seahawks.

see Cagers on p. 5

Lady Seahawks bury first two opponents

The women's basketball team is off-and-wing-ing into the 1981-82 campaign with two impressive victories, but has a pair of challenging road games on tap this week.

The Lady Seahawks traveled to Pembroke State on Wednesday and now go to Campbell Saturday seeking to continue their fast start.

UNCW opened the year with 92-54 thumping of Shaw here Nov. 24, then won its road opener on Monday at Charleston Baptist, 80-46.

Freshman center Gwen Austin paced the win over Shaw with 29 points and 11 rebounds in her collegiate debut, while sophomore Sherri Crumpler was the individual standout at Baptist with 20 points and 21 rebounds. Austin also had 11 points and 13 rebounds against Baptist, as Crumpler had five blocked shots while tying her own school record for rebounds.

Freshman Sharon Smith was another standout Shaw with 11 points as the Lady Hawks shot 60.3 percent from the field. Sophomores Sharon McMillan and Jill Amos have also been in double figures in both games with 34 and 30 two-game totals, respectively.

The scores have been rather lopsided, but we've had to work hard in both wins," UNCW coach Marilyn Christoph says.

There are no breathers for the next seven games," UNCW is coming off an 18-8 season - the finest in school history. Still a very young squad (only one senior), Christoph's club will be tested during the next three weeks.

The 1981-82 women's basketball team: front (l-r) - Smith, Matthews, Patterson, McMillan, Pickard, Wilson; back - Dixon, Amos, Jones, Austin, Crumpler, Owens.

Roster

Name	Ht.	Class
Jill Amos	5-8	Soph.
Sharon Smith	5-6	Fresh.
Sonya Pickard	5-7	Fresh.
Sheila Patterson	5-9	Soph.
Gwen Austin	6-3	Fresh.
Jenny Owens	5-8	Fresh.
Darci Wilson	5-6	Jr.
Cathy Jones	6-1	Fresh.
Jayne Matthews	5-8	Fresh.
Vertha Dixon	5-7	Sr.
Sherri Crumpler	6-0	Soph.
Sharon McMillan	5-8	Soph.

Head Coach - Marilyn Christoph
Assistant - Melanie Hinton

Remaining Schedule

December	26
at Campbell	UNC-CHARLOTTE
N.C. A & T	28-30 Francis Marion Tournament in Florence, S.C. at East Carolina
at Fayetteville State
at N.C. State
January	February
8 COASTAL CAROLINA	3 CAMPBELL
FAYETTEVILLE STATE	6 BAPTIST
at Shaw	12 at Gardner-Webb
14 WAKE FOREST	13 at Mars Hill
at N.C. A & T	15 at Coastal Carolina
18 at Livingston	18 at UNC-Charlotte
21 PEMBROKE	21 DUKE
23 UNC-ASHEVILLE	24-27 State Tournament

All homes games begin at 7 p.m., except Baptist, 5:30 p.m., and Duke 3 p.m.

Remaining Schedule

December

4	BALTIMORE
5	TOWSON STATE
12	at Baptist
19	at N.C. State
21	at Wake Forest
28-29	Senior Bowl Tournament in Mobile, Ala.

January

5	BUFFALO STATE
8-9	Siena Invitational in Loudonville, N.Y.
12	APPALACHIAN STATE
14	at East Carolina
20	N.C. A & T
23	at James Madison
24	at George Mason
27	NORTHERN IOWA
30	at Campbell

February

3	at N.C. A & T
6	CAMPBELL
8	at Duke
13	EAST CAROLINA
18	at Wisc.-Green Bay
20	at Northern Iowa
22	ILL.-CHICAGO CIRCLE
27	BAPTIST

All home games begin at 7:30 p.m., except Baltimore & Towson State, 9 p.m., and Baptist, 2 p.m.

Football Club wins finale, 8-6

by Tony Britt
Sports Editor

CHAPEL HILL - Mitchell Case's two-point conversion pass to Kevin Wilson with four minutes left to play lifted the Football Club to an 8-6 victory over the Tar Heels Nov. 20 in the final game of the season.

The triumph gave UNCW a 2-8 overall record, and 2-5 league mark to tie UNC-Chapel Hill for last place. UNCW's only previous win was a forfeit over UNC-Greensboro.

"We weren't sure we were going to have enough players," said club president Dale Fish. "The people who came were the only dedicated players who really wanted to play."

"I've been playing here for four years," he said, "and we had never beaten Chapel Hill. It was our last game and we wanted to beat Carolina real bad."

The 84-yard victory drive began after a fumble recovery by Tom Hyde. Two long passes to Stormin' Norman Hankins, including a tailback option pass from Ricky Williams, plus a roughing-the-passer penalty tacked on, put the ball on UNC-CH's 25-yard line.

Three plays later Charles Bailey swept around left end to score from 15 yards.

With the score tied 6-6 UNCW called time out to set up the go-ahead two-point conversion.

Wilson, a senior from Richlands, finished the season with 16 receptions for 277 yards, plus the winning two-point conversion against the Tar Heels and a touchdown in the 'Hawks' first game of the season. Wilson also handled punt and kickoff returns.

Three plays after UNCW kicked off, Rudy McKnight intercepted a Tar Heel pass to secure the 'Hawks' victory.

The Seahawks almost scored again as Case ran ball to the one-yard line. However, a holding penalty called the play back.

"This made all these losses worth it," Fish said. "After the game Lynn Featherstone, secretary of the league, came into the lockerroom and congratulated us for sticking together when most teams would have folded. He was proud of us."

The club has already elected officers for the spring semester. Fish will continue as president. Alan Sewell will be vice-president. Case field manager. David Pendergrass equipment manager, and Williams advertising manager.

Fish also thanks team manager Gene Hewlett for another outstanding job this season.

Surfing

These unidentified students were competing in the Surfing Club's intra-squad contest held Nov. 15 at Crystal Pier.

Swim teams will train in Florida

by B.J. Grob
Sports Writer

The Seahawk swim teams opened their seasons with back-to-back home meets against Appalachian State and the tough East Carolina Pirates on Nov. 20-21. The men's team topped ASU, 63-50, and came closer than ever, but lost to the Pirates, 61-52.

The women's team did not fare nearly as well, losing to ASU, 76-64 and ECU, 56-84 in what coach Dave Allen called "a real heart-breaker for them."

"Our women's team is still very young," coach Allen said. "For a lot of them, this was their first college meet. It was very emotional, especially against ECU, but there were a lot of good times - especially Nicki and Denise."

Both freshmen, Nicki Stefaneli and Denise Hamilton dove better than all of ECU's women, and set UNCW's diving records in the 1-meter and 3-meter dives.

The men's team's "Seahawk of the Week" award went to freshman Jeff Siggins, a triple winner capturing the 500-yard and 1000 freestyle events against ECU, and the 200-yd. freestyle event against ASU. His 1000 win was a UNCW record, at 9:57.977.

Junior and two-time all-American Janet Johnson was the women's "Seahawk of the Week." She was a triple winner against ECU in the 100 I.M. and in the 50 and 100 breaststroke events. She also was a double winner in the ASU meet in the 50 and 100 breaststroke, and was on the winning 200 medley relay team.

Senior Sam O'Leary won four individual events and swam on the Seahawks' two winning relay teams.

Freshman Glenn Peterson, who was also on a winning relay team, surprised everyone by winning the 200 backstroke vs. ASU, although backstroke is not his event.

"Glenn volunteered to do it," said coach Allen. "He said he thought he could swim it fast enough to take second or third, and he won!"

The Seahawks' next meet was Dec. 1 at UNC-Chapel Hill, followed by a Dec. 27-Jan. 6 Christmas training program at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Notes...

Congratulations to Sports Information Director John Justus and his wife, Mary Ann, on the arrival of their first child. Joel Andrew Justus (J.J. II) weighed eight pounds, three ounces at birth 5 p.m. Sunday.

*Darv McNair is trying to get a wrestling club organized by spring semester for former high school wrestlers and anyone interested in participating. For information to join call 392-7892. Light-weights are especially needed.

Senior Barbara Grob, a runner on the women's cross country team, competed over Thanksgiving break in the first annual Philadelphia Independence Marathon. A native of Philadelphia, Miss Grob finished among the top 100 women of approximately 9,000 - total runners with a time of 3 hours, 45 minutes despite a necessary 15-minute break.

The Raquetball Club is holding its second intra-campus tournament this weekend at Centre Courts. Finals are scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Intramural standings

FOOTBALL
League A	W-L	League B	W-L
Kegmen	6-0	Chi Phi	5-1
CC Rednecks	5-1	Pi Kap	5-1
Low Life	4-2	SAE	4-2
Chiefs	3-3	No Fat Chicks	3-3
69ers	2-4	3 Hewlett	2-4
Locals	1-5	L-T's	1-5
*Skeets	0-6	TNK	0-6
*dropped after third game PLAYOFFS FINAL
Kegmen d. CC Rednecks, 12-0
VOLLEYBALL
SOCCKER	W-L	Men's League	W-L
Stomping Metis	5-0	*Kegmen	6-2
Z-Club	4-1	#Prime Ribs	6-2
Bob Marley's	2-3	Surflaws	5-3
No. Names	2-3	Wizards	2-6
Rackteers	2-3	SAE	1-7
Wil-Shire	1-4
		*tournament champions #tournament runners-up

Cagers swing into high gear this weekend with Seahawk Shootout jump from p. 4

Again Williams paced the 'Hawks with game-high totals of 21 points and nine rebounds. Carlos Kelly came off the bench to score nine points, grab six rebounds, and dish out three assists.

"I think the two things responsible for our losing were a breakdown in defense, and rebounding," Gibson said. "We haven't been hitting the boards with any intensity. We will make some changes in the lineup."

"Shawn is an exceptional athlete," he said. "I can't ride him to death, but I've got to play him as much as possible."

Tonight and Saturday UNCW and the Greater Wilmington Merchants Association will sponsor the first Seahawk Shootout with Campbell, Baltimore and Towson State. Campbell will meet Towson State in tonight's opener at 7 o'clock, and UNCW will face Baltimore in the nightcap at nine. On Saturday Campbell will play Baltimore at 7 p.m., and UNCW will meet Towson State at 9 p.m.

As a part of the Seahawk Shootout a large number of door prizes will be distributed each night, highlighted by two color television sets to be given away at halftime of each UNCW game. Also, a keg of beer will be given to the most enthusiastic cheering section at the games.

Baltimore University, the Seahawks first opponent, defeated UNCW 85-76 last year. The Super Bees will be led by 6-6

Shawn Williams

senior guard Kenny Young. Towson State, which has beaten the 'Hawks in the last two meetings, is expected to win the Southern Division of the ECAC Metro Conference. The Tigers will be led by 6-5 senior forward Tony Ordick and 6-2 junior guard Donald Leslie.

Perhaps the best team will be much-improved Campbell, with 7-footer Tony Britto and 6-6, 220-pound forward Ron Curtis.

"Even with two losses, we're improved from last year," Gibson said. "We're further along in our whole system. With a lot of support from our fans, I hope we can redeem ourselves this weekend."

Roster

No.	Name	Ht.	Wt.	Class	Hometown
10	Frankie Dickens*	6-1	175	Soph.	Roxboro, NC
11	Edward Timmons*	6-3	180	Sr.	Fayetteville, NC
15	Dennis Tobin	6-3	180	Sr.	Hopatcong, NJ
20	Mike Prudhoe*	6-6	200	Jr.	East Peoria, IL
22	Alan Salzano*	6-0	175	Sr.	Durham, NC
24	Scott Pearce	6-4	195	Fresh.	Durham, NC
25	Shawn Williams	6-4	190	Jr.	Washington, NC
31	Randy McMillan*	6-8	205	Sr.	Raleigh, NC
33	Carlos Kelly	6-5	200	Soph.	Durham, NC
41	Leon Nickelson*	6-9	220	Sr.	Warsaw, NC
42	Scott Prudhoe	6-7	210	Jr.	East Peoria, IL
53	Onno Steger	6-5	190	Soph.	Waverly, OH
54	David Prenatt	6-8	225	Soph.	Indianapolis, IN

Entertainment

Coming Christmas Attractions

Ira David Wood will star Friday, Dec. 6, in a one-man production of Truman Capote's essay, A Christmas Memory. In this piece, Capote describes his last Christmas with his elderly, retarded aunt during the Depression in the South. The performance will begin at 8 pm in Thalian Hall.

Proceeds of the production will go to Lower Cape Fear Hospice, an organization devoted to helping terminally ill patients and their families in the home environment.

For more information, call 392-4313.

"A Christmas Carol," UNC at Chapel Hill, 10 am and 8 pm, Dec. 3, 4, and 2 and 8 pm, Dec. 5, 6. Paul Green Theater.

"A Christmas Carol," Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. Hours: 2:30 pm and 7:30 pm, Dec. 12, 7:30 pm, Dec. 13, 15. Admission is $5, $6 and $7.

"A Christmas Carol," War Memorial Auditorium, Greensboro, 4 and 7:30 pm, Dec. 9. Tickets: $5 and $6 for adults, and $3 and $4 for students.

"A Christmas Carol," High Point Theatre, 8 pm, Dec. 11, 12 and a 2 pm matinee, Dec. 12. Tickets: $6.50 for adults, and $5 for students.

Annual Christmas concert of A & T State University concert choir, 8 pm, Dec. 3 at Richard B. Harrison Auditorium. No charge.

Greensboro College Festival of Lessons and Carols, Finch Chapel, Greensboro, 7:30 pm, Dec. 6.

Hanover Singers: Christmas Concert, Kenan Auditorium, 8 pm, Dec. 15.

UNC-G Choral Groups with 200 singers from the UNC-G Choral, Women's Choir, Symphonic Chorus and Men's Glee Club, combined holiday concert, 3:15 pm, Dec. 6 at Aycock Auditorium.

Guilford College Christmas Concert with A & T State University college choir and Guilford Community Chorus, 7 pm, Dec. 6 at Dana Auditorium. Reception for entire audience follows in Founders Hall.

Christmas Tours at Chinquapenn Plantation House near Reidsville. Hours: 10 am-4 pm Wednesday-Saturday, and 1:30-4:30 pm Sunday. Admission charged; tours available through Dec. 20.

High Point Museum Guild's Christmas Open House at the museum. Includes Christmas music, the Blacksmith Shop, Craftshop and Santa Claus. Hours: 7 pm-9 pm. No charge.

Oakwood's 10th Annual Candlelight Christmas Tour, Raleigh, 1-7 pm, Dec. 19, 20. Tickets: $4 for adults, $2 for students.

Christmas tours of the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh will begin Dec. 14. Tours also available Dec. 15, 19 and 20.

Chapel Hill Christmas Candlelight Tour, Dec. 12, 13. Tour of historic district. Tickets available at Horace Williams House.

MESDA Christmas Open House, Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts in Old Salem, open 10-12 am, Dec. 19, 2-5 pm, Dec. 20. Tickets: $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children under 14.

Christmas Tour of Homes, sponsored by the Alamance County Historical Museum, Inc. Hours: 2 pm-6 pm, Dec. 6. Tickets: $5.

Open House for a poinsettia display at Wake Forest University, 2-5 pm, Dec. 6. Presented by The Reynolda Gardens Committee.

UNC-G Christmas Luminaire display, 7,200 candle luminaires placed around campus, Dec. 10.

"Salem Christmas," sponsored by Old Salem, Inc., will be presented at the Old Salem Reception Center, 4-6 pm and 7-9 pm, Dec. 15. Tickets: $5 for adults, and $2.50 for children 6-14 years.

Special Hannukah program - at New Hanover County Museum, 814 Market Street. Hours: 11 am-4 pm, Nov. 5, and 1-5 pm, Dec. 6. The program also marks the opening of the museum's new exhibit, "Wilmington's Jewish Heritage." No charge.

UNC-G Christmas Lovefeast and Candle Service, Cone Ballroom, Elliott University Center, Greensboro, 7:30 pm, Dec. 6, 7, 9.

Tenth annual Christmas exhibit and sale at Garden Studio Art Gallery, Greensboro

Coming Christmas Attractions in NC: A Victorian Christmas at the Biltmore House, Asheville, NC - The world's largest private residence will host a celebration reminiscent of Christmas parties given by owner George Vanderbilt, when he formally opened the Biltmore house in 1895. The celebration will include 20 Christmas trees, thousands of Victorian ornaments, and a series of concerts. Opening Dec. 5.

The annual Christmas show at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, "Star of Bethlehem" is currently showing.

Christmas celebrations in Winston-Salem's Moravian community will begin in Dec. Old Salem highlights include: a Moravian candle tea on Dec. 3, 4, 10, 12; the Piedmont Chamber Singers performing Dec. 13 at the 1788 Moravian Church; the Christmas Eve Lovefeast at the Home Moravian Church, Dec. 19; an open house at the Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts on Dec. 19, 20; also, Moravian bands, candlelight walking tours, and 15 galleries featuring traditional decorations, customs and food.

For additional information concerning Christmas Celebrations in NC, brochures are available from the NC Travel and Tourism Division, 430 N. Salisbury St., Raleigh, NC 27611. Phone: (919) 733-4171.

Theater/Movies

Theatre

"I Love My Wife," Bordeaux Dinner Theatre, Fayetteville, Dec. 6.

"The Nutcracker," Owens Auditorium, Charlotte, by The Charlotte Symphony Orchestra and the North Carolina School of the Arts, 8:15, Dec. 15, 16. Tickets: $9 and $7, children under 12 years, $7 and $5.

"Nutcracker Ballet" at Winston-Salem Reynolds Auditorium, 7:30 pm, Dec. 10, 2 pm, Dec. 11, 8:15 pm, Dec. 12, 2 pm, Dec. 13. Admission is $7 for adults, $5 students.

"Any Wednesday," Barn Dinner Theatre, Greensboro; opening Dec. 1. Hours: 8:30 nightly except Monday; 6:30-8 pm dinner; doors open at 6 pm.

The Frank Holder Dance Company will appear at Bladen Technical College in Elizabethtown, 8 pm, Dec. 5. Tickets are $2 in advance and $3 at the door.

Movies

"No Nukes," Kenan Auditorium, Dec. 8 at 8 pm.

by Spencer March

Southern Comfort is a very impressive movie. The story is similar to Deliverance, but more effective. A group of national guardsmen on a routine exercise in the Louisiana bayou encounter hostile natives of the area. Although the plot is interesting enough, it's the actions of the characters in the bizarre situation that makes the film work.

Like Deliverance, Sorcerer, and Jaws, Southern Comfort deals with the human will to survive. To be in an unfamiliar place in a life-threatening situation is common in many a dream. As the men are hunted down like animals, it's interesting to see how their feelings change towards their comrades and their chances of survival. The movie is enhanced by the fine acting of David Carradine (Long Riders) and Powers Boothe (The Guyanna Tragedy, the Story of Jim Jones). Although there are some gory scenes in Southern Comfort, I highly recommend it.

PIZZA CITY

5301 MARKET ST.

392-5515

PAN PIZZA BUFFET

All You Can Eat Pizza & Salad

11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

$2.59

FREE DELIVERY

(Within Certain Limits)

Restaurants

by Ken Thomas
Journalism Contributor

Eating out at home? Could this actually be? Yes it can. With fast, free, friendly delivery, Domino's Pizza can appear at your door within 30 minutes with a mouth watering pizza.

With 13 different items to choose from, there is a pizza combination to please just about anybody, especially this hungry writer. The pizza tastes so much better at home, and even more so when you don't have to cook or clean up after it. Besides, who feels like cooking a pizza at one o'clock in the morning when you're studying for an exam?

Domino's is economically attractive to UNCW students because they deliver to the whole campus, and to most of the apartment and houses in the surrounding areas. Another good aspect of Domino's is their reasonable prices: A single ingredient 12" pizza goes for $5.10 plus tax or you can go for a five ingredient 16" pizza for only 12.40 plus tax.

Domino's is located at 4119 Olenader Dr. next door to the Record Bar if you want to pick up your own order. They are open from 4 p.m.-12 p.m. Sunday-Thursday, and 4 p.m.-1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. So for your lazy late night munchies, call Domino's and eat out at home.

Campus Calendar

Campus ministry sponsors Candlelight service

You are invited to a Campus Wide Candlelight Christmas Communion Service, Tuesday, December 8, at 11 pm at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church across College Road from Trask Coliseum. Music: UNCW Brass and Organ Ensemble.

BSU Gospel Choir. Led by Bob Haywood, campus minister, and Harold McSwain, pastor.

Sponsored for each and every person related to UNCW and their families by United Christian Campus Ministry.

Give 'tuck-in' for Christmas

Want to give your friend an unusual Christmas gift? Why not give him (or her) a personal "tuck in?" Alpha Phi Omega is at your service!

For a $2 donation, APO will come to your bedroom and personally tuck you or your friend with milk and cookies, Dec. 6, 7 or 8. For $10 you can receive the formal wine and cheese "tuck in."

Donations will go to the APO project fund.

Registration for the "tuck in" will be held Dec 2, 3 and 4 in the cafeteria lobby from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., or call 791-7517.

Get a personal "tuck in" and help the APO service fraternity. Do it today!

Center offers workshop

The UNCW Counseling and Testing Center will offer a Workshop, "HOW TO REVIEW FOR FINALS" on Friday, December 4, from 1-2 pm. Topics will include "Test Wiseness", sticking to a study routine, and coping with test anxiety. All are invited. Admission is free to students. The center is located in room 106 of the James Student Services Building.

ID's validated early

The Dean of Students' Office, A-110, will validate ID's for the Spring '82 semester on your last day of exam.

If your name does not appear on the print-out or you don't have proof of payment for tuition and fees, your ID will not be validated at this time.

If you have any questions please contact the Dean of Students' Office.

'82
Spring Break
DAYTONA BEACH

CALL TOLL FREE
800-874-7420

AND GET THAT VACATION STARTED!

Choose from 700 great rooms, suites and efficiencies in FIVE sensational ocean-front locations. There's an Oceans Eleven hotel that's just right for your spring vacation... and at affordable prices, too!

Acapulco Inn • Mayan Inn • Beachcomer Inn
Treasure Island Inn • Sheraton Inn

15% Discounts on reservations made by January 15, 1982

Oceans Eleven resorts

2025 S. Atlantic Ave. • Daytona Beach Shores, Fla. 32018
(904) 257-1950

GO FOR IT!

IN THE TRADITION OF THE FIRST TWO Sea Side Jams
the ^{new} pub

PRESENTS:
YOUR CHANCE TO MAKE SEA SIDE JAM 3 happen!

All Interested People
Please Attend

Dates to be Announced
Next Semester

THE ADVENTURES OF SEAHAWK-MAN

by oliver and jones

Merry
Christmas
from
THE SEAHAWK

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

CLIFFS
NOTES SERIES
HAMILTON

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems. Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES
HERE.

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

THE BEER BOX

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center

Open 7 Days A Week

Try Our Convenient Drive-In

Merry Christmas from
the Beer Box

Miller Beer $9.00 Case

Miller Beer $9.00 Case $2.39
six pack

Natural Lite $4.50 twelve pack
$8.50 case

Across from Four Winds

The National Academy

Now comes Miller time.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 12

January 22, 1982

| Eight Pages

Pictured are the recent inductees of Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society. Back row [left to right]: Todd A. Council, JoAnne S. Clayton, Keith W. Ogborn, Paula Ann Price, Karen S. Autry, Mark H. Stanland, Robert B. Humm, Alan D. Johnson. Mid row [left to right]: Robert A. Eubanks, Kevin R. Donovan, Michael B. Holder, Andrew F. Nowel, James F. Bernhardt, Denise Ann Deaver. Third row [left to right]: Dean Daniel B. Plyler[honorary], Dr. Sue Lamb[honorary], Susan G. Vance, Mary Kay Lanier, Kim Yvonne Mills, Wendy M. Wright, Anita Kay Lister.

Meadowlark Lemmon to appear at Trask

Meadowlark Lemon. The name is magic, the face is immediately recognizable. From the inner-city playgrounds where young people try to emulate his basketball wizardry to the luxurious cities of the world, Meadowlark is a fixture. For 22 years he was the creative force and focal point of the Harlem Globetrotters.

Now he is presenting the Bucketeers, a new dimension in sports and entertainment currently entering their third season.

With a history of pleasing crowds all over the world,

Meadowlark has taken his winning formula to the courts once again. The comedic instincts that have earned him the title "The Clown Prince of Basketball" are still as strong as ever. It takes a professional of the highest caliber to maintain the delicate balance of high-action basketball and the comedy elements needed to maintain audience interest. . . . Meadowlark continues to show the world that he is the best in the business!

In his nationally-syndicated column, Los Angeles Times sports writer Jim Murray wrote that Meadowlark is "An American Institution whose uniform should hang alongside the Spirit of St. Louis and the Gemini Space Capsule in the Smithsonian!"

As usual, Murray is right. Meadowlark is the embodiment of that Great American Dream.

Born in Wilmington, NC, Meadowlark began developing his basketball skills at an early age.

Without the benefit of college or national media exposure - like today's young athletes have come to take for granted - Meadowlark worked and played his way into the hearts of the people by devoting his life and time to his craft.

Much as he did with the Trotters, Meadowlark continues to travel across the country by bus, plane, train and automobile night after night to bring happiness to millions in small and big cities alike. After Meadowlark Lemon: the recognizable face with the magic name.

SGA meeting

The UNCW Student Government Association held their first meeting of the Spring semester Thursday, Jan. 14 at 6 pm.

At the start of the meeting, Student Body President Steve Schmidt gave his address to the student body. Schmidt stated he was attempting, as long range goals, to develop a financial system for the students along with a student protection system. This system would help insure student's personal property like televisions, bicycles, etc.

President Schmidt also noted he would like to see the campus radio station, WLOZ, be brought back to this university.

"At this time, there is no media on this campus capable of notifying the students on a DAILY basis," Schmidt said. Also, as an added extra, the station "would provide experience to students and to people interested in radio broadcasting."

Following Schmidt's report, Vice President Jeff Newton briefly reviewed the appointments and committees set up last semester along with his goals for the Spring semester.

Old business was then discussed and the Psychology Club was allotted $60. This allocation was brought up in the last meeting, but not voted on.

However, when Kathy Mott, of the University Program Board, spoke of a $1,208 request for salaries and the Coffee House, a fairly large amount of disagreement was heard. It was decided that the $1,208 request should be split into two proposals. Both allocations were passed, but the salary proposal of $608 took a hand count.

In the treasury report, given by SGA Treasurer, Shirley Mayfield, the SGA budget was announced as being $12,559.60.

However, in June, this total will increase by approximately $15,000 because of the $14 per student taken out of student fees. President Schmidt noted that the figure was not extremely low, but he would still have to work with it.

The monthly meeting of the University of North Carolina Student Government Associations will meet in Chapel Hill this weekend. All the presidents of the different UNC colleges will meet and discuss proposals that could benefit the entire UNC system. President Schmidt will not be going, but is sending Vice President Newton with a proxy.

1982 Who's Who selections announced

The following students have been selected for the 1982 edition of "Who's Who": Alvin Douglas Brantley, Mary Elaine Ellis, Jacqueline Elaine Ennis, Carolyn Annette Hassell, Kathleen Ann Hornyak, Julian Rooks Keith, Dan Mitchell Kempton, John Thomas Knowlton, Brent Layne Lewis, James Lawrence Lowe, Paul Joseph Lupica, Karen Christine McMillan, Daniel Dupree Mahn, Berwyn Moore Marshall, Shirley playing more than 8,000 consecutive games before Presidents, Popes and Royalty the world over, the future promises continued success.

Annette Mayfield, Katherin Duff Mott, Michael Lee Plante, Vickie McFayden Pollock, Thomas J. Prestia, Susan Potter Rae, Wendy Sue Robbins, Sonja Douglas Robinson, Dianne Carol Russell, Diana Gay Singletary, Margaret Todd Smith, Gillian Smook, Robert Douglas Swift, Sonya Powell Swing, Emily Cheryl Thompson, Paul Marshall Weaver, Fred Douglas Webb, and Raymond Carl Yebes.

Meadowlark Lemon's Bucketeers continue to expand their tour into several new international markets such as Saudi Arabia and South America, and have shown themselves to be not only one of the most exciting family shows currently on tour, but also a viable financial enterprise.

While planning his multifaceted career, Meadowlark commutes between his "home on the range," a working 18,000 acre cattle ranch hidden away in beautiful southern Arizona and his comfortable Los Angeles area abode.

As a former corporate spokesman for such diverse organizations Dr. Pepper, Burger King, Safeway Food Stores, Boeing Aircraft, Revlon, Quench Gum, RCA-TV and the U.S. Postal System, Meadowlark shows why he is still one of the most recognizable celebrities around.

He has also endorsed sporting goods such as Nike tennis shoes and Wilson basketballs.

Meadowlark has also donated his time to the Multiple Sclerosis

Letters

To the editor:

I am addressing the Student Government Association via The Seahawk so everyone will know questions are being asked. Last semester was very interesting for the SGA. As far as I can tell, no GOVERNING was done on campus, only a lot of petty POLITICKING and childish MUDSLINGING. The SGA year started with the usual election hoopla and filled the paper with silly letters of appreciation and windbag promises of future action. Next was the resignation of the SGA president for some highly suspect excuses about health. This was naturally followed by the VP taking over and vowing to continue his predecessor's policies. Great, swell - WHAT POLICIES? These fictional policies were never stated or explained, BUT, we can all be assured they will continue.

Three more resignations were highlighted by a fourth party's charge of cowardice. Rapid rebuttal resulted. Everyone flung dung! The past president claimed Administration directives were being protested by these (ineffective) resignations. What directives? What's their significance? How are students affected? What was happening? - there was no official SGA comment.

I have this complaint: As a government association, the SGA has failed to inform us of any matter, policy, directive, question, problem, or anything happening on this campus. We have a newspaper, but the SGA never uses it. Even weekly minutes would be enlightening. Did the SGA investigate the charge of the former president concerning concerning faculty pressure and club funding?

I WANT AN ANSWER, and I want to read it in this paper. SGA - either start publishing your minutes, or I will start investigating what is going on behind your closed doors!

Sincerely,
Sankey Blanton

To the editor:

I wish to extend to all of you a warm welcome this new year. For all of you, both incoming and returning students, 1982 promises to be a year of productiveness and success.

The Student Government Association is on the threshold of new and exciting challenges, both short term and long term. In the short term, a new financial system and a personal property protection policy will be completed. In the long term, the possibility of a campus radio station and a Student Legal Services program will be sought. Also, Student Government will encounter significant changes during the year. While we will soon have brought our present services to an optimum level, we must critically evaluate the impact of our Student Government services to the student body. We must, also, insure that we are competently managing our resources, in order to provide the maximum benefits in a competitive university atmosphere.

With our strong growth potential and the commitment of our greatest resource, your SGA representatives, we shall continue to expand and make the most of new opportunities. We still depend on the continued support of you - the students.

Student Government is precisely what the name implies - a government for, by, and of the students. It is your involvement and concern that makes the SGA the viable and integral part of this university that it is today. Without your support, Student Government cannot hope to provide, to all of the students, the services that we feel this campus needs to enrich the lives of all of us! I would like to encourage you to participate or take active part in your Student Government or a club/organization/media that attracts your interest.

If you have any questions, comments, or suggestions, please contact me or any other SGA representative. The SGA office is open from 8 am to 5 pm, Monday through Friday in room 201 of the Hinton James Student Services Building. Stop by and visit. See what you can add to the quality of life here at "UNC by the Sea!" Students are what make Student Government, so help us to help you.

With warmest regards,
Steve Schmidt
SGA President

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.
5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

1982 Off and running

I imagine that many of you, like me, have hit the ground in 1982 running. It's easy to fill up days, weeks, months, or even a whole year with plans and projects; things we are determined to make happen.

This, perhaps is an appropriate time to sound a note of caution. Patience needs to ride herd on the impetuous desires of our mind and heart to make so much happen. Nikos Kazantzakis is, in his novel Zorba the Greek, writes:

I remember one morning when I discovered a cocoon in the bark of a tree, just as the butterfly was making a hole in its case and preparing to come out. I waited a while, but it was too long appearing and I was impatient. I bent over it and breathed on it to warm it. I warmed it as quickly as I could and the miracle began to happen before my eyes, faster than life. The case opened, the butterfly started slowly crawling out and I shall never forget my horror when I saw how its wings were folded back and crumpled; the wretched butterfly tried with its whole trembling body to unfold them. Bending over it, I tried to help it with my breath. In vain. It needed to be hatched out patiently and the unfolding of the wings should be a gradual process in the sun. Now it was too late. My breath had forced the butterfly to appear, all crumpled, before its time. It struggled desperately and, a few seconds later, died in the palm of my hand.

That little body is, I do believe, the greatest weight I have on my conscience. For I realize today that it is a moral sin to violate the great laws of nature. We should not hurry, but we should confidently obey the eternal rhythm.

Any of our internal voices that push us into a whole list of activities, it is appropriate to life up another internal voice that asks, "Is it fitting? Is it the right time?" It is a voice that can only be heard in moments of quietness whether it be the quietness of prayer or simply personal reflection.

Perhaps 1982 might flow more gently if we could learn to "obey the eternal rhythm."

Fight cancer with your bare hands.

The best way to guard against breast cancer is right in your hands. It's called breast self-examination.

You see, changes are continuously taking place in your body. That's why a monthly breast self-examination is so important. As you become familiar with how your breasts feel, you'll be better able to notice changes. Any change, like a lump, should send you to the doctor promptly. Fortunately, most lumps are benign, but finding a cancer at an early stage greatly increases the chance of survival.

So ask your doctor to teach you breast self-examination. And while you're at it, ask him about mammography—a low-dose breast x-ray that can detect a cancer even before the most experienced doctor can find it.

For more information, call your local ACS office.

American Cancer Society

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor
Janet Hundley, Managing Editor
Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor
Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor
Scott Sibley, Head Photographer
Bill Estep, Advertising Manager
Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief
Production: Holly Henderson, Jamie Moncrief
Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief
Typesetter: Chyrl Kane
Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum
Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill
Shipping and Handling: Pete Nowel

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Half Moon Productions

The University Program Board's Half-Moon Productions presents the first performance of 1982 on Thursday night, Jan. 28 at 8:30 pm. The Half-Mooner's kick-off this semester's coffeehouse series with the "hear to believe" sounds of Kelly Jewell. Jewell is probably best known in the Wilmington area as the lead vocalist, guitar player, and the driving force behind THE NEW KNOTHOLE REVUE, a group that has been playing "country with a kick" and entertaining crowds in Wilmington as well as across the Carolina's for over ten years. Because of the KNOTHOLE'S extensive playing schedule, Jewell has only been able to do a very limited number of solo performances in the past few years. However, on Thursday Jan. 28 at 8:30 pm, Kelly Jewell takes the stage in the Goodwood Tavern with his own unique brand of contemporary country, swing, ragtime, and touch of his own music to give you an evening of sheer entertainment that you simply won't want to miss!

Jewell's voice and playing style have been described as "smooth as 12-year-old scotch that hits home like a case of Lone Star beer." In fact, many say that Kelly Jewell can sing a Willie Nelson song better than ol' Willie himself.

So what do you have to lose except a boring evening at home? Come out to the Goodwood Tavern because you're sure to have a memorable evening. As with all the Half-Moon events, admission is free and you can bring your favorite beverage.

Research Fellowships

Selection of six students has been made on the basis of the merits of proposed research projects to be conducted during the coming Spring semester. The fellowships, which are for in-state tuition for one semester, were awarded after competition held last Fall.

Winners, their research proposals, and their major departments are: Rodney Rountree,

"The Use of High-Voltage Photography as a Technique for Detecting Electrical Inhomogeneities in Materials," Physics; Dennis A. Clark, "Structural Relationships Within the Rocks of the Red Oak 7 1/2 Minute Quadrangle, Red Oak, NC," Earth Sciences; Howard Glasgow Jr., "Determination of Plasmid Incidence in Marine Vibrio spp. from Contaminated and Noncontaminated Sources," Biology; Brent Lewis, "Investigation of Natural Fluorescence in the Cape Fear Estuary," Chemistry; Carla E. Crane-LeRay, "Computer Simulation of a Continuous System Fisheries - A Renewable Resource," Math; Charles Grissom Jr., "The Number of Topologies on a Finite Set," Math.

NC Newspapers face state tax bills

Two and possibly more North Carolina student newspapers are facing unexpected state tax bills after discovering they had failed to comply with a 20-year-old tax ruling.

Because the UNC-CH newspaper, the Daily Tar Heel, uses the same printer, it is now faced with state taxes as well. The DTH is currently negotiating its contract with Hinton Press, says Business Manager Regine

Caron. "We haven't been charged yet, but we do suspect it will come," she says. The DTH tax bill this year will be about $6,000, or 4 percent of its printing costs.

Bernholz and Becton say the Department of Revenue could still decide to charge the newspapers back taxes, and those bills would be hefty. A revenue official spoke to the NCSU publications board, however, and didn't seriously discuss that issue. "He's not the final authority on it," says Becton.

Johnson doesn't believe the tax is fair, and has said so editorially. "Our printer already pays sales tax when he buys newsprint and ink, she comments. "Then we're taxed again when it becomes a newspaper. That amounts to double taxation."

V.A. Proposes Veteran Health Care Program

The Veterans Administration has announced proposed guidelines for carrying out provisions of the "Veterans Health Care, Training, and Small Business Loan Act of 1981" which was signed into law on Nov. 3, 1981. The Act, Public Law 97-72, authorized the Veterans Administration to provide certain health care services to any veteran of the Vietnam era (Aug. 5, 1964 - May 7, 1975) who, while serving in Vietnam, may have been exposed to dioxin, or was exposed to a toxic substance in a herbicide or defoliant used for military purposes.

The guidelines which VA will furnish to its medical facilities, on an interim basis, will be published in the "Federal Register" and public comment will be invited.

Health care services may not be provided under this law, the guidelines point out, for the care of conditions which are found to have resulted from a cause other than the specified exposures.

Health care services authorized under this provision of the law are limited to hospital and nursing home care in VA facilities, and outpatient care in VA facilities on a pre- or post-hospitalization basis or to obviate a need for hospitalization. These services will be provided without regard to the veteran's age, service connected status, or the inability of the veteran to defray the expenses of such care. Veterans furnished outpatient care under this authority will be accorded priority ahead of nonservice-connected veterans and equal to former POW's receiving care for nonservice-connected conditions.

Congress made it clear that this law provides for health care only. A determination that a veteran is eligible for such care does not constitute a basis for service connection, or in any way affect determinations regarding service connection.

Programming Team To Compare At UNCC

The student computer programming team has been invited to participate in the national finals of the Association for Computing Machinery after taking second place in the Southeastern regional contest held at UNC-Charlotte on Oct. 31.

Eighteen teams composed of graduate and undergraduate students participated in the five hour contest. The UNCW team, sponsored jointly by the Student Chapter of The Association for Computing Machinery and the Mathematics and Computer Science Club, held the lead throughout the competition until the final seconds when they were edged out by the team from Clemson University.

Students participating in the contest included Bobby Ford, Chuck Grissom, Dan Kempton and Tommy Newton. Professor Jim Nelson of the mathematical sciences faculty was the advisor.

The national contest will be held in the Spring of 1982.

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market St. by the 132 Overpass

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

Jan 21-Thurs - Ladies Night
Jan 22-Fri - DC 10
Jan 23-Sat - Ladies No Cover til 10
Jan 24-Sun - Super Bowl Party with Control Group
Happy Hour 5 - midnight
6 Color TV's
Free Hot Dogs
Jan 26-Tues - Doc Holliday

in Concert

Every Sunday Night
Band Night - Rock & Roll

Skip Castro Band Coming Soon

On relocation from their native land of New York City, the band is firmly rooting itself in the Southeast. Creating excitement has been their specialty with dynamic performances. Shows with Nantucket, Doc Holliday, And PKM have greatly helped the band's exposure as well as air play on WKNC in Raleigh, NC.

Playing at Four Winds Jan. 24.

Coming Attractions

Feb 5 - Bill Deal & Rhondels
Feb 7 - Glen Phillips Band
Feb 12 - Fabulous Knobs
Feb 14 - Subway
Feb 26 - Brice Street

Back to School Specials

©1981 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

Free Pepsi!

1 free quart of Pepsi with any pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
Expires: 1/31/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

Our drivers carry less than $20.00.
Limited delivery area.
19660 / 5526

$1.00 Off!

Any pizza with extra thick crust.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 1/31/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

Our drivers carry less than $20.00.
Limited delivery area.
19660 / 5526

$1.00 Off!

Any pizza with double cheese.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 1/31/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

Our drivers carry less than $20.00.
Limited delivery area.
19660 / 5526

Kroger Sav-on Welcomes

UNC W STUDENTS

Back to the Books

ADVERTISED ITEM

POLICY
Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale in each Kroger Sav-on except as specifically noted in this ad. If we do run out of an item we will offer you your choice of a comparable item when available, reflecting the savings or a rain check which will entitle you to purchase the advertised item at the advertised price within 30 days.

BEER
Budweiser
6 $2.19
12 Oz Cans

Refreshing Coca-Cola
2 $3
32 Oz RTN. BTLs. 6 PACKS FOR Limit 2 packs
Save $2.33 plus deposit

PREMIUM
Michelob Beer
6 $2.79
12 Oz N.R. Btl's

KROGER ALL MEAT OR ALL BEEF
Wieners
98¢
12 Oz Pkg

CHABLIS BURGUNDY
Carlo Rossi Rose
1.5 Ltr $3.09

COUNTRY OVEN
Potato Chips
8 Oz Pkg 79¢

POLAR PAK
Ice Cream
1 1/2 Gal Cin 99¢

YUBI OLD WORLD ESPRIT OR Kroger Yogurt
6-8 Oz Cups 5 $2

PAPER
Brawny Towels
2 $1
For Jumbo Rolls

FRESH Mushrooms
Lb. $1.49

NORTHERN Bathroom Tissue
40-Ct. Size 95¢
4 Roll Pkg

FLORIDA INDIAN RIVER
Grapefruit
40-Ct. Size 5 $1

FRESH IN STORE MADE CHEESE OR Pepperoni Pizza's
2 $5
For

ULTRA-RICH OR CONDITIONER
L'Oréal Shampoo
16 Oz Btl $1.77

Make Kroger Sav-on Your ONE STOP SHOPPING Headquarters all through the year!

BEST-RITE
Filler Paper
200-Ct. Size 69¢

JUBILEE SHEER Panty Hose
Pair 77¢

ASSORTED
Blankets
72" x 90" Size $5.99

DISPOSABLE
Cricket Lighters
2-Pack Size 88¢

OPEN Mon. thru Sat. 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT; Sun. 9 AM TO 9 PM
820 S. College Rd. - Wilmington

pub^{new} JANUARY COLORING CALENDAR

CUT AND PASTE
SCISSORS

'ONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
				15	16 NEW YEAR'S IN THE ISLANDS DANCE PUB 9-1 FREE MUSIC BY RALLY GEAR AND SUNFIRE
18 HALF-MOON PRODUCTIONS COMMITTEE MEET. 2 PM IN PUB	19 ANDY WARHOL'S "DRACULA" KENAN AUD. 8 PM $1.50 WITH UNCW ID FINE ARTS COMMITTEE MEET. 6 PM KENAN	20 DANCE COMMITTEE MEETING 4 PM IN PUB CONCERT COMMITTEE MEETING 8:30 PM IN PUB	21 PROGRAM BOARD MEETING 4:03 PM IN PUB	22	23
25 SEASIDE JAZZ MEETING 4 PM IN PUB HOMECOMING APPLICATIONS DUE BY 5 PM HALF-MOON PRODUCTIONS COMMITTEE MEET. 5 PM IN PUB	26 "HONEYBUCKLE ROSE" KENAN AUD. 8 PM $1.50 WITH UNCW ID FINE ARTS COMMITTEE MEET. 6 PM KENAN	27 DANCE COMMITTEE MEETING 4 PM IN PUB PLEASE ATTEND!!! HELP IS NEEDED TO HELP WITH THE UPCOMING HOMECOMING DANCE	28 HALF-MOON PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS KELLY JEWELL 8:30 PM GOODWOOD FREE AND BYOB PROGRAM BOARD MEET. 4:03 PM IN PUB	29 JPB SPECIAL EVENTS PRESENTS "MENDOCINIA LEMON, AND THE BUCKEYERS" VS. CALIFORNIA COASTERS $5.00 ADVANCE W/ ID 7:30 PM TRASH	30
KEEP AN EYE OUT FOR HOMECOMING WEEK '82 THE WEEK OF FEBRUARY 8-13. A WEEK OF FUN-FILLED ACTION PACKED EVENTS. PARADE, BONFIRE, PEP RALLY, MOVIES, COFFEEHOUSE, SPIRIT COMPETITION, BANNER COMPETITION, A BIG HOMECOMING DANCE, AND THE BIG HOMECOMING GAME AGAINST THE EAST CAROLINA PIRATES!!!

Campus Calendar

Historical Society plans book sale

The UNCW Historical Society is planning a book sale for students and faculty on Friday, January 22, 1982 from 9 a.m. til 12 noon, and Saturday, January 23, 1982 from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. The book sale will be held in Morton Hall first floor lobby. Prices range from $1.00 to $10.00 and will be selections of new books and well as used.

Alpha Phi Omega Member Wins TV

Ken Gilbert, a member of Alpha Phi Omega, turned in the highest amount of sponsor receipts for Bowl-For-Breath, an event sponsored by the North

Crisis Line/Open House

Crisis Line/Open House will hold volunteer training sessions on Monday and Thursday evenings beginning on February 8. Anyone interested in becoming a Crisis Line/Open House volunteer should report to the facility on the corner of Fifth and Chestnut as soon as possible or call 763-3695 for more information.

Carolina Chapter of Cystic Fibrosis on Nov. 21, 1981. Ken raised 151.20 for the cause and also won a portable television for his efforts.

ROTC holds orientation for basic

On Monday, January 25, the ROTC Department is conducting an orientation for all students who are interested in going to basic camp this summer at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Basic camp graduates will conduct the whole orientation. Topics will be training, treatment of cadets, room and board, and recreation. This orientation will prove to be very informative. Free beverages will be served. The time to be there is 1900 hours and the place is the Goodwood Tavern in the Student Union.

Homecoming Queen applications taken

All clubs/organizations that plan to sponsor a girl for Homecoming Queen should pick-up an application form in room 101, Pub. All entries have to be in by Jan. 25, 1982. For more information contact Susan Powers - 791-4330 ext. 2284.

Historical Society shows film

The UNCW Historical Society proudly presents a premiere showing of "Denmark Vesey's Rebellion", a film made for public television by Dr. Robert Toplin, History Department. The film will be shown on Thursday, January 21, 1982 at 8:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium and is based on a slave's plot to revolt in Charleston, S.C. in 1822. No admission charge.

Freshman Honor Society Meets

There will be an important meeting of Phi Eta Sigma, the Freshmen Honor Society, at 5 p.m. in Room 225 Hoggard Hall, Jan. 28(Thursday). Election of officers, the National Convention, petitions of new chapters, scholarship forms, and Forums will be the items of business for the meeting. Please attend.

Red Cross holds blood drive

The Red Cross will be here for a Blood Drive Feb. 10 and 11 at the Pub. This year it is hoped that it will be the largest turnout yet.

Recruitment for the blood mobile will be the week of Feb. 1-5 in the cafeteria lobby. Please come by and sign up to give.

Non traditional Students Evaluate Needs

The Non-traditional Students Organization will be studying five areas of concern this semester. Committees will be looking at admissions procedures, requirements, academic advising, bookstore procedures, non-traditional students' orientation, and food services. They will determine the specific needs in these categories, the scope of these needs, and possible solutions. The solutions will be presented to the Non-traditional Students Organization for evaluation; and the approved solutions will be presented to the appropriate university source for consideration.

The committees will work cooperatively with the university to implement any changes which might occur.

Students over 23 years of age returning to school after an absence, and who have family and/or job responsibilities need to share their knowledge of these areas. To obtain background data on non-traditional students' concerns, thirty non-trad student volunteers will be calling each of the 1,500 non-trad students between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15, 1982. These volunteers will ask for specific input regarding the special needs of their peers. The information gathered from this survey will give important direction to this problem-solving process.

HONEYSUCKLE ROSE

Tuesday, Jan. 8 pm

Students with ID $1.00

General Public $1.50

Kenan Auditorium

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100

Open 10 - 6
Monday - Saturday

20% off on Paperbacks only

Complete selection!

Classics, Dictionaries, Testing Materials,

Cliff Notes

A LIVING - LEARNING EXPERIENCE
plus
A SAILING CRUISE
THROUGH THE BAHAMAS

A unique opportunity for personal growth and a lot of fun is available to you March 6 to 14, 1981. During a week long cruise aboard the Shark IX, a 55' sloop rigged sailboat, a group of persons come themselves to use the experiences generated by living together in this new environment for personal awareness and growth.

The sailing is mainly in the Berry Islands of the Bahamas which are a group of basically uninhabited islands abounding in palm trees, white sand beaches and clear blue-green water. Under the guidance of an experienced captain, the participants crew the boat and learn basic sailing and navigation by compass during daylight and nighttime.

Planned and led by Bob Haywood of United Christian Campus Ministry at UNC-W, who has led this experience for the last ten years, this opportunity is being offered first to students, faculty and staff at a cost of $315 for the week plus transportation to Miami. Those who choose to carpool may expect the cost to be in the neighborhood of $50 each.

If interested fill out the application below and return it to Bob Haywood as soon as possible. Call (919) 799-1160 or mail the attached slip to United Christian Campus Ministry, P.O. Box 3725, Wilmington, N.C. 28406. As soon as enough applications have been received a meeting will be held to give details and make final plans.

Clip here

NAME _____ PHONE _____

LOCAL ADDRESS _____

WHAT KIND OF PERSON ARE YOU? _____

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO GET OUT OF THIS? _____

The University Program Board
WECT - TV 6
&
WMFD/WWQQ

AS SEEN ON SPORTS

LIVE!
IN PERSON

MEADOWLARK LEMON'S BUCKETEERS

-VS-

CALIFORNIA COASTERS

DON'T MISS
THE CLOWN PRINCE OF BASKETBALL &
AMERICA'S FAVORITE SHOOTING STARS!

Friday - January 29, 7:30 pm

Trask Coliseum

Advance Tickets - $6.00 Adults

$5.00 UNCW Students
[Bookstore Only]

$4.00 Children 12 & under

Available At:

UNCW Bookstore
Athletic Attic
School Kids Records
Record Bar
Community Boys' Club

from p. 1.

s Foundation, the March of Dimes, the City of Hope and the U.S. Olympic Committee.

After many years of diversified media exposure, Meadowlark is ready once again to embark on an unlimited tour of success with the Bucketters, a team of his own creation.

Handpicking each member of the team, Meadowlark has assembled some of the finest young basketball talent in the country. Combining them with several experienced professional basketball players (many of whom you'll know by name), Meadowlark has created what he refers to as his "Dream Team." This team promises to be as thrilling and exciting as Meadowlark himself and the Great American Institution.

See the "Face That Launched A Million Smiles." Meadowlark Lemon and his Bucketters when they play the California Coast-ers in Trask Coliseum on Friday, Jan. 29 at 7:30 pm. Tickets are available at the following outlets: UNCW Bookstore, Athletic Attic, School Kids Records, Record Bar, and Community Boys Club.

It's fast-paced family-fun that you won't want to miss!

Classified

All students, faculty, and on-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.

Lost and Found

LOST

Men's Gold wedding band with black indentations.
Red, white and blue wallet.

FOUND

Pair of contact lenses.
Check with Chryl Ferguson, Rm. 101 in the Pub.

Services

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

Discounts

The Office of Special Programs is announcing a new discount registration plan for all UNCW faculty, staff and students.

Effective immediately full-time faculty, staff and students will be permitted to enroll in all non-credit programs offered through the Office of Special Programs for 50 percent off the regular registration fee. Such enrollment will be contingent upon available space and sufficient enrollment.

Employment

Secretary needed for Student Government Association. Part-time position will perform some clerical functions in the Student Government office. Minimum typing responsibilities. Ability to organize work in an efficient manner. The duties of the Secretary shall be to: 1) record the minutes of each Senate meeting; 2) insure that the minutes of the previous Senate meeting are typed and presented at the next Senate meeting; 3) type all Vice President's correspondence and insure that it is sent to its proper place; 4) assist the SGA Office Manager, if necessary and fulfill office hours; minimum 10-15 hours per week. Please notify the SGA office. Full tuition scholarship available, needed immediately. Deadline for accepting applications: Jan. 26, 1982.

Crazy Zack's of Wilmington is now accepting applications for Door Men, Cashiers, and Bartenders. To apply come by Canton Station after 11 am and ask for Larry Chandler.

Nightlife

Crazy Zack's of Wilmington is now accepting applications for private club memberships. $10 for one year. Memberships will be honored at all Crazy Zack's locations and entitles bearer to special privileges. To apply come by Canton Station before 11 am and ask for Larry Chandler.

Earn Free Travel And Extra Money As A Representative For Collegiate Travel
Call Collect

John 617-383-0960 [10-5]
Or
212-307-5366 [6-11pm]

Campus Christian Fellowship
Meetings Every Tuesday
7 pm

Goodwood Tavern
Everyone is Welcome!

WE HAVE CLIFFS NOTES

CLIFFS NOTES
HAWKLEY

Check our stock of Cliffs Notes for the help you need in understanding difficult novels, plays and poems. Millions of students use them to earn better grades in literature.

GET CLIFFS NOTES HERE

American Opinion Bookstore
4209 Oleander Drive
Wilmington, NC 28403

Beachcomber Hairstyling
For Men & Women
228 Causeway Drive
Wrightsville Beach
256-9201

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

114-A Coral Drive • Wrightsville Beach, N.C. 28480

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842

Miller times starring Miller High Life®

"Those college kids think they're so smart."

"Yeah, but only we know if the light's on in here."

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 14

February 5, 1982

Twelve Pages

Red Cross sponsors blood mobile

by Yvette Young
Staff writer

As a matter of fact, it hurts much less than a bee sting. According to students who participated last semester, the worst part is when they prick your finger to find your blood type. And that's done so quickly, it's quickly over. So, why not be a volunteer this semester during the Red Cross blood drive?

The bloodmobile will be at the Pub. Wed., Feb., 10 from 10 to 3:30 pm and Thurs., Feb. 11 from 9 to 2:30 pm.

The procedure is very simple: a Red Cross nurse will ask you about your medical history, take your temperature, pulse, blood pressure, and weight. She will then check your iron and blood type (finger-prick) to determine eligibility. If you are eligible to donate, one pint of blood will be taken. After the procedure is completed, you will be served cookies and coke.

The actual time it takes to give blood is about 8-10 minutes, but considering the processing and refreshments, you should allow about an hour. If you can't find an hour in your schedule but still would like to donate, come in when you can do the preliminary paperwork. Then when you have a chance to come back, you will be given priority in line.

It's so simple, yet so important. Every single person that donates is helping to supply our community with desperately-needed blood. Your blood will go to the New Hanover County Hospital. According to a Red Cross representative, a successful drive will supply the hospital with half of the amount needed for Feb. The goal for this drive is 300 pints of blood. That's only 300 volunteers from nearly 5,000 students at UNCW.

"Don't assume that someone else will give that pint of blood," says Alan Capps, co-chairman of the UNCW drive. But it seems that's exactly what's happened in the past. Of all the drives that UNCW has sponsored, 250 pints of blood have never been surpassed.

Attorney General pleads guilty

UNCW's Attorney General, Kevin Sills, was brought before the University Court Jan. 27 to be tried on six counts of forgery on drop/add slips.

Sills pleaded guilty on all counts and was put on "disciplinary probation" until graduation.

SGA President Steve Schmidt stated that he had hoped that Attorney General Sills would render his resignation for the best interest of the students.

However, if he chooses not to resign "I am left with no alternative but to ask for his resignation," Schmidt stated.

Up, up and away!

with Seahawk basketball

Students have opportunity to talk with employers at Career Day

Career Day '82 is scheduled for Wednesday, February 10, from 10:30 AM to 3 PM in the lobby of Trask Coliseum. The event is sponsored jointly by the Career Planning and Placement Office, the UNCW business fraternity, Sigma Alpha Beta, and the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Visiting Career Day '82 will provide UNCW students an opportunity to talk with a number of employer representatives from organizations representing business, industry, governmental agencies and graduate and professional schools. All students (freshmen as well as seniors) are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss career interests with employers: position requirements, job opportunities, cooperative education possibilities, career options or any other career-relevant questions. Underclassmen may find this opportunity to gather career information especially useful in career planning. Start ahead with a head start: Career Day '82.

'Peanuts' files suit against student newspaper

For the second time in two years, the United Feature Syndicate has taken action against a college newspaper which parodied its "Peanuts" cartoon strip in an April Fool's issue. UFS recently filed a copyright infringement suit in federal court in Madison, WISC., citing two U. of Wisconsin-Stevens Point student newspaper staff members, the adviser to the newspaper, its printer and the UW Board of Regents. he suit also cites the director of health services of UW-SP for alleged use of "Peanuts" characters in an anti-pregnancy poster campaign on campus.

According to Dan Houlihan, adviser to the Pointer, the newspaper ran health service anti-pregnancy campaign ad last spring which featured cartoon characters. "Some people on the Pointer thought the ads were a little tasteless," say Houlihan, "and in the April Fool's edition, the newspaper ran a parody of the health ads, which showed two cartoon characters in a compromising position.

UFS is claiming those cartoon characters in the ads and the parody are "Peanuts" characters. The syndicate's attorneys first contacted the Pointer editor last summer, says Houlihan, saying UFS considered the ads and the parody a copyright infringement and would seek "the maximum in statutory damages." In 1979, when the U. of Minnesota-Twin Cities student newspaper used the character Lucy in a parody, it settled with UFS out of court.

The current UFS suits seeks $250,000 in damages. The suit states that the "Peanuts" strips has "been geared to wholesome, family entertainment and innocent humor and it has never contained any lewd, lascivious or obscene matter or dialogue."

The Pointer staff members will be represented, along with the other defendants, by the state attorney general's office, says

Houlihan. He admits his greatest fear isn't the suit itself, but the possible aftermath. The Pointer currently operates without any faculty or administration interference, he says. "I'm worried about what might happen to a free student press here because of this."

Study areas open in Hoggard

In an effort to meet the need for student study areas on campus at night, Room H225 (Hoggard) has been designated as a supplementary study area for the Spring 1982 Semester.

The room will be reserved as a study area according to the following schedule:

H225 Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday: 4 p.m.-Midnight
Sunday: 2 p.m.-Midnight

With the 'Hawks men's basketball season halfway over, their record stood at 8-9 going into last Wed.'s Northern Iowa game. The 'Hawks won 63-49, with #33, sophomore Carlos Kelly second in the season's scoring. The women's season is also underway, their record standing at 9-5 with a new school mark for highest game score. Related stories, page 8.

Letters

SGA Senator replies to student complaints

To the editor:

In answer to some students who do not feel the Student Government Association is fulfilling its obligations to the student body, I suggest this to remember: The system is meant to work slow to prevent hasty decision-making.

On the contrary, the SGA works very efficiently with most of the work being done in committee meetings. As Freshmen Class President, I take an active role on five committees, such as Crime Watch Committee, President's Advisory Council, Finance Committee, Chancellor's Student Affairs Committee, and a special committee that I chair to deal with monetary compensation. These are just a few areas where SGA policy originates.

Presently I am being affected in two areas. As a member of the Finance Committee, major changes in financial distribution of student fees directly concerns me. Secondly, as a SGA representative, I am able to voice an opinion in the issue dealing with the increase in fees and room and board.

It is unfortunate that some students feel SGA is non-responsive, and make their own "windbag" assessments. Only so much can be accomplished without student involvement. However, I must admit that students who are in clubs or organizations funded by SGA are more likely to feel its effects. This is not always true, as students are now facing a $140.00 increase in fees.

I am always willing to tell students what I do in SGA, and listen to their comments. It is regretful that SGA representatives are sometimes the last to hear thoughts of negligence. This means either representatives are not doing what is asked of them, or the students are not asking questions and getting involved. I invite everyone to investigate behind the so-called "closed doors". I think you will be invited in.

Sincerely yours,
Fred H. Adams, Jr.
Freshmen Class President

Ex-President responds to threats

To the editor:

I would like to take some time to address a recent editorial by a Sankey Blanton. I would like to say that I am sure that the UNCW SGA would appreciate Mr. Blanton's THREATS--To investigate what is going on behind their closed doors.

I would also like to respond to

Mr. Blanton's slanderous remarks concerning my resignation due to health reasons. Mr. Blanton has said that my reasons were highly suspect. Well I don't even know Mr. Blanton so how could he know the condition of my health?

As for policies and programs, Mr. Blanton, I would suggest that you take a good look around you at this school--at the buildings, parking lots, potential crime areas on campus, more lighting in these areas, the funding and support of many clubs/organizations, the fights for optional meal plans, media improvements, improved student programming--just to See THREATS p. 10.

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood,
Campus Minister

Concern and compassion, what is the difference?

How great a difference there is between concern and compassion. There are, probably, none of us who are not aware of the reality of human suffering. Daily we are confronted through television and newspapers with the statistics and grizzly realities of everything from plane crashes in the Potomac to starving children in East Africa. We are privileged to sit in our comfortable chairs and watch human suffering in living color. But what to those statistics, what do those tragic pictures really mean to us.

Someone, and I can't remember who, once told me the difference between concern and compassion: "Being concerned is seeing something awful happening to somebody and feeling, 'Hey that's really too bad.' Having compassion, he said, 'Is seeing the same thing and saying, 'I just can't let that happen to my brother.'"

In other words, concern comes from a recognition of a problem. Compassion comes out of a feeling of relationship. Concern generates moments of genuine feelings of sorrow and worry, which as often as not is quickly put away as we carry on with our daily routine. Compassion, on the other hand, which is generated by a real sense of relationship to those who are hurting, often leads to action. If someone whom we know and love is hurting, we move. We go to them and seek to help.

But, too often, as we move beyond our immediate close friends and family, compassion simply turns into concern. We find ourselves viewing all the problems which confront us and our brothers and sisters across the world only as spectators. Life, then, becomes one great Super Bowl which we watch only from a distance.

My fear is in our drive to "Grab all the gusto you can get" we will use feelings of concern to avoid involvements that demand compassion. The man who jumped into the icy waters of the Potomac to save a stranger, moved beyond concern to compassion and both his and the life that he saved have much more meaning today. IN the face of human need, concern is simply not enough!

Student fees may rise by $150.00

by Steven Schmidt
SGA President

On Wed., Jan. 20, the UNCW Board of Trustees passed a recommendation to the Board of Governors that will, if approved, raise the student fees by $150.00. The recommendation was not unanimous in that I felt the fee increases were not adequately justified and were unfair to us all.

For several years students have been paying a substantial amount of money to this institution for the services, buildings and "extras" offered. The most significant dilemma we face is the specter of continual fee increases. For instance, several years ago, we, the students, adhered to an annual fee of $50.00 to help pay off the debt owed for the cost of Trask Coliseum. Two years ago, we encountered an annual fee of $70.00 for the construction of the New Student Union. We, also, had to adjust our budgets for a $10.00 increase for parking decals from $25.00 to $35.00. Last year, we had to tighten our pockets even more so we could afford the following increases:

- a) Tuition from $290.00 to $315.00
 - b) Athletic fee from $51.00 to $65.00
 - c) Health fee from $22.00 to $30.00
 - d) Room and Board from $1560.00 to $1815.00, and seniors,
 - e) Graduation fee from $15.00 for $27.00.
- Even though these fees are figured on an annual basis, they still cover more than inflationary costs, but what?

The new recommendation would increase some of these fees by a substantial margin:

- a) Athletic fee from $65.00 to $72.00 which includes an intramural increase of $4.00 and a physical activity increase of $3.00

- b) Health fee from $30.00 to $38.00
- c) Parking fee from $35.00 to $40.00

d) Room and Board from $1815.00 to $1945.00. Obviously, this is going to take a bigger bite out of our budget. Has inflation affected us so dramatically?

Our fees have, in the past, always gone up. Granted, we are an expanding school, and granted, we are paying the price of inflation. My question is, why it that the students get hit the most? During the meeting of the board, I asked questions pertaining to where the money would help the students, the answers that I received were not satisfactory in my belief, and the increases were not totally justified.

It is time for the students to look more closely into where their hard-earned money is

See PRESIDENT p. 10.

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.
5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

PBS airs Professor Toplin's program about slavery in 1822

On Wednesday, Feb. 17 at 9 pm, PBS television will broadcast nationally an hour and a half docudrama developed by UNCW History professor, Robert Brent Toplin. The program, "Denmark Vessey's Rebellion," deals with an actual event in American history: the plot of Charleston blacks in 1822 to organize a slave rebellion and escape to freedom. Several well-known actors from film and television play leading roles in the show, including Ned Beatty, Brock Peters, Cleavon Little, Yaphet Kotto, Antonio Fargas, Samm-Art Williams, Bernie Casey, and Donald Moffat. The program was filmed at historic locations in Charleston and at Middleton Plantation and Boone Hall Plantation.

Professor Toplin began work on the production in 1976, when he was asked by PBS to submit a proposal for a television program on a historic theme of national interest. At the time Roots had not yet appeared, and Toplin suggested a show about slavery. Shortly after, Roots was aired and won tremendous acclaim. Toplin was not discouraged by comments that the topic of slavery was now "already covered on TV." Instead, he felt the positive reaction to Roots showed that public curiosity about the history of slavery remained high.

With the help of several fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Toplin began research on the case of Denmark Vessey's slave plot. After many months of reading the original court records, personal letters and diaries, newspaper reports, and government documents, Toplin pieced together descriptions of the events and leading personalities in the story. Among the historic characters who Dr. Toplin found especially interesting were Denmark Vessey, a free black carpenter who led the conspiracy, Gullah Jack, an African-born witch doctor who led the recruitment of plantation slaves, Thomas Bennett, the governor of South Carolina who failed to detect the plot, and Rolla Bennett, the governor's personal slave servant who also secretly worked as one of the rebel ringleaders.

After organizing the main outlines of the dramatic storyline, Toplin met frequently with William Hauptman, a professional screenwriter. Together the two completed the draft of a script for the program. Then Toplin brought in a team of twelve leading historians of slavery to evaluate the script in detail and recommend improvements.

Finally, in Sept., 1980, the program was ready for filming. Several streets in the Battery district of Charleston were closed off to traffic as scenes from "Denmark Vessey's Rebellion" were filmed at historic homes such as the Heywood-Washington House and the Pineapple

House. When filming took place at the Market, the production team purchased the entire stock of fruit and vegetables from local vendors in order to make use of the facilities. Many Charleston citizens found opportunities to take part in the production. The show called for a cast of hundreds for scenes filmed in the city streets and on the plantations. Charlestonians responded eagerly to the advertisements for "walk-ons" and greatly enjoyed dressing for a television production in the costumes of nineteenth century politicians, townspeople, slaves, farmers, and militiamen.

Toplin has enjoyed developing historical themes for television, and he believes many more cases from American history could be examined through the technique known as "Docu-drama." "Docu-drama makes history come alive," says Toplin, "and it allows us to try to get close to historical reality by recreating visual as well as verbal images of the environment and the personalities of the time." Toplin reports that preparing a production for TV proved more difficult than writing a traditional history book (he is the author of four such volumes). "There was much more to worry about, such as the authenticity of clothing and furniture and the use of language and accents," he notes.

Two SGA Senators

arrested in drug raid

Senators Robert Peter Divoky and Martin Lee Bremer along with two other UNCW students were arrested last Tues. after a raid at Senator Divoky's Wrightsville Beach home.

Sheriff Dept.'s narcotics squad, Wrightsville Beach Police and ABC officials were acting on a lead that marijuana was being manufactured. The only things found in the raid were drug paraphernalia and a small marijuana plant.

In his testimony, Senator Divoky accepted full responsibility for the plant.

No "cut" marijuana or seeds were found in the raid.

Search underway for the next Miss NC

The search has begun for the young lady who will wear the crown of Miss North Carolina/USA 1982. She will be selected from North Carolina's most outstanding young women to represent the state in the annual Miss USA Pageant that will be telecasted nationally on CBS-TV next May.

The Miss North Carolina/USA Pageant will be held in Winston Salem, North Carolina on March 5, 6 and 7.

To qualify in this official preliminary to the Miss USA and Miss Universe Pageants, applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 25, single and never married, and must live, work or attend school in North Carolina. They must be US Citizens and cannot have been a parent. Girls are judged on the basis of beauty, poise and personality. There is no talent competition.

The prizes to the winner include $1,000.00 in cash, special awards of jewelry, clothing and cosmetics, an all expense paid weekend in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida and an all expense paid trip to represent North Carolina in the 1982 Miss USA Pageant on the CBS telecast.

Free entry information is available to applicants who send their name, address, age and telephone number to: Miss North Carolina/USA Pageant, c/o Tel-Air Interests, Inc., 1755 NE 149 Street, Miami, FL 33181. TELEPHONE: (305) 944-3268.

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

Feb 5 - Fri - Bill Deal & Rhondels
Feb 6 - Sat - Ladies Free Until 10
Feb 7 - Sun - Glen Phillips Band
Feb 9 - Tues - UNCW Night
Feb 12 - Fri - Fabulous Knobs
Feb 13 - Sat - Ladies Free Until 10
Feb 14 - Sun - Valentines Day
Party with Subway
Feb 16 - Tues - UNCW Night
Feb 19 - Fri - Alkaphonics
Feb 20 - Sat - Ladies Free Until 10
Feb 21 - Sun - Thrush
Feb 26 - Fri - Brice Street

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

Stemmerman's offers a 20%

Discount to UNCW Students on Lunches

11:30 — 3:00

5:00 — 10:00

Happy Hour Every Saturday

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

Pudgy Days are here again

It's that time of year again - the holidays are over with, and you, O Pudgy One, are over-width also. But wait - you are not alone!

We all love the Yuletide season. . . we all love the fudge, the eggnog, the 82 different kinds of cookies, the pecan pie, the ham, the turkey, the stuffing, the six-layer carrot cake, the . . . excuse me, I think I need an Alka-Seltzer.

And that's just the food, friends. Add all that wine, beer, liquor, etc. (and that was just on New Year's Eve, am I right?) and before you know it, you've become a hazard to your bathroom scales. (Pity the poor scales - how would you like to be stepped on and then screamed at?)

If you're like most of us, you loosen your belt and suck in your gut a lot, but there's still that nagging voice in your mind screaming, "Chubby! You're getting chubbier!" For some strange reason, inhaling five fudge brownies reduces that irritating scream to a mere whimper of defeat.

Then it happens: three days before the new semester, you can't squeeze into your favorite jeans/skirt/leather corset. Even your kneecaps have stretch-marks. Kid, you are in serious trouble and it's time to take action!

So what do we do? We run. See Jane run. Run, Jane, run! We do exercises. See Jane do sit-ups. Up, Jane! Down, Jane! Up, up, up, Jane! Flop down, Jane. See Jane sweat. We sit in a sauna under layers of Saran Wrap. See Jane wilt like a lettuce leaf. See Jane change colors. Boy, that Jane should major in sweating! Poor Jane. When we are truly desperate, we also stop eating. See Jane gnawing her fingernails. Nasty habit, Jane!

Finally, it is 8 am on the first day of class. See Jane crawl out of bed and into her designer (Miss Piggy) jeans. They fit! See Jane jump for joy. Funny, funny Jane.

Look, look! There goes Jane, jogging out the front door. Does she want to get to class early? Oh noooo! See Jane run into Kroger's for a box of Twinkytyme Donuts - stop, Jane, stop! Ooh . . . see Jane gobble! Gobble gobble, Jane . . .

Bill Deal and the Rhondels to play

BILL DEAL & THE RHONDELS are more than just a band; they are a musical institution! Twenty years ago, a young musician named Bill Deal from Virginia Beach, Virginia, assembled eight musicians and thus the start of Bill Deal & The Rhondels. Today they are the foremost group on the circuit.

The group's beginnings centered around the typical club and college dates. They soon became Virginia's hottest act. Regardless of the type of music, they were the leaders.

The group quickly ascended to the national scene in 1969 when they were awarded Heritage Records #1 Newcomer group of the year and Billboard's #5 Newcomer Group. They were certainly in good company, for some of the other groups in the Top 10 were Three Dog Night, The Guess Who, and Blood, Sweat & Tears.

Their album entitled The Best of Bill Deal & The Rhondels featured three hit singles, "I've Been Hurt," "May I," and "What Kind Of Fool Do You Think I Am?" Deal's record success also spread to South America, Mexico and parts of Europe. As a result of their record success, their fame grew all over the country, and especially in the Southeast. The Rhondels were now considered The Group.

One of Bill Deal's keys to success has been the consistent talent within his group. His uncanny ability to find raw talent is evident now with the current super-star success being enjoyed by Linda Green, the new Peaches & Herb. Their record "Reunited" has been #1 for several weeks. Linda sang with the Group for 4 years. More recently, Ammon Tharp, a drummer for 12 years with the Rhondels formed a very successful group "Fat Ammon's Band".

Bill Deal & The Rhondels have been the symbol of unequalled excellence in the musical industry. It is truly remarkable that in today's time, one man has kept a group in the limelight for so long. Now, the group is better than ever.

Freddie, who was tragically shot to death, was a member of the group for eight years. No biography of Bill Deal & The Rhondels would be complete without a tribute to a person who was such an integral part of the group.

The present group is filled with the eight most accomplished and respected musicians on the circuit. Bill Deal & The Rhondels are truly the best! It's been a decade since the national success of the Rhondels; we think this year will be The Year of the Rhondels! Playing at Four Winds, February 5th.

PEANUTS

Earn extra money FREE-LANCING your talent and know how . . .

No previous experience in the commercial field required . . .

This is YOUR chance to learn, grow and earn extra dollars.

It costs you nothing to join!

Art majors interested in doing commercial art [brochures, logos, etc.] . . .

Speech/Communications majors interested in writing radio-television copy and more . . .

Music majors interested in composing or performing radio-TV jingles . . .

Drama majors interested in performing in radio-TV commercials . . .

FILL OUT THE FOLLOWING AND MAIL TO:

TALENT-for-HIRE

p.o. box 4025
Wilmington, NC
28406

phone _____

Name _____

Address[local] _____

major _____

class _____

grad date _____

A TFH representative will call you. This ad will run two weeks only!

THE PATIO

The Patio
presents

Super Happy Hours

Monday thru Thursday

3 pm til 6 pm

$1.00

Subsandwiches

Roastbeef, Ham & Turkey

$1.00

Pitchers

College Night Wednesday 9 - til

Discount for Guys

Free Draft for Ladies

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce
and 100% Real Cheese

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza
12" pizza $4.45
16" pizza $6.45

Domino's Deluxe
5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Onions, Green Peppers,
and Sausage
12" Deluxe $ 8.05
16" Deluxe $11.85

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Hot Peppers, Double
Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $.90 per item
16" pizza $1.35 per item

Pepsi / Quarts
Customer pays deposit.

Prices subject to tax.

After you've cheered on the team and worked up an appetite, satisfy and celebrate with a pizza from Domino's Pizza. Call us, and in 30 minutes or less have a hot, delicious pizza delivered to your door.

Domino's Pizza provides free, 30 minute delivery to over 100 college campuses nationwide.
So whether home or away we'll keep your party going. Call us.

Domino's Pizza Delivers.™

Fast...Free Delivery

392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:

4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. - Sat.

Our drivers carry less
than $20.00.

Limited delivery area.

©1982 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

GO Seahawks!

Go Seahawks!

$2.00
off!

$2.00 off any 2-item
pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 2/21/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

18093 / 5526

$1.00
off!

$1.00 off any 1-item
pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 2/21/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

18093 / 5526

$.50
off!

$.50 off any pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 2/21/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

18093 / 5526

Homecoming Queen Candidates '82

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE!

Voting Times

Monday 8th 1-4, Cafeteria
6:30-8:30, Galloway
Tuesday 9th 1-4, Cafeteria
Wednesday 10th 1-4, Cafeteria

KIMBERLY BROOKSHIRE
UNCW FOOTBALL CLUB
SOPHOMORE
SPECIAL EDUCATION

KAY PEARCE
HOMECOURT ADVANTAGE
JUNIOR EDUCATION

ELCKY CRAM
CONCERT CHOIR
SENIOR
MUSIC

JANICE DAMPIER
HEWLETT DORM
FRESHMAN
EDUCATION

MARTHA DAVIS
GALLOWAY DORM
FRESHMAN
SPECIAL EDUCATION

KAREN GARTEN
PSI KAPPA OMEGA
SOPHOMORE
COMPUTER SCIENCE

KAY RAY
UNCW APARTMENTS
SENIOR
EDUCATION

BEVERLY HAMILTON
NEW DORM '79
SOPHOMORE
CRIMINAL JUSTICE

VANESSA HILL
BLACK STUDENT UNION

JUNIOR
PHYSICAL EDUCATION

TAMERA JONES INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL
SENIOR
CRIMINAL JUSTICE

LESLIE LEONARD
BELK HALL

SOPHOMORE
EDUCATION K-3

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE

PRESENTS

HOMEcoming WEEK '82

Wednesday, February 3	Semi-Formal Dance tickets on sale in 101-Pub, $4.00/couple
Monday, February 8	Homecoming Queen Balloting - 1-4 p.m., Cafeteria; 6:30-8 p.m., Galloway Hall Parade through campus (rain date Wednesday) 2:30 p.m. - starting at residence halls
Tuesday, February 9	Homecoming Queen Balloting - 1-4 p.m., Cafeteria Green & Gold Day - students, faculty, and staff are encouraged to dress in school colors Movies in Pub - 11 a.m.-2 p.m., Shorts; 8 p.m., Monty Python's "And Now for Something Completely Different"
Wednesday, February 10	Homecoming Queen Balloting - 1-4 p.m., Cafeteria Bonfire/Pep Rally - 7 p.m., behind Trask tennis courts
Thursday, February 11	Coffeehouse with Reed Whitesell and Johnny Sneed, and Steve Morrison and Paul Rathlingor 9 p.m. in Pub
Friday, February 12	Homecoming Dance - Semi-Formal, Hanover Hall Gymnasium, 9 p.m.-1 a.m. Coronation at 10:30 p.m. Banners must be hung in Trask by 3 p.m. for judging
Saturday, February 13	PFM & Special Events presents an indoor picnic in Hanover Hall Gymnasium, meal tickets accepted; all others $2.50. Entertainment will be provided. Homecoming Game - UNCW vs. ECU, 7:30 p.m. in Trask Coliseum

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE would like to thank the following for their time and donations:

AIRSTEP/FOOTWORKS
Independence Mall

FOUR SEASONS TROPHY SHOP
4209 Oleander Dr.

KINGOFF'S JEWELERS
Independence Mall

MERLE NORMAN COSMETICS
Independence Mall

SASSAFRAS FARM NURSERY
3341 Wrightsville Ave.

SOPHIA V. WEST FLORIST, INC.
5123 Market St.

WICKER WORLD
College Square Shopping Center

Sports

Seahawk Swimmers snap Georgia's 27 - win streak Saturday

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

The Seahawk men's and women's teams posted impressive wins at UNCW in a double dual meet with Virginia Commonwealth and Georgia State on Saturday, Jan. 23.

"We were the first team out of 27 in a row to beat Georgia State," said coach Dave Allen. "And it was the first time our women have ever beat Virginia," he added.

The Seahawk men also topped Virginia Commonwealth, 71-39, with a 69-44 win over Georgia, led by senior Sam O'Leary and freshman Jeff Siggins. O'Leary set new UNCW records in the 200-yd. I.M. (1:59.5) and the 200-yd. butterfly (1:53.3), while Siggins set a new mark in the 1000-yd. freestyle by taking the event in 9:56.11.

Other men's team winners were juniors Rusty Lambe in the 200- and 500-yd. freestyle, sophomore Chris Moore in the 50-yd. freestyle, and the 400-yd. medley relay team of O'Leary, Lambe, Moore and senior Mike Malone.

The Seahawk women beat Virginia Commonwealth, 95-45, by winning 12 out of 16 events. Junior Janet Johnson was a triple winner, swimming the 50- and 100-yd. breaststroke as well as the 100-yd. I.M..

Senior Ellen Cushman was a double winner in the 200-yd. I.M. and 100-yd. backstroke. Other individual winners were sophomore Chrissy Cecil in the 100-yd. freestyle event, freshman Karen Engman in the 500-yd. freestyle, and freshman Denise Hamilton in both 1-meter dives.

The women's team also won both the 200-yd. medley and 200-yd. freestyle relays.

It was the first time the Seahawks had met at home since Nov. 21, and coach Dave Allen was proud of his team's performances. "It was a total team performance on both the men's and women's sides," he said.

Unfortunately, the swimmers couldn't repeat this impressive performance at Furman University last Saturday, and dropped a 61-52 meet to Furman with the women losing 72-65.

The men won only three events, Jeff Siggins being the only double winner (200-yd. backstroke, 1000-yd. freestyle). The women won five events, including the 3-meter dive, despite a head injury sustained during the meet by freshman Nicki Stefaneli.

The Seahawk men will take on South Carolina State at home on Friday, followed by the University of Richmond on Saturday. The women do not swim again until Feb. 13 at Old Dominion.

Prudhoe goes for lay-up during last Wed.'s game with Northern Iowa.

Lady 'Hawks win 6 straight

David Newbern
Sports Writer

In a tremendous win on January 26, the Lady Seahawks basketball team crushed the UNC-Charlotte 49ers, 111-85, setting a new school record for the highest score in a game, and increasing their winning streak to six games. The UNCW women's record stands at 9-5.

The Lady Seahawks dominated the backboard throughout the game, with number 23, Gwen Austin, leading with 12 rebounds and 23 total points for the night.

Number 20, Sonya Pickard, who was second in points, scoring 20 to match her number, stated that she was "Pleased with the way we played." Of her individual performance, Pickard said "I did the best I could by working as a member of the team."

In a previous game against UNC-Asheville last week, the still young Lady Seahawk team downed UNCA, 88-59.

During that game, Sherri Crumpler led the Lady Seahawks in scoring with 17 points. Five sophomores led in the scoring in double figures that night to bring defeat to the UNCA team.

With only five freshmen, four sophomores, one junior and senior, the Lady Seahawk team is young, but displays the abilities of a good veteran squad.

The Lady 'Hawks' next contest will be on Feb. 6, against Baptist College.

Men top Northern Iowa, 63-49

Tony Britt
Sports Writer

The 1981-82 basketball season has been a struggle for UNCW. The Seahawks had won five of their last six games when North Carolina A & T, James Madison and George Mason defeated UNCW last week to make the 'Hawks' record 8-9 entering Wednesday's home game with Northern Iowa, which the 'Hawks' won 63-49.

With three home games remaining, the Seahawks are more than halfway through their toughest schedule ever. UNCW has faced N.C. State and Wake Forest of the ACC, and two teams from last year's NCAA Tournament - A & T and Madison. The 'Hawks' still must travel to A & T and Duke, and make a two-game trip to the Midwest in mid-February.

UNCW was 8-9 at this time last year, but hopes to improve on last year's 13-13 final record. Victories in the three remaining home games would give head coach Mel Gibson his 200th career victory, and a couple of wins on the road would put the Seahawks over the .500 mark in NCAA Division I competition five of six years.

Junior forward Shawn Williams has been the 'Hawks' top offensive performer, averaging 15.8 points and 5.1 rebounds after the Northern Iowa game, and scoring a school-record 38 points in UNCW's 80-52 victory over Grambling in the Siena Invitational. He is the 'Hawks' best natural athlete with exceptional leaping ability.

Sophomore Carlos Kelly is second in scoring (9.1 ppg) and first in rebounding (5.5 rpg) after leading the team in that category seven of the last eight games. Kelly also leads the 'Hawks in assists (47) and steals (30).

Seniors Dennis Tobin, Ed Timmons, Leon Nickelson, Alan Salzano and Randy McMillan are also major contributors to the Seahawk attack, who will play Campbell at home on Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

Roster

No.	Name	Ht.	Wt.	Class	Hometown
10	Frankie Dickens*	6-1	175	Soph.	Roxboro, NC
11	Edward Timmons*	6-3	180	Sr.	Fayetteville, NC
15	Dennis Tobin	6-3	180	Jr.	Hopatcong, NJ
20	Mike Prudhoe	6-6	200	Jr.	East Peoria, IL
22	Alan Salzano*	6-0	175	Sr.	Durham, NC
24	Scott Pearce	6-4	195	Fresh.	Durham, NC
25	Shawn Williams	6-4	190	Jr.	Washington, NC
31	Randy McMillan*	6-8	205	Sr.	Raleigh, NC
33	Carlos Kelly	6-5	200	Soph.	Durham, NC
41	Leon Nickelson*	6-9	220	Sr.	Warsaw, NC
42	Scott Prudhoe	6-7	210	Jr.	East Peoria, IL
53	Onno Steger	6-5	190	Soph.	Waverly, OH
54	David Prenatt	6-8	225	Soph.	Indianapolis, IN

Remaining Schedule

February
3	at N.C. A & T
6	CAMPBELL
8	at Duke
13	EAST CAROLINA
18	at Wisc.-Green Bay
20	at Northern Iowa
22	ILL.-CHICAGO CIRCLE
27	BAPTIST

All home games begin at 7:30 p.m., except Baptist, 2 p.m.

Roster

Name	Ht.	Class
Jill Amos	5-8	Soph.
Sharon Smith	5-6	Fresh.
Sonya Pickard	5-7	Fresh.
Sheila Patterson	5-9	Soph.
Gwen Austin	6-3	Fresh.
Jenny Owens	5-8	Fresh.
Darci Wilson	5-6	Jr.
Cathy Jones	6-1	Fresh.
Jayne Matthews	5-8	Fresh.
Vertha Dixon	5-7	Sr.
Sherri Crumpler	6-0	Soph.
Sharon McMillan	5-8	Soph.

Head Coach - Marilyn Christoph
Assistant - Melanie Hinton

Remaining Schedule

February
6	BAPTIST
12	at Gardner-Webb
13	at Mars Hill
15	at Coastal Carolina
18	at UNC-Charlotte
21	DUKE
24-27	State Tournament

All homes games begin at 7 p.m., except Baptist, 5:30 p.m., and Duke 3 p.m.

Notes...

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes meet every Thurs. night at 7 in room 142, Trask. The women's soccer club will meet on Brooks field, beginning Mon. All interested persons are welcome to come try it.

Intramural standings

BASKETBALL

Week One

Gold League	W-L-GB	Orange League	W-L-GB	Green League	W-L-GB
Blue Deamons	2-0-	Hangers	1-0-	Dilligaf	1-0-
Bongers	1-0-1/2	Kegmen	1-0-	Only Five	1-0-
E.S.P.N.	1-1-1	Party Machine	1-0-	M.B.A.	1-0-
Midgets	1-1-1	Tequillions	0-0-1/2	Windows	0-0-1/2
Bucks	0-0-1 1/2	Celtics	0-1-1	Critters	0-1-1
Laidbucks	0-0-1 1/2	81-ers	0-1-1	R.O.R.	0-1-1
Rebels	0-0-1 1/2	Gov't. Cutbacks	0-1-1	high team score - high team score - Bongers - 84		high team score -		Only Five - 58
high ind. score -		Kegmen - 48		high ind. score -
M. Hicks (Bongers) - 24		J. Fulford (Kegmen) - 20		D. Fuller (Only Five) - 25
Silver League	W-L-GB	Blue League	W-L-GB	Red League	W-L-GB
Budmen	2-0-	Reactors	2-0-	Zombies	2-0-
Blazers	1-0-1/2	Surf Dawgs	2-0-	S.O.B.	2-0-
F.C.A.	1-1-1	Bulldogs	1-0-1/2	Skoal Brothers	1-1-1
Square Root	1-1-1	Vanilla Block	1-1-1	C.C. Rednecks	0-1-1 1/2
Strombolls	1-1-1	Warriors	0-1-1 1/2	C-Men	0-1-1 1/2
Dixie Chickens	0-1-1 1/2	M.F. Cops	0-2-2	Football Club	0-1-1 1/2
Horses	0-1-1 1/2	Visitors	0-2-2	Trotters	0-1-1 1/2
New Image	0-1-1 1/2	high team score -		high team score - S.O.B. - 61
high team score -		Reactors - 58		high ind. score -
Strombolls - 46		high ind. score -		D. Vanderbash (S.O.B.) - 18
high ind. score -		A. Houston (Reactors) - 20		P. Myers (Zombies) - 18
S. Whitten (Strombolls) - 17

#22, senior Alan Salzano takes aim while Northern Iowa's bench watches.

The Bookery

318 Nutt Street
in the
Cotton Exchange
Wilmington, NC 28401
(919) 343-1100

Open 10 - 6
Monday - Saturday

20% off on Paperbacks only

Complete selection!

Classics, Dictionaries, Testing Materials,

Cliff Notes

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM?

ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!

CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842

Poetry ~

Prose ~

Art

Submissions for Spring's

Atlantis

Now Being Accepted In English Dept. Office

Jessie Rehder

Short Story

Contest	$50
	30 20

ALL DEADLINES:

Thursday February 25, 1982 4:00 pm

THREATS from p. 2.

name a few. What about all the representation of UNCW students on the national, state, and local governments? What about all the work that we did to benefit the future students in our state—the work that our school (students) did on the HEW/UNC Convent Decree.

Where were you Mr. Blanton, when some of us spend much of free time, making many personal sacrifices, just so a small few could see and appreciate what kind of student government we have had. Where were you Mr. Blanton while we were at two or three meetings a day every week at our own University - trying to represent our classmates? Where were you Mr. Blanton when we stood before other schools, proclaiming our student rights or just our plain and sincere UNCW school spirit?

During this last three and a half years there have been many improvements at UNCW - not only physical improvements - but the kind that comes from students taking the responsibility to give all of their energy to this University.

Yes Mr. Blanton - just where were you when this was happening? Your kind always get off looking at the bad that we have all experienced from time to time - not at all the good that we have done.

I have seen your type before - so why don't you quit making threats and get involved in your Student Government or some other area and help change that which dissatisfies you so much?

Charles B. Parsons
Ex-Student Body President

PRESIDENT from p. 2

going. It is time to ask for substantiated justifications of the goods and services that these funds provide to all the students. Rather then sit idly by and say "Oh well, the cost of college just went up again," it is time to do something about it.

Ask questions, write letters expressing your concern, make your feelings known to those that have the power to "raise your rent."

'Modern Problems' enjoyable

by David George
Staff writer

Modern Problems starring Chevy Chase, Patti D'Arbanville, Mary Kay Place, Brian Doyle Murray, Dabney Coleman.

Modern Problems is not a BAD film. It is slapstick, escapist - even enjoyable, but chances are you won't remember a whole lot about it two years after you've seen it.

It features Chevy Chase as Max, the air traffic controller whose life begins to dissolve. His girlfriend, played by Patti D'Arbanville, leaves him and everyone he talks to assures him he is a jealous, negative schmuck. Then, he gets magical powers from a radioactive accident. He spends them on revenge for a while, gets his girlfriend back, and then becomes depressed.

A long string of gags follow, with Chevy using (abusing?) his power, but by now they are old and the laughs are hard to come by. In the end, Max gets the girl and everyone else gets their just deserts.

The plot is fair and the special effects are very nice, but despite fine performances by Brian-Doyle Murray and Chevy Chase, compared to other films of this season, like Reds or Absence of Malice, Modern Problems shines like a greasy plate. It does not rate a terrible review, but with better pickings available, steep admission rates, and a mediocre ending, I would wait for it to come on HBO.

Advertise with The Seahawk

Reach out to over 6,000

BEGINNER OR ADVANCED. Cost is about the same as a semester in a U.S. college $2,989. Price includes jet round trip to Seville from New York, room, board, and tuition complete. Government grants and loans available for eligible students.

Live with a Spanish family, attend classes four hours a day, four days a week four months. Earn 16 hrs. of credit equivalent to 4 semesters taught in U.S. colleges over a two year time span! Your Spanish studies will be enhanced by opportunities not available in a U.S. classroom. Standard red tests show our students' language skills superior to students completing two year programs in U.S.

Hurry, it takes a lot of time to make all arrangements. FALL SEMESTER, SEPT. 10-Dec. 22 SPRING SEMESTER Feb. 1-June 1 each year. FULLY ACCREDITED-A program of Trinity Christian College.

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

2442 E. Collier S.E. Grand Rapids, Michigan 49508
(A Program of Trinity Christian College)

CALL TOLL FREE

for full information 1-800-253-9008
(In Mich., or if toll free line inoperative call 1-616-942-2903 or 942-2541 collect)

Non Traditionals air complaints

by Sankey Blanton
Columnist

There were some complaints voiced at the Non-Traditional students meeting last year which are all too readily swept under the carpet. I air them now.

A mother of two and a full-time housewife was told by an advisor she was less-than-serious as a student because she could only fit six hours into her schedule. A Vietnam veteran was prevented from taking more than six hours until he proved he could handle the load. A returning student with ten years professional experience and a degree encountered a lab instructor who felt students in the introductory course only cared about a passing grade and proceeded to teach in a lackadaisical manner.

At the beginning of this semester, I was obliged to drop a course because I encountered an unfortunate communication difficulty with the professor who desired me to conform to propriety from another age.

This is my primary concern. Often I make assumptions about instructors based on my expectations of what they can provide to my education; I forget they might have well established, traditional routines which they have successfully applied to benefit a multitude of eager young adults.

Unfortunately, I'm not a kid anymore. Non-Traditional students now comprise one fourth of the campus and their numbers are growing. The baby boom is over; the survival of UNCW and comparable institutions now hinges on becoming centers of continuing education vice remaining traditional sheep-skin mills for high school graduates. Continuing Education is not a process of molding young minds but providing a desired product to meet the market demand. For mature students to obtain the maximum benefit of their education dollars, they must be allowed and encouraged to intellectually concentrate on the course material instead of the lecturer's personality. Experienced, intelligent individuals who seek to expand their education have many options: we can investigate topics on our own, select progressive instructors, or a more responsive university.

I personally know that ANY UNDERGRADUATE DEGREE can be earned at Old Dominion University (Norfolk, VA) at evening classes. EXCLUSIVELY. There are many non-traditional ways to seek knowledge, but UNCW would be a ghost town without students.

I am reminded of a bumper sticker which is popular around Jacksonville. It says: "LEAD, FOLLOW or GET OUT OF THE WAY". For professors or administrators who cannot adjust to the reality that Wilmington College must become a participant in the future education of North Carolina, I recommend the previous slogan.

Campus Calendar

Discount registration

The Office of Special Programs is announcing a new discount registration plan for all UNCW faculty, staff and students. Effective immediately full-time faculty, staff and students will be permitted to enroll in all non-credit programs offered through the Office of Special Programs for 50 percent off the regular registration fee. Such enrollment will be contingent upon available space and sufficient enrollment.

Phi Eta Sigma

Seniors who plan to work for graduate or professional degrees and who are members of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society should get in touch with the faculty adviser, Dr. Lee Johnston, in R-221 Hoggard.

National Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society offers thirty or more $500 scholarships this year on the basis of the student's scholastic record, evidence of creative ability, evidence of financial need, promise of success in chosen field, and character. Only members of Phi Eta Sigma are eligible for these gift scholarships.

Deadline for submitting applications is February 19.

LIVE A LONG AND HEALTHY LIFE

I plan on living a long and healthy life, so I get regular cancer checkups. You see, the best time to get a checkup is before you have any symptoms.

So take care of yourself, now. Call or write your local unit of the American Cancer Society for a free pamphlet on their new cancer checkup guidelines.

Because if you're like me, you want to live long enough to do it all.

American Cancer Society

This space contributed as a public service.

Ranger Club

The Ranger Club is designed for highly adventurous students interested in building their self-confidence, discipline and physical endurance. UNCW Rangers will participate in several field trips including cross country skiing, rock climbing, white water rafting, swimming and diving. Also classroom instructions including cardiopulmonary resuscitation and basic camping techniques will be given. Any student interested is advised to attend the meeting Thursday, Feb. 11th, at 4 o'clock in the Pub. For further information contact Mark Reid, 392-5339 or Jerry Swanner, 392-2631.

Campus Christian Fellowship

Campus Christian Fellowship meetings every Tues. at 7 pm in the Goodwood Tavern. Everyone is welcome!

Applications taken

The Department of Nursing is taking applications to the Associate Degree Program in Nursing for Fall 1982. Interested students are requested to come to the Nursing Office, H-227, to begin the admission process.

DZ's adopt grandparents

Adopt a grandparent, sound strange? Thought adoption pertained only to children? Well it doesn't anymore. Delta Zeta Sorority has latched onto a new program being sponsored by Solomon Towers in Wilmington. It is the "Adopt a Grandparent" program and seems to be coming along very well.

Delta Zeta has taken on the responsibility of adopting a grandmother and a grandfather. They are Mr. and Mrs. Ashcraft who live in Solomon Towers.

The girls of Delta Zeta show this couple the love and caring that is so very important during aging. So many times the elderly are put in homes and forgotten. Delta Zeta is strongly against that so they are

'Save the Goodwood' concert Feb. 11

To continue the Homecoming Week excitement and to support a good cause, joint the Coffeehouse Committee's "SAVE THE GOODWOOD CONCERT!!!!". It will be a double header, mini concert on Thursday, February 11 at 8:30 PM in the Student Union.

The objective of this concert is to show our support to have the Goodwood Tavern's laid back atmosphere reproduced in the new Student Union, which is planned to open Spring of 1983. Over the past years, the Goodwood's intimate, secluded atmosphere was the location of many memorable nights of musical entertainment, comedy, and drama. Also it's been our escape from the hum drum classroom atmosphere of the university for a break and something to eat during the busy weeks within it's warm, hardwood walls.

To support our efforts, we will be having encore presentations by past Goodwood artists. Join us to welcome back Johnny Sneed and Reed Whitesell with their quality blues style music. And as our headliners the duo of Steve Morrison and Paul Roethlinger with their easy listening rock tunes.

This is Reed and Johnny's second appearance in the Coffeehouse series, having made their debut to a packed house a year ago. Johnny plays electronic guitar and Reed plays guitar and harmonica performing traditional and contemporary blues, with a rockin' good time feeling. It's music that's guaranteed to get your feet clapping and your hands stomping!!!

Steve Morrison was formally with the group "Creekwood" which featured Jerry Powell and Paul Roethlinger. Paul left Wilmington, moving to Atlanta and joined the group "Choice". Paul toured and recorded with "Choice" eventually leaving the group not long after their appearance at last year's Seaside Jam.

After "Creekwood" disbanded, Steve and Jerry began rehearsing as a duo and emerged in the local club circuit as the ever popular Morrison and Powell. After several years as a duo, Steve and Jerry parted ways. It was at this time that Paul moved back to the Wilmington area and teamed with Steve to form Morrison and Roethlinger. They're everything you'd expect. Musically correct, intricate harmonizers, and highly-polished vocals and stage presence.

So come support your Goodwood Tavern and enjoy another terrific evening of FREE musical entertainment brought to you by the Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee. Bring your favorite beverage, come about 8:30 PM on the 11th of February and SUPPORT THE

SAVE THE GOODWOOD'S TAVERN ATMOSPHERE!!!! See you there cause this is an evening you won't want to miss!!!!

UNCW concert committee

Last Semester They Brought You

The Atlanta Rhythm Section

The Johnny Van Zandt Band

Mike Cross

The Charlie Daniels Band

The Chuck Level Trio

Needed!

Stage Crew

Hospitality Crew

Ushers

Classified

All students, faculty, and on-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.

Lost and Found

LOST

Men's Gold wedding band with black indentations. Red, white and blue wallet.

FOUND

Pair of contact lenses. Check with Chryl Ferguson, Rm. 101 in the Pub.

Services

Typist Available
Betty Ames
799-2578
IBM Executive Typewriter

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

Lost - gold bracelet, has sentimental value. Please call Beth, 392-7632 - Reward offered.

Recruiting Visits

CAREER DAY '82
Wednesday, Feb. 10
10:30 am - 3 pm
Trask Coliseum

U.S. Navy
Lt. J.K. Ross
Tues., Wed., Thurs.,
Feb. 9, 10, 11
Pos: Various
Majors: Any

Carolina Power and Light Co.
Ms. Holly Carrington
Thurs. Feb. 11
Pos: Customer Service Rep., Accountants, Computer Programmer
Majors: Acctg., Bus., Computer Sci., Any

First Citizens Bank and Trust
Co.
Mr. Frank Rawley
Thurs. Feb. 11
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Acctg., Business,
Finance, Economics

Burlington Industries
Mr. Tom Maultsby
Mr. Chuck Beidler
Tues. Feb. 16
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Any

J.C. Penney Co.
Mr. Jack Sutton
Wed. Feb. 17
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Business Admin.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.
Mr. Roger Clark
Wed. Feb. 17
Pos: Sales Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Any

NCNB
Mr. Clint Neal
Thurs. Feb. 18
Pos: Commercial Lending
Majors: Acctg., Bus., Admin.

U.S. Dept. of Commerce
NOAA Commissioned Officer
Corps.
Lt. Michael Henderson
Thurs. Feb. 18
Pos: Ensign NOAA Corps
Majors: Any

Blue Bell, Inc.
Mr. Earle Fidalgo
Tues. Feb. 23
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee, Engineer
Trainee, Computer Programming
Majors: Acctg., Bus., Computer Sci., Math, Physics, Pre-Engineering, Engineering
Operations

PUB^{NEW} DANCE COMMITTEE PRESENTS THE 1982 Homecoming Dance

Friday night in the park

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 9PM TILL 1AM
TICKETS $4 A COUPLE, ADVANCE SALE
AVAILABLE IN STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE
ROOM 101 PUB ~ SEMI-FORMAL DRESS

UNCW University Program Board's

HALF MOON

PRODUCTIONS

PRESENTS:

Thursday, February 11, 8:30pm

No admission charges - Bring your own celebration!

"Save The Goodwood Concert"

with: Steve Morrison &
Paul Roethlinger

(Easy Listening Rock) and guest: Johnny Sneed &

Reed Whitesell

(Traditional & Contemporary Blues)

Support The Reproduction Of The Goodwood Tavern's Atmosphere In The New Union Building.

UNCW GRAPHICS
P.D. COWLEY

THE BEER BOX

We ice them down free

A one Stop Beverage
Shop

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

Miller times starring
Miller High
Life

1981 Beer Brewed by Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV Number 15

February 11, 1982

Eight pages

SGA discusses drug raid, finances

On Thursday, February 4, the weekly Student Government meeting was called to order by SGA Vice-President Jeff Newton, with its usual invocation prayer following.

Shortly thereafter, student senator Pete Divoky approached the meeting's lectern. Divoky told the student senate, as well as others present, of his recent arrest. He said that fellow senator Mark Bremer was arrested by the Wrightsville Beach police along with himself, but that Bremer was innocent of any charges.

Senator Divoky said that senator Bremer had nothing to do with the marijuana, and that Bremer had only been busted because he lived with Divoky.

Next, senator Mike Stroud took the stand. Senator Stroud said that Divoky and Bremer should be congratulated for the incident, to which the senate and SGA officers gave a hearty round of applause.

The officers of the SGA then gave their weekly reports. In the treasurer's report, treasurer Shirley Mayfield read and discussed the results of the finance committee's meeting.

Mayfield reported that a budget of $1200.00 was being asked for by campus fraternity Phi Beta Lambda, and that a budget of $3200.00 was being asked for by Atlantis, the campus literary magazine, to print a spring issue, and to increase their circulation from 1000 to 1500 copies.

The frisbee team then asked for a charter, and assistance with their group, followed by the communications club.

Two new senators, Nancy Keller and Glen Gainey, were sworn in, and the SGA then voted on the finance Committee's appropriations. Phi Beta Lambda's $1200.00 budget was approved, and Atlantis's $3200 budget was voted down, 12-4. Atlantis, instead, was granted $325 to publish their magazine. Both the frisbee team and the communications club had to make a future appointment with the SGA.

On February 8, a caravan of decorated cars, trucks, floats and bathtubs made its way down Riegel Road. The event; the 1982 Homecoming parade. With brightly colored floats and beautiful homecoming contestants sitting in convertibles, the convoy paraded in front of small but enthusiastic crowds. In this photo, the Inter Fraternity Council shows their award-winning float.

Lighthouse in jeopardy

by Bill Estep

One of the nation's most popular landmarks is literally in the hands of Mother Nature. Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, which has stood on North Carolina's Outer Banks for more than a century, may already be running on borrowed time.

Completed in 1870, the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is the tallest brick lighthouse in North America. Its stairway has 268 steps.

The structure was built of 1.2 million bricks and weighs about 2,000 tons.

Its light consists of a beacon with two 1,000 watt lamps, each of which produces a beam of 800,000 candlepower.

In clear weather, the light is visible for about 20 miles. However, under especially favorable conditions, it has been seen as far as 51 miles at sea.

The light appears at a distance as a short flash at intervals of 7.5 seconds.

A Swiss clock known as an Astronomic Time Switch turns the light on and off. It adjusts the length of the light's operating time, turning it on 30 minutes before sunset and off 30 minutes before sunrise.

The lighthouse's distinctive black and white striping was ordered by the Lighthouse

See LIGHTHOUSE, p.3

Alcohol Task Force needs students

The Alcohol Awareness Task Force started last semester to bring awareness to the student population about the responsibility of use or non-use of alcohol.

A limited survey was conducted and brought to the attention of Dr. Cecil Willis and Tom Fields on what kinds of drinking was going on among the students.

Data is as follows: 49% of light drinkers drink whiskey or liquor, 54% of moderate drinkers drink wine and 69% of the heavy drinkers drink beer. Also 45% of the heavy drinkers stated that it was very important for them to get drunk, while others of the lower classes stated it was not important to them.

The division of Student Affairs is investigating alcohol related incidents such as DUI's, personal injuries and damage to campus property.

In the fall of 1981 the Task Force began identifying problems and developing background information and strategies to cope with the problem.

Now, in 1982 they are continuing to document problems.

Three main projects of the Force are, one, developing a training program for resident advisors, clubs and organizations and to give out a handbook on alcohol use or non-use, and NC laws; two, a policy for alcohol consumption in the university apartments making

See FORCE p. 3

Letters

'Atlantis' editor speaks out

To the editor:

During this, Atlantis' 12th publishing year, the Student Government Association has suddenly found it inappropriate for YOU the students to have a spring issue.

While campus non-fiction writers, artists and photographers contribute to the campus' non-fiction outlet, The Seahawk, campus FICTION writers, artists and photographers have always contributed to the only on-campus outlet for fiction and poetry - the Atlantis.

If the SGA refuses to appropriate sufficient funds for the Atlantis, what will student artists, fiction writers and poets use for a publication then?

As Editor-in-Chief, I would like to clear up a few misconceptions about our STUDENT literary magazine. The Atlantis is produced, edited, staffed and submitted to by and only by YOU the students, and is available at NO CHARGE, because you've already paid for it with your student fees.

As for submissions: all Atlantis submissions are ANONYMOUS. On a separate sheet, which the editors and staff do NOT read, the author and/or artist's name is recorded along with the title of his/her work so that after the work is judged for publication the author can then be credited with the work.

The staff and editors, also being students, are encouraged to submit material to the magazine as well, and oftentimes staff and editors are simply students who write or paint and SO frequently submit to Atlantis that they are asked to join the staff.

It is therefore mere coincidence that 11 of the 42 literary works published in the fall issue happened to be by members of the staff. It is not the first time this has happened.

And while it is true that 1979-81 had been plagued with problems, it is important to note that the current staff and editors have met all of their deadlines, and put out one of the best Atlantis issues ever, and that NONE of the current Atlantis editors were editors during "the problem years."

The SGA has claimed that Atlantis has no way of producing revenue. We could charge you for Atlantis, which hardly seems fair; we could collect beer cans, but at a penny or two a piece, we'd need 320,000 beer cans, or is it... well, you get the idea. We've looked at advertising, too, but literary magazine paper isn't cheap, so we couldn't break even with ads.

The Atlantis costs about $2840 per 1000 copies, at 40 pages an issue, to produce. Since the school has grown to over 5,000 students, we, the editors didn't think it was unreasonable to ask the SGA for additional funds to increase our 1000 copy circulation to say, 1500, or even 2000.

The joke was on us: the SGA granted us a total of $325.00 with which to put out a campus literary magazine. Coupled with the $75.00 left over from the last issue (of which all 1000 copies were gone overnight), the Atlantis has a grand total of $400.00 to operate with.

In short, this is exactly where we stand: the fall 1981 issue of Atlantis came out, as scheduled, during the last week of classes: 36 pages containing 19 works of art, 38 poems, 4 short stories, and a staff of five editors, 19 staff members, and 51 contributing artists/writers - a total student involvement of 49 students. For our efforts, the SGA is laughing at us, and at YOU, the students.

Finally, on the same night that the Atlantis received $325.00, a campus fraternity, Phi Beta Lambda, was allotted $1200.00, by the same so-called "Suffering" SGA budget. I just wonder how many students this $1200.00 will benefit, compared with the 1000+ students who would benefit from a campus literary magazine - it's all your money, whether allotted to elitist campus organizations or to a literary magazine that is yours to keep, so just be sure that YOUR student government is spending it the way you want it spent.

Sincerely,
Barbara J. Grob
Editor-in-Chief, Atlantis

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.

5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

Student feels drug raid article is 'disturbing'

To the editor:

I would like to express my regrets that an article dealing with a drug raid at a student's personal residence had to appear in a school newspaper.

What is even more disgusting is the fact that no mention would have been made of this incident had the students not been Senators. To damage the reputations of Mr. Divoky and Mr. Bremer was clearly the reason for the article, for the word "Senator" was used more times in conjunction with the suspects than their actual names. What a student does outside of the boundaries of UNCW is not always something that should be put in the school newspaper for everyone to see. It's not UNCW's concern. The fact that Mr. Divoky and Mr. Bremer are Senators is not a reason to broadcast their private lives.

I personally know that Pete Divoky has donated incredible time and energy since coming to UNCW to make this a better place, and anyone else knowing him will agree. The article was tasteless and definitely undeserving of someone as respected as Pete Divoky. Please try and show some professionalism in the future.

Sincerely yours,
Billy Blanke

Dionne Warwick says:
"Get your blood into circulation."

Call Red Cross now for a blood donor appointment.

A Public Service of The Newspaper & The Advertising Council

Stillpoint

by Bob Hayward, Campus Minister

On letting go: Part I

How, tightly we hang on to the known, the familiar and the safe. It seems that it is a fearful thing to let go and move out into any new territory - new friends, new places, new ideas, or new dimensions of our personal lives.

It is true that change involves risk; but also change offers the only promise of the fulfillment of our hopes and our dreams. In this period of economic and global insecurity, I want to affirm once again the value of letting go and embracing the transition times in our lives. And our life at the University can certainly be one of these times.

The process of growing involves change. As Gail Sheehy points out in Passages: "We are not unlike a particularly hardy crustacean. The lobster grows by developing and shedding a series of hard, protective shells. Each time it expands from within, the confining shell must be sloughed off. It is left exposed and vulnerable until, in time, a new covering grows to replace the old."

"With each passage from one stage of human growth to the next we, too, must shed a protective structure. We are left exposed and vulnerable - but also yeasty and embryonic again, capable of stretching in ways we hadn't known before.

These sheddings may take several years or more. Coming out of each passage, though, we enter a longer and more stable period in which we can expect relative tranquility and a sense of equilibrium regained."

Transition times such as leaving home for the university, a broken relationship, the experience of failure, the loss of job or divorce, are times of stress. They are also the growth points in our human life. They may be times of risk and heightened vulnerability, but they are times, as well, of transition where something known and dear is given up and we refashion our world with new experiences and new people and new options.

Such times of letting go call for us to die a little to the safe, the comfortable and the familiar. They may ask us to give up old freedoms and even more frequently move to surrender old dependencies.

Our choice in so many little decisions is whether to "hold on" to the past or "move on" to a vulnerable embryonic future.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Chyrl Kane

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

LIGHTHOUSE, FROM P.1

Board in 1873 to make the tower "a better daymark on this low sandy coast."

Chances are that within the next ten years, it could fall victim to the natural forces that have brought the Atlantic's turbulent waters to the structure's very base.

The shoreline was about 1500 feet away when the tower was built in 1870 but constant erosion has moved it within 70 feet of the lighthouse.

In the face of Mother Nature's continuing encroachment on the lighthouse, many government officials are moving on one proposal for saving the light, while efforts are being made by the public to help finance the project.

The proposal is to build a revetment or wall around the base of the lighthouse. The wall would be about 30 feet high and would cost around 4.5 million dollars. This is but one of the proposals to save the light.

Other alternatives included moving the structure, providing a revetment in front of the lighthouse, and extending the present groins while also regularly pumping sand onto the beach.

Officials of the National Park Service have endorsed the idea of building a revetment, but a final decision must await the completion of design work by the Army Corps of Engineers.

There is no guarantee that the revetment will work. Because of the higher wave energy system at Hatteras it may not. But the revetment proposal is the favored solution.

In the meantime the park service plans to extend a groin, or steel piling, near the base of the lighthouse. About 150 feet of groin, sandbags and rubble were added last winter when storms pushed the ocean within 50 feet of the lighthouse.

At 208 feet the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is the tallest lighthouse in the country.

FORCE from p. 1

easier for students to socialize. Three, developing a program to help students with a documented problem.

The Task Force needs student involvement. People willing to work, give ideas and involvement are needed. Anyone interested see Dean of Students, Abby Hastings in the Administration Building. "It's a helping committee, not a disciplinary committee," Dean Hastings said.

Credibility Gap

by Sankey Blanton, Non-Traditional Student

Comments on Attorney General Arts Council gains new building

Dateline: Webster's New World Dictionary, College Edition, integrity: the quality or state of being of sound moral principal; uprightness, honesty, and sincerity.

Having defined the term, let's discuss last week's short news item concerning the Student Government Attorney General. The duty of the Attorney General includes making judgements in cases of student academic dishonesty. A prerequisite for this job would seem to be some measure of personal integrity, considering that Attorney General decisions could adversely affect another student's whole life.

How do you get integrity? Can you buy a bunch at Belk's with little green alligators on it?

Is it something you receive upon graduation along with your diploma? Is there an INTEGRITY 321 course you can take as an elective? Well, NO! It is sort of like virginity; you're born with it, you value it, and you've either got it or you haven't.

Continuing the analogy, a small lack of integrity is like being "just a little bit pregnant." At UNCW we have an SGA Attorney General who pleaded GUILTY to six counts of dishonesty. How are we to accept this? Was it a momentary lapse of judgement? A one-time thing? Sorry - won't happen again...

I am reminded of the Watergate affair which depleted the ranks of the Executive branch of the United States Government less than a decade ago. In that case the President resigned and the Attorney General went to prison. At UNCW, the Attorney General has been put on probation until graduation in 1983.

So where does that leave students of this college community? Last semester we were told that SGA members resigned from various committees to protest the Administration. Is it the Administration's turn to resign in protest of the SGA? Possibly, we, the students should resign.

I congratulate SGA President Steven Schmidt for his strong stand and courageous call for the Attorney General's resignation. Not only was this timely, it is the appropriate action for this situation. Considering that the Attorney General probably didn't just awake one morning and decide to forget his integrity, a resignation has been LONG OVERDUE.

MISS NORTH CAROLINA/USA PAGEANT ENTRIES OPEN!

Lisa Swift
Miss North Carolina
USA 1981

The search is on to find Miss North Carolina/USA for 1982. The winner will represent her state at the 1982 MISS USA PAGEANT to be televised nationally on CBS. The 1982 Miss North Carolina/USA Pageant will be held March 5, 6 & 7th in Winston-Salem with the contestants the guests of the Downtown Ramada Inn. To qualify, applicants must be between 17 & 25, single, never married or been a parent. No talent competition required. FREE ENTRY INFORMATION CAN BE OBTAINED AT FOOD WORLD STORES or send a recent snapshot, name, address and telephone number to:

MISS NORTH CAROLINA/USA
c/o TEL-AIR INTERESTS, INC.
1755 N.E. 149th STREET
MIAMI, FL 33181 (305) 944-3268

PUB^{NCW} DANCE COMMITTEE PRESENTS THE

1982 Homecoming Dance
Friday night in the park

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 9PM - 1AM
HANOVER HALL ~ SEMI FORMAL ENTERTAINMENT BY:
AMERICAN DREAM DISCO

TICKETS $4. A COUPLE,
ADVANCE SALE
STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE
ROOM 101 PUB

PRESENTED BY:

PUB^{NCW}

Art Council gains new building

The Arts Council of the Lower Cape Fear, Inc. has cause for celebration! We have found a new home in the historic St.

Thomas Church building on Dock Street. The Arts Council is working closely with the Historic St. Thomas Preservation Society, preparing plans for the complete restoration and adaptation on the c. 1845 structure into a performing arts center and Arts Council complex.

For the Arts Council, currently operating out of two small offices, the move to St. Thomas will allow improved and expanded services to the community. For the Historic St. Thomas Preservation Society, the move means that the church building will be preserved and once again serve a useful purpose.

Complete restoration and adaptation of the church is a big undertaking and we are enthusiastically committed to achieving it. To publicize our future move and to help raise needed funds, the Arts Council is bringing first class visual and performing arts to the area.

The Arts Council is proud to present the first annual "St. Thomas Celebration of the Arts," nine days of fine arts events in historic downtown Wilmington.

Hardee's

OPEN 24
HOURS

A BIG BREAK FOR ALL NIGHT CRAMMERS AND MIDNIGHT RAMBLERS
The Hardee's at 429 S. College Rd. is now open 24 hours a day!

Whether you're burning the midnight oil, or burning the candle at both ends, you'll always find a hot meal waiting for you at Hardee's. So the next time you're up with the owls, ramble over to Hardee's and bring along this MIDNIGHT SPECIAL!

BUY ONE SAUSAGE BISCUIT, GET ONE FREE!

Please present this coupon before ordering. One coupon per customer, per visit, please. This offer not good in combination with any other offers. Offer good from 11 p.m. until 6 a.m. through March 31, 1982, only at the Hardee's restaurant located at 429 S. College Rd. in Wilmington, N.C.

Hardee's

PINEWOOD
NEW APARTMENT
COMMUNITY
AT RANDALL DRIVE
[Across from UNCW off Hwy 132]

One Bedroom $230
Two Bedroom $285
6 months or 1 year lease
Apply at Pinewood
4901 Randall Dr.
Phone 799-2911
Phillips Management Group

UNCW

concert committee

Last Semester They Brought

The Atlanta Rhythm Section

The Johnny Van Zandt Band

Mike Cross

The Charlie Daniels Band

The Chuck Level Trio
Needed!

Stage Crew
Hospitality Crew
Ushers

Meeting Every Wednesday

Night at 8:30

In the Pub

Sports

O'Leary sets record as swimmers beat S.C. State, Richmond

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

The UNCW swim team posted back-to-back dual meet victories here on Friday and Saturday, by outswimming South Carolina State, 67-46, and University of Richmond, 75-37.

Senior Sam O'Leary set a new school record in the 100-yd. freestyle, clocking :47.36, in the Richmond meet, and was one of the meet's double winners, also taking the 50-yd. freestyle event.

Other dual winners included junior Rusty Lambe in the 200-yd. freestyle and backstroke, freshman Jeff Siggins in the 500-yd. and 1000-yd. freestyle, and freshman Colin Kueny in the 200-yd. I.M. and breaststroke events. Wilmington's ever powerful 400-yd. medley relay team also won, in both meets.

In Friday's SC State meet, the Seahawks also won the 400-yd. freestyle relay. The meet's double winners included senior Gregg Williams in the 1000-yd. freestyle, and the 100-yd. butterfly, and sophomore Chris Moore in the 200-yd. and 500-yd. freestyle events.

This weekend's wins have boosted UNCW's record considerably, and coach Dave Allen is already looking forward to the Seahawk Invitational, which will be held on Feb. 18, 19, and 20. The meet will feature 11 men's teams and 8 women's, including such teams as the University of Tampa, Richmond, and Furman.

"No one team has the inside track," said coach Allen. "This meet is the Eastern qualifier, and should feature some of the fastest times this year."

With no team having the clear advantage, the three-day event should be exciting and fast-paced.

The Seahawk men's and women's teams will conclude their regular dual meet competition at Old Dominion this Saturday, and will spend next week tapering and shaving for the post-season competition.

Seniors Sam O'Leary and Mike Malone said they were "depressed that it's coming to an end" for them.

Malone, who has been competing for 8 years, says "It was a long season, but we swam well against a tough schedule of (potentially) better caliber teams."

O'Leary is hoping to qualify for nationals competition, and says he will continue to swim after graduation.

#33, Carlos Kelly Stuffs the ball in to lead UNCW.

#42, Sharon McMillan in action.

Lady 'Hawks beat Baptist

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

Third season coach Marilyn Christoph has something to be proud of. Her Lad Seahawk basketball team has upped its standing to 12-8 for the season, with 6 games remaining.

Bouncing back from a disappointing loss to Campbell, the women rallied Saturday night to top Baptist College, 71-52, at Trask Coliseum.

UNCW led throughout the game, but didn't gain a large spread over Baptist until well in to the second half.

UNCW led throughout the game, but didn't gain a large spread over Baptist until well in to the second half.

Saturday's top scorers for the Seahawks were sophomore guard Jill Amos, with 18 points,

David Newbern
Sports Writer

Saturday night's game looked as if it might be another loss for the Seahawk basketball team.

But with superior coaching, coupled with dogged determination, the Seahawks flew back to overcome Campbell by a score of 69-63.

Coach Mel Gibson stated "We were fortunate to win. Being in the hole for the first half by a ten point deficit didn't worry me much."

Jump rope for heart

Jump rope for the Heart, March 1 from 2-5 p.m. Faculty and students may participate. For further information, contact Dr. Hollifield in the PE Dept.

'Hawks narrowly top Campbell

Gibson's confidence showed as the Seahawks roared back, with #25, sophomore Shawn Williams leading in scoring with 20 points.

Leading rebounders for the game were #33, sophomore Carlos Kelly; #11, senior Ed Timmons and #31, Randy McMillan, also a senior.

This win over Campbell brings the Seahawks' record to 11-10. UNCW had just played Campbell a week ago in Raleigh. The game was a heartbreaker for the Seahawks, who lost in overtime with a final score of 53-54.

Because of this, coach Mel Gibson called Saturday's game "a tremendous comeback for the Seahawks."

During UNCW's 21-game campaign, #41, senior Leon Nickelson has led the team with 32 blocked shots, Carlos Kelly has had 122 rebounds and Shawn Williams has scored 334 points.

Be sure to catch the 'Hawks at home as they take on the tough pirates of East Carolina on Saturday.

REMAINING BASKETBALL SCHEDULES

Men's

February
13 EAST CAROLINA
18 at Wise-Green Bay
20 at Northern Iowa
22 ILL. CHICAGO CIRCLE
27 BAPTIST

All home games begin at 7:30 p.m., except Baptist, 2 p.m.

Women's

February
12 at Gardner-Webb
13 at Mars Hill
15 at Coastal Carolina
18 at UNC Charlotte
21 DUKE 3 p.m.
24-27 State Tournament

Intramural standings

BASKETBALL

Gold League	W-L-GB
Blue Deamons	5-0
Bongers	4-1-1 1/2
E. S. P. N.	3-3-1 1/2
Midgits	3-2-1
Bucks	0-4-3 1/2
Laidbucks	1-4-3
Rebels	1-4-3
high team score	Bongers

This week's standings are incomplete because the Gold League results were the only ones available.

Notes...

The Intramural water polo team is now organizing. Deadline for sign-up is Feb. 15 in the intramural office, with a water polo manager's meeting at 4:30 on Feb. 17. . . Badminton team signups start Thurs. Feb. 11 in the intramural office. . . Table tennis sign up ends Feb. 16. . . the deadline for intramural floor hockey sign up is on Fri., Feb. 12, with a floor hockey manager's meeting on Mon. Feb. 15 at 4:30.

State Supreme Court overturns libel verdict against reviewer

The West Virginia State Supreme Court recently overturned a libel verdict against a student newspaper staff writer who had criticized a restaurant in a review.

In a unanimous decision, the court ruled that the reporter hadn't acted with malice and that her remarks were protected by fair comment. The court's decision also noted that "reasonable latitude in humor and style is accorded newspaper reporters in writing reviews of restaurants."

The ruling came in an eight-year-old libel suit against Mary Hendricks, then a staff writer of the West Virginia U. Daily Athenaeum. In a tongue-in-cheek guide to Morgantown restaurants, Hendricks said patrons of the Havalunch eatery should "bring a can of Raid" along, and warned they would "regret everything you eat here, especially the BLT's." Hendricks says that on her lone visit to the restaurant she was served a sandwich of poor quality and saw a cockroach. The owner of Havalunch, which is no longer in operation in Morgantown, filed suit against Hendricks in 1973. The Monongalia County Court originally awarded Havalunch $15,000 in punitive damages. Hendricks, who now works for a weekly newspaper in Weston, W. Va., said she was relieved by the verdict. "Now that I'm clear I feel a lot better about my writing," she says.

St. Thomas Celebration of the Arts

A special production of EQUUS
directed by Donn Ansell

February
22 • 23 • 24
8:30 p.m.

Tickets available at St. Thomas
Celebration Central Box Office,
215 S. Front St., 10 a.m. to 6
p.m., Mon. - Sat.
Reservations: 763-4527.
$4.00/adults
$3.00/students & groups

Community Arts Center

co-sponsored by Chandelers
Wharf and the Star News

THE INDIAN WANTS THE BRONX

directed by
Chester A. Spier

The UNCW Program Board
Fine Arts Committee Presents

"FOR COLORED GIRLS WHO HAVE CONSIDERED SUICIDE
WHEN THE RAINBOW IS ENUF"

Tuesday, February 16
Kenan Auditorium-8 P.M.

$4.00 Public $1.00 UNCW Students

Ticket Outlets: UNCW Bookstore, Kenan Box Office, School Kid's Records, Bell's, The Bookery, Issac's Men's Store and Friendly's Department Store.
For Reservations Call 791-9695. 2 P.M.-5 P.M.

University Program Board's

"Save The Goodwood Concert"
Thursday,
February 11, 8:30 pm

with: Steve Morrison &
Paul Roethlinger

(Easy Listening Rock)

and guest: Johnny Sneed &
Reed Whitesell

(Traditional & Contemporary Blues)

Support The Reproduction Of The Goodwood
Tavern's Atmosphere In The New Union Building.

No admission charges - Bring your own celebration!

CREATIVE ARTS MAJORS

Earn extra money FREELANCING your talent and know how . . .

No previous experience in the commercial field required . . .

This is YOUR chance to learn, grow and earn extra dollars.

It cost you nothing to join!

- Art majors interested in doing commercial art [brochures, logos, etc.] . . .
- Speech/Communications majors interested in writing radio-television copy and more . . .
- Music majors interested in composing or preforming radio-TV jingles . . .
- Drama majors interested in performing in radio-TV commercials . . .

FILL OUT THE FOLLOWING AND MAIL TO:

TALENT-for-HIRE
p.o. box 4025
Wilmington, NC
28406

Name _____

Address [local] _____

phone _____ class _____

grad date _____ major _____

A TFH representative will call you.
This ad will run two weeks only!

Campus Calendar

Renter Wanted

Want to rent one bedroom and bath to responsible female student, Crestwood (about 2 miles from UNCW), $25 weekly, 799-0922.

Non-traditionals to meet February 22

Non-traditional students will meet at 7 pm Feb. 22 in the assembly room of the Student Activities Building.
All Non-traditional students are urged to attend one or both of these meetings in order to provide input and support for the current programs being undertaken by the organization.

'Save the Goodwood' concert Feb. 11

Having a good time this week? Did you check out the Homecoming parade and bonfire - "SINK THEM PIRATES!" Or how about the Monty Python movie... "what a riot!" Well, to keep the good times rolling the Coffeehouse Committee of the University Program Board present's "Save the Goodwood Concert!" It will be a double header, mini-concert TONIGHT!, Feb. 11 at 8:30 pm in the Student Union.

The objective of this concert is to show our support to have the Goodwood Tavern's laid back atmosphere reproduced in the new Student Union, which is planned to open Spring of 1983. Over the past years, the Goodwood's intimate, secluded atmosphere was the location of many memorable nights of musical entertainment, comedy, and drama. Also it's been our escape from the hum drum classroom atmosphere of the university for a break and something to eat during the busy weeks within it's warm, barnwood walls.

To support our efforts, we will be having encore presentations by past Goodwood artists. Join us to welcome back Johnny Sneed and Reed Whitesell with their quality blues style music. And as our headliners the duo of Steve Morrison and Paul Roethlinger with their easy listening rock tunes.

This is Reed and Johnny's second appearance in the Coffeehouse series, having made their debut to a packed house a year ago. Johnny plays electronic guitar and Reed plays guitar and harmonica performing traditional and contemporary blues, with a rockin good time feeling. It's music that's guaranteed to get your feet clapping and your hands stomping!!!

Steve Morrison was formally with the group "Creekwood" which featured Jerry Powell and Paul Roethlinger. Paul left Wilmington, moving to Atlanta and joined the group "Choice". Paul toured and recorded with "Choice" eventually leaving the group not long after their appearance at last year's Seaside Jam.

After "Creekwood" disbanded, Steve and Jerry began rehearsing as a duo and emerged in the local club circuit as the ever popular Morrison and Powell. After several years as a duo, Steve and Jerry parted ways. It was at this time that Paul moved back to the Wilmington area and reteamd with Steve to form Morrison and Roethlinger. They're everything you'd expect.

So come support your Goodwood Tavern and enjoy another terrific evening of FREE musical entertainment brought to you by the Program Board's Coffeehouse Committee. Bring your favorite beverage, come about 8:30 PM on the 11th of February and SUPPORT THE SAVE THE GOODWOOD'S TAVERN ATMOSPHERE!!!! See you there cause this is an evening you won't want to miss!!!!

Advertise with The Seahawk

Reach out to over 6,000

Classified

All students, faculty, and on-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.

Lost and Found

LOST

Men's Gold wedding band with black indentions.
Red, white and blue wallet.

FOUND

Pair of contact lenses.
Check with Chryl Ferguson, Rm. 101 in the Pub.

Services

Typist Available

Betty Ames

799-2578

IBM Executive Typewriter

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

Lost - gold bracelet, has sentimental value. Please call Beth, 392-7632 - Reward offered.

The University Program Board

Special Events and PFM

presents an

Indoor Picnic

with

WHERE: Hanover Hall

WHEN: Feb. 13th (Sat.)

TIME: 4:30 - 6:30

Meal Tickets Accepted
All Others $2.50

OFFERS A 20%
DISCOUNT TO
UNCW STUDENTS
ON LUNCHES

Hours

11:30 - 3:00

5:00 - 10:00

Happy Hour Every Saturday

Join the Fun at Zack's with Delta Zeta

CRAZY ZACK'S

302 S. COLLEGE RD.

Happy Hour Every Day

5 - 7 [Special Prices]

Every Friday 3 - 7

Tuesday Night

Zoo Night 7 - 10

Thursday Night

Ladies Lock up 7 - 9

THE BEER BOX

We ice them down free

A one Stop Beverage
Shop

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

Miller times

starring
Miller High Life®

"Gee,
it must be great to be in a fraternity?"

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 16

February 19, 1982

Twelve pages

Homecoming Queen

Homecoming Queen Tamara Jones [seated] was crowned Friday night at the Homecoming Dance in Hanover Hall Gymnasium. The theme of the dance was 'Friday Night in the Park.' Vanessa Hill was first runner-up and Beverly Hamilton [pictured] was second. The event was sponsored by the University Program Board. The Seahawks gave ECU's Pirates a run for their money at the Homecoming Game Saturday night with a final score of 68-66. Related story, p.6.

UPB places 7th

Seventh ranked in the country, that's what the UNCW Programming Team placed in the National Scholastic Programming Contest sponsored by the American Association for Computing Machinery (ACM). The nationwide contest was held last week in Indianapolis, IN, teams from all over the nation competed in regional competition to become eligible to attend this contest.

This is the first time UNCW has ever participated in this contest and UNCW was one of two teams in the Southeast Region selected to attend. The programming team consisted of Robert H. Ford, Thomas D.

Newton, Charles R. Grissom, and Dan M. Kempton. Advisors on the trip were Dr. Nelson and Dr. Norris.

Seven computer-based problems were assigned to each team. The teams were then given 6 hours in which to attempt to solve the problems using a computer. Penalties were given for each error in the team's solution. Out of the seven problems assigned the UNCW team completed one successfully.

This exposure for the university was funded partially by the SGA and the university. The number one ranked team was Baylor of Texas.

Part of cafeteria roof collapses

"Chaos" is how Nadine Fixler, Director of Food Services, described the situation when part of the upstairs ceiling collapsed at the cafeteria last Tuesday afternoon during heavy rain.

The roof, which has been plagued with leaks since July of 1981 when the problem was noticed, was undergoing repairs at the time.

Because food must be served, the contractors are only allowed to tear up what roofing gets fixed in one day. Workers had gambled against 40% chance of rain, decided to work, and open up a section of roof down to the metal.

Heavy rains came earlier than expected, the rood was caught exposed and it was actually raining inside the cafeteria. Ceiling tiles which had already been repeatedly soaked gave away and crashed to the floor in the serving-line area.

No one was injured, and the only damage was to the ceiling tiles. The cost of replacement was $100.

The E.L. Scott Roofing Company is handling repairs at a cost of $65,000. It is scheduled for completion in April.

The new roof, which has never been used, was designed by architects to be sloped to prevent water from pooling.

Student Legislature meets

by Tricia Wallace
Editor

The Student Legislature opened their weekly Thursday meeting Feb. 11 with one minute speeches by Shirley Mayfield, Pete Divoky, Mike Stroud, Ed Paul, and George Ward.

Senator Divoky informed the senate of the court's decision on his and Senator Bremer's arrests. The charges against Senator Bremer were dismissed and Senator Divoky was given deferred prosecution. Deferred prosecution means that at the end of a year's probation, Senator Divoky's record will be cleared of all charges.

In his speech, Divoky said that "The Seahawk took it upon themselves to do something which really appalled me." He then referred to the article on the front page of last week's newspaper that stated "Senator Stroud said that Divoky and Bremer should be congratulated for the incident, to which the senate and SGA officers gave a hearty round of applause."

"All of you know that's not what Mr. Stroud said," Divoky stated. "I'm sure all of you know what that does to this body in the eyes of the administration and of the students who are not aware of what's going on. So I spent the afternoon, besides storming around and ranting and raving, I wrote a resolution asking for clarification from The Seahawk."

Senator Stroud, in his speech, said, "I did congratulate them.

I congratulated the style in which they handled themselves throughout the incident and the distinction should be made."

Old business was taken care of and under new business a motion was made by Senator Nancy Kelker that "in accordance with the SGA Constitution Article V, Section 3-K (4 & 5) that the Senate begin impeachment proceedings against Kevin Sills, SGA Attorney General for 1) Serious violation of University policy, 2) Violation of the Honor Code and 3) Behavior unbecoming the dignity of the office."

This was debated and previous question called. The motion passed with eight for, seven

See LEGISLATURE p. 8

Rape Prevention

Workshops to be held

A series of 12 Rape Prevention & Assistance Workshops will be presented this semester. These programs are open to all students, faculty and staff of the university community and will be offered in the residence halls, the Goodwood Tavern and nearby apartment complexes.

Developed through the cooperative efforts of the SGA Crime Watch Committee, Campus Police, the Dean of Students Office, and the Wilmington Rape Task Force, these informal one hour workshops investigate the circumstances of rape, prevention measures, and assistance for rape victims.

Workshops are scheduled to be held at the following times: Feb. 23, 7 pm, Galloway (2nd and 5th Floor); Feb. 24, 7 pm, Galloway (1st and 4th Floor); March 2, 7 pm, Galloway (3rd and 6th Floor); March 16, 7 pm, Goodwood Tavern (University Apts.); March 22, 7 pm, College Manor; March 24, 7 pm, University Arms; March 29, 2:30 pm, Goodwood Tavern (University Apts.); March 30, 7 pm, Goodwood Tavern (Open Univ. Program); April 5, 7 pm, Country Club Apts.

Letters

SGA Senator criticizes 'Seahawk'

To the editor:

I have definite problems with the article entitled "SGA discusses drug raid, finances" in the February 11 edition of "The Seahawk". This problem stems from the fact that this article contains a fallacious interpretation of a speech delivered by me to the UNCW Student Senate on February 4, 1982.

My address may have simply been entitled, "Guts and Gumption of the UNCW Four", for it is in this speech that I note the mature and courageous manner in which four of our students, two of whom are senators, faced ridicule and ostracization in their attempts to apologize before that body and their connection with a recent drug raid at Wrightsville Beach. I congratulated them on the style in which handled themselves throughout the incident. I in no way "congratulated them for the incident" as your paper states.

This type of journalism - that of misinterpretation and half-truths - only lends credence to my recent observations that you cannot believe everything you read in "The Seahawk". If this lack of professionalism continues to flourish in this "publication" then it would be my fondest hope to never again be quoted by this "newspaper".

My warmest wishes for a speedy recovery from the coma that you have been in for the past academic year.

Mike Stroud
Senator - SGA

Columnist accused of 'suspect journalism'

To the editor:

In response to the new salient Seahawk writer Sankey Blanton's article in last week's student paper I question what his motive was behind his suspect journalism. According to "Webster's New World Dictionary," to usurp is "To take or assume by force without right." Mr. Blanton so far has usurped his right as a writer for our Seahawk. In my four years here at the University I never seen so much twisted writing. Mr. Blanton's yellow journalism excesses each time he picks up his pen and begins judging morals and values of students and faculty on this campus. In one article Mr. Blanton questioned the health of a person he did not even know, had never met, our past SGA President. This week he attempted to moralize another student's integrity, our attorney general. In another article, Mr. Blanton wrote about how our faculty has mistreated the non-traditional students.

It is the job of a newspaper to go out and relate factual information to the students. The Seahawk incorrectly reported last Thursday's SGA meeting. They should check the facts first before reporting. What went on at the last SGA meeting was totally misconstrued by the reporter. It took a real man of courage to get up in front of a group to say that he made a big mistake, a mistake which could jeopardize his future. He was applauded for the courage it took to be able to stand up in front of the SGA and admit his mistakes, not for the incident itself. I question the integrity of the reporter and of The Seahawk for they did not even print the reporter's name.

It is time for more irradant articles in our Seahawk. Students are tired of the below-the-belt personal attacks by our student newspaper on students, faculty, and student representatives.

Steve E. Griffin

Student complains of

'yellow journalism'

To the Editor,

I would like to take this time to voice my disapproval at the recent mishandling of the publicity surrounding a recent University Court hearing of a student on this campus. The whole idea of holding a closed hearing is to protect various persons from being personally hurt or to prevent the publicity from being misconstrued, exaggerated, or totally blown out of proportion. It would seem that whatever the outcome of a case, the University Court officials or the Dean of Students office would make the statement concerning this outcome. I would also have to criticize the Dean of Students office for not conducting an investigation and taking action against the individuals who have leaked information that was to be held in strictest confidence of the court.

It has been stated, by the SGA President, that the prosecution for the university court was one person who violated the confidentiality of the court-conduct unbecoming that of an SGA representative - then there is no alternative than to ask for this person's resignation.

In this day and age of honor codes, ethics, and yellow journalism, etc., how can students be asked to uphold an honor code, while the University itself violates or sanctions the leaking of confidential matters?

How can future students feel that their confidential matters will not be made public if they choose to use the University Court?

I would also like to say that I am not afraid to stand by Mr. Kevin Sills, the SGA Attorney General, and count him as one of my best friends, as well as a good Attorney General.

Recent "yellow journalism" about Mr. Sill's integrity leaves me to question the style of reporting that our student newspaper sanctions itself, since the views of the staff represent the views of the paper, and considering that certain information that I have read lately has either not been followed up or it has been reported incorrectly, just who is the paper serving?

Charles B. Parsons

See LETTERS p. 4

Notice

Editor's note: An article on page one in last week's Seahawk entitled "SGA discusses drug raid, finances" read "Senator Stroud said that Divoky and Bremer should be congratulated for the incident, to which the senate and SGA officers gave a hearty round of applause." It should have read "Senator Stroud said that Divoky and Bremer should be congratulated for the way they handled the incident, to which the senate and SGA officers gave a hearty round of applause."

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood, Campus Minister

Changing our Lifestyles - a risky journey

How tightly we cling to our way of life. In this time of economic stress, rising energy costs and increasing instability in foreign relations, there is a tendency to cling ever more tightly to the lifestyle we have decided we have to have to feel secure.

We, with our overfed bodies and clothes for all seasons, have become so dependent on the trappings of an affluent American life that any change in our economic status, or probable future change, strikes fear into our hearts. In the words of Gordon Cosby, "The assumption is often made that God cannot look after me unless society is organized in its present form, with its special advantages for my nation, my business group, my income group. So we Christians hold on with a death grip to the present way of ordering society." We hold on with increasing nuclear weapons and increasing intervention in nations which, we are told, are important to our well being.

Perhaps it is time to consider where our true security lies. The question I ask myself as well as you is "What is the rock bottom source of our well being?" I would hazard an opinion, nay, a belief that contrary to all I have been taught and deeply feel about economic and political and military security being the real source of my well being; they are not. They are, in fact, idols, false gods that promise much and deliver only stress, insecurity and fear; the very things we use them to avoid. The lifestyle to which we cling is not a secure route to a dependable sense of well being.

Well being and the deeper security it engenders comes from other sources; but for the moment my desire is to point out the fallacy of clinging for dear life to a lifestyle that cannot deliver the kind of security it promises. It is time to let go of some of our illusions of security through affluence and set out, like our pioneer forefathers, to create new visions for a new reality to be found in values other than status, power, wealth and success. The journey is risky, for it means letting go of some important props, but I believe the potential gain is worth the risk.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Chvri Kane

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Guidelines for letters

The Seahawk welcomes letters from its readers. Please note the following guidelines:

1. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, and no more than 250 words. The Seahawk reserves the right to withhold any letter that is single-spaced, handwritten or more than 250 words.
2. All letters must include signature, date, phone, and social security number. If you need to withhold your name for an appropriate reason, please see the editor.
3. The Seahawk also reserves the right to withhold any letter deemed obscene, vulgar or libelous.
4. The Seahawk edits for spelling and grammatical errors, but other than that, letters are unchanged.
5. The Seahawk cannot guarantee date of publication of letters submitted. The Seahawk also cannot return submitted letters.

Chamber singers hold concert

The UNCW Chamber Singers, under the direction of Dr. Joe Hickman, will present a concert at 3 pm Feb. 28 in Kenan Auditorium. Admission for adults is $3, students - $1.50 and UNCW students with a valid ID will be admitted free.

The program will feature the performance of the oratorio "Jephthe" by Giacomo Carissimi. The title role (the Old Testament biblical warrior) will be sung by voice major Brine

Barbour. Jephthe's daughter will be sung by art major Kim Weeks.

Other works on the program include selected part-songs by Schubert, Debussy and Ravel.

"Jephthe" will be accompanied by Harpsichord (Dr. Sherrill Martin) and cello (Greg Zack). The Schubert part-songs will be accompanied by piano (Jane Mathew), and the Debussy and Ravel selections are to be unaccompanied.

The Chamber Singers is a group of 22 vocalists from the Concert Choir, who meet as a separate group to prepare and perform chamber music for chorus. Eleven of the members are music majors, and the remainder are from all areas of the University. Accompanists Jane Mathew and Sherrill Martin are members of the music faculty, as is Joe Hickman. Greg Zack is a student in the School of Business.

Foreign exchange comes to UNCW

As early as next year, UNCW may have a foreign exchange program available to qualified students.

This spring, a NAFSA (National Association of Foreign Student Affairs) consultant will come to study and advise the administration on foreign student affairs.

Topics to be discussed by the representative involving foreign student affairs range from creating a foreign student advisor to building more on-campus housing to fulfill the future increase in international student enrollment.

In preparation for the arrival of the consultant, the school's administration has been asked by the NAFSA to send memos to each administrator who is to meet with the advisor. These memos will simply describe the background and intentions of the consultant.

To prepare the consultant for his arrival at the school, the administration is sending catalogs, brochures and handbooks concerning foreign student affairs, activities and future international student enrollments.

At this particular time, the school has 10 foreign students. Such countries as Canada, Spain, Peru, Norway, Japan, and Kuwait are represented by these students.

The school also has in mind a possible English language course designed especially for foreign students.

Psychology Honor Society

Psi Chi is the National Honor Society in Psychology and was founded in 1929 for the purpose of encouraging, stimulating, and maintaining scholarship in, and advancing the science of, psychology. Psi Chi is an affiliate of the American Psychological Association and a member of the Association of College Honor Societies.

Psi Chi functions as a federation of chapters located on 480 senior college and university campuses. The total number of memberships preserved at the national office during the first 50 years is 113,596.

Membership in Psi Chi at UNCW is open to students who meet the following requirements: Have a major or minor in Psychology and at least a sophomore, completion of eight semester hours of psychology, or six semester hours and registration for at least two semester hours of psychology in addition, have a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of at least 3.0 and a GPA in all psychology courses taken at least a 3.0. Three-fourths affirmative vote of those members present at a regular meeting of the chapter, have high standards of personal behavior.

The benefits of membership in Psi Chi are many. The intrinsic value of membership is rewarding not only to the achiever but to others and to the field of psychology. The achievement and recognition of excellence leads to self-fulfillment and thus to self-realization. By recognizing what you do does make a difference, you are stimulated to higher productivity. Accomplishments are enjoyed more through sharing. Furthermore, the contacts made through Psi Chi will be valuable throughout your educational and professional careers.

The concrete advantages of membership include: the documents - a membership certificate and card which give tangible evidence of membership, the references provided throughout one's lifetime, the experience gained by working with Psi Chi is excellent for building up a resume; it is difficult to attain that first managerial and creative experience, Psi Chi is a springboard

See PSI CHI p. 8

Night classes held

Night classes are being reconstructed for the 1982-83 academic year to improve teaching effectiveness and eliminate the monotony of three hour classes.

According to Dr. David K. Miller, Assistant to the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, "this policy was made from a positive standpoint with the classroom environment and the teaching situation in consideration."

In the best interest of students, night classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 - 7:45 or from 8 - 9:15. This change will allow teachers to see students more than once a week, will enable students to take night classes back to back, and will improve the teaching environment.

There are exceptions to the rule. Labs and a limited number of courses will remain on the three hour schedule. Also any courses taken in affiliation with other universities will remain on their assigned schedules.

Drama department announces shows

The UNCW Creative Arts Department, Division of Drama, will present the University Theatre's production of two one-act plays, "Birdbath" and "The Dirty Old Man," at 8 pm Feb. 17-21 in the SRO Theatre in Kenan Hall.

"Birdbath" is a compelling boy-meets-girl love story. The two people meet one night in a restaurant. Kathy McLain and Larry Matthews portray the young girl and boy respectively.

She is a waitress, he is a struggling young poet. The attraction is mutual and they decide to go to his apartment. The playwright, Leonard Melfi, takes this seemingly innocent romantic comedy and slowly twists it into a chilling climax.

"The Dirty Old Man" is a beautifully haunting play about an old played by Lewis Bosworth who wanders alone on the deserted coast summing up his life in a journal. Chance brings him into contact with teenage girl, portrayed by Audrey Tolar, searching for some meaning in her life as the play builds in poetic and dramatic intensity. Mark Simms plays Chuck, the young man in this production. This playwright, Lewis John Carlino, is also a well-known writer-producer-director whose most recent endeavor was the acclaimed film "The Great Santini."

Dr. Terry Theodore, professor of drama at UNCW, is the director of the entire production. Stephanie Young is the scenic and lighting designer and the costumes are designed by Anne Fitzgibbon and Cathy Blackmon is the furniture and property mistress. The lighting crew is Dierdra Brewster and Anne Hall, and the sound coordinator is Mark Simms. Lisa Bosworth is the stage manager.

Both plays have been highly acclaimed in New York and represent American playwrighting at its finest. According to Director Dr. Terry Theodore "Birdbath" and "The Dirty Old Man" are beautifully realized works which offer audiences an exciting and unusual evening of entertainment."

For a captivating evening of theatre by fine American playwrights, don't miss "Birdbath" and "The Dirty Old Man," Feb. 17-21. Reservations may be made by calling 791-4330, ext. 2440, Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 pm. Admission is $3, UNCW faculty - $2 and UNCW students with ID cards - $1.

Special events programs are offered to UNCW students

by John McLean
Journalism contributor

UNCW will offer a variety of special programs designed to appeal to regular students, non-traditional students, families, senior citizens, youth, and professionals this summer. These special programs will be available along with the classes offered in the two summer sessions.

The Office of Special Programs has offered a partial list and description of these programs. Included in these are: Vacation College, a first at UNCW, is a week long, family oriented residential and/or commuter experience. It involves both learning and recreational activities. Participants will be adults ages 18 and older and children ages 6 and up. Housing will be provided on campus and meals will be served in the campus cafeteria. Adults will be involved in recreational and instructional activities but there will be free time available.

Another program to be offered this summer will be Elderhostel. This is designed for persons over 60 who want to experience new things and are willing to put aside the luxuries of formal hotel accommodations. There will be 15 different courses to choose from and the program will be offered six different weeks. Inspired by youth hostels and folk schools of Europe, Elderhostel has expanded from five campuses in New Hampshire in 1975 to over 370 colleges and universities in all 50 states and a few foreign countries.

A third special program offered will be available for youth.

These include recreational and personal enrichment programs, which consist of a schedule comprising of several athletic camps. These include soccer, basketball, swimming, gymnastics, and others. There will also be cheerleader camps and educationally-directed activities. Included in these are language and art experiences.

Several professional development programs will be offered. With these development programs will be courses, workshops, and/or training conferences. These are directed toward individual professional enrichment. If proven to be beneficial other professional organizations may be incorporated for personal development.

Information for all these special programs can be obtained by contacting the Office of Special Events Programs, UNC-W, P.O. Box 3725, Wilmington, NC 28406. Along with this address include the name of the program or programs that you are interested in - Vacation College, Elderhostel, Youth Activities, or Professional Development.

UNCW only university system that controls campus club funds

by Sankey Blanton
Journalism Contributor

The UNCW Student Government Association is the only student organization within the 16 university system which controls funds for campus clubs. SGA President Steven Schmidt said, "As students we are fortunate to control student (program) fees and learn what it is like to be financially responsible." According to Schmidt, all other UNC universities have a governing council established by and staffed with administration officials.

The proposed SGA budget for this academic year was $102,761 which represents $14 per student, per semester, from the student tuition fee. The actual amount received from the second summer session and the 1981 fall semester was $1676 and $63,022. Approximately $51,500 is expected from the 1982 spring semester fees, but as yet has not been transferred by administration Accounting Dept. Technically, the SGA is operating in-the-red.

The budget is balanced only once each year. Unspent SGA money is returned to a general fund account. "On June 30, everything is closed out," said Susan Goodrum, the SGA Office Manager. "The general fund, which is kept with the Accounting Dept., has never been insolvent."

The total allocation for student clubs was $80,921 as of Feb. 1. Additionally, $20,425 is earmarked for SGA matters and the Veteran Affairs Office. At present, $7,000 of previously approved funds has been frozen. Until the spring semester fees are transferred, the SGA is $45,000 short.

"There is no SGA budget guideline or planned budget," Goodrum said. "But clubs have to present a budget when they request funding." State regulations require clubs receiving SGA money to get all their funds from the SGA or membership dues. Other aspects of club organizations are found in the SGA Bylaws.

For student clubs to receive SGA support it must have four elected officials, an approved constitution, be open to all, and collect dues. Club organizations seeking funds must present their budget to the SGA Finance Committee for approval.

The University Program Board, considered a club for accounting purposes, draws the largest budget, over $38,000. The Communications Club represents the other end of the spectrum with an approved budget of $70. There are 20 funded clubs on campus.

The following budgets were approved for the 1981-82 year by the SGA: University Program Board - $38,054, The Seahawk - $9,061, Forensics Club - $7,800, Fledgling - $7,075, Black Student Union - $5,180, Football Club - $4,241, Atlantis - $3,300, Concert Choir - 3,000, Math and Computer Science - $2,170, Women's Soccer Club - $1,800, Video Network - $1,700, Ten Pin Club - $1,000, Reader's Theatre - $900, Racquetball Club - $830, Historical Society - $700, Sailing Club - $600, Psychology Club - $605, Forum magazine - $400, Astronomy Club - $235, Communications Club - $70.

LETTERS from p. 2

Phi Beta Lambda

responds to letter

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the letter from Barbara J. Grob, the Atlantis Editor, regarding her displeasure over the Atlantis not receiving SGA funds for its spring issue. As a reader of the Atlantis, I too regret the decision. However, her displeasure (or anger) does not justify the comments in the letter regarding Phi Beta Lambda.

Phi Beta Lambda is not a campus fraternity, nor is it "an elitist organization." It is a nationally recognized business club which is organized to develop leadership qualities in its members and to facilitate the transition between academic and professional life. Membership in our organization is open to any student enrolled in UNCW who is interested in pursuing business-related careers; this includes those majoring in fine arts and social studies as well as business. The Seahawk has run articles encouraging students to join this professional organization.

Throughout the fall semester, we have been in touch with members of the finance committee, discussing the possibility of receiving funds to attend the 1982 State Leadership Conference in Charlotte. We then worked to meet the requirements necessary to be funded by the SGA for this project. We regret that, by coincidence, our request was made on the same day as that of the Atlantis. Had it been at a prior meeting, PBL would have avoided being the target of Ms. Grob's rage and insinuations.

Phi Beta Lambda feels justified in its request for SGA funds. Our justifications were included in our request to the senate. I will not go into them here but they are on file in the SGA office for anyone who is interested. Had Ms. Grob made an effort to read our request, perhaps she would not have been "wondering" how many students our funds will benefit.

As president of Phi Beta Lambda, I resent Ms. Grob's remarks. They were totally unfounded and uncalled for. They also lacked the professionalism mandated by her position with both the Atlantis and The Seahawk. I feel that an apology to Phi Beta Lambda is in order.

Sincerely,
Margaret Todd Smith
President, Phi Beta Lambda

Feb. 19 Fri. Alkaphonics Rock-N-Roll
Happy Hour 9-11
Bottle Beers 50 Cents

Feb. 20 Sat. Ladies & Students Free
Before 10:00
Happy Hour 8-10 Bottle
Beer 50 Cents

Feb. 21 Sun. Thrush Rock-N-Roll Happy Hour 9-11 Bottle Beer 50
Cents

Feb. 26 Fri. Brice Street

ALKA-PHONICS

The "Alkaphonics" from Greensboro, NC will be appearing Friday, February 26. The charge will be one dollar for students with student ID. They play rock-n-roll and blues.

Skip Castro Band Coming Soon

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

One happy donor of the 312 that gave blood during the UNCW blood drive. The Red Cross Bloodmobile was on campus February 10 and 11.

Schmidt responds to 'Atlantis' editor

Earlier this week I had the opportunity to read an editorial in last week's Seahawk by Barbara Grob, editor-in-chief of Atlantis. I would like to say to those concerned, your displeasure is well-voiced and understood. However, in order to be fair and equitable, I wish to express the Student Government's reasoning for their previous decision concerning the Atlantis.

The Student Government does not arbitrarily "cut and slash" budgetary requests; many factors are assessed and considered during this process such as, if an organization is asking for allocations for the first time or asking for reallocation, if an organization has a reputable record with the SGA or not, etc. At the beginning of this fiscal year, it was decided by the SGA to reduce Atlantis's funds to publish only one issue this 1981-82 academic year. The following reasons are why Atlantis funds were reduced: inability to meet publishing dates, inability to acquire confirmed set prices, inability to show any written record of expenses, and continuously asking for reallocation. Even though the current staff has not

President's Report

by Steven Schmidt, SGA President

been plagued with these same problems, they have had their share. For example, earlier this year the current staff had problems with the typesetting of the literary magazine. In turn, the Atlantis had to be retyped. This error was not only costly but time-consuming.

It was also mentioned SGA has been complaining that Atlantis is not and has not raised any revenue. Then it is questioned, how can Atlantis raise money? First, Atlantis is not an elite club and neither is any other club/organization. SGA requests all clubs/organization to raise a set amount of revenue. No club/organization, in my opinion, should be an exception. Second, Atlantis can raise funds through business donations, car washes, sponsor a donkey basketball game, etc. There is always a way to obtain revenue.

As for allocating funds to Phi Beta Lambda, a campus business organization (not a social fraternity), they are a new student organization. They do represent student interests. If we deny recognition or funds to this organization, how can we represent students? This group benefits as many students as the Football Club, Forensics, Math and Computer Science Club, Black Student Union, or any other student interest organization. This is the first request for funds by Phi Beta Lambda as opposed to the two allocations allotted to Atlantis thus far this year.

One last note, Miss Grob, the viewpoint is different on the other side of the fence. No two perceptions of a given event are necessarily the same. The truth lies most often not in the perception of an event, but in the event itself.

CREATIVE ARTS MAJORS

Earn extra money FREELANCING your talent and know how . . .

No previous experience in the commercial field required . . .

This is YOUR chance to learn, grow and earn extra dollars.

It cost you nothing to join!

- Art majors interested in doing commercial art [brochures, logos, etc.] . . .
- Speech/Communications majors interested in writing radio-television copy and more . . .
- Music majors interested in composing or performing radio-TV jingles . . .
- Drama majors interested in performing in radio-TV commercials . . .

FILL OUT THE FOLLOWING AND MAIL TO:

TALENT-for-HIRE
p.o. box 4025
Wilmington, NC
28406

Name_____

Address[local]_____

phone_____

class_____

grad date_____ major_____

A TFH representative will call you.

This ad will run two weeks only!

OFFERS A 20%
DISCOUNT TO
UNCW STUDENTS
ON LUNCHES

Hours

11:30 - 3:00

5:00 - 10:00

Happy Hour Every Saturday

Sports

Frisbee throwers aim high

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

Although Wilmington has many campus-community related organizations which have achieved recognition in the past, the campus-based frisbee team has somehow gone unnoticed.

The team, started in October, 1979, was originally a Wilmington Parks and Recreation Dept. affiliate. But once UNCW student involvement accounted for over 50% of membership, the disc men decided to move to UNCW's campus.

The 1981-82 frisbee team is comprised of 35 members, 24 of whom are UNCW students. Membership is open to both beginners and advanced throwers, male and female.

And while eight UNCW women have competed with the squad over the past two seasons, "there aren't enough girls to have a separate team," says club member Todd Leber.

Todd, or "Toad" as his friends call him, is a UNCW freshman and a philosophy major. Along with Steve Spier, the club's original organizer and current non-student advisor, Todd is hoping to get the team an official UNCW club charter. He and Steve are working hard toward this goal, and while not yet officially recognized, "they are sort of letting us co-exist," says Steve.

During the past two years, the disc men have greatly improved their game. "When the team was started, we had 2-3 players who had more than 1 or 2 styles of throw. This year, there isn't a single one who doesn't have 4 or 5 accurate throws," Steve said.

The game itself is a new one, and competition is only ten years old. It is played by two seven member teams on a 65 yard grassy field, with two 25 yard end zones. Frisbee is a non-contact sport and fouls are made by one player bumping into another. Goals are worth one point each, and are scored only when the disc is caught in the end zone. Each game is 48 minutes of stop-time play.

Out of 12 teams across the state, the discmen of Wilmington finished 3rd overall in 1980, and 2nd in 1981. This high standing qualified them for the Tri-State Championships which are held each fall.

The tri-state district includes teams from NC, SC, VA, and Washington, DC, and was hosted by NC State last fall. The discmen finished in 4th place both years that they have gone to the championships.

The team eventually hopes to qualify for national competition. In order to do this, they must first move up two spots at the tri-state level, which would qualify them for the regionals.

Last year, the discmen traveled to five events, and the first game on their 1982 calendar is only two weeks away. The event will be hosted by Duke, the only team the squad has never topped.

"If we get psyched up for it, we should give them a good game," says Todd, "and I think we can beat them," he adds with a smile.

Todd's optimism seems to reflect the entire team's attitude. The seem optimistic about obtaining an official campus club status, and about their future projects, which include doing benefit exhibitions for cancer and the handicapped, and maybe even a UNCW basketball halftime show.

Senior Kent Roberts searches the backfield for an eligible receiver.

Women win at Gardner-Webb, Mars Hill

The Lady 'Hawks powerhouse has rolled over two more opponents this week, making their 1981-82 basketball record 14-8.

During Friday night's game at Gardner-Webb, which the Seahawks won, 106-71, #23, freshman Gwen Austin led in points with 26, and #42M sophomore Sharon McMillan was second with 19 points, and six assists.

Ten out of eleven of the Lady Seahawks' squad scored, and their 62 rebounds compared with Gardner-Webb's 36 for the game.

Finishing the game with 106 points, it was the third time this year for UNCW's women to score over 100 points in one game.

On Saturday night, while UNCW men's basketball played East Carolina in the Seahawk homecoming game, the Seahawks women played at Mars Hill College, and came out on top, 91-70.

During the Mars Hill game, all five UNCW starters played into double figures, led by #11, sophomore Jill Amos, who gathered 22 points. Gwen Austin was second in scoring, accumulating 18 points and 19 rebounds for the game.

The Lady 'Hawks, who travel to UNC-Charlotte tonight, will host Duke on Sunday at 3:00. This will close out UNCW's regular season, and will be a close game, as Duke only won by one point against the Lady 'Hawks last year.

UNCW's women's basketball team was rated third among the state's Division II schools last week, coming in behind number one, Lenoir-Rhyne and number two-ranked Campbell.

Notes...

Deadline for floor hockey sign-up is tomorrow in the intramural office . . . The deadline for waterpolo sign-up is Monday . . . the deadline for table tennis sign-up is Tuesday . . . Badminton signups end on Thursday, Feb. 25 all in the intramural office . . .

The club football team will hold a meeting at 5:00 on Monday, Feb. 22, in room 119 Trask. Spring practice and schedule have been determined and will be discussed at this time.

Women's Soccer Schedule

February
Challenge Cup Game Sun. 21
Cup Championship Sat. 27

March
at Alabama Sat. 20
CHAPEL HILL Sun. 21
N.C. STATE Sun. 28

April
UNC GREENSBORO Fri. 2
DUKE Sun. 4
Playoffs Sat. 17
Sun. 18

Pirates down 'Hawks homecoming, record crowd watches

Shawn Williams

David Newbern
Sports Writer

In a heartbreaking loss, and in front of a record crowd of 4,200 people, the Seahawk basketball team was downed 66-68 in a disappointing Homecoming game against East Carolina.

Coach Mel Gibson commented that the team "Played poor defense in the first half," which left the Seahawks down 14 points at the half.

But with the roaring enthusiasm of the UNCW Homecoming crowd, the Seahawks started their long comeback led by #25, junior Shawn Williams. With 12 seconds left on the clock, Williams cut the score to 68-66. On an in-bounds play ECU's Pirates turned the ball over to the Seahawks leaving them a chance to score with eight seconds left on the clock. But the Seahawks failed to convert on an in-bounds pass, leaving most hopes for a tie in the dark.

Leading scorers for the Seahawks were Williams, with 22 points, and #11, Ed Timmons, who also had 22 buckets for the night. Williams also led with 6 rebounds while Timmons was second with 5.

Coach Gibson felt that "The crowd was a factor in the game." He also replies that this was part of the reason why the Seahawks "Played good, hard ball in the 2nd half."

Saturday night's game brings the Seahawks' record back to 11-12 after their loss to ECU. Earlier this year the Seahawks defeated the Pirates in Greenville on their home court.

The Seahawks take to the road again as they play against Wisconsin at Green Bay on Thursday night, followed by a Saturday night game against Northern Iowa.

Edward Timmons

Swimmers close out season at Old Dominion

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

The Seahawk men's and women's swim teams traveled to Old Dominion University in Norfolk, VA, Saturday to conclude regular season schedule.

The men's team bettered Old Dominion, 61-52, and the women lost, 47-83. This brings UNCW's 1981-82 season record to 7-5 for the men, 2-7 for the women.

The Seahawks dominated the freestyle events, with senior Sam O'Leary adding another record to his career by swimming his leg of the 400 yd. freestyle relay in 47.2. The relay team, consisting of O'Leary, sophomore Chris Moore, freshman Mark Shore, and Junior Rusty Lambe, was according to coach Dave Allen, "the team's best relay" this season.

The other winning events for UNCW included the 50-, 100-, 200-, and 1000-yd. freestyles. These events were won by Sam O'Leary, Chris Moore, Rusty Lambe, and freshman standout Jeff Siggings, respectively.

Coach Allen reported that "A lot of career bests were swum," including Sam O'Leary's 200

yd. butterfly which although he didn't win the event, was his "best in-season 200-fly ever."

"A lack of depth" on the women's side is what Coach Allen attributes their losses to, with 6 out of 11 women swimming as freshman, and only 2, Ellen Cushman and Karen Young, competing as seniors.

During Saturday's meet, junior Marcie Laderer was injured in the 100-yd. backstroke, the first event, and was out for the rest of the meet, contributing to the Lady Seahawk's decided disadvantage.

The UNCW women won only three events during the meet. Junior Janet Johnson won the 100-yd. Individual Medley, senior Karen Young won the 200-yd. freestyle and sophomore Chrissy Cecil took the 50-yd. freestyle event.

The Seahawks begin their post-season competition with the 3-day Seahawk Invitational, which will be held here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The meet will feature approximately 17 men's and women's teams from along the East Coast, and should feature some of the season's best times as well.

DISC TEAM MEMBERS

Top row[L to R]: Jeff Ammons, Kent Roberts, Jeff Flack, John Warren, Max Paige, Don Hesselman, Don Carmen, Dave Gruelle, Chip Corbett.

Bottom row[L to R]: Todd Leber, Terry Williamson, Brian Autry, Stuart Stapleton, Steve Spier, Rick McBrayer, Lisa Faxon.

Lady 'Hawks soccer wins

by Betty Jenkins
Sports Writer

The UNCW women's soccer team opened their 1982 spring season on Saturday, Feb. 13, with a 5-1 win over Camp Lejeune in the first round of the 1982 Challenge Cup.

Leading in scoring for the Seahawks was freshman Jennifer Wilson. Juniors Betty Jenkins and Beje Barret had two assists each.

The Lady Seahawks' next soccer game will be against Duke on Sunday, at 2:00. It is a home game, and the winner will qualify for the championship match on Feb. 27th.

The Challenge Cup winner will advance to the regional match, slated for Dallas, Texas.

The women's team regular season will begin on March 20, and will run through April 4, with playoffs following.

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM?
ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!
CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT

256-3842

Jump rope for heart

Jump rope for the Heart, March 1 from 2 - 5 pm. Faculty and students may participate. For further information, contact Dr. Hollifield in the PE Dept.

LARRY'S STYLING
SHOP

MEN AND WOMEN
*HAIRCUTS $6 to $7
CURLIE PERMS
WITH HAIR CUT. $25.00

Tuesday Friday, 9am-7pm; Saturday 9am-4pm
LONG LEAF MALL PH. 799-5029

"Liberty
means responsibility.
That's why most men
dread it." — George Bernard Shaw

Next year it's all up to you. Only you can decide to start an insurance program now. The longer you wait, the more it costs. Find out how easy it is to begin our college plan, chosen by more seniors than any other.

Call the Fidelity Union Life
Field Associate in your area:

WM C. "BILL" WALLIN, JR.
College Market Representative

P.O. Box 4547
Wilmington, N.C. 28406

LEGISLATURE from p. 1

against and one abstention.

Senator Mark Bremer then made a motion to reconsider the motion dealing with impeachment proceedings against the Attorney General. This motion was debated and passed with 12 for, six against and two abstentions.

Senator Bremer then made another motion to rescind the previous action concerning Attorney General Sills. This motion was seconded, debated and passed again with 12 for, six against and two abstentions. The meeting was adjourned at 9 pm.

In other SGA news, Chief Justice John Ward resigned Wednesday. Ward also withdrew from the university at the same time.

PSI CHI from p. 3

for professional growth, opportunities are made available to the members for promoting their research, for national and international recognition, for contacts and interaction with the leaders in their field, and to meet Psi Chi members of other chapters who will be the future leaders, the United States Government recognized membership in Psi Chi as meeting one of the requirements for the entrance at the GS-7 level in the Federal service.

Psi Chi at UNCW has 26 student members, 13 faculty members and three alumni. Initiations are held at the end of each spring semester and anyone interested in joining should contact Dr. Joe Awkard, Psychology department, or any Psi Chi member.

Vandals strike at college newspaper

The editor of the St. Francis College (NY) student newspaper says he's "afraid to go home for the weekend" after vandals struck that paper's office for the second time in a month.

This time, the intruders ransacked the office, pulling down the metal crossbars of a suspended ceiling, overturning file cabinets, ripping material off the walls and draping newspapers everywhere, says Jimmy Lintini, editor of The Voice.

Just before the Christmas break, thieves entered the office and stole virtually all copies of the paper's final 1982 issue.

Nothing was taken this time, says Lintini, but the newspaper's telephone was broken and enough damage was done to other equipment that publication of the first 1982 issue was delayed a week. The break-in occurred over a weekend, after Lintini and several other newspaper staff members had left on a ski trip.

The vandalism was reported to the campus security office, he adds, but so far no suspects have been identified. Lintini believes whoever did the damage could have gained access to the office by telling a building guard he or she worked on the newspaper staff.

"I know everybody with a key, and I can account for most of them - they were with me," he says. "Only one or two people were still here, and I know those people didn't do it."

He believes the vandals are the same persons or people who stole the papers in December. "It's probably some people who don't like some of the things we've been writing," he comments.

For now, the paper is operating temporarily out of the student government office. Lintini doesn't know if repairs to the newspaper's office will be done in time for the next issue, now set for Feb. 12, to be produced there. "I'm concerned that the ceiling is structurally unsound - I don't want it falling down on top of someone," he says.

He also admits frustration over the failure to find the culprits. "There's not much I can do as a student," he says. "I'm just waiting to see what happens next."

Boston College student newspaper wins access to police logs

The Boston College student newspaper legally deserves access to campus police logs, but not to the names of any BC students involved in campus incidents, a Mass. county judge ruled recently.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the Boston College Heights against the university administration, seeking access to daily police logs. Middlesex County Superior Court Judge Samuel Adams said the state's public information law requires all police departments to make daily logs available to the public, regardless of whether the police force is a state or local government agency.

Adams also said, however, that federal privacy laws require the BC police to protect the names of current Boston College students. According to Heights Editor Patrick White, the paper can obtain the names of anyone involved in campus incidents who isn't a BC student.

White says he was informed in a letter from Kevin Duffy, vice president of student affairs, that BC would not appeal the ruling. Duffy's letter said the school was satisfied that the privacy rights of its students were protected under the ruling.

Prior to Adam's ruling, The Heights had received a weekly "Police Blotter" report, listing "all the things that happened on campus that the campus police thought were newsworthy," White says. The newspaper staff suspected major crimes were not being reported, and after learning from the Mass. Uniform Crime Report that three rapes were committed on campus in 1979-80 and not reported to the paper, the staff decided to file suit.

Because the ruling came in a county court, it will have no direct impact on schools outside Middlesex County, says White.

Enjoy Happy Hour

In The

Schooner Lounge

5:00pm til 6:30pm

Monday thru Friday

Live Entertainment Every Friday and Saturday

Ladies Always Free Must Be Over 18

The Clipper Room offers Luncheon Specials Daily $2.99

open 7 am - 2 pm
5 pm - 9 pm

Located in Wilmington's Historical District

801 Market Street

Beautiful
Mini-suites
Available for
Your Visitors

College Students
Welcome

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD
COFFEEHOUSE COMMITTEE'S

PRESENTS:

John Stanfield

FRIDAY,
FEBRUARY
26th, at 8:30 pm

John plays 12 string slide guitar. His music ranges from blue grass, to folk, and satire. And to make the evening complete, he'll tickle your funny bone with his off-the-wall humor! Join us for a great night of entertainment!

As always it's FREE and bring your own celebration.

'On Golden Pond'; witty, charming, engaging

by David George
Film Reviewer

"On Golden Pond," starring Henry Fonda, Katherine Hepburn, Jane Fonda, and others.

"On Golden Pond is a sedate movie, but this does not mean it is dull. On the contrary, I enjoyed every minute. It is witty, charming and engaging. It holds your attention and does so without the aid of graphic sex or violence, yet it is by no means a "Kiddie show." It is like going on summer vacation for two hours and boy does it feel good.

To tell the truth, I found this movie had more laughs than any comedy I have seen this year or last year.

It is the story of Norman and Ethel Thayer (played by Henry Fonda and Katherine Hepburn, respectively) who are in the autumn of life. They spend their summers at a lakeside home on Golden Pond.

They are visited by their daughter who is estranged from Norman (Chelsea (played by Jane Fonda), and her newest boyfriend, Bill, and his sons, Billy.

Chelsea and Bill leave young Billy with the Thayers and go to Europe. A friendship develops between Billy and Norman and they become inseparable.

High points of the film are the impressive natural setting and the excellent performances given by Henry Fonda and Katherine Hepburn.

The natural scenery of the movie far surpasses that of any other such film this season, including "The Four Seasons."

Henry Fonda's senile curmudgeon and Hepburn's caretaker role compliment each other nicely. Also commendable is the screenplay by Ernest Thompson, who adapted it from his stage play.

Well deserving of all three of its Golden Globe awards, "On Golden Pond" is an A-1 excellent picture.

Campus policeimpounds bicycles

Campus Police Department has impounded twenty (20) bicycles over the past year and a half.

These bicycles will be turned over to the Wilmington Police Department for disposal on March 1, 1982.

Bicycles may be claimed at Campus Police Department prior to this date, Monday thru Friday from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Proof of ownership must be presented before bicycle will be released.

See ANSWERS p. 12
TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- 1 Ugly mark
5 Arbiters:
informal
9 UK county
14 Step

- 15 Accumulation
16 Peace deity
17 Issue
18 — job
19 Weapon
20 Took away

- 22 Took a sip
23 Studied
24 Safe: Sl.
25 Emaciated
28 Mr.

- 30 Potato treats
34 One: Pref.
35 Not yet: up
36 Macbeth title

- 32 West Point student

Advertise with The Seahawk
Reach out to over 6,000

- 37 NT book

- 38 Mauna —
39 Swindle
40 Lowly home
41 Epitome
43 Be united 44 Oddball
45 Indonesian island

- 46 Frat
49 Hollywood VIP
53 Happening
54 Glove part
55 Constellation
56 Bender
57 Singer Paul

- 58 Ballerina —

- Kaye
59 Tree
60 Gas
61 Axis

DOWN

- 1 Hastened
2 Arrived
3 Chemical compound
4 Went back
5 Support
6 Produced ore
7 Trudge
8 Make seams
9 Expands amount

- 10 School item

- 11 Let out
12 One time
13 Compulsion
21 Coin
22 Arizona city
24 Tapered end

- 25 La —:
Operahouse
26 Meat dish
27 Conceptions
28 Ray of light
29 Unctuous
30 Insert
31 Name
33 Young bird
36 Small amount

- 37 "The Last of the —"

- 39 Bestower
40 Golf goal
42 Sharp pain
43 Train conductor
45 Sgt. —:
Silers role
46 Midianite king
47 Very bad
48 Hang
49 European
50 Gait
51 Monster
52 Wander
54 Seek gold

The Marines Are Coming!

Platoon
Leaders
Class

Officers
Candidate
Class

Air Ground Law

Freshman Programs — 2 - Six Week Summer Sessions

Sophomore Programs — 2 - Six Week Summer Sessions

Junior Programs — 1 - 10 Week Summer Session

THE PLATOON LEADERS CLASS PROGRAM (PLC) OFFERS A COMMISSION AS A 2ND LIEUTENANT IN THE U. S. MARINE CORPS AFTER GRADUATION FROM COLLEGE FRESHMAN THROUGH GRADUATES, INCLUDING LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS ARE ELIGIBLE TO JOIN. HERE ARE A FEW OF THE FEATURES OF THE PLC PROGRAM AVAILABLE TO THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY:

1. No on campus commitments (Drills, Classes or Meetings)
2. Aviation, Ground and Law options available
3. $100.00 a month, during school months after completion of your first session of training
4. Salary that is competitive with civilian occupations
5. NO commitment incurred until you accept your commission

YOUR MARINE OFFICER SELECTION TEAM IS CAPTAIN JACK MOORE AND CYSGT BOB LA MONDA. WE WILL BE ON YOUR CAMPUS ON 4, 5 & 6 MAY 1982 FROM 9:30 TO 4:00 IN THE UNIVERSITY STUDENT CENTER OR SEE THE PLACEMENT OFFICE FOR MORE DETAILS ON OUR VISIT.

Solid Gold'Showplace of The Stars'

On The Boardwalk Carolina

Beach Presents 1st Annual

Winter Beach Concert

Featuring The Embers, Thurs.

Febuary 25th UNCW Students and CFTI Students w/Valid

ID $3.00 til 9:00pm

Advance $5.00 Day of Show

$7.00 Record Bar Wilmington

Bud & Joe's Carolina Beach

When the sun goes down, Domino's Pizza gets busy preparing the most convenient fast food you can get. Just pick up your phone, dial the number, and a nutritious Domino's pizza is only 30 minutes away. That's all it takes, and we never charge for delivery!

Give us a call. Domino's Pizza will make your Late Night..... Special!

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. - Sat.

Our drivers carry less than $20.

Limited delivery area.
©1982 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

$1.00
off!

Any pizza with mushrooms ordered after 10:00pm only!
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 3/7/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

19555 / 5526

$1.00
off!

Any pizza with pepperoni ordered after 10:00 pm only!
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 3/7/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

19555 / 5526

$1.00
off!

Any pizza with double cheese ordered after 10:00 pm only!
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 3/7/82

Fast, Free Delivery
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

19555 / 5526

Campus Calendar

Brotherhood Week service Friday

The Annual Brotherhood Week and Human Relations Month Sabbath service will be held at 8 p.m., Friday in the Temple of Israel, 4th & Market Streets and is open to the public.

The observance will feature appropriate messages from Rev. John P. Christensen, Unitarian Universalist Fellowship; Rev. Robert W. Haywood, III.

UNCW Campus Minister; William R. Jessup, Executive Director, New Hanover Human Relations Commission; Dr. Charles Marion Starr, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and Rabbi Mordecai M. Thurman.

A special musical program will be presented by the Temple choir. The service will be followed by a social in Rosen-thal Hall.

Non-traditionals to meet February 22

Non-traditional students will meet at 7 pm Feb. 22 in the assembly room of the Student Activities Building.

All Non-traditional students

are urged to attend one or both of these meetings in order to provide input and support for the current programs being undertaken by the organization.

BSU sponsors Benjamin Hooks Feb. 25

The Black Student Union of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will sponsor Dr. Benjamin Hooks, as guest speaker, in observance of Black History Month.

The program will be held at 7 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium on February 25th. Immediately following the program, a reception will be held in the Student Activity Building, adjacent to Trask Coliseum.

Tickets for this event are $2 advance and $3 at the door. They may be purchased at School Kids Records on Wrightsville Avenue and at Chick-N-Pig on Castle Street.

UNCW students will be admitted free with I.D. between 6 and 7 p.m. on the evening of the program.

John Stanfield performs Friday in Goodwood

Ya'll missed it! . . . On February 11th the Coffeehouse Committee had the Save the Goodwood Concert. But you'll have another chance. Coming up on Friday, February 26, at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Union, the Half-Moon Productions will bring you the extraordinary musical style of John Stanfield from Davidson, N.C.

John Stanfield beholds incredible skill on his 12-string guitar! He's played in clubs and colleges from North Carolina all over and up to Canada, and has earned rave reviews for his versatility - he's a songwriter, fiddler, extraordinary singer, guitar player, and also off-the-wall comedian! John's musical repertoire ranges from blue grass, folk, and satire. His style encompasses everything from no-nonsense riffing to laid back picking songs like "Ode to Joy" and "Somewhere Over the Rainbow". John has appeared on stage with such famous entertainers as John Prine, The Pure Prairie League, and Tom Rush. He was last seen in Wilmington a year ago playing along with The Red Clay Ramblers and Smothers and Lawrence.

So don't miss this evening with John's terrific music and warped sense of humor on the 26th of this month! Make plans for this FREE evening in the Pub and bring your own celebration to make this a night you won't soon forget! See you there or you'll hit yourself for missing out!!

Renter Wanted

Want to rent one bedroom and bath to responsible female student, Crestwood (about 2 miles from UNCW). $25 weekly, 799-0922.

Check your chances of getting colorectal cancer.

Cancer can attack anyone. But some people live with a higher risk of developing cancer than others. If you check any of the boxes, see your doctor. Discuss with him your risks of getting cancer. Knowing about cancer is a first step in curing it.

- ☐ Have a history of polyps
- ☐ Have blood in the stool
- ☐ Have ulcerative colitis

American Cancer Society

THIS SPACE CONTRIBUTED AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

Classified

All students, faculty, and on-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.

Lost and Found

LOST
Men's Gold wedding band with black indentations.
Red, white and blue wallet.

FOUND
Pair of contact lenses.
Check with Cheryl Ferguson, Rm. 101 in the Pub.

Services

Typist Available.
Betty Ames
799-2578
IBM Executive Typewriter

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

Lost - gold bracelet, has sentimental value. Please call Beth, 392-7632 - Reward offered.

HOW'D YOU LIKE THAT RESCUE OPERATION CHUCK? MARCIE AND I BRAVED A BLIZZARD TO FIND YOU AND YOUR DOG!

OH, AND THANK YOU FOR THE KISS...

KISS? I DIDN'T KISS ANYBODY..

JUST CALL ME "SUGAR LIPS"

PINEWOOD
NEW APARTMENT COMMUNITY
AT RANDALL DRIVE
[Across from UNCW off Hwy 132]

One Bedroom $230
Two Bedroom $285
6 months or 1 year lease
Apply at Pinewood
4901 Randall Dr.
Phone 799-2911
Phillips Management Group

St. Thomas
Celebration of the Arts

A special production of

EQUUS

directed by Donn Ansell

February
22 • 23 • 24
8:30 p.m.

Tickets available at St. Thomas
Celebration Central Box Office,
215 S. Front St., 10 a.m. to 6
p.m., Mon. - Sat.
Reservations: 763-4527.
$4.00/adults
$3.00/students & groups

Community Arts Center

co-sponsored by Chandlers
Wharf and the Star News

THE INDIAN WANTS
THE BRONX

directed by
Chester A. Spier

Crossword Answers

BEAR	JUMP	DEVON
PAGE	FILE	IRENE
EMIT	SNOW	LANCE
DEDUCTED	TASTED
LEAD	PETE
SKINNY	SOMEONE
SADIST	SHINOBU
ASSED	THANKS	MATH
NOA	DRIFT	NOVEL
ABSTRACT	COMERE
WACK	JALI
REPINE	DIRECTOR
EVENT	PALM	ARGO
DIND	ANNA	NORA
ALDEN	NEON	STYL

COMING SOON 1982 2nd Annual Greek Week

Sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and Jackson Beverage Inc.

SOLID GOLD

'Showplace of The Stars'
The Staff and Management
Would Like to Thank the Students and Faculty Who Participated In The Sellout
Performance of Nantucket

THE BEER BOX

We Ice Them Down Free

A one Stop Beverage
Shop

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

Miller times starring Miller High Life

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 16

Twelve pages

PED 101 receives additional credit hour

by La Vera Jeffreys
Journalism Contributor

PED 101 may not be any easier in the fall of 1982 but at least your efforts will be rewarded by the addition of another credit hour. However, no one regardless of age or health, will be exempt from PED 101 as was the policy in the past.

The HPER Department as a whole felt that PED 101 was involved enough to meet the standards of making it a two-hour credit course rather than keeping it as a one-hour credit course. Dr. Hollifield said she felt "it was beneficial to everyone involved" and that with the labs and activities it was necessary to allow PED 101 another credit hour.

In the past there were exemptions for certain people regarding all PED courses. Anyone over the age of 27 or who had served in the military was automatically exempt. Dr. Hollifield did point out that consideration would be given to people with special health problems. She said the entire program was set up to include everybody regardless of age or health. With this fact in mind the HPER Department felt that no one should be exempt from the program.

Dr. Hollifield was confident the new program set up for PED 101 would be met with optimism by students and faculty as well. The only real adjustments, according to her, would have to be made by the professors; they would now have to hold late afternoon or evening classes as opposed to the current day classes. She said of the new program, "I don't see any problems with it at all."

Parnell receives Audubon Society grant

by Kurt Schmidt
Journalism Contributor

Dr. James Parnell, Professor of Biology, has received a grant from the National Audubon Society for the development of management techniques over colonial birds on Battery Island.

Located between Southport and Baldhead Island, Battery Island is the nesting ground for 10 species of wading birds, including ibis's and Egrets forming a colony of 3,000 - 4,000. The sanctuary is being established to keep the birds there.

Because these are non-game birds and there is little management over them, waste builds up, the island vegetation dies, and the birds destroy their own habitat. After a few years of nesting the birds are forced to move elsewhere. The grant was established to keep habitat change to a minimum.

According to Dr. Parnell, this site is owned by the State of North Carolina, is on lease to the Audubon Society, and will not be affected by any of Secretary of the Interior, James Watt's land proposals.

The grant will also provide for a research assistant graduate student who will work in cooperation with Dr. Parnell and the Audubon Society representative. The first year will be used to establish a base; to see how many and what kinds of birds inhabit the island and how they're getting along. After the base has been established, management will begin.

The cooperative research between the university and the Audubon Society is funded for one year at a time, but Dr. Parnell is optimistic about its future.

Senior Sam O'Leary after winning the 100 yard butterfly heat at the Seahawk Invitational swim meet last weekend. Both his 100 and 200 yard butterfly races set new meet records. See related stories pages 6 and 7.

UNCW, CFTI to host Maritime conference on March 5

The second North Carolina Maritime Heritage Conference will be held March 5, at Cape Fear Technical Institute. The conference, sponsored by UNCW, Cape Fear Tech, the Marine Resources Center, the New Hanover County Museum, the N.C. Division of Archives and History, the Battleship ommission and the N.C. Humanities Committee, is designed to inform the public on North Carolina's maritime history and the life and work of its people in relation to the sea. For a copy of the conference program, call Richard Cooper at ext. 2309 or Rober Byington, ext. 2321, or write to the N.C. Maritime Heritage Conference II, USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial, P.O. Box 417, Wilmington, NC 28402. Registration deadline is Feb. 25.

Alan Watson from UNCW will be talking about the society in colonial North Carolina, orphans in colonial society and colonial taxation.

The public is invited to attend the conference. There is a $3 preregistration fee or a $5 fee at the actual meeting.

The conference will begin at 9 am March 5 and include seven different sessions that will last until about 5 pm.

SGA threatens to freeze SEAHAWK funds, Attorney General resigns

by La Vera Jeffreys
Journalism Contributor

The Student Senate threatened to freeze funding to The Seahawk unless some specific questions were answered by the editor of The Seahawk.

A motion was presented by senators Mark Bremer, Steve Griffin, Bill Sampson, Ed Paul, Royal Moore, Pete Divoky, and Tommy Gust and passed at last Thursday's SGA meeting for Tricia Wallace, the editor of The Seahawk, to come forth and

"answer any and all questions, or face more severe sanction by the senate."

At the Student Government meeting Thursday evening Tricia Wallace refused to answer ethical journalistic questions while reporting on the business matters of The Seahawk. She said she would be glad to answer any questions pertaining to journalism by appointments.

The senate refused to accept Ms. Wallace's reasoning and by a majority of the votes passed the motion that Ms. Wallace had to appear before the senate next week to answer some questions or face the possible cut off of funding. Eleven senator's voted yes, nine voted no and two of the senator's abstained from voting at all.

Attorney General Kevin Sills thanked the SGA for their support during his recent situation concerning the forgery of drop-add slips. He explained the circumstances surrounding the situation and then announced his resignation at which time the senate gave him a standing ovation.

Senator Steve Griffin made a motion that the Judiciary Committee investigate the alleged leakage of the confidentiality of the University Court by Nancy Kelker involving former Attorney General Kevin Sills and report back this Thursday. It was debated and passed.

Student Government continued with general business which included a motion to loan The Football Club $400, a transfer of $2,000 from the emergency fund to the capital fund and a motion was tabled that would allow the Sailing Club assess to a boat and trailer that no one is positive who owns. The newly chartered Residence Hall Association was given $494.60 for the residence trip and the printing of a newsletter however, this was not the total request presented to the senate.

The meeting started at seven minutes past six and concluded at 8:46. Announcements were the last business to be conducted by the SGA.

Letters

'Atlantis' Editor states intentions

To the editor,

I do not feel "an apology to Phi Beta Lambda is in order." Perhaps Ms. Smith misconstrued my intent; "elitist" is a relative term. Compared with Atlantis, touching 1000 each semester, PBL, involving fewer students is therefore relatively elite.

PBL was not an arbitrary "target" because of when their funding request was voiced. I am aware that other clubs absorb SGA funds. The 15-member Forensics received a total of $9,550 for 1981-82. UNCW could have two Atlantis issue for $3,150 less.

As for Steve Schmidt's President's Report: How does Atlantis's typesetting "problem" concern the SGA? You and I have discussed that matter, and resolved the $100 "error" within Atlantis's allotted budget.

Further, it was due to an SGA ruling that the "problem" resulted anyway, and this "error" was less costly than the Sailing Club's $140 "error" in losing 4 life jackets, yet their budget wasn't cut.

You also state Atlantis's "error" was "time consuming." Atlantis came out on schedule, so what concern is it of yours how many hours the staff spent putting it together?

As for fund raising: I recently learned Forensics got their budget with a financial project raising $50 (to put with the allocated $9,550). Atlantis can raise $50 if that's the point - but if we did, would that give us a fair shake on March 4th, when Atlantis comes before you again?

My only intention as Atlantis editor is to see that students get their publication. I truly have nothing against Mr. Schmidt, Ms. Smith, PBL, Forensics, or Sailing Club; I hope the feeling is mutual.

Barbara J. Grob
Editor-in-Chief
Atlantis

President's Report

by Steven Schmidt, SGA President

SGA reconstructs budget process

Every administration strives to maintain tighter control of SGA funds, insure the efficient disbursement of expenditures, and prevent any wasteful spending. Due to an increase in clubs/organizations, demands for more funds, and the general inflationary trend, coupled with a possible drop in enrollment, the SGA will face many financial challenges in the near future. To deal with the financial fluctuation, Student Government had to reconstruct almost its entire financial operation. Aggressive steps have been taken to upgrade the budgeting process. In addition, an extensive review and overhaul of the allocation procedures to the various student organizations was required. Finally, to maintain a constant audit and/or record of each SGA account, a separate finance division which will include a new SGA position, Internal Auditor, will be established.

As already provided the Student Senate oversees the total allocation process through the actions of the Finance Committee, which has been retitled the Budget & Planning Committee. Under the auspices and rules of the new budgeting process, six boards have been established. These boards are: Media & Publications, University Program, Creative Arts, Athletic, Educational, and Special Interest Board.

The initial responsibility of allocating funds will be awarded to each board. After an organization submits an itemized budget request, the board will review that budget prior to meeting with the club. Once a club defends its budget and the board makes the necessary changes, all the budgets will be compiled for submission to the Budget & Planning Committee along with the board recommendations. The BPC will review the proposals, make additional recommendations and submit the packages to the Student Senate.

The amount of funds for each board will be based on previous club allocations plus an inflationary increase. The BPC, with consultation of the Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs, will determine how much money to allocate to the boards and how much to retain in the

See BUDGET, p. 4

Hello...YooHoo...ANYBODY HERE ORDER A PEPPERONI AND CHEESE?

Loving means letting go

No quest seems more important to most of us than our quest for the significant other in our life, that one whom we desire as our steady boyfriend or girlfriend or, perhaps, our spouse. It certainly is a central concern of my life, and one, which, in fulfillment does bring to me the experience of all the best that is caught up in the words "love" and "family."

There is a twist in such significant relationships that bothers me, a twist reflected in the phrases we use like "my girlfriend" or "my husband." There are some who use the word "my" with a kind of desperate ownership that bespeaks an unhealthy dependency and need to control. In wanting the emotional security of a relationship, we often become so dependent that we deny our needs, rights and dreams for the sake of hanging on to our partner. We slowly give over control of our lives to our partner in our desire to please them and maintain some

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood, Campus Minister

sense of security in that relationship. Once more we cling, hang on to someone else and in so doing slowly allow our identity to be swallowed up in daily efforts to please the other out of fear of losing them. I once showed a poster to my wife which said "All my tomorrows depend on your love." Her response was, "I don't like it; I wouldn't want that kind of power and responsibility."

I believe that good relationships are meant to help in the fuller development of two persons, causing them to become more of what they are God-gifted to be. When one partner diminishes him or herself by clutching the other so closely, growth is smothered.

While not my original thought, it is nevertheless true that you can only "have" someone if you are willing to let them go. It is an obvious lesson parents learn about their children; but it is true for all relationships. It is by granting each other full freedom to become his or her own person, that we discover both our own internal security and the marvelous gift of the other who comes to us freely, unmanipulated and uncontrolled to say "I want to be with you."

Whether new relationships or old, it might do us well to become aware of roles, patterns, expectations and limits we are clinging to and consider again the power (and the risk) of letting go.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Yvette Young

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Cheryl Ferguson

Business Advisor: Susan Goudrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

UNCW recognizes National Women's History Week

by Donna L. Holden
Journalism Contributor

"Women Rediscovered: 1962-1982" is the theme of an upcoming celebration of women's history, to be held March 3 on the UNCW campus from 1-10 pm.

Dr. Kathleen Berkeley of the History Department is chairperson of a newly-formed women's network at the university which is sponsoring the event sparked the idea for the program. This is a "first" for UNCW in recognition of National Women's History Week.

Contributions by contemporary and "rediscovered" women of the community will be the theme of the program. The varied format will include speakers, song, poetry, music, and film. Several university faculty members are participating.

In King Hall Auditorium from 1-5 pm, highlights of the program will include County Commissioner Karen Gottovi speaking on women in politics, live music, a panel on women in sports, and speakers covering topics ranging from science to fairytales.

Among the presentations will be a troupe of "Traveling Troubadors," with insightful and entertaining spots of poetry, prose or song. Films will be shown in King Hall from 5-6 pm.

At 7 pm the program will move to Kenan Hall, Room 121. Kay Seban's slide presentation on Ghana will be shown, followed by Majorie Megivern and Joyce Greer's drama on Anne Hutchinson and Phyllis Wheatley. Evening topics will include mental health, religion, and affirmative action. The evening will culminate in lively folk music.

This event is free, and the public is invited to attend.

Board accepting Fledgling Editor applications

The Media & Publications Board is now accepting applications for the position of Fledgling Editor (yearbook) for the 1982-83 school year. All interested students should submit their letter of application to Susan Goodrum, Media & Publications Board Chairman (SGA office, room 200, upstairs in Student Union). Deadline for application is Friday, March 19.

Overseas study program available

The University of North Carolina's sixteen constituent institutions offer a variety of overseas study/travel programs. Student from UNCW are encouraged to participate in any of the following experiences: Special Education: Study in Holland, Summer Study in England, Biogeography of the Galapagos Islands and the Equatorial Amazon, Summer Art Study in Italy/1982, Summer

Intensive German in Würzburg, West Germany, International Music Workshops in Salzburg, International Music Program, Adventures in British Theatre, International Student Exchange Program, A summer at Oxford, The Art of Italy, Music: Germany/Austria, UNC Year at Sevilla, Carolina Study-Travel in Europe 1982, Carolina Study-Travel in Greece 1982, Carolina Study-Travel in Israel 1982.

Carolina Study-Travel in London 1982, Carolina Study-Travel in Oxford 1982, Carolina Study-Travel in Sicily 1982, China Study-Travel Program 1982, Carolina Study-Travel in Cumae (Bay of Naples area) 1982, Summer School in East and West Germany, Summer School in England, Summer School in Greece.

For more information, contact the Dean of Students office.

Newspaper gains access to police logs

The recent decision granting the Boston College student newspaper access to campus police logs helped the Boston U. student paper gain the same privilege, but didn't change anything at Northeastern U., another Boston-area private school.

The Boston U. Daily Free Press, an independent newspaper, had considered its own suit against the BU administration after its reporters were denied access to campus police logs. On its attorney's advice, the paper delayed action until the BC suit was decided. When a Middlesex County Superior Court judge ruled in favor of the BC paper's right to access, BU officials agreed to grant access as well, restricting only that information that would personally identify a BU student. "I was really very surprised at that," says Daily Free Press Editor Lawrence Hackett. "The BC decision doesn't actually apply here, since we're in Suffolk County, so I thought they'd make us go ahead and sue." Instead, the paper is working with a recently appointed director of security to establish a policy for regular access.

The Northeastern U. student newspaper hasn't been so fortunate. The Northeastern News reported in mid-January that it had also been given access to police logs, but a week later, two campus security officials said they had been misquoted, and would continue to read to reporters a weekly list of police activity. The public safety office director says his office currently supplies the newspaper with all the information it needs, and maintains the BC decision doesn't apply to Northeastern, which is located in Suffolk County.

Northeastern Editor Ellie Weber says some crimes aren't reported to the paper quickly, however, and cites the robbery and assault of a student last fall as an example. The incident was reported to two local papers, but wasn't mentioned to the News until two days later, when the paper had already gone to press. Such mistakes may not be intentional, says Weber, but can't always be avoided unless a reporter actually sees the police log.

As an official branch of the university, the News can't sue the school, but will continue to meet with police for a weekly summary of crimes.

UNCW blood drive - a success

The UNCW-sponsored blood drive held February 10-11, was a great success. For the first time in UNCW history, the set goal was not only reached, but surpassed. Of the approximate 350 people that showed to give blood, 312 were accepted - making a total of 312 pints of blood collected.

Alan Capps, co-chairman of the blood drive, accredits the success of the drive to "the hard work of the Bloodmobile committee and the overwhelming student turn-out."

Special thanks to Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Beta Psi, Psi Kappa Omega, the student nurses, and all of the individual students and faculty members that helped in a job well done.

Advertising law lifted

With the state law against "hard liquor" advertisements at least temporarily lifted, one Oklahoma student newspaper is already carrying such ads.

The state law against advertising of "intoxicating beverages" other than 3.2 beer was challenged in federal court by a group of Oklahoma television stations. That challenge produced a temporary restraining order prohibiting state action against newspapers and billboard companies that carry liquor ads.

The U. of Oklahoma student newspaper quickly secured one liquor advertising contract, and will accept others, says Susan Sasso, assistant director of student publications. "We've notified CASS (the paper's national ad representative) that we'll take wine and ale ads," she says. The school's legal counsel has okayed the action.

Sasso says the newspaper hopes to generate considerable revenue through the liquor ads, particularly those from local liquor outlets. The paper has run "happy hour" and other ads from local restaurants, which function as private clubs for the purpose of selling liquor by the drink. (Oklahoma is currently the only state in the nation which prohibits liquor-by-the-drink sales statewide.)

"The feeling was that we were running all the club ads, so why not run the liquor ads as well," says Sasso.

The Oklahoma State U. student newspaper, the Daily O'Collegian, will not change its policy on liquor advertising, says Leland Tenney, adviser to the paper. The O'Collegian's board of directors voted to continue accepting only beer ads. "I can't really speak for the entire board, but I believe they felt we're just not ready for the liquor ads," says Tenney.

U.S. District Judge Lee West ruled the state prohibition against liquor ads violated First Amendment rights of free speech. His most recent ruling, which affected newspapers and outdoor advertising, expanded on other orders allowing television and radio stations to carry liquor ads. Sasso says Norman stations now carry extensive liquor advertising. The local newspaper, the Norman Transcript, has announced it will not carry the ads, however.

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

Feb. 26 - Fri. - Brice Street

Mar. 1 - Mon. - National Pig Day

Pig Pickin

5-7

Free to Students

Stormz playing that night

Happy Hour Thurs. & Sat. night

7-11

50 cents Bottle Beer

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

BUDGET from p. 2

General Fund. The General Fund will be used to support new clubs/organizations and give administrative assistance to existing clubs. For instance, the use of office equipment to the clubs/organizations. New allocations may be requested two times a year, mid-October and mid-February, by applying directly to the BPC. The following year the club will be assigned to a board and follow the normal process.

Aside from allocating funds, the boards will have other responsibilities. First, the board may reallocate funds between clubs if all parties are in agreement. Second, the board may apply to the BPC for additional funds as required. Finally, the board may recommend disciplinary action on clubs to the BPC, if necessary. Should a club abuse SGA policy, the BPC can either recommend an action to the Senate or reprimand the student group. Two reprimands could result in freezing that club's account. Clubs having problems with the board may bring their grievance to the BPC. Disciplining the boards is the responsibility of the BPC. The Senate oversees the BPC, so if problems occur with this committee, grievance should be voiced to them.

While we have made apparent strides in this field, additional tests and changes will be necessary. However, this new financial system should enable us, the SGA, to appropriate funds in a more equitable and reasonable fashion and expedite business. Much of this work should be credited to the SGA Treasurer, Shirley Mayfield. I think she has done an excellent job this whole year. This financial system is just an example of the time, effort, and devotion she has unselfishly given to the Student Government Association. I personally commend her, because she truly reflects that concern for the welfare of the students.

Hazing controversy helps yearbook sales

The Oklahoma State U. yearbook is proceeding with plans to carry a picture and short mention of hazing in its upcoming edition, despite objections from some of the school's fraternities.

Members of OSU fraternities apparently learned of the plans to mention hazing in a two-page section on campus traditions when a yearbook photographer took a picture of a student being covered with whipped cream while tied to a tree. At a recent Interfraternity Council meeting, one representative said the yearbook coverage on hazing "could be devastating" to campus fraternities, and substantially damage their standing. The representative also said the photograph was not of a hazing incident, but could depict an

PEANUTS®

"YES MA'AM...I READ
"HANS BRINKER"
ALL THE WAY THROUGH

"THANK YOU FOR FORCING US TO READ IT!"

initiation rite.

The fraternities' reaction is out of proportion to the yearbook's plans, says Leland Tenney, I publications adviser. "They hadn't seen the copy when they protested it," he says. The fraternities' members also apparently thought a larger six-page section was being devoted exclusively to hazing, when in fact only a portion of a two-page section on campus traditions will deal with that subject.

Since the fraternity objections were lodged, the school's publications board voted to allow Redskin Editor Dennis Whiteman to exercise his own judgment in the matter. "The board thought it was best just to keep hands off," he says.

Whiteman plans to proceed with a full-page of the whipped cream victim and a mention of hazing in the article on campus

Student teaching available

Students who plan to student teach during the Fall 1982 or Spring 1983 semester must complete an Application for the Practicum Semester. This should be done as soon as possible. Forms are available in E-102.

traditions. "The plan is to present it as factually as possible," says Tenney. "The article tries to draw a contrast between tradition and actual hazing." There have been no serious hazing incidents at OSU in recent years, Tenney says.

He doesn't think the fraternities' complaints will damage yearbook sales. "It will probably help," Tenney says. "Any kind of controversy usually does."

COMING SOON 1982 2nd Annual Greek Week

Sponsored by the Interfraternity
Council and Jackson Beverage Inc.

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!
CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT

256-3842

LARRY'S STYLING SHOP

MEN AND WOMEN
HAIRCUTS $6.00 to $7.00
CURLIE PERMS
WITH HAIR CUT: $25.00

Tuesday-Friday, 9am-7pm; Saturday 9am-4pm
LONG LEAF MALL PH. 799-5029

"Liberty means responsibility. That's why most men dread it."

— George Bernard Shaw

Next year it's all up to you. Only you can decide to start an insurance program now. The longer you wait, the more it costs. Find out how easy it is to begin our college plan, chosen by more seniors than any other.

Call the Fidelity Union Life
Field Associate in your area:

WM C. "BILL" WALLIN, JR.
College Market Representative

P.O. Box 4547
Wilmington, N.C. 28406

UNCW plays 'waiting game' over athletic conference ruling

by Sankey Blanton
Journalism Contributor

The search is on for another men's varsity sport at UNCW in order to maintain the NCAA Division I status, according to Coach William J. Brooks.

While attending the National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting in Houston earlier this year, Brooks learned of a change in requirements for all Division I schools. The solution appears to hinge on UNCW's ability to affiliate with a conference within the year.

Brooks said at least three area conferences are considering UNCW. The Sunbelt Conference, which includes UNC-Charlotte and Virginia Commonwealth University, has been mentioned as a likely possibility. The Trans-American Conference, which stretches from Georgia to Texas is considered too expensive unless it divides into East/West Divisions. The most exciting possibility is a newly forming conference which could include schools of the Carolinas and Virginia such as ECU and William and Mary.

The benefit of joining a conference is that scheduling of games becomes easier and more consistent. "Scheduling is my number one problem," said Brooks.

The additional varsity sport offered would depend on the sports undertaken by other conference members. The ideal situation would be an approved NCAA activity which would not cost too much to initiate. Brooks said that water polo or a rifle/pistol team would be within the current athletic budget.

The UNCW varsity athletic program has three major sources of revenue. Student fees compose approximately half of the $350,000 yearly budget. Donations and grants provide from 10 to 15 percent of the funds while gate receipts and away game guarantees cover up to 30 percent. The varsity program supports seven men's teams and seven women's teams.

Varsity sports which are also being considered include wrestling, lacrosse and football. Concerning these Brooks said, "I don't think we are financially ready at this time but they may be in our near future." Major drawbacks to these programs are the expenses for coaches, equipment and travel for the large squads. Most other schools are able to offer the maximum number of full scholarships in order to attract better players, something UNCW is not yet able to afford. "My goal is to get the teams we have in shape before jumping into another major activity," Brooks said.

Current varsity teams might experience a slight reduction in funding in order to accommodate another team. NCAA rules do not require equal numbers of men and women varsity sports. "We definitely would not cut a woman's team to fund another men's team," said Brooks. New rules might make a CO-ED team possible.

"A rifle/pistol team has the best potential in that area," Brooks said. "I haven't had the opportunity to discuss it with the ROTC advisor yet."

Coach Brooks did not expect any decision to be made until April concerning conference affiliations. Most colleges wait until the end of the school year to announce major program changes in order to limit the impact on current activities. Several conferences may be reorganized due to the change in NCAA rules.

"You can get a good indication that something is going on when you try to schedule games and find them saving some dates," Brooks said. "Next year should bring quite a change, but until then, it's a waiting game."

A True Friend - Not Found Behind Every Corner -

Campus Chuckles

by Julie Russ

I had a traumatic night recently. Within an hour, I misplaced my car keys and a man, and then proceeded to get very intoxicated to make up for my losses. (I eventually found my keys, but the guy is still on the loose, so beware, ladies.) I would have been in a real bind if not for a good friend who helped me search, listened to my wailing, and wound up holding my head while I grieved in the bushes (not a pretty sight, let me tell you.)

Which leads us to the topic for today: What is a Friend? A friend should be a tiny bit better-looking than you, so that you are always on your toes. A friend is somebody who will tell you truthfully that your tuna-fish casserole would give the garbage disposal heartburn. A friend walks beside you when you storm around the block weeping because your latest flame done you wrong again. A friend is someone who keeps you from leaping into the swimming pool after you storm around the block. A friend is there, always. And if the friend can't be with you, you still have the love to lean on.

A friend is somebody who knows when you want to listen to Jackson Browne and when you want to rock out with the Rolling Stones. A friend will pick up your prescription when you are dying from the flu. A friend will not look at you funny when you just want to sit and watch the plants grow. A friend is someone who will go shell-hunting with you when she hates the beach and burns in direct sunlight. A friend is not afraid to tell you you're being foolish.

A friend is not somebody who says, "You think you got problems? Let me tell you about Irving..." A true friend will ever try to one-up you, ever. A friend is not someone who drives you everywhere and gives you money. This is called a Good Thing, and if you have one of those, by all means hang onto it, but don't call it a friend. Friends are hard to find; don't expect more than a few true blue per lifetime. And when you do find one, celebrate! ... Let's make it official -- tomorrow is Take A Friend To Lunch Day. Is everybody hungry?

The Marines Are Coming!

Platoon
Leaders
Class

Officers
Candidate
Class

Air Ground Law

Freshman Programs—2-Six Week Summer Sessions

Sophomore Programs—2-Six Week Summer Sessions

Junior Programs—1-10 Week Summer Session

THE PLATOON LEADERS CLASS PROGRAM (PLC) OFFERS A COMMISSION AS A 2ND LIEUTENANT IN THE U. S. MARINE CORPS AFTER GRADUATING FROM COLLEGE FRESHMAN THROUGH GRADUATES, INCLUDING LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS ARE ELIGIBLE TO JOIN. HERE ARE A FEW OF THE FEATURES OF THE PLC PROGRAM AVAILABLE TO THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY:

1. No on campus commitments (Drills, Classes or Meetings)
2. Aviation, Ground and Law options available
3. $100.00 a month, during school months after completion of your first session of training
4. Salary that is competitive with civilian occupations
5. NO commitment incurred until you accept your commission

YOUR MARINE OFFICER SELECTION TEAM IS CAPTAIN JACK MOORE AND CYSST BOB LA MONDA. WE WILL BE ON YOUR CAMPUS ON 4, 5 & 6 MAY 1982 FROM 9:30 TO 4:00 IN THE UNIVERSITY STUDENT CENTER OR SEE THE PLACEMENT OFFICE FOR MORE DETAILS ON OUR VISIT.

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD
COFFEEHOUSE COMMITTEE'S

PRESENTS:

John Stanfield
FRIDAY,
FEBRUARY
26th, at 8:30 pm

John plays 12 string slide guitar. His music ranges from blue grass, to folk, and satire. And to make the evening complete he'll tickle your funny bone with his off-the-wall humor! Join us for a great night of entertainment!

As always it's FREE and bring your own celebration.

Sports

Seahawk swim team hosts Fourth Annual invitational meet

Head swimming coach Dave Allen (center) and UNCW bench cheer from Trask pool's deck, during last week's Seahawk Invitational meet.

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

The UNCW men's and women's swim teams held the fourth annual Seahawk Invitational meet at Trask pool last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Seventeen meet records fell as the University of South Florida outswam the other 11 teams represented, and accumulated nine new S.J. marks.

South Florida's men's team led in points all three nights, while the women's team was behind Tampa by four points until Friday.

This is the first year that USF has come to UNCW for the invitational meet, and last year's overall winner, East Carolina, did not return for this year's event.

UNCW's men, who finished second in scoring last year, managed to pull a strong third place out of this year's competition, scoring 256 points.

Of the 17 new meet records, only two belong to UNCW, and both were set by senior Sam O'Leary, who bettered his own marks for both the 100- and 200-yd. butterfly events. His new butterfly records stand at :49.52 and 1:52.90, respectively.

Sam also set a school record in the 50-yd. freestyle this weekend, although his time was only good enough to give him a second place for the event.

Other UNCW men's winners were: Freshman Glenn Peterson in the 200-yd. butterfly consolation heat, and the 400-yd. freestyle relay team, also in the consolation heat.

UNCW's 400-yd. medley relay team, which has been a strong point-getter for the Seahawks all season, placed second behind South Florida in the championship heat.

The Seahawk women, who placed fourth overall in the meet, can be proud of their much-improved performance over last year's team standing for the invitational.

Placing behind South Florida, Tampa and Furman, the Lady 'Hawks were led by junior Janet Johnson, who was a triple winner, taking the 50-, 100-, and 200-yd. breaststroke events.

Although none of these wins were meet records, Janet's times were good enough to qualify her to swim in the Easterns, representing UNCW in all three events.

It was exciting to hear the thunder of swimmers racing through the water, and to watch the enthusiasm of their teammates who gathered around the starting blocks to cheer their lane's swimmer on.

The only unusual event that happened during the entire meet was that the lights went out during Friday night's finals, leaving a multitude of colored bathing suits and shaven heads in the dark and delaying the meet for about fifteen minutes.

The Seahawk Invitational marked the end of a collegiate swimming career for seniors Ellen Cushman and Karen Young of the women's team, as well as Terry Cascaddan, Bill DeForest, Mike Malone, Gregg Williams and co-captains Roddy Michalove and Sam O'Leary of the men's team.

Swimmers dive into the pool during Friday nights finals of the 4th annual Seahawk Invitational. The University of South Florida emerged the overall winner.

Men's basketball team has first losing season

Tony Britt
Sports Writer

The men's basketball season can be summed up in one word, disappointing. For the players, the coach and the fans, the 1981-82 campaign has failed to meet its expectations, and left everyone dejected by the misfortunate turn of events.

For the players, this season was supposed to put the Seahawks back in the winners' bracket after a 13-13 record last year. Instead, the team struggled all year to try and stay above the .500 level, but failed in the end.

For the coach, 10th-year mentor Mel Gibson, it marked the first losing season in six years since becoming a NCAA Division I member in 1976, despite his personal 200th career coaching victory Saturday against Northern Iowa.

For the fans, the current 12-14 record after Monday's 73-68 homecourt loss to Illinois-Chicago Circle speaks for itself. The 'Hawks are 6-5 in Trask Coliseum with only one crowd larger than 3,000.

With just one game left - at 2 pm Saturday against Baptist, UNCW's lackluster loss to UICC assured the Seahawks of a losing record. UNCW was 8-6 midway through the season, but then lost three games in a row, and are 1-4 in the last five games.

In recent games, UNCW lost to Wisconsin-Green Bay for the second time this season, 63-57 last Thursday, and defeated Northern Iowa Saturday, 60-58, on a follow of a missed shot at the buzzer by senior Randy McMillian. Both games were on the road.

McMillian's game-winning basket capped a UNCW rally that brought the 'Hawks back from a 46-40 deficit with eight minutes remaining. Senior guard Ed Timmons, who has averaged nearly 18 points in the last eight games, tied the game at 58 with a minute left. The Seahawks held the ball for a last shot, and Timmons long jumper bounced off the backboard into McMillian's hands.

In Monday's game, UNCW fell behind early and in the second half, got no closer than four points, 72-68, with 11 seconds left despite 22 points by Timmons, which equaled his career-high.

Junior forward Shawn Williams, who entered the game needing 17 points to reach 1,000 career points and become UNCW's seventh all-time leading scorer, got in early foul trouble and only scored three points in the second half, finishing with 10 for the game. He should reach the 1,000-point mark on his seventh point Saturday against Baptist.

Five seniors will close out their basketball careers at UNCW Saturday - guards Dennis Tobin, Alan Salzano and Timmons, and big men Leon Nickelson and McMillian.

Baptist, which UNCW defeated 80-77 earlier this season, is 13-12. UNCW has only lost to Baptist twice in the past 10 years.

Notes...

Signups are now being taken for softball and tennis, please pick up forms in the Intramural office.

Six members of UNCW men's and women's cross country teams won awards last Saturday at the 4th Annual 10-k Winter Run. The run is sponsored annually at Greenfield Lake, and proceeds go to benefit the Heart Fund.

 Jump rope for heart *****
* Jump rope for the Heart.
* March 1 from 2 - 5 pm. Faculty * and students may participate.
* For further information, contact
* Dr. Hollifield in the PE Dept.

Intramural standings

BASKETBALL

Red League	W-L-GB	Gold League	W-L-GB
Zombies	8-2-.800	Blue Deamons	5-5-.500
S.O.B.	8-1-.889	Bongers	8-1-.889
Skoal Brothers	3-6-.333	E.S.P.N.	5-2-.714
C.C. Rednecks	2-4-.333	Midgets	3-3-.500
C-Men	0-8-.000	Bucks	3-4-.429
Trotters	4-3-.571	Rebels	2-5-.400
Orange League	W-L-GB	Blue League	W-L-GB
Hangovers	6-3-.667	Reactors	7-1-.875
Kegmen	7-4-.636	Surf Dawgs	4-5-.444
Party Machine	7-2-.778	Bulldogs	7-2-.778
Tequillions	6-4-.600	Vanilla Block	1-7-.125
81-ers	4-6-.400	Warriors	6-3-.667
Gov't. Cutbacks	7-3-.700	M.F. Cops	5-3-.625
		Visitors	0-9-.000
Green League	W-L-GB	Silver League	W-L-GB
Dilligaf	9-0-1.000	Budmen	5-6-.455
Only Five	9-1-.900	Blazers	9-2-.818
M.B.A.	3-6-.333	F.C.A.	5-3-.625
Windows	2-6-.250	Square Root	2-7-.286
Convicts	3-5-.375	Strombolls	7-4-.630
R.O.R.	4-5-.444	Dixie Chickens	5-3-.625
		Horses	0-9-.000
		New Image	7-2-.778

Head coach Dave Allen congratulates senior stand out Sam O'Leary on his meet record 100 yard butterfly, one of the three events which qualified him for the Easterns.

Baseball season opens

David Newbern Sports Writer

The 1982 Seahawk baseball team will open their season at home in a double header against Old Dominion Saturday.

This spring's schedule will include tough ACC schools such as UNC-Chapel Hill, South Carolina, Clemson, and Georgia Tech.

The Seahawks will make a four consecutive game trip beginning March 7 playing USC, Clemson, Georgia Tech, and Baptist College, respectively.

The Seahawks, whose season record was 32-15 last spring, are a fairly young team, with only three men competing as seniors.

Head Coach Bill Brooks believes that this year's infield players "are the most experienced" UNC-VW has ever had. The 1982 outfield is comprised entirely of underclassmen, all of whom will be battling for a starting position.

Coach Brooks stated that this year's team has also "had a lot of walk-ons," and he hopes they will make a sizable contribution to the squad.

Valuable Seahawk players who will not be returning to play this year include Mike Antle and Tom Jones. Jones, who was drafted by New York's Yankees, held a batting average of .356 in New York's minor League.

Coach Brooks said that although Jones and Antle will be missed, the 1982 'Hawks should be as good as last year's team.

With the talent of this year's seniors, first baseman Clyde

Holley, second baseman Tim Whitehead, and catcher Kelly O'Donnell, the Seahawks should play well during their 44-game schedule.

Holley, with a .333 batting average, led the 'Hawks with 93 total bases last year, while Whitehead stole two bases in 14 tries and batted a .314 for the season.

During last week's double header scrimmage game against Chapel Hill, both the 'Heels and the 'Hawks went scoreless in the first game. The 'Hawks came back to win 4-2 in the second contest.

Coach Brooks feels confident that the Seahawks will make it to the playoffs this year if every player puts forth a strong effort.

"Every batter is capable of hitting .300 or better," he said.

Lady Hawks beat Duke, UNCC

by Yvette Young Sports Writer

The UNCW women's basketball team came out on top against the UNC-Charlotte 49-ers last Thursday. The final score was 104-74, with each of the five Lady 'Hawk starters scoring in double figures. Number 24, Sophomore Sherri Crumpler led the game with 38 points.

The season record for UNCW was 15-8 going into Thursday's game, and was topped off to 17-8 after Sunday's game against Duke. The Blue Devils routed the 'Hawks last year on the Duke court by one point - the 'Hawks used their home advantage this year to beat Duke by two points. Sophomore Sharon McMillian, number 42, led in scoring with 16 points. Number 23, Freshman Gwen Austin, dominated with 16 rebounds. The 'Hawks' 59-57 victory over Duke ended the regular season. The NCAA Div. II Tournament, held Wednesday here at UNCW, was the first of the 'Hawks' post-season games.

Women's Soccer Schedule

March

CHAPEL HILL	Sun. 21
N.C. STATE	Sun. 28

April

UNC GREENSBORO	Fri. 2
DUKE	Sun. 4
Playoffs	Sat. 17
	Sun. 18

Soccer team

faces problems

Yvette Young Sports Writer

The UNCW women's soccer club played an exciting game against Duke last Sunday. Duke won the match, 1-0, scoring the game's only point in the last minute of overtime.

Two of the three goals attempted by the Seahawks were made by junior Betty Jenkins. The third attempt was made by Freshman Jennifer Wilson.

This loss to Duke puts the Seahawks out of the 1982 Challenge Cup competition.

Due to a lack of funds, the women's club will be unable to play in the Alabama Invitational. Alabama was to be the first game of their regular season; another game will be scheduled to take its place, and will be played on March 20.

Although the Lady 'Hawks have had their share of problems so far, they are still looking forward to a successful season.

Sam O'Leary seeks nationals

B.J. Grob Sports Editor

Senior swimmer Sam O'Leary is a specialist. His specialty is setting school and pool records for his favorite swimming events, the 100- and 200-yd. butterfly.

Sam set new pool marks in each of these events during last week's Seahawk Invitational swim meet; helping him to win recognition as the outstanding male participant in the 3-day meet, and earning him a berth in the Eastern divisional championships.

In the Easterns, to be held in Pittsburgh on March 4-6, he has qualified not only for the 100- and 200-yd butterfly events, but also for the 200-yd. individual medley and the 50-yd. freestyle.

Sam is no stranger to this level of competition, having only missed qualifying for Nationals by four hundredths of a second in the 100-yd butterfly last year.

From Buffalo, New York, Sam, who smiles easily and often, came to UNCW because he wanted the small-school atmosphere and "good coach" Wilmington had to offer.

He is a recreation major, and plans to make his post graduate career in working with the elderly, and living in the south.

Although a senior, Sam will not graduate until Dec. '82. His collegiate swimming eligibility runs out in May, so Sam intends to spend next fall finishing up his academics, and helping Head Coach Dave Allen with the new recruits.

Sam has been competitively swimming for 12 years, and says he got into it because his older brother and sister did it, and it "got passed down."

The holder of five individual and three relay records, Sam works hard at what he does. Besides swimming twice daily, year round, Sam lifts weights and runs two and a half miles a day during the early weeks of team practice.

"We've known each other for the past four years," says teammate and fellow senior Mike Malone. "Sam works hard at the end of the year when it really counts."

The "end of the year" is at hand, and implies steep competition but Sam handles it well. He says his secret to winning is not shaving his head, but using it: to "psyche up" for a race, Sam says "just think you're better than everyone else." It must be a good strategy, because he usually is "better than everyone else."

Sam has gone from high school state and nationals swimming championships, to being captain of UNCW's team, and hopes of collegiate NCAA finals.

He has never had an injury, and if he succeeds in his goal, he will be the first swimmer at UNCW to have made it the NCAA nationals.

Entertainment

Area ski resorts offer package deals for students and groups

There are ten ski areas in western North Carolina that offer slopes for all kinds of skiers. From beginners to experts. Lessons and rentals are offered at all of these slopes, and many have special mid-week prices, package deals, and student or group rates.

Sugar Mountain at Banner Elk has 14 slopes. There are five novice slopes, seven intermediate and two expert. This mountain has the greatest vertical drop of any ski area in the Southeastern United States - 1,200 feet. The longest run here is 1.5 miles.

Facilities at Sugar Mountain include lodging, food, a nursery for the children, nightly entertainment and special rates.

Daily lift rates are $15 on weekdays and $20 on weekends (adults). For children under 12, the cost is $10 on weekdays and $15 on weekends. Adults can rent equipment, which usually includes skis, boots and poles, for $8 on weekdays and $10 on weekends. Children can rent equipment for $6 on weekdays and $8 on weekends.

For information on lodging rates call (704) 898-4521. Call (704) 898-5256 for snow conditions.

Beech Mountain at Banner Elk has 12 slopes. Five are novice slopes, three are intermediate, and four are advanced. This mountain has a vertical drop of 809 feet. There is nearby lodging available, food, a nursery for the children, nighttime entertainment, night skiing and ice skating.

Daily lift rates are $14 on weekdays for adults, and $20 on weekends. For children 12 and younger, the cost is $10 on weekdays and $14 on weekends.

Daily equipment rentals for adults are $10 on weekdays and $13 on weekends. For children, the cost is $5 on weekdays and $11 on weekends. For information on lodging call (704) 387-2011. Call (704) 387-2271 for snow conditions.

Seven Devils is located near Boone and has a vertical drop of 618 feet. This area has seven slopes - two are novice, two intermediate, and three are advanced.

Seven Devils offers nearby lodging, food, entertainment and weekend night skiing.

Adults will pay $10 on weekdays and $18 on weekends for daily lift tickets, and children will play $6 on weekdays and $12 on weekends. Adults may rent equipment daily for $7 on weekdays and $10 on weekends, and children may rent equipment for $5 on weekdays and $8 on weekends.

Call (704) 963-6555 for information on lodging, and (704) 963-6561 for snow conditions.

Wolf Laurel at Mars Hill has a vertical drop of 700 feet, and offers 10 slopes. This includes a beginners slope, three intermediate, four advanced intermediate, and two expert slopes. Facilities at Wolf Laurel include food, lodging, and night skiing.

Daily lift rates for adults are $10 on weekdays and $16 on weekends; for children the cost is $6 on weekdays and $8 on weekends. Daily equipment rentals are $8 on weekdays for adults, and $11 on weekends. Children will be charged $5 on weekdays and $7 on weekends.

For information on lodging or snow conditions, call (704) 889-4111.

Cataloochee is located at Maggie Valley and has a vertical slope of 740 feet. There are eight slopes, including two novice, four intermediate and two advanced.

Facilities at Cataloochee include nearby lodging, food, entertainment and night skiing.

Daily lift rates for adults are $10 on weekdays and $17 on weekends. For children 12 and under, the cost is $8 on weekdays and $10 on weekends.

Adults may rent equipment for $10 on weekdays, and $12 on weekends. Children may rent equipment for $8 on weekdays and weekends.

For information on snow conditions call (704) 926-1401 or (704) 926-0285.

Appalachian Ski Mountain is located at Blowing Rock, and has a vertical drop of 365 feet.

The longest run here is half a mile. Appalachian offers a total of eight slopes - three novice, three intermediate, one advanced and one expert.

Facilities include food and night skiing.

Daily lift rates for adults are $9 on weekdays and $15 on weekends. Children 12 and under are charged $7 on weekdays and $10 on weekends. Equipment rentals for adults are $6 on weekdays and $9 on weekends. For children the cost is $4 on weekdays and $7 on weekends.

Call (704) 295-7828 for information on snow conditions.

Scaly Mountain, North Carolina's newest ski area, has a vertical drop of 225 feet.

It is located near the North Carolina - Georgia line, and the resort has runs for advanced intermediate and beginner skiers. For information on Scaly Mountain, call (704) 526-3737.

High Meadows is located at Roaring Gap, and has two slopes with a vertical drop of 80 feet. For information call (919) 363-2221.

Fairfield Sapphire Valley is located southwest of Brevard, and has a vertical drop of 425 feet. Four slopes are designed for the novice to intermediate skier.

Facilities at Fairfield Sapphire Valley include food, lodging, a nursery, entertainment, night skiing and a toboggan run.

Daily lift rates for adults are $10 on weekdays and $16 on weekends. For children under 12, the cost is $6 on weekdays and $8 on weekends.

Equipment rental for adults is $7 on weekdays and $12 on weekends. For children, the cost is $4 on weekdays and $6 on weekends. For additional information, call (704) 743-3441.

Hounds Ear Lodge and Club at Blowing Rock has two slopes with a vertical drop of 107 feet. Lift and equipment rates are $14 for adults and $10 for children.

For additional information, call (704) 963-4321.

SOLID GOLD

'Showplace of The Stars'

On The Boardwalk

Carolina Beach

Presents

1st Annual

Winter Beach Concert

Featuring

The Embers

Thurs. February 25th

UNCW Students and CFTI Students

$3.00 w/Valid ID

til 9:00pm

Advance $5.00 Day of Show $7.00

Record Bar Wilmington

Bud & Joe's Carolina Beach

Mrs. Grace, ESP

Palm and Card

Readings

and

Advisor

Tells your past, present and future. Gives advise on love affairs, business and marriage. If you are in need of help, consult Mrs. Grace, ESP . . . Today. All ESP readings are confidential.

For Appointment

Call 799-9161

4903 Oleander Drive

across from

Hugh McCrae Park

MAD HOUSE ENTERPRISES

HAS TAKEN OVER

THE HOLE IN THE WALL

UNDER A NEW LEASE !

- ★ MAD HOUSE ENTERPRISES IS RUN BY COLLEGE STUDENTS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS!
- ★ HOAGIES SERVED w/CHIPS & A PICKLE !
- ★ NO MORE SQUARE PIZZA! ★ TABLE SERVICE !
- ★ MAD HOUSE MEMBERSHIPS - 75¢ - GOOD FOR 2 MONTHS MEMBERS RECEIVE A FREE ICETE A w/EACH PURCHASE !
- ★ OPTIONS OF PEPPERS, ONIONS, EXTRA CHEESE, OLIVES AND MUSHROOMS ON PIZZAS!
- ★ MONDAY AND WEDNESDAY SPECIALS !
- ★ LOCATED ON GROUND LEVEL GALLOWAY ★ OPEN SUN - THURS. 7:30-11:30

Campus Calendar

Phi Beta Psi raises money for Cystic Fibrosis

Earlier this month, Phi Beta Psi Sorority raised over a hundred dollars in pledges for the Cystic Fibrosis State Skate. The event was held on Feb. 6 from 1 to 3 pm at SportsWorld.

The sorority won a transistor radio and a television for bringing in the most money. A committee is currently drawing up plans to raffle the television. The person who buys the most raffle tickets will win the radio. The date of the raffle will be announced soon.

Members of the sorority took pledges for the Red Cross blood drive on Feb. 3 and 4.

They also assisted the nurses and other volunteers during the blood drive, which was held a week later.

On Feb. 7, Phi Beta Psi helped work on the winning IFC homecoming float. The sorority also participated in the Visitation

Day activities in Trask Coliseum on Feb. 13.

At its Feb. 21 meeting, the sorority was visited by the Grand Vice President for Collegiate Chapters, one of the oldest national sororities. Currently, Phi Beta Psi is a local sorority. The main purpose of this meeting was to discuss the possibility of obtaining national status.

Phi Beta Psi President Janet L. Hundley recently met with Associate Dean of Students Abby Hastings, Campus Minister Bob Haywood and some campus leaders about setting up a leadership program. President Hundley will attend a leadership breakfast on March 2. The purpose of the breakfast will be to get the campus leaders together to exchange ideas and identify other potential leaders.

John Stanfield to perform in Goodwood Tavern

Friday night is the night! Continuing their spring series, the University Program Board's Coffeehouse Half-Moon Productions will present the incredible sounds and humor of John Stanfield in the Pub at 8:30 pm.

John Stanfield beholds incredible skill on his twelve string guitar! He's played in clubs and colleges from North Carolina, where he's a native of Canada. Also, he has just returned from a tour of England where he won the hearts of Davidson, all over and up to many Twits and Bubbling (Idiots) Britishers! He has earned rave reviews for his versatility - he's a songwriter, fiddler, extraordinary singer, guitar player, and also off-the-wall comedian.

John's musical repertoire includes bluegrass, folk and satire. His style encompasses everything from no-nonsense riffing to laid back picking on songs like "Ode to Joy" and "Somewhere Over the Rainbow."

John has appeared on stage with such famous entertainers as John Prince, The Pure Prairie League, and Tom Rush. He was last seen in Wilmington a year ago playing along with The Red Clay Ramblers and Smothers & Lawrence.

So make plans to come to the Goodwood Tavern Friday night at 8:30 and enjoy the music and warped humor of John Stanfield. As always it's FREE and remember to bring your favorite beverage to celebrate! See you there or you will miss out on the fun and music!

For sale

For sale: Gibson Sonex 180 Deluxe, 6 string electric guitar, Flat Black, 4% months old, almost never played, $225.00. Call Larry between 12 and 6 pm Monday thru Friday, 763-6107.

Shannon Morton Essay

Contest deadline

The 1982 Shannon Morton Essay Contest deadline is Tuesday, March 23.

Write an essay on a tradition, a convention, a belief, or a ritual that seems obsolete and should be reconsidered. Submit essays to the Dept. of English. Prizes are $50, $30 and $20.

Classified

All students, faculty, and on-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.

Lost and Found

LOST

Men's Gold wedding band with black indentions. Red, white and blue wallet.

FOUND

Pair of contact lenses. Check with Chryl Ferguson, Rm. 101 in the Pub.

Services

Typist Available.
Betty Ames
799-2578
IBM Executive Typewriter

TYPING

Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc...
call 791-0990

Lost - gold bracelet, has sentimental value. Please call Beth, 392-7632 - Reward offered.

Enjoy Happy Hour
In The
Schooner Lounge

5:00pm til 6:30pm
Monday thru Friday

Live Entertainment Every Friday and Saturday

Ladies Always Free Must Be Over 18

The Clipper Room offers Luncheon Specials Daily $2.99

open 7 am - 2 pm
5 pm - 9 pm

Located in Wilmington's Historical District

801 Market Street

Beautiful
Mini-suites
Available for
Your Visitors

College Students
Welcome

OFFERS A 20%
DISCOUNT TO
UNCW STUDENTS
ON LUNCHES

Hours

11:30 - 3:00

5:00 - 10:00

Happy Hour Every Saturday

The Hot Line

Fast...Free Delivery

Call us!
392-5656

4119 Oleander

Hours:
4:30 - 1:00 Sun. - Thurs.
4:30 - 2:00 Fri. & Sat.

You can help us serve you and others faster if you follow these simple steps when ordering your pizza.

1. Know what you want before ordering (size of pizza, quantity, what you want on it, any drinks).
2. Know the phone number and address of the residence from which you are calling.
3. When placing an order, let us know if you have large denomination bills.
4. Remain by the phone after ordering. We may call back to confirm the order.
5. Turn on your porch light.
6. Price that is quoted on the phone includes sales tax but does not include the subtraction of the coupon. The driver will subtract it when the delivery is made.
7. Have your coupon and money with you when the driver arrives. Thanks for following these directions.

Menu

All Pizzas Include Our Special Blend of Sauce and Real Cheese

Our Superb Cheese Pizza

12" cheese $4.45
16" cheese $6.45

Domino's Deluxe

5 items for the price of 4
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Onions, Green Peppers and Sausage
12" Deluxe $8.05
16" Deluxe $11.85

The Vegi

5 items for the price of 4
Mushrooms, Olives, Onions, Green Peppers and Double Cheese
12" Vegi $8.05
16" Vegi $11.85

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Onions, Anchovies, Green Peppers, Olives, Sausage, Ground Beef, Hot Peppers, Double Cheese, Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $9.00 per item
16" pizza $13.50 per item

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.

Coke / Quarts

Customer pays deposit.

Our drivers carry less than $20.
Limited delivery area.

©1982 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

2 Quarts of Coke

2 free quarts Coke with any pizza.
Customer pays deposit.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 3/14/82

Fast, Free Delivery

Domino's Pizza
4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

1982/5526

$1

$1.00 off any pizza.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 3/14/82

Fast, Free Delivery

4119 Oleander
Phone: 392-5656

1982/5526

Summer Job Information

One source for summer jobs across the nation—always big and often neglected by collegian jobseekers—is not quite as big this year. But it's still big, particularly in the kinds of jobs for guys and girls who need to make some bread between June and September.

This is the summer job market for positions with Federal departments and agencies, which include anything from being a lifeguard with the National Park Service to a geologist with the Bureau of Mines. Most of these jobs are filled through the Office of Personnel Management (formerly the Civil Service Commission), which has regional offices across the nation.

A nationwide survey conducted by Federal Jobs, for the particular benefit of collegian jobseekers, shows that Uncle Sam, responding to President Reagan's drive to cut back on Big Government, has prepared the number of job availabilities for this summer considerably, sometimes by as much as 50 per cent in some regions. That's bad news.

The good news, Federal Jobs found out, is that the kinds of jobs left, around 10,000 nationwide (excluding special programs for minorities), are ideal for college men and women.

Federal Jobs, a biweekly newspaper devoted to listings of jobs available in the Federal government sector, is out now with its Annual Summer Jobs Issue, listing thousands of opportunities state by state.

Federal Jobs also gives tips and detailed explanations on how to apply for them and otherwise find your way through the bureaucratic labyrinth.

Job recruiters at OPM regional offices told Federal Jobs that most cutbacks are of middle-level jobs; typically, administrative positions which wouldn't be filled by collegians anyway. But there is still a heavy demand for people who can type, file or otherwise clerk, modest but respectably-paying jobs for many people between semesters. There also remain plenty of upper echelon availabilities for students with good track records in engineering—which is in particular demand—or other science/technocrat areas, including medical and health assignments for premeds.

But act fast. Federal Jobs warns. Most job deadlines are March 15 or April 15.

For further information on Federal Jobs, write the publication at Dept. C, 240 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10016. A copy of the Annual Summer Jobs Issue, priced at $5.50 postpaid, is available from the same address.

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by The Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Wachovia Bank & Trust Co.
Ms. Dorothy Moore
Mr. Todd Albert
Ms. Elizabeth Howard
Thurs., Feb. 25
Pos: Retail Mgmt. Trainees, Systems
Majors: Acctg., Bus., Comp., Sci., (Econ., Fin., Mgmt.)

Branch Banking & Trust Co.
Mr. Billy L. Montague
Mr. Robert A. Wheeler
Thurs., March 4
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Acctg., Bus. Admn., Comp. Sci., Econ., Math

Campus Leaders Meet

Some campus leaders joined forces this past Wednesday to share growth ideas. Plans were also discussed about identifying potential leaders on campus.

Associate Dean Abby Hastings and Campus Minister Bob Haywood met with students to discuss future plans. A meeting for all organization leaders is planned for March 2. Over 67 leaders have been identified.

The March 2 breakfast meeting scheduled will be in the cafeteria meeting room. Students should be seated at 7 am and ready to share future plans.

Students without ID's will be charged $1.85 for the meal.

Scheduled Workshops

Resume
Fri., March 5
12 pm

Resume
Tues., March 16
3 pm

Job Interview
Thurs., March 18
2 pm

Guidelines in Seeking Governmental Employment
Fri., March 19
1 pm

PINEWOOD
NEW APARTMENT COMMUNITY
AT RANDALL DRIVE
[Across from UNCW off Hwy 132]

One Bedroom $230
Two Bedroom $285
6 months or 1 year lease
Apply at Pinewood
4901 Randall Dr.
Phone 799-2911
Phillips Management Group

Wilmington's #1 Beverage Center
Cheapest Kegs In Town

We Ice Them Down Free

Headquarters
for the Party Patrol

Come In & Register

5311 Market St.

Across from Four Winds

"I'LL TEACH BILLY TO BE A COWPUNCHER AS LONG AS HE DON'T PRACTICE ON MY COWS."

LITE BEER FROM MILLER. EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 17

March 4, 1982

Eight pages

Senate votes to freeze 'Seahawk' funds, president vetoes action

The Seahawk may be in jeopardy of being shut down by the student senate. At the senate meeting Thursday night, Senator Mark Bremmer introduced a resolution to reprimand The Seahawk editor, freeze funds and look into charges of "yellow journalism."

The resolution was debated, amended and passed by a vote of eight for and seven against with no abstentions.

The resolution stated that the funds were to be frozen until

Editor Tricia Wallace appeared before the senate to "answer any and all questions."

Ms. Wallace appeared before the senate on Feb. 18 to answer financial questions but she refused to answer questions about journalistic ethics before the entire senate and invited them to discuss the matter privately in her office.

Vice President Jeff Newton resolved that the senate should send a formal letter of notice to The Seahawk editor to appear before the senate this week and that the letter be delivered to the editor's office by an SGA official.

President Steve Schmidt vetoed the action Friday afternoon. "I broke down the resolution and basically what it sums up to be is that it was poorly written," Schmidt said. "One is that there are no specific facts of yellow journalism and if they (the senate) are referring to the article about the drug bust and applause by the senate, that was responsibly corrected by the paper. Also, the editor was not formally informed or instructed by anyone to appear before the senate." Schmidt added that the vote did not pass with a quorum.

In his president's report Thursday night, Schmidt said, "We (the senate) should take more time before proposing motions and resolutions that have an impact on this university before confirmation."

An unidentified senator said the "recent punitive legislation directed toward the student newspaper and its editor, Tricia Wallace, is utterly unconstitutional and not binding on The Seahawk or its editor."

Because of the senate's action against the newspaper, Dr. William Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, said that the university administration strongly favors a change to a fee allocation board system.

The senate can overturn Schmidt's veto with a two-thirds vote at tonight's meeting.

Forensics team wins seven trophies

by Maere Kay Adams
Journalism Contributor

UNCW's Forensics team brought home seven trophies after two days of competition at Berry College in Georgia Feb. 19 and 20.

Christopher Cunningham won trophies for first place in Oral Interpretation of Prose, third place in Dramatic Interpretation and fifth place in Impromptu Speaking.

Mike Stroud won trophies for first place in Extemporaneous Speaking, second place in Persuasive Speaking, sixth place in Impromptu Speaking, and sixth place in Rhetorical Criticism. The team was entered in ten events competing against twenty other schools including Appalachian State, Western Carolina and the University of Alabama.

The first weekend is February the Forensics team traveled to Old Dominion in Norfolk, VA and brought home eight trophies. Brian Perry won first place in After-dinner Speaking and fifth place in Rhetorical Criticism.

Dierdre Brewster won third place in Poetry Interpretation and fourth place in Prose Interpretation.

Danny Ibrahim won second place in Rhetorical Criticism, second place in Informative Speaking, and fifth place in Extemporaneous Speaking.

George Ward also won third place in Extemporaneous Speaking.

The Forensics team is composed of students from different majors. It is not limited to just Speech Communications majors. Forensics is competitive speaking so these students have opportunities to show their

See FORENSICS p. 8.

Senate may close Sailing Club

by Sankey Blanton
Journalism Contributor

The UNCW Sailing Club has approximately 30 members; they have elected officers, are open to all, have a constitution, and collect dues. Their advisor is Dr. Robert M. Wolff of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation (HPER) Department. If the student senate carries out motions that were presented after the regular session on Feb. 25, there won't be any Sailing Club next week.

The alternative seems to be the resignation of Dr. Wolff as club advisor. "There was an obvious attempt to get me to resign," Wolff said. "No resolution was made by the senate, but it was made clear by Mike Stroud. One of the comments made by Stroud was that if I can't work with the SGA maybe the club should get an advisor who could."

"I find it hard to believe they think I can't work with them," said Wolff. "I've worked with them for three years and with three different clubs; the Recreations Majors, Racquetball and the Sailing Club. It is hard to understand why my request for $230 last night was viewed as not being able to work with the SGA."

Dr. Wolff was talking about a bill for repair and replacement of HPER equipment which had been loaned to the Sailing Club. The bill was first presented to the senate on Feb. 18. That request was not honored.

"I didn't see the need to be there (Feb. 18), but after the feedback I received, I felt it necessary to come to the meeting on the 25 and try to clear up any misunderstanding and tell them how the HPER Department felt on the whole matter," Wolff said.

The HPER Department was making a point about approximately $22,500 spent to maintain the Laser sailboats over the past years. These boats have been continuously made available to the Sailing Club. During that time, the SGA has only funded about $400 for the boats' upkeep.

"Obviously, there was a disagreement or misunderstanding between what I was saying and what some of the (SGA) members were hearing," Wolff said. "I was presenting what I considered to be a past-due bill, and told the Senate that I expected favorable action because it was a past-due bill."

"I told the Senate that if we received an unfavorable response, or didn't receive any response at all, this would be viewed by the Department as a break in the good faith relationship we have had in the last four years," said Wolff. "If a break indeed occurred, we would withdraw support and use of the boats we own and have supported for the last years."

The regular SGA meeting ended with nominations for "Speaker of the Year" and "Senator of the Year." The matter of the repair bill was not acted upon. Dr. Wolff restated his position, after which a special SGA session was hastily organized and criticism began to be heard.

"I guess I was a little surprised that when I made what I considered a reasonable request

See SAILING p. 8.

UPB Half Moon Productions will present music by the 'Clamtones' in a St. Patrick's Day Celebration at 8:30 pm March 17 in the Pub. Dress up in your finest green outfit and show up to help celebrate in traditional Irish style. For more details, see story p. 3.

Self-centered life, self-centered faith cannot deliver promised happiness in long run

"We live in one of the most self-centered cultures in history. Our economic system is the social rationalization of personal selfishness." Thus writes Jim Wallis, one of my personal mentors, in his new book, The Call to Conversion. "Self-fulfillment and individual advancement have become our chief goals. The leading question of the times is, 'How can I be happy and satisfied?'"

Those of us who seek to root our lives in the will of God are beginning to face up to the destructive self-centeredness of

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood, Campus Minister

our lifestyle and our faith. Preoccupation with self dominates the spirit of our age and shapes even the character of religion. As Jim Wallis points out, "Modern evangelism has played right along with this central theme. The most common question in evangelism today is, 'What can Jesus do for me?' Potential converts are told that Jesus can make them happier, more self-satisfied, better adjusted, and more prosperous. Jesus quickly becomes the supreme product, attractively packaged and aggressively sold to a consuming public. Complete wit billboards, and bumper stickers, modern evangelistic campaigns advertise Jesus in a competitive market. Even better than Coca Cola, Jesus is 'the Real Thing'."

"The gospel message has been molded to suit an increasingly narcissistic culture. Conversion is proclaimed as the road to self-realization. Whether through evangelical piety or liberal therapy, the role of religion is presented as a way to help us uncover our human potential—our potential for personal, social, and business success, that is. Modern conversion brings Jesus into our lives rather than bringing us into his. Jesus doesn't change ourselves, he improves them. Conversion is just for ourselves, not for the world. We ask how Jesus can fulfill our lives, not how we might serve his kingdom."

I believe that a self-centered life and a self-centered faith can not deliver the promised happiness in the long run. So beware of the false promises of false gods.

Letters

President responds to attribution

To the editor:

I would like to say it was interesting to read an editorial by Charles Parsons in Feb. 19th's issue of the Seahawk. In this, he attributes a statement which I did not make concerning the "alleged" confidentiality violation by the special prosecutor. For those concerned, the special prosecutor did not discuss the internal aspects of the recent court proceeding with me, but only the final result of the hearing. In other words, she informed the SGA Vice President who transferred the information to me that the SGA Attorney General plead guilty and was sentenced to disciplinary probation. According to the State's Attorney General's office and other lawyers, this information was totally and legally permissible and does not violate the confidentiality of the court.

Furthermore, I would like to say, it has been my personal opinion and policy since I have taken office to protect and represent the best interests of the students. That means ALL STUDENTS! Therefore, I feel, the stand I have taken concerning this entire incident is justified and representative of the students of UNCW.

Respectfully,
Steven Schmidt
SGA President

Students defend 'Atlantis'

To the editor:

I wish to respond as a writer and a student to the "President's Report" of Feb. 19 concerning the controversy over the allotment of funds to Atlantis. In as much as the only views heard so far have been that of the allocator and the allocatee, I feel it is time a member of the general student body be heard.

Atlantis is the only outlet for a writer's frustrations on the UNC campus. Last semester, over 100 poems were submitted to Atlantis. Due to a limit on the amount of material published in a single issue, much of this was not published. The students are writing their poetry and prose faster than it can be published. By cutting the number of issues to one a year, you are putting a strangle hold on the budding writers on campus. The only result being the stymieing of a number of possible Shakespeares'.

In Mr. Schmidt's article, he spoke of the wish of the SGA to represent the students of UNCW. They attempt to do this by limiting their freedom of expression. Mr. Schmidt also spoke of the "problems" that have plagued Atlantis, such as the typesetting problem and the subsequent retyping and delayed publishing. I consider the final product well worth the increased cost and time. Atlantis was relatively free of typographical errors unlike many other publications, such as Mr. Schmidt's article which contained three.

Mr. Schmidt wishes to crush the literary talent of UNCW underfoot much as he would a tender daffodil. To do such a thing would surely do irreparable harm to the talented students at UNCW. Atlantis does a service for our campus, to limit it is to deny a number of students the right to express themselves and the overall student body the right to revel in its beauty.

Ken Gilbert
Diane Walsh

Forensics advisor clears the air

The the editor:

As advisor to the Forensics Team, I feel obligated to clear the air concerning the misconceptions and innuendo in Ms. Grob's letter of Feb. 25.

First, in terms of fund-raising, the letter failed to mention the money earned by the team's tournament - a substantial figure. In addition to this revenue, twenty universities from nine states came to our campus. Several students inquired about transferring here and people from the University of Alabama intend to vacation in Wilmington. The tournament was of tremendous public relations value to both UNCW and to Wilmington.

Second, Ms. Grob implied that we only serve fifteen students. I have the following responses: (a) Membership is open to all students; (b) By traveling and competing in an intellectual activity, we enhance the academic reputation of UNCW; (c) In the past three years we have won three state championships while competing successfully against students from over 200 major colleges and universities on a national level. We have won hundreds of awards, a positive public relations factor which benefits everyone connected with UNCW.

The letter concludes with a "no hard feelings" disclaimer. If Ms. Grob has nothing against those mentioned in her letter, than why mention PBL, Forensics, or any other organization? She should realize that any comparison implies a value

See Advisor p. 8

President's Report

by Steven Schmidt, SGA President

Reestablishment of radio station goal of SGA

One of the concerns of this administration is the reestablishment of a radio station on this campus. It is our feeling that there is a definitive need for a well organized, responsibly managed, and financially sound radio facility at this university.

The impact that such a facility will have on the university and the community at large cannot be overemphasized. A responsible radio operation will draw favorable attention to the university as well as provide valuable attention to the university as well as provide valuable practical experience to the many students on this campus that are currently learning skills that are used in day-to-day radio operations. Practical experience in business, journalism, communications and mass media are of great value to the graduate student and will help towards the fulfillment of their career goals in the future.

At this time there is being prepared a proposal to establish a responsive, responsible radio facility on this campus that will meet the needs of the students and the general community. When this proposal is completed, it will be reviewed by the SGA to insure that any station on this campus will be and remain an asset rather than a liability. Such a station will fill a void that currently exists on this campus as there is no media having the ability to reach the students with timely, accurate and important information on a daily basis.

The keystone of the proposal is responsibility. The SGA will not support a station that is not responsible and not professional. Provisions will be made to insure that there are adequate controls and responsible leaders so a radio station will reflect the quality of education and the high standards that are to be found at this university. A radio station has great potential on this campus and if properly managed and organized, can provide the students, the university and the community a service we can all be proud of.

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Yvette Young

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Chyrl Ferguson

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Hooks assails Reagan's policies

by Steven Schmidt
Journalism Contributor

The month of February, designated as Black History Month, is one of historic significance. Since 1863, blacks have been on the pathway to freedom. In 1867, blacks were able to attain the right to vote. Men such as Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, and Martin Luther King, Jr., inspired the movement towards the enhancement of the social, economic and political rights of blacks in America. Today, the distinguished Dr. Benjamin Hooks succeeds those inspirational men who battled for so long to counter the force of racial discrimination.

On Thursday, Feb. 25, in honor of Black History Month, the Black Student Union of UNCW presented the civil rights activist, Dr. Benjamin Lawson Hooks. As a lawyer, judge, minister, former FCC Commissioner, and now Executive Director of the NAACP, there is no doubt he was an outstanding choice to speak at this particular occasion. Before a crowd of about 800, he assailed President Reagan's philosophy and policies.

Hooks proclaimed that "Reagan is blowing the trumpet loudly and clearly, but it's the wrong charge at the wrong time. He is calling us to go backwards instead of moving forward." He further added, "Reagan is blowing the trumpet all for the greedy and not at all for the needy." Therefore, the struggle of the black movement is being cut short.

Although a large number of whites are below the poverty level than blacks, blacks are smaller in population than whites. Therefore, the cuts in social security, food stamps, and education, to name a few, would eventually force blacks backward.

"We don't need a man as president who makes laws he wishes to obey, but a government of laws, not of men," Hooks said. He then told listeners that Reagan needs help. "I would like to help him, and in November, I will by giving him a responsible Congress that will stand up to him and that won't roll over and change laws they do not understand."

He concluded his speech by inspiring blacks to continue on with what they strongly believe. Hooks reiterated a quote once stated in a time of despair by Franklin D. Roosevelt, "We have nothing to fear but fear itself." Don't look back, but go forward. For this nation to be free of racism, he added, it will take blacks and whites arm in arm, shoulder to shoulder, and heart to heart together. As quoted once before, "Freedom is not Free!"

by Sankey Blanton
Journalism Contributor

The Non-Traditional Students Organization will sponsor an exercise in democracy, a public forum for debate and questioning on March 18 in the Hinton James Student Services Building (Pub) between 11:30 am and 1 pm.

All candidates for SGA President, Vice President, Attorney General and other elected positions will be invited to present themselves to the campus and answer questions from the student audience. Students are encouraged to come at any time during the lunch hour in order to participate.

Last year's forum was held in the evening at King Hall, and was organized in a week, but was considered successful by its promoter, Sherry McCarley. McCarley, who is the current president of the Non-Traditional Students Organization, recalls that forum as the first activity undertaken by the new club.

The forum is conducted like a news conference. Each candidate for a specific office is allowed three minutes of speech time to present qualifications

'Clamtones' to perform

It's coming! Before you know, it's going to be the BIG GREEN night of all nights . . . St. Patrick's Day: The day of the Irish (an not so Irish!). So, to enjoy this night of nights the Coffeehouse Committee's Half-Moon Productions will bring you The St. Patrick's Day Celebration."

On Wednesday, March 17 ("Irish eyes are a smiling") will be an evening to enjoy the "highlands" styles of music by the Clamtones!!

The Clamtones play a variety of music ranging from foot-stomping mountain music and Irish fiddle tunes to blues, swing, bluegrass, and some of their original clam "tunes"! Their music is GREAT for square dancing, clogging, and Irish jigs when the music moves you to get hopping! The group consist of Cam Mullikin on guitar and vocals; Thad Beach on madolin, harmonica, and vocals; John Bates on fiddle, and vocals; and Bubba Cox on guitar and vocals. All are accomplished and seasoned musicians bent on giving you a St. Patty's Day you won't soon forget.

Although all the guys in the band have played with various groups over the years, the most notable is John Bates fiddling with the highly-touted and regionally acclaimed "Salt Marsh String Band" of a few years back.

So don your finest green outfit, pluck a four-leaf clover (it may be your lucky night) and come to the Pub prepared for the "liveliest" evening of the year. Showtime is 8:30 pm - be there - aloha!

Non-traditional students to sponsor candidates forum and personal views to the audience. The floor is then opened to questions from the students, to which all candidates respond. After a number of questions, each candidate gets three minutes for summation of positions before the next office's candidates take the stage. The forum proceedings are controlled by a moderator.

The moderator at the first forum was the organizer, Sherry McCarley. This year a faculty member was sought for the position. Dr. Betty Jo Welch, Associate Professor of Speech Communication, has accepted the role of moderator.

"We were extremely pleased with the response last year, both from the candidates and the students of the audience," McCarley said. "It provided an opportunity for students to actively interview their prospective SGA members."

According to SGA Vice President Jeff Newton, "This forum presents an excellent opportunity for students to learn about the candidates and how they stand on issues which affect students; I am looking forward to increased campus participation."

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

Thurs. - Ladies Night

Ladies Admitted Free All Night

All Students Free Until 10 pm

"Free Draft Until 10"

Ladies Drink Free All Night

Fri. - Nightwing Rock-N-Roll

Happy Hour from 7-10
Bottle Beers 50 Cents

HAVE A GREAT

SPRING BREAK!!

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests welcome.

Sports

Lady Seahawks host tournament

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

UNCW's Lady Seahawk basketball squad can be proud of its 1981-82 season, which ended with the NCAAIAW division II tournament held in Trask Coliseum last Wednesday - Saturday nights.

Lenior Rhyne, the state's top-ranked div. II team, won the tournament by defeating North Carolina A&T, 75-69. UNCW, rated third in the state's division II competition (Campbell being second), and was the top-seeded team in the tournament.

During Thursday night's game against Belmont Abbey, #23, Freshman Gwen Austin was the 'Hawks' top scorer, with 23 points and 14 rebounds. The Lady 'Hawks' won that contest 82-78, and all five starters - Austin, sophomores Jill Amos, Sharon McMillan, Sherri Crumpler, and Sheila Patterson scored into double figures with 13, 17, 11, and 10 points each, respectively.

Amos and McMillan also led the Lady 'Hawks' in assists with five each.

The Seahawks played a tough game, with Belmont Abbey only closing up the point spread of the second half in the last few minutes.

During Friday night's match, UNCW paired with Lenoir Rhyne, who emerged the winner 87-56, after a halftime tie of 34. The Seahawks were led in scoring by Amos, 16 points, and Freshman Sharon Smith, 14 points.

UNCW went on to play Campbell's Lady Camels in the consolation game on Saturday, losing the contest, 82-61. Gwen Austin and Sharon McMillan were the only Lady 'Hawks' to score in double figures with 10 and 23 points, respectively.

Sharon McMillan was named all-tournament player, accumulating 48 points in the tournament.

Jill Amos and Gwen Austin were also honored by being picked as All-State division II players. Both were also All-State players during their high school basketball careers.

A young team, senior forward Vertha Dixon is the only graduating Lady Seahawk player.

photo by Scott Sibley

Sophomore Sharon McMillan takes a shot during Friday night's game.

Jeff Siggins qualifies Easterns

by Donna Holden
Sports Writer

Freshman swimmer Jeff Siggins has qualified for the Eastern Inter-Collegiate Swimming and Diving Championships to be held March 4, 5, and 6 at the University of Pittsburgh in PA.

A marine biology major from Jonesboro, GA, he is one of the top freshmen to join the Seahawk swimming program this year.

At Jonesboro High School, Siggins was state champion in the 1000 yard and 1650 yard freestyle, resulting in his being picked as a member of the Georgia All Star Swim Team.

Since his arrival at UNCW, Siggins has set both school and pool records in the 1000 yd freestyle, as well as developing into a fine backstroke swimmer. He is one and a half seconds off being tied for the school record in the 200 yd. backstroke. As for that, he says, "it's another goal to reach."

Jeff Siggins

Coach Dave Allen says, "Jeff is a very talented and versatile swimmer. He has quite a bit of natural ability, and we can move him around a bit (between events). I expect him to continue to improve and be a fine swimmer."

Allen also says, "He is easy to get along with and is a hard worker which keeps him on top of things as a swimmer. He knows what he's doing."

Siggins used to compete in the backstroke, but has been swimming distance freestyle competitively for two years. The championship is something he aimed for: "I like swimming here. . . I get to compete and setting new goals is self-satisfying."

Racquetball club regroups

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

Racquetball is a sport whose popularity is rapidly increasing among colleg and university students. UNCW is no exception to this trend.

The campus racquetball club has plans underway for a super season, beginning with the Eastern Seaboard Racquetball Invitational on April 16-18. The tournament will be hosted by UNC-Chapel Hill, and will consist of approximately 20 teams, including stiff competition from schools like UVA, Maryland, NC State, Appalachian, and East Carolina.

"We were number one last semester," says Sophomore Kay Wells, the club's secretary-treasurer.

Kay is a chemistry major, and is one of the team's players who is actively coordinating the Chapel Hill match. Along with Kay, Senior and Club President Darci Lee is serving as a co-coordinator of the club's spring schedule.

Last semester's racquetball squad went 5-0. Among returning students from that team are juniors John Ritch, John Mims and Rick Alsop.

The club is open to all students, and participation is highly encouraged. Meetings are held each Wednesday night between 6 and 9 at the Trask courts.

So far this semester 12-15 students are actively playing, although only 4 or 5 are female. The clubs faculty advisors are Dr. Mark Galizio of the Psychology Dept. and Mr. Dave Hanners of the Physical Education Department.

"Our racquetball ladder (outside the courts) is out of date," says Kay, "but a new one is being made and will be up after spring break."

The club is facing many reorganization problems, but seems to be handling them well. After spring break, a challenge tournament is planned to decide who the 10-member (6 male, 4 female) traveling team will be.

The racquetball players are also planning to invite dual matches to be held here in the weeks following the Eastern Seaboard Invitational.

Seahawks jump

rope for heart

On March 1, UNCW held its second annual jump rope for heart. There were 15-20 jumpers who participated in the event, whose proceeds will go to the National Heart Fund.

Last year, the Seahawks raised about $1400, but this year's goal organizers seem less optimistic: "We're going to be far off that pace this year," a spokesman said.

The UNCW Rangers Club is an exciting and adventuresome new campus organization, whose proposed activities will include such outdoor sporting events as canoeing, scuba diving, white water rafting, outdoor survival, and hang gliding.

Club President Freshman Mark Reed calls the club "a good time in the outdoors," and says the group plans on aiming for possibly three trips per semester.

A primary goal of the club is to teach outdoor safety and survival to its members, and membership is open to ALL students with a $10 membership fee.

The club meets on Thursdays at 4 pm in the Pub, and every other week the meetings are open to everyone interested; the remaining Thursdays are devoted to staff members.

Although the rangers group takes its name from an elite US Army group, it is important to note that UNCW's club is separate from its ROTC program. The group has been founded to teach, not dictate, and other campus rangers clubs have been enormously successful. This is especially true of the University of Pennsylvania's Philadelphia campus rangers group, which Reed calls "one of the most popular on campus."

Of the campus' approximately 18,000 students, 150 are active rangers, and the club is as popular among females as males.

The only requirement for UNCW's rangers' adventures is that interested parties attend all survival training and swimming classes before going on the trip(s).

Those interested in self-discipline, outdoor adventure, survival, and self-confidence should look into UNCW's rangers club, by attending the meetings or contacting Jerry Swanner or Sgt. Younts in the ROTC office.

Photo by B.J. Grob

Mary and Frank Atwood, Anne Lineberry and Martha Davis jump rope to benefit the Heart Fund.

Photo by Jamie Moncrief

'Hawks beat Baptist

Tony Britt
Sports Writer

The men's basketball team closed its 1981-82 season Saturday with an exciting 50-49 over Charleston Baptist in Trask Coliseum, but it shed little light on an already-dismal season.

UNCW finished 13-14 for its first losing record since becoming an NCAA Division I member in 1976. Baptist, meanwhile, completed its first non-losing season since 1973 with a 13-13 mark.

Five seniors started in Saturday's game with 6-foot-8 Randy McMillan leading the cause with 13 points and 12 rebounds. A native of Raleigh, McMillan came to UNCW in his junior year as a transfer from North Greenville Junior College in South Carolina. Other seniors included Leon Nickelson, a 6-9 center from Warsaw who played two seasons at Mt. Olive Community College; Alan Salzano, a point guard from Durham who played two seasons at St. Andrews; and guard Dennis Tobin from Hopkinton, NJ, the only four-year player for the Seahawks.

UNCW gained its first lead against Baptist, 31-29, midway through the second half on junior Shawn Williams' 1000th career point at UNCW. Williams finished the game with 11 points - 1004 for his career, putting him seventh on the all-time scoring list.

The score was tied at 45 and 47 with about two minutes to play. After a Baptist basket, junior Mike Prudhoe made a free throw to make the score 49-48, Baptist's favor, with 1:27 left. Baptist's Reggie Walker, the Bucs' leading scorer with 12 points, got the ball inside on the next possession and went up for a slam dunk with less than a minute left. But UNCW's McMillan was there to block the shot and pull down the rebound, and UNCW called timeout at halfcourt with about 30 seconds left.

The Seahawk offense, looking for the best shot, gave the ball to 6-7 junior Scott Prudhoe in the lane, who looked at the basket, then dished off to sophomore guard Frankie Dickens, who canned a 10-footer on the baseline with 14 seconds left.

Baptist missed a final desperation attempt.

For the season, Williams led in field goal percentage (54.3) and scoring (15.4), and was second in rebounding (5.4) and steals (3.7). Timmons followed in scoring (10.0), including leading the 'Hawks in six of their last nine games. Sophomore Carlos Kelly led in rebounding (5.7), assists (6.6) and steals (4.1), and was next in scoring (7.9). Dickens followed in scoring (7.8), and was second in assists. Nickelson led in free throw percentage (78.5) and blocked shots (3.3).

Photo by Jamie Moncrief

Number 25, Shawn Williams, goes for the layup during the season's finale against Baptist College.

UPB HALF MOON PRODUCTIONS
~ presents a ~

St. Patrick's Day Celebration

MUSIC BY THE

Clamtones

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1982

8:30 PM

IN THE PUB

COME JOIN IN THE FUN!!! DRESS UP IN YOUR FINEST GREEN OUTFIT AND SHOW UP AT THE PUB TO HELP CELEBRATE IN TRADITIONAL IRISH STYLE. THERE IS EVEN A CONTEST TO HELP DETERMINE WHO THE CAMPUS BIG MOUTH IS SPONSORED BY HANDOVER DISTRIBUTING COMPANY WITH PRIZES AWARDED!!

— BEVERAGES PROVIDED —

"Liberty means responsibility. That's why most men dread it."

— George Bernard Shaw

Next year it's all up to you. Only you can decide to start an insurance program now. The longer you wait, the more it costs. Find out how easy it is to begin our college plan, chosen by more seniors than any other.

Call the Fidelity Union Life Field Associate in your area:

WM C. "BILL" WALLIN, JR.
College Market Representative

P.O. Box 4547
Wilmington, N.C. 28406

Peter Rabbit to appear in concert

Mix, shake and blend well rabbits, mice, cats, a squirrel, an owl, a duck, a couple of pigs and a hedgehog in a tasty garden with a "pesty farmer" and the yield is The Wilmington Civic Ballet's Spring Concert, "Peter Rabbit and Friends."

So, if you are a connoisseur of fun and dance, don't miss this year's Spring Concert to be presented at Thalian Hall March 12-14. Curtain time is 8 pm for the evening performances and 3 pm for the Sunday Matinee. Tickets are $4 for adult, $2.50 for children or by membership. This entire delightful treat promises to be no longer than one and one half hours, including intermission.

What's in store for you? This Spring Concert has been generously flavored with an expanded cast of 29 (including eight children and two male guest performers from the North Carolina School of the Arts); exciting new choreography; introducing scripts for each depicting Beatrice Potter, author of "Peter Rabbit," and her sickly nephew for whom she wrote it; and all female characters will be on point except Tiggy-Winkle who, like all well-dressed hedgehogs, wears only boots.

This concert's gourmet talents include: Kathryn Stout and Doris Levy, choreography and script; John Lanchbery, music; Linda Register, costumes and Ed Danilowicz, music editing. Plan to come and partake of "Peter Rabbit and Friends."

Elections schedule

The following is the Spring Student Government Elections. All registration will take place at the Student Government Office Rm 200 in the Hinton James Student Services Building. The positions available include: SGA President, Vice President, Attorney General, Chief Justice, eight Representatives-at-Large, Sophomore Class President and Vice President for Sophomore, Junior, and Senior, two Senators for each class Sophomore, Junior, and Senior, Freshman will be elected in the Fall along with seven Representatives-at-Large.

Needed: six students-at-large to fill positions on boards for fee allocation. Contact the SGA office no later than March 15. Get involved in where your student fees go!

Voting Schedule:

Tuesday, March 23

9:30 - 4 in library and cafeteria
9:30 - 2 in the Pub
6 pm - 9 pm in library

Wednesday March 24

9:30 - 4 in library and cafeteria
9:30 - 2 in the Pub
6 - 9 in the library

Thursday, March 25

9:30 - 4 in library and cafeteria
9:30 - 2 in the Pub

Students, this is your chance to elect representatives for you. Your vote will make the difference.

Recruiting Visits

U.S. Secret Service
Special Agent Mr. Louis Alfaro
Thurs., March 25
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Burroughs Wellcome
Mr. Gregory Mickey
Thurs., April 7
Pos: Sales Representative
Majors: Any

U.S. Navy
Lt. J. Ross
Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
April 14, 15, & 16
Pos: Various
Major: All

North Carolina Wildlife
Resource Commission
Mr. Tony Williams
Thurs., March 4
Pos: Law Enforcement Officer
Majors: Criminal Justice, Pol. Sci., Any

Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Mr. Alvin Padrick
Tues., March 23
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admin., All

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by The Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Fraternity welcomes pledges

The Brothers of Psi Kappa Omega welcome our first pledge class to the Fraternity. The enthusiasm and dedication these seven pledges have shown thus far inspire the rest of us to work even harder.

We would like to congratulate our Community Relations Committee, chaired by Bob Denne, for the tremendous job they did in coordinating our assistance in the Heart Association's Fund Drive on Feb. 26 and 27. This, our second social service project of the semester, was as successful as the Bloodmobile had been earlier this month. We will also be assisting during the Special Olympics held at UNCW in early April.

The Psychos would like to extend a public invitation to the presidents of the eight other fraternities and sororities to attend our banquet on March 26. We would like you to share our celebration of our anticipated installation as a national colony of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity.

Branch Banking and Trust Co.
Mr. Billy A. Montague
Mr. Robert A. Wheeler
Thurs., March 4
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Acctg., Bus. Admin., Econ., Fin., Mgmt., Marketing, Com. Sci., Math

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John S. Moore
Tues., Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
March 23, 24, 25, & 26
Pos: Various
Majors: All

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!
CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
256-3842

PINEWOOD NEW APARTMENT COMMUNITY

AT RANDALL DRIVE
[Across from UNCW off Hwy 132]

One Bedroom $230
Two Bedroom $285
6 months or 1 year lease
Apply at Pinewood
4901 Randall Dr.
Phone 799-2911
Phillips Management Group

Enjoy Happy Hour In The Schooner Lounge

5:00pm til 6:30pm
Monday thru Friday

Live Entertainment Every Friday and Saturday

Ladies Always Free Must Be Over 18

The Clipper Room offers Luncheon Specials Daily $2.99

open 7 am - 2 pm
5 pm - 9 pm

Located in Wilmington's Historical District

801 Market Street

Beautiful
Mini-suites
Available for
Your Visitors

College Students
Welcome

Campus Calendar

Little Sister Sought

Psi Kappa Omega began their campaign for little sisters Feb. 10. As it stands there are 15 little sisters for pledges. The officers representing the little sisters are: Karen Garten, President, Bobbi Feiner, Vice President, Donna Fincham, Secretary, and Kim Stainback, Treasurer.

The little sisters were formed

Non-Trad Group Organizes

Given some of the special interests, concerns and needs of non-traditional students, a Non-Trad Support Group is being organized. This small group experience will meet for one to one and a half hours weekly and will seek to generate a caring

Football Club Sponsors Game

The Football club will sponsor a Donkey Basketball game at 7 pm March 21 in Hanover Gymnasium. Tickets can be purchased from any club member at the low price of $2 for adults and $1 for children.

to support the brothers and to help with community, social and fund raising activities. Be looking for the Psi Kappa Omega little sisters to be selling raffle tickets for your favorite beverage in the near future. The proceeds will go to the Lung Association. Our first project was a donut sale, which was held Feb. 27.

context for talking about some of the things that both excite and trouble us as older students.

The first meeting is today at 12 in the library conference room. Come join us!

Scholarship Available

Interviews for an Army ROTC two year scholarship will be conducted the third week of March. Please call the ROTC office, 791-1133, if you are interested.

Students must have at least a 2.75 GPA and combined SAT scores of 950-1000 to apply.

Gymnastics/Swimming Instructor needed for summer Gymnastics Camp on campus. Applicant must be at least age 18 with experience in teaching beginner through intermediate gymnastics and swimming (must have current WSI or Senior Lifesaving) to children ages 6-14. Camp will run from 8 am - 5 pm Monday through Friday during the following weeks: June 14-18, 21-25, June 28 - July 2, July 12-16, 26-30. Number of weeks worked is optional. There is no salary (this may be used as an internship) but air conditioned dorm room, three meals a day and staff privileges concerning university facilities are provided.

AMA Forms

AMAZing is the only word to describe the newly organized chapter of the American Marketing Association. The first meeting held on Feb. 24 at Bananas Lounge drew a "standing room only crowd."

If you missed the first meeting and opportunity of a lifetime, there is still another chance. The local AMA has future plans for a beach party and banquet. Enthusiastic students from all majors are invited to attend the next meeting. Look for details in Bear Hall today!

Instructors Needed For Summer Session

Sports Instructors needed to teach beginning level tennis, racquetball and/or golf to adults attending Vacation College. Tennis lessons will be given Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 1:30-2:15, golf lessons - Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2:30-3:15, racquetball lessons - Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30-2:15. Vacation College runs the following weeks: May 23-28, June 13-18, June 27 - July 2, July 11-16, 25-30. Number of weeks worked is optional. Salary is on a work/study program. Dorm room and meal plan is available at regular cost. Applicant must be enrolled in summer school.

Please send current resumes to Diane Keith, Office of Special Programs, Hoggard 119, UNCW, Box 3725, Wilmington, NC 28406. For more information, call Ms. Keith in Chapel Hill: 933-6309 (after 7 pm). Resumes must be received by April 5, 1982.

Classified

All students, faculty, and q-campus clubs and organizations may advertise in the Classified Ad Section of The Seahawk at no charge. All off-campus organizations and businesses will be charged $2.00 per inch.	Services
Lost and Found Lost: John T. Hoggard 1981 class ring, possibly in Chem/Phy darkroom, if found, return to The Seahawk office. REWARD OFFERED. Lost - gold bracelet, has sentimental value. Please call Beth. 392-7632 - Reward offered.	Typist Available. Betty Ames 799-2578 IBM Executive Typewriter TYPING Resumes, Applications, Transcripts, Term papers, etc... call 791-0990

OFFERS A 20%
DISCOUNT TO
UNCW STUDENTS
ON LUNCHES

Hours

11:30 - 3:00

5:00 - 10:00

Happy Hour Every Saturday

GET READY TO Roll INTO Casino Night

MARCH 27

 Starting at 9:00
 in the Pub

SAILING from p. 1

for reimbursement, I was subjected to that whole ordeal," said Wolff. "They took a personal offense. When a bill is owed, it is not an ultimatum to call that bill due, but they saw it as an ultimatum and trying to direct their policy."

senators. "It became obvious that one member wanted to withdraw support, freeze funds, or otherwise close down the Sailing Club," Wolff said.

"When he couldn't get his way or thought he might not get his way, he stormed out to break the quorum and make sure that something wouldn't happen that would go against his wishes."

According to Dr. Wolff, the Sailing Club has not violated any provisions of their charter or the SGA Bylaws. He also noted that there was no provision in the SGA Bylaws which prohibited him from having an opinion or the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department from taking a position on any matter.

ADVISOR from p. 2

judgement, yet she claims no such intention. With apologies to the bard, "Methinks thou dost protest too much!"

Robert E. Rosenthal, Ph.D.
Director of Forensics

MEN AND WOMEN
HAIRCUTS $6.00 to $7.00
CURLIE PERMS
WITH HAIR CUT: $25.00

Tuesday-Friday, 9am-7pm; Saturday 9am-4pm
LONG LEAF MALL PH. 799-5029

Mrs. Grace, ESP
Palm and Card
Readings
and Advisor

Tells your past, present and future. Gives advise on love affairs, business and marriage. If you are in need of help, consult Mrs. Grace, ESP . . . Today. All ESP readings are confidential.

For Appointment
Call 799-9161
4903 Oleander Drive
across from
Hugh McCrae Park

TWO HEAVY HITTERS TOUCH BASES ON BATS, BALLS, AND BEER.

[illegible]

KOICHI NUMAZAWA
そう、僕はフィールドか小きめてすね

KOICHI: つまり、ソフトで中絶的な日本人の情緒に合わせたんですよ

BOOG: そうですね。でも、それは

KOICHI: いやー、おいしいかったよ。

KOICHI: その通り！とうてす。日本の野球チームに入りませんか

BOOG: M...
KOICHI: そんなことないですよ、
はーとに製造ですよ BOOG:

new pub

You: ...to get involved!

Pub Dance Committee
Does Night Club Style Entertainment
And

We're looking for people interested in:

- *Booking Entertainment
- *Event Planning
- *Show Production
- *Publicity
- *Meeting People
- *Enjoying Their Work

Come to the Student Union today
(Thursday) at 4:00 and find out more about us.

Next meeting: Wednesday, March 17

Don't Forget:

Seaside Jam meeting every Tuesday
2:57 p.m.

Casino Night, March 27, 9:00

Concert Committee meeting, Wed., 7:30

LITE BEER FROM HUBER.
EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED
IN A BEER, AND LESS.

The Seahawk

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington

Volume XXV, Number 18

March 25, 1982

Twelve Pages

'Animal House' writer to speak

Chris Miller, co-script writer of the movie "Animal House" and a contributing writer to National Lampoon, Playboy, Oul, and other magazine will be appearing in Kenan Auditorium at 8 pm April 5.

Steve Gnadt, Program Coordinator of Student Union Activities, did a telephone interview with Miller. What follows is a look at one of the most creative writers today interspersed with some of Miller's quips from the interview.

Chris Miller was born in Brooklyn, New York. "Take my son - please," exclaimed Chris' mother upon his emergence, and people have been roaring with laughter at Miller's writing and in-person appearances ever since.

During his public high school years, Chris was always getting thrown out of class for making jokes and saying bad words. It was then off to college as Chris passed his "ivy years" at Dartmouth College (which, some say, bears a close resemblance to the Dartmouth College attended by Pinto, Otter, Black Whit and their friends in his "Tales of the Adelpian Lodge" (with a number of like-minded buddies, drinking beer and throwing up on each other. When sober enough to find the station, he hosted a nightly radio show, from which he assailed listeners with loud jazz and obscure blues, often getting thrown off the air for making jokes and saying bad words.

"I belonged to Alpha Delta Phi fraternity at Dartmouth," Chris said. "A lot of Delta House antics in 'Animal House' came from my fraternity experiences in college. We had to give the characters in 'Animal House' some redeeming qualities though."

Eventually Chris found employment at a large New York ad agency, where he spent five years writing commercials for Oxydol, Frigidaire and kids' breakfast cereals, reaching a creative high point with his "Cuckoo for Cocoa Puffs" series. But towards the end with his crass exploitation of our nation's children weighing heavily on his soul, he was thrown out of the agency for making bad jokes, saying bad words, and being insane.

"I turned in a script suggesting, in colorful language, that a child be shown roasting in a Suzy Homemaker oven," Chris said.

After leaving the ad agency, Chris began looking for a new creative outlet. Floating at once to his true level, he began writing stories for a sleazy pornographic tabloid that a friend was doing art work for. Still it was $25 a story and a buck is a buck. It was these stories that turned out to be the genesis of the weird, erotic, shocking, totally inexcusable yet lovable writings that appear more or less regularly in National Lampoon, Playboy, and other magazines with few enough scruples to print them.

"I've always been fascinated with sex and what people will do

See ANIMAL p. 12

Board presents statement to senate

Collegiate Hedlines - A classic confrontation between student government and student newspaper is taking place at the U. of North Carolina-Wilmington. The Student Government Association senate there tried recently to freeze the newspaper's funding when its editor refused to answer questions pertaining to editorial functions.

Editor Tricia Wallace was asked to appear before the student senate, which appropriates student fees to campus groups and the newspaper, The Seahawk. Wallace's appearance came shortly after the newspaper reported the arrest of two senators on drug charges and the university court conviction of an SGA officer for forging class registration slips. During that appearance, Wallace says she agreed to answer business and financial questions, but refused to discuss editorial policies. "I did offer to answer those questions in my office, but no one showed up," she says.

Instead, the senate passed a resolution ordering Wallace to appear before the senate again the following week to "answer any and all questions" or risk sanctions against the paper. When she didn't show, the senate voted to freeze the newspaper's funding. Although the SGA president, Steve Schmidt, vetoed that resolution, the senate could override the veto at a future meeting, but have not done so at this time.

Student Senator Mark Bremer says such a vote could have been cast, but not because the senate wants to close down the paper. Wallace and Bremer both say the paper could operate on its ad revenues for a while, but wouldn't be able to pay student salaries. The issue, according to Bremer, is whether any student fee-funded organization can defy a senate order. "One of our functions is supervisory," maintains Bremer. "We told her to show up or face stricter sanctions and the only sanction we have is freezing the funds. It would set a bad precedent to just let the paper off."

Wallace points to the fact she was given no formal notice of the senate's request for a second appearance - Bremer attributes that to an executive branch mistake - and says further that the senate has no business interfering in the paper's news coverage. "We've always had problems with this arrangement of getting our funding from them," Wallace says. "Now it's come to a head and we want to see something done about it."

Wallace admits The Seahawk inaccurately reported the senate response to the drug charges against its members, but says it ran a correction in a subsequent issue. She believes both Schmidt and the UNCW administration back the newspaper's demand for editorial independence. "What could come out of this is a fee allocation board to distribute the money instead of the senate," Wallace says. "The administration says it's already considering something like that."

Wallace received a summons from Vice President Jeff Newton last week to attend the senate meeting in order to answer "policy questions."

See COLLEGIATE Pg. 8

Todd Council, president of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society, presents a cash award to Kim Mills in recognition of her achievement as the Phi Eta Sigma scholar of 1981-82. A sophomore from Wallace, NC, Kim is majoring in education and has a quality point average of 3.94 on the 4.0 scale.

The award was courtesy of Jackson Beverage Company of Wilmington.

'Hear and Heed Archbishop's plea for San Salvador'

On March 24, 1980, Oscar Romero, Archbishop of San Salvador was raising the chalice of Communion wine at the altar of a small chapel in San Salvador when a lone gunman stepped up to the door of the church, fired a shot that struck the Archbishop in the heart and fled. The Archbishop fell to the floor, his blood streaking the white altar cloth. A nun who bent over this dying man near heard him say, "May God have mercy on the assassin."

Why was this gentle man killed? He was killed because he loved his people in San Salvador enough to speak out against the injustice and death being perpetrated upon the poor by a U.S. backed Salvadorean government. He sought no political office, no position of leadership. He spoke only out of his love and concern for his people. Appointed in 1977 as a conservative concerned for the spirituality of the Church; within one month of walking among his people he was changed and began to speak out from his pulpit (also broadcast on a local radio station). Each week he would read, one by one, the names of those killed or arrested and the whole congregation would respond after each name "Presente" in affirmation of their faithful solidarity with their dead brothers and sisters.

On Feb. 17, 1980, he wrote President Carter: "I am very worried by the news that the United States is studying a way of encouraging El Salvador's arms race by sending military equipment and advisors to 'train three Salvadoran battalions in logistics, communications, and intelligence.' If this newspaper report is correct, your government's contribu-

Stillpoint

by Bob Haywood, Campus Minister

tion, instead of favoring the cause of justice and peace in El Salvador, will surely increase repression here and sharpen the repression that has been unleashed against the people's organizations fighting to defend their most fundamental human rights. . . ."

Recently, members of the security forces dragged out and killed persons who had occupied the Christian Democratic Party headquarters. Neither the junta nor the party had authorized any such steps to be taken. This is proof enough that neither the junta nor the Christian Democrats govern the country. Political power is in the hands of the armed forces. They use their power unscrupulously. They know only how to repress the people and defend the interests of the Salvadoran oligarchy. . . ."

As a Salvadoran and an archbishop of San Salvador, I have the obligation of seeing to it that faith and justice reign in my country. Therefore, assuming you truly want to defend human rights, I ask that you do two things: Prohibit all military assistance to the Salvadoran government. Guarantee that your government will not intervene, directly, or indirectly, by means of military, economic, diplomatic, or other pressure, to influence the direction of the destiny of the Salvadoran people. . . ."

We are living through a serious economic and political crisis in our country at this time, but it is beyond doubt that increasingly it is the people itself that is becoming conscientized and organized, and thereby preparing itself to take the initiative and shoulder the responsibility for the future of El Salvador. The people's organizations are the only social force capable of resolving the crisis. . . ."

My friends, yesterday was the second anniversary of this martyred Christians' death. A few days before that fateful day, the Archbishop said "I am prepared to offer my blood for the redemption and resurrection of El Salvador. If God accepts the sacrifice, I hope it will be a seed of liberty and a sign of hope." God did accept the sacrifice of this man. I find myself unable to do anything other than hear his voice and the voices of other Christians in Central America telling us to get out and stop supporting repression. I choose to believe these Christian voices more than the confused voices of our own U.S. administration. Oscar Romero spoke only out of love and concern. What other voices do you hear that you believe does the same, i.e. assess the situation with no self interest? We must hear and heed such a one that gave his life in love for his people in opposition to repression in which we are involved.

Credibility Gap

by Sankey Blanton, Non-Traditional Student

'Obligation is the key word, SGA Members no exception'

There seems to be some confusion about the role of elected representatives, and where, how, when or to whom representatives function.

A generally accepted idea is "the voice of the people" or "spokesperson for their constituency," which makes being a representative a privilege, honor or otherwise neat thing. This is also the most limited and self-serving definition available.

Another side of the representative that has lately been forgotten, at least on this campus, is that they can be considered typical members of the represented groups. For example, SGA members represent UNCW students to the Administration, local community, Board of Directors, and other Universities in the UNC system. That's a lot of representing.

The way this works is simple. If SGA members dress nicely and are exceptionally fine students, then, to the people of Wilmington, ALL UNCW students are probably neat dressers and Dean's List achievers. IN short, along with the privilege of being a representative comes and obligation to uphold and display the values of the majority.

Obligation is the key word; it goes hand in glove with privilege. People who represent me, who offer themselves for my vote of confidence, who will be viewed by North Carolina as an example of my values, have an obligation to me. SGA members are no exception. Maybe I'm a little non-traditional, but I am honest and I do not intentionally break laws. If you have these values also, then WE have a right to be represented by people who have integrity and are law-abiding.

Obligation is a tough row-to-hoe, but the best representatives understand and can carry the load. This burden of obligation is not thrust upon them, nor is it something that can be picked-up and left-off at the campus' edge.

SGA members represent us to the rest of the world. Their obligation includes private as well as academic or "public" life. The man-on-the-street doesn't care if you go to class or

The Seahawk

Tricia Wallace, Editor

Janet Hundley, Managing Editor

Wendy Robbins, Layout Editor

Rene Hurt, Entertainment Editor

Holly Henderson, Features Editor

Barbara Grob, Sports Editor

Scott Sibley, Head Photographer

Bill Estep, Advertising Manager

Sonia Clark, Business Manager

Photography: Jamie Moncrief

Production: Holly Henderson, Yvette Young

Staff Writers: Julie Russ, Jamie Moncrief

Mike Tetreault, Circulation Manager

Typesetter: Chyrl Ferguson

Business Advisor: Susan Goodrum

Journalistic Advisor: Bill Atwill

The Seahawk is the student newspaper of The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and is published every week. Editorial opinions reflect the views of the Editorial Board and are written by the Editor unless otherwise signed. Editorials do not necessarily reflect the views of individual staff members or of the University and its officials.

Martha Neil Hardy as Tamsen Donner.

Regional Theatre actress gives performance

By Holly Henderson
Features Editor

Martha Neil Hardy, cofounder and artistic director of Carolina Regional Theatre gave a performance of Tamsen Donner: A Woman's Journey. This interpretation of authoress Ruth Whitman's book was adapted by Martha Neil Hardy and William M. Hardy.

In the dark SRO Theatre in Kenan Hall, Hardy shared Tamsen Donner's life.

Tamsen Donner was born in Newburyport, Mass. Her first marriage ended when her husband and two children died of what she called the "fever."

She moved onto Springfield, Illinois where she taught school. She met and married widower George Donner who had two daughters. Within the next ten years they had three girls of their own.

They then set off with their children from Independence, Miss. with a wagon train which consisted of 70 people. There destination was Sutter's Fork, CA.

These families passed over 1,000 miles of desert and wilderness. They had planned this trip to last three months, but indeed it lasted six months. There was little food or supplies. The weather was changing for the worse by the time they reached the Sierra's.

As they traveled through the snow the Donner's wagon wheel broke. While George fixed it, he suffered a gash in his hand. As he grew weaker, the rest of the train moved on. Tamsen sent her children on with rescuers sent back by the others who had left. But Tamsen decided to stay on with George. As food dwindled from little to none, Tamsen Donner wrote in her journal, "George dies of his weakness because of the infected wound and starvation." The play ends leading the audience to believe that Tamsen Donner suffered the same fate of Starvation.

Candidate calls for media independence

by Donna Holden
Journalism Contributor

SGA presidential candidate Nancy Kelker, a business major, is running for office because she feels that she "could really do a good job" for the 82-83 academic year.

"The SGA has a big brother attitude toward the clubs," Kelker stated. "This should be changed. No one is in nursery school... the SGA should give assistance, not try to run the clubs."

According to Kelker, UNCW media should have more independence. The Seahawk especially should have freedom of the press, from both administration and student government she added.

If elected, her plans include a new fee allocation board and she is in support of revamping the university court. Also, "we could have leadership conferences. Clubs put in requests for funds to participate in these, so we could have our own here."

The Board of Trustees has five-year planning goals and "we need a senate committee to plan long range goals," said Kelker.

Half Moon presents talent contest, musician

by David Newbern
Staff Writer

Fools Day will prove to be hilarious, pathetic and maybe outstanding when on April 1 at 8:30 pm the Coffeehouse Committee Half Moon Productions presents the Local Yocal Talent Contest in the Pub.

This "anything goes" talent show should prove to be as insane as the GongShow or the $1.98 Beauty Show with acts that are beyond human belief. People will take the stage in hopes of reaching stardom as past performers such as the Nose Hairs or the Galloway Gang attempted.

So for those individuals who feel they have any talent or not any at all, bring your friends, bring your animals, bring yourself and sign up for the Local Yocal Talent Contest in room 101 in the Pub before 5 pm April 1.

For those who have no desire to perform, come and watch the socially rude, crude and unacceptable. Join the fun and get wild on April 1 at 8:30 pm!

The Coffeehouse Committee Half Moon Productions is proud to present Michael John at 8:30 pm April 2 in the Goodwood Tavern.

Michael John started his professional career in Atlanta which has established him as a tremendous solo artist. Between 1971 and 1973, John played numerous concerts as well as doing some radio and TV in Great Britain.

Michael John promises to be a night of good music and fun.

University Program Board
Special Events along with Coastal Beverage Company
PRESENTS

Casino Night

Like to play
Poker

READ THIS →

There will be four closed poker games during Casino Night. If you would like to participate in one of the closed games, fill out the coupon below and turn it into room 101 in the PUB by 5:00 pm, March 26. There will be a drawing and the names of the 20 lucky winners will be posted by 6:00 pm in the PUB on Friday. Winners should be at the PUB with poker faces on no later than 8:45 pm Saturday, March 27. FAILURE TO BE ON TIME WILL FORFEIT YOUR CHANCE TO PLAY!!!

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
PHONE NUMBER _____

Newton

Newton's accomplishments listed

Jeff Newton is the Vice president of the SGA. He is a junior majoring in business. Among his numerous accomplishments this year have been to form committees to investigate the student's opinions on the possibilities of changes being made.

Changes such as expanding the gym facilities hours and changing classes held two nights a week to one night per week were looked into.

Newton says he has tried to allow the students to be heard in the meetings. He has tried to work to enrich communications between the clubs and organizations.

He was recently commended for the manner in which he handled the senate as a body. Newton's service to the SGA has been to seek student opinion and relay it to the senate.

Newton hosted a radio show, "Jazz with Jeff" on Monday evenings when WLOZ was in operation. He is currently Chief Usher for the University Program Board.

Schmidt states plans, activities

by Holly Henderson
Features Editor

Steve Schmidt is a junior majoring in communications. He was elected to the office of Vice President and took the office after Charles Parsons resigned. He has been active in the senate even before taking office.

He has proposed a property insurance policy for all the students which consists of two plans.

Plan A will cover up to $1,500 of personal property with a $25 deductible at approximately $30 dollars per year.

Plan B will cover up to $2,000 of personal property with a $25 deductible at approximately $40 per year.

Schmidt has tried to enhance communications with students by submitting a President's Report to The Seahawk and helped to submit a proposal for WLOZ to be reinstated on campus.

He has worked to put in a new financial system for next semester that will help to manage student fees more efficiently.

Schmidt is also interested in student action with Reagan's financial aid cut proposals.

Schmidt

FOOL'S WEEK

JOIN THE FUN AND EXCITEMENT BY CELEBRATING APRIL FOOLS DAY WITH 6 DAYS OF EVENTS BROUGHT TO YOU BY THOSE FOOLISH LITTLE PIGS OF THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD. YOU ARE GETTING 6 DAYS TO SHOW YOUR SUPPORT FOR THE FOOLS OF THE WORLD. DON'T MISS OUT ON THIS OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFE TIME, TO BE FOOLISH AND GET AWAY WITH IT!!!!

APRIL

4. NATIONAL LAMPPOONS "ANIMAL HOUSE" TOGA! TOGA! PUB 8:00 FREE	5. LECTURE BY THE WRITER OF IN NEWMAN $1.00 ANIMAL W/IO "HOUSE CHAIRS MILLER" PUB 6:00	6. SURF FREE to BEACH FLICKS "BLUE SAMBA" BIG WEDNESDAY PUB 6:00	1. LOCAL VOCAL TALENT SHOW FREE GOODWOOD TAVAN 8:30 8Y0B	2. MICHAEL JOHN COFFEEHOUSE FREE GOODWOOD TAVAN 8:30 8Y0B	3. TOGA FREE DANCE WITH "FOUNDATION" LIVE DANCE BAND PUB 9:00 8Y0B
4. NATIONAL LAMPPOONS "ANIMAL HOUSE" TOGA! TOGA! PUB 8:00 FREE	5. LECTURE BY THE WRITER OF IN NEWMAN $1.00 ANIMAL W/IO "HOUSE CHAIRS MILLER" PUB 6:00	6. SURF FREE to BEACH FLICKS "BLUE SAMBA" BIG WEDNESDAY PUB 6:00	NOTICE: THIS WEEK WILL BE MORE FUN THAN ICE DOWN YOUR PANTS OR BUBBLE GUM IN YOUR HAIR	NOTICE: THIS WEEK WILL BE MORE FUN THAN ICE DOWN YOUR PANTS OR BUBBLE GUM IN YOUR HAIR

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

DISCO'S DEAD PARTY

Sat. March 27

Disco's last night with
George Davis, DJ

Disco is dying, not the Four Winds

Closing Sat. March 27 at 1 pm until. . .

Look For Our Big
Re-Incarnation - April
Fools Day

Place - Four Winds??

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests
welcome.

Newton

Newton's accomplishments listed

Jeff Newton is the Vice president of the SGA. He is a junior majoring in business. Among his numerous accomplishments this year have been to form committees to investigate the student's opinions on the possibilities of changes being made. Changes such as expanding the gym facilities hours and changing classes held two nights a week to one night per week were looked into.

Newton says he has tried to allow the students to be heard in the meetings. He has tried to work to enrich communications between the clubs and organizations.

He was recently commended for the manner in which he handled the senate as a body.

Newton's service to the SGA has been to seek student opinion and relay it to the senate.

Newton hosted a radio show, "Jazz with Jeff" on Monday evenings when WLOZ was in operation. He is currently Chief Usher for the University Program Board.

Schmidt states plans, activities

by Holly Henderson
Features Editor

Steve Schmidt is a junior majoring in communications. He was elected to the office of Vice President and took the office of President in the fall after Charles Parsons resigned. He has been active in the senate even before taking office.

He has proposed a property insurance policy for all the students which consists of two plans.

Plan A will cover up to $1,500 of personal property with a $25 deductible at approximately 30 dollars per year.

Plan B will cover up to $2,000 of personal property with a $25 deductible at approximately $40 per year.

Schmidt has tried to enhance communications with students by submitting a President's Report to The Seahawk and helped to submit a proposal for WLOZ to be reinstated on campus.

He has worked to put in a new financial system for next semester that will help to manage student fees more efficiently.

Schmidt is also interested in student action with Reagan's financial aid cut proposals.

Schmidt

FOOL'S WEEK

JOIN THE FUN AND EXCITEMENT BY CELEBRATING APRIL FOOLS DAY WITH 6 DAYS OF EVENTS BROUGHT TO YOU BY THOSE FOOLISH LITTLE PIGS OF THE UNIVERSITY PROGRAM BOARD. YOU ARE GETTING 6 DAYS TO SHOW YOUR SUPPORT FOR THE FOOLS OF THE WORLD. DON'T MISS OUT ON THIS OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFE TIME, TO BE FOOLISH AND GET AWAY WITH IT!!!!!!

APRIL

4. NATIONAL
LAMPIONS
"ANIMAL HOUSE"
TOGA: TOGA!
PUB 8:00 FREE

5. LECTURE
BY THE WRITER OF
IN MENA
ANIMAL HOUSE
W/IO "CHRIS MILLER"

6. SURF FREE
6 BEACH
FLICKS
"BLU SAFARI"
"BIG WEDNESDAY"
PUB 6:00

1. LOCAL
YOCAL
TALENT SHOW
FREE
GOODWOOD TAYBAR
8:30 8YOB

2. MICHAEL
JOHN COFFEEHOUSE
FREE
GOODWOOD TAYBAR
8:30 8YOB

3. TOGA FREE
DANCE WITH FOUNDATION
LIVE DANCE BAND
PUB 9:00 8YOB

NOTICE: THIS WEEK WILL BE MORE FUN THAN
ICE CREAM
PANTS OR BUBBLE GUM
IN YOUR HAND

FOUR WINDS

Located 5430 Market
St. by the 132
Overpass

DISCO'S DEAD PARTY

Sat. March 27

Disco's last night with
George Davis, DJ

Disco is dying, not the Four Winds

Closing Sat. March 27 at 1 pm
until. . .

Look For Our Big
Re-Incarnation - April
Fools Day

Place - Four Winds??

Four Winds is a private nightclub not open to the general public. Members and guests
welcome.

Sports

Surfing club announces official club charter

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

Junior Andy Wigmore is excited about surfing. More importantly, he's excited about the newly chartered club at UNCW, the surfing club, which he is vice president of.

The club has been competing for three years now, without official UNCW recognition, and now that they've got it, they hope they can repeat last year's undefeated season.

The club competes in two surfing divisions, the National Scholastic Surfing Association (NSSA) and the Eastern Surfing Association (ESA), and two surfing teams of 12 members each compete in the contest scorings.

UNCW has 24 active members, and while all of them are male, Andy says that women are welcome to come out.

This year's club president is senior Mike FitzPatrick, and sophomore Bob Warner is treasurer. The surfers' advisor is Dr. A. Puente of the Psychology Department.

"He's given us a lot of help," says Andy. "He's real enthusiastic about the club."

The surfing club competes year-round, with the exception of November through February, when they do their "winter training."

The club's spring season is already underway. It began with an Open Contest held at Paradise Pier on West Onslow Beach (near Topsail). UNCW placed three men in the top five spots; sophomore Rich Lane placed 2nd, senior Mark Venters placed 4th, and Andy Wigmore was the contest's overall winner.

The club will compete at Topsail again this Saturday.

SURFING SCHEDULE

March 27 - ESA at Paradise Pier, West Onslow Beach (Topsail Island)

April 3 - NSSA at Paradise Pier

April 10 - Intercollegiate Open Contest, at Cape Hatteras

April 17 - ESA North-South Carolina Contest

photo by Andy Wigmore

The surfing club swings into action.

Photo by B.J. Grob

The Lady Seahawk softball team, shown here during Thursday's practice, started their year by winning 4 out of last week's 7 outings. The Lady 'Hawks will host a twinbill with Wesleyan College on Saturday.

Baseball record stands at 9-7

The UNCW men's baseball team faces seven games during the next six days. Last week, the 'Hawks had a 5-game winning streak, which they hope to repeat this week. Now 9-7, they will travel to Campbell for two single games on Friday and Saturday, returning home on Sunday for a doubleheader against Atlantic Christian at 1 pm.

Junior Paul Murr, at shortstop, has been the 'Hawks best offensive performer, with a great .444 average.

photo by Kenneth Wilson

The women's tennis team opened its 1982 season with a 9-0 loss at UNC-Charlotte last Thursday. The Lady netters will host Duke on Saturday, at 1. The UNCW netmen won 4 out of last week's 6 matches, led by junior John Shackelford, the team's #1 singles player. The netmen will host Campbell and UNC-Greensboro on Friday and Sunday, respectively.

Junior Janet Johnson swims in AIAW Nationals in Idaho

B.J. Grob
Sports Editor

When UNCW Junior Janet Johnson was 11 years old, there was a picture of the Fayetteville YMCA swim team in the city's paper. When Janet saw the picture, she says "I had just quit piano lessons, and I needed something to occupy my afternoons." She went to the YMCA and began working out with the team. Of her early swimming experience, Janet says, "It was terrible; I couldn't swim at all!" But through years of faithful training, Janet has become an outstanding swimmer, a two-time All-American in four events, and recently competed in her "dream-come-true," the AIAW Women's Nationals.

Janet qualified for the 1982 Nationals Meet in five different events: the 50-100- and 200-yd. breaststroke, and 200- and 400-

yd. medley relays. But swimming in the National Meet was only half of her "dream."

Born and raised in Fayetteville, Janet has never visited the western U.S., so traveling to Idaho for the competition was a thrill in itself for her.

Once in Idaho, Janet was seeded fourth in the 50-yd. breaststroke after the preliminary heat, but finished 8th after the final race. She wasn't disappointed with her place, though. "I'm more happy with times than places," she says, and her time for the event was one of her fastest ever (her fastest being :31.6).

Janet also finished 10th in the 100-yd. breaststroke, and 16th overall in the 200-yd. event. And while she enjoys the longer distances during practice, she adds "In competition, I like shorter distances."

Janet swam an unusual long distance practice swim over the December semester break,

Janet Johnson

while the team was training in Florida. It was a one-mile ocean swim, and 490 collegiate students from teams all along the east coast took part in the event. Janet says the swim was especially unique for her, because she is always apprehensive about swimming in the ocean, and the waves were exceedingly high. A black squall line mounted in the distance over the sea, and swarms of jellyfish stung a number of the swimmers that day.

Janet, a therapeutic recreation major, spends a lot of time practicing her swimming. During training season, she spends as much as four hours a day in the pool. But she credits her real success in competition to "Burr," a small stuffed bear with a gold ribboned green hat, who sits on the starting blocks while Janet competes. She first acquired him from her teammates at the YMCA, and says of him, "He brings me so much good luck!"

Janet is a graduate of Fayetteville's Terry Sanford High School, where she also competed in track and volleyball. Track is another sport she does well in: in 1977, she was an all-conference runner in the 880 (half mile) event.

Her future goals include serving in the Army's Intelligence program, hopefully in Hawaii, and possibly ultimately working for the FBI.

But for right now, Janet's thoughts are on swimming. "We've had a week off, so far," she says. "You're given time off and all you want to do is go swimming."

Interfraternity Council Presents 1982 Greek Week

JOINING GREEK

Joining a fraternity or sorority serves much greater purposes than simply getting the chance to party and get wild with a group of good friends all year long. By becoming involved in a fraternal organization, you give yourself the chance to refine your personal morals, to strengthen your sense of honor and loyalty. You get the opportunity to develop and demonstrate your leadership abilities, and you learn how to accept the leadership of others. In other words, you develop and refine your own personal sense of character.

One of the crucial facets of your character is your ability to cooperate with others, whether you share similar beliefs or very diverse beliefs. This is the substance of which the Inter-Fraternity Council is made. The goal of the IFC is to promote the positive growth of Greek organizations on our campus. This is accomplished by the close cooperation of the member groups of the IFC. This is not always the easiest of tasks, but it is always the most rewarding once attained. To congratulate all of the Greek fraternities and sororities affiliated with the Inter-Fraternity Council, and to share our experiences with our fellow students, we will celebrate throughout next week with our second annual Greek Week. There will be sports events, charity functions, and of course parties. We invite all students to come out and join in the fun--perhaps we can show you the wisdom of the phrase "GO GREEK"!!

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS OF 1982 GREEK WEEK

Monday, Mar. 29

1:30 pm Parade of Greek floats around campus.

5:30 pm Greek Sing contest - behind Galloway Hall.

6-9 pm "Meet the Greeks" Party at tennis courts behind Galloway Hall.

Tuesday, Mar. 30

3:30 pm Volleyball Tournament

Wednesday, Mar. 31

7 pm- TOGA PARTY at Four Winds [proceeds go to charity]. Live Music!!

Thursday, Apr. 1

3 pm Field Events all afternoon: tug o' war, 3-legged race, egg toss, pyramid-building contest, and pizza-eating contest [pizzas provided courtesy of Dominoes Pizza].

Also special event - "Build a Busch Mountain" with prizes by Jackson Beverage Co. and Anheuser Busch.

Friday, Apr. 2

5 pm Pig Pickin' for Greeks, and presentation of Greek Week trophies, at Garden of Four Winds.

THE INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

ΣΑΕ
ΔΖ
ΤΝΚ
ΑΦΑ

GO

GREEK

sponsored by Jackson Beverage Co.

ΤΚΕ
ΦΒΨ
ΧΦ
ΠΚΦ

PUB FINE ARTS COMMITTEE

SUNDAY, APRIL 4

8:00 PM IN THE PUB

FREE AND BYOB!

COME WARM UP WITH US FOR CHRIS MILLER

TOMORROW NITE, MARCH 26
IN THE PUB

PUB FINE ARTS COMMITTEE PRESENTS:

THE MARATHON CLASSIC FILM FESTIVAL

Twelve Hours of the Greatest

American Film Classics.

FREE and BYOB!!

8:00pm - Oliver

10:30pm - AMERICAN Queen

12:30am - ROMEO &
Juliet

3:00am - BEN-HUR

6:30am - Play it again
Sam

Special Programs offers experimental mini summer session

by James Bernhardt
Journalism Contributor

The experimental Mini Summer Session was the topic of an interview with Dr. Jim Edmundson the Director of Special Programs.

Some questions left unanswered in the summer session bulletin were answered in regard to the new mini session.

Dr. Edmundson said that this program is new to UNCW but not to the rest of the country.

Several schools have held similar programs for years with success. He said the success of the mini session here will be determined by the number of students who respond by enrolling in the session.

The courses selected for the mini session were selected by the departments participating in the program. These courses were picked as those that could be successfully completed in the limited time.

The professors are to outline the courses and give ideas as how to study effectively to meet the demands of such large amounts of work. Difficulty for students is expected but professors will be gauging progress and will be able to aid students who are having trouble.

Some students have asked since the mini session is experimental, if the session is a failure academically will the grades count? The answer to this is yes. Students who intend to enroll in the mini session should be aware of the intense demands this program will make. Because of this intensity no student shall be allowed to enroll in more than one course in the first summer session if he or she attended mini session.

As far as regular summer sessions are concerned, students already enrolled will pre-register on the dates listed in the bulletin. Bulletins can be obtained at the Registrar's office or at the Office of Special Programs in Hoggard Hall.

Dr. Edmundson added that the more students who enroll in summer school the more sections will be opened for those attending. Last year no sections had to be closed but in years past sections have been closed due to lack of enrollment. Many students who enroll in summer school are visiting from other schools but approximately 75 percent of the students are UNCW students.

COLLEGIATE from p. 1

Wallace attended the meeting, and read a statement from the Media and Publications Board. The statement said that Wallace was not obligated to answer questions before the senate and repeated that she would answer questions in The Seahawk office. The statement also said that senators could submit questions in writing to the editor to be reviewed by the Media and Publications Board and answered by the editor in writing.

Wallace says that so far she has received no questions and doesn't expect any.

After Wallace left the meeting Thursday night, Senator Nancy Kelker proposed a motion to accept the Media and Publications Board's statement. The motion was defeated.

A spokesperson for the senate said that Senator Mike Stroud said that he would take it upon himself to go downstairs to The Seahawk office and dig up dirt. He promised the report would not be favorable.

SGA from p. 2

live off campus. If you are an SGA member, city councilman, State Senator, U.S. Congressman, or the President, it is assumed that you accept the obligation to represent your constituents' values 24-hours a day, seven days a week. There is no private life for you, but, then again, you weren't appointed, you offered yourself for election to the position.

I am tired of being asked about cheating and pot problems on campus by the man-on-the-street. I expect my representatives to conduct themselves properly so I don't have townspeople snickering about UNCW students. "We've seen your type before."

Pre-registration begins

Pre-registration is March 30 through April 5. Advisors in the General College Advising Center have sent letters to each of their advisees. Most important in these letters is the appointment time. During that time the advisor gives each advisee his or her master card. This master card is essential to pre-registration.

If any General College student failed to receive a letter or missed an appointment, he/she must contact his/her advisor immediately, since pre-registration without a master card is not possible.

TIRED OF LIVING IN A DORM? ROOMMATE PLACEMENT SERVICE

We interview and screen people for compatibility. We have listings of people who have places and need roommates to move in right away!

WE MATCH PERSONALITIES AND PEOPLE!
CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT

256-3842

uncw
pub
b

DANCE COMMITTEE
PRESENTS

STUDENT UNION

FOOLS WEEK
TOGA DANCE
WITH "FOUNDATIONS"
APRIL 3, 9PM

TOGA!
TOGA!

Top 30 Albums & Tapes
$8.98 List only $6.49

Other Top 200 $8.98 List
Albums & Tapes only $6.99

New Releases $8.98 List
only $6.99

Lowest Prices
on Old Catalog
Albums

Super Bargains on Used Albums

Over 2,000 LP's starting at 99 cents

Chris Miller Show
April 5 - 8 pm

Save Your Ticket Stubs
& Get Any $8.98 List
LP for $5.99

Lowest Price on TDK
& Maxell Blank
Tapes/Single or Case Prices

Buy One Used LP At Regular Price
And Get
2nd Compatible Priced
LP For Half Price

Average Price $1.99

We Buy/Trade Albums
[Not Abused]

OPEN 10 till 9 Mon.-Sat.

Buy One TDK-SAC-90
At Regular Price And Get 2nd Tape for $2.99
Regular Price $4.39

UPB's FOOLS WEEK begins with:

THE
LOCAL SHOW
(ANYTHING GOES/GONG SHOW)
Thur., April 1

(WHAT A FOOLISH DAY!)
 A WILD, OBNOXIOUS NIGHT OF ENTERTAINMENT, AS UNCW STUDENTS AND THEIR FREINDS TAKE THE STAGE. INTERESTED TO SIGN UP IN THE PUB DARE-TO-BE WILD CRAZIES ARE ENCOURAGED TO JOIN THE FUN AND ENJOY THIS OFFICE, RM 102, BY THE 1ST! OR COME JOIN THE FUN AND ENJOY THIS RARE EVENING OF ENTERTAINMENT!!! PRIZES AWARDED!!!

MICHAEL JOHN
Fri., 2

COME SEE THIS DYNAMIC SOLO PERFORMER AS HE PLAYS HIS VARIETY OF ORIGINAL AND POPULAR TUNES. HE'LL MAKE YOUR EVENING AT THE PUB ONE YOU WON'T SOON FORGET!!
 SEE YOU THERE!!!

AT 8:30 pm EACH NIGHT IN THE PUB FREE & BYOB

Campus Calendar

Reading workshop for tutors

The Wilmington Literacy Group, sponsored by Wilmington Baptist Association, has scheduled a LAUBACH WAY TO READING workshop for training volunteer tutors to teach reading and writing to English speaking adults and school students. The time is March 26 from 6:30 to 9:30 pm, March 27 from 9 am to 4 pm and March 28 from 1 to 4 pm. It will be held at Wilmington Baptist Association Office, 610 S. College Rd. The workshop is free and tutor materials are $10. Students pay for their books but there is not a charge for tutoring. The purpose of this workshop is to show Christian love and concern in helping students to learn to read and write.

To register, call 799-1160.

'FORAM' seek Marine Science manuscripts

The FORAM: Journal of Marine Sciences is seeking submissions of student papers related to marine sciences. Guidelines are available on request by writing FORAM at the Biology Department in the Marine Sciences Building. Deadline for submission of manuscripts is April 1.

Mrs. Grace, ESP

Palm and Card

Readings and Advisor

Tells your past, present and future. Gives advise on love affairs, business and marriage. If you are in need of help, consult Mrs. Grace, ESP . . . Today. All ESP readings are confidential.

For Appointment
Call 799-9161
4903 Oleander Drive
across from
Hugh McCrae Park

Business seminar scheduled

Interested in finding out more information about the new master's of Business Administration program here at UNCW? Sigma Alpha Beta, the honorary business fraternity, is sponsoring it's final seminar of the year on March 31 at 3 pm on this topic.

Dr. Norman Kaylor, Chairman of the MBA program will be the guest speaker. He will discuss the requirements of entering, how to apply for admission and what will be demanded of the students once admitted to the program.

All interested students, especially graduating seniors, are invited to attend. Please sign up at the SAB bulletin board in Bear Hall. See you there in B-112 on March 31.

Hot dog sale

Sigma Alpha Beta is having a Hot Dog Sale on the steps of Bear Hall. Come eat with us tomorrow between 11:30 and 1:30.

SGA voting ends today

Today is the last day to vote for next year's SGA officials. Ballot boxes will be open until 4 pm in the library, the cafeteria and the Pub.

Summer and fall

Internships available

Mass media internships for Summer 1982 and Fall 1982. See Scott Bluebond for an application, Kenan Hall, room 109. Deadline for summer terms is April 15 and for Fall term, April 21.

BEGINNER OR ADVANCED. Cost is about the same as a semester in a U.S. college: $2,989. Price includes air round trip to Seville from New York, room, board, and tuition complete. Government grants and loans available for eligible students.

Even with a Spanish family, attend classes four hours a day, four days a week, four months. Earn 16 hrs. of credit (equivalent to 4 semesters taught in U.S. colleges over a two year time span). Your Spanish studies will be enhanced by opportunities not available in a U.S. classroom. Standardized tests show our students' language skills superior to students completing two year programs in U.S.

Hurry, it takes a lot of time to make all arrangements. FALL SEMESTER: SEPT. 10-Dec. 22. SPRING SEMESTER: Feb. 1-June 1 each year. FULLY ACCREDITED A program of Trinity Christian College

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

2442 E. Collier S.E. Grand Rapids, Michigan 49508
(A Program of Trinity Christian College)

CALL TOLL FREE for full information 1-800-253-9008
(In Mich., or if toll free line inoperative call 1-616-942-2903 or 942-2541 collect)

Spend Your Summer at

UNC-WILMINGTON

For information contact:

Director of Summer Sessions
P.O. Box 3725, UNC-Wilmington
Wilmington, N.C. 28406
or call (919) 791-4330 ext. 2195

Surfin' & Beach PARTY

featuring

Blue Safari, Big Wednesday & The Fantastic Plastic
Machine

Tuesday,
April 6

FREE
-N BYOB

6:00pm
In the Pub.

Kroger Sav-on brings you,

Copyright 1982
Kroger Sav-on Quantity Rights Reserved
None Sold to Dealers

Items and Prices
Effective Thurs. Mar. 25
Thru Sat. Mar. 27, 1982
in Wilmington

Fantastic Savings...

UNC W STUDENTS

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY
Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale in each Kroger Sav-on, except as specifically noted in this ad. If we do run out of an item we will offer you your choice of a comparable item when available, reflecting the same savings or a raincheck which will entitle you to purchase the advertised item at the advertised price within 30 days.

BEER
Schlitz
12 12-Oz Cans $3.99

TAB. SPRITE, Coca-Cola
2-Ltr. N.R. Btls. 99¢

PREMIUM Michelob Beer
12-Oz. N.R. Btls. $2.82

LYTEL Liebfraumilch
1/2-Ltr. 2.98

COUNTRY OVEN Potato Chips
8-Oz. Bag 79¢

Cost Cutter IMITATION Cheese Food
12-Oz. Pkg. 99¢

Cost Cutter Paper Towels
Jumbo Rolls 49¢

BATHROOM TISSUE Northern
4 Roll Pkg. 95¢

Cost Cutter Ice Cream
1/2-Gal. Ctn. 99¢

FRESH Salad Tomatoes
Lb. 49¢

IMPORTED Thompson Seedless White Grapes
Lb. $1.39

Pepperoni Pizza's
2 $5

STANDARD SIZE Bed Pillows
200 SHEETS 2$7

BEST-RITE Filler Paper
200-Cl. Pkg. 69¢

JUBILEE SHEER Panty Hose
Pair 77¢

DISPOSABLE Bic Lighters
2 Single Packs 2$1

Cost Cutter LUNCHEON MEATS
1-Lb. Pkg. $1.28

Cost Cutter Crest Toothpaste
REGULAR OR MINT
8.4-Oz. Tube 99¢

Make Kroger Sav-on Your ONE STOP SHOPPING Headquarters all through the year!

OPEN Mon. thru Sat. 8 AM TO MIDNIGHT- Sun. 9 AM TO 9 PM

820 S. College Rd. - Wilmington

Animal from p. 1.

to get it," Chris said. "I grew up in the 50's and back then nobody got laid. You had to have a good imagination. A lot of my early material came out of those teen-age fantasies."

It was while Chris was writing regularly for National Lampoon that he met Doug Kenney and Harold Ramis. Chris' first screenplay, written with his weird pals, Doug and Harold, was a modest little comedy called "National Lampoon's Animal House." Rendered into film, "Animal House" proceeded to earn more money than any comedy in the history of movies, launched thousands of toga parties, doubled our nation's sales of beer, and contributed to a host of unplanned pregnancies on campuses everywhere. Based on Chris' "Tales of the Adelpian Lodge," the movie starred John Belushi, Donald Sutherland, and, in his first acting role, Chris himself as "Hardbar," a senior brother with a taste for girly magazines and a quick right hand.

"When we sat down to cast the movie 'Animal House,' there was no question about casting the Bluto character. All three of us (Chris, Doug, and Harold) had John (Belushi) in mind," Chris added.

Chris also wrote and edited the book version of "Animal House," and wrote the story with John Weidman on which "Animal House II" was to be based. Unfortunately, the later project now gathers dust on some back shelf at Universal Studios, but hopefully will some day be revived.

"John (Belushi) was closer to Harold Ramis from their Second City days than I was to John," Chris said. "The entire time we worked on 'Animal House' John was a true professional. He was always on time for rehearsals, he knew his lines, his moves, everything. But everybody knew that John liked to party all night."

Chris has completed a screenplay parodying Club Med called "Club Sandwich." His latest screenplay, written with Michael Sutton, is called "Just Like a Woman." "It tells the story of a male chauvinist who meets God - and discovers she is Lauren Bacall," Chris explained. "To punish him, She turns him into a woman and the fun begins."

Chris Miller's appearance in Kenan Auditorium on April 5 is sponsored by the University Program Board Lecture Committee in association with School Kids Records. The program is titled "The Chris Miller Story Hour" and will include some of his more well known short stories, film clips and anecdotes from "Animal House," and plenty of jokes and bad words. The program begins at 8 pm and admission is $1 for UNCW students (available in the Bookstore) and $2.50 for non-students (available at School Kids Records). Be prepared for a night of hilarious stories, delightful insights, jokes, bad words, and a humorous assault on your ears.

Recruiting Visits

Recruiting visits of prospective employers are arranged on campus by The Career Planning and Placement Office. For more information about these visits, contact the office in room 207 Alderman Administration Building. Sign-up sheets for recruiting interviews are available beginning Monday mornings, three weeks in advance of the scheduled interview.

Scotchman Stores
Mr. Tod McDonald
Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
April 14, 15, & 16
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: All

U.S. Navy
Lt. R. Ross
Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
April 14, 15, & 16
Pos: Various
Majors: All

National Center for Paralegal Training
Ms. Cheryl L. Bird
Tues., April 20
Pos: Paralegal Training Program
Majors: All

Northwestern Mutual Life
Mr. William R. Harwood
Tues., April 6
Pos: Sales
Majors: All

U.S. Marine Corps
Capt. John Moore
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
March 25 & 26
Pos: Various
Majors: All

Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Mr. Alvin Padrick
Wed., March 24
Pos: Mgmt. Trainee
Majors: Bus. Admin., All

Burroughs Wellcome
Mr. Gregory McKey
Wed., April 7
Pos: Sales Rep.
Majors: All

The U.S. Secret Service scheduled recruiting visit has been cancelled.

PINEWOOD

NEW APARTMENT COMMUNITY

AT RANDALL DRIVE

[Across from UNCW off Hwy 132]

One Bedroom $230

Two Bedroom $285

6 months or 1 year lease

Apply at Pinewood

4901 Randall Dr.

Phone 799-2911

Phillips Management Group

Miller times starring Miller High Life

SCHOOL KIDS RECORDS & UNCW University Program Board's LECTURE COMMITTEE

presents:
A FOOLISH NIGHT WITH CHRIS MILLER

Chris is the co-scriitor of the movie "Animal House" and a contributing writer to National Lampoon, Playboy, Oui and other magazines. Be prepared for a night of hilarious stories, delightful insights, jokes, bad words, and a humorous assault on your ears.

MON., APRIL 5
8pm in Kenan Aud.

Admission for "The Chris Miller Story Hour" will be $1 for UNCW Students (available at the Bookstore) and $2.50 for non-students (available at School Kids Records).

"Those college kids think they're so smart."

"Yeah, but only we know if the light's on in here."

©1981 Beer Brewed by Miller Brewing Co. Milwaukee, Wis.

END OF REEL